

Pennsylvania's Unified Judicial System

Article V of the State Constitution established a pyramid-like structure for courts, closely resembling the federal system: all courts are to be "united" for the common good. State courts hear cases involving state laws or the state's constitution. They also deal with disagreements between citizens of the state. They resolve "everyday" issues with children and families, criminal cases, and even accidents and traffic violations.

