7. Description

Summary

The Murray Hill Historic District is located in the heart of this Midtown Manhattan residential neighborhood between Park and Lexington Avenues from East 35th Street to East 39th Street. The boundary of the district reflects the cohesive nature of the surviving building groups in the block between Park and Lexington Avenues, in particular the preponderance of pre-Civil-War-era row houses that distinguish the district. It includes some later buildings (several apartment houses/hotels and a church) on Park Avenue that reflect Murray Hill's later development. The district has a total of 88 contributing buildings and 12 non-contributing buildings. Most of the non-contributing buildings are row houses with major façade alterations. There are two previously listed buildings in the district: the James F.D. and Harriet Lanier House at 123-125 East 35th Street (listed 6/3/82) and the Adelaide L.T. Douglas House at 57 Park Avenue (listed 7/15/82).

Note: "The Historic and Architectural Resources of Murray Hill, New York County, New York" Multiple Property Documentation Form discusses the building types and styles represented in Murray Hill in great detail. Much of what follows is a brief summary.

Character of the district

The district comprises five city blocks, in whole or in part, situated in the corridor between Lexington and Park Avenue. The district is one of the last intact 19th-century residential districts in Midtown Manhattan, and includes some of the city's oldest surviving brownstone-fronted row houses, a building type that characterized later residential development in large areas of the city. Each of the district's blocks takes its character from a row of perhaps a dozen such houses, most of them in an Italianate-based style, most of them faced in brownstone. The preponderance of this building type and style gives the district a remarkably strong sense of place. The district's later history is represented by the early 20th century apartment houses and hotels on the district's Park Avenue border, designed in sedate versions of the neo-Classical and neo-Georgian styles.

Building Uses

The buildings within the boundaries of the historic district are overwhelmingly residential in character. The great majority are individual row or town houses, some still in single-family use, others divided into apartments. The remainder are multiple dwellings, either apartment houses or hotels. There are two churches, and there is one club.

Integrity

The row houses in the district survive with varying degrees of integrity. Many maintain almost all their historical features. Some have replacement windows; some have non-historic areaway railings. A few have had their original brownstone covered with stucco or similar material, while others have lost ornamental detail. But most survive sufficiently intact to maintain the district's strong identity as a mid-19th century residential neighborhood. The apartment houses and hotels on Park Avenue survive largely intact. The most common alteration is the replacement of the original windows; little or no ornamental detail appears to have been lost.

BUILDING LIST¹

East 35th Street (south side)

102 East 35th Street

Four-story Italianate row house, built 1853-54 (builder/developer: Washington A. Cronk) with brownstone facing covered in cement stucco, rusticated first story, and arched entry and windows. One in a row of six similar houses built by Henry H. Butterworth, an attorney who owned the lots. Major alterations: installation of the mansard roof (c. 1900); removal of the window surrounds, cornice and mansard altered, and pigmented cement stucco applied over the brownstone, c. 1938 to c.1988. Contributing. Photo no. 8.

Four-story neo-Federal town house, built 1909-10 (architects: R.H. Robertson & Son and Benjamin B. Moore), faced in brick and limestone. (Major alteration of c. 1864 row house.) Limestone stoop; main entryway with wrought-iron and glass door with bracketed hood and surmounting carved panel with an oval window; rusticated limestone first story; second story with arched windows with keystones, wrought-iron balcony, and surmounting carved panels; third-story windows with bracketed sills and splayed lintels with keystones; fourth-story sills set in continuous molding; bracketed roof cornice with surmounting balustrade. No further alterations. Contributing. Photo no. 18.

Two four-story row houses, built c. 1869, combined into one apartment building in 1955 (architect: Stephen C. Lyras), faced in brownstone covered with cement stucco. Conversion included elimination of first-story and basement entryway at No. 115, and installation of one new pedimented main entryway serving both buildings. Also, installation of iron balconettes at first story and wood shutters throughout. The original brownstone was covered with pigmented cement stucco. Original roof cornices retained. Contributing. 115 East 38th Street

Three story Second Empire row house, built 1863-65 (architect/builder not known), faced in painted brownstone. Stoop with wrought-iron railings and newel posts; wrought-iron areaway fence and gate; arched doorway, prominent keystone, bracketed pediment, double wood-and-glass paneled doors with transom; molded first-story window sill in continuous band above paneled spandrel; molded window surrounds with bracketed sills and molded hoods; bracketed wood roof cornice; slate-covered mansard with dormers with curved pediments on brackets and elaborate lunettes. No significant alterations. Contributing. Photo no. 18.

