“Remote Life: Looking and Feeling Your Best”
with Lynne Glassman

During the time of the pandemic, all of us are living differently, dressing differently, and using new ways to connect with one another. Lynne Glassman, a long-time image consultant, and owner of “Doctor of Dress” has a long history of working successfully with clients so they present themselves in the best possible way both for work and in their other personal interactions. Join us for a fascinating conversation about dressing to look and feel your best now, plus projecting your best image during online interactions such as Zoom meetings and virtual Happy Hours.

“Philanthropy, Pandemic, & Protests” with Barbara Hall, Georgetown Village Board Member and Tom Henteleff, Chair of the Bethesda Metro Area Village Board

Giving to nonprofits has hit all-time highs in the face of exploding demands. The needs are great and we are inundated with requests to support organizations we know and many we do not. As donors, how do we sort through the many requests and make the difficult decisions as to where to give that will make a difference? And, what should organizations do to encourage support for their mission and work? Join us for a fact-filled and informative discussion with Barbara Hall and Tom Henteleff that will provide practical advice on how to evaluate organizations and contribute where your gift might have the greatest impact.

Wednesday, August 5th at 5:30 P.M.
