KAIFU TO ANNOUNCE TRADE ACCORD WITH WASHINGTON ON FRIDAY

TOKYO -- Prime Minister Kaifu will announce contents of a crucial trade accord with Washington on Friday morning, the top government spokesman said Thursday.

...The two sides are jointly to release an interim report on ways to remove Japan's so-called structural impediments to trade....

They are working on the final wording of the document, Chief Cabinet Secretary Misoji Sakamoto said.

Kaifu and members of his cabinet were expected to endorse the report at an extraordinary cabinet meeting Friday morning. Kaifu would then release a statement at a special news conference and reveal contents of the agreement, Sakamoto said. (Reuter)

U.S., Japan Negotiators Reach Accord On Trade

U.S. and Japanese negotiators reached tentative agreement Wednesday on the major elements of a set of sweeping new measures to help reduce the $49-billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan -- including significant concessions by Japan toward opening its market to more imports.

The 50-page document, which officials said still includes a few, relatively minor "loose ends," was being quickly reviewed by the Japanese Cabinet in time for another, presumably final negotiating session today.

If Japan approves the proposals, the two sides expect to make the recommendations public sometime today....

Officials familiar with the report say it contains some major concessions by Japan on many of the suggestions that the Bush Administration has made for fundamental changes in longstanding Japanese economic policies and business practices.

(Art Pine, Los Angeles Times, A1)

U.S.-Japan Talks In Overtime

A contentious set of U.S.-Japan trade talks dragged into an unexpected third day Wednesday as both sides worked to fashion a deal that could stave off U.S. economic sanctions against Japanese products.

Both U.S. and Japanese officials insisted that progress was being made during full days and nights of closed-door sessions at the State Department, but they said the complexity and depth of the negotiations made it impossible to finish the talks in the two days allotted to them.

They plan to resume talks Thursday morning for what was hoped to be the fourth and final session.

"There is no deadlock. We are making progress," said U.S. Trade Rep. Hills after briefing President Bush on the talks....

Later, the Bush met with two special envoys from Prime Minister Kaifu, former ambassador Nobuo Matsunaga and Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Hisashi Owada. The White House said the President told them, "We have had very substantial success to date, but we must continue our efforts because neither the Japanese consumer nor the American public will be convinced until they see concrete results."

(Stuart Auerbach, Washington Post, E1)

BUSH LISTENING TO JUST A FEW

Despite pressure from Congress and within his own Administration to encourage Mikhail Gorbachev to recognize Lithuanian independence, President Bush is listening only to a few key advisers who want him to continue his low-key, accommodating approach.

Armed with self-confidence in his own experience, and drawing on the support of Secretary Baker and National Security Adviser Scowcroft, the flip-flop policy toward Moscow -- first critical, then accommodating -- is said by Administration officials to be the President's own....

"Bush is the guy with all the foreign policy experience," says one Administration official, who explains that Bush thinks it "much better to run policy with one person taking control...than by doing it by committee."

So far, some key leaders in the House and Senate have sided with the President's approach.... But it is clear an increasing number of Democratic lawmakers are joining conservatives in questioning the underlying premise in Administration policy: U.S. interests are best served by Mikhail Gorbachev's continued and stable leadership, and U.S. policy must try to keep him in power.

(Paul Bedard & Major Garrett, Washington Times, A1)

VILNIUS ACCUSES KREMLIN

MOSCOW -- Lithuania accused Moscow Wednesday of trying to overthrow its breakaway government, while President Gorbachev denounced Estonia as another troublemaker to be treated the same way as its Baltic sister.

The Lithuanian parliament passed a resolution charging that Moscow was using the army to try to restore political structures that existed before the current Lithuanian government came to power in February....

"There is therefore a threat to overthrow the legally elected authority and the government," ...the resolution said.

The Lithuanian parliament also approved an appeal to the republic's young men not to respond to the spring call-up of the Red Army.

(Susan Cornwell, Reuter, Washington Times, A1)

GORBACHEV WARNS ESTONIA TO BACK OFF

MOSCOW -- President Gorbachev has warned Estonia that it could face a Lithuanian-style crackdown unless it backs down from a constitutional confrontation with the Kremlin over the validity of Soviet laws, Estonian officials reported Wednesday.

Estonian President Ruutel said the Soviet leader called him Tuesday to express concern about moves toward secession by the tiny Baltic republic. The Estonian legislature formally passed a resolution Friday that described Soviet rule as illegal but stopped short of declaring independence.

"Gorbachev said that, if we flagrantly break union agreements, he as president will take the same measures that have been adopted in Lithuania," Ruutel told journalists after a meeting of the Estonian Supreme Soviet in Tallinn....

The Soviet Defense Ministry accused "separatist forces" in all three Baltic republics Wednesday of disrupting the spring call-up of young men into the Soviet army.

(Michael Dobbs, Washington Post, A1)

Gorbachev Tells Lithuania It Must Repudiate Declaration Of Independence

MOSCOW -- President Gorbachev sent more tough-sounding words to the Baltic states Wednesday, telling the Lithuanian government that negotiations could not start until it repudiated its declaration of independence, warning the Estonian leadership not to follow Lithuania's path and conferring with top officials of the Latvian Communist Party.

In an angry telephone conversation, Gorbachev complained to Arnold Ruutel, the chairman of the Estonian parliament, about a resolution the body passed last week...declaring that Estonia had entered a "transitional period" from "occupied nation to independent state."

"Gorbachev suggested that the resolution be retracted, and he suggested that Ruutel come to Moscow," said Indrek Toome, the chairman of the parliament's foreign affairs commissions. "But as far as I know Ruutel has no plans to go anywhere this week." The leadership of the Estonian parliament would meet today to discuss the situation, Toome said, and Ruutel might go to Moscow next week....

But while Gorbachev took on a firm tone, some of his close associates Wednesday adopted a milder attitude. "Both sides seem to be looking for a way out," said Ivan Laptev, who on Tuesday was elected chairman of the Council of the Union. (Paul Quinn-Judge, Boston Globe)

LITHUANIAN CAMPAIGNS FOR RECOGNITION

OTTAWA -- The vice president of Lithuania's parliament began a hasty trip to North America Wednesday to drum up Western support for the secession-minded Soviet republic's independence movement.

Bronius Kuzmickas, a founder of the Lithuanian independence movement, told reporters in Ottawa that such recognition is "very important," although he understood that a state that declares its independence could not be recognized "the following day." ...

The Canadian government has been unwilling to arrange a meeting with Kuzmickas, who...is eager for meetings with U.S. and Canadian officials....

He said Western democracies might be more willing to recognize Lithuania formally once the republic has cemented the structure of its new government. "We already have formed the ministers' cabinet, and if our peaceful attempts to build a government go on, the West will see it is proper and right for them to recognize us," he said. He [also] said formal international recognition of Lithuanian independence would help force the Kremlin to negotiate with Lithuanian officials.

(Laurie Watson, UPI)

SOVIET OFFICIAL PREDICTS SOLUTION IN LITHUANIA TO BE 'WISE AND FAIR'

The Soviet foreign minister said Wednesday night that he was confident that Lithuania and the Kremlin would find a "wise and fair solution" to the Baltic republic's independence crisis.

"That solution will be consistent with the interests of both the Lithuanian people and of the Soviet Union...and the interests of Europe," Eduard Shevardnadze said....

Shevardnadze said he was speaking "very authoritatively and seriously" about the Lithuanian situation. "I have no doubt," he said, "that we will find a wise and fair solution."

(Richard Whittle, Dallas Morning News)

Baker-Shevardnadze Open Pre-Summit Talks

Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze, emerging from talks Wednesday with Secretary Baker on plans for a superpower summit, said the Soviet solution to Lithuania's bid for independence will satisfy Moscow, the West and the rebellious Baltic state....

Although the State Department said that Lithuania topped Baker's agenda for the three days of pre-summit talks, both officials appeared anxious to avoid a collision on the tense issue....

Prior to the meeting, Baker said there are signs "of some dialogue" between the Soviets and the Lithuanian leadership, but that he wanted to find out why a Soviet Interior Ministry official had canceled a meeting Wednesday with the Lithuanians.

Shevardnadze, asked by reporters about the canceled Moscow meeting, said, "I'm not aware of what's happening." ...

Baker seemed pleased that both the Soviets and the Lithuanians appear to be moving toward discussing a referendum over the Baltic republic's attempt to secede. He said, "That's one way to express self-determination."

Shevardnadze, asked about use of force by Soviet troops in Lithuania, answered, "Well, I think there is no use of force. Of course, in any country, in any state, measures are taken in order to have order."

Baker, Shevardnadze Open Talks

Secretary Baker and Foreign Minister Shevardnadze laid the groundwork Wednesday for a bare-bones working summit of the U.S. and Soviet leaders here in June, as their experts began work on potentially far-reaching proposals to reverse the increase in strategic multiple-warhead ballistic missiles.

As Baker and Shevardnadze sat down for the first of three days of discussions, officials on both sides said they are planning a two- or three-day businesslike summit meeting between Presidents Bush and Gorbachev, with no U.S. tour or other extensive travel by Gorbachev....

Baker disclosed Wednesday night after 3½ hours of talks with Shevardnadze that the Soviet minister had brought with him a letter from Gorbachev to Bush. Bush declined to discuss the letter's contents or details of their conversation beyond saying that they "spent quite a bit of time on arms control and...on the situation in Lithuania."

U.S. PROPOSAL WOULD OPEN SDI MONITORING

The U.S. has made a new arms control proposal that would give the superpowers their closest look ever at each other's SDI projects, Bush Administration officials disclosed Wednesday.

The offer, made a week ago at the Geneva arms control talks, calls on the U.S. and the Soviet Union to spend a year closely monitoring one of the other's many anti-missile projects. They would intensively share data, visit laboratories and observe tests of the project....

A senior Administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Soviet delegation to the negotiations has not fully responded to the new U.S. idea. While they were not negative, he said, they "expressed some concerns." It is likely the proposal will be discussed during the three days of U.S.-Soviet talks that began here Wednesday, he said.

GENSCHER WOULD LIMIT TROOP TALKS

Despite the need to ease the Soviet Union's security concerns, talks between the two Germanys and the four victorious World War II powers should not try to decide how many troops the U.S. and its allies can station in a united Germany, West German Foreign Minister Genscher said Wednesday.

After meeting with President Bush and Secretary Baker, Genscher told a news conference that the two-plus-four negotiating framework...is not the proper forum to determine the future strength of the German army or of NATO forces on German territory....

Genscher acknowledged that the Soviets have legitimate reasons to insist that unification pose no threat to their security....

"The Soviet Union will pose this question, and this question will have to be answered," he said. But, he added, discussing it in the two-plus-four talks would turn them into a new arms-control forum focused exclusively on Germany, and that would upset the Vienna negotiations on reducing conventional military forces throughout Europe.

KEY SOVIET DIPLOMAT TO BE U.S. ENVOY

First Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh, a senior figure in Soviet diplomacy who has specialized in U.S. relations for 20 years, has been chosen to be Soviet ambassador to Washington, succeeding Yuri Dubinin, official sources said Wednesday....

Yuli Vorontsov, who also holds the rank of first deputy foreign minister and is another veteran of the Washington embassy, will become Soviet ambassador to the U.N., according to officials.

NO EXECUTIVE ORDER ISSUED FOR CHINESE STUDENTS

President Bush promised in January to issue an executive order protecting Chinese students in the U.S. but never did so, relying instead on a directive by the attorney general that some students say has led to confusion and uncertainty about their status....

In a handwritten note Jan. 24 to Sen. Mack, the President said he would issue an "executive order" that "does better by the students" than the proposed congressional legislation. Bush later reiterated several times that he had issued such an order to protect the students.

Wednesday, White House press secretary Fitzwater said that, although Bush "used that term," referring to the executive order, "in fact what he meant was the instructions to the Justice Department."

Fitzwater, questioned about a report in the New York Times that Bush had never issued the order, said "the executive order is not the right tool" and "what he did do was order the attorney general to take the legal steps necessary to assure that that was the case...."

Attorney General Thornburgh wrote a letter to Gene McNary, director of Immigration and Naturalization Service, Dec. 1 directing him to protect the students....

"It's typical of a syndrome in this Administration of 'let's not do anything about it and say we did.... Let's say my executive order will protect the Chinese students but not do one,'" said Rep. Pelosi. "He was talking about an executive order," Pelosi added. "He didn't say a letter I wrote to the attorney general." (David Hoffman, Washington Post, A25)

U.S. READY TO HELP S. AFRICA PEACE TALKS, BUSH SAYS

President Bush on Wednesday urged U.S. businesses operating in South Africa to "work for change" and said the U.S. is prepared to assist the negotiations intended to bring greater democracy to the racially divided nation.

Bush...praised President de Klerk but called for greater progress toward assuring full political participation for the nation's black majority.

"We can now take hope that the age of apartheid is nearing a close," Bush said.

Speaking at the 20th anniversary dinner of the Joint Center for Political Studies, a primarily black think tank, Bush called for an end to South Africa's state of emergency...and for the release of all South African political prisoners.

"Most of all, there must be an end to the tragic cycle of violence -- a task that demands great courage and resolve from all South African leaders, black and white," Bush said.

Bush Urges South Africans To Renounce Violence

President Bush Wednesday called on the black majority in South Africa to follow the example of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King and renounce violence.

Bush used remarks to the Joint Center for Political Studies...to call for an end to the state of emergency...and the freeing of all political prisoners there.

ARAFAT SAYS HE IS TRYING TO GET WESTERN HOSTAGES RELEASED

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates -- PLO Chairman Arafat says he is trying to help bring about the release of Western hostages in Lebanon.

"I am exerting efforts to release the American and other Western hostages in Lebanon out of our humanitarian and Islamic duty," the PLO chief said in an interview broadcast on Abu Dhabi television Wednesday night.

In the interview...Arafat did not say how he was trying to free the 17 Western hostages.

CARTER TALKS TO ARAFAT, DRAWS ISRAELI REBUKE

PARIS -- In an effort to stimulate the stalled Middle East peace process, former President Carter and PLO Chairman Arafat met here Wednesday with French President Mitterrand at the Elysee Palace.

The meeting, Carter's first with Arafat, was roundly criticized by Israel...and by Jewish groups in France and the U.S. In Washington, the State Department sought to distance itself from the meeting.

Carter was widely believed to be acting as an unofficial U.S. emissary. However, in Washington, Department spokeswoman Tutwiler said he was not acting as an emissary for Secretary Baker.

"He is there as a private citizen, and he is not carrying any messages," Tutwiler said.

However, Carter conferred last month with Baker and President Bush about the Middle East peace process, and there is little doubt that Carter's intention to meet Arafat was discussed.

Carter, Arafat Meet On Middle East Peace Plan

PARIS -- Former President Carter met with Yasser Arafat for two hours Wednesday and praised the PLO chairman for promoting the peace process in the Middle East.

"It is very helpful for me to meet with the leaders who make decisions and speak with authority," Carter said, standing beside Arafat. "Obviously Chairman Arafat is one of the key leaders who has done everything he can in recent months to promote the peace process."

Carter...is expected to brief President Bush when he returns to Washington....