Three story Second Empire row house built 1863-64 (architect/builder not known), faced in brownstone covered with scored cement stucco. First-story sills in a continuous molded band above recessed panels; window surrounds with bracketed sills, molded architraves, and molded hoods; altered mansard roof; altered central pediment dormer. Alterations: stoop removed by the 1920s; facade altered in 1959, including replacement of the roof cornice and modifications to the mansard roof. The original occupants of the house were Thomas and Elizabeth Swann. Prominent architect Robert H. Robertson (1849-1919) purchased this house from the Swanns in 1873. He occupied the house until his death, after which it

8. Statement of Significance

Summary²

The Murray Hill Historic District in Midtown Manhattan, New York City, is significant under Criterion A in the areas of community development and social history. The district's period of significance - 1853 to 1953 - incorporates the complex historical and architectural development of the neighborhood. The district forms a significant reminder of Murray Hill's history as one of the city's premier residential districts. The neighborhood has a fascinating social history as reflected by the many well-to-do merchants, bankers, lawyers, doctors, and professional men and their extended families who made Murray Hill their home.

The district also meets Criterion C in the area of architecture for its intact collection of mid-19th century and early-20th century residential architecture including row houses, town houses and apartment buildings designed by many prominent architectural firms. The rows of well-preserved residences give the district its distinct sense of place. Built in a succession of popular historical styles, the row houses and town houses display remarkable Second Empire, Italianate, Renaissance Revival, Beaux Arts, Colonial Revival, and Classical Revival style details. The apartment buildings in the district are outstanding examples of the Art Deco, neo-Moorish, neo-Romanesque, and neo-Georgian styles.

Note: The district is located in the heart of the Murray Hill study area as described in the "The Historic and Architectural Resources of Murray Hill, New York County, New York" Multiple Property Documentation Form. The context of Murray Hill's history and architecture is explored in depth in the cover document, from the original Murray family through the early development of the new neighborhood in the mid-1850s and on through the mid-20th century.

Social History

Historically, the district has connections with figures of local and national significance. These include a variety of businessmen, and such professionals as teachers, lawyers, doctors, realtors, and bankers. Among them are: James C. Fargo, president of the American Express Co.; Admiral David G. Farragut, decorated naval officer and Civil War hero; Louis Fitzgerald, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Company; Commodore Benjamin Franklin Isherwood, engineer-in-chief of the United States Navy; Lewis Cass Ledyard, counsel to J. P. Morgan and president of the New York Public Library; and future United States President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor.

Writers who have lived in the district include Frederick Lewis Allen, writer and editor of Century Magazine and Harper's; William Conant Church, editor of the New York Chronicle and publisher of the Sun; Frank Norton, editor of the Era; and Charles Henry Parkhurst, social reformer and pastor of the Madison Square Presbyterian Church. Prominent figures in the art world include actors Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy; illustrator Charles Dana Gibson, of Life magazine, creator of the "Gibson Girl"; artist Raffaele Molini; and music publisher Gustave Schirmer. A number of prominent architects have had homes and/or offices in the district, including Marcel Breuer; William A. Delano and Chester Holmes Aldrich of Delano & Aldrich; Robert H. Robertson; J. Morgan Slade; and Egerton Swartwout.

Architectural Development of Murray Hill

The historic district falls within the boundaries of the 18th-century country estate of merchant Robert Murray and his wife Mary Murray from which the Murray Hill neighborhood takes its name. In 1847 descendants of the Murrays drew up a partition agreement that contained covenants limiting development of the property to brick or stone buildings, churches, and private stables.

The district is perhaps most notable for its preponderance of residential architecture including 1850s English Basement type Italianate style row houses; French Second Empire row houses; Italian Renaissance Revival and Beaux-Art town houses and mansions; and early 20th century neo-Georgian town houses and mansions. The row and town houses and mansions are clustered in the mid-blocks of the district, forming largely intact 19th and early 20th century streetscapes.

