

On Sunday, August 18, 2013, the monthly meeting of the Audio-Video Club of Atlanta had a complexly different format than other meetings. This month was the "Members Flea Market" of operational previously owned A/V Gear and Accessories Sale. It was held at the Old Hickory House Restaurant Meeting Room which was in the basement of that restaurant on Northlake Parkway in Tucker. LP's, CD's, and Videos were also welcome.

There were no announcements, etc. as folks arrived around 1 PM to set up their equipment to sell. The sale started to wrap up around 4 PM. There were about ten sellers of many varied types of equipment, some vintage, some modern, and some homemade.

I went around the room and here is most of the equipment I saw for sale:

Wharfedale and Advent (vintage) book shelf speakers.
Home built surround sound speaker system.
Emotiva and NHT subwoofers.
Lexicon, Sony, and Pioneer universal CD/DVD players.
Akai reel-to-reel tape machine (vintage).
Fisher, HH Scott, and Sherwood vintage tuners, including Fisher multiplex adapter.
Sansui integrated amplifier.
Yamaha 75 w multi-channel receiver.
Nakamichi cassette player.
DirecTV receivers.
Samsung blu-ray player.
Specialized USB cables (wires).
Tube and solid state phono preamps.
Scott and Denon FM receivers.
Audio interconnects by AR.
Onkyo CD changer.
Marantz DAC.
Kimber Select speaker cables.

and others I probably missed!

Multiple sales were made, and the sellers were asked to give 10% of their sales to the club's treasury for use in future meetings, since there was no table fees charged to the sellers.

The club again gives many thanks for the Hickory House owner Dave Jackson for letting us use their meeting room, and to Jennifer and Dennis for the light refreshments (as always).
