CHENEY TALKS TOUGH ON LITHUANIA

MOSCOW -- Soviet soldiers armed with automatic weapons took over two Communist Party schools in Lithuania Sunday, and a senior Soviet military commander accused the republic's independence leaders of plotting to arrest Communists and send them to prison camp.

Deputy Premier Romualdas Ozolas said he feared that Soviet forces might storm Lithuania's legislative headquarters....

In Washington, Secretary Cheney warned the Soviet Union Sunday that the use of force in Lithuania would be a major blow to superpower relations.

In a televised interview, Cheney said that if the Kremlin intervenes militarily to reverse Lithuanian independence, it would have a "significant negative impact" on U.S.-Soviet relations. It was the Administration's strongest statement to date on the crisis.

Cheney Says Move On Lithuania Would Harm Superpower Relations

Secretary Cheney says a Soviet military crackdown in Lithuania would "undermine a lot of the good work" done in recent years in improving U.S.-Soviet relations.

Cheney said Sunday that a move to crush the independence movement in the Baltic republic would have "significant negative consequences in terms of U.S.-Soviet relations" on arms control and other issues.

And he said it "obviously would undermine a lot of the good work" that's been done in recent years."

"We'd like to see the Lithuanians...granted the same prerogative that the East Germans were: self-determination," Cheney said on CBS's "Face the Nation."

LITHUANIAN LEADERS DENOUNCE SEIZURES, PLEDGE ACTION

MOSCOW -- Lithuania has denounced the Soviet military's seizure of key buildings in the capital Vilnius and accused the Kremlin of resorting to the "armed fist" to undermine the republic's self-proclaimed independence.

Lithuanian President Landsbergis spoke on Vilnius radio Sunday night, attacking Moscow's decision to occupy several buildings belonging to the republic's breakaway Communist Party.

"In this case, we see that according to the old habit the Soviet Communist Party makes use of the army and its armed fist," he declared.

Landsbergis said the Kremlin had deployed an "occupation army" before in countries like Hungary and Czechoslovakia and warned, "Maybe this will happen in Lithuania."

Appealing for calm, he said, "Attempts are being made to create an impression that the Lithuanians are arming, are forming their armed forces which can threaten somebody. We must avoid this. Let us be calm, tenacious...and we will be victorious."

(Jonathan Lyons, Reuter)

PRESSURE MOUNTS ON LITHUANIA

MOSCOW -- Soviet paratroopers occupied several Lithuanian Communist Party buildings Sunday in Vilnius..., raising fears that the military might soon seize the Lithuanian legislature in an attempt to shut down the new government.

According to reports from Vilnius, Gen. Valentin Varennikov, commander of Soviet army ground forces, told Lithuanian President Landsbergis by phone late Sunday that the military would not occupy the legislature buildings overnight, but when Landsbergis asked about such a possibility in coming days, Varennikov replied: "As to other questions, these will come clear tomorrow."

Landsbergis told reporters later that "as far as political common sense still rules in Moscow, a full military crackdown would be impossible. But I also know that there is a great potential for insanity in this nation." The Lithuanian leader went on to interpret the Kremlin's tactics as an attempt "to give an appearance that the question of who governs [Lithuania] is still in doubt."

...The Presidium of the Lithuanian legislature late Sunday...approved a resolution ordering Lithuanian prosecutors, courts and internal security officials to take immediate legal measures to counter any "anti-state" actions in Lithuania. No details were available, but the move was clearly aimed at seizures by Soviets of property claimed by Lithuania.

...Some Lithuanian leaders have said they are deeply disappointed that no foreign countries have officially recognized the republic's independence, and Arunas Zabriunas, a leader of the grass-roots independence movement Sajudis, said Sunday that without the "moral support" of the U.S. and Europe, "we are always in danger."

(David Remnick, Washington Post, A1)

ESTONIA/INDEPENDENCE

MOSCOW -- Estonia's Communist Party voted overwhelmingly Sunday to split with Moscow, but agreed to a six-month transition period to avoid antagonizing Soviet authorities who strongly opposed the move....

The vote to establish an independent Communist Party in Estonia was 432-3 with seven abstentions, said Lembo Taning, an adviser on economic affairs to the party's Central Committee.

But Tass said 228 delegates, including many ethnic Russians, boycotted the polling....

At Sunday's meeting, Communist Party deputies agreed to support "the independence of the Estonian people on the basis of the free expression of the people's will," but they described the road toward independence as "an arduous and controversial process that requires...legal foundation and the establishment of a solid economic and social basis."

ETHNIC VIOLENCE FLARES ANEW IN TROUBLED SOVIET REGION; SEVEN AZERBAIJANIS, TWO ARMENIANS ARE KILLED

MOSCOW -- At least nine people have died in renewed ethnic clashes this weekend between Armenians and Azerbaijanis in the turbulent Soviet Transcaucasus region, government officials here reported Sunday....

Tass and national television called the reports from the region "bitter and tragic" and said the attacks threatened "some softening of the situation recently achieved" there.

SOVIET UNION AT 'DANGER POINT,' LIGACHEV SAYS

MOSCOW -- The Soviet Union is now facing the gravest dangers, both political and economic, since it began the process of reform five years ago, a senior member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo said over the weekend, warning that further policy mistakes could plunge the country into chaos.

Yegor Ligachev, widely regarded as the principal conservative within the Soviet leadership...said that the crisis, although still deepening, can be overcome, but only with much greater discipline and resolve than the party and the country have shown.

"We have approached a dangerous point, and if we step over, then economic and political chaos may well set in," Ligachev told The Los Angeles Times in an interview at the Central Committee headquarters.

The party's new platform...will "allow us to emerge from the grave state that we are in," Ligachev said, declaring his support for a program that is decidedly reformist in philosophy and that aims at a sweeping transformation of the Soviet political and economic system.

(Michael Parks, Los Angeles Times, A1)

MITTERRAND CALLS FOR NATO CHANGES, DIALOGUE IN LITHUANIA

PARIS -- President Mitterrand said Sunday German unification would force NATO to rethink its strategy and adopt a more European axis.

He also said in an interview on French television that a solution to the standoff between Lithuania and the Soviet Union over independence could be achieved only through dialogue.

He said Lithuania's rights could not be denied, adding, "Dialogue is the only possible way forward."

Mitterrand outlined a scenario for NATO after German unification in which the Soviet Union would pull its troops out of East Germany in return for the withdrawal of NATO soldiers from West German soil.

"From now on, NATO's form and content will be profoundly altered, including its strategy, the so-called strategy of flexible response," he said.

CENTER-RIGHT PARTY LEADS IN HUNGARIAN ELECTIONS

BUDAPEST -- The center-right Democratic Forum held a slight edge Monday over the liberal Alliance of Free Democrats in Hungary's first free elections in 43 years that were expected to end the Communists' hold on power, returns showed....

The Democratic Forum, which backs Hungary's continued membership in the Warsaw Pact, held a slim lead over the Alliance of Free Democrats with 15 percent of the vote counted Monday.

(Patricia Koza, UPI)

Two Big Parties Neck And Neck In Hungary's Elections

BUDAPEST -- The Hungarian Democratic Forum and the Alliance of Free Democrats were running neck and neck for first place Monday in Hungary's first free parliamentary elections....

State television gave the center-right Forum 23.8 percent of votes to 20.47 percent for the liberal-social democratic Free Democrats after a count of 18 percent of votes for regional party lists in Sunday's polling....

Television gave the rural right-wing Independent Smallholders' Party 13 percent of votes to 10 percent for the ex-communist ruling Socialist Party.

SOVIET JEWS/MAZOWIECKI

NEW YORK -- Poland's Prime Minister said Sunday he's opening his country to transit for Soviet Jews, who lost their main route to Israel last week when Hungary's airline ended charter flights after terrorist threats.

"Just as in the Middle Ages Poles gave refuge to Jews fleeing persecution, Poland will not evade humanitarian assistance to Jews emigrating from the Soviet Union," Prime Minister Mazowiecki told leaders of the American Jewish Congress....

Mazowiecki's move "is a decision of great moral and political significance that will be welcomed by Jews all over the world," said Henry Siegman, the congress' executive director.... "We hope Hungarian authorities will have second thoughts about the dangerous precedent they are setting." (AP)

GENSCHER FAVORS BONN TROOP REDUCTION BEFORE UNIFICATION

BONN -- A drastic cut in West German military forces could overcome Soviet objections to a unified Germany joining NATO, West German Foreign Minister Genscher said Sunday.

"I am convinced that disarmament is the central question for European unity and also for the unification of Germany," Genscher said in a radio interview.... He did not specify by how much he saw West Germany's 450,000 troops being reduced....

"There should not and cannot be any special status for the future Germany. We want to fulfill our responsibility for security in Europe...but not as a neutral country," he added. (Reuter)

THATCHER: SPECIAL U.S. TIE 'WILL ALWAYS BE THERE'

LONDON -- Britain's "special relationship" with the U.S. is stronger than ever, according to Prime Minister Thatcher, who said in an interview that she talks more frequently with President Bush than she did with President Reagan.

In an interview with the Sunday Telegraph, Thatcher dismissed suggestions that her relationship with Bush is weaker than it was when Ronald Reagan was in the White House....

"The special relationship is very important, and it will always be there," Thatcher said. "We have the same language, the same heritage. Straightaway, we can sit down and do business in a spirit of fundamental friendship." (UPI)

U.S. WILL REVIEW ITS OVERSEAS BROADCASTS

The White House will review all the government's overseas broadcasts to determine what changes should be made in response to political upheaval in Eastern Europe.

The review, to be headed by the National Security Council, will examine the radio programs of the VOA and Radio Free Europe-Radio Liberty, according to a letter from National Security Adviser Scowcroft that was made public this weekend....

Among its other tasks, the review panel will consider a suggestion by Rep. Fawcett that a Presidential commission be appointed to offer recommendations about the long-term future of the radio stations, Scowcroft said. (AP, Washington Times, A3)

U.S., CUBA'S WAR OF THE AIRWAVES NOT STAGNANT

The government of Cuba is building surface-to-air missile batteries to protect an electronic jammer near Havana that U.S. intelligence officials say will be used to disrupt television signals by the new TV Marti station in Florida.

U.S. broadcasters fear Cuba also fired a "warning shot across the bow" in beaming a speech by President Castro over six U.S. radio frequencies, disrupting local signals as far away as North Carolina on Friday evening.

"We believe they can disrupt AM radio broadcasts in 30 states, all the way up to the northeast of the country and all the way west to Utah," said Susan Kraus, spokeswoman for the National Association of Broadcasters. "We have to wonder if this is the warning shot across the bow preceding an all-out radio war." (Bill Gertz, Washington Times, A3)

COLOMBIAN MINISTER RESIGNS OVER DRUG WAR

BOGOTA -- Colombian Interior Minister Carlos Lemos Simmonds resigned Sunday in a quarrel over the government's drug policies, saying his departure was a major blow to the country's efforts to curb cocaine trafficking.

Lemos, considered Colombia's toughest anti-drug minister, also said President Barco had not defended him against accusations that he helped cause Thursday's murder of leftist presidential candidate Bernardo Jaramillo by linking him to an outlawed guerrilla group....

"In certain areas inside the government itself, the attitude in the face of drug-trafficking has been changing imperceptibly and now it is not the same intransigent and firm policy that it was in December," he said.

AS BUSH PUTS POPULARITY TO THE TEST ON AID BILL....

Facing a self-imposed deadline in emergency aid to Panama and Nicaragua, President Bush will put his popularity to the test this week to win congressional passage of his $800 million "fund for democracy," according to Administration officials.

Bush and top State Department and Pentagon officials...plan an assault on Congress starting today to get the aid package back on track.

"It'll be just like China," a hopeful Administration official said.

...GEPHARDT STANDS BY, READY TO GIVE HIM A GRADE.

...Rep. Gephardt...has become the one politician in Washington President Bush is most eager to disdain, or most likely to blame.

The sentiments may be rooted in the 1988 presidential campaign, when both were vying for the same office. They have been fed during a succession of clashes since Gephardt's election to [his House] leadership post in June....

