7 Secrets to Designing Unforgettable Coaching Programs

Presented by Sherry Yellin, PhD, ACC, BCC

Our September 8 Luncheon Program features Sherry Yellin, PhD, ACC, BCC, owner of The Learning Connection, Inc. and the CEO of TRL Resources, Inc. For more than twenty years, Dr. Yellin has worked with leaders within a variety of industries, public and private, domestic and international. She combines her command of brain-based learning with her experience as a director, entrepreneur, and consultant to equip leaders to be extraordinary. She is a certified coach through the International Coach Federation and the Center for Credentialing.

Program Description:

How do you design programs that truly gain outstanding results and have massive impact? How do you design programs that are unforgettable even when you do not have a background in training? How do you design and deliver programs that have pop and practicality? The answer to these questions lies in knowing how to apply seven principles of how the brain learns best.

One of the things I've noticed is that all coaches have a unique and powerful message to share. But, they often struggle designing programs that truly have the 'wow' factor. This presentation includes "before" and "after" examples to demonstrate how integrating these principles "flipped" a program from ordinary to extraordinary.

Whether your coaching program consists of presentations, workshops, webinars, retreats, or a combination of all, these seven brain-based principles will revolutionize the learner's experience and equip you to design trainings that impress and impact.

Learning Objectives:

- Discover seven brain-based learning principles essential to high-impact programs
- Observe ways to apply seven brain-based learning principles to coaching programs
- Leave with tools in-hand to apply immediately

President's Message

See You in September—Around the Table at ICF-NT

Welcome back from the summer! As Board member Kristin Robertson wonderfully described at our August meeting, we especially invite you to experience a sense of 'community' and collegial support this fall at ICF-NT—around the table, online and at special gatherings, by reaching out to other chapter members.

Deepen your connections at ICF-NT and:

1. Come to the Table. Monthly Program meetings offer a special opportunity to sit together and share a meal. Eating together has many benefits. It helps us slow down, be present in the moment, enjoy our food and, most importantly, connect with one another! Next time you sit down at an ICF-NT luncheon, introduce yourself, ask a question, and share a story. You could start with "What I did on my summer vacation..."
2. Get Social on our FB Page. We have created a special 'closed' group for our Chapter members aligned with our website—although it's always 'open' for you to share an article or blog, keep up with members' milestones, and get involved with LINC activities. Our norms discourage using this page to promote our professional businesses or events. When 'outsiders' do bump across boundaries, we invite them to become members and observe our norms or exit gracefully.
3. Invite a Guest to Lunch or LINC. Be a welcoming host and invite guests to a monthly luncheon or even a LINC event to give them a glimpse of what membership has to offer. Introduce us at the registration table, so we can provide chapter information and help them make connections. If you invite them to a LINC event, please escort them and be their host. Help them understand that membership is a pre-requisite for continuing involvement and show them how to sign up to join our community on the website!

See you in September!

Lone Star Alliance Committee Requests Information on Books / Publications by ICF-NT Members

The Lone Star Alliance is preparing for an event on October 13 and they have stopped to ponder what an incredible resource we have in each other in our state.

As part of their effort at getting creative about helping us get to know, appreciate and take advantage of the wealth of wisdom we have together, they have asked for ICF-NT's assistance in capturing a list of books and publications that our members have already produced.

You can contribute to this effort by sending Tracy Cadorine the following information to memberships@icf-nt.com:

- Complete title of your book/publications
- Where they can be purchased
- Full name of member coach

You are asked to send your book/publication information to Tracy no later than October 8.

Pro Bono Coaching for Conflict Resolution Specialists

Pro Bono Coaching for Conflict Resolution Specialists

The Association for Conflict Resolution (ACR), a nonprofit professional organization, is hosting a conference in Addison in October for their members titled "Professionalize Your Passion." Attendees will pay a fee that covers costs, but presenters receive no pay, similar to ICF-NT events.

ICF colleague Cinnie Noble, PCC, is co-presenting a day-long workshop on Wednesday October 11 to help participants develop a vision and plan for their conflict resolution career. Her workshop design includes bringing in ICF credentialed coaches to provide one hour of pro bono coaching to each of the 30 participants around enriching their vision to prepare for design. If she gets fewer than 30 volunteer coaches, she will place each coach with a small group.

If you are an ICF credentialed coach and are interested and available to provide an hour of pro bono coaching to conflict resolution colleagues, please contact Cinnie Noble directly at cinnie@cinergycoaching.com.
