Storybook Invitations
Stand in Holy Places

Instructions:

1. Open PDF file in Adobe Reader.
2. Enter your information in the text boxes on pages 2-4 of this document.
3. Save your file.
4. Load printer with white cardstock.
5. Print ONLY page 2 on white cardstock. For best results, use your printer's best-quality setting.
6. Load printer with copy paper.
7. Print ONLY page 3 and page 4, front to back, on white copy paper. If your printer has a duplex setting, use it. If not, you will need to print page 3, re-load the printed page 3 back into your printer and then print page 4 on the other side, making sure that the tops of both sides are on the same edge of the paper. You may need to do a few test runs to determine the appropriate orientation of the pages as you reload into the printer.
8. Using a paper cutter, cut covers in half so that each piece has one cover and one back.
9. Cut page inserts in half so that one side has the title page and page 2 and the back has the dedication and page 1.
10. Fold covers and page inserts in half.
11. Slip one page insert inside the folded cover so that the title page is first when you open the booklet. When you turn the page, you should see the dedication page and the "Once upon a time" page (page 1). The last page is the invitation information (page 2).
12. Open up booklet and staple twice on the fold with stapler or sew along fold with sewing machine. If stapling, you may need to gently fold in one side of the booklet to get your stapler to reach the fold.

Chapter One

Once Upon a Time...

the Young women of the YOUR WARD NAME HERE gathered together with their parents for an evening of New Beginnings. Each girl learned about her own unique story and of her great potential for her very own fairy-tale ending.

"Once upon a time promises something: a story of adventure and romance, a story of princesses and princes. It may include tales of courage, home, and everlasting love. . . I love it when we turn to the last page and our eyes reach the final lines and we see the enchanting words, And they lived happily ever after. . . Heavenly Father offers to you the greatest gift of all--eternal life--and the opportunity and infinite blessing of your own happily ever after." President Dieter F. Uchtdorf