Arafat said he and Carter had not discussed a specific plan to advance peace talks. (Sharon Waxman, Washington Post, A43)

IRAQ PROMISES TO DESTROY GAS IF ISRAELIS DESTROY NUKES

CAIRO -- Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said Wednesday his country is willing to get rid of its chemical weapons arsenal if Israel destroys its nuclear weapons and signs the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported.

In a related development, Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid said Cairo would support Iraq against any aggression aimed at undermining its security, but stopped short of saying Egyptian troops would go to war to help Iraq.

Abdel-Meguid also lashed out at the U.S., Israel and Britain for what he described as a series of "anti-Iraqi attacks." (Lee Stokes, UPI)

LABOR COALITION FORMS IN ISRAEL
Peres Claims A Majority To Organize Government

JERUSALEM -- Labor Party leader Peres announced Wednesday that he is prepared to form a government with a coalition that includes small religious and leftist parties as well as at least one defector from the right-wing Likud.

If successful, Peres' initiative would give the Labor Party full control of the Israeli government for the first time since 1977....

Nevertheless, Peres' margin of support for establishing the government appeared to be so narrow and shaky Wednesday night that some of his Labor Party supporters said they were not entirely sure it would win the necessary majority in the Knesset. Party officials said the coalition now has only a two-vote majority in the 120-seat Knesset, though Peres said he hopes to pick up more support before a vote of confidence.

CONGRESS TO MISS BUSH DEADLINE FOR PANAMA, NICARAGUA AID

Congress will miss a Thursday deadline set by President Bush for passage of a bill providing $720 million in aid for new U.S.-backed governments in Panama and Nicaragua, a Senate aide said Wednesday.

Marsha Berry, spokeswoman for the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the panel will not consider the aid request before the Senate leaves later this week on its nearly two-week Easter recess....

Asked when the Appropriations Committee would consider the aid bill, Berry said, "Not until after the break. We haven't got the time."

BARCO OFFERS DRUG LORD FAIR TRIAL IN COLOMBIA
Remarks Seem To Soften Extradition Policy

BOGOTA -- President Barco said Wednesday that if Pablo Escobar, leader of the Medellin cocaine cartel, turns himself in he will be guaranteed an impartial trial in Colombia.

Political analysts said this was the first time Barco had indirectly promised Escobar would not be extradited to the U.S. to stand trial if he turns himself in to Colombian authorities. The remark was widely interpreted as a softening of his stance against drug traffickers.

International narcotics experts said the statement was significant because there are no arrest warrants pending against Escobar in Colombia, meaning that under Colombian law he almost certainly could not be held for more than a day. (Douglas Farah, Washington Post, A36)

Colombian Kingpin Reportedly Offered Deal

Colombian President Barco has agreed not to extradite his country's most powerful cocaine kingpin to the U.S. if he surrenders, unconfirmed reports from Colombia said Wednesday.

Colombian RCN Radio quoted Barco, visiting France, as saying that Pablo Escobar...would be guaranteed "complete impartiality" in Colombian courts. RCN said that would mean no extradition for Escobar.

Meanwhile, the Medellin cartel threatened to kill Colombian Sen. Federico Estrada Valez, abducted Tuesday.

Barco's statement sent shock waves through the U.S. and Colombia.

"If it's true, then the traffickers have won their battle," said Luis Gabriel Cano Isaza, president of the Bogota newspaper El Espectador....

"I hope this is not a sign the resolve of the Barco government is weakening," Sen. Biden said....

"Whatever happens in Colombia, Escobar is wanted in the U.S. and we would pursue those charges aggressively when he is apprehended," said the DEA's Frank Shults. (Jack Kelley, USA Today, 4A)

EL SALVADOR, REBELS AGREE TO PEACE TALKS
U.N. Takes Direct Role For The First Time

GENEVA -- The Salvadoran government and the leftist guerrillas it has been battling for nearly a decade agreed today to begin U.N.-brokered discussions aimed at ending the civil war, which has taken more than 70,000 lives.

Salvadoran Justice Minister Oscar Santamaria and Shafik Handal, one of five military commanders of the FMLN, signed a document with U.N. Secretary General Perez de Cuellar, initiating the peace process....

The mediation effort will begin with "shuttle diplomacy" by Perez de Cuellar or his personal representative, Alvaro de Soto, who told reporters that the U.N. considers the peace process to have begun "as of today."

CHENEY ASKS REVIEW OF SSN-21 SUB
AND DDG-51 DESTROYER PROGRAM

Secretary Cheney announced Wednesday he has asked for a detailed review of the need for and the projected costs of two of the Navy's top priority shipbuilding projects -- the SSN-21 nuclear-powered attack submarine and the DDG-51 destroyer.

Cheney announced the review of the Seawolf submarine and the Arleigh Burke destroyer during a speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in which he sought to answer criticism that the Pentagon has not recognized the sweeping changes underway in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe....

"We are doing a thorough analysis of each service's budget, force structure, and procurement plans. That analysis is based on the long-term requirement we will need to meet our country's strategic objectives. And for planning purposes, all of that analysis is being done on the assumption that the favorable developments we have seen for the past year will continue without major reversals," Cheney told the editors.

CBO WARNS SLOWDOWN OR CUT IN B-2 BUY ADDS TO COST

The Congressional Budget Office raised the estimated cost of buying the 132 B-2s the Air Force wants to at least $75.4 billion but warned Wednesday that buying fewer Stealth bombers or buying them at a slower rate than planned would jump the cost of each plane to as much as $2 billion.

If the rate of production were cut to two bombers a year to keep the annual cost to less than $5 billion, it would cost $118.4 billion to buy only 66 planes, the CBO said in a report released by Sen. Cranston....

"Congress should consider these significant economic inefficiencies before deciding to slow B-2 production as opposed to proceeding quickly with production or canceling it outright," the CBO report said.

Cranston said the CBO report, which raised the projected cost of the B-2 by about $3 billion above the latest Air Force estimate, "confirmed what we have been saying all along: The B-2 bomber is bleeding the taxpayer dry. The only way to stop this hemorrhage of money is to kill the B-2 once and for all."

NATIONAL NEWS

BUSH OFFICIALS SAY WAR ON DRUGS IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL IS A FAILURE

Bush Administration officials say they have concluded that a year-old effort to make the nation's capital a "test case" in the war on drugs has largely failed.

Their conclusions are expected to be reflected in a report on the program to be released this month by William Bennett.

The fingerpointing has already begun, though....

Federal officials say the city has failed to demonstrate a broad commitment to controlling drug abuse and that this is reflected in the January arrest of Mayor Barry on cocaine charges.

City officials, in turn, blame Bennett, saying he oversold the program from the beginning and failed to back up his promises with federal money. Federal officials were discussing the report in advance of its release in hopes that news accounts would focus on the city's failures and not those of Bennett. "They get their spin this way," said the official, who spoke on the condition that he not be named.

PRESIDENT HONORS SAN DIEGO TEACHER

President Bush presented a crystal apple and a note of thanks to Janis T. Gabay of San Diego's Serra High School in a ceremony Wednesday at which she was named 1990 National Teacher of the Year.

"Over the past 17 months, she has developed her sense of power to motivate minds, to give kids a sense of wonder and bless them with a life of possibilities unimagined in ordinary moments," Bush said of Gabay.

The 39-year-old Gabay...fought back tears as she accepted the award, along with a handshake from the President and a kiss from Barbara Bush. She thanked officials for providing "a credible and assertive voice to this nation's concerns about education." ...

During the ceremony, Bush said Gabay "understands that a real education goes far beyond acquiring skills. It instills a lifelong love of learning."

Bush Honors Teacher Of The Year

President Bush honored the national teacher of the year Wednesday, saying she represents "ambassadors to the most powerful province mankind might command, that great undiscovered realm right under your hat."

Janis Gabay, a 10th- and 12th-grade English teacher at Junipero Serra High School in San Diego, received a crystal apple and a one-year speaking itinerary that will take her to every state as well as Japan, the Soviet Union and other European countries.

"Over the past 17 years she has developed her power to motivate minds, to give kids a sense of wonder and bless them with a life of possibilities unimagined in ordinary moments," Bush told a gathering of several hundred education officials....

"By recognizing my work, you recognize all of us," Gabay said. She became emotional at the end of her remarks when she said, "You've helped me achieve the American dream." (Frank Murray, Washington Times, A3)

BUSH'S POPULARITY AMONG BLACKS CONTINUES TO RISE

...Last night, in a speech to a black political think tank, President Bush predicted a black man or woman will soon be president.

"Black Americans have challenged me and my Administration to live up to the highest ideals of the civil rights movement," he said. "I accept that challenge."

But some, including Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, fear Bush may be all style and predict his moment of truth is near despite good appointments and unmatched black access to the White House....

Bush has chosen 47 blacks for top jobs, 8 percent of his choices....

In his speech last night to the Joint Center for Political Studies, Bush said he is heartened that the number of black elected officials rose from 200 nationwide in 1968 to 6,000 two decades later.

"The day will come, and it is not far off, when the legacy of Lincoln will finally be fulfilled at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, when a black man or woman will sit in the Oval Office," Bush said.

BUSH SPEAKS ON CIVIL RIGHTS

President Bush told the nation's oldest black think-tank Wednesday that although "prejudice and racial tensions still exist," the "day will come -- and it is not far off" when a black will be elected president.

Speaking at the 20th anniversary dinner of the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, Bush also declared: "We can take hope that the age of apartheid is nearing a close" in South Africa.

The gathering of several hundred of America's top black officials...gave Bush's speech on civil rights a rather subdued response.

The President's appearance came just hours after his Administration threatened to veto the Civil Rights Act of 1990.... Center officials say [Bush's high popularity figures among blacks] may change rapidly if Bush remains opposed to the proposed [bill].

ADMINISTRATION THREATENS VETO OF CIVIL RIGHTS MEASURE

The Bush Administration, risking its first confrontation with civil rights groups, threatened Wednesday to veto legislation designed to reverse a series of controversial Supreme Court decisions that sharply restricted the reach of federal employment discrimination laws.

President Bush, in a speech to a civil rights audience Wednesday night, made no mention of the controversy about the legislation. White House officials said the President prefers a separate, Administration supported measure that would reverse two of the court's decisions but support the court's position on three others. A senior official called a letter threatening a veto "part of what we hope will be a negotiating process."

The legislation...cleared the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee Wednesday by an 11 to 5 vote. The bill's backers, noting the measure has 40 cosponsors in the Senate and 140 in the House, said they were confident it would pass both chambers within the next few months.

But in a tough letter delivered late Tuesday night, Attorney General Thornburgh declared the bill unacceptable and charged that it would lead to racial quotas in the workplace. If the bill passes in its current form, Thornburgh said, "I and other senior advisers would recommend that it be vetoed."

SENATE CONFIRMS SWEET

The Senate confirmed Robert Sweet as the government's top juvenile policeman Wednesday although Sen. Biden said he was not convinced of the nominee's commitment to the post.

The Senate approved by voice vote the nomination of Sweet as administrator of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention in the Justice Department.

Biden said, "At a time when we need a strong committed leader...I believe Mr. Sweet is demonstrably lacking.... I came away with doubts about his commitment." (UPI)

SENATE, 62-37, BACKS RYAN FOR S&L POST Outcome Is Victory For White House

The Senate voted 62 to 37 Wednesday to confirm Timothy Ryan, the Bush Administration's nominee to head the Office of Thrift Supervision and oversee the cleanup of the nation's ailing savings and loan industry....

Secretary Brady phoned senators over the weekend, and Ryan himself met with at least seven senators Wednesday morning in a last-ditch effort to persuade them he could handle the job....

"I gave him the benefit of the doubt. The President wanted him," said Sen. Shelby, one of 17 Democrats who voted with the Administration. After the vote, Shelby said he wasn't worried about Ryan's lack of business or banking experience. "Half the Cabinet members don't have any experience in their areas," he said....

Ryan's nomination also was the first for high government office of a person who had admitted that he had used cocaine....

"This game was a lost closer than it looked," said [one White House lobbyist]. Only after victory was certain did several Democrats back the White House nominee. (Steven Mufson, Washington Post, A1)

Ryan Confirmed As Chief S&L Regulator

Labor lawyer Timothy Ryan was confirmed Wednesday as chief regulator of the savings and loan industry despite efforts by most Senate Democrats to kill his nomination....

"This is really not the time for on-the-job training," said Sen. Riegle.... Riegle...later promised to work with Ryan and said he has nothing against him personally. "I like the nominee," Riegle said....

"We don't have time for a rookie on this team," said Sen. Graham.

"Good lord, what are we coming to?" said Sen. Wirth. Wirth compared the Ryan nomination to asking a student just out of medical school to perform a delicate operation....

Republicans argued that Ryan's lack of experience with S&Ls could be a plus rather than a minus in his new job.

"I don't think you have to be an insider, a thrift expert, to regulate the thrift industry," said Sen. Dole. "The insiders got us where we are today." (Kenneth Eskey, Scripps Howard)

S&L RESCUE FORCES TREASURY TO INCREASE BORROWING

The bailout of America's battered S&L industry has forced the government to increase its borrowing estimates for the April-June quarter by billions of dollars, the Treasury Department said Wednesday.

Market borrowing through the sale of government bonds and other securities will be at least between $10 and $15 billion, with a cash balance of $30 billion on June 30...compared with the previous announced range of $5 to $10 billion and a cash balance of $35 billion, the department said in a brief statement.

"The increase in the Treasury's borrowing need is largely attributable to financing in the working needs of the Resolution Trust Corp.," the statement said.

In Chicago, David Hale, chief economist for Kemper Financial Services, said, "We've all known there was going to be a need for more S&L borrowing.... I don't think it's going to be a decisive event."

GREENSPAN URGES REPEAL OF BANKING LAW

Fed Chairman Greenspan said Wednesday that Congress can boost international competitiveness of U.S. banks by repealing the Glass-Steagall Act, which keeps banks from doing securities work.

Greenspan, in remarks before a subcommittee of the House Banking Committee, also said competitiveness could be enhanced by lowering the cost of capital to U.S. banks....

"Our laws greatly inhibit the ability of U.S. banks to evolve along with technological and other changes and to achieve the synergies which come from producing multiple, but similar, products and services," Greenspan said.

RISE IN FIRMS' TOP TAX RATE TO BE DISCUSSED

A short list of tax-increase options prepared for the House Budget Committee's chairman includes raising the top tax rate on corporations and limiting the deduction for state and local taxes.

Besides these newcomers to this year's fiscal debate, other options on the closely guarded list include raising the top rate on individuals, suspending a provision that ties tax brackets to inflation, and increasing the gasoline tax, the cigarette tax and other excise taxes.

The document was prepared for Rep. Panetta for use in continuing, closed-door sessions of the House Budget Committee.... The document presents various plans calling for tax increases that range from $18.1 billion to $13.9 billion, the amount Democrats say President Bush is proposing.

MITCHELL SAYS HE MAY PUSH FOR STRONGER CLEAN AIR BILL

Sen. Mitchell said Wednesday he may push for a stronger clean air bill than the one the Senate passed Tuesday night.

Mitchell, in a morning-after session with reporters following the bill's 89 to 11 passage, said he is no longer bound to the agreement with the White House that produced the compromise legislation.

