

Move from Overwhelm to Confidence in

Teaching Online

BE MINDFUL OF YOUR RESOURCE SEARCHING.

There's so much out there! Limit your time online searching to 10-15 minutes a day. Only search for specific items you need to supplement your lessons.

STAY (OR GET) ORGANIZED.

Figure out a way that helps you file resources, lessons, and assessments. Then back it up either through cloud storage, a blog or hard copies. This way, if you ever need to do this again or if you want to share with colleagues, you can.

USE WHAT YOU ALREADY HAVE.

Much of what you have can be repurposed. Record your voice over the powerpoint you already have and send it as a video. Send student independent work as a link or upload to an LMS. Use synchronous time to check in with students and offer opportunities for much-needed interaction.
