

ISM Central OH presents:

Current and Evolving Laws for International Import/Export and NAFTA

Presented by Alyson Letsky and Joseph Durham, attorneys with Eastman Smith Law Firm

Do you need more information on Domestic and International Shipping, Enforcement Agencies, International Standards or U.S. Customs?

- What are best practices, resolutions and potential penalties?

There have been many changes to regulations so utilize this opportunity to learn how to prepare your organization.

Alyson J. Letsky’s practice focuses on the areas of business law, mergers and acquisitions, tax exempt entities and technology and intellectual property law. She advises clients on a wide arrange of corporate matters, such as entity formation and governance, tax-exempt/non-profit organization, mergers and acquisitions, administrative and regulatory matters, technology transactions, as well as trademark registration and practice, copyright and licensing issues. She is an associate in the Business Law, Business Litigation, Tax and Non-Profit/Tax Exempt Practice Groups.

Joseph Durham has litigated more than 1,000 environmental cases, advised local governments on solid waste and recycling collection contracts and worked with clients regarding all types of enforcement issues. He is a member of Eastman & Smith. As the chair of Eastman & Smith’s Environmental and Public Law Section, Joe Durham coordinates the Firm’s Environmental, Public Law, and Solid Waste Management Practice Groups. He has litigated environmental cases at the local, state and federal level as a Franklin County assistant prosecuting attorney and a special assistant U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Ohio. In 2018 he was added to Best Lawyers in America® for Environmental Law. Mr. Durham is the author of the Environmental Investigation Resource Guide and routinely provides training on: hazardous materials and Department of Transportation regulations; National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) Municipal Separate Storm Sewer Systems (MS4) permit requirements; and environmental investigations.