...Asked what changes he might seek in the legislation once it reaches a House-Senate conference, Mitchell mentioned his preference for a mandatory second round of automobile emissions reductions.

FEE-SHARING FLOATED TO WOO STATES ON OFFSHORE DRILLING
Interior Plan Is 'Sweetener' With OMB's Nod

Senior Bush Administration officials seeking to persuade coastal states to accept offshore oil and gas drilling on the Outer Continental Shelf have floated the idea of sharing the fees collected from the drilling with the states.

In two speeches to industry groups, Secretary Lujan said it was "one idea worth exploring."

Robert Grady, associate director for natural resources of the OMB, endorsed it at a meeting of the National Ocean Industries Association, according to participants....

A spokesman for Lujan confirmed that Interior is proposing a "sweetener" to make offshore drilling more attractive to state and local officials, and said OMB had approved it. Administration sources said OMB has not endorsed the idea but is exploring several ways to make drilling more attractive to the states. (Thomas Lippman, Washington Post, A4)

ATWATER'S SURGEON SAYS BRAIN TUMOR
IS 'AGGRESSIVE AND DANGEROUS'

The surgeon treating RNC Chairman Atwater said Wednesday that his brain tumor is "aggressive and dangerous" but that it would be three months before the prognosis can be determined.

"The way things look now, his chances of survival are good, but we won't know that for another three months," Paul Kornblith, chairman of neurological surgery at Montefiore Medical Center in New York, said in an interview. He said Atwater will now begin chemotherapy.

Kornblith said Atwater "successfully completed" on Tuesday a specialized radiation procedure...allowing a massive dose of radiation to be delivered directly into the tumor....

Kornblith described Atwater as having no significant side effects from the treatment and said his youth, his "fighting spirit," the small size of the tumor and its location all help significantly in his chances for survival.

SULLIVAN FAILS TO BACK AIDS TRAVEL LEGISLATION

Secretary Sullivan surprised fellow members of the National AIDS Commission Wednesday by apparently abandoning support for a bill giving him power to lift travel restrictions on AIDS-infected foreigners.

An HHS spokesman, who asked not to be named, said Sullivan does not back a new bill aimed at eliminating the AIDS-related travel restrictions that may spur international boycotts of medical meetings hosted by the U.S.

"At this time, we do not support the legislation. It is in the review process," the spokesman said Wednesday evening. He said the lack of support could not be equated as a neutral stance. (Rebecca Kolberg, UPI)

PUBLICATION OF AIDS PAMPHLET ON CONDOMS APPROVED

After almost two years of controversy and delay, the HHS Department has approved an AIDS education pamphlet describing the value of condoms and how to use them.

FAA DISPUTES PAN AM ON INSPECTIONS

Agency Called Actions Adequate
Before Lockerbie, Faulty Afterward

The FAA said Wednesday it did not give Pan American World Airways permission before the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 in 1988 to X-ray unaccompanied luggage rather than hand-search it, sharply contradicting earlier testimony from the airline.

The Presidential commission investigating the crash also made public a series of FAA security inspections saying that Pan Am's security procedures in Frankfurt, where the flight originated, remained grossly inadequate for eight months following the crash. However, FAA inspections in the months leading up to the crash gave Pan Am passing grades and failed to mention any irregularities concerning baggage searches.

JACKSON ATTACKS DEMOCRATIC MODERATES

Jesse Jackson, who two weeks ago claimed he and Democratic moderates were at peace, attacked that faction Wednesday, claiming it had a "perverted view" of the party's tradition....

"The Democratic Leadership Council said in their New Orleans Declaration that they stood for 'equal opportunity' but not for 'equal results.' They quoted the names of FDR, Truman, Kennedy and LBJ who, they said, stood in that tradition of the Democratic Party as well," Jackson said Wednesday.

"I think that's a perverted view of that tradition," he charged.

"To say you stand for equal opportunity, but not for equal results, is either a non sequitur, or a statement based on racist or sexist assumptions," he added.

NETWORK NEWS

Wednesday evening, April 4

LITHUANIA

NBC's Tom Brokaw: For some time now presidents Bush and Gorbachev have been moving toward a June summit meeting on the next stage of arms control. But now there's a new wrinkle -- Lithuania's bold move for independence. When Secretary Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze met today Baker was aware one of Gorbachev's leading advisers had talked with Lithuanian officials.

NBC's John Dancy reports that as Baker and Shevardnadze began two and-a-half days of talks at the State Department, the news from Moscow had removed some of the pressure. Earlier in the day Baker said the U.S. had a degree of concern about Lithuania, but --

(Baker: "We are encouraged by the fact that it would appear, at least, that there are the beginnings of such a dialogue.")

Shevardnadze defended Soviet actions in Lithuania as legitimate.

(Shevardnadze: "Well, I think there is no use of force. Of course in many countries, in any state, measures are taken in order to have order, in order to have a normal situation. And it is this elementary order that is being established.")

Even as the Bush Administration tiptoed around the issue, pro-independence Lithuanian-Americans were demonstrating again in Washington. Their pleas for a stronger stand from the Bush Administration are finding some sympathy in Congress, where 31 senators signed a letter to President Bush asking him to support Lithuanian self-determination. A senator who is leaving for Lithuania hammered the Administration for not taking a harder line.

(Sen. D'Amato: "Like the Wizard of Oz it would seem to me it's about time we got behind that screen and don't let Gorbeymania have us blinded to the truth and to the reality of what is taking place -- the suppression of a people.")

The Bush Administration has tied its East-West policy to Gorbachev's survival, and that may explain the delicate treatment. Tonight the Senate Democratic and Republican leaders will warn Shevardnadze the Senate is ready to push the Soviets, perhaps on trade.

Brokaw reports that at the same time in Moscow talks between Lithuanian and Soviet officials only went so far. Most of the Lithuanian team returned home when the Soviet defense minister and interior minister refused to see them. Meanwhile more than 5,000 people opposed to independence demonstrated today in Vilnius.

(NBC-Lead)

CBS's Dan Rather: Secretary Baker late today opened talks with his Soviet counterpart as President Bush continued trying to downplay the impact of the crisis in Lithuania on future superpower relations. But in Moscow Mikhail Gorbachev had a blunt warning for one of Lithuania's neighbors.

CBS's Lesley Stahl: The White House made it explicitly clear today that the situation in Lithuania will not derail plans for a Bush-Gorbachev summit this June, and that despite growing criticism on Capitol Hill of his policy, Bush is determined to proceed business as usual with the Soviets. Three days of talks between Secretary Baker and Foreign Minister Shevardnadze begin this afternoon, talks about improving relations, about arms control and trade. And at the top of the agenda, U.S. hopes that the standoff in Lithuania can be solved.

(Baker: "We'll be exploring the question of the degree to which there is in fact the beginnings of some dialogue in Moscow. I've just learned, just before coming down here, that some meetings that were scheduled with the interior minister have in fact not taken place, and I'd like to inquire about why that is and what the reason for that is.")

Asked about Soviet troop movements in Lithuania, Shevardnadze denied that constitutes the use of force. But he went on to explain.

(Shevardnadze: "Of course in any country, in any state, measures are taken in order to have order, in order to have a normal situation. And it is this elementary order that is being established.")

On Capitol Hill, widespread unhappiness with the President's go-gently-on-Moscow approach. The House voted 416 to 3 for a resolution urging Bush to take a stronger stand supporting an independent Lithuania. And 31 senators signed a letter telling the President that his warnings against the use of force have not been effective and urging him to spell out the consequences if more military action is taken.

(Sen. D'Amato: "What we have to tell Mr. Gorbachev: 'Mr. Gorbachev, if you use tanks, if you suppress people, no trade with the United States.'")

The two leaders of the Senate, Mitchell and Dole, requested a meeting with Shevardnadze tonight to reinforce that very message -- that if the Soviet army moves into Lithuania Congress will find it impossible to ratify arms control agreements or go along with new trade concessions.

CBS's Martha Teichner reports that a defiant Lithuanian parliament was ready to give a flat 'no' to President Gorbachev's demand to rescind its declaration of independence, but as the lawmakers began debating their position they reconsidered and agreed to discuss a softer, more conciliatory response tomorrow. This sudden change of heart reflected the upbeat mood of Lithuania's delegation to Moscow. After friendly remarks from Soviet officials in talks with Gorbachev's top political ally, the Lithuanian delegation left for home tonight.

(Algimantas Cekoulis, aid to Lithuanian President Landsbergis: "So lines are open. We are very willing to have negotiations with Moscow and it's up to Moscow to call it dialogue or just chit-chat. Never mind.")

But the Soviets are maintaining their grip on Lithuania in spite of signs both sides could be moving toward compromise. The Lithuanian border with Poland is still closed. Angry Poles accused Moscow of rebuilding the Iron Curtain. Moscow accused Poland of interfering -- taking Lithuania's side. President Gorbachev may be giving the Lithuanians room to maneuver but he does not appear to be weakening on the issue of independence.

(CBS-Lead)

ABC's Peter Jennings: In Washington today the House passed a resolution in support of the Lithuanian independence movement and called on the Soviet Union to negotiate a peaceful settlement with the Baltic republic. The House voted just as Secretary Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze sat down to talk. And Lithuania was at the top of their agenda.

ABC's John McWethy reports that early in the day after meeting with the West German foreign minister, Secretary Baker was upbeat on the Lithuanian situation because it appeared that a series of meetings between Moscow and Vilnius was finally underway.

(Secretary Baker: "We are encouraged by the fact that it would appear, at least, that there are the beginnings of such a dialogue.") But by late afternoon, just before his first meeting with Shevardnadze, Baker no longer sounded so encouraged. An appointment between the Lithuanian delegation in Moscow and a Soviet official had been canceled.

(Baker: "I've just learned, just before coming down here, that some meetings that were scheduled with the interior minister have in fact not taken place. And I'd like to inquire about why that is.")

When Shevardnadze finally arrived, in public anyway, he pleaded ignorance.

(Shevardnadze: "I'm not aware of what is happening.")

When asked if rolling tanks down the streets of Lithuania's capital, shutting down its borders and seizing printing presses was not in fact using force on Lithuania, Shevardnadze said no.

(Shevardnadze: "Well, I think that there is no use of force. Of course in any country, in any state, measures are taken in order to have order.")

American officials say no dates of a Bush-Gorbachev summit has yet been set because the Bush Administration is purposely dragging its feet. Everyone expects that a summit will happen, but the U.S. is waiting to make a formal announcement until it is convinced that Moscow is resolving the Lithuanian crisis. (ABC-5)

ESTONIA

Jennings: A warning to Estonia today from President Gorbachev. He called the president of the Estonian republic last night and used what the Estonian leader called "harsh words" warning the Estonians to reverse their call for step-by-step independence or face the same kind of rough treatment that Lithuania is getting. (ABC-6)

S&Ls/RYAN

Jennings: We begin tonight with the man the President has picked to pick up the pieces from the worst financial scandal there's ever been in the U.S., the collapse of a S&L industry. This afternoon the Senate approved the nomination of Timothy Ryan to be the number one regulator of an industry which is losing billions of dollars every year and may cost the taxpayer as much as $250 billion to save, perhaps even more. Ryan freely admits what his critics have charged, that he has no financial experience. He's a lawyer.

ABC's Jim Wooten reports that today on the Senate floor Ryan's nomination faced a parade of dubious Democrats led by the banking chairman Riegle of Michigan.

(Riegle: "And we're being asked to hurry somebody into that position who has no serious financial background and training.")

Dixon of Illinois concurred -- not a serious nomination, he said.

(Dixon: "We labored and we have brought forth a mouse.")

In fact, Dixon himself brought forth an old-fashioned stem-winder -- rare these days in the Senate.

(Dixon: "My lord. He's going to be approved here! He's going to be confirmed!")

And Dixon was right. After six hours of debate it wasn't even close: 62 yeas and 37 nays. Seventeen Democrats voted for Ryan after intensive lobbying by Secretary Brady and the White House. So the task of cleaning up and bailing out the country's S&L industry goes to a 44-year-old labor lawyer and Republican activist who himself concedes that his credentials are so thin he was surprised to be offered the job. But the Senate's action today may mark the birth of a new era in its consideration of federal nominees. Ryan voluntarily told the FBI that 17 years ago as a student he smoked marijuana and used cocaine. That didn't seem to matter to any of the senators today, including those who voted against him.

ABC's Kathleen deLaski reports that the government is trying to save as many S&Ls as it can, but congressional critics say it is taking too long.

(Rep. Schumer: "They are brain dead and they ought to be shot as quickly as possible. And yet while Rome burns the people who are supposed to be closing them are fiddling.")

Consumer groups charge that the government is not moving fast enough to unload the assets and that the delay is costing millions of dollars in maintenance costs. The man in charge of selling off the assets said more has been accomplished than the public realizes, but there is a lot of work ahead.

(William Seidman: "Clearly we will be in better shape to really get moving when all the people who are going to be in charge are in place.")

It was considered a monumental feat last summer when Congress authorized approximately $120 billion to bail out the S&Ls. By some estimates the job will cost more than twice that amount. Perhaps the hardest part of Timothy Ryan's job will be convincing Congress to come up with the money.

TRADE TALKS

Brokaw: In Washington Administration officials are almost giddy tonight over what they see as major progress in trade talks with the Japanese. For their part, the Japanese delegates were not eager for too much praise.

NBC's John Cochran reports that at the request of the Japanese the White House permitted no pictures of their meeting with President Bush. Japanese officials fear they will be attacked in Tokyo for giving away the store to the President. But they are relieved that the prospects of a trade war has faded.

