

TAKE YOUR STUDENTS INTO THE FIELD!

2020 PROJECT KINDLE FELLOWSHIP

Earthwatch seeks highly motivated teachers who want to engage their students in hands-on scientific field expeditions and provides those teachers with resources to make that vision a reality.

"I would have never imagined this would have been a possible trip for students without Project Kindle. ... Now, when I think back on some of the reasons I would tell myself this trip could not be done, I find them almost laughable. My biggest takeaway was if I want to make this trip happen, I can make it happen."

— William Leou, 2018 Fellow

LEAD YOUR STUDENTS ON THE EXPERIENCE OF A LIFETIME

Earthwatch expeditions are unlike any other travel experience. Our programs can be explained as “service-learning for science giving your students the opportunity to work side by side with world-class scientists. We want teachers to feel confident and prepared when they bring a group of students on an Earthwatch expedition.

THE PROJECT KINDLE EXPERIENCE:

- Experience all aspects of an Earthwatch expedition before leading students on one.
- Explore ways to align your student group expedition with your school’s learning model.
- Gain confidence, skills, and knowledge in leading student travel.
- Collaborate with a team of teachers and share best practices, ideas, and the spirit of team-based scientific inquiry.