The development within the historic district began in 1853-54 with the construction of several elegantly detailed brownstone-fronted English-basement row houses on East 35th Street. Over the next decade over 50 Italianate brownstones representing a variety of house types were constructed within the district. Houses from the early phase of development in the district employed the English basement plan, a type of layout that was in vogue in new York in the late 1840s and 1850s. This type of plan, which featured a low stoop leading to a first floor containing various reception halls and a dining room, and a formal second-story parlor floor with high ceilings and tall windows, allowed builders to subdivide standard building lots into narrow plots on which they constructed smaller houses that could be marketed for less money.

The Italianate-style Church of the New Jerusalem of 1859 with a two-story Renaissance Revival addition by the noted architectural firm of Gambrell & Post dating from 1866 complements the character of the surrounding Italianate residences and is of high quality design.

By the 1860s, the remaining undeveloped lots in the district were built up with Second Empire, Italianate and Renaissance Revival houses. Houses constructed during the early 1860s, were larger, more elaborate and reflected the new wealth and social status of middle-class New York in the years prior to the Civil War. Ornament was even heavier than in the early and mid-1850s, with boldly-carved and bracketed pediments over entryways, wide moldings surrounding the windows, and richly-detailed roof cornices.

Beginning in the 1890s and continuing into the new century, wealthy New Yorkers continued moving to Murray Hill, where they usually either converted the area's mid-century row houses into elegant townhouses or replaced them with new mansions. Very often, they engaged the leading architects of the day to design the alterations and new buildings. Between 1890 and 1910 several imposing new houses designed for wealthy owners by prominent architectural firms replaced older row houses within the district; these included the Renaissance Revival James C. Fargo House by Romeyn & Stevens of 1891-92 at 120 East 37th Street, the Beaux-Arts-style James F.D. and Harriet Bishop Lanier House by Hoppin & Koen of 1901-03 at 123-125 East 35th Street (NR-listed), and the Beaux-Arts-style town house by Foster, Gade & Graham of 1909-11 at 103 East 37th Street, built for Augusta Reese.

The 1916 Delano & Aldrich architectural studio at 126 East 38th Street is an exquisitely detailed French Renaissance Revival building that is similar in scale to the Beaux-Arts town houses in the district.

In the 1920s older row houses continued to be renovated for single-family residences including the c. 1866 house at 108 East 37th Street that architect Charles Platt altered for attorney George Nichols in 1920.

Beginning in the 1920s and lasting through mid-century, many of the row houses in the district were converted from single-family residences to rooming houses and multiple dwellings, reflecting the trend toward apartment living among New York City residents and a gradual decline in the neighborhood's fortunes. Often during these renovations, the floor plans were changed into smaller rooms, stoops were removed in order to create more rentable space on the first floor; additional plumbing was installed, elevator shafts inserted, and façade ornament removed.

Murray Hill's early 20th century apartment houses and hotels range in style from neo-Classical, neo-Federal and neo-Romanesque to the Art Deco. The Park Avenue face of the district is largely an early 20th century creation. The smaller 20th-century apartment buildings within the district complement the earlier row houses in scale and detail.

The first apartment building constructed in the district is the fourteen-story neo-Georgian building at 101 East 38th Street (corner of Park Avenue), designed by Schwartz & Gross and built in 1921-22. Another early apartment building in Murray Hill is the nine-story building at 103-105 East 38th Street. Designed by Charles Kreymbourg, the 1924 building has a neo-Federal red brick and stone façade featuring a rusticated limestone base.

At the end of the decade plans were filed with the building department by the New York Town House, Co., Inc. to erect at 25-story building at 106-114 East 38th Street at Park Avenue replacing five mid-nineteenth century row houses. Designed by Bowden & Russell in association with Emery Roth, the 1930 building is a striking setback Art Deco tower faced in brick. Its setback profile was typical for apartment houses of the period, which were designed in response to provisions in New York's Zoning Resolution of 1916 that were intended to protect natural light on the city's narrow side streets.

