THE WORSHIP OF GOD

First Sunday in Advent

1100

03 December 1989

WORSHIP IN PRAISE

Call To Worship

*Hymn of Worship

Isaiah 2:1-5

"Faith of Our Fathers!"

1) Faith of our fathers!
living still
In spite of dungeon,
fire, and sword,
O how our hearts
beat high with joy
When-e'er we hear
that glorious word:
Faith of our fathers,
holy faith!
We will be true
to thee till death.

2) Faith of our fathers!
God's great power
Shall win all nations
unto thee;
And through the truth
that comes from God
Mankind shall then
be truly free:
Faith of our fathers,
holy faith!
We will be true
to thee till death.

3) Faith of our fathers!
we will love
Both friend and foe
in all our strife,
And preach thee, too,
as love knows' how
By kindly words
and virtuous life;
Faith of our fathers,
holy faith!
We will be true
to thee till death.

*Invocation

WORSHIP IN MEDITATION

Apostles Creed

(in unison)

I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth; And in Jesus Christ his only Son, our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary; Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried; he descended into hell; the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and sits on the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from hence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy catholic church; the communion of Saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body; and the life everlasting.

AMEN.

*Hymn of Preparation

"Come, Thou Long-expected Jesus"

1) Come, thou long-expected Jesus,
Born to set thy people free;
From our fears and sins release us;
Let us find our rest in thee.
Israel's Strength and Consolation
Hope of all the earth thou are;
Dear desire of every nation,
Joy of every longing heart.

- 2) Born thy people to deliver,
 Born a child and yet a King,
 Born to reign in us forever,
 Now thy gracious Kingdom bring.
 By thine own eternal Spirit
 Rule in all our hearts alone;
 By thine all-sufficient merit
 Raise us to thy glorious throne.

WORSHIP IN DEDICATION

*Hymn of Dedication

"Joy to the World!"

- 1) Joy to the world! the lord is come:
 Let earth receive her King;
 Let every heart prepare him room,
 And heaven on nature sing. (3 times)
- 2) Joy to the earth! the Savior reigns:
 Let men their songs employ;
 While fields and floods, rocks, hills, and plains
 Repeat the sounding joy. (3 times)
- 3) He rules the world with truth and grace,
 And makes the nations prove
 The glories of his righteousness,
 And wonders of his love (3 times)

Bush's style shocks aides

By Doyle McManus

VALLETTA, Malta — Last week, as preparations for the superpower summit here came to a peak, President Bush sat down and dashed off a handwritten note to Mikhail S. Gorbachev outlining his hope for a new kind of U.S.-Soviet relationship.

The note was personal and even eloquent, a Bush aide said. But many of the administration officials charged with managing U.S.-Soviet relations didn't even know the message existed until long after it arrived in Moscow. Some haven't seen the text to this day.

The episode typifies both the opportunities and the potential pitfalls of George Bush's unusually personal approach to diplomacy.

To a degree that astonishes even some of his own aides, the president believes deeply in direct, one-to-one contact with other leaders, from China's Deng Xiaoping to the prime minister of tiny Luxembourg.

In keeping with that conviction, the personal note was a step toward one of Mr. Bush's major goals for this weekend's summit: to establish the same kind of informal relationship with Gorbachev that he feels he has with other leaders.

"The president's desire all along was No. 1 — to get together (with Gorbachev) to be able to have the kind of extended conversation that allows them to get to know each other in a much more personal way," a senior official said. "He believes very much in the virtue and importance of personal diplomacy."

But some diplomatic veterans warn that Mr. Bush's approach also carries serious dangers.

"I've always trembled when a president picks up the phone to talk to his counterparts," said David Newsome, a former U.S. ambassador who heads Georgetown University's Institute of Diplomacy. "The idea of solving difficult international issues through personal rapport is a very risky one."

If nothing else, he noted, it makes it harder to keep the U.S. government's vast foreign policy apparatus in tune with what's going on at the top — as in the case of Mr. Bush's impromptu note to Gorbachev.

In addition, as the Reagan administration learned at the 1986 Reykjavik Summit, presidents who rely too much on personal diplomacy can sometimes create as much misunderstanding as accord.

Mr. Bush has long prided himself on his ability to establish personal rapport with foreign leaders.

As U.S. ambassador at the United Nations during the administration of Richard Nixon, he built a wide network of diplomatic friends, including many from countries that were traditionally U.S. adversaries.

As envoy to China, he sought friendships with Beijing's leaders.

And as vice president under Ronald Reagan, he played a little-noted role in forging "back-channel" contacts with such foreign leaders as India's Rajiv Gandhi and Algeria's Chadli Benjedid.

Now, as president, Mr. Bush has reveled in the role of chief diplomat of the land, spending hours on the telephone with princes, prime ministers and presidents around the globe.

He has chatted frequently with Egypt's Hosni Mubarak, gone fishing with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, and played tennis with Argentina's Carlos Saul Menem.

In preparation for the summit, the White House announced, Mr. Bush talked by telephone or in person with the leaders of all 15 NATO allies, including the surprised prime ministers of Iceland and Luxembourg.

But the one major leader Mr. Bush has not dealt much with directly before is Gorbachev. Several aides said the president has long wanted to try his hand at personal diplomacy with the Kremlin leader but was urged by his national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, to wait until the administration had in place the framework of a policy toward the Soviet Union.

In July, however, after reformist leaders in both Poland and Hungary urged Mr. Bush to talk directly with Gorbachev, the president wrote one of his famous notes to Moscow, suggesting an informal summit.

Countless cables and two more handwritten messages later, the two men are meeting this weekend — "to put our feet up and talk," as Mr. Bush put it last month.

But then, scholars and other outside experts warn, all modern presidents have believed that personal rapport with their Soviet counterparts might be a key to managing world affairs — with generally disappointing results.

"I always believed that as long as I could take someone into a room with me, I could make him my friend," Lyndon B. Johnson once said. "That included anybody, even Nikita Khrushchev."

Diplomats say Mr. Bush's telephonic has delighted some foreign leaders but rattled others, who are uncomfortable with being called out of the blue by the president of the United States.

"Some (foreign officials) ask us, 'Why does he keep doing this?'" one State Department official said.

Mr. Bush has attempted to keep a precise record of his telephone dealings with other leaders by taking careful notes on a yellow pad, aides said. But there is still a potential for confusion.

A president on the telephone is performing without a safety net, Mr. Newsome said. "He doesn't have others around him to pick up the nuances of what the other side is saying."
