

NMPA Mountain Flying Clinic GOES VIRTUAL!

The acclaimed New Mexico Pilots Association Mountain Flying Clinic will be held again this year but is moving to an all-digital format due to COVID-19. The Clinic, held online via ZOOM, includes an all day ground school on Friday covering the tools necessary to understand and plan for the unique and rewarding challenges of mountain flying. The 2020 curriculum includes mountain flight planning, aircraft performance, mountain weather, aeromedical factors, risk management & survival, mountain communications, and mountain flight maneuvers. Scheduled instructors include regionally and nationally recognized CFIs, including John Lorenz, Dr. Tom Navar, J.D. Huss, and Cliff Chetwin.

New Mexico high country (Truchas Peak area)

Detailed information regarding participant costs, registration procedures, pilot and aircraft requirements, and other clinic particulars is available on the NMPA website under Safety / Mountain Flying.

For additional information, contact Dave Jesurun at 505-675-0604 or Dave.Jesurun@highcountryairservice.com.