"I try to say on issues what I believe and what I think," Gephardt said in a telephone interview Friday from New Orleans. He said he doesn't make criticisms for the "sake of criticizing, or to make partisan points," but to "make constructive suggestions for what we think should be happening." ... "The President has done some good things, but a reactive [foreign] policy is not sufficient to what we need."

NICARAGUAN CHURCH SAYS CONTRA AMBUSH NOT END OF ACCORDS

MANAGUA -- An ambush by contra rebels that killed 12 Sandinista soldiers should not be used as a pretext for abandoning accords for dismantling the insurgents, the leader of Nicaragua's Roman Catholic Church said Sunday.

Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo said the attack Friday gave added urgency to implementing the agreement signed the same day by contra leaders and envoys from President-elect Chamorro.

"I think if there have been these deaths, one should not be discouraged and say all the accords have been ruined," Obando y Bravo said in his weekly homily....

The official Sandinista newspaper Barricada said Sunday that if the contras did not abide by the demobilization accords, the Sandinista army and the Nicaraguan people would be obliged to disarm them by force.

PACT FOR CONTRA RETURN FIRST STEP ON A LONG ROAD

TEGUCIGALPA -- The demobilization agreement announced Friday relocating the Nicaraguan...contras from Honduras to Nicaragua represents the beginning of what senior contra and American officials expect to be a long and complicated process.

By creating enclaves inside Nicaragua where the fighters....will await their final demobilization, the agreement sidesteps problems that were posed by the approaching end of the humanitarian aid program....

But in the short run, the resettlement of the armed rebels in Nicaragua is likely to cause more rather than less fighting there, contra leaders say.

PANAMA, MEXICO FEUDING

PANAMA CITY -- A diplomatic row is brewing between Panama and Mexico over the refusal of the Mexican Embassy here to hand over a top civilian ally of deposed Gen. Noriega on charges he was involved in the embezzlement of millions of dollars while serving as manager of Panama's National Bank.

The case of Rafael Arosemena Alvarado, a former senior executive of Citibank here, is one of several that have pitted the new government of President Endara against some of its Latin American neighbors.

HEZBOLLAH LEADER DENIES HIS GROUP HAS LINK TO HOSTAGES

BEIRUT -- The spiritual leader of pro-Iranian Hezbollah extremists said in an interview published Monday he has nothing to do with the plight of 18 Western hostages believed held by the organization.

Sheikh Fadlallah, interviewed by the pro-Syrian daily newspaper Ash Sharq, also denied reports he was authorized by Iran to find a solution to the hostage ordeal.

He said he did not meet with former President Carter last week in Damascus on the hostages issue....

The pro-Iranian clergyman said, "I have no links whatsoever to this (hostage) issue because I consider that I have nothing to do with the root of the problem." ... "But I always try to address responsible words to the people and all the parties concerned with this issue to close this file once and for all."

PLO, KUWAIT CRITICIZES U.S. SENATE OVER JERUSALEM

AMMAN, Jordan -- A senior PLO official has attacked a U.S. Senate resolution acknowledging Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

"This resolution not only contradicts Arab and international positions, but flagrantly violates international legitimacy and U.N. resolutions," PLO executive committee member Yasser Abed Rabbo said on arrival in Amman Saturday....

Kuwait also criticized the Senate move.

"The Kuwaiti cabinet condemns the U.S. Congress' raising of the issue at this time, representing a crushing blow to existing peace efforts," a weekly cabinet statement said. (Reuter)

TWELVE ISRAELIS ACCUSED OF GIVING FRAUDULENT U.S. VISAS

JERUSALEM -- Twelve Israelis employed by the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv were indicted Sunday on charges of giving out hundreds of fraudulent U.S. visas, the Israeli news agency Itim reported.

It quoted the indictments as saying that the 12 charged up to $100,000 to provide visas for Israelis who had been refused legal entry into the U.S. (Reuter)

JAPAN SUGGESTS AMERICANS SPEND LESS, PAY MORE TAXES, INCREASE SAVINGS

TOKYO -- Japan, in a letter to U.S. trade negotiators, said the U.S. should limit credit card ownership, raise the gasoline tax, impose a federal sales tax and scrap the income tax deduction on home mortgages, the Yomiuri Shimbun, Japan's largest daily newspaper, reported Monday.

The letter, written by the Japanese government, listed 80 steps the U.S. could take to improve its economy, cut spending, increase savings and help reduce the trade deficit, according to the newspaper, which obtained a copy of the letter.

Japanese officials refused to confirm details of the letter but said it was part of the ongoing U.S.-Japanese trade talks....

"In the process of negotiation, both parties have proposed various ideas for structural improvements, but in concrete terms, we are not going to make any comment," said a Foreign Ministry official. (David Butts, UPI)

U.S. CHIP MAKERS CALL FOR ACTION AGAINST JAPANESE

The Bush Administration is facing new demands from domestic microchip producers that it crack down on Japan for alleged violations of the semiconductor trade accord signed by the two countries in 1986.

U.S. chip makers have asked the White House either to stiffen the trade sanctions that the U.S. imposed against Japan in 1987 -- and later eased -- or to launch new unfair trade practices proceedings against Japan as early as next month.

The U.S. industry's trade group, the Semiconductor Industry Assn., contends that Japan has failed to live up to a pledge in the 1986 accord that it guarantee U.S. manufacturers 20 percent of the Japanese chip market by 1991....

The Electronics Industry Assn. of Japan is expected to file a formal protest Monday asking U.S. Trade Rep. Hills to deny the U.S. industry's petition, contending that Japan is complying with the 1986 accord, has increased its purchases of foreign-made chips and is not blocking imports.

CHINA BLOCKS TAIWAN'S REQUEST TO JOIN GATT

Heavy pressure from China has succeeded in sidetracking, at least temporarily, Taiwan's application to join the key organization that administers the world's trading system, U.S. officials said Sunday....

At the same time, the Bush Administration has halted an internal political review that might have led to official U.S. endorsement of Taiwan's application, even though U.S. trade officials already have endorsed the application on strict economic grounds.

U.S. officials say that although the issue could be revived, senior Administration policy makers believe that U.S. relations with Beijing have become so sour that serious consequences might result from even a relatively benign step such as endorsing GATT membership in Taiwan.

MANY CHINESE YOUTH FEARFUL OF COUNTRY'S FUTURE

BEIJING -- As the first anniversary of the start of a student-led democracy movement approaches next month, the Communist government's drive to assert control over the country has silenced many young people and replaced their activism with suppressed anger, fear and despair over China's future.

The leadership seems to sense, however, that this could quickly change and appears to be taking new steps to try to prevent even the smallest anti-government incident from occurring, including increasing the public presence of soldiers in Beijing....

...The Communist Party here...has imposed a semblance of order on the universities that led last spring's massive demonstrations for democracy.....

The government has also reasserted near absolute control over the media by firing or retiring a number of top editors and closing or merging hundreds of publications. And officials have targeted and punished an unknown number of people for their "anti-state activities" as a warning to others of what can happen to critics of the regime.

CALL IT LUCK, SKILL OR BOTH: BAKER RIDES A WIN STREAK

...In little more than a year on the job, Secretary Baker has made himself the most powerful Secretary of State since Henry Kissinger -- and the closest the Bush Administration has to a foreign policy architect....

His stock in Congress is high -- sometimes breathtakingly so....

"He's a deal maker, a negotiator, a master broker," said Roger Stone.... "He's perfect for the job."

Even Baker's critics acknowledge his prowess as a deal maker. But what the Bush Administration needs most, they argue, is not a broker but a strategist.

"Lots of things have come up aces, but that's more luck than anything else," said Paul Nitze.... "I don't see any signs of subtlety or great planning."

CLINTON: LOOK FOR MESSAGE FIRST, WHITE HOUSE LATER

NEW ORLEANS -- Democratic moderates ended their annual conference with some forces indicating that the party should first focus on finding a unified voice, even if it means forgetting about beating President Bush in 1992....

Gov. Clinton, the new head of the Democratic Leadership Council, contended that the need for new direction was so acute that it should be the party's top goal -- even ahead of worrying about how to defeat the popular Bush in the 1992 presidential race for the White House.

"I really think we'd be better off to forget about '92 and work on what we stand for," Clinton said as the DLC wrapped up its final general business session Saturday. "People don't know what a Democrat is." ...

Clinton...conceded he didn't know how Bush could be beaten in 1992.

..."What's the worst thing that can happen to us if we do well and he wins in '92?" Clinton asked. "That's not the end of the world if things are going well." (Joseph Mianowany, UPI)

Democrats/Bush

INDIANAPOLIS -- After months of appearing paralyzed by President Bush's high poll ratings, the Democrats have shifted into a campaign mode and begun to sound like a party ready to challenge Bush in the 1992 election.

During weekend meetings in New Orleans and Indianapolis, the Democrats took on the popular Republican President on a range of domestic issues including Social Security, the environment, abortion and education.

...Regardless of their differences on specific issues, the Democrats clearly agreed with party Chairman Brown's assessment that the President has been getting a "free ride" and that it was time to challenge him....

"We're not satisfied with sound bites and press conferences about education when children in Eastern Europe are outscoring American kids on standardized science exams, and 60 million Americans can't read at an eighth-grade level," Brown told the Democratic Leadership Council. (AP)

Democrats Embrace Moynihan Plan, But Those In Congress Are Still Wary

NEW ORLEANS -- Although Democratic Party officials and lawmakers holding separate meetings 725 miles apart embraced Sen. Moynihan's call to cut Social Security payroll taxes, the plan is still opposed by key Democrats in Congress....

"Politically, the Moynihan plan is a stroke of genius," Party Chairman Brown told the New Orleans conference...

But Democratic lawmakers are worried about the impact a payroll tax cut would have on efforts to reduce the budget deficit. "They don't have to implement it," Rep. Hoyer said of the national committee. "What do you do next? How do you meet that [revenue] shortfall?"

"I don't want to get into a bidding war with the Republicans on cutting taxes," said Sen. Bentsen. (John Yang, Wall Street Journal, A10)

BUSH BOBS AND WEAVES ON ART AND BLASPHEMY

President Bush has drawn mixed reviews for his two-edged statement that he's offended by "blasphemy" and "filth...portrayed as art," but nevertheless opposes government censorship of subsidized art work.

Bush made his comments at a luncheon gathering of 62 news editors at the White House on Friday....

Fred Honsberger, evening talk show host on Radio KDKA in Pittsburgh, who attended the luncheon, gave the President high marks. "He took a reasonable stance," he said in an interview Sunday....

Jim Head, national editor of The Tampa Tribune, which had a representative at the luncheon, was critical of the President. "He's doing a balanced equivocation," he said. "As usual, he's straddling the fence firmly." (Joyce Price, Washington Times, A6)

U.S. ACCUSED OF 'CENSORSHIP BY INTIMIDATION' IN PORNOGRAPHY

First Amendment specialists have accused the Justice Department of deliberately abusing obscenity laws to drive mail-order companies out of business for distributing adult films and publications that were never determined to be obscene.

The experts say the department's National Obscenity Enforcement Unit has practiced censorship by intimidation, using laws meant to restrict the distribution of individual products in selective communities to eliminate national distribution networks for a wide range of films and publications.

..."The goal [of multiple indictments] is to use prosecutorial threats and actions to coerce distributors of these kinds of materials to self-censor a broader range of materials than the government could achieve by law," said Bruce Ennis, counsel for the American Library Association.

JAILS MORE CROWDED DESPITE NEW UNITS

Local jails grew more crowded between 1983 and 1988 as new construction failed to keep pace with a 54 percent increase in the number of prisoners, the Justice Department said Sunday.

The size of housing space for each inmate shrunk 6 percent from 54.3 square feet in 1983 to 50.9 square feet in 1988 despite a 43.7 percent increase in total jail space, according to a study by the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics.

EXECUTIVES OPPOSE NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE PLAN

Ninety-four percent of leading business executives oppose government health insurance as a solution to the rapidly rising cost of medical care, according to a poll released by an insurance trade group Monday.

The Health Insurance of America said nearly two-thirds of the executives surveyed said private-sector efforts, with the current level of government regulation, would be the best way to control health care costs.