Cochran continues: The U.S. had threatened to double taxes on some Japanese products unless Tokyo lowered barriers to three American exports. Agreement was reached on two: supercomputers and satellites. Japan also made concessions which would make it easier for Americans to sell lumber and finished wood products. The U.S. will try to get more concessions when talks resume in Tokyo next week. The Japanese take seriously a congressional threat to impose trade sanctions in June. Japan's confidence seems shaken by recent financial reverses which make the threat of a trade war with its biggest customer unthinkable. Sen. Baucus and others in Congress want to see the fine print in any agreement before they agree to stop threatening Tokyo. (NBC-2)

GERMANY

Jennings: There was another major step today towards the eventual unification of Germany. East German political leaders agreed to ask the leader of East Germany's Christian Democrats to try to form the country's first non-communist government. West German officials announced that as soon as that government is in place the West will open talks with the East on having a single German currency. (ABC-7, CBS-18)

ISRAEL

Jennings reports that in Israel the leader of the Labor Party, Shimon Peres, announced today that he now has enough support in the Israeli parliament to form a new coalition government. (ABC-8, NBC-3, CBS-2)

CARTER/ARAFAT

Brokaw: In Paris today former President Carter met privately with PLO leader Arafat and French President Mitterrand. Later Carter blamed Middle East leaders for stalling the peace process. (NBC-4, CBS-3)

COLOMBIA

Brokaw: Colombia's President Barco today said that cocaine boss Pablo Escobar will not be extradited to the U.S. if he surrenders. It's the first time that Barco has made that offer. The cocaine wars have flared again. Thirteen Colombia law enforcement officers have been killed in the last two days. (NBC-6)

Rather reports that drug traffickers in Colombia took responsibility today for kidnapping a member of Colombia's senate. They threatened to execute him. (CBS-10)

EL SALVADOR

Brokaw: The long-running war between the government of El Salvador and guerrillas may be moving to a new stage now. In Geneva today negotiators met and agreed that a truce is their first objective. (NBC-5)

AZT

ABC's George Strait reports that AZT has been successful in prolonging the lives of persons sick with AIDS. It's now been shown in a new study to be successful in treating persons who are infected with the AIDS virus but show no symptoms. The drug can postpone for two years or more the onset of AIDS symptoms like pneumonia and other infections that ultimately kill these patients. Because of these results doctors say early testing is a must. The government estimates that there are a million Americans infected with the AIDS virus who don't know it. Officials hope today's study will encourage more people to seek testing and treatment. (ABC-2, NBC-7)

ATWATER

Rather: Doctors treating RNC Chairman Atwater tonight described his brain tumor as "aggressive and dangerous." They said he will need chemotherapy in addition to the radiation treatments he got this week. (CBS-7)

FORD/NIXON

Jennings reports that Gerald Ford had surgery in California today. His left knee, which he injured playing football in college, was replaced. And Richard Nixon has a heart problem. Doctors say it is not life-threatening, but it does affect his stamina and he will rest at home for a couple of weeks. (ABC-3, NBC-9, CBS-8)

BOESKY

Rather reports that former stocks speculator Ivan Boesky completed his federal prison term today. The 53-year-old Boesky early this morning signed out of a halfway house in Brooklyn. (CBS-9)

KING MARCH

Rather: Several hundred people, many from labor unions, marched past the Lorraine Motel [phonetic] in Memphis today. They were remembering and honoring slain civil rights leader the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. King was assassinated at the Memphis motel 22 years ago today. He was in Tennessee that day to support a sanitation workers strike. (CBS-13)

KLAN TV PROGRAM

Rather: Following a two-year legal battle a television program produced by the KKK was seen for the first time on a public-access cable channel in Kansas City.
(Klansman speaking to camera: "White man, we ask you to join us in our racial community. For you are no longer an alien among them, but a klansman with us.")
When Klan members showed up at a studio to tape the program Kansas City police arrested three of them on weapons charges. (CBS-14)

VAUGHAN

Jennings reports that singer Sarah Vaughan was 66 when she died last night at her home in Los Angeles from lung cancer. She began with the great jazz musicians of the early 1940s. Ella Fitzgerald called Sarah Vaughan the greatest singing talent in the world.

(ABC-11, NBC-14, CBS-16)

OWL

Brokaw reports that a government panel recommended today that to save the northern spotted owl logging must be halted in large parts of the Pacific Northwest, a victory for environmentalists, anger from the people who work in the timber business.

NBC's Don Oliver reports that members of a blue-ribbon scientific committee told a congressional hearing today that the owl is imperiled, threatened by the face of logging operations. The committee recommended that vast areas of old-growth timber, including trees 200 years old, be put off limits to loggers to protect the nesting places of the owls. The forest service estimates the spotted owl plan would reduce by one-third the timber harvest in the affected states.

U.S.-MEXICO TRADE

U.S.-Mexico Free Trade -- "Almost a third of Mexico's huge foreign debt is owed to U.S. banks. More than 60 percent of Mexico's exports go to the U.S. Despite tightened immigration laws, large numbers of Mexicans find jobs in the U.S. The U.S. depends considerably on Mexican oil. These are all reasons why a free-trade agreement between these two countries would be important.... Canada and the U.S. started implementing free trade Jan. 1, 1989. Most trade barriers are to fall by 1999. If a Mexican deal is completed, it will create to a degree a North American free trade area from the Arctic to the Yucatan peninsula. There has been some concern that the world is dividing into three major trade blocs -- North America, Europe, and Japan and its Asian neighbors. To some extent this is normal economics. However, a great effort must be made to see that current GATT negotiations continue to lower trade barriers between these regions." (Christian Science Monitor, 4/3)

Goods Across The Border -- "...When Mexico and Canada signed a prototype trade agreement a fortnight ago, Herminio Blanco, Mexican undersecretary of trade, declared: 'Canada, the U.S. and Mexico could offer good competition to any bloc formed around the world.' His words reflected the new thinking of his president.... Although presidents Reagan and Bush have championed a 'North American Accord,' Washington might find a trade pact with Mexico at least as difficult as it will be for the Salinas government. On the protectionist side, U.S. labor unions will fight any lowering of barriers to Mexican labor and the export of jobs below the Rio Grande. On the anti-protectionist side, others will argue that the emergence of huge regional blocs could undercut efforts to liberalize trade globally. Nonetheless, Latin America beckons the U.S. as surely as Eastern Europe beckons Western Europe." (Baltimore Sun, 4/3)

A Common Market For The Americas -- "...Critics worry that U.S.-Mexico trade talks will detract from the ongoing effort by 100 countries to update and toughen the general rules for trade around the world. But those negotiations, called the Uruguay Round, are scheduled to be completed in December, long before a U.S.-Mexico pact could be signed. Every effort should be made to ensure a stronger world trading system, but bilateral agreements like the one between Canada and the U.S. -- the first to deal with trade in services as well as goods -- can provide a model for resolving difficult issues worldwide. There's also concern about how South America and the rest of Central America would react to a new Canada-U.S.-Mexican economic community. Canada's entry into the OAS late last year indicates its willingness to cooperate. It should be made clear from the beginning that the unified market would not exclude increased trade and cooperation with the rest of the hemisphere. It's human nature, though, to pay special attention to your neighbors. Last year President Salinas launched an ambitious economic reform program that has lowered tariffs, cut government regulation and encouraged foreign investment. President Bush has elevated Mexico's importance in overall Latin American policy. Both men are pragmatists. They know Japan and a unified Europe will be powerful economic competitors in world markets. It's high time to talk about a single Canadian-U.S.-Mexican market, and eventually expand it to the rest of the hemisphere."

(Chicago Tribune, 4/2)

Our Own Common Market -- "...We must admit to having mixed feelings about bilateral free trade agreements. They are a disincentive to pursue free trade across the board. They are, however, better than the protectionist alternatives. Besides, any hint that Mexico is about to emerge from its autarkic Third World mind-set ought to be encouraged by all parties.... The obstacles are great. For the last 70 years, Mexico has pursued a highly nationalistic economic policy aimed at preventing American 'domination' of its economy. Proposing to end that policy is going against the grain of the political culture, never an easy thing in any country. Just look at the paranoid fears many Americans have about Japan. While a freer economic system might be painful for Mexico at first, it is the only way that country can develop its potential. And while the threat of low-wage labor may scare many Americans, it is in the U.S.'s long-term interests to have a more prosperous -- and hence more stable -- Mexico on its borders. The Bush Administration and President Salinas deserve congratulations for taking the Reagan vision of the North American common market one step further." (Detroit News, 4/1)

A Fast Deal With Mexico Unlikely -- "...While many Mexicans like and even admire their powerful northern neighbor, they genuinely worry about their economy, even their very culture, being overwhelmed if Mexicans buy all the American blue jeans, Coke and rock records they can get their hands on. And these are not just leftist intellectuals in Mexico City: Some conservative Mexican businessmen don't relish the thought of competing with U.S. companies, either. To complicate matters further, Mexico could fairly ask for things under a free-trade agreement that would drive many U.S. citizens up a wall, such as an open border Mexicans could cross at will to look for jobs in the U.S. Law-enforcement officials and labor unions, to mention just a couple of not-insignificant interest groups, would howl in protest over that one. With all the similarities of language, culture and economic development between Canada and the U.S., it took three years to hammer out a free-trade agreement, and it'll take another 10 to phase it into full operation. Given the greater disparities between the U.S. and Mexico, a similar agreement may take decades."

(Los Angeles Times, 4/1)

For Mexico, It's No Fad -- "...Are bilateral free trade pacts a sound policy -- or a dangerous fad? In the case of Mexico, a close neighbor and large trade partner, the answer is sound policy. In the case of more distant nations, the answer is dangerous fad. A proliferation of bilateral pacts would undermine current U.S. efforts to negotiate multilateral, non-discriminatory trade agreements. There is obvious appeal to the idea of a free trade pact between the U.S. and Mexico. U.S. capital and high-tech exports would flow into Mexico, directly helping consumers and forcing Mexican businesses to produce better and cheaper goods. And the mere fact of such an agreement would mark an end to Mexico's 80-year policy of economic protectionism; foreign investors around the globe would be likely to respond favorably.... Yet bilateral free trade pacts may also victimize innocent allies. If Mexico, or Eastern Europe, for that matter, gains privileged access to the U.S., exports from Central and South America of items like textiles will suffer.... Negotiations over a new international trade agreement are at a delicate stage and are scheduled to conclude by the end of the year. A rush to sign new bilateral pacts would signal a weakened U.S. resolve to establish fair rules that apply equally to everyone. Now is not the time to send such a message."

News From the Hill

SENATE FLOOR: Ryan approved as new head of OTS.

The Senate yesterday voted, 62-37, to approve the nomination of T. Timothy Ryan to head the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

Despite the wide margin by which Ryan was confirmed, members still engaged in a spirited day-long debate over the nominee's qualifications.

Democrats argued that Ryan, a Washington labor lawyer, was unqualified to head the agency that oversees the savings and loan industry.

Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., said it would be unfair to appoint a novice in banking matters to head an agency heavily involved in taking over failing thrifts.

Ryan's supporters, led by John W. Warner, R-Va., said Ryan could handle the job and insisted that the nominee be allowed to take over the job immediately. Ryan is replacing M. Danny Wall, who resigned in March after three years on the job as the government's top thrift regulator. (See Background, p. 2)

The Senate also approved, by voice vote, the nomination of Robert Sweet to head the Justice Department's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

HOUSE FLOOR: Economic development bill gains approval.

The House yesterday overwhelmingly approved a bill (HR 2015) to authorize the Economic Development Administration (EDA) at $276 million a year and the Appalachian Regional Commission at $185 million annually for fiscal 1991 through 1993.

The measure, passed 340-82, would provide funds for highways, public facilities construction and enhancement, and small business investment programs. It aims to promote economic diversification and to create jobs in economically troubled regions.

Accepted by voice vote were amendments by Bill Grant, R-Fla., to allow the Commerce Department to provide EDA grants amounting to 80 percent of the costs of projects in the most economically depressed areas and by James A. Traficant Jr., D-Ohio, requiring that federal dollars spent under the bill purchase American-made products.

The House also approved Senate amendments to HR 1048, clearing the bill for the president. The bill would require the Justice Department to collect data from 1990 through 1994 on crimes motivated by racial, ethnic, religious or sexual orientation related prejudice.

In other business, members passed a resolution (H Con Res 289), 416-3, calling on the Soviet Union to negotiate with the new government in Lithuania and to refrain from exerting undue military or economic pressure on the state, which has declared its independence from the Soviet Union.

CIVIL RIGHTS bill would overturn recent high court decisions.

The Senate Labor Committee yesterday approved a comprehensive civil rights bill (S 2104) aimed at reversing six recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions that bill sponsors said weakened laws protecting against job discrimination.

The measure, approved 11-5, would reverse the court's Wards Cove ruling, which shifted the burden of proof in racial or sexual job discrimination cases from employers to employees.

It also takes aim at the Martin v. Wilks decision, which allows consent decrees settling job discrimination suits to be reconsidered.

The bill would provide victims of religious and sexual discrimination access to the same legal remedies available to those who have suffered racial discrimination on the job.

Today

Floor Action: The Senate will take up a fiscal 1990 supplemental authorization (S 2364), which includes aid for Panama and Nicaragua. Also slated for action is a vocational education bill (S 1109).

The House is not in session.

OIRA Markup: The Senate Governmental Affairs panel will mark up legislation (S 1742) to restrict the authority of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) to review draft rules issued by federal agencies.

Many Democrats say the bureau, a division of the Office of Management and Budget, subjects proposed regulations to political litmus tests.

President Bush has threatened to veto the bill, maintaining that any curbs on OIRA should be implemented through an informal agreement, rather than written into law. But bill sponsor Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., says such an agreement would be unenforceable.

Action on the bill was delayed March 29 when ranking Republican William V. Roth Jr., Del., requested more time to work out a deal with the administration. But staffers say they doubt that much can be done to reconcile the administration's views with those of bill supporters.

Line-Item Veto: The Senate Judiciary Committee will try again today to mark up two resolutions (S J Res 14 and S J Res 23) proposing constitutional amendments to allow the president to veto individual items in appropriations bills.

The panel has put off action twice, but the delay does not seem to have increased support for the measures. Several panel members still fear that a line-item veto would make the president more powerful — at Congress' expense.

While S J Res 14 would require the standard two-thirds majority to override the president's veto of any appropriations provision, S J Res 23 would require only a simple majority.

NEWS from p. 1

Committee Chairman Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chief sponsor of the legislation, said he expects it to reach the Senate floor by early summer.

AIDS GRANTS for hard-hit cities win panel's approval.

The Senate Labor Committee yesterday approved legislation to authorize emergency grants to the 13 cities that have been hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic and whose public health systems are reported to be near collapse as a result.

The measure (S 2240), approved 16-0, would authorize $300 million for each of fiscal years 1991 and 1992 and "such sums as necessary" for fiscal years 1993-95 for "emergency relief and care grants" for areas reporting more than 2,000 cases of AIDS.

Eligible cities are: Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, San Francisco, San Juan and Washington, D.C.

The bill would authorize an equal amount for a separate program of grants to states to develop coordinated plans to provide care, treatment and support services to those infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

And the measure would require the newly created Agency for Health Care Policy and Research to evaluate the cost-effectiveness of various models for delivery of care and services to those with the AIDS and HIV disease.

AGE BIAS in employee benefits prevented by House bill.

The House Education and Labor

Committee yesterday set the stage for a loud and partisan floor debate on legislation to bar age discrimination in the granting of employee benefits.

The bill (HR 3200) faces a presidential veto threat and is being aggressively fought by Republicans and business interests.

The committee defeated nine GOP amendments and approved the bill on a party-line vote of 20-13.

The legislation is designed to overturn a U.S. Supreme Court decision in Public Employees Retirement System v. Betts that employers could discriminate against older workers in granting disability payments and other benefits.

Prior to that June 1989 decision, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) had prohibited such age-based discrimination in benefits unless it was justified by "significant cost considerations."

The House bill, and similar Senate legislation (S 1511), would restore the pre-Betts EEOC standard.

Before approving the bill, the committee adopted, 20-13, an amendment by William L. Clay, D-Mo., and Matthew G. Martinez, D-Calif., that would limit the circumstances under which employers could use waivers to shield themselves from age discrimination suits.

Backers of the amendment argue that workers are often exploited by employers who require them to waive their rights under the 1967 Age Discrimination in Employment Act in exchange for early retirement bonuses.

Under the amendment, which is identical to legislation (HR 1432) approved by the committee June 13, no waivers would be valid except as part of a settlement of an allegation of age discrimination made by a worker against an employer.

SENATE AGRICULTURE begins farm bill consideration.

The Senate Agriculture Committee launched into the 1990 farm bill yesterday, approving proposals that would tighten requirements for foreign countries seeking debt relief and that would prevent agents for other nations from abusing for personal gain the shipping provisions in U.S. food aid law.

