DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Laid out in a circular pattern after its founding in 1810, the town of Circleville was completely "squared" by the mid 1860's. Most of the public buildings date from that period, though many of the homes were built much earlier. Homes and public buildings are generally well-cared for and provide a fine area of architectural continuity. The buildings represent the vernacular architecture of the midwest in the nineteenth century. The historic district encompasses most of the Indian earthworks including the circle within which the town was centered. The buildings within the northern half of the district make up the typical main street of this midwestern town, two -four story commercial buildings, lining either side of the main streets. The southern half is more residential; small gardens separate most of the buildings from each other and the street. Some noteworthy examples are:

The Circleville City Building: designed by William Doane and completed in 1861; the three story brick building shows the influence of the Romano-Tuscan style. The walls are arcaded, the first floor windows have fanlights above them, and the eaves are supported by wooden brackets. The slate roof has a round wooden cupola in the center. Little modified, the building is in excellent condition.

PHOTO 6A

Pickaway County Courthouse: originally a small Greek revival courthouse, architects Weary & Kramer nearly concealed the original building in their extensive modification of 188-1896. The building is two-storied, with hip roof and a square tower on the east side which pierces the pediment. Above the roofline, the tower has a louvered belfry. It is built of rock-faced stone with smooth stone pilasters; the center bay, next to the tower, is pedimented and is part of the original (1847) courthouse.

Sheriff's Office & Jail: a converted 2-story Queen Anne style residence built about 1890 of brick and stone, the building now houses the sheriff's office. Tall rectangular windows, belt courses of stone and a tower on the northeast corner are noteworthy features. The jail is in a three story brick addition to the rear of the home.

PHOTOS 3A & 3B

The Masonic Lodge: designed by J.T. Harris of Columbus, it was erected in 1876. The fine, 4-story Italianate structure has commercial uses on the first two floors with the upper two floors used for lodge and meeting rooms. It is brick with stone trim with handsome hoodmolds and an elaborately bracketed cornice topped by a broken pediment on the east facade.

PHOTO 1

The People's Bank (Marfield Bank): 133-135 W. Main St., built in 1848 and operated until 1877 by Samuel Marfield as a banking house. The 2-story brick and stone building is the only remaining structure with a portion of its property line still part of the original circular pattern. It was restored in 1972 by its present owners, the Pickaway County Historical Society.

The Old Building (Old Masonic Lodge), 115-119 W. Main St., built in 1837 by Dr. Edson Olds, the three-story brick building with parapet walls has rows of rectangular sash windows on the 2nd and 3rd floors. The 1st floor houses three stores, two of which have been there since the mid-1800's.

The Fickardt-Brunner House, 317 South Court Street, a 2-story Victorian structure featuring a projecting bay to the left of the main door. Windows in the bay have elaborate stone hoodmolds. The entrance has a pedimented and bracketed hood and the cornice is heavily bracketed with a deep, molded frieze. The home was built in 1840 and extensively remodeled in the late 1880's.

The Caleb Atwater House, 126 E. Mound, a one-story mansard roofed brick building with additions. Built in 1850's it was the home of Atwater and his descendants.

The Moore House, 304 S. Court St., begun in 1818 and added to in 1844 when Samuel Moore became owner. The brick home has a heavily bracketed cornice and bracketed hoods over the doors. It was further refined and completed in 1870. There is a free-hanging stairway in the front hall. Samuel Moore was one of the most outstanding and public spirited citizens of Circleville. He died in 1902 and the home is still owned by members of the Moore family.

8. SIGNIFICANCE, continued, page 2

Dr. E.B. Olds erected a large 3-story brick block in 1839 and in so doing commenced the squaring of the circular plat. The building housed his office and his drug business, later known as the Circleville Drug Co., and the Olds and Baker Goods Store.

