Sailing regatta report
Districts/Evans 2015- August 1-2
By Doug Wake

Once again, Windjammers sailing club in Green Bay, WI provided incredible weather, great fun, and the usual masses of dessert for the 2015 Midwest District Championships and Evans Regatta.

The weekend started in typical Todd Wake fashion, with his usual bickering about how inept my junior team is at setting up boats, and our inability to work at all fast. Once the rig was up and lever vang conquered, the skippers meeting was held, and the fleet went out to race. Shortly after leaving the dock, my team ripped our spinnaker, and experienced a slight detour going back to get another.

At the start of the first race, there was a waivering 6-16 knots of wind, shifting widely. Todd Wake played the shifts well and won the first race of the weekend. For race two, the wind had built and gone right. After the course had been shifted, Craig Pomeroy found something that no one discovered and pulled away to win that race. The third race started in a left phase. My team started just up from the pin and pulled away on a persistent lefty. Let it be known that this is the first time that I beat my father, and we won this race by a mile. The breeze had built even more for the fourth race, growing with gusts to 18. After coming around the final leeward mark deeper, David Stix caught a huge shift to pass Wake and Pomeroy to win the fourth race. Saturday night brought the usual Green Bay dinner, spot on as normal. Since Saturday's series was the Evans Regatta, Doug Wake with Issie Buerger and Whitney Kent came in third, Todd Wake with wife Kristine and son Ben took second, and Craig Pomeroy won, with wife Crystal and .

Sunday started with storms, which put our racing off until 12:00. With only one race in store, it was do or die, and Todd Wake pulled through to win the Midwest Districts.
