

Presenter: Tara McCue [13:30 to 14:00]

Presentation Title: East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (ECFRPC) Update

Abstract: This presentation will provide an overview of the ECFRPC Regional Resilience Action Plan (RRAP), focusing on the Sea-Level Rise (SLR) curve and actions the ECFRPC have included in the RRAP. Tara will present an upper level discussion of the ECFRPC's Regional Resilience Collaborative and an update on how the partners engaged in this collaborative effort are working to assist local communities in the region become more resilient in their programs and strategies to prepare for climate change and extreme weather events.

Tara McCue, AICP

Tara McCue is Director of Planning and Community Development with the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, with over 14 years of experience in various areas of planning including community and policy development, resiliency planning, health in the built environment, visioning, health impact assessments, corridor analysis, emergency preparedness planning, greenways and trails, and school siting. Her expertise in Geographic Information System (GIS) provides cross capabilities to analyze land use and other geographic data, create spatial representations of issues and solutions, and utilize all aspects of GIS in the successful development of a project or recommendation. Tara has division, project, and program management experience of varying in scopes and budgets, and is skilled in plan and proposal development and grant writing.