Describe the present and original (if known) physical appearance

216 Erkenbrecker:

This building is a 2½ story prime example of Queen Anne/Victorian architecture. Directly suggestive of the Queen Anne era is the conical turret projecting from the structure's south-east corner. This ornamental turret comprises three floor levels whose design include a spire, three carved stone motifs, dentiled cornices just below spire and box gutters, and a protruding brick apparatus which extends vertically on both sides.

An abundance of Victorian architectural detail is further exhibited on this structure's front facade. Initially visible are the fluted columns and pilasters with Ionic capitals that support the porch roof. The flat porch roof is surrounded by a dentiled entablature. Intricate detailing of the main doorway include sidelights and fanlight whose theme is enhanced by the leaded-glass, stilted arch above fanlight, and wooden pilasters on each side of the door. The raised porch is graced with decorative cresting and ornate planters resting on pedestals. Just above the porch, on the second level, is a casement window with a bracketed lintel as a prop. Extending vertically on both sides of the window are stone pilasters with Ionic capitals and atop the window is an arched and carved motif.

The building's base is rock-faced ashlar with cut stone water table. This foundation supports this running bond brick structure. The windows are treated with an array of framings such as plain lug sills, continuous sills, stilted arch (some with keystone), and plain stone lintels. The windows are various shapes and sizes.

Both the west and east facades display protruding bays. The projecting east bay accentuates the first floor and contain ornate stained-glass. Adjacent to this bay, on the east facade, is a huge stained-glass window on which an elegant waterfall scene is exhibited. The west bay include continuous bands on all floor levels and transom stained-glass windows on the first floor. This bay is capped with wall dormer.

This building's slate and tile gabled roof has two wall dormers, one with stone carved madallion, and two plain hipped dormers. There is a weathervane atop the front stone carved wall dormer. At the roof's crest are ornate finials and lightning rods. Five single stacked chimneys with cresting supports are also atop this structure.

218 Erkenbrecker:

This 2½ story high structure's architectural detailing is also Queen Anne/Victorian and is asymmetrical in plan. Likewise common to this epoch is this home's turret located on the building's south-east corner. The brick turret is complete with transom stained-glass (please turn to continuation sheet) windows on the first level, spire and urn at its summit.

Among detailing that charm the front facade are Tuscan columns, a plain pilaster on the building's southwest corner, and a pair of fluted pilasters on each side of the main entrance. The linteled trabeated doorway is surrounded by transoms and sidelights whose design consist of leaded and stained-glass. The masonry front porch is enclosed with metal cresting, and, at periodic intervals, concrete planters on pedestals protrude. The flat roof is skirted with plain entablature. Above the canopied porch is a casement window with bracketed lug sill, stone framing on both sides and complimentary entablature cornice. Below the building's main roofline is a cut stone dentiled cornice.

The foundation is rock-faced ashlar with cut stone water table. This base supports the brick structure whose brick exterior wall treatment is stretcher bond. Continuous sills and lintels mark windows and the first and second floors. Additionally, plain lug sills and segmented arches enhance the front main entrance and a multitude of windows of various styles and sizes.

On the west and east facades are projecting bays atop which rest ornate wall dormers with stone carved panels. The west bay is dominated by an enormous stained-glass window with yet another stained-glass window as a transom. The east bay exhibits stained-glass windows on the ground level and the second floor.

The roof of this structure is further detailed and ornate. There are three wall dormers with stone carved designs and two plain hipped dormers. Also, on the slate roof are decorative urns, lightning rods, and four large single stacked chimneys with similar motifs and supported with metal cresting.

A small vestibule on the west facade and enclosures of first and second floor rear porches are modifications which aren't original to this house. Another visible exterior addition is aluminum awnings on dormers and third level windows of the turret. The exact dates of these alterations are unknown.

On the interior of these two houses exist a multitude of materials which contribute to the buildings' beauty. Most doors have brass door fixtures; a few door knobs are black porcelain.

Many light fixtures and window fixtures exhibit brass ornamentation. There are also carved glass motifs on some light fixtures. Marbel is present on powder room stips, brass radiators, brass legged sinks and bathroom floors. Wood has been cut, carved and turned to create an array of effects on floors, staircases, paneled wainscot walls, fireplaces, etc. All fireplaces are enhanced with similated marbel, probably Rookwood tile. Many windows are stained-glass and some contain actual curved molded glass. Rooms are large and all have cornices; some have chair and box moldings.