Committee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said the draft bill's trade title, which the panel plans to complete today, "makes the most dramatic change in American foreign food policy in a decade."

He said the measure would improve the government's ability to provide food aid to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe and elsewhere.

The trade title — the same as an agricultural trade bill (S 2382) introduced by Leahy and ranking Republican

Lobbying Effort Bails Out Ryan

Pressured by legal challenges to last year's thrift bailout bill (PL 101-73), the Bush administration organized an extensive lobbying campaign to persuade the Senate to move quickly to confirm T. Timothy Ryan, a former Labor Department official, as chief regulator of the savings and loan industry. Although a close vote was expected, Ryan was approved yesterday by 62-37.

After spending months looking for a replacement for M. Danny Wall, who resigned in March after a tumultuous three years as thrift regulator, the administration was sent scurrying for a new regulator when a federal court ruling challenged the constitutionality of regulatory decisions made by an unconfirmed director.

Beside providing funds to bail out insolvent savings and loans, the thrift law revised the financial services regulatory structure, abolishing the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which Wall chaired, and replacing it with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

Due to a clause inserted in the bill, Wall was allowed to move into the new post of OTS director without being confirmed by the Senate. The federal court ruling suggested that decisions made by Wall's appointed successor, Acting Director Salvatore R. Martoche, could also be illegal.

The White House, eyeing the April 11 resumption of the court challenge, called for quick Senate approval of Ryan. But when the Senate Banking Committee reviewed the nomination, Republicans and Democrats alike questioned whether Ryan was the man for such an important job.

"Someone who doesn't know anything about thrifts I don't think is the kind of nominee we should have," Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., said. Beside overseeing the thrift industry, the OTS director sits on the five-member board of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

During his confirmation hearing, Ryan admitted he knew little about financial services regulation. But he promised the panel he would jump right into the job. "My reputation is as a doer. I get things done," Ryan told committee members.

Supporters of Ryan, such as Sen. John W. Warner, R-Va., pointed to his reputation as a tough enforcer of regulations.

By a thin 11-10 margin, Ryan was approved March 30 by the Senate Banking Committee after Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady was able to persuade Alabama Democrat Richard C. Shelby and Florida Republican Connie Mack to vote for the nomination.

To gather full Senate support for Ryan, the administration enlisted such diverse figures as Frank C. Carlucci, former defense secretary under President Ronald Reagan, and Hodding Carter III, former assistant secretary of state under President Jimmy Carter, to write letters attesting that Ryan was a good choice for the job.

Opponents of the nominee expressed shock at the administration effort to win Ryan's approval. "If they can twist arms to get votes... why can't they twist a few arms to get a qualified candidate?" a Senate staffer asked.

Richard G. Lugar, Ind., last week — would create a new marketing assistance program to help farmers compete for business overseas.

Members accepted amendments by Leahy and Lugar that would permit the president to forgive as much as $3 billion in debts of the poorest nations borrowing under the Food for Peace Program.

Tough eligibility standards for forgiveness would be established. Some members expressed concern that the standards might limit the president's ability to forgive the debts of needy countries the U.S. government wants to help, including its Latin American neighbors.

Leahy said he hopes the package, now a draft, will be reported from the committee next month.

SOYBEAN SUBSIDIES hold up action on one title of farm bill.

Soybeans proved too controversial a commodity to handle yesterday, and, consequently, the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains failed to complete action on its section of the omnibus farm bill.

Administration officials told the subcommittee that a soybean subsidy program put forward by the American Soybean Association would cost $3 billion over the next five years.

Subcommittee Chairman Dan Glickman, D-Kan., asked industry representatives to help devise a cheaper program.

If soybeans is to be given a generous new subsidy program, other lawmakers want equally generous subsidies extended to oilseeds, such as canola and sunflowers. But no consensus has yet emerged about how all these crops can be accommodated within the budget.

The subcommittee will continue its deliberations April 18.

ENERGY PANEL works to complete acid rain regulations.

Late yesterday the House Energy Committee was scheduled to mark up the acid rain provisions in clean air legislation (HR 3030).

Philip R. Sharp, D-Ind., was attempting to gather support for a compromise proposal that would provide some form of cost-sharing relief to Midwestern states whose utilities would have to bear the brunt of the bill's emissions reductions.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS holds up aid bill pending negotiations.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday held up reporting legislation (HR 4404) approved last week pending discussions with the administration over policy toward El Salvador.

The legislation includes $870 million in supplemental aid to Nicaragua and Panama and the entire fiscal 1991 appropriation for foreign aid.

Committee Chairman Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., said he would postpone reporting out the bill until congressional leaders and the secretary of state can discuss a bipartisan agreement on aid and policy toward El Salvador. If that agreement can be reached, it would be included in the bill.

Fascell said that if no agreement were found, amendments regarding El Salvador could still be included in the bill by committee members.

LEGAL IMMIGRATION bill begins to move in House Judiciary.

The House Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration yesterday started work on a bill (HR 4300) to overhaul the system for admitting legal immigrants to the United States.

By voice vote, panel members approved an amendment by Chairman Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., that would clarify a section of the bill dealing with criminal aliens, illegal aliens who commit crimes.

The subcommittee also turned back several amendments by ranking Republican Lamar Smith, Texas, to strike parts of the bill dealing with the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act, which bars employers from giving jobs to illegal aliens and prohibits hiring discrimination.

Morrison said he hopes to finish marking up the bill on April 19. On that day, he said, the panel will take up a provision that would create a plan to admit immigrants possessing crucial job skills and to link immigration levels to domestic labor shortages.

COASTAL WATERS protected under House Merchant Marine bills.

Two House Merchant Marine subcommittees yesterday approved by voice vote two bills designed to improve the quality of coastal waters.

The Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation Subcommittee and the Oceanography and Great Lakes Subcommittee jointly approved HR 2647, a bill that would set more stringent anti-pollution standards for coastal and Great Lakes waters and toughen federal enforcement of those regulations.

Monitor Telephone Services

Monitor subscribers may call an after-hours tape recording, (202) 887-8518, featuring new listings and late changes in committee schedules.

During business hours, subscribers may call the Monitor's Hotline question-and-answer service at (202) 887-8515 for scheduling information.

The legislation would require the federal government to impose coastal water-quality standards if states failed to develop their own, and would require the development of a national strategy to monitor coastal water quality.

HR 2647 also would direct the Environmental Protection Agency to establish standards for limiting "non-point source" pollution (such as runoff from farms and cities) of estuaries and bays.

The Oceanography and Great Lakes Subcommittee also approved, by voice vote, a bill (HR 4030) to reauthorize for five years the 1972 Coastal Zone Management Act. The legislation would provide funds, policy guidance and technical assistance to coastal states to help them establish and maintain coastal zone management programs.

The bill would authorize $64 million in fiscal 1991 and would give coastal states more authority to stop offshore oil and gas drilling — provisions that are opposed by the White House and the oil industry.

NOAA BUDGET increased by Merchant Marine action.

Two House Merchant Marine subcommittees yesterday approved by voice vote legislation (HR 4115) authorizing fiscal 1990 funding for ocean and coastal management programs of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

The measure — approved by the Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation and Oceanography and Great Lakes subcommittees — authorizes funds for NOAA's mapping and charting programs, which include nautical and aeronautical charting and survey work in the Exclusive Economic Zone.

The bill would also fund the agency's pollution assessment efforts and ocean and coastal programs.

RARE MINERALS research center wins Interior panel's OK.

The House Interior Committee yesterday gave voice vote approval to legislation (HR 4111) that would establish a new federally backed mineral research center to focus on the domestic production of rare and vitally needed minerals.

The research center, to be located at a university in the West, would receive funds from the Bureau of the Mines.

Its efforts would be directed toward developing new methods of mining and processing rare minerals such as platinum, vanadium, chromium, cobalt and manganese. These minerals, which are critical elements in a wide variety of consumer products and weapons, are supplied almost entirely from foreign sources.

The minerals are found domestically but cannot be mined or processed efficiently or economically using current technologies.

The committee also gave voice vote approval to:

- HR 3533, which would authorize a substantial increase in funding for the federal government's effort to reduce earthquake hazards.

The measure would authorize $110 million in fiscal 1991, $136 million in fiscal 1992, $170.5 million in fiscal 1993 and $210.75 million in fiscal 1994. Current funding is about $73 million.

Most of the funds would go to four agencies — Federal Emergency Management Agency, U.S. Geological Survey, National Science Foundation and National Institute of Standards and Technology.

- HR 544, which would earmark half of federal mineral lease receipts from acquired lands for a fish and wildlife preservation fund. The states would use the money — about $50 million annually — to support fish and wildlife habitat management activities.

- HR 3058, which would provide a financial incentive for a Nevada utility to relinquish coal leases near Bryce Canyon National Park, Utah. Development of the coal reserves would threaten the park.

UTILITY SURVEY in territories wins subcommittee backing.

The interior secretary would be directed to survey the water, sewer and electrical power needs of the nation's territories under legislation (HR 3596) approved yesterday by the House Interior Subcommittee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

Subcommittee Chairman Ron de Lugo, D-V.I., said many of the United States' insular areas lack adequate utilities. The study ordered by the bill would give decision-makers information about the extent of the problems and what should be done to resolve them.

NASA BUDGET gets large boost from House Science panel.

The House Science Subcommittee on Transportation, Aviation and Materials yesterday approved by voice vote a measure (HR 4196) that would authorize about $1.1 billion in fiscal 1991 for the aeronautics programs of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The total is about $45 million more than the Bush administration has proposed.

The panel also voted to prohibit the use of any NASA funds for aeronautical research unless there is no money left in the account of the National Institute for Standards and Technology (NIST).

The Science Committee two weeks ago approved legislation (HR 4329) that would authorize $350 million over two years for NIST, while Bush had requested only $10 million.

HYDROGEN RESEARCH to be expanded under Science bill.

Two House Science subcommittees yesterday separately approved legislation (HR 2793) to create a research program within the Energy Department to develop ways of using hydrogen as an energy source.

The Energy Research and Development Subcommittee gave the bill approval by voice vote during a morning session before sending it to the Transportation, Aviation and Materials panel, which also approved HR 2793 by voice vote.

Under the legislation, the Energy Department's hydrogen research program would receive $4 million in fiscal 1991, $5 million in 1992 and $6 million in 1993. The authorization would be increased to $15 million in 1994 and $20 million in 1995.

Supporters of the legislation claim that liquefied hydrogen is a clean-burning and efficient fuel but that research is needed to figure how to produce it cheaply.

COMMEMORATIVE COIN bills move through Banking panel.

The House Banking Subcommittee on Coinage and Consumer Affairs approved two bills (HR 2761, HR 1028) yesterday calling for the minting of commemorative coins and a measure (HR 3625) to award a congressional gold medal to Laurance Spelman Rockefeller, son of the late John D. Rockefeller.

HR 2761 would authorize the striking of up to 1 million $1 silver coins commemorating the 50th anniversary of the United Services Organization (USO) in 1991. HR 1028 seeks the minting next year of gold, silver and clad coins to honor the 50th anniversary of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

Rockefeller would receive the congressional gold medal for his work to preserve nature.

OMB BUDGET request defended by Darman.

Richard G. Darman, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), told the House Appropriations Subcommittee on the Treasury, Postal Service and General Government yesterday that OMB needs the full $49 million for fiscal 1991 requested by the president. The president's request calls for an increase of $4.9 million over last year.

The budget request includes $2.7 million for updated computer systems. OMB is also asking for a $2.2 million increase in personnel funding to maintain a current staffing level of 577.

In addition to answering questions about the budget request, Darman was questioned by committee Chairman Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., about the administration's proposed cuts for the U.S. Customs Service. Roybal said he saw little justification for reducing the agency's manpower by more than 300, which would include investigative agents and patrol officers.

"How can these reductions be justified when the administration claims fighting drugs is a top priority?" Roybal asked.

Darman said that the Customs Service is not at the top of National Drug Control Policy Director William Bennett's list of priorities for his anti-drug enforcement plan.

Correction: A story in Wednesday's Monitor on the markup of HR 4151 by the House Education and Labor Subcommittee on Human Resources incorrectly listed the administration's fiscal 1991 budget requests for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program and the Community Services Block Grant. The correct figures are $1.05 billion for the low-income energy program and $34 million for the block grant.

FAIR TRADE IN FINANCIAL SERVICES

Senate Banking Committee

The full committee (Chmn Riegle, D-Mich) will hold a hearing on legislation (S 2028 - Fair Trade in Financial Services Act of 1990) to amend the International Banking Act of 1978 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to provide for fair trade in financial services.

10am SD-538 Dirksen Bldg April 5

Background: Panel members will hear views on legislation that would establish a U.S. policy of "reciprocal national treatment" towards foreign banks operating in the United States. Under the policy a foreign country's banks would be granted the same powers as domestic banks provided that the foreign country reciprocated for U.S. banks operating in that country. The policy has been adopted by the 12-nation European Community to take effect at the end of 1992.

Witnesses scheduled: David Mulford - under secy of Treasury; Gunter Pauli - European Service Industries Forum; Charles Kim - Independent Bankers Assn; Eric Hayden - Investor's Banks and Trust; David Silver - Investment Company Institute

Note: If a quorum is present the committee will vote on the nominations of Philip Jackson and Robert Larson to be members of the Resolution Trust Corp. Oversight Board, with an announcement on the outcome at the end of the hearing.

AIRLINE COMPETITION

Senate Commerce Committee

Aviation Subcommittee (Chmn Ford, D-Ky) will hold a hearing on legislation (S 1741) to increase competition among commercial air carriers at the nation's major airports.

2:30pm SR-253 Russell Bldg April 5

Background: Sponsors say that dominant airlines have kept competition down by using their control over terminal space, baggage carousels and gates at major airports to deter access by smaller carriers. They add that marketing and pricing practices by the larger airlines have greatly reduced the life expectancy of small and medium-sized carriers. The bill would provide avenues for challenging major airlines' pricing practices and their control over airport facilities.

Witnesses scheduled: Jeffrey Shane - asst secy of transportation for policy & internatl affs; Charles Bowsher - comptroller gen, GAO

PANEL: Richard Mathias - sr vpres for govt affs, Pan Am; Timothy Hoeksema - pres & CEO, Midwest Express Airlines; John Fredericksen - pres, Regional Airline Assn; James Johnson - pres, American Assn of Airport Execs

GLOBAL WARMING

Senate Energy Committee

The full committee (Chmn Johnston, D-La) will hold a hearing on pending legislation.

9:30am SD-366 Dirksen Bldg April 5

Background: The panel will hear testimony on a new version of legislation (S 324) to curb global warming. The proposal would drop the goal of achieving a 20-percent reduction in carbon dioxide emissions by the year 2000. Instead, it calls for stabilizing carbon dioxide emissions by then. Under the measure, the Department of Energy would have to develop a plan outlining policies to conserve energy from fossil fuels and to expand the use of renewable energy.