The Roper Organization polled 100 randomly selected chief executive officers and other senior executives from Fortune 500 companies....

Only 15 percent favored government price controls and just 5 percent supported "a national or state health plan with government control of the total health care budget" -- with 94 percent saying it was a bad idea.

ABORTION/GUAM

AGANA, Guam -- A federal judge on Monday extended a restraining order against enforcement of the most restrictive U.S. abortion law.

BUDGET DROUGHT WITHERS INDIAN HOUSING

SELLS, Ariz. -- ...In its 1991 budget proposal, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has proposed eliminating all funding for new homes on Indian reservations. Sen. Conrad called the cut a "moral outrage," and alarmed members of Congress have responded by moving to restore and increase much of the funding to provide $224 million for 3,000 new units....

But HUD's attempt to kill the new-construction program...has sent tremors through the Native American housing community, which looks to the federal government as the principal provider of reservation homes....

87 DIE IN FIRE AT ILLEGAL N.Y. SOCIAL CLUB

NEW YORK -- Eighty-seven people were killed early Sunday morning when a fire ripped through an illegal Bronx social club that authorities ordered shut down 16 months ago, and police later arrested a 36-year-old Cuban who they said had gotten into a dispute with the club's coat-check woman....

The coat-check woman and the club's disc jockey, who was badly burned, were among the only known survivors.... Everyone else was trapped inside the narrow, windowless, two-story brick row house....

It was the nation's worst fire tragedy since a 1977 blaze that killed 164 people at a Kentucky nightclub, and New York City's worst since 145 died in a 1911 fire at the Triangle Shirtwaist Co. exactly 79 years ago Sunday. (Howard Kurtz, Washington Post, A1)

NEW YORK FIRE

CBS's Susan Spencer: In New York City, authorities have arrested a 36-year-old man and plan to charge him with arson and murder in a pre-dawn nightclub fire that claimed 87 lives -- the worst fire in the city in decades. The building went up in seconds. The people inside had no chance.

CBS's Harold Dow reports that by the time the fire was brought under control so many people had perished rescue officials had to lay bodies on the sidewalk. New York Mayor Dinkins was on the scene early and was shocked by what he saw -- 61 men dead, 26 women, more than half under the age of 25. The Happyland Social Club had no fire exits, no windows and only one way out. Authorities say the club was operating illegally and was located in a building that was in the process of being condemned.

(Dinkins: "I'd like to announce that there's been an arrest made and we have a suspect in custody.")

(Lee Brown, NY City Police Commissioner: "As anticipated as a result of the investigation he'll be charged with both arson and murder.")

Officials say there are some 700 other social clubs like Happyland in New York City that may be unsafe. A special task force has been assembled to close them down.

Spencer: Today's fire is the worst in New York City since 145 people died in the famous triangle shirtwaist fire, which in a remarkable coincidence also occurred on March 25, 1911. (CBS-Lead)

ABC's Forrest Sawyer reports that there are three known survivors, one of them in serious condition. Police say the apparent motive of the arson suspect is revenge after an argument with his wife who is, ironically, one of the survivors. (ABC-Lead, NBC-Lead)

LITHUANIA

Spencer: Overseas there were ominous developments this evening in Lithuania, where the Soviet Union stepped up its two-week campaign of intimidation....

CBS's Barry Petersen reports that heavily armed Soviet soldiers made their first move tonight, taking over Communist Party school buildings. But it was unclear if this was prelude to armed occupation or an attempt to settle an ownership question. Both the Majority Independent Communist Party, which has broken from Moscow, and the party faction still loyal to the Kremlin, claimed they should control party-owned property in Lithuania. Soldiers on the scene only say they were there to defend against hooligans. Late tonight, members of the parliament hurried to Lithuanian TV which interrupted its programming to put them on the air. Their message: stay calm. Do nothing to provoke the Soviets.

Petersen continues: There was a warning that railroad and other public facilities may be interrupted. Again came the message: Lithuanians, be calm. Also tonight, military officials went to an emergency session of parliament, called by Lithuania's leaders to discuss how to react if the Kremlin does such things as cut off the television station. Earlier today there was other evidence of Soviet muscle. More troops moved through the city. Yet the Soviets made no moves against the young Lithuanians who have deserted from the Soviet army, seeking the protection of Lithuania's government, even though Moscow's deadline for their release passed last night. All of this is contributing to a climate of fear tonight -- fear most of all that Mikhail Gorbachev is going back on his word not to use force.

Spencer: And at a news conference later this evening in Vilnius, the Lithuanian president did say that he has received assurances from local Soviet military officials that they would not take over any more buildings, at least tonight.

The White House is under increasing pressure to come out more forcefully in favor of Lithuanian independence. But today it stuck to its approach of restrained response.

CBS's Norman Robinson: The President said nothing about Lithuania today but continues to watch the delicate standoff with grave concern. Secretary Cheney reiterated the Administration's warning to the Soviets to back off.

(Cheney on CBS's Face the Nation: "The President's made it clear that this is a serious matter for us, that an overt use of Soviet military force to crush the Lithuanians would in fact have significant negative consequences in terms of U.S.-Soviet relations.")

Cheney, however, stopped short of saying what the White House would do if the Soviets used military action against Lithuania. The U.S., says a Soviet specialist, is in a difficult situation.

(Marshall Goldman, Harvard University: "We do believe in self-determination. At the same time we also believe that Gorbachev has been good for us, he's been good for the world -- and do we accept him with his peccadilloes? I don't know. Is the peccadillo shooting people in Lithuania when they're declaring their self-determination?")

Meanwhile, the Lithuanian community in the U.S. today demonstrated in the streets of Detroit and launched letter-writing campaigns in Omaha, urging the Administration and Congress to extend formal diplomatic recognition of Lithuania's newly declared independence from the Soviet Union. Some in Congress are receptive to the idea.

(Rep. Durbin: "Before the Kremlin can rebuild the wall of silence around Lithuania, let the people of that nation hear that the U.S. will not forget or abandon their dream of freedom.")

Here at the Lithuanian legation it's quiet now, but it would become a hotbed of activity if the Soviets opt to use force, as Lithuanian lawmakers have voted to run their government from this building as part of their contingency planning for the Soviet threat.

(CBS-2, ABC-3)

NBC's Peter Kent reports that Lithuania's deputy prime minister, Romanis Ozolas [phonetic], announced that his government has information that the Soviet soldiers may be ordered to seize parliament, the supreme court and other newly democratic institutions within the next 24 hours. What has already happened provoked angry protest from former communists who now support reform. People have suddenly been barred from their own offices by armed soldiers. Algimentis Cekuolis, Lithuanian reform communist, a deputy of the National Soviet People's Congress, arrived to inspect this occupied building and compared the Soviet troops with Nazis. A Soviet general, arriving in an occupied communist institute, claimed his paratroopers are here to ensure Gorbachev's decree that the buildings be protected. Tonight more senior officers grimly arriving at parliament to justify all that's happened, what may occur. Lithuania's president says the Soviet Union is trying to create a misleading image that the soldiers are protecting society and parliament from a threat that doesn't exist. That meeting between the military and the politicians has eased tensions somewhat. There's to be another meeting in the morning, but President Landsbergis says tonight the potential still exists for mindless violence.

NBC's Garrick Utley discusses the situation in Lithuania with Kent and NBC's Bob Abernethy:

Utley: As Peter Kent has reported Soviet forces occupied Communist Party buildings in Lithuania today. How significant is that move?

Abernethy: It's significant, but not nearly as significant as it would be if they had occupied government buildings. Make the distinction between the party buildings and the government buildings. If it were the government buildings it would be a clear violation of what Lithuania would see as a rule of law.

Utley: Lithuanians have formed a self-defense force. Will they use that force if the Soviets move against the parliament or other government buildings?

Kent: This new force is to be unarmed, and the message from the government tonight is don't resist -- that if the people don't resist any Soviet aggression will be just that much more obvious. (NBC-2)

BALTICS

Spencer reports that communists in the Baltic state of Estonia voted today to break with the Soviet Communist Party. While trying to avoid an immediate confrontation with the Kremlin, the Estonian communists also decided to delay a final decision for six months. In neighboring Latvia, activists hoped to win control of parliament in today's runoff election and declare independence as did Lithuania.

And adding to the Soviets' woes, 11 more deaths in a new outbreak of ethnic violence in Soviet Azerbaijan were reported today.

(CBS-3, ABC-4, NBC-3)

HUNGARY ELECTIONS

Spencer: A first-time experience today for millions of Hungarians. They voted in their country's first free national elections in 43 years. While many voters are not enthusiastic about the alternatives, most agree the communists must go.

CBS's Tom Fenton reports that the final results won't be known until after a second round of voting in two weeks, but victory is in the air for the major non-communist party. They don't expect to win an outright majority, but the two or three biggest parties hope to form a coalition. Preliminary estimates show a turnout of over 70 percent. There were candidates from 29 different parties. There are no great issues except that everyone wants to get rid of the communists.

(CBS-4, ABC-5)

NBC's Rick Davis reports that in Budapest former Vice President Mondale led a team of U.S. observers at the polls. Mondale found Hungary's election process a little confusing.

(Mondale: "We spent three days with their experts going over it. We've got an expert with us, and we just about understand it.")

The majority of the Hungarians we have spoken with certainly know there are big economic problems ahead. But this election was an act of faith -- faith in the free-enterprise system and faith in themselves to overcome the problems ahead.

(NBC-7)

ROMANIA

Uteley: In Romania today, church services and a wreath-laying ceremony marked the 100-day anniversary of the start of the Romanian revolution. Last December Romanian secret police massacred hundreds of anti-government protesters.... It was the event that sparked the revolution and the demise of communism there. Today its citizens marked the significance of that event and that day. (NBC-6)

FOREIGN AID

ABC's Cokie Roberts: President Bush's request for aid to Nicaragua and Panama ran into some trouble in the Senate last week.

(Sen. Leahy: "What we have here on the one hand is $1.7 billion over two years for six million people in two impoverished countries in Central America. On the other hand you want $600 million over two years for 120 million people in six Eastern European nations with enormous economic potential for American trade and investment.")

Democrats charge the Administration is putting its foreign aid package together in a piecemeal fashion.

(Leahy: "We do not have a cohesive foreign policy in this country saying what we want our influence to be worldwide.")

Since World War II containment of communism has been the goal of U.S. foreign policy. Now with communist countries fast joining the endangered species list, many in Congress insist the emphasis should move to strengthening struggling democracies with cash. But where is the cash for the always unpopular foreign aid program going to come from?

Roberts continues:

(Secretary Baker: "We would be happy to talk to you about the best way in which we could address the dynamic change that's taking place in Eastern Europe, in Panama and in Nicaragua and other areas, within the context of the limited pie that is available.")

The bulk of the current foreign aid pie is divided between five countries: Israel, Egypt, the Philippines, Turkey and Pakistan -- countries strategically placed to stave off Soviet incursions. Now their importance is diminished, but any attempt to take money away from those countries will meet with stiff opposition.... It's not just Israel that has strong supporters in Congress -- Polish, Armenian, Greek and African Americans will be working hard for the countries they care about. But is that the way to dole out foreign aid, according to what lobbying group yells the loudest?

(Rep. Solarz: "You can't separate domestic politics from the allocation of our limited resources.")

(Rep. Mickey Edwards: "There is only one country we care about: that's the United States, because we're using the taxpayer dollars of American citizens.")

With the world turned upside down, pressure to change the way the U.S. spends taxpayer dollars abroad is likely to grow. But in making those changes, Congress will continue to put a high priority on the overseas friends and relatives of American voters. (ABC-6)

PILOT DRINKING

Sawyer: When Northwest Airlines fired three of its pilots in Minneapolis for drinking before flying nine days ago, a local paper checked to see if other commercial pilots had drinking problems. The Minneapolis Star-Tribune found at least 41 pilots of passenger aircraft, including 28 Northwest pilots, lost their Minnesota driving licenses because of alcohol abuse. A 1987 government study said 75 percent of all U.S. pilots failed to report alcohol-related driving offenses to the FAA as required by law. (ABC-2)

RAY GOULDING

Spencer reports that a radio legend died this weekend. Ray Goulding, the Ray of the Bob and Ray comedy team. Goulding died of kidney failure at his Long Island home. He was 68. (CBS-6, NBC-5)

ABC -- THIS WEEK WITH DAVID BRINKLEY

Moderator: David Brinkley. Panel: Sam Donaldson and Cokie Roberts. Guests: William Hyland, editor of Foreign Affairs, and Roman Szporluk, University of Michigan professor, followed by Vitaly Kobyshev, senior journalist for Izvestia, and Algimantas Cekuolis, Lithuanian journalist and aide to President Landsbergis. Subject: Lithuania.

