

Elefant Serenade

One day my Swedish pupil
Matilda sent me this picture.
I wrote a little story and some music to go with it.

MARY COHEN

(‘Elefant’ is the Swedish spelling)

It was going to be a lovely day. The princess stretched lazily in her golden bed, in her golden tower, and listened to the silence.

No-one was up yet.

The sun was just beginning to trickle through a little gaps in the curtains. But, there might be just enough time for a little extra snooze...

Trill! Chord! Chord! Chord! Trill!

Goodness me! What is that?’ squealed the princess, leaping out of bed. All thought of extra snoozes was forgotten, as she flung open the curtains, peered out of the window, and heard...