Agenda:

S 324 - Establish a national energy policy to reduce global warming (substitute amendment)

S 2191 - Fed Energy Mgmt Amendments of 1990, which is designed to promote energy efficiency in federal bldgs

Witnesses scheduled: Sen Lieberman, D-Conn; D Allan Bromley - dir, Ofc of Science and Technology Policy; Linda Stuntz - dpty under secy for policy, planning and analysis, DOE

ARIZONA LANDS BILLS

9am 1324 Longworth Bldg April 5

Background: The panel is expected to approve a subcommittee report critical of NRC officials' actions in investigating Roger Fortuna. The officials, including former Executive Director Victor Stello Jr., are alleged to have pursued a vendetta against Fortuna for being too aggressive against industry officials, suspending Fortuna for a month in 1988 and then reassigning him to a lower position. Stello is President Bush's nominee to be assistant secretary of energy for defense programs, but his nomination is being held up while Congress investigates his involvement in the Fortuna affair.

¹ Where two dates are listed, the first is the primary and the second is the runoff, which is required when no candidate wins a majority in the primary. In North Carolina, pending Justice Department approval, a runoff occurs if no candidate receives 40 percent in the primary, and in South Dakota, a runoff occurs if no candidate receives 35 percent in the primary.

² In Nebraska, incumbents must file by March 1. New candidates have until March 16.

³ Connecticut's filing deadline is 14 days after each party's state convention, Aug. 6 at the latest. The Republican convention is set for July 20-21; the Democratic convention will be between July 5 and 23.

⁴ Louisiana's primary includes all candidates. The top two vote-getters in each race meet in the general election, regardless of party. A candidate receiving more than 50 percent of the primary vote is elected without a general election.

Roger Porter

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

April 2, 1990

Dear Mr. President:

In response to your memorandum of March 30th, regarding David Rogers' comments on ABC's news program, I called Dave Rogers and spoke with him about that interview.

He spent 99% of his interview extolling your speech and your presence there at the National Leadership Coalition. Towards the end, they asked, "Is there enough money now in AIDS?" He said, "No, its not enough," but went on to imply that this seems like an obvious response, i.e., there's not really enough money in anything! There isn't enough money, period.

It certainly appears to be a sentence picked totally out of the context of his remarks. We are all certainly familiar with this tactic.

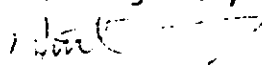

You asked if there is anything that Dave Rogers feels we should be doing. He and most of the people concerned with the AIDS epidemic in this country, do feel strongly about reversing our current immigration policy. I told him that I have talked to you and others at length about this. I also told him that the matter appears to be held up more outside of the White House than in it. However, we should reverse that policy. It is counter-productive.

He and the National Commission on AIDS also strongly endorse the Orrin Hatch bipartisan bill which would provide emergency relief money for the major cities impacted by AIDS. The municipal hospital systems in these cities are stressed way beyond their abilities to manage this crisis at the present time. Until we find some better solution to the national health care financing issues we face today, stop-gap measures like this particular bill are going to increasingly become a fact of life.

You received strong public support in the media and out, from Dave Rogers, from Belinda Mason and even from most of the leaders of the gay movement, excepting the wackos!! As a matter of fact, if this support continues, you may have a new large gay constituency. You have an eclectic appeal. First you have Kohl, then Mitterand, then Gorby, then even Thatcher, and now the gays. What a guy!

With best regards,

Burton J. Lee, III, M.D.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT KG for
SUBJECT: Letter from Lane Kirkland's regarding Lithuania

Lane Kirkland has written to the President on behalf of the AFL-CIO urging him to recognize Lithuania as an independent country, and with that recognition offer an exchange of Ambassadors and extend to Lithuania Most Favored Nation Status. He condemned the Soviet Union's acts of intimidation and repression toward Lithuania and called for the United States to express public support of Lithuania's move toward independence.

The letter at Tab A for the President's signature lays out the steps that we have taken and the rationale for a measured approach to the problem.

MEMORANDUM FOR BILL SITTMANN

FROM:

BOBBIE KILBERG ^{BK}

RE:

ATTACHED LETTER FROM LANE KIRKLAND ON LITHUANIA

I gave the attached letter from Lane Kirkland on Lithuania to Jim Cicconi and he is placing it in the President's reading file. Jim asked that a response be drafted for the President. This is clearly in your area. Could you please respond directly to Jim. Thanks.

cc: Jim Cicconi

LITHUANIA

As I said in my letter to President Gorbachev, I am pleased to see that you recognize we have been careful in our public statements to avoid making the situation with respect to Lithuania worse.

As you know, we have never recognized the incorporation of the Baltic States into the Soviet Union. We support self-determination for them. We are sympathetic to their aspirations for independence.

Yet, we are not unmindful of the complexity of the situation, including economic relationships, security issues, and other problems that must be resolved.

We believe these issues must be dealt with through discussion, through peaceful means.

I have said that the use of coercion or intimidation would backfire in terms of our bilateral relationship.

But let me be clear. Discussion does not mean ultimatums. In our view, it does mean a willingness to compromise and work together toward an outcome agreeable to both parties.

- You should understand that, beyond overt coercion, the step by step suppression of the powers and responsibility of Lithuania's freely elected government, an imposed outcome, or demands for capitulation will create grave problems for our otherwise very satisfactory relationship. While we have no desire to interfere in your affairs, you must know that these kinds of actions would be inconsistent with our principles and thus would produce a strongly negative reaction in the United States and, specifically, in our Congress.

- ~~Given the principles that~~ President Gorbachev has stated underlie perestroika and democratization, as well as our own principles, I would understand and be sympathetic to such a reaction.

- Much is at stake here. I have been widely criticized for not speaking out publicly against Soviet actions thus far. But, as I wrote to President Gorbachev, my flexibility on this matter is steadily diminishing. I have no wish to see this issue disrupt our progress but absent voluntary, peaceful, mutually acceptable agreement between the two parties, it surely will.

The Honorable George Bush
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the more than fourteen million members of the AFL-CIO, I urge you to move swiftly and surely to confer U.S. Government recognition on the legitimately elected government of the Republic of Lithuania. As part of this process, I urge you to exchange ambassadors and, with Congressional support, to extend MFN status to Lithuania.

Now, as never before, the brave Lithuanian people are looking for support from all nations that respect democracy and human rights. The AFL-CIO is proud of its fraternal association with the Lithuanian Workers' Union, a labor organization that is a part of the Sajudis movement. We are writing to you about our concerns in response to a direct appeal for help from the chairman of the Lithuanian Workers' Union, Kazimieras Uoka, and to an appeal from President Vytautas Landsbergis. In electing President Landsbergis, Deputy Uoka, and other Sajudis candidates to high office, the people of Lithuania have made a historic and fateful decision to proclaim their inalienable right of national sovereignty.

The people of Lithuania have spoken clearly and unequivocally for their national independence. This is why the AFL-CIO stands with President Landsbergis and all Lithuanian citizens and patriots. And this is why we condemn the tactics of intimidation and repression adopted by the Soviet Union against a democratically-elected sovereign state. Such violation of international law deserves to be criticized resolutely by the United States.

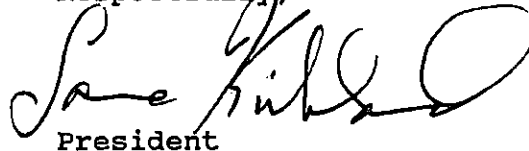

While the AFL-CIO welcomes the gradual opening up of the Soviet political system, we believe that Soviet progress in moving away from totalitarianism deserves to be encouraged further. The U.S., therefore, must not remain silent when significant Soviet abuses of human and national rights occur.

We are certain, as we were in our steadfast support for Solidarnosc in Poland, of the ultimate success of the peaceful struggle for national self-determination waged by the Lithuanians and other peoples forcibly absorbed into the USSR.

I hope that, in this compelling instance, the United States can speak out clearly and forcefully in behalf of liberty in a way that is consonant with our democratic tradition.

Respectfully,

MESSAGE: Alderson's

Patti: What are the chances of a 3-5 minute handshake/picture with a California family that is visiting Washington for the EarthTech festivities this week.

The family - Jerry & Gail Alderson - are great friends of ours. Jerry is a contributor and supporter of The President's. He met The President during the VP years in the EOB office. He runs a fabulous company in San Francisco, which is owned primarily by one of The President's great friends, Henry Hillman. And his youngest daughter has a world-class crush on the 41st President of the United States. (From a personal standpoint, it is important to note that Jerry is not a "client" of any kind, nor will he be. This is strictly a personal friend.)

I ABSOLUTELY, POSITIVELY know this is an imposition on The President's schedule, and "No" is certainly understandable. I would not even ask if it were not for the fact that Jerry is a close friend, tied closely to the Hillman's, and a terrific young Chief Executive Officer of an exciting company - like Zapata in the '60's!

If it is possible, what are the chances of Thursday Morning? Literally, 3-5 minutes. Jerry and Gail have 4 kids. May I call you later today to discuss?

5:00 P.M. NEWS UPDATE

PRESIDENT/PANAMA (UPI) -- President Bush formally revoked the legal basis Thursday for economic sanctions the U.S. used for almost two years in its unsuccessful bid to drive Manuel Noriega from power in Panama. Bush, in an executive order, terminated the state of emergency invoked April 8, 1988, by President Reagan as a justification for orders blocking Panamanian government assets in the U.S. and barring payments by U.S. individuals and companies to the Noriega regime. Though the order would have lapsed Sunday, the action taken by Bush preserves the government's authority to pursue suspected violations of the sanctions even after their repeal.

(Rita Beamish/AP) -- President Bush on Thursday lifted the state of emergency against Panama, a formal step toward returning to normal trade and economic relations.... "The restoration of a democratically elected government in Panama has ended the unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy and economy of the United States previously posed by the policies and actions of Manuel Antonio Noriega in that country, and the need to continue the national emergency," Bush said in an executive order lifting the state of emergency.

SUPERPOWER SUMMIT (UPI) -- President Bush and President Gorbachev plan to hold their second summit May 30-June 3, but American and Soviet diplomats said Thursday it is doubtful a major arms control treaty will be ready for signing by them.... Soviet arms control negotiator Yuri Nazarkin said, "Taking into account that the summit is in seven weeks, it's impractical, I think, to expect it (a strategic arms agreement) to be signed at the summit." But Nazarkin said the leaders could resolve outstanding issues at the summit, leading to a later signing. An American arms control negotiator, speaking on the basis of no further identification, said "a lot of work remains to be done" on a START treaty and the next two days would determine if a treaty [will] be ready. "Realistically, we're looking toward completing and signing a treaty later in the year," the official said.

SHEVARDNADZE/LITHUANIA (UPI) -- Foreign Minister Shevardnadze told Senate leaders the Soviet Union does not intend to use force in trying to resolve Lithuania's bid for independence, the leaders said Thursday. Sen. Mitchell and Sen. Dole also said Shevardnadze reported that President Gorbachev is under heavy criticism at home for his handling of several problems and could be ousted if he is not successful.... Shevardnadze "expressed to us...the intention of the Soviet government to resolve the matter by dialogue, through negotiation without resort to force. He expressed confidence in their ability to achieve that objective," Mitchell said.

CLEAN AIR (AP) -- House negotiators worked on details of new clean air legislation Thursday as the latest government air quality survey showed 121 million Americans living in pollution exceeding federal health standards. The EPA also said in its annual assessment of air quality that the urban smog problem became 15 percent worse in 1988 compared to the year before, partly because of an exceedingly hot summer.

U.S.-JAPANESE TRADE (AP) -- Progress is being made in talks aimed at crafting an unprecedented deal to reform the basic economies of Japan and the U.S., according to negotiators who hope to wrap up the four days of discussions Thursday. A leading congressional trade expert, Sen. Baucus, told reporters that he understood the delay was caused by the complexity and number of details being reviewed and over the wording of the proposal.... Baucus praised the Japanese for being willing to make concessions, but he said the real test of the agreement would be in its ability to actually reduce America's huge trade surplus with Japan. President Bush had words of praise for the Japanese as well, marking a turnabout for the administration, which until recently had been blasting Japan for its intransigence on the trade issue.

FORCE STRUCTURE/SENATE (Reuter) -- Two Republican members of the Senate Armed Services Committee called Thursday for a new U.S. defense strategy that would cut back on force intended to attack the Soviet Union. The two senators, William Cohen and John McCain, said the new style defense forces should be lighter and more flexible to respond to Third World threats.... "If we do not reorient our defense planning to the genuine needs of the future, we will squander a unique opportunity and waste declining defense resources," they said in a statement. "We will also surrender leadership to those focused on cutting defense for cutting's sake and for those who would substitute parochial interests for strategy," they said.

PEGASUS LAUNCH (Edwards Air Force Base/AP) -- In its inaugural flight, the winged Pegasus rocket has been launched after a drop from a B-52. During a test over the military's Western Test Range in California, the rocket fell for a few seconds, then a bright plume of flame erupted -- sending Pegasus on its way to deploy an experimental Navy communications satellite. Pegasus is designed to put small satellites into orbit at a low cost.

COLOMBIA/VIOLENCE (Bogota/UPI) -- Police deactivated 800 pounds of dynamite Thursday in a truck parked in a Bogota residential area favored by Colombian ministers the day after drug lords threatened to bomb an exclusive neighborhood. Police also reported that 20 people had been killed overnight in a wave of violence in the cartel capital of Medellin along with the director of a Bogota prison, who was vacationing west of the capital, and the mayor of a western city.... In all, 53 people have been killed -- 13 of them police officers -- between Sunday and Thursday.

POOL REPORT #1

Monday, April 2, 1990

Fitzwater came back near the end of the trip to Atlanta with the following information: Toshiki Kaifu, Japanese Prime Minister called Bush this morning to tell him that two emissaries, former Foreign Minister Matsunaga, and Owaga, Deputy Foreign Minister, were meeting at the White House this morning with Scowcroft and Baker. A meeting with Bush is scheduled for Wednesday.

Marlin declined to characterize the nature of these meetings other than they obviously deal with the continuing Trade problems with Japan.

The political representative on the trip is Jeanie Austin of the RNC. On board AFl: Card, Cicconi, Gates, Hagin, and Wray.

Visit to Slain Md. trooper's family

The president flew by helicopter to Baltimore-Washington airport and motorcaded to the Singleton Funeral Home, Glen Burnie, for a brief, private session to offer his condolences to the family of Cpl. Theodore D. Wolf, who was killed in his patrol car last week. He was accompanied by First Lady Barbara Bush.

According to deputy press secy Stephen Hart, the president met for about five minutes with the trooper's widow, Virginia, and his three sons, Ted, 16, Gregg, 14, and Nick, 12. Hart said Bush spoke to them in a small chapel inside the home. Bush also saw and talked privately with a few of the more than 100 family and friends who had gathered to express their condolences; this group was in a separate room.

~~Washington Post~~

"He wanted to personally come and express his condolences to the family in a private way," Hart said. "He feels strongly we need to support law enforcement officers in the job they do. This is his way of doing that."

Hart said the president saw local news reports of the murder and on Friday wrote a personal note to the family. ~~He wanted to come and convey his personal condolences in person~~ Bush wanted if it could be done in a low-key manner. It was; no press ~~was~~ went inside.

Hart reports that the atmosphere was solemn. The president was carrying a book, not related to this visit.

Earlier in the afternoon, the president and Mrs. Bush attended a luncheon hosted by columnist Charles Bartlett at his home at 46th and W St. N.W.