Verbal Boundary Description

Boundary Justification

The boundary of the district reflects the cohesive nature of the surviving building groups in the block between Park and Lexington Avenues, in particular the preponderance of pre-Civil-War-era row houses that distinguish the district. The district boundaries have also been drawn to include buildings that reflect the later historic and architectural development of the area including several elegant townhouses of the 1890s-1910s, and apartment buildings and hotels of the 1920s and 1930s.

The northern boundary at the south side of East 39th Street reflects the fact that beyond this point, there are no surviving contiguous row houses with sufficient integrity to include in the district. East 34th Street, just south of the southern boundary, has been excluded because it is a wide major commercial thoroughfare with entirely different building types than those in the district. The eastern boundary at the west side of Lexington Avenue reflects the fact that, while there may be small groups of row houses east of Lexington that might qualify as either individual nominations or small districts, as a whole they are not sufficiently contiguous to form an extension of this district. And the western boundary at the east side of Park Avenue reflects the fact that east of Park Avenue, there are none of the row houses that typify the district. There are, however, a number of individual buildings that are either already listed or potentially eligible for listing.

Dear Ms. Howe,

We have been notified that your department has plans to file for landmark status the above referenced property. Please be advised that we oppose such a designation. When the need arises to file a permit to perform work it is further delayed because the Landmarks Division is slow to approve the needed permits. Landmarks is poorly staffed and unable to keep up with the demand to produce permits in a timely manner. Now you plan to add more buildings to an already burdened system which only delays and adds further costs to building owners.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Howe,

As a resident of Murray Hill and a Trustee of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association (MHNA) AND/OR member of the Preservation and Design Committee of MHNA, I am writing this letter in support of the placement of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

I have lived in Murray Hill for XXX years and appreciate its unique character as an architecturally significant residential enclave surrounded by the towers of midtown Manhattan. Murray Hill is noted for its quiet tree-shaded streets lined with a mix of elegant town houses, contiguous brownstone rows, converted stables, fine churches and handsome apartment houses.

Murray Hill is an area of the city first developed in the 1850s for some of New York's most prominent residents. They commissioned such outstanding architects as William Adams Delano, Stanford White, Ralph S. Townsend and Hoppin and Koen to design substantial homes erected in a variety of designs including the Italianate, neo-Federal, Georgian Revival and French Renaissance styles. Placement in the State and National Registers would recognize not only the architecture, but the history embodied in those buildings.

I strongly urge the placement of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places, thereby recognizing the human scale and architectural excellence of one of the city's most historic and gracious neighborhoods.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Ms Howe

As a resident of Murray Hill and a Trustee of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association I am writing this letter in support of the placement of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

I have lived in Murray Hill for more than 34 years and appreciate its unique character as an architecturally significant residential enclave in the heart of midtown Manhattan. The area was first developed in the 1850s for some of New York's most prominent residents. As a result, outstanding architects were commissioned to design and build substantial homes in a variety of designs.

Placement in the State and National Registers would recognize not only the architecture, but the history embodied in those buildings. I strongly urge the placement of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic places, thereby recognizing the human scale and architectural excellence of one of the city's most historic and gracious neighborhoods.

Dear Ms. Howe,

As co-chairs of the Preservation and Design Committee and Trustees of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association (MHNA), we are writing this letter to strongly endorse the listing of a Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

The Preservation and Design Committee of MHNA was formed in the 1970's to increase awareness in the community of the architectural heritage of Murray Hill and to take action to protect its architectural integrity. To further these goals, we have conducted Annual Awards ceremonies to recognize those property owners who have sensitively restored their buildings and to highlight new construction of outstanding design that enhances the evolving character of the neighborhood. In addition, the committee regularly publishes articles in the MHNA quarterly newsletter on topics of preservation and design and sponsors walking tours of the area, led by an architect who is a long-time resident of Murray Hill.

MHNA worked for many years to secure designation of a historic district by the New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission, which was achieved on January 29, 2002. The Murray Hill Historic District, proposed for listing in the State and National Registers of Historic Places, recognizes the exceptional quality of the 19th-century Italianate rows, elegant town houses, fine churches and handsome 20th-century apartments that contribute to the sense of place of this unique residential enclave, surrounded by the commercial towers of mid-town Manhattan. We urge the listing of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places to perpetuate and strengthen the cause of preservation in our community.