Brinkley: Is there a way out [of the situation in Lithuania] that might be satisfying to both sides?

Hyland: I think there's a way out. I'm not sure it'll be satisfying in the end to Gorbachev because I think he has no alternative but to let Lithuania go over some period of time in some face-saving way which opens up the prospects...[of] endless negotiations, turmoil, upheaval, crisis with other parts of the Soviet Union. But I don't think Gorbachev wants to go into a long-term occupation of the Baltics and perhaps part of Georgia and the Ukraine and so forth. So in the parliament I suspect they'll be offered a way out, though it may not satisfy the Lithuanians who want out immediately.

Szporluk: I believe that there is a chance that a compromise can be worked out, but it would require some innovative constitutional arrangements. And I think an analysis addresses itself with how the British empire was transformed into a British commonwealth. If they invent some concept of a broader commonwealth of nations in which different nations make special arrangements with Moscow about their societies' rights and obligations, perhaps a face-saving device can be found and in fact it can solve some very important problems, because Lithuania can make a major contribution to the Soviet Union's welfare.

Roberts: Do you think that the U.S. government is handling this in the right way? There's been a lot of criticism of President Bush, that he's been too cautious in his reaction to everything going on in Eastern Europe. Is this appropriate caution?

Hyland: I think very much so. I don't think he's been too cautious. These are very dangerous events, especially in Lithuania. And if he makes it an issue between the U.S. and the Soviet Union he's opening up, I think, years perhaps of debate and contention and crisis over each event like Lithuania, Estonia, Latvia and so forth. So I think we have to take a principle stand that we want it solved peacefully and not go beyond that and start threatening and saying we might intervene here or there....

Donaldson: [Has] Gorbachev, by showing this kind of bluff, cost himself with these other republics?

Hyland: No, because I think he's also shown this week that he can go pretty far in intimidation and putting the tanks in the streets, and in Azerbaijan he was prepared to go further. And I would just quickly add that this crisis is not over. There could be bloodshed and violence yet.

Szporluk: ...The most important ethnic problem in the Soviet Union is the Russian problem, and Gorbachev is now trying to build for himself a constituency in the Russian republic itself where he is being threatened by Yeltsin.... It is a very powerful challenge and Gorbachev is looking for new allies, and being brutal towards Lithuania will win him sympathies of Russian nationalists, imperialists, but will lose him all of his liberal friends.

Guest: Vitaly Kobysh.

Brinkley: Do you see a peaceful way out of this disagreement between the Soviet Union and Lithuania? What's a good way to settle it?

Kobysh: I think there is one way from this rather difficult situation -- the peaceful one. Every way is possible and it's difficult to predict which one would be more real, but only one thing is impossible -- the direct Soviet military intervention, like in Czechoslovakia or Hungary....

Roberts: What would happen if you used tanks?

Kobysh: It will be the end of perestroika. First of all the Soviet people, the Russians themselves, will be completely disappointed. I don't talk about Lithuanians and other republic people now. And of course the people of the whole world will be disappointed. Gorbachev understands it.

Guest: Algimantis Cekuolis.

Brinkley: ...Moscow keeps saying that [independence] would not be as easy as you seem to think, that you would have a hard time doing without subsidies from the Soviet Union. What do you say to that?

Cekuolis: If you speak about economics, Finland has no oil, Ireland, the same size as we are and the same population has no oil.... We have 400 million tons of oil, and of good quality, and not on the shelf but in the continent.... Russia has to export its oil through our port, we have a huge refinery. So we'll take our share....

Donaldson: Moscow has called for you to turn in army deserters. Are you going to turn them in?

Cekuolis: No. They are our kids, and they are serving in a foreign army illegally. You know the agreement of Geneva of 1949, that an occupying country has no right to draft people of an occupied country into their army....

Donaldson: Are you completely confident that in fact the Soviets will not crack down using force?

Cekuolis: I'm not confident. That's the usual response of Russia when it runs out of arguments -- to slam the fist. We are prepared morally, but we have learned from Martin Luther King, from Gandhi,...we have learned from non-violent resistance.

Donaldson: You say you have shotguns. If the Soviets use tanks you'd better be prepared to die.

Cekuolis: No. We have other means. [satellite connection was cut off.]

Brinkley: ...I'm very sorry.... We may try to get him back another day. We can't do it today.

Donaldson: I hope so, because clearly these people are very patriotic and very sincere, and if they are prepared to die, and he clearly says they are, you want to hear that, because that kind of moral force is very important.

Discussion segment: Tom Wicker joins panel.

On the disagreement between CIA Director Webster and Secretary Cheney of the magnitude of change in the Soviet bloc:

Roberts: The Secretary of Defense said this week that it wasn't really a disagreement between them, that they were just coming from different institutional bases.... The Defense Department should be the most cautious place in town, and Cheney just wants to be that cautious. But then he says, "and therefore we have to keep troops everywhere, we have to keep all of the weapons systems going, including SDI, and be very cautious indeed." This is giving people on the Hill fits, because they say, well, that's no plan at all. We can see that the world is changing, and if the Secretary of Defense won't give us any guidance we're just going to take it ourselves.

Wicker: What we have seen on this program this morning, it seems to me if it supports either side in this argument, and it is an argument, I think, supports Webster, because surely what is happening in Lithuania, however it comes out, if the Soviet Union uses force or some means to forcibly keep Lithuania, or if it lets it go -- and the Soviet Union can't be strengthened in terms of a military threat to the U.S., and particularly if this same Lithuanian situation replicates itself in the other republics. He can't be, and so therefore it tends to support Webster. But Secretary Baker is known to sympathize with Webster's point of view.... So you would think that the President, if he would, could simply silence Cheney. He doesn't do it, which leads me to think that George Bush is so often in this Administration -- has still got a very wary eye on his right wing.... Whatever his innate policy is he still wants to say to those hard-line anti-communist, anti-Soviet right-wingers, we're still tough, we're still watching them -- ... The criticism it seems to me that's warranted of George Bush in this situation is not that he's been too prudent or too cautious about military spending in this country. It's that he has not been very forthcoming in a symbolic sense in welcoming what is happening.

On shifting foreign aid from some allies to Eastern Europe:

Donaldson: ...I think everyone agrees that we need to help Eastern Europe.... Where do you get the money? Well, there's the old theory you rob Peter to pay Paul. So you take away from Israel and Egypt and all of that. I think the second theory is best. Let's come up with the money by raising it. It's called taxes, folks.

Roberts: The problem with that is that foreign aid is about the most unpopular program that this government ever had....

Wicker: I think the problem with foreign aid is not...just that we spend too little on it,...but that we really don't know very much about what we're doing when we put all this money out. And the justification, it seems to me, for aid to some degree for Panama and Nicaragua, is that to a considerable degree we are directly responsible for their problems because of our Central American policy. That doesn't mean that simply pouring in $500 million or $800 million, whatever the sum might be, is going to fix it up. Because we have proved time and time again since World War II that we don't know how to administer foreign aid, that we administer it to countries that waste it or steal it, and that the money alone is not the mark of success.

On abortion:

Donaldson: What Idaho has done is fashion a bill that is aimed at Justice O'Connor.... And this bill is designed to satisfy her concerns and make her confront it directly. I think it's a silly law the way they've constructed it....

Roberts: One of the things this law does that is quite interesting is that it tries to steer something of a middle course, because the fact is that even though most Americans believe abortion should be legal they don't believe that it should be easy, and they don't believe that you should use abortions as birth control or to choose the sex of your children or a variety of other things, and they do believe that young people should have to have the consent of their parents to have an abortion....

Donaldson: My hunch is that Sandra Day O'Connor in the end will fool them and will uphold Roe v. Wade.

CBS -- FACE THE NATION

Moderator: Lesley Stahl. Guests: Secretary Cheney, followed by Marshall Goldman, Harvard University.

Stahl: ...If Gorbachev does order arrests of these defecting army soldiers, is that the kind of action that would change the equation in our relationship, hurt our relationship, with the Soviet Union?

Cheney: Well, I think it's very important in the current circumstances, which obviously are very delicate, that we refrain from speculating about what kind of action might generate a reaction from the U.S. The President's made it clear that this is a serious matter for us, that an overt use of Soviet military force to crush the Lithuanians would, in fact, have significant negative consequences in terms of U.S.-Soviet relations, in terms of how we perceive these developments.... Obviously, at this point we will watch the situation carefully and continue to hope that it can be resolved peaceably.

Stahl: Let me tell you what a White House official told me.... And that is that an action doesn't necessarily produce a counterreaction from us, but that when the Soviet Union begins to be threatening, it just cools things off. And all the things that they're moving toward just suddenly somehow get put on hold. Are we into that yet?

Cheney: I think what's happened over the last couple of years in the West, even for people who like myself are viewed as skeptics and hardliners about Soviet reform, etc., is that we've been tremendously impressed with Gorbachev's reform efforts, with the progress they've made,...at the beginnings of elections being held. We've seen elections now in Eastern Europe, the Soviets withdrawing from Eastern Europe. All of those are very, very positive developments that enhance prospects for arms control agreements and improved relationships. And if there were now to be a reversal of that in terms of Soviet policy with respect to Lithuania, obviously it would undermine a lot of the good work that's been done in recent years.

Stahl: ...The Soviets have been reluctant to set a date for the summit. What about the idea that they know that they might have to take some action in Lithuania?... Would Bush cancel the summit?

Cheney: We wouldn't speculate on that.

Stahl: Could Bush have a summit if [Gorbachev] moves in?

Cheney: I think the point to be made, and the message that's been conveyed to the Soviets, is that this is a serious matter. And that if in fact they were to resort to force instead of trying to resolve the matter by peaceful means, that it would in fact have a significant negative impact on U.S.-Soviet relations. Exactly how that would evolve and develop, I think it's not helpful to speculate about.

Stahl: What about what Barry Petersen said, that for years, all through the Reagan Administration, we beamed Radio Free Europe broadcasts into Lithuania and Estonia and Latvia, and told them they were captive nations, and lured them to do just what they've done. And now they've done it. And we don't recognize them. -more-

Cheney: I would disagree with the way Mr. Petersen characterized the situation. We clearly have actively encouraged the Soviet Union to improve their human rights record. We've encouraged the reforms, we've encouraged the holding of free elections, democratization, etc. To say that we have been out actively soliciting, you know, peel away Lithuania, I think is a misstatement of the situation. The U.S. has never recognized the Soviet rule in Lithuania, Latvia, or Estonia, because of -- they acquired their position by military force in 1940. But we have not been out actively soliciting revolution, if you will. On the other hand, we've made it clear that we share the aspirations of the Lithuanian people for self-determination.

Stahl: ...Do you think what's happening now reinforces your position in the Administration that the Soviet threat, while it may be diminished now, could be reversed?

Cheney: I would hope that the optimist will ultimately be proven right, that is to say, that everything will move smoothly in the Soviet Union to a less threatening, more democratic power, that we'll reach arms control agreements, etc. My job as defense secretary is to worry about the what-ifs, about the contingencies. I don't relish the prospect that there would be difficulties over Lithuania. I would hope they can resolve it peaceably....

Stahl: Does what's happening in Lithuania imply to you that [Gorbachev] could become threatening to Eastern Europe, which he hasn't been so far? Does it trip over from here?

Cheney: Not necessarily. We've been very pleased with the decisions, for example, to take troops out of Hungary and Czechoslovakia. We've got negotiations under way for conventional forces, so hopefully that will continue. We'd like to see the Lithuanians, though, granted the same prerogative that the East Germans were: self-determination.