MEETING WITH BLACK GOP ELECTED OFFICIALS

- o I am sorry that my schedule doesn't allow me more time, but I just wanted to stop by for a few moments to personally welcome you to the White House.
- o I am delighted that you are here with us today and I want to thank you for your support of me and our Party.
- o I continue to believe very strongly in the importance of and necessity of inclusion in our Party.

- o As you know, one of the best ways to make a difference in our society is to get politically involved. And I am pleased to see that so many bright and talented young, and in some cases not so young, African-Americans are getting involved with the Republican Party.
- o I am certain that your successes as elected Republican officials will encourage others to join with us in making our nation an even better place in which to live.
- o Thank you for all that you do and may God bless you all.

April 14 Passover Pool Roosevelt Room

President Bush's short address was piped in. Briefly, he said the U.S. would continue to get Soviets to let Jews out. He stood with two Soviet Jews who recently left for Israel, Vladimir and Karmella Raiz. Both of them also gave a short message, thanking the U.S. for all it has done to help the Soviet Jews.

Also there: Sens. Bond and Humphrey, VP Quayle and a few dozen others.
Baker, Sununu, Bill Kristol...

Only light note: When Mr. Raiz approached the podium to read a ~~speech~~ speech, Mr. Bush joked at how high it was and turned the screws to lower it.

POOL REPORT
Teacher of the Year, Room 450
Wednesday, April 4, 1990

The teacher of the year, Janis T. Gabay, 39, a ~~Engin~~ English teacher from Junipero Serra High School in San ~~Die~~ Diego, sat alone on the stage for a awhile, literally at the edge of the leather chair. She was joined after a while by Lauro Cavazos who chatted with her until Mr. and Mrs. Bush arrived a few minutes late.

Remarks were piped in and a transcript will be issued. Basically, Mr. Bush praised the value of education and of teachers like Mrs. Gabay whom he called an ambassador to "that great undiscovered realm right under your hat."

He shook her hand while Mrs. Bush kissed her, both before and after the presentation of an apple-shaped piece of crystal that looked like Steuben glass.

As you may have heard, Mr. ~~Kmxh~~ Bush also introduced a 100-year old teacher, John Morton-Finney, of Indianapolis, whom he called "America's most seasoned scholar." The balding, white-haired Finney who walks with a cane, stood and waved to the audience who applauded him. "If he's still ~~xxxxxxx~~ willing to learn, so must we all be," Mr. Bush said.

As the president spoke, Mrs. Bush kept her eyes on him, twisting a ring on her left hand.

There was some laughter as Mrs. ~~Gmhm~~ Gabay stepped to the microphone to speak because she stepped up on a box so she could be seen over the lectern just used by Bush. She didn't even come up to his shoulder.

When Mr. Bush said he understand her family was in the audience he called them up for pictures and 10 people came forward. "I didn't know what I was getting into," he said when he saw how many there were.

POOL REPORT
Clean Air meeting, Cabinet Room
Wednesday, April 5, 1990

President called the meeting to publicly thank bipartisan Senate leadership for action on Clean Air Bill, but the most interesting comments came after lights were turned out.

Mr. Bush was asked if he would ask Sen. Mitchell to break the logjam on Panama and Nicaragua aid. "Yes, yes. I thought you'd never ask."

When Mitchell was asked for a response, he said, "I've learned one thing. When in Rome, do as the Romans do. And I think the president's policy of not answering questions at a photo op.....(the rest was drowned out by laughter)"

As pool was being escorted out, John Sununu called out to Bush across the table, "You want to ~~x~~ pull your answer back?"

A seating chart is attached to the pool report.

"We felt and still feel we can achieve our goals without major harm to the economy," Mr. Bush said, reading from a 5x7 card before him. "Thank each and every one of you who have played a constructive role," he said.

Dear Raisa,

We are so pleased that a date has been set for our husbands' meeting.

On Friday, June 1st, I have been invited to give the graduation speech at Wellesley College, a fine women's college in our State of Massachusetts near Boston. I would love to have you join us. We could fly up on a government plane in the morning and return by car's afternoon.

I would hope that you would speak to the graduating class in about 5 to 6 minutes and I would do the same.
It would be a great opportunity for many young

The President and Mrs Bush
The White House
Washington, DC 20500-0001

Dear Mr President and Mrs Bush

One year has passed since I left the Vice President's office. I wanted to let you and Mrs Bush know that the four years I served in the White House as your Military Assistant were the most exciting and eventful times of my life, an experience I will always cherish. Thank you for that opportunity.

I know your year has been active, challenging and productive. Mine, too. After leaving Washington in January 1989, I went to Rome, Italy as a student at the NATO Defense College. I sought a change from my life's work in Middle East, Africa, terrorism and low intensity-conflict, to broaden my horizons into European and strategic military issues. My family accompanied me on this sabbatical. We truly had a family extravaganza visiting all of Europe and generally "decompressing" from the frenetic life-style of Washington.

My experiences at the college with senior European officers were extraordinary. I now better appreciate the quality of professionalism of NATO's officer corps. They are ready now, and have been ready, to stand in Europe's defense. They could fulfill a wider geo-strategic role in the near future. The European officers were more comfortable than American officers with glasnost and perestroika. They were defensive about burden sharing issues but could not answer the question of why 320 million rich Europeans needed 240 million rich Americans to pay the lion's share of defense against 290 million poor Soviets.

One divisive issue was German reunification. Although I graduated before the dramatic events in Eastern Europe, some European officers were uneasy with German reunification. All, however, seemed to sense the inevitability of reunification.

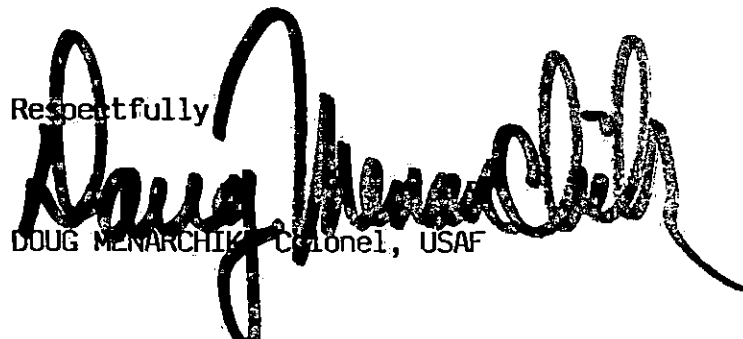

Pilot retention is a difficult issue. We need higher pay for our pilot force, but more importantly, the Air Force needs to do a better job of providing challenges to our best and brightest captains who are the backbone of our pilot corps. Overall, I've been very impressed with the quality of pilots and their dedication. You and America will be well-served by our pilot force in the 1990's.

I know there is much agonizing coming from the military concerning the defense cuts. In my heart of hearts, I believe the US military can meet the threats with a reduced force. By becoming "mean and lean" and structured to meet the "real threat," the military can do its job under the reduced funding. The budget cuts will in fact force a much needed housecleaning and rethinking of the way we do business.

My family, too, is in transition. My son, Jason, is a sophomore at Virginia Tech, majoring in Engineering. My daughter Heidi found her second move of the year to be an easy one - especially after the challenge of the private international school she attended in Rome. She's a senior now and is in the process of applying for colleges and awaiting graduation from high school in May. My wife, Debbie, enjoyed Rome immensely. Debbie now keeps busy with base activities and has started working part time for the American Red Cross.

When you ever pass through this part of the country on your many travels, please know you have a friend in Oklahoma and the Air Force. I was honored to serve you as your Middle East - Africa - terrorism - low intensity conflict action officer, and look forward to continued service to you as my commander in chief.

Respectfully

DOUG MENARCHIK, Colonel, USAF

I sought a change from my life's work in Middle East, Africa, terrorism and low intensity-conflict, to broaden my horizons into European and strategic military issues. My family accompanied me on this sabbatical. We truly had a family extravaganza visiting all of Europe and generally "decompressing" from the frenetic life-style of Washington.

My experiences at the college with senior European officers were extraordinary. I now better appreciate the quality of professionalism of NATO's officer corps. They are ready now, and have been ready, to stand in Europe's defense. They could fulfill a wider geo-strategic role in the near future. The European officers were more comfortable than American officers with glasnost and perestroika. They were defensive about burden sharing issues but could not answer the question of why 320 million rich Europeans needed 240 million rich Americans to pay the lion's share of defense against 290 million poor Soviets.

One divisive issue was German reunification. Although I graduated before the dramatic events in Eastern Europe, some European officers were uneasy with German reunification. All, however, seemed to sense the inevitability of reunification.

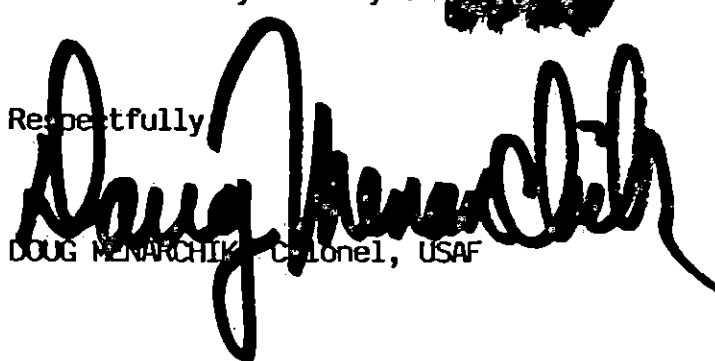

Pilot retention is a difficult issue. We need higher pay for our pilot force, but more importantly, the Air Force needs to do a better job of providing challenges to our best and brightest captains who are the backbone of our pilot corps. Overall, I've been very impressed with the quality of pilots and their dedication. You and America will be well-served by our pilot force in the 1990's.

I know there is much agonizing coming from the military concerning the defense cuts. In my heart of hearts, I believe the US military can meet the threats with a reduced force. By becoming "mean and lean" and structured to meet the "real threat," the military can do its job under the reduced funding. The budget cuts will in fact force a much needed housecleaning and rethinking of the way we do business.

My family, too, is in transition. My son, Jason, is a sophomore at Virginia Tech, majoring in Engineering. My daughter Heidi found her second move of the year to be an easy one - especially after the challenge of the private international school she attended in Rome. She's a senior now and is in the process of applying for colleges and awaiting graduation from high school in May. My wife, Debbie, enjoyed Rome immensely. Debbie now keeps busy with base activities and has started working part time for the American Red Cross.

When you ever pass through this part of the country on your many trips, I know you have a friend in Oklahoma and the Air Force. I was honored to know you as your Middle East - Africa - terrorism - low intensity conflict officer, and look forward to continued service to you as my commander.

Respectfully,

DOUG MENARCHIK, Colonel, USAF

Dear Joe:

I appreciate the candor and commitment evident in your recent letter. As you note, our defense program is based on an orderly restructuring of our military. Precipitate cuts would inevitably lead to a dangerous dismantling of our defenses and I will not permit this to happen. I was especially struck by your comments on the human implications of irresponsibly cutting defense. We face some tough calls on personnel but to make personnel accounts bear an inordinate share of reductions would break faith with those who have created today's successes. I will not permit this to happen either.

I understand your concern about perceptions when we use resources slated for defense to fund needs that develop elsewhere, as we did in Panama and Nicaragua. I weighed these actions carefully; in each case it was my judgement that our overall security would be enhanced. I view these instances as exceptions, however, and I will not permit defense to be -- or be perceived as being -- a funding source for a variety of other programs, however worthy.

I agree we must expand our educational efforts. Dick Cheney, of course, will continue to be our point man but I will remain personally involved and I know I can rely on your continued support.

The Honorable George Bush

The White House
Washington, D.C.

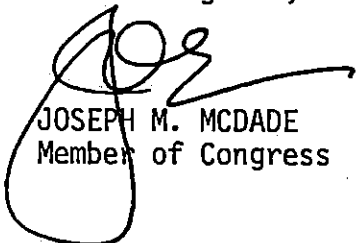

Dear Mr. President:

Forgive me for adding to the burden of your reading, but I wanted you to know that as your man on the Defense Appropriations Committee, I have sent the enclosed information to both Governor Sununu and Dick Cheney.

I believe unless action is taken, your policy of a "build down" in the Defense Budget and continuation of your policies that have brought peaceful change around the world are in jeopardy.

I hope this information is useful and I am, of course, at your service.

Sustaining President Bush's Defense Program on the Hill

The Problem

The President's FY 1991 defense program is seriously threatened by a combination of factors, many of which are obvious:

- oo The astonishing changes in Europe and elsewhere have created a climate whereby large cutbacks in the President's request for defense spending hold considerable political appeal.

- oo In this environment defense is more than ever being looked to finance domestic initiatives as well as new foreign assistance demands in the face of Gramm-Rudman requirements, e.g.:

FY 1990: War on Drugs
Poland
Jordan
Panama

Total out of Defense: $1.93 billion.

FY 1991: Nicaragua -- rumored to be $1 billion -- we don't know up here. It could also be taken out of FY 1990 funding.

Eastern Europe -- $3 to $4 billion. (The House Republican Whip was quoted the other day in a speech, "we'll just take it out of defense.")

The perception up here has the Administration looking at the DoD budget as a "cash cow."

- oo Many Democrats, especially in the House, seek to take advantage of the "end of the Cold War" by redefining national security in terms of their own domestic agenda, calling it "economic security" and using defense resources to fund Democrat programs under the guise of "competitiveness." By so doing they also hope to take the national security issue away from the Republican party.

- oo Liberal Democrats and some Republicans, joining together in a "bipartisan effort," will also seek deep defense spending cuts in order to increase their leverage against strategic programs such as SDI, the B-2 bomber, and rail-garrison MX.

Beyond these problems, however, efforts by the President's supporters in Congress to argue against defense cuts are being hampered by a number of PERCEPTION PROBLEMS among the rank and file Congressional membership. These include:

oo The Administration says it has cut defense, but Members see a Fiscal 1991 request which, while representing significant reductions from the President's original defense plan of last year, still increases in nominal terms in both budget authority and outlays, e.g.:

(all figures in billions)

	Budget Authority	Outlays
FY 1990 Appropriation	301.6	296.3
FY 1991 Bush Budget	306.9	303.3
Bush Increase from FY 90:	+5.3	+7.0

In my meetings with Republicans on the Budget Committee they look at these figures and fail to understand the numbers. They sincerely believe that if they offered up a billion or two billion more in outlays than the FY 1990 level, defense would be receiving a lot more money than last year and so we should have no problem. Conversations with some Republicans indicate a general attitude than that we can FREEZE DoD outlays at last year's level in view of the changes in the international situation.

Such a freeze would require cutting seven billion in outlays from the President's budget. Easier said than done. I have attempted to communicate this to my colleagues by using the following example. If Congress:

o Zeroed all funds for the following strategic programs:

- | | |
|--------------|-------------------------|
| o B-2 Bomber | o Trident submarine |
| o SDI | o D-5 (Trident) missile |
| o MX | o Small ICBM |

o Zeroed the four biggest conventional programs in the budget:

- | | |
|--------------------|---------------------------|
| o DDG-51 Destroyer | o SSN-21 attack submarine |
| o F-16 fighter | o C-17 airlifter |

o And took 100,000 troops out of Europe and separated them;

These actions fall over $400 million short of reaching the outlay target of $7 billion. (This follows from the difficulties in achieving large outlay savings from defense. I have appended some material on this which also explains the example cited above, at Attachment 1.)