These two buildings were built by the same family at the same time and have almost identical architectural plans. Those buildings to the east and south are much later and have suffered alterations. The grounds of the Cincinnati Zoo are to the west.

Statement of Significance (in one paragraph)

The Pflieger Family Houses are significant as they embody the distinctive characteristics of the late Queen Anne architecture in Cincinnati. Although the dominant style is Victorian-Queen Anne, evidence of the emerging classical revival is apparent. Some of the individual components lack distinction, but taken together they represent a popular and distinguishable entity. The Pflieger Houses strongly portray a definite period in the architectural history of the United States. Though not unique in terms of Cincinnati's overall Queen Anne composition, the two houses are good examples of a popular style that was quite prevalent during the waning years of the Victorian era. The Pflieger Houses are significant in that, unlike many residential buildings, they were built as a pair. Their imposing conical turrets and wall parapets complement one another, as do the classical porch treatments and general wall fenestration. The house at 216 Erkenbrecker is particularly appealing by the manner it was adapted to the corner lot. Both buildings were built by the Pflieger family between 1897-1899. The elder Pfliegers, Julius and Catharine, were German immigrants and occupied the house at 216 Erkenbrecker. Edward Pflieger, son of Julius and Catharine, occupied the residence at 218 Erkenbrecker with his family. Julius Pflieger was a reasonably successful business-man, having been selected President of the Guiss, Pflieger and Company. Edward held the title of Vice-President and, following his father's death in 1905, President Guiss, Pflieger and Co. were wholesalers of shoes and related leather products. The Erkenbrecker Cluster possesses integrity of location, design, setting, materials, and craftsmanship. Its prominent location on the immediate streetscape and visual juxtaposition to the Cincinnati Zoo make these two buildings a significant part of Cincinnati's built environment.

Dear Mr. Delaporte:

We would like to lend our support to a request on the part of Mr. Reginald Wilkinson of 218 Erkenbrecher Avenue, Cincinnati, for the listing of the Miller Hous at 216 Erkenbrecher and the Owens house at 218 Erkenbrecher.

It is our opinion that the listing as a cluster of these two properties would be consistent with the standards set forth by your agency and that such listing would be of substance in recognizing the historic fabric of the Avondale neighborhood.

Very truly yours,

Ohio Historic Site Preservation Advisory Board

October 2, 1979

Reginald & LaRon Wilkinson
218 Erkenbrecher Avenue
Cincinnati, Ohio 45215

Dear Mr. & Mrs. Wilkinson:

I am pleased to inform you that your property, listed below, is being considered by the Ohio Historic Site Preservation Advisory Board as qualified for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places of the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, United States Department of the Interior. The program was created by Congress in 1966 by the National Historic Preservation Act (P.L.89-665). A sheet explaining the National Register of Historic Places has been enclosed.

While public or private real property may be added to the National Register without the permission of the landowner, the Ohio Historic Preservation Office encourages public participation and we are most anxious to receive comments from property owners regarding listing of their property. A 60 day period (ending 11/28/79) is provided for these comments. The nomination will be brought up for final action at the first meeting of the Ohio Historic Site Preservation Advisory Board after this 60 day period. If the property is approved for nomination to the National Register, written comments which we have received concerning the significance of the property under the National Register criteria will be forwarded to Washington with the nomination. Property owners are contacted by the staff in Washington before the property is listed. Listing in the Register is a Department of the Interior decision.

Registration in the National Register does not diminish or alter title to the land. However, it does help protect listed property from demolition or harm from any federally funded or licensed program by providing for a federal-level hearing in the event of such jeopardy. Owners of listed property are eligible to apply for 50% matching grants-in-aid for historic preservation through the state program. Certain Federal tax consequences may result for income-producing (depreciable) properties pursuant to Section 2124 of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 (P.L. 94-455). The provisions of this section of the Act are explained on the enclosed sheet entitled "Tax Incentives to Encourage The Preservation of Historic Structures."

Please note that a copy of this letter is being sent to the appropriate public officials in your area for additional comments.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

216 Erkenbrecher:

This building is a 2½ story prime example of Queen Anne/victorian architecture. Directly suggestive of the Queen Anne era is the turret projecting from the structure's south-east corner. This ornamental turret comprises three floor levels whose design include a spire, three carved stone motifs, dentiled cornices just below spire and box gutters, and a protruding brick apparatus which extends vertically on both sides.