Stahl: I ask you this because you know that Sen. Nunn...has come after you quite strongly for what he says is basing your budget on an old threat, and not taking into account all these changes -- not taking into account most specifically that the Warsaw Pact has come unraveled....

Cheney: ...The budget that we set up for 1991 does in fact show that we're responding to the changes in the Warsaw Pact. We're closing down the M-1 tank production line, closing down the Apache helicopter production line, taking two divisions out of the army, getting ready to withdraw troops from Europe once there is a conventional force agreement. So I really think while there's a lot of work to be done, and we're continuing to evolve and develop our budget as events unfold, I still think it's important to keep in mind that there's been a lot that's already been done.... What we can't do, and what we shouldn't do, is take down our forces in Europe until there's been an agreement with the Soviets. As yet there's been no agreement....

Stahl: Apparently, several Administration officials are saying that the President would accept a $10-billion reduction in the defense budget. You're operating on the budget you sent up, which was, I think, $3 billion. There's a sense all over the place that you're sort of out of sync with the rest of the Administration. If the $10-billion figure is the figure, would we still be safe?

Cheney: Well, we right now are in the midst of defending the President's budget. That's the budget he decided on, it's the one that's been submitted to Congress. Obviously, nobody wants to be in a position of saying it's this or nothing.... I think it's a good budget. If we have to cut more, we will cut more. But obviously we'd rather not. We'd rather take the savings long term, because we've cut about as much as you can in '91.

Stahl: ...Are you now in agreement with the CIA director?

Cheney: No.... Bill [Webster] and I have different responsibilities. He's got to make his own assessment of what's going to happen. But my job...is to be prepared for contingencies. If everybody else in town wants to believe in the rosy scenario and be euphoric about it, you know, that's their business. But I have to be concerned about the possibility that at some point down the road the Soviet Union, with a military capability that's very significant, will be governed by somebody who's not as benign as Gorbachev has been. It's perfectly reasonable for there to be different points of view within the Administration. And there are on this point.

Guest: Marshall Goldman.

Stahl: Will [Gorbachev] jeopardize everything with the West by [using force in Lithuania]?

Goldman: It's really a terrible problem for him. He recognizes that indeed this is going to happen, if he were to do that, that the summit might be in jeopardy, that his image as really a leader, as a statesman, as really the man of the decade, would certainly be threatened. But at the same time he has to recognize that inside his own country he has problems. And he has to address those problems. He can't let these republics slip out from underneath the USSR....

Stahl: If the Baltics leave, what does that do to the Soviet economy? Are they that important?

Goldman: No, they're not that important in the whole scale of things. Remember, the whole population of Lithuania is only three and a half million -- it's like Washington, D.C. Some people say that might work, be good for the country. But I mean, in that kind of environment it isn't that important. But still it is an integrated society, and, if you lose one part of it, the danger is that there will be shortages elsewhere.

Stahl: Should we be more vocally supportive of this independence movement, or are we just right?

Goldman: It's a very difficult thing. After all,...we've supported this. Forget what we said in the past; we do believe in self-determination. At the same time, we also believe that Gorbachev has been good for us; he's been good for the world. And do we accept him with his peccadilloes? I don't know. Is a peccadillo shooting people in Lithuania when they're declaring their self-determination? We blinked when it went on in Azerbaijan. But that was out of the range of television cameras; you didn't have reporters there, as you do now. And that's going to cause a more difficult problem for him.

THE McLAUGHLIN GROUP

Moderator: John McLaughlin. Panel: Pat Buchanan, Fred Barnes, Jack Germond and Chris Matthews.

On whether President Bush is being timid or level-headed on Lithuania:

Buchanan: I don't think he's gone far enough. What Gorbachev is doing is reminiscent of what's happened in Eastern Europe for years with the Russians or the Germans. This is intimidation, it's a form of violence, they've put a gun to the head of this little country and said make a move and you're finished. What we've got now is Gorbachev's red line. We've all been asking where will he stop. He's not going to let any of the Baltic states go, because of the strategic navy, he can't let them go, and the second reason is if the first one goes others are going to follow. I think the President ought to really come out and say look, we have supported the independence of Lithuania for years, it is a captive nation, we want to see it free and independent and there are going to be serious repercussions.

Barnes: [The signal we're sending to Gorbachev] is way too soft, and the best way to show that there are going to be repercussions is to simply say we recognize the government of Lithuania. The Lithuanians are calling for that, and the President could also get other countries to do that.... We ought to be worrying about the Lithuanians, not Gorbachev.

Germond: ...I think Bush is doing all he can do. What we have in Lithuania right now...is a war of nerves, and the last thing we need is Bush making the situation more complicated. Beyond that, we talk about serious repercussions, what do we mean? We are not going to do anything militarily. Serious repercussions is just so much talk.

Matthews: ...I think it's going to turn out fine. I think the President's handling it very well.

Buchanan: ...If [Gorbachev] brings his troops in and takes that elective government and overthrows it, the summit is off, and I'll tell you what else is off -- all these export-import credits are going to be off, the SALT agreement's going to be put on hold. An awful lot of things are going to be put on hold.

Barnes: ...What Gorbachev wants more than anything else is high technology from the U.S. The Bush Administration is about to relax the restrictions on that. If Gorbey goes in there with force and uses it in Lithuania that will be stopped.

McLaughlin: ...Let's assume that the killings are held under 10.... Do you think Gorbey could get away with it?

Buchanan: I think Gorbey has now walked out and I think he's got to use force or he is finished. He has made his bed. Barnes: One dead Lithuanian, he can't get away with it with the U.S. Germond: Yeah, he could get away with it. Pragmatism rules. Matthews: He will not resort to violence until he's tried the economic track.... McLaughlin: ...I think that he can get away with it.

On the Joseph Hazelwood court decision:

Barnes: ...It gives you some indication that a jury may not buy this argument from environmental groups that the Bush Administration has bought that [the Exxon Valdez spill] is a crime rather than an accident. It was an accident.

On Poland's status in the East bloc within five years:

Buchanan: I think Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary will all be vying for number one, if Poland stays the course. Barnes: I think Poland's right at the top. Germond: ...Czechoslovakia will be first. Matthews: Hungary first, Czechoslovakia then Poland. McLaughlin: I think it's going to be Poland all the way.

On the Idaho abortion decision:

Barnes: ...If it's upheld in the Supreme Court and Roe v. Wade is overturned it does leave it to all 50 states, and I would say right now that maybe eight or 10 of them would actually ban abortion....

On Broccoli:

Buchanan: The larger issue I think is the tremendous impact any president can have on a consumer market. [laughter] Although I think this could actually help broccoli. Remember when Jack Kennedy wore a hat once? Everybody in the country suddenly was buying hats.

Germond: I have finally found something on which I can support George Bush 100 percent. I hate broccoli, I won't eat broccoli either. They've been cramming broccoli down our throats in this country for the last 10 years and they're done.

Barnes: Now we know why Bush wanted to be president: so he wouldn't have to eat broccoli anymore.

McLaughlin: Do you think this is a long-term plot to capture the pre-pubescent set for the GOP? His popularity now as President has gone up with 12- and 13-year-olds and younger 50 percent, right?... What's the major political plus for George Bush?

Buchanan: It humanized him.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Moderator: Gordon Peterson. Panel: Charles Krauthammer, Hugh Sidey, Elizabeth Drew and Carl Rowan.

On the Idaho decision and the Maryland state senate referendum on abortion:

Krauthammer: It's progress. Seventeen years ago the Supreme Court improperly and imprudently removed abortion from the political arena. The Webster decision returned it and that's where it ought to be.

Sidey: I think I see the country developing a huge contradiction. We have a lot of those now. In the whole, they are pro-choice. But individual political entities show cowardice and they're against that.

Drew: I think both the Idaho and Maryland actions have served to re-light political fires that a number of politicians have been trying to douse, especially the Republicans, and that may be all that they accomplish.

Rowan: There is some political cowardice but you've got a lot of personal emotion, religious dogma, and I'll tell you if you think this is going away wait 'til you get a 5 to 4 vote in the Supreme Court outlawing Roe v. Wade.

On Lithuania:

Drew: It is a very tense and difficult situation. I think President Bush, who has come under some criticism, has handled it quite right. If our major foreign policy goal is the preservation of Gorbachev for as long as feasible, he is under terrific pressures -- there are even some lines in the constitution that was just adopted -- charging him with preserving the Soviet Union and negating an independence move by Lithuania. So he can't afford to let it go easily or quickly, neither can he afford to really use force....

Krauthammer: It looks as if Gorbachev's trying to provoke an incident. He has said he's not going to use force, but he's clearly acting as if he wants an incident to occur, and there are reports they're trying to stir up the Russian population of Lithuania to produce an incident which would be an excuse for Gorbachev to use power. It looks as if Gorbachev...is now declaring his bottom line: I want Lithuania. And our response ought to be a lot stronger than it is. It doesn't have to be public, but it ought to be private. We ought to say to Gorbachev if you crack down on Lithuania, no summit.

Rowan: ...When we have used military force in Panama, which is not even a part of the U.S., you are in no position to preach to Gorbachev about how much force he can use in Lithuania....

Sidey: I do believe Gorbachev and I think the White House, as some indication of that, is making every effort to use psychological warfare to try to prevent the use of force. Because as we've said, if they go in there and there is blood there goes the missile treaty, there goes the conventional forces treaty, there goes the trade treaty, there goes Gorbachev.... I think even if there were some strong-arm techniques we probably ought to be tolerant of that for a while.

On German unification:

Krauthammer: What the Poles have gotten is a promise that in the negotiations between the four powers and Germany on unification, Poland will be part of the talks when they're having discussions on the borders, and that I think is an important concession and a very important one that we've got.

On Congress:

Drew: ...[The Rostenkowski bill] in itself is not going anywhere, but I think his having proposed it and got a lot of attention may in the end spur everyone to do more about the deficit.

Rowan: On child care I think the outlook is a lot better than it has been for some time.... I think there is now a chance that we'll soon get a child care bill.

Sidey: I think that's one of the most frightening issue before us, because I think they can pass that and set up one more institution that would strike at family. It would encourage people that shouldn't have children or don't want to take care of children. I think that thing has not been thought through, child care. And we don't know what we're getting into.

Krauthammer: What we ought to do is what's done in a lot of European countries is to give a grant to the parents to use the money as a parent wishes and not to make a decision by the government that pushes people into child care. If you have a grant then you can offset loss of income of staying home. And it gives a parent a choice of staying home or going out. And that's the way that I think we ought to do it.

CONGRESSIONAL MONITOR

Monday, March 26, 1990

Volume 26, Number 43

Last Week in Congress

The Senate spent yet another week debating clean air legislation (S 1630).

The measure under consideration is a compromise proposal that the bill's sponsors agreed to with White House officials during 23 days of closed-door negotiations. Last week Senate leaders turned back two key amendments that they said would wreck the compromise with the administration.

One of the amendments defeated would have required the use of alternative fuels in areas of the country that have the worst smog problems and would have imposed tougher emissions standards on cars and trucks.

Also defeated was a smog-control amendment that would have allowed the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to enforce anti-pollution standards on smaller plants and businesses than are currently being regulated.

House Floor Action

Rural Development: The House passed, 360-45, legislation (HR 3581) that would beef up federal economic development aid to rural areas. The measure would authorize an additional $540 million for rural development and would restructure the way rural aid funds are delivered. It would also create an Agriculture Department agency called the Rural Development Administration, which would coordinate federal rural assistance.

The bill would require that rural communities develop plans to promote economic development in their areas.

Flag-Burning Suit: Members also passed, 309-101, a resolution (H Res 362) ordering withdrawal of a House legal brief submitted to the Supreme Court in defense of an anti-flag-burning statute passed by Congress last year. The floor debate was highly partisan, as Republicans protested they had not been consulted about the brief.

Committee Funding: A resolution (H Res 346) to provide $56.7 million in 1990 for investigative costs incurred by 25 committees and the House Information Systems department won approval, 349-71. The total is 4.8 percent more than was provided for last year.

Historic Trail: The House earlier in the week passed, 400-0, HR 3834, which would order a study to determine whether the 1965 civil rights march route from Selma to Montgomery, Ala., should be designated a national historic trail.