In 1854 T.K. Brunner opened his jewelry store in the block. The great grandson of Brunner now runs the shop. The Brunner Jewelers, oldest in Circleville, have been caretakers of the courthouse clock since it was installed in 1889. L.M. Butch Co., Jewelers, established in 1881, is also located in the Olds Buildings and is still operated by the Butch family.

Circleville has remained prosperous and has managed to preserve its buildings and its heritage. The district has an unusually fine collection of both residential and commercial architecture reflecting its history and the popular tastes and trends of the time.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Circleville Historic District contains an unusually fine collection of both residential and commercial architecture reflecting its history and the popular tastes and trends of the time. The town has remained prosperoud and has managed to preserve its buildings and its heritage. There are approx. 85 buildings in the historic district.

Established in January, 1810, Circleville was located amid some of the most significnat Indian earthworks in southern Ohio. The site was selected in order to preserve the works and the town was laid out within the circular enclosre. Ironically, the building of the town and its later growth has completely destroyed the prehistoric site. Archeologists have been consulted and have reported that it is unlikely that any significant archeological material remains. Early reports concerning the works are enclosed.

The courthouse was located at the center of the earthworks, and streets laid out in circles around it. Beyond the enclosrue, the residential area was laid out in a more conventional rectangular grid. However, the novel geometry of Circleville was soon found to be inconvenient and in 1836 a movement was started to have the circular plat squared. It was during this change that all traces of the circular earthworks were removed. The earthworks contained excellent clay for brick and Caleb Atwater, educator, minister, lawyer, author and pioneer in the movement to build the Ohio Canal system, reported in his Western Antiquities that the earthworks were "disappearing before us daily." Many buildings were razed in the courthouse area, accounting for the many mid-nineteenth century structures in the downtown area.

The early life of the town depended upon its being the county seat and at the crossroads between Columbus & Portsmouth and Cincinnati and Lancaster. The growth of Circleville was aided by the construction of the Ohio Canal which opened in Circleville in 1831. The canal opnened markets for the agricultural and livestock products of Pickaway County. These markets were maintained and added to by the growth of the railroads. Many were involved in the growth and history of Circleville.

The Masons, once located in the Olds Building, built a Masonic Lodge building at a cost of $22,000. In constant use since its completion, it is an excellent example of High Victorian Italianate architecture. The Circleville City Building, also in continuous use since its completion, was designed by a local citizen, William Doane, a carriage manufacturer. The building contained the Mayor's office, council room, city offices, and city police department. The first story was leased to W.R. Hosler Packing Co. and J. Antill's retail confectionery. The building still suits the city's needs.

The boundaries as drawn represent the major concentration of historic buildings remaining in the town. To the west the area is intruded on by I-71 and some concentration of industrial buildings; to the other sides are newer residences and/or commercial buildings.

On the district map are noted the most outstanding structures in the district as well as the intrusions. Unless marked as a parking area, the areas between buildings contribute to the district with structures that are conforming though less spectacular than those specifically discussed in the nomination.

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF CIRCLEVILLE IN 1836, LOOKING SOUTH
(DRAWN BY G. F. WITTICH)

