

NEWS

For More Information Contact:

John J. Pastuovic
312-372-0101, ext. 240 voice

Weis resigns as president of the Chicago Crime Commission

Chairman Davis to serve as president

March 9, 2012 – Chicago, IL - Jody Weis, President of the Chicago Crime Commission will resign his position effective today in order to pursue other opportunities. "I am grateful for the incredible opportunity Chairman J.R. Davis and the Board of Directors gave me to lead the Chicago Crime Commission, an organization with such a rich history of improving the quality of life in Chicago," according to Weis. "I believe we have raised the visibility of the Commission over the past eight months and have positioned the organization to continue to improve the city's social viability by advocating for the criminal justice agencies," he continued.

Weis is leaving to pursue interests outside of the scope of the Chicago Crime Commission including teaching, research, and private industry. "I feel extremely fortunate to have been a part of such a terrific organization and learn first-hand the role non-profit organizations can play in support of the men and women on the front lines keeping our city safe. It has been an honor and a pleasure to have served the Chicago Crime Commission, its devoted membership, and the City of Chicago." Weis added.

"We are thankful for Jody's efforts and wish him all the success in his future endeavors," according to J.R. Davis, Chairman of the Chicago Crime Commission.

(more)

Chairman Davis will become president of the organization. “I am grateful the Board of Directors has appointed me to oversee the Chicago Crime Commission at this time. I am confident that this organization will continue to turn ideas into action and work with law enforcement, the community, faith based organizations, public health groups, and business leaders to make our community a better place to live,” Davis concluded.

###