Yours truly,

Re: Murray Hill Historic District, New York, New York

Dear Ms. Pierpont:

I write on behalf of Chair Robert B. Tierney in response to your request for comment on the eligibility of the Murray Hill Historic District in Manhattan for the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

In 2002, after several years of careful research and discussion, the Commission voted to designate a portion of Murray Hill as a historic district. The Commission's historic district encompasses the area that the Commission believed to be historically, architecturally, and culturally significant at this time.

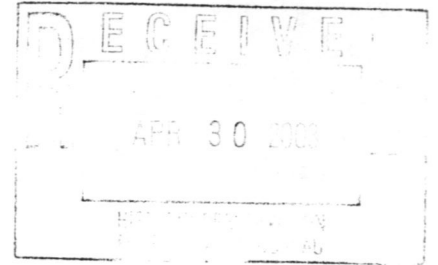

The nomination under consideration for the State and National Registers encompasses an area that is larger than the Commission's designated historic district. At this time, we cannot comment on properties beyond the boundaries of the Commission's district.

Sincerely yours,

Ronda Wist

Re: Murray Hill Historic District

Dear Kathy:

On behalf of the Preservation League of New York State, I am writing to endorse the nomination of the Murray Hill Historic District to the State and National Registers of Historic Places.

We believe that both the historic resources and the social history of the neighborhood merit the distinction of a listing on the State and National Registers. It is remarkable that the Murray family had the foresight to establish restrictions on the land use and the design of the buildings constructed after the 1840s. By doing so, they established the framework of what remains a cohesive Victorian neighborhood in the midst of a 20th-century neighborhood. In addition to their architectural importance, many of the buildings reflect connections with a list of well-known designers, developers and residents who shaped the growth of the city as a whole, and, in several cases, who also played a role in national history.

The Preservation League commends the indefatigable efforts of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association's Preservation and Design Committee that resulted in the designation of a local historic district in January, 2002. We understand that the boundaries of the district nominated to the State and National Registers have been extended and that an additional number of historic properties are to be included. We strongly agree with this expanded district nomination that will fully represent the architectural integrity and significance of the neighborhood.

Designation will serve to reinforce the value of the local historic district and increase public appreciation for the built resources in the area. Listing on the State and National Registers will provide additional incentives as local advocates work to preserve the neighborhood in the face of development pressure that is prevalent in New York City. We urge the State Board to look favorably on the nomination and appreciate the opportunity to voice our support.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Howe,

Since its founding in 1966 by such legends of historic preservation as Brendan Gill, Henry Russell Hitchcock, and Margot Gayle, The Victorian Society in America has been dedicated to the protection, understanding, and enjoyment of our 19th century heritage. It is therefore, with a deep sense of commitment to preservation that the Metropolitan Chapter of the Victorian Society in America strongly supports designation of the proposed Murray Hill Historic District to be listed in the State and National Registers of Historic Places. Although situated in today's fast-paced, commercial district in midtown Manhattan, this fine residential enclave maintains the elegance and tranquillity of an earlier era.

Murray Hill was first developed in the 1850s as a fashionable district for some of New York's most distinguished families. Over the years, the neighborhood has retained much of its mid-19th century appearance – its low-scale residential character of quiet, tree-shaded streets lined with handsome town houses, contiguous brownstone rows, and converted carriage houses in a variety of architectural styles. Many of the dwellings are set back from the street behind front yards, graced with ornamental iron fences, adding another historic quality to the streetscape.

In the late 19th and early 20th century, a number of noteworthy residents lived within the proposed historic district. Rear Admiral David G. Farragut bought 113 East 36th Street in 1865. The narrow Italianate brownstone at 125 East 36th Street was the first home of newlyweds Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt. The prominent architect William Adams Delano lived in a brownstone at 131 East 36th Street, which he transformed to a tasteful Parisian townhouse. Delano also designed a sophisticated French Renaissance façade for a former carriage house at 125 East 38th Street for use as his office.