An abundance of victorian architectural detail is further exhibited on this structure's front facade. Initially visible are the fluted columns and pilasters with Ionic capitals that support the porch roof. The flat porch roof is surrounded by a dentiled entablature. Intricate detailing of the main doorway include sidelights and fanlight whose theme is enhanced by the leaded-glass, stilted arch above fanlight, and wooden pilasters on each side of the door. The raised porch is graced with decorative cresting and ornate planters resting on pedestals. Just above the porch, on the second level, is a casement window with a bracketed lintel as a prop. Extending vertically on both sides of the window are stone pilasters with Ionic capitals and atop the window is an arched and carved motif.

The building's base is rock-faced ashlar with cut stone water table. This foundation supports this running bond brick structure. The windows are treated with an array of framings such as plain lug sills, continuous sills, stilted arch (some with keystone), and plain stone lintels. The windows are various shapes and sizes.

Both the west and east facades display protruding bays. The projecting east bay accentuates the first floor and contain ornate stained-glass. Adjacent to this bay, on the east facade, is a huge stained-glass window on which an elegant waterfall scene is exhibited. The west bay include continuous bands on all floor levels and transom stained-glass windows on the first floor. This bay is capped with wall dormer.

This building's slate and tile gabled roof has two wall dormers, one with stone carved madallion, and two plain hipped dormers. There is a weathervane atop the front stone carved wall dormer. At the roof's crest are ornate finials and lightning rods. Five single stacked chimneys with cresting supports are also atop this structure.

218 Erkenbrecher:

This 2½ story high structure's architectural detailing is also Queen Anne/victorian and is asymmetrical in plan. Likewise common to this epoch is this home's turret located on the building's south-east corner. The brick turret is complete with transom stained-glass.

Among detailing that charm the front facade are Tuscan columns, ^{read a d} a plain pilaster on the building's southwest corner, and a pair of fluted pilasters on each side of the main entrance. The linteled trabeated doorway is surrounded by transoms and sidelights whose design consist of leaded and stained-glass. The masonry front porch is enclosed with metal cresting, and, at periodic intervals, concrete planters on pedestals protrude. The flat roof is skirted with plain entablature. Above the canopied porch is a casement window with bracketed lug sill, stone framing on both sides and complimentary entablature cornice. Below the building's main roofline is a cut stone dentiled cornice.

The foundation is rock-faced ashlar with cut stone water table. This base supports the brick structure whose brick exterior wall treatment is stretcher bond. Continuous sills and lintels mark windows and the first and second floors. Additionally, plain lug sills and segmented arches enhance the front main entrance and a multitude of windows of various styles and sizes.

On the west and east facades are projecting bays atop which rest ornate wall dormers with stone carved panels. The west bay is dominated by an enormous stained-glass window with yet another stained-glass window as a transom. The east bay exhibits stained-glass windows on the ground level and the second floor.

The roof of this structure is further detailed and ornate. There are three wall dormers with stone carved designs and two plain hipped dormers. Also, on the slate roof are decorative urns, lightning rods; and four large single stacked chimneys with similar motifs and supported with metal cresting.

A small vestibule on the west facade and enclosures of first and second floor rear porches are modifications which aren't original to this house. Another visible exterior addition is aluminum awnings on dormers and third level windows of the turret. The exact dates of these alterations are unknown.

On the interior of these two houses exist a multitude of materials which contribute to the buildings' beauty. Most doors have brass door fixtures; a few door knobs are black porcelain.

Many light fixtures and window fixtures exhibit brass ornamentation. There are also carved glass motifs on some light fixtures. Marbel is present on powder room stips, brass radiators, brass legged sinks and bathroom floors. Wood has been cut, carved and turned to create an array of effects on floors, staircases, paneled wainscot walls, fireplaces, etc. All fireplaces are enhanced with simlited marbel, probably Rookwood tile. Many windows are stained-glass and some contain actual curved molded glass. Rooms are large and all have cornices; some have chair and box moldings.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Erkenbrecher Avenue Cluster is significant as it embodies the distinctive characteristics of late Queen Anne architecture in Cincinnati. Although the dominant style is late nineteenth century Victorian-Queen Anne, evidence of the classical idiom is clearly apparent. Perhaps many of the individual components lack distinction, but together they represent a popular and distinguishable entity. The Erkenbrecher Avenue Cluster strongly illustrates a definite period in America's architectural history.