Committee Action

Money Laundering: The House Banking Committee approved HR 3848, which would give the government expanded power to crack down on money laundering. The measure would allow regulators to revoke the charter or terminate the deposit insurance of any institution caught laundering money.

Clean Air: The House Energy panel approved, 38-2, an amendment to clean air legislation (HR 3030) that would require small plants and businesses in heavily polluted cities to restrict smog-causing emissions. The proposal would also direct EPA to impose federal anti-pollution plans on states that do not come up with appropriate plans of their own. Similar provisions were rejected by the Senate last week.

Customs, Trade: The House Ways and Means Committee approved, by voice vote, legislation (HR 4328) to authorize fiscal 1991 and 1992 funding for the U.S. Customs Service, the U.S. International Trade Commission and the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative. All received annual increases of 2 percent to 7 percent.

NIST: The House Science Committee approved, 49-0, legislation (HR 4329) that would authorize $350 million over two years for the National Institute for Standards and Technology (NIST). The measure would expand programs to im-

This Week

Senate debate on the clean air bill (S 1630) will resume today, with late-night sessions expected and weekend meetings possible as lawmakers attempt to complete action on the comprehensive measure. No roll-call votes are scheduled for today.

As of last Friday, the Senate had scheduled a debate for today on an amendment by Don Nickles, R-Okla., and Howell Heflin, D-Ala., which a Heflin aide said would make the clean air bill's permitting and enforcement processes "more equitable" for the companies affected.

But the aide said Friday that Heflin and his staff were trying to negotiate with Max Baucus, D-Mont., and John H. Chafee, R-R.I., who are the floor managers for the bill.

The Senate's first roll-call vote of the week is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday morning on the Heflin-Nickles amendment.

A pending amendment by Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to provide severance pay to coal miners who lose their jobs as a result of acid rain provisions in the bill still threatens to complicate progress on the measure. Its adoption could mean a veto by President Bush, who opposes the provision as too costly.

Meanwhile, the House Energy Committee will continue this week to mark up its version of the clean air bill, HR 3030. On Tuesday members will continue consideration of the smog control portion of the bill. Later in the week the panel will turn to alternative fuels provisions and possibly controls on toxic air pollutants.

House Floor

House leaders hope to bring up a comprehensive child care bill (HR 3) on Wednesday or Thursday. The measure, prove commercial applications for new technologies. President Bush has requested only $10 million for the NIST.

Farm Bill: The House Agriculture Subcommittee on Nutrition approved, by voice vote, its portion of the omnibus 1990 farm bill (HR 3950) by endorsing domestic hunger relief and nutrition sections of the measure. The legislation would increase spending limits for several low-income food aid and nutrition programs operated by the Department of Agriculture, such as food stamps and the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP).

The measure would authorize about $600 million in additional spending on food stamps, TEFAP and smaller nutrition programs in fiscal 1991, $800 million in fiscal 1992 and $900 million in fiscal 1993.

Assault Weapons: The House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime approved, 5-3, a measure (HR 4225) to restrict the possession and sale of assault-type weapons. Under the measure, exports of assault-type weapons would be limited and judges would be required to impose a 10-year prison sentence on anyone convicted of carrying such a weapon during a violent or drug-related crime.

Maritime Spending: The House Merchant Marine panel's Merchant Marine Subcommittee approved two bills (HR 4205, HR 4009) authorizing funds in fiscal 1991 for the Maritime Administration and Federal Maritime Commission (FMC). The Maritime Administration would receive $557 million. FMC funding would be $15.9 million. The administration made similar requests in its 1991 budget.

Campaign 1990

New York: Republican Susan Molinari and Democrat Jose E. Serrano won special elections last week to fill vacant House seats in New York. Molinari won the 14th District seat vacated by her father, Guy V. Molinari, who resigned to become Staten Island Borough president. Serrano, a state representative, won the 18th District seat left vacant by Democrat Robert Garcia after he was convicted on federal extortion charges.

Illinois: In the Illinois primary, Democratic Rep. Gus Savage survived a strong re-election challenge, defeating Mel Reynolds 51 percent to 43 percent in the 2nd District race.

Democratic Rep. Sydney R. Yates won his party's nomination to a 21st term with a landslide victory over Chicago Alderman Edwin W. Eisendrath.

In the open 16th District, which GOP Rep. Lynn Martin is leaving to run against Democratic Sen. Paul Simon, Republicans nominated John W. Hallock Jr. He will face Democratic nominee John W. Cox Jr., who survived a four-way race. ■ which is high on the Democratic leadership's agenda for the year, could spark a partisan debate. In addition, the Bush administration opposes key portions of the measure.

On Tuesday, members will consider five bills under suspension of the rules, including HR 2209, to promote the consumption of and research into soybeans, and HR 3386, to encourage the safe transportation of food.

Also on Tuesday, members could take up a bill (HR 3847) to elevate the Environmental Protection Agency to Cabinet-level status.

THE SECRETARY COMPLIMENTED DE KLERK ON HIS FEBRUARY 2 SPEECH. IN WINDHOEK HE HAD HEARD FROM AFRICAN HEADS OF STATE THAT THEY HAD ALSO FOUND THE SPEECH "MOVING" AND "FROM THE HEART." HE TOLD THE STATE PRESIDENT THAT WHAT HE IS DOING IS COURAGEOUS, AND THE U.S. WANTS TO FIND A WAY TO ASSIST HIM AND ENCOURAGE HIM TO KEEP GOING.

7. DE KLERK RESPONDED BY ASKING WHY THE SOE IS SO SYMBOLIC AND IMPORTANT NOW THAT IT HAS BEEN CHANGED INTO STRICTLY AN INSTRUMENT FOR MAINTAINING LAW AND ORDER. NPT

8. THE STATE PRESIDENT SAID THAT HE HAD DISCUSSED THE ISSUE OF THE NPT WITH THE SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER DURING THEIR MEETING IN WINDHOEK. HE REITERATED THE SAG POSITION, I.E., THE SAG HAS NO PROBLEM WITH SIGNING THE NPT BUT "...WE WOULD LIKE SUCH A STEP, WE NEED SUCH A STEP TO BE PART OF A REGIONAL ACTION." THEY HAVE RAISED THE ISSUE WITH OTHER SOUTHERN AFRICAN STATES AND SO FAR HAVE RECEIVED POSITIVE REACTIONS FROM CHISSANO, WHO SAID HE WOULD SIGN, AND ALSO FROM NUJOMA, DOS SANTOS AND KAUNDA. THE STATE PRESIDENT ASKED THE SECRETARY IF HE COULD USE HIS GOOD OFFICES TO GET THE OTHERS TO SIGN THE NPT. THE SECRETARY RESPONDED THAT WE WOULD DO OUR BEST WITH THE OTHERS (ALTHOUGH WE CAN'T HELP WITH DOS SANTOS) BUT HOPED THE SAG WOULD SIGN EVEN IF THE OTHERS DIDN'T. THE SECRETARY SAID THE ISSUE HAD HIGH EMOTIONAL CONTENT, AND SOUTH AFRICA'S ADHERENCE TO THE NPT WOULD ENHANCE THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S PERCEPTION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

9. PRESIDENT DE KLERK BELIEVES THAT IF ON A NEUTRAL SUBJECT SOUTHERN AFRICA COULD MANIFEST ITSELF AS A REGION, IT COULD HAVE IMPORTANT IMPLICATIONS FOR THE FUTURE.

MOZAMBIQUE

10. THE NEXT ISSUE RAISED BY THE STATE PRESIDENT WAS MOZAMBIQUE. DE KLERK SAID THEY DID NOT HAVE AN INSIDE LINE TO DHLAKAMA. SOME PEOPLE, HE SAID, BELIEVE THE SAG HAS INFLUENCE OVER HIM. IT ISN'T TRUE; THE U.S., PORTUGAL AND OTHERS MUST FIND WAYS TO PUT PRESSURE ON HIM, DE KLERK SAID. SOUTH AFRICA CANNOT ACCEPT DHLAKAMA AS A RESPONSIBILITY. HE ADDED THAT THEY WOULD LIKE TO EXPLORE WAYS OF REACHING HIM. DE KLERK SAID HE SAW CHISSANO IN WINDHOEK AND FINDS HIM MUCH MORE REASONABLE THAN DOS SANTOS.

11. THE STATE PRESIDENT NOTED THAT THE PRIVATE SECTOR IN SOUTH AFRICA HAS A GREAT INTEREST IN MOZAMBIQUE AND THEY HAVE DISCUSSED WITH CHISSANO THAT A GOOD STARTING POINT FOR AN IMPROVEMENT IN THE SECURITY SITUATION WOULD BE A CORRIDOR BETWEEN MAPUTO AND THE SA BORDER WHICH WOULD CONTAIN A RAIL LINE, A POWER LINE, AND A ROAD. THE IDEA IS TO SECURE THIS CORRIDOR BY PRIVATE SECURITY

GUARDS AND NOT MILITARY TROOPS. FOREIGN MINISTER BOTHA OPINED THAT THE COST MIGHT BE PROHIBITIVE FOR CHISSANO, AND MAYBE THE U.S. COULD HELP HIM AFFORD IT. THE SECRETARY POINTED OUT THAT MOZAMBIQUE CURRENTLY RECEIVES DOL 100 MILLION A YEAR, OUR LARGEST AID PROGRAM IN AFRICA, AND IT CANNOT BE INCREASED. HOWEVER, IF THE SAG WOULD LIKE TO GIVE US INFORMATION, THERE IS ALWAYS THE POSSIBILITY OF SUBSTITUTING IT FOR ANOTHER PROGRAM, OR PERHAPS CHISSANO WOULD CHANGE HIS PRIORITIES. AS COHEN POINTED OUT THAT THE CHEAPEST WAY TO PROVIDE SECURITY IS TO END THE WAR. CHISSANO THINKS THAT THE WAR WILL SIMPLY GO AWAY; HOWEVER, RENAMO WILL NOT JUST DISAPPEAR, AND "WE SHOULD NOT LET CHISSANO OFF THE HOOK."

BUTHELEZI AND NEGOTIATIONS

12. THE STATE PRESIDENT THANKED THE SECRETARY FOR THE RECEPTION GIVEN TO CHIEF MINISTER BUTHELEZI. DE KLERK SAID THAT IT HELPED MOTIVATE BUTHELEZI TO PLAY A CONSTRUCTIVE ROLE IN THE NEGOTIATING PROCESS. HE NOTED THAT THE ANTIPATHY WHICH HAD PREVENTED COMMUNICATION BETWEEN THE SAG AND THE CHIEF MINISTER NO LONGER EXISTS. THEY DO NOT HAVE AN ALLIANCE, BUT THE CHIEF MINISTER IS PREPARED TO BECOME "CONSTRUCTIVELY ENGAGED" IN THE NEGOTIATING PROCESS. THE SECRETARY NOTED THAT THE SAG SEEMED SOMEWHAT PESSIMISTIC CONCERNING BUTHELEZI'S ABILITY TO RESOLVE THE NATAL VIOLENCE. THE STATE PRESIDENT RESPONDED THAT THE SOURCES OF THE VIOLENCE EXTEND BEYOND NATAL AND INCLUDE A CADRE OF YOUTH WHO HAVE BECOME VIOLENT.

