

IHPST Biennial Conference Call for Proposals

IHPST 2021 Biennial Conference:

Energizing education with the history, philosophy, and sociology of science.

The University of Calgary (Canada), 4 July – 8 July 2021

Call for Proposals

We invite submissions for individual, poster, and panel presentations for the 16th Biennial IHPST conference to be held July 4- 8, 2021 in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. We encourage faculty, graduate and undergraduate students, and science education professionals to apply.

This conference will explore emerging paradigms, approaches, and methods for integrating history, philosophy, and sociology of science with science education in the 21st century.

Please provide a 500-word proposal (not including references) and a 250-word shortened abstract (which will appear in the conference program), as a Word or Google document. Proposals should include focus of presentation, methodological approach, analysis and conclusions. We highly encourage undergraduate students to submit proposals for poster presentations as we will have an option for virtual presentations.

Acceptance will be based on applicability to the conference theme and on their general interest to the IHPST audience. For panel submissions, provide an abstract for the panel as well as presenter names and abstracts for each individual presentation. Label abstract with your name (e.g. Family_Given_IHPST 2021).

Submit proposals using this form (<https://forms.gle/Udr7TVLkSGVvfZQ87>). The first submission deadline is 15 October 2020, for those who would like early notification, and the final submission. The final submission deadline is 28 February, 2021. Conference information can be found on the IHPST Website (www.ihpst.net). Email questions to glenn.dolphin@ucalgary.ca. You do not need an IHPST membership to submit a proposal.

Updated 14 September, 2020 to include extended submission deadline.

International History, Philosophy, Science Teaching Group

Connect with IHPST

Become a Member

Join Today!