Our Featured Speakers

Fred Worley retired from the Texas Department of Aging and Disability Services when it transformed into the larger Health and Human Services Commission. His private practice architect specializing in assisted living, residential and regulatory design. His consulting in long term care is limited to small house assisted living homes and conversions of single family homes into licensed assisted living facilities in neighborhoods.

Jeanoyce Wilson wrote most of Texas's assisted living regulations, and was considered Texas's leading assisted living expert. She provided training to State surveyors, government officials, attorneys, providers and advocates. Twenty-six years of experience overseeing long-term care statewide has given her a background for teaching providers, consumers, and advocates exactly what those State regulations require.