CONSTITUTIONAL MATTERS

13. THE STATE PRESIDENT WANTED THE SECRETARY TO KNOW THAT THE SAG FEELS VERY STRONGLY THAT THERE CAN BE NO CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY IN SOUTH AFRICA. THE SECRETARY MENTIONED THAT IN THE MORNING MEETING WITH BLACK LEADERS, THE IDEA WAS RAISED OF A REFERENDUM TO DETERMINE WHO WOULD SIT ACROSS THE TABLE FROM THE SAG IN NEGOTIATIONS. THIS WOULD BE OPEN TO ALL RACES. THE STATE PRESIDENT NOTED, AS DID VILJOEN AT LUNCH, THAT THE SAG ITSELF HAD FLOATED THIS IDEA EARLY ON, BUT HAD RECEIVED SUCH A NEGATIVE RESPONSE THAT THEY DROPPED IT. HIS FINAL POINT ON CONSTITUTIONAL MATTERS WAS THAT WHILE THE SAG ALSO WANTS A MULTIPARTY, NON-RACIAL DEMOCRACY, IT BELIEVES AS WELL IN THE PROTECTION OF MINORITIES "IN A NON-APARTHEID, NON-DISCRIMINATORY MANNER." HE SAID WE NEED TO NEGOTIATE CHECKS AND BALANCES TO OFFER SECURITY TO MINORITIES ON BOTH ECONOMIC AND CULTURAL LEVELS.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

TOSEC 020134

14. IN CLOSING, THE STATE PRESIDENT THANKED THE SECRETARY FOR OPEN AND FRANK DISCUSSIONS AND HOPED THAT HIS VISIT WOULD BE PRODUCTIVE AND CONSTRUCTIVE. "THIS SHIP CANNOT AND SHOULD NOT BE TURNED AROUND," DE KLERK STATED. "THE PROCESS IS IRREVERSABLE. WE ARE GOING TO SEE THIS PROCESS THROUGH TO ITS LOGICAL CONCLUSION."

15. AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE MEETING, PRESIDENT DE KLERK INVITED THE SECRETARY INTO HIS OFFICE FOR A TEN-MINUTE PRIVATE TALK, ALSO ATTENDED BY FOREIGN MINISTER BOTHA.

Dear Professors Pfaltzgraff and Shultz:

Thank you for your letter of February 15, 1990, concerning the disappearance of Nicholas Blake. I understand well the desires of the family in this case. We share them totally.

Nicholas Blake's disappearance first came to my attention early last year. I discussed it with U.S. Ambassador to Guatemala Thomas Stroock before he left for his assignment in Guatemala, and he made it one of the first issues he intended to address.

Ambassador Stroock has brought the Blake case to the attention of the highest civilian and military authorities in Guatemala. He will continue to do so as long as there are any leads that could be checked to provide the answers which we and the Blake family seek.

we continue to work on it.

PRESIDENT'S AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED FEDERAL CIVILIAN
SERVICE ISSUED TO JOHN C. LAWN

- 3/12/90: President approved the issuance of an award to John Lawn *(Special Award for Exceptional Service).
- 3/13/90: After consultation with Ron, Cicconi decided that the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service would be a more appropriate award for John Lawn.
- 3/14/90: Ron advised Dick Brengel, OPM, that the President wanted to present Lawn with the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service, and to have the medal engraved for the presentation ceremony on 3/22/90.
- 3/21/90: Completed certificate and engraved medal to Cicconi's office. Certificate signed by the President.
- 3/22/90: Medal and certificate presented to John Lawn in a private Oval Office ceremony at 11:30

NOTE: *As this note and the attached papers indicate John Lawn was originally to receive the Special Award for Exceptional Service. But Ron felt, and Cicconi agreed, that the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service was more appropriate. Upon Cicconi's request, the calligraphy for the certificate was done by B. Gemmell, not OPM. We should keep this in mind and ask Cicconi if he would like Bill to do other such award certificates in the future. Cicconi did not want the words "and Great Personal Satisfaction" that customarily appear on the certificate to be on John Lawn's certificate.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: James W. Cicconi Jim Cicconi
SUBJECT: Award for Jack Lawn

You indicated to me that you would like to consider giving an award of some kind to Jack Lawn when he visits the White House on March 22. There is no specific "law enforcement" medal, but there is another option for you to consider: you could present Lawn with a special commendation such as the President's "Special Award for Exceptional Service." This award is made solely at your discretion; you approved it earlier this year for Lt.Gen. Dennis McAulliffe, former Administrator of the Panama Canal Commission (attached).

Would you like to present this award to Jack Lawn?

Thank you.

The President of the United States of America
Presents this

Special Award for Exceptional Service to

Mr. Dennis D. MacShuliffe, U.S. Army (Ret.)

In recognition of your distinguished service to the Nation as Administrator of the Panama Canal Commission during the period October 1979 through December 1989.

Under your direction, significant programs have been implemented to modernize, improve safety, and maintain the competitive posture of the Canal in a developing environment of alternative trade routes.

Through your personal leadership, vigorous training and employment preference programs were established to meet treaty-mandated goals for increasing Panamanian participation in the operation of the Canal, thus anticipating Panama's assumption of full control of the Canal at the year 2000. Your superb stewardship of the Panama Canal has served well the needs of international maritime shipping and enhanced the image of the United States as the operator of this vital seaway.

~~THE PRESIDENT HAS SEEN~~

February 26, 1990

The Honorable George Bush
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

After much discussion with my family, I respectfully ask that you accept my resignation as Administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration effective Friday, March 23, 1990.

Having served more than twenty-seven years in government, this decision was not an easy one. My service as Administrator of DEA over the past five years has been most rewarding and most satisfying. The ratification of the United Nations Convention, the National Drug Control Strategy, and the Cartagena Summit have established the foundations upon which we can project with confidence our ultimate success in this battle.

Your personal and continuous commitment and leadership since the formation of the South Florida Task Force have been integral to our progress. Your personal involvement in honoring those DEA Special Agents who have paid the ultimate price in this battle, and your support for their families, have special significance for the men and women of the Drug Enforcement Administration and for me.

I thank you for providing me with the opportunity to serve our country and your Administration in so critical a position. The Lawn family will continue to keep you and the entire Bush family in our prayers.

Sincerely,

Jack Lawn

In 9th Inning at the DEA, Lawn Joining N.Y. Yankees

By Michael Isikoff
Washington Post Staff Writer

After five years as the government's top drug fighter, Drug Enforcement Administration chief John C. Lawn will step down next month to become a vice president of the New York Yankees, sources said yesterday.

Lawn, 54, announced his retirement yesterday after writing a letter to President Bush and phoning top anti-drug officials, including national drug control policy director William J. Bennett. Although a DEA press release said only that Lawn plans to move with his family to "the New York City area," knowledgeable sources said he plans to accept an offer from Yankees owner George Steinbrenner to take a new post in the baseball team's organization.

The job, for which Lawn is expected to receive a salary in the low six figures, will focus on community affairs work, including anti-drug programs, one source close to Lawn said. The source noted that Lawn, a native of Brooklyn, had a long interest in sports and coached high school basketball before his law enforcement career.

Jeff Idelson, director of media relations for the Yankees, said Steinbrenner was not available for comment. "As far as I know, this is a rumor," Idelson said. "As we speak now, he [Lawn] is not employed by the New York Yankees."

A former Marine Corps officer who spent most of his career with the FBI, Lawn took over the DEA during the most traumatic event in the agency's history: the 1985 torture-murder of DEA agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena by Mexican drug traffickers. Lawn's role in pressuring Mexican officials to investigate the case was celebrated last month in the NBC television miniseries "Drug Wars: the Camarena Story."

Lawn's efforts in the Camarena case won him loyalty and respect among veteran DEA hands who once viewed him as an outsider. Over the next four years, he headed the agency through such events as the rise of the Medellin cocaine cartel and the epidemic of crack cocaine-related violence in American cities. But Lawn also is likely to be remembered for recognizing the crucial role that "demand reduction" played in solving the drug problem, taking agents off the streets and assigning them to work on community programs designed to deter drug use.

It was through DEA's demand reduction programs that Lawn met Yankee outfielder Dave Winfield, who introduced him to Steinbrenner, one source said. Before accepting the job, Lawn "checked out" Steinbrenner's background with friends in the FBI, a reference to Steinbrenner's 1974 conviction for conspiring to violate federal election laws. The Yankee owner was pardoned last year by President Ronald Reagan.

Terrence Burke, DEA's acting deputy administrator, is expected to take over as acting chief on March 23 when Lawn officially leaves.

U.S. Denies Report of High-Level Talks With Iranians on Freeing the Hostages

By Ann Devroy
Washington Post Staff Writer

Spokesmen for the White House and State Department yesterday denied a report that high-level U.S. and Iranian officials had held secret talks in Geneva aimed at the release of U.S. hostages.

don-based Lebanese newspaper, Al-Hayat, which reported that U.S.-Iran contacts took place in Geneva through third parties. An Al-Hayat editor told the Associated Press that Sheik Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, a Lebanese Shiite Moslem cleric, had revealed the discussions.

HUD MANAGEMENT (AP) -- A major low-income housing landlord suspended by HUD told Congress that HUD footdragging and negligence greatly contributed to poor conditions at properties cited in the sanctions. "HUD's administration and oversight of inner-city problem housing has been abysmal and verges on the criminal," A. Bruce Rozet told a House Banking subcommittee, which in turn told Rozet it planned to call HUD officials and tenants to discuss conditions and management of the properties.

DRUG POLL (AP) -- Fewer than 2 percent of Americans questioned in a new survey say they might try cocaine if it were legal -- but 60 percent say they think someone else would. Three-fifths of those questioned in the poll released by the Drug Policy Foundation said all drug use is immoral and should be illegal, while 35 percent disagreed. And 55 percent said they believe the Bush Administration's war on drugs is likely to reduce the drug problem, while 36 percent favored legalization of less serious drugs along with an increase in drug treatment and education.

STOCKS/DURABLE GOODS (New York/Reuter) -- Stock prices rose sharply as Wall Street investors shrugged off a government report that showed surprising weakness in the manufacturing sector. The Dow closed with a gain of 14.64 points.

LAWN RESIGNS (Scripps Howard) -- John Lawn is resigning from the Drug Enforcement Administration to become an executive with the New York Yankees. Lawn notified President Bush this week he is resigning effective March 23.

RECOMMENDED TELEPHONE CALL BY THE PRESIDENT

TO: Senator Bill Armstrong (R-CO)

DATE: March 26, 1990

RECOMMENDED BY: Frederick D. McClure

PURPOSE: To urge Senator Armstrong to oppose the Byrd amendment to the clean air bill

BACKGROUND: Senator Armstrong has indicated to us that he intends to support the Byrd amendment to the clean air bill. Although he says that he (1) supports the clean air bill, (2) does not want to see it defeated, and (3) is not generally supportive of the policy underlying the Byrd amendment, he nonetheless says that he will vote for the amendment.

Since the beginning of your Administration, Armstrong has lodged numerous complaints about actions taken by the Environmental Protection Agency. This vote, he believes, will send a "message" to the EPA of his displeasure.

Armstrong might be reminded of his commitment to you, after announcing his retirement plans, that he would be supportive of your efforts in the Senate. (NOTE: Governor Sununu will visit with you concerning other details, prior to your making this call.)

KEY POINTS: See Attachment.

DATE OF SUBMISSION: March 26, 1990

ACTION:

Suggested Talking Points

- o Bill, I wanted to visit with you about the clean air bill. Now, I know how important the environment is to you and am aware of your efforts in this regard over your years of public service.
- o This bill is very important to me, and I want to do everything I can to get it passed by Congress in such a fashion that I can sign it.
- o As you know, we have tried very hard to work with the Senate to develop a sound piece of legislation that does not decrease productivity, increase costs on business and industry, or destroy jobs.
- o I laid down my standards for acceptance of a clean air bill in my letter of a few months ago to Dole and Mitchell. I intend to stick by those principles as we continue through this process.
- o The Byrd amendment, however, must be defeated, and I hope that I can count on you to join us in defeating it.
- o It's just simply bad public policy, primarily because it singles out one category of individuals affected. Besides that, it is sure to increase the cost of the clean air bill, especially if every other affected industry tries to get into the act, as has already been suggested.
- o I hope I can count on you to oppose the Byrd amendment.

THE WHITE HOUSE

RECOMMENDED TELEPHONE CALL BY THE PRESIDENT

TO: Senator Rudy Boschwitz (R-MN)

DATE: March 26, 1990

RECOMMENDED BY: Frederick D. McClure fm

PURPOSE: To inquire about Senator Boschwitz's decision to object to a unanimous consent request for a time certain for final passage of the clean air bill.

BACKGROUND: At the conclusion of last Thursday night's session, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell propounded a unanimous consent request that consideration of the clean air bill come to an end no later than 6:00 p.m., Thursday, March 29. Senator Boschwitz lodged an objection to the request.