Both buildings were built by the Pflieger family between 1897-1899. The elder Pfliegers, Julius and Catharine, were German immigrants and occupied the house at 216 Erkenbrecher. Edward Pflieger, son of Julius and Catharine, occupied the residence at 218 Erkenbrecher with his family. Julius Pflieger was a reasonably successful business-man, having been selected President of the Guiss, Pflieger and Company. Edward held the title of Vice-President and, following his father's death in 1905, President. Guiss, Pflieger and Co. were wholesalers of shoes and related leather products.

The Erkenbrecher Cluster possesses integrity of location, design, setting, materials, and craftsmanship. Its prominent location on the immediate streetscape and visual juxtaposition to the Cincinnati Zoo make these two buildings a significant part of Cincinnati's built environment.

Two excellent properties. The name seems awkward however, and I would suggest "Pfleger Family Houses" or something similar. The nomination also needs to have a better statement of architectural significance.

Acting Keeper of the National Register

Ms. Shull:

In response to your letter dated February 6, 1980 relative to the nomination of the "Pflieger Family Houses" to the National Register of Historic Places, I offer the following.

I submit this reply on behalf of the owners of both homes in question; Mr. Cornelius Calhoun of 216 Erkenbrecher and Reginald and LaRon Wilkinson of 218 Erkenbrecher.

It is, indeed, an honor to know that the houses I have nominated to the Register have reached the final stages of the nomination process. Let it go on record that enthusiasm about the nomination is as high now as it was when the buildings were being researched for Register consideration.

We feel that these two architecturally detailed structures are extremely worthy of acceptance to the National Register. These two Queen Anne-Victorian buildings stand alone in elegance in a very significant section of Cincinnati. As indicated in previous communication (see enclosed) the location of these homes is strategically based near some of Cincinnati's most heavily populated and patronized facilities such as the Cincinnati Zoo, the University of Cincinnati and the city's major hospitals. Thus, the aesthetic qualities of these Victorian structures project an important visual quality to thousands of passers by.

Relative to rising concerns in the city about demolition vs. conservation the services that the Register can provide are invaluable. The owners are preservationists who seek assistance and guidance in the maintenance and restoration of two architecturally and historically significant homes. We feel acceptance to the N.R.H.P. would add the needed incentive and motivation to instill pride in ownership as well as community integrity.

Dear Mr. Delaporte:

We would like to lend our support to a request on the part of Mr. Reginald Wilkinson of 218 Erkenbrecher Avenue, Cincinnati, for the listing of the Miller Hous at 216 Erkenbrecher and the Owens house at 218 Erkenbrecher.

It is our opinion that the listing as a cluster of these two properties would be consistent with the standards set forth by your agency and that such listing would be of substance in recognizing the historic fabric of the Avondale neighborhood.

Very truly yours,

Historian and Manager

Dear Mr. Simmons:

Per your letter to myself and Mr. Calhoun dated October 2, 1979, in reference to the nomination of the "Pfleger Family Houses" to the National Register of Historic Places, and speaking for both owners, the following is submitted.

Consideration to list said properties on the NRHP is, indeed, an honor relative to a number of rationales. Primarily, perhaps, acceptance to the Register would enhance municipal and community integrity, depicting the intricate and solid architecture prevalent in the Cincinnati area. The degree of craftsmanship embellished in these two Queen Anne-Victorian structures is historically emblematic of this nation's highly-skilled handicraftsmen; an educational treat in itself.

Next, as an owner, having a home listed on the NRHP instills an almost indescribable pride in ownership. In addition, there's a feeling of contributing to community development and revitalization.

Moreover consequential, is the strategic location of these unique Victorian buildings. Situated in the heart of the city they are in near proximity to many of Cincinnati's heavily patronized entities such as the University of Cincinnati, major hospitals, and the Zoological Gardens. Acceptance by the NRHP would surely provide an additional educational, as well as, aesthetic dimension to the Avondale and surrounding communities.

Let it be known that the owners of these two homes are pro acceptance to the NRHP. Demonstrated by the fact that the owners are sincerely dedicated to perpetuating the recognition of these exceptional structures, being listed on the Register would provide the maximum acknowledgement.