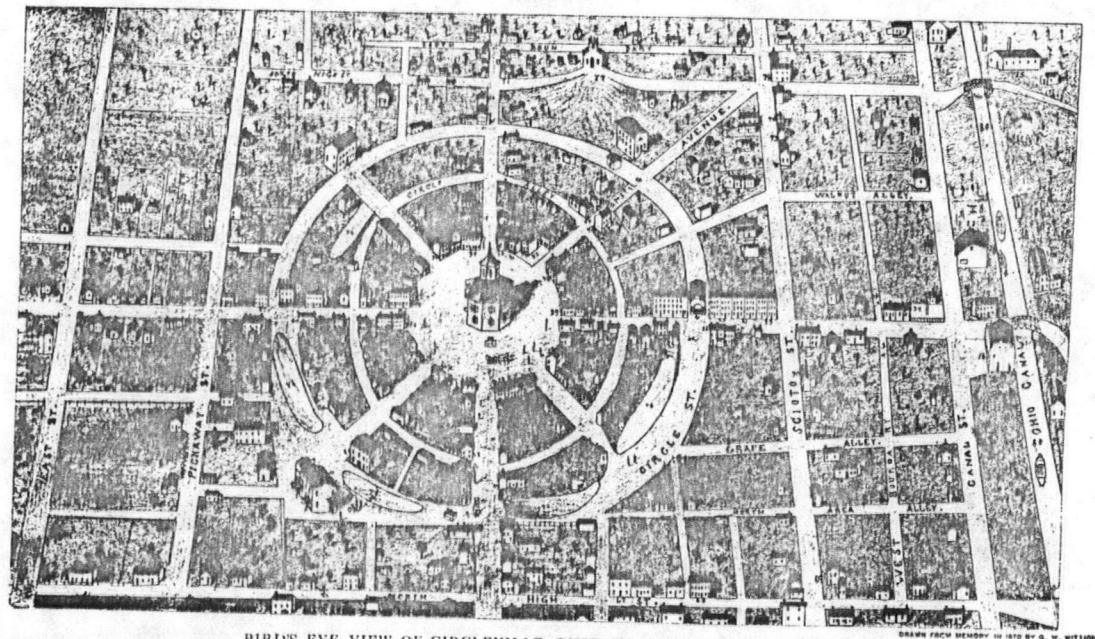

Reps Making of Urban Cincinnati
Princeton University Press, 1965

His plan was less satisfactory where the diagonals crossed the intersections of the gridiron streets. Instead of cutting back the sharply pointed lots at this point or providing smaller circles or squares as L'Enfant had done, Ralston retained the precise corners resulting from the geometrical pattern. Some of the city's present traffic problems stem from this failure to modify the scheme at these intersections. It might also have been more in keeping with the concept of Baroque planning to leave open at least a portion of the blocks surrounding the central circle. The governor's mansion, started in 1827, must have been invisible from the diagonal approaches as the lots surrounding the circle were built on. A more satisfactory solution from the visual standpoint has resulted in modern times with the erection of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument standing over 300 feet high on the site of the old governor's residence. Here at least is a visual exclamation point marking the center of the city and, very nearly, the center of the state itself.

Jeffersonville and Marietta were not the only early towns of the Ohio valley with distinctive plans. Perhaps the most unusual was that for the county seat of Pickaway County, Ohio. The county had been created by the legislature in 1810, and three commissioners were appointed to select a site for its administrative center. In their search they came across another of the mound-building Indians' strange creations—a circle tangent to a square. They chose this unique site, and Daniel Driesbach, who was directed to prepare the plan for the town, imaginatively conceived of a design that would utilize the circular mounds as the right-of-way for the principal street (Fig. 99). He laid out eight other streets radiating outward from a central open space set aside for the courthouse. The name of the town was almost inevitable, and Circleville it became. In fact, the circular portion of the town was actually a double octagon, thus permitting all properties to be bounded by straight, rather than curved lines.

But, like that of Jeffersonville, the plan of Circleville had but a brief life. Some of the more enterprising residents concluded that its design wasted otherwise valuable urban land between the circle and the enclosing square. There were complaints, too, that the open area about the courthouse had become a foraging spot for local swine. These persons approached the state legislature with a request to permit the replanning of the town, and in 1837 an act was passed authorizing the replatting of the circular portions of the town with the consent of the property owners concerned. The legislature also created what was doubtless America's first private redevelopment corporation to carry out this task. The name chosen for this concern indicates that its founders did not lack an appreciation for the humorous aspects of their proposed project, for they were chartered as "a body corporate and politic . . . by the name and style of the 'Circleville Squaring Company.'"

