

Sunday, October 26, 2014

We met at AVR Distributing in Marietta where Al Davis, VP of AVR and Jeff Paiva, the Senior Trainer for Epson America provided us with the most informative audio-for-video and video presentations ever. In fact, many attendees were saying that it was our best video program ever.

Al Davis welcomed us to his facility and talked both extensively and in-depth about how to achieve great surround sound. He discussed most of the different surround setups, advised on speakers, and explained room correction! It was as thorough a schooling on surround sound as one could hope for in less than two hours. He answered everyone's questions completely and thoroughly!

Then it was Jeff's turn and we were blown away by his presentation of the different types of video characteristics of film and digital movies! Jeff normally trains technicians who repair and calibrate Epson projectors, but he proved himself, just like Al to be a great fan of the movies. He shared examples of the different color balances, picture formats, and screen sizes using selected movies. He went on to give us all kinds of tips and tricks for use in our own systems. Truly a great and informative presentation!

See the Minutes and Jeff's notes on the Past Meeting Info page for more information