MEMORANDUM FOR ANDREW H. CARD, JR.

FROM: C. BOYDEN GRAY CBG

SUBJECT: Dr. Bromley's Dual Roles

It has come to my attention that the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology has invited Dr. Bromley to testify before this Wednesday on export controls and specifically on U.S. plans for next month's Coordination Committee on Multilateral Export Controls (CCMEC) meeting. A copy of the Committee request to Dr. Bromley is attached.

The Committee invited Dr. Bromley to testify in his capacity as Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, and it seems to me not necessarily inappropriate that he appear in that role. As you know, however, Dr. Bromley also wears another hat as Assistant to the President for Science and Technology. Longstanding White House policy dictates against personal advisors to the President testifying on the Hill. Under present circumstances, a Hill appearance by Dr. Bromley could give rise to confusion over the continued vitality of that rule and could put Dr. Bromley in the uncomfortable position of having constantly to distinguish between his two roles in deciding what sorts of questions to answer and how.

I attach for your review a draft memorandum that the Governor might consider sending to Dr. Bromley suggesting that circumstances make it desirable for the Doctor to surrender his commission as an Assistant to the President and his corresponding West Wing office. Dr. Bromley's continued service as OSTP Director probably would be made somewhat easier were this course followed.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR DR. D. ALLAN BROMLEY
DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF SCIENCE
AND TECHNOLOGY POLICY

FROM: JOHN H. SUNUNU
CHIEF OF STAFF

SUBJECT: Request for Congressional Testimony

The invitation extended by the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology asking for you to testify this Wednesday raises a bit of quandary. You are invited to appear in your capacity as the Senate-confirmed Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, and it seems appropriate for you to appear on occasion before congressional committees in that role. The Administration is of course desirous of accommodating the interests of Congress in receiving testimony from appropriate Administration officials.

Currently, however, you also serve as a commissioned officer in the White House bearing the title of Assistant to the President for Science and Technology. As you know, longstanding policy rooted in separation of powers considerations precludes high personal advisors to the President from appearing to answer substantive policy questions posed by congressional committees. Your two roles could thus place us in a dilemma.

The situation in which we now find ourselves seems likely to recur unless structural changes are made. In the interests of accommodating Congress to the greatest extent possible, and of freeing you from having to engage in complex split-second analysis as to whether a question or response demands that views or information be offered in your capacity as an Assistant to the President, I would recommend that you relinquish your commission and West Wing office to concentrate fully on your very significant duties as Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy. That course also will eliminate any possible misperception by others as to which one of dual roles you are fulfilling at any given time.

I appreciate your attention to this matter and look forward to a continued productive relationship with you as the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

Dr. D. Allan Bromley
Director
Office of Science and Technology Policy
Washington, D. C. 20506

Dear Dr. Bromley:

On May 16, 1990, the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology will hold a hearing on "The Effect of Changing Export Controls on Cooperation in Science and Technology". We are pleased to invite you or your representative to testify at the hearing, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Room 2318 of the Rayburn House Office Building.

Recently, in response to the sweeping political changes occurring in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, both the United States and a number of its allies have made proposals for reform of the international export control regime. It is expected that a number of these reforms will be adopted over the next few years. The Committee is particularly interested in how a reformed export control regime will affect the competitiveness of U.S. high-technology industries and the willingness and ability of the U.S. to cooperate with the Eastern Bloc in science and technology.

Specifically, we would ask that you and your fellow panel members address the following questions in your testimony:

1. Please describe the proposals on export control reform that the Administration will present at the high-level meeting of the Coordinating Committee on Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM) next month.
2. Describe the process by which COCOM will move from its current list of controlled items to a "core list" of militarily critical technologies.
3. Discuss the Administration's proposal with respect to key technologies such as machine tools, computers, and telecommunications, and indicate how the increased export of such technologies will affect the economic re-construction of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.
4. To what extent does the Administration propose that the Soviet Union be treated differently from the nations of Eastern Europe? Do these views differ from those of other COCOM members?

Dr. D. Allan Bromley
Page Two
May 9, 1990

5. How will a less restrictive export control regime affect the competitiveness of U.S. high-technology industries, particularly with respect to R&D investment, location of subsidiaries and facilities overseas, international technical cooperation, and joint ventures?
6. How will a less restrictive export control regime affect the willingness and ability of the United States to engage in cooperative science and technology with the Eastern Bloc (e.g., cooperation in space technology, energy R&D, aviation).
7. How will a less restrictive export control regime affect U.S. regulation of scientific communication with nations of the Eastern Bloc, as expressed in national security decision directives (NSDD) and in regulations related to the flow of "technical data".
8. Please describe steps that the Administration is taking, including streamlining of the visa process, to increase the flow of Eastern Bloc scientists and engineers interested in studying and working in the United States.
9. How might the Administration use cooperation in science and technology as a "carrot" to encourage political change in Eastern Europe?
10. Compare the level of scientific and technological cooperation between the U.S./Eastern Europe with that of Japan/Eastern Europe and Western Europe/Eastern Europe.

Under the rules of Committee procedure, witnesses are asked to make an oral presentation, which should be limited to ten minutes. Witnesses are also asked to submit a written statement, which may be of any length. The hearing transcript published by the Committee will be a verbatim record of the proceedings -- what is said will be printed. To assist Members of the Committee, please send two hundred copies of your prepared statement and a biographical summary 48 hours prior to the hearing to: Shirley J. Watson, Staff Assistant, Committee on Science, Space, and Technology, 2321 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Your assistance to the Committee is appreciated. Attached are the rules governing the hearing. Any questions may be directed to either Mr. Greg Simon at (202) 225-4494 or Mr. Bob Palmer at (202) 226-3636.

Sincerely,

ROBERT A. ROE
Chairman