During the exchange between Mitchell and Boschwitz, the Central American supplemental aid package and crime legislation both came up in a discussion of what might follow upon completion of the clean air bill on the floor. In addition, Boschwitz noted difficulties he had been having in getting amendments of interest to him considered by the committee leadership.

This telephone call is designed to inquire about the concerns Boschwitz has which led him to object to the unanimous consent request.

KEY POINTS: See Attachment.

DATE OF SUBMISSION: March 26, 1990

ACTION:

Suggested Talking Points

- o Rudy, I wanted to give you a call about the clean air legislation now on the floor of the Senate.
- o I understand that you objected to the unanimous consent request made by George Mitchell late last Thursday night.
- o I know that during your exchange, you raised the importance of getting on with our crime bill as well as the Central America supplemental appropriations bill. Thank you for your continued support on those important matters.
- o The purpose of my call though is to hear from you about your objections to the unanimous consent request and any concerns about the clean air bill.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

RECOMMENDED TELEPHONE CALL BY THE PRESIDENT

TO: Senator Bob Kasten (R-WI)

DATE: March 26, 1990

RECOMMENDED BY: Frederick D. McClure fm

PURPOSE: To encourage Senator Kasten to oppose the Byrd amendment to the clean air bill.

BACKGROUND: Senator Bob Byrd (D-WV) has an amendment to the clean air bill that would provide Federal support for coal miners whose jobs might be lost as a result of enactment of the legislation. The Administration strongly opposes this provision. As Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Byrd has approached a number of the committee's members as potential supporters of his amendment.

A number of the senior Republicans on the committee have indicated that they will support the Byrd amendment and this is making it difficult for Kasten to oppose the Byrd amendment.

Kasten is also the Ranking Republican on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Operations. As such, the subcommittee has jurisdiction of the supplemental appropriations bill for Central American aid. Some members of the committee are considering using some of the $870 million - - perhaps as much as half -- to support Eastern European democracy efforts. Senator Kasten needs to be encouraged to exert strong leadership on the supplemental appropriations bill.

KEY POINTS: See Attachment.

DATE OF
SUBMISSION: March 26, 1990

ACTION:

Suggested Talking Points

- o Bob, I am calling about the Byrd amendment to the clean air bill.
- o I understand that you are under a lot of pressure since a number of your Republican colleagues on the Appropriations Committee have indicated their support for the Byrd amendment.
- o As you know, we strongly oppose this amendment, primarily because it's bad public policy to single out one category of individuals affected. Besides that, it is sure to increase the cost of the clean air bill, especially if every other affected industry tries to get into the act, as has already been suggested.
- o We really need you to oppose the Byrd amendment, and hope you can do that.

CENTRAL AMERICA FUNDING

- o On another matter, I know that the Senate Subcommittee on Foreign Operations soon will be taking up the supplemental appropriations bill.
- o You know how important this is to both of the newly-elected leaders in Panama and Nicaragua. I know the House situation is murky because of the conflict between the authorizers and appropriators.
- o Your leadership in the Senate will be vital. I wanted to get a feel from you as to how you see the bill progressing in the Senate, and how we can best expedite consideration of this important foreign aid package.

RECOMMENDED TELEPHONE CALL BY THE PRESIDENT

TO: Senator Steve Symms (R-ID)

DATE: March 26, 1990

RECOMMENDED BY: Frederick D. McClure fm

PURPOSE: To encourage Senator Symms to oppose the Byrd amendment to the clean air bill.

BACKGROUND: At the conclusion of last Thursday night's session, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell propounded a unanimous consent request that consideration of the clean air bill come to an end no later than 6:00 p.m., Thursday, March 29. Senator Symms lodged an objection to the request.

This telephone call is designed to encourage Symms to oppose the Byrd amendment, even though Symms is personally opposed to the clean air bill as currently drafted.

KEY POINTS: See Attachment.

DATE OF SUBMISSION: March 26, 1990

ACTION:

Suggested Talking Points

- o Steve, I wanted to give you a call about the clean air bill. Now, I understand that you have some misgivings about whether this bill should be enacted, and I also understand those concerns.
- o As you know, we have tried very hard to work with the Senate to develop a sound piece of clean air legislation that does not decrease productivity, increase costs on business and industry, or destroy jobs.
- o I laid down my standards for acceptance of a clean air bill in my letter of a few months ago to Dole and Mitchell. I intend to stick by those principles as we continue through this process.

POOL REPORT

THE PRESIDENT EATS DINNER ... MARCH 26, 1990

The Bushes left the White House about 6:30 p.m. for dinner at the Peking Gourmet in Falls Church, Va. They ate with Senator and Mrs. Hatfield, Senator and Mrs. McClure and Atty Gen and Mrs. Thornburgh. Dinner was off the record, which was fine since your pool was in another room anyway. Vegetable content of dinner unknown.

Andrew Rosenthal
NY Times

PS They got back to the White House at 8:30

drug summit -- a country on the front line of the drug war. Their courageous President Virgilio Barco and the people of Colombia have made a courageous choice: Colombia versus the cartels. The battle is far from over. But for the first time, the drug runners are on the run.

We're going to keep the pressure on -- work with those Andean allies -- Peru, Bolivia, Colombia -- to cut the supply lines that run from the jungles of South America right into the heart of our cities. And we will. Two nights ago, we just learned that in Orange County, two cars were just pulled over carrying nearly 900 pounds of cocaine. Four million doses; street value -- $30 million.

The supply side is a massive, serious problem. And I will continue to address myself to that side of the equation. But if we want to win this war, big busts won't be enough. We've got simply to drive down demand -- dry up the market for illegal drugs right here in our own country. We do that by increasing awareness. Education, providing people, especially young people, information that helps them separate fact from fiction when the subject is drugs.

That really is why I was so pleased to accept your invitation, Leo and Chuck, to come over here this morning. To thank you -- the leaders in the television industry -- for enlisting the power of TV as a force for positive change. Each of you is a "point of light," with a unique ability to inform and to change attitudes, and to catalyze public action in our fight against drug abuse.

This morning, I want to thank so many of you for the work you're doing with my friend, Jim Burke, the head of Media Advertising Partnership for a Drug-Free America. We see those hard-hitting antidrug commercials every day -- and really, they are hitting home. We're starting to see a shift in attitudes in the regions where those spots are on the air.

But it's not just the commercials that are getting the antidrug message across -- increasingly, it's also your regular programming, the shows themselves. And that's important.

Most people have no idea how many kids watch those Saturday morning cartoons. This is one group that does. Well, I am astonished at the number: 20 million kids between the ages of five and 11, sitting on the living room floor every Saturday morning, watching cartoons.

Twenty million kids. Impressionable. Just asking to be entertained. And let me tell you something. Those 20 million kids in front of their TVs on any Saturday are the same target audience for every school yard drug pusher five days a week.

Today, drugs are an unfortunate fact of life in every city and town across America. And our kids face pressure from their peers --

DEMONSTRATOR: Talk about AIDS. Why don't you lead the country on AIDS like you do on drugs? You never talk about it.

AUDIENCE: Sit down. Sit down.

bother me one little bit. And I'm glad we live in a country where we can all speak up, even if it takes advantage of the hospitality of you all. (Applause.)

But our kids do face peer pressure from their peers, pressure from the pushers out there to snort coke, or smoke pot, or even a killer called crack cocaine. "Just once can't hurt." "Everybody does it." "It's cool." And that's what our kids hear. That's what they're up against. For too many of our kids, regrettably, that is the real world. And we've got to help our children develop the power to say no, power that comes from self-confidence. We've got to arm our kids with the facts: Drugs aren't part of life in the fast lane; drugs are a dead-end.

And that's why I am so delighted that the Academy is taking the lead in producing a show called Cartoon All-Stars To The Rescue. A story about a boy who, with the help of more than a dozen of today's most popular cartoon characters, learns that he can draw the line against drugs, that every kid can be drug-free.

And that's a great message. And I hope that on Saturday, April 21st, the day that that show is first broadcast all across the United States and all over North America, every TV set is on and every kid is watching. And I want to thank all of you associated with the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences for taking part in this collaborative effort. Barbara and I are proud to participate with you. Never before in cartoon history have Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck worked with the teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, the Muppets and the Smerfs -- (laughter) -- and all the other stars of the cartoon world. And my hat's off to Roy Disney and Buzz Potamkin for keeping all those colorful egos in line. (Laughter.)

One thing more while we're talking about cartoons -- every one of us knows those scenes where a character falls off a cliff or gets hit by a truck and then bounces right back up, dusts himself off and moves right on to the next scene. Kids see that stuff -- and they know it isn't real. But how many kids and young adults today have seen the programs or movies that show a character take drugs and, just like the cartoon characters, survive without a scratch? That isn't real, either. And in the real world, whether it's Hollywood or Harlem, or out in the heartland, small-town America, we know what drugs do. And the simple truth is they destroy.

And thank goodness the days when popular culture glorified and glamorized drug use are fading fast. Public opinion is turning around. We used to hear that drugs were fashionable and fun and risk-free. Not anymore. Now we're hearing something different. We're hearing that it's okay -- no, that it's great, really, to be drug-free.

And I think that change is taking place because we all see the damage that drugs can do. We've seen too many sports stars, too many entertainers, too many of the men and women we look up to, too many of our heroes pulled down, destroyed by drugs. Drugs and success simply do not mix.

And I really want to thank every one of you in this room form of self-abasement, where drugs mean more than family, friends, self-respect. To show in the real world how drugs destroy, how drugs kill every single day.

And that's the real message. It's a message that can save lives. And thanks to you, thanks to you, it's a message that's getting through to the children of the United States of America; to the children of many other countries as well.

Leo and Chuck, thank you for this opportunity to address this exceptionally prestigious and influential group. And I am grateful to all of you. And thank you for all you're doing. And God bless you. And now I'll go over and try to represent you properly as I meet the Prime Minister of Japan. Thank you very, very much.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

March 26, 1990

Dear Abe:

Thank you for your letter of March 14. I appreciate your thoughtful insights into these important issues. You're right -- no one is served by the recent controversy over Jerusalem. Instead, movement to peace should be our priority and remain our focus.

That is why in recent days I have written to Mayor Teddy Kollek and Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Permit me to quote from what I wrote to Mayor Kollek:

...Jerusalem must never again be a divided city. We did not approve of the status quo before 1967; in no way do we advocate a return to it now. This was and is the policy of the United States, and it is my policy. Our efforts in the peace process are in no way designed to promote the division of Jerusalem. We would oppose any such effort.

It is also our view that the final status of this most special of cities should be decided by negotiation, and that this negotiation would be facilitated if we were well along the path toward peace. There is thus no intention on our part to focus now on the final status of Jerusalem. It is also our view, just as it has been the view of the United States since 1967, that all sides should be taking steps to get to negotiations and avoiding steps that could prejudice the prospects for these negotiations.

In my letter to Senator Boschwitz, I added that "No peace that I can envision would deny Jews the right to live anywhere in this special city of Jerusalem."

I realize that the peace process involves enormously difficult choices for Israel. Political developments there have centered on the peace process, and made clear the importance of moving forward. I believe that there is a unique opportunity before us to get to an Israeli-Palestinian dialogue on elections leading to negotiations. We started down this path hand-in-hand with our Israeli friends and partners, and we believe that together we can continue toward peace.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Bill:

I have been following the good work you and Republican members of the Education and Labor Committee have been doing on the Excellence in Education Act. I am sorry to see that good legislation has been derailed for the wrong reasons, and I hope that you will continue the fight. You have my strong support for your efforts on legislation that would provide a better education for all, including disadvantaged and minority populations.

Keep up the good work.

Bill Goodling has been a strong supporter of the Administration's Excellence in Education Bill. The bill has recently been derailed by Education and Labor Chairman Gus Hawkins. March 22, 1990

Dear Bill:

I have been following the good work you and Republican members of the Education and Labor Committee have been doing on the Excellence in Education Act. I am sorry to see that good legislation has been derailed for the wrong reasons, and I hope that you will continue the fight. You have my strong support for your efforts on legislation that would provide a better education for all, including disadvantaged and minority populations.

Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Bill Goodling