Murray Hill continues to be one of the city's most desirable addresses – attracting residents who appreciate its distinctive character. However, over time, unsympathetic exterior alterations of many of the 19th century buildings have threatened the architectural integrity of the area. We strongly endorse the inclusion of the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Registers of Historic Places, which will encourage the preservation and protection of the architectural heritage of one of New York's finest Victorian-era neighborhoods.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Ms. Howe:

I am writing to express my enthusiastic support for the Murray Hill Historic District's listing in the State and National Register of Historic Places. I have had the pleasure of working with the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association (MHNA) in promoting the preservation of this Historic District and in continuing their efforts to keep Murray Hill a truly unique residential and historic neighborhood.

With MHNA at the helm, Murray Hill has a number of buildings that have acquired landmark status. Much of Murray Hill's architecture serves as testament to the preservation of its fascinating and important history. Its elegant mansions and its charming brownstones tell a tale of important historical events that influenced life, not only in New York, but also throughout the United States. Many of these historic buildings were frequented and/or inhabited by historic figures like United States Presidents George Washington, William McKinley, and Grover Cleveland, business leaders such as J. Pierpont Morgan, and literary giants such as Mark Twain.

Given its rich history and continued investment on the part of neighborhood residents and community organizations such as MHNA, I urge your strong consideration in including the Murray Hill Historic District in the State and National Register.

If I may be of further assistance, please feel free to contact Peter Rider of my staff at (212) 564-7757 x101. Thank you.

Sincerely,

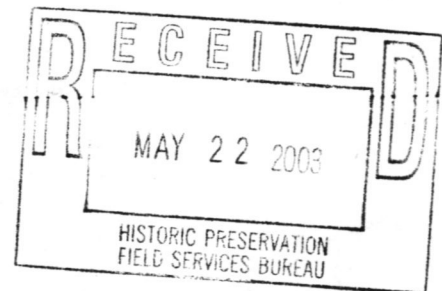

Christine Quinn

Dear Ms. Howe,

I am thrilled to be able to offer my enthusiastic support for the designation of the Murray Hill Neighborhood to the State and National Register of Historic Places. The Murray Hill Neighborhood Association (MHNA) has done remarkable work in its pursuit of this distinctive honor.

Every neighborhood in the City of New York has a special story, and Murray Hill is no exception. Evolving from its roots as the country estate of the Murray family in the mid-eighteenth century, the neighborhood of Murray Hill soon became the residence of choice of such New York City luminaries as the Astor family and other figures on the elite Social Register. Special building and use restrictions have always guided the development of Murray Hill, resulting in a character that dutifully recalls the grandeur of its storied past.

Murray Hill, like the rest of the City, continues to grow and change. Nevertheless, and very much due to the commendable efforts of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association, the area maintains its distinctive appeal. It is with great pleasure that I offer my strongest recommendation for the inclusion of Murray Hill in the State and National Register of Historic Places. By doing so, we can pay proper tribute to this unique neighborhood's remarkable character.

Sincerely,

Thomas K. Duane

Commissioner Bernadette Castro

Agency Building Number 1, Empire State Plaza

Dear Commissioner Castro:

Thank you for considering the nomination of the Murray Hill neighborhood for inclusion in the State and National Registers of Historic Places. Including this historic district in the Registers would provide official recognition of the unique heritage of Murray Hill, help to protect the historical and architectural integrity of the area's existing buildings, and provide additional incentives for property owners to maintain fidelity to the neighborhood's historic character.

After thirty years of organizing and advocacy by the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association and Manhattan Community Board Six, the Murray Hill Historic District was formally designated by New York City last year. By becoming part of the State and National Registers, Murray Hill will achieve another important recognition of its historic status, and property owners will have additional incentives to safeguard its architectural heritage.

The eclectic architectural styles of the area are a virtual timeline of New York's history. The neighborhood's very name reflects the colonial era, when Robert and Mary Murray owned a 25-acre estate on the land. The Italianate style row houses of 35th Street are impressive examples of the styles of the Nineteenth Century, and 38th Street, with its Twentieth Century Colonial Revival buildings, brings architectural fashion full circle. These buildings and others lend an unmistakable historical character to Murray Hill and it is important to protect that character for generations to come.

Murray Hill is a neighborhood of significant architectural and historic character, and possesses remarkable integrity of location and design. Again, we thank you for considering the nomination of Murray Hill for inclusion in the State and National Registers of Historic Places, which we wholeheartedly support.