The old order had its adherents, and the company secured the necessary consents from owners of land in only two quadrants of the city. For eleven years company activities hung suspended while the town remained half square and half circular. Not until 1849 did landowners in the northeast quarter of the town capitulate. Then once again several years were to pass while negotiations took place with the remaining supporters of the original plan. Finally, in March 1856, the new plan was accepted. The squaring of Circleville had been achieved (Fig. 100).

Thus, gradually, the Ohio Valley was settled by pioneers for whom town life was an important aspect of a developing culture. The difficulties were many and the hardships great. Not all of the towns laid out by these settlers were particularly attractive, but many, like Marietta, have much of the charm of the still unspoiled New England communities of an earlier era. Some attempts at real urban elegance failed completely, as at Hygeia. Other unusual plans of both interest and merit were replaced by conventional designs, as in Jeffersonville and Circleville. There still remains impressive evidence that these early colonizers of a great internal land empire were not unaware of the values of urban beauty and the amenities of town life. These features of town planning were submerged in the later 19th century under the tide of speculation. Land came to be regarded as a commodity for personal enrichment rather than a resource to be managed wisely by the citizens and their governmental institutions. What remains of the original townscape deserves the utmost efforts by present residents to protect and preserve this unique heritage of the pioneers who first pushed beyond the eastern mountains and established the early frontier towns in the pleasant rolling lands of the Ohio Valley.

Dear Property Owner:

As you have probably already been informed by State or local representatives, the property you own is included in a district that has been nominated by the State for listing in the National Register which is that list of evidences of the past deemed worthy of keeping for the future by the Secretary of the Interior. This nomination is pending in our office.

Since you may not have been aware of potential benefits and provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 when the district including your property was originally considered by the State for nomination, we are sending informative material at this time. If you wish to make comments about your property or the district relative to the National Register "Criteria for Evaluation" (see enclosed green leaflet), we will be pleased to consider them as an adjunct to our evaluation of placing your property in the National Register. Comments should be made within 30 days of the date of this letter and should be addressed to Dr. William J. Murtagh, Keeper of the National Register, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Information concerning standards for rehabilitation may be obtained from Technical Preservation Services, Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Questions concerning the National Register program or the implementation of the historic preservation provisions of the Tax Reform Act should also be addressed to the Keeper of the National Register. Inquiries must include the name of the district (see address label) and property address to be properly handled.

Sincerely yours,

William J. Murtagh

Mr. William J. Murtaugh
Keeper of the National Register
U. S. Department of the Interior

Washington, D. C. 20240

Dear Mr. Murtaugh:

This letter is in response to your letter of March 23, 1978 concerning your reference H-34-880, the Circleville Historic District.

The Water & Sewer Department building located at 114 West Franklin Street in Circleville, Ohio was originally constructed in 1952 and an addition was built on in 1976. Since this building is relatively new and has no architectural or historical features I cannot understand why this building should be put on the National Register. I am sure that within the proposed district there are many buildings that will meet the criteria that has been established for historic buildings to be placed on the National Register. I believe that placing fairly new buildings on the Register by means of an historic district severely limits the possible future use of federal aid in any activity associated with reconstructing or renewing the building.

Based upon the above information, I believe that the relatively new building within the proposed district should be deleted from the proposal and that buildings of significant architectural and historical value should be placed on the National Register on their individual merit.

If you have any questions on this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Very truly yours,

Atwood P. Jones

Dear Mr. Whitlock:

It has recently been brought to my attention by Ms. Pauline Clifton, 307 South Court Street, Circleville, Ohio 43113, a member of the Task Force for the Historic Survey of Ohio, that the application to place an area of downtown Circleville, Ohio on the National Register of Historic Places has been in the Washington office since mid-February.

I would greatly appreciate any effort on your part to see that a decision is reached in the near future. I am, of course, hoping for a favorable designation.

If I may be of any service to you in reaching a decision in this matter, please do not hesitate to call upon me.

Thanking you for your time and assistance, I am
