Priorities for Dance Education

The Priorities for Dance Education provide both a framework for NDEO’s programs, services, and governance, and a call to action for our members. They are designed to guide the work that we all do, individually and as an organization, by highlighting the needs of the field of dance education and offering goals and strategies to meet these needs. According to the chair of the Priorities Task Force, Susan Gingrasso, “NDEO Priorities for Dance Education calls each of us to action, as individuals and as a whole community, and emphasizes NDEO’s role as a change agent in arts education and as a “home” through which we share ideas and gain support for change.”

Connect The Field

Big Idea: Dance education creates a wide range of opportunities to illuminate, embody, and express oneself as an individual and as a participant in a variety of communities. NDEO and its partners work collaboratively and collectively using dance strategies to promote a range of professional and cultural practices, transcend perceived differences, and honor the individual within the growing community of dance educators.

Goal: Develop and promote a community of individuals, organizations, and institutions who share a passion for excellence in dance education, artistry, research, and administration.

Build Knowledge

Big Idea: To carry out the work outlined in the industry standards, dance educators need easy access to a wide range of timely, useful, and accurate information that can support their efforts. NDEO and its many partners work to ensure that all dance educators, other key stakeholders, and decision makers have the knowledge and resources needed to deliver dance education in fine arts.

Goal: Build, promote, and share knowledge that impacts teaching and learning in and through dance.

Cultivate Leadership

Big Idea: Recognizing that all dance professionals are leaders in their own situations, access to resources and mentors are essential for leadership development. NDEO and its partners work to change the conversation about leadership in our field and foster a new and diverse leadership who can ensure that dance has representation among the arts.

Goal: Equip experienced and emerging professionals in the field with opportunities to develop and exhibit leadership skills.

- NDEO administers two publications: Journal of Dance Education \(JODE\) and Dance Education in Practice \(DEiP\), and is a managing partner on the Arts Education Policy Review \(AEPR\). The journals are intended to complement one another to best illuminate contemporary issues in dance education, teaching, and learning, however, each journal is uniquely distinct.

DELTA

Dance Entry Level Teacher Assessment

DELTA is a collaborative effort by NDEO and the State Education Agency Directors of Arts Education (SEADAE) to build national consensus on baseline competencies necessary to ensure entry-level K-12 public school dance educators enter the field with the requisite Pedagogic Content Knowledge (PCK) and skills for successful entry into K-12 public school dance education. Driven by the fact that Dance is the only art form with no national entry-level teacher readiness examination, which measures pedagogic content knowledge and serves as a gateway for dance certification – NDEO & SEADAE secured funds from the National Endowment for the Arts to create and field test a praxis examination for the field. After several years of development and field-testing, DELTA is ready for inaugural launch of an operationalized examination.

What is DELTA?

DELTA is a 90-minute teacher readiness assessment, aligned to national standards, that measures the Pedagogic Content Knowledge and subject specific content knowledge in dance. The test consists of 150 selected response test items with and without stimulus materials. The intent of DELTA is to serve as one measure of allowable proof of subject-matter competency to ensure that beginning dance teachers have the requisite pedagogic content knowledge and skills for successful entry into the public schools.

The broad goals of DELTA are to empower new dance educators to:

- Understand how to communicate the content, skills, and knowledge articulated in the National Core Arts Standards (2014)
- Understand how students develop content, skills, and knowledge in dance in a developmentally appropriate manner
- Understand industry-standards for learning and teaching dance (including dance content, education theory, practice, and methodology) as set forth in the NDEO Professional Teaching Standards for Dance Arts (2005, 2011)
- Measure knowledge and skills of teachers necessary to engage students in learning dance, consistent with national standards (NDEO, 2011)
- Identify pedagogic strengths and weaknesses for future professional development of pre-service dance education programs, and recent graduates from dance education degree programs across the country (NDEO, 2011)

Stay tuned to the DELTA webpage for more information: www.ndeo.org/delta. The Spring 2019 exam was offered in April/May. In Spring 2020 we will offer an online course called OPDI-M16: Introduction to the DELTA to assist in preparing to take the exam. Next exam will be Spring 2021.

DELTA is a collaborative effort between NDEO and SEADAE.

Dance Education Standards

NDEO has been instrumental in the writing of standards for dance education, most recently the 2014 National Core Arts Standards in Dance. In addition, NDEO has the Professional Teaching Standards for Dance Arts (PTSDA) and the Standards for Dance in Early Childhood. Read on to discover more about these standards and determine which one is the best fit for your teaching needs.

National Core Arts Standards in Dance www.ndeo.org/nccas

- What your students should know and be able to do PreK-High School.

-Our artistic processes organize the standards across the arts disciplines: Creating, Performing, Responding, and Connecting. Each artistic process includes a set of overarching anchor standards. The anchor standards are consistent among the arts disciplines represented in the National Core Arts Standards and demonstrate the breadth of the work. They are held constant for student learning over time and are especially adaptable to a variety of settings, including but not limited to K-12, Private Schools, Dance Studios, After School/Outreach Programs, and much more. Within the standards, there are opportunities to integrate other disciplines into the dance lesson. The standards align with National Core Arts Standards in Music, Theatre, Visual Arts, and Media Arts, allowing for collaborative and interdisciplinary opportunities.