Very truly yours,

Dear Ms. Howe,

I am writing to express my strong support for the Murray Hill Historic District to be listed in the State and National Register of Historic Places. I have represented this community as a member of Congress since 1993 and before that as a member of the City Council.

Built between the 1850s and 1910s, the brownstones that grace the historic district truly reflect a time in New York's history when middle class families settled in this residential enclave. Thanks to the Murray Hill restrictive agreement, business and commerce was barred from the area, making this a distinctly residential neighborhood. The Italianate brick and limestone town houses are of largely uniform height, giving the neighborhood a distinctively low scale.

Represented among the buildings considered for this district are buildings designed by McKim, Mead, & White and Delano & Aldrich, Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt's first home at 125 East 36th Street and a house on East 38th Street commissioned by Robert Todd Lincoln for his two daughters. Other notable Americans who lived in this area are James F. Fargo, founder of Wells Fargo, Loyal Farragut, the son of the Civil War Admiral, the Reverend Charles H. Parkhurst and William Adams Delano, the noted architect.

These beautiful old buildings and the character of this important neighborhood are vulnerable to incremental, ahistoric changes. Listing in the State and National Historic Register will ensure that the historic nature of these buildings is preserved for future generations. For these reasons, I would like to express my enthusiastic support for the Murray Hill Historic District to be listed in the historic register.

Very truly yours,

CAROLYN B. MALONEY

Dear Ms. Howe:

I am writing on behalf of the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association. Murray Hill is now eligible for listing in the State and National Register of Historic Places. I strongly support granting this designation. This is a wonderful opportunity for a community with a dynamic history extending over 200 years.

This unique area of New York City is a combination of residential homes and landmarks, such as the New York Public Library, the Whitney Museum at Phillip Morris, Grand Central Station and many other historic and cultural sites. Murray Hill possesses a rich architectural heritage that reflects the fascinating personalities of those who have called this neighborhood "home."

By the end of the 19th century, Murray Hill had taken on character that can still be seen today- opulent mansions were built between Fifth and Park Avenues, while elegant brownstones line the streets between Park and Lexington Avenues. This neighborhood is a slice of history that should be preserved and celebrated for both residents and visitors.

I applaud the Murray Hill Neighborhood Association for their efforts and hope this designation is granted. Thank you for your consideration. If I may be of any further assistance, please contact me or Robin Chappelle in my Manhattan Office at (212) 486-4430.

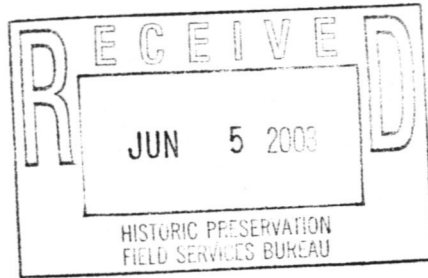

Sincerely,

Charles E. Schumer

Albany, NY 12238

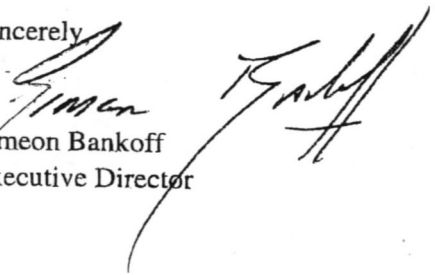

Dear Commissioner Castro,

The Historic Districts Council is pleased to support the nomination of Murray Hill to be listed on the New York State and National Registers of Historic Places. The Murray Hill neighborhood is a unique enclave in midtown Manhattan. It is a coherent and harmonious neighborhood, filled with handsome, high-quality architecture and possessing a rich and illustrious history.

HDC is particularly pleased to support the boundaries proposed for the State and National Register district. These boundaries are much more in keeping with HDC's proposed boundaries for the local district than what was actually designated, and are a far better representation of the historic entirety of Murray Hill. During the public meeting in May, I was informed that many more properties within the neighborhood were being considered for inclusion on the Register. We strongly support this initiative.

Thank you for your support of this important historic neighborhood, and especially for your very swift action in processing this application. The Murray Hill community has been patiently pursuing preservation attention for almost 30 years. To have this designation come to fruition so quickly is greatly appreciated, and shows New York State's commitment to historic preservation is stronger than ever, even during these economically dire times.