I'M NOT SURE PEOPLE UNDERSTAND YOU CAN'T GET LARGE IMMEDIATE OUTLAY SAVINGS FROM DEFENSE WITHOUT DISMANTLING THE FORCE.

I find there is also:

oo A general lack of awareness about the already enacted defense drawdown, making deeper defense cuts seem more palatable.

oo Little recognition that the Bush defense program, if given time to be implemented enacted with care and deliberation (e.g., over the next five year period), will in fact lead to a post-Cold War military and a "peace dividend."

oo A lack of understanding about the severe ramifications resulting from what may appear to be even modest cuts in defense outlays (versus budget authority).

oo False expectations that START and CFE agreements, when consummated, will lead to significant immediate defense savings.

What Needs To Be Done

First, the Administration has to clearly lay down markers regarding its determination to resist defense cuts at each step of the FY 1991 budget process, be it the Budget Resolution, the Defense Authorization, and the Defense Appropriation.

Second, there should be an immediate effort to consult with and educate the Budget Committee Republicans on the implications of discarding the President's "defense budget build-down" plan.

Third, the same for Congressional Republicans.

Fourth, the same thing for the membership at large who now believe they can make risk-free defense reductions which are very appealing politically.

The President can rightly claim the substantive high ground by indicating what U.S. policies have done to change the world, while defining the dangers of more hasty or careless approaches, despite the appeal of concepts such as "FREEZE THE BUDGET." Diplomacy without sinews is wasted wind. I think the political gains from such a posture would be substantial and further his position.

The Administration's Stance

The President and his senior advisors must become engaged early and decisively. The message should be firm and unambiguous, starting with the Budget Resolution and subsequently the Defense Authorization and Appropriations Acts.

The President must make clear his intention to veto defense legislation with inadequate spending levels, and he must do so before the Budget Resolution is agreed to.

The Secretary of Defense must not appear to "be alone" in arguing for the defense program: strong public support from the Secretary of State (in the context of uncertain world conditions and ongoing arms negotiations) and the Director of OMB (in negotiating the overall budget package) is essential.

And the Administration must weigh carefully the consequences for the defense budget debate before it offers up defense resources to finance other requirements (as in FY 90, the Administration offered up defense to pay for the war on drugs, aid to Poland and Jordan, and most recently the supplemental request for Panama). Any additional proposals along these lines, while understandable in light of fiscal restraints, have a considerable impact by fostering a perception the Administration itself regards defense as "its cash cow" and will therefore accept further Congressional reductions.

Finally, the Administration should exploit opportunities to keep the pressure on the Democrats as "irresponsible" as regards defense.

There is no more opportune time to nail that to the wall than now. It is personified by Chairman Les Aspin's "pocket veto" of the Military Personnel reprogramming request sent over by the DoD (he also apparently has the Speaker signed on).

Aspin's action is so devoid of merit that we should seize on it now -- not only for its short term political and substantive rewards, but BECAUSE IT FOCUSES ATTENTION ON THE CONSEQUENCES OF FY 1991 OUTLAY CUTS AS CONTEMPLATED IN THE BUDGET COMMITTEE. Win the short term fight -- as we must -- we lay the groundwork to win the long-term fight, i.e., the funding levels for FY 1991.

WHY?

Aspin's pocket veto of the reprogramming can destroy the capability of the military AND THE BURDEN FALLS SQUARELY ON THE PEOPLE IN THE ALL-VOLUNTEER MILITARY, most of all our enlisted people as under current law the officer corps is more protected from budget-driven reductions than our NCOs.

Example: An NCO with 12 years in is "RIF-ed." He gets no severance pay; loses his medical coverage, loses his housing, loses everything despite having entered into a contract with our nation for a specific number of years.

FYI, I have appended exhibits (Attachment 2) on the effects of denying the reprogramming on the personnel of the various branches. I invite your attention to them. In the Army, the maximum number of officers that would be affected is 200 -- but the number of enlisted runs from 52,900 to 64,900. The other services will have to bear similar impacts. And these reductions will have to be carried out before September 31, the end of the fiscal year, if the reprogrammings are not approved.

These cuts must be executed without any discretion. As a consequence each of the services, if denied reprogramming relief, will have to freeze promotions and refuse reenlistments without flexibility. THIS MEANS THAT THE YOUNGSTERS WHO JUST FOUGHT FOR THE COUNTRY IN PANAMA COULD NEITHER BE PROMOTED NOR COULD THEY REENLIST. Aspin, even if he were God, can't carry that.

BE CAREFUL IN HOW YOU CHOOSE TO FIGHT THIS, THOUGH -- ASPIN MAY BE AN ALLY IN TRYING TO WORK OUT A REASONABLE NUMBER IN THE BUDGET RESOLUTION.

But if you agree that Aspin and the Speaker cannot sustain this issue, then you will agree that neither can we accept a FY 1991 defense outlay freeze or a cut of $10 billion (the generally mentioned figure). Again, the reason goes back to the "spend-out rates" of the various DoD accounts.

I see us being in a triple win situation. Elevate the reprogramming and its impact on the people and you win; that issue helps educate Members and the country about reckless and dangerous reductions in DoD expenditures, and you win; and this contrasts with the President's planned and orderly "defense build-down" and you win again.

N.B. I doubt that 10 percent of the country and 20 percent of Members of Congress know that the President has in fact proposed a defense budget plan which takes us to the smallest military since before Pearl Harbor, reduces defense expenditures as a percentage of GNP to 4 percent, and represents the first President in half a century to announce a steady 5 year build-down of our military.

The President has not gotten credit for "biting the bullet," but I see this as the strongest rebuttal to critics of the President's program.

Quite frankly, though, if I were not the Ranking Republican on the Defense Subcommittee and therefore participating in the defense hearings as part of my work here, I might not know about this myself.

ATTACHMENT 1

Difficulty in Achieving Budget Outlay Savings From Defense

The make-up of the Defense budget makes it difficult to achieve large outlay savings through cuts in budget authority.

In any given year, the majority of Defense outlays result from prior-year obligations and personnel costs. The amount of first year outlays which are driven by budget authority requests for procurement and research and development are relatively small as these accounts "spend-out" at slower rates.

To illustrate this, here are some examples from the Administration's FY 1991 request.

Of the $303.3 billion in Defense outlays in the President's budget, 38.2 percent ($115.9 billion) are from prior year obligations, and therefore cannot be influenced by cuts in FY 1991 Budget Authority.

Therefore when considering Defense outlay reductions, over one third of FY 1991 outlays are "off the table" for cuts as they flow from prior year obligations.

The remaining $186.6 billion in FY 1991 Defense outlays result from the FY 1991 Budget Authority request of $306.9 billion. FY 1991 Budget Authority is translated into outlays based on the "spend-out" rate for major accounts, as indicated below.

Account	Outlay Rate in First Year
Military Personnel	95%
Operations and Maintenance	77.3%
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation	51.8%
Procurement	15.5%

The consequence of these rates is that deep budget authority cuts in the procurement, and to a lesser degree, the research accounts will not result in large outlay savings in the first year. Cuts to the personnel and operations accounts will yield higher first year outlay savings but it will come at the expense of force structure, quality of life and readiness.

An Alternative: Freeze Outlays at the FY 1990 Level

This alternative would require cutting $7 billion in outlays from the President's budget.

Cutting $7 billion in outlays requires either massive reductions in troop strength levels, huge cuts in weapons programs, or a combination of both.

For purposes of discussion only, let assume Congress took the following actions:

o Zeroed all funds requested for the following strategic programs:

- | | |
|--------------|-------------------------|
| o B-2 Bomber | o Trident submarine |
| o SDI | o D-5 (Trident) missile |
| o MX | o Small ICBM |

o Zeroed the four biggest conventional programs in the budget:

- | | |
|--------------------|---------------------------|
| o DDG-51 Destroyer | o SSN-21 attack submarine |
| o F-16 fighter | o C-17 airlifter |

o Finally, cuts our forces in Europe by 100,000 troops, and takes these troops and the support tail (which includes 17,000 civilians) out of the force structure in the same year.

Action	Budget Authority	Outlays
Zero all funds for:
B-2, SDI, MX, Small ICBM, Trident sub, D-5 missile	$16.02 billion	$4.5 billion
DDG-51, SSN-21, F-16, C-17	$13.04 billion	$975 million
Take 100,000 troops out of Europe; eliminate the force structure and support (includes 17,000 civilians)	$1.49 billion	$1.1 billion
Total:	$30.55 billion	$6.57 billion

Despite reducing Defense budget authority by nearly 10 percent (a $30 billion cut), these actions fall over $400 million short of reaching the outlay target of $7 billion.

Breakout of Weapons Programs FY 1991 BA and Outlays

		FY 1991 Budget Authority	First-Year Outlays
Strategic:	B-2:	$5.54 billion	$997 million
	SDI:	$4.66 billion	$2.48 billion

Dear Mr. President:

In September of this year, the United States Peace Corps will celebrate its 23rd year of service in your nation. The partnership that has been forged among the Peace Corps, the Government of The Gambia, and other development and volunteer organizations has been of immense benefit to all concerned.

Mr. Paul Coverdell, Director of the Peace Corps, will be visiting The Gambia and will be reviewing the Peace Corps program there. I am pleased that Director Coverdell is having the opportunity to visit your nation, and I have asked him to extend my personal thanks to you and your Government for the support you have shown the Peace Corps.

Let me thank you for the warm hospitality you extended to my son George when he represented me at The Gambia anniversary celebration in February.

1:15 P.M. NEWS UPDATE

GENSCHER/PRESIDENT (AP) -- West German Foreign Minister Genscher met with President Bush Wednesday and predicted that 1991 will be the year Germany is reunited. Genscher conferred with Bush in the Oval Office on the recent East German election results, on Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze's talks with U.S. officials, the Lithuanian crisis and other matters. The West German minister told reporters afterwards, "We had very friendly talks and we agreed in all important questions." Genscher said East Germany's new, non-communist government probably will be formed by next week. "We want to begin discussions with the new government...on economic, monetary and social union between the two German states" so living conditions can be improved in the former communist state. He said sub-cabinet diplomats from the two-plus-four powers will soon hold another meeting on the external aspects of German unification, and "we hope that by the end of April the first meeting at ministerial level" will be held.

LITHUANIA/SHEVARDNADZE/PRESIDENT (Reuter) Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze has brought a response from Kremlin leader Gorbachev to President Bush's letter urging a peaceful resolution to the Lithuanian crisis, a Soviet aide said Wednesday. Vitaly Churkin, a Soviet Foreign Ministry aide accompanying Shevardnadze for talks with U.S. officials, gave no details of the response. "That will be a part I would suspect of the response which we are bringing to Mr. Bush to a number of letters to Mr. Gorbachev," Churkin said when asked about the Lithuanian issue on ABC's "Good Morning America." Lithuanian Charge D'Affaires Stasys Lozoraitis said in a separate ABC interview he was concerned Soviet officials were only being more conciliatory while Shevardnadze is in Washington. "The situation is a little bit better now because Mr. Shevardnadze is in Washington but I am afraid that once Mr. Shevardnadze goes home the situation might precipitate again," Lozoraitis said.

LITHUANIA/BAKER (AP) -- Secretary Baker said Wednesday there are indications the Soviet Union may be considering a referendum in Lithuania as a way of shaping the future of the independence-minded Baltic republic. But Baker also registered "a degree of concern" about the Lithuanian situation as he prepared to begin three days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze.... Talking to reporters after meeting with West German Foreign Minister Genscher, he said "we are anxious to see developments proceed peacefully." And yet Baker was buoyed by the meeting Aleksandr Yakolev, a close adviser to Gorbachev, held in Moscow on Tuesday with a delegation of officials from Lithuania. "There would appear to be at least the beginnings of a dialogue," Baker said. "...We see references being made by both sides to some sort of a referendum approach."

LITHUANIA (Moscow/Reuter) -- Moves toward a deal between the Kremlin and separatist Lithuania seemed bogged down Wednesday when an important meeting in Moscow was called off. A Lithuanian spokesman said a three-man team from Vilnius was due to see Interior Minister Bakatin, a member of Mikhail Gorbachev's Presidential Council, in the morning. "The meeting did not take place," the Baltic republic's chief representative in Moscow, Egidius Bichkauskas, said. He refused to give any details or say whether it had been postponed or canceled.

COLOMBIA/EXTRADITION (Bogota/AP) -- President Barco Wednesday said the leader of the Medellin cocaine cartel will not be extradited to the U.S. if he turns himself in. It was the first time Barco had made such a promise to a drug trafficking suspect since he ordered a government crackdown on traffickers in August. Barco made the offer to the Medellin leader, Pablo Escobar, in an interview with the Colombian radio network RCN. "Mr. Escobar has said that he is going to give himself up, and I say that if he surrenders I guarantee the judges will judge him with complete impartiality," Barco said, referring to Colombian courts.... Like all other trafficking suspects, Escobar faces no drug charges in Colombia. He does face several murder charges.... No major trafficker has ever been tried, convicted, sentenced and imprisoned in Colombia on any charge.

ISRAEL/GOVERNMENT (Jerusalem/Reuter) -- Israel's Labor Party said Wednesday it had enough votes to form a government and called for a special session of parliament to present its cabinet. Labor leader Peres has been negotiating with minor parties for a coalition to open peace talks with Palestinians since the national unity government of Prime Minister Shamir collapsed over the issue last month.

CHINA (Beijing/UPI) -- Some delegates ignored warnings to toe the Communist Party line and unexpectedly rejected or refused to vote on key government reports Wednesday at the close of the annual session of parliament.... The dissent did not jeopardize any of the government's proposals or reports during the two-week session of the National Peoples' Congress, a rubber-stamp body that ratifies decisions approved in advance by the Communist Party leadership.... A total of 442 delegates [of the 2,713 delegates present] voted no, abstained or did not vote on the annual report on crime submitted by China's attorney general's office. The report warned authorities would keep a tight grip on security. On a report by the president of China's Supreme Court, who railed against "hostile foreign forces" for trying to subvert the country, 254 delegates did not approve.

MANDELA (Johannesburg/Reuter) -- ANC leader Nelson Mandela said Wednesday the ANC was deeply committed to talks with the South African government, even though it had suspended an exploratory meeting scheduled for April 11. Mandela said he had been talking to cabinet ministers during the last three years before his release from prison in February, specifically to bring about such a meeting. "We would not work so hard over three years for such a meeting between the ANC and the government if we were going to turn around on a flimsy reason and refuse to see the government," he told a news conference.

LITHUANIA/HOUSE (Reuter) -- The House urged President Bush Wednesday to plan for recognition of an independent Lithuania as soon as possible. It made the appeal in a carefully worded resolution adopted by a vote of 416-3 as Foreign Minister Shevardnadze had talks in Washington with U.S. officials on the breakaway Soviet republic. Speaker Foley said the timing of the debate was unconnected with Shevardnadze's visit. The resolution stopped short of calling for immediate recognition of Lithuania, reflecting a cautious approach to Moscow's Lithuania crisis and avoiding a tougher line being espoused by many conservatives. Instead, it urged the President "to plan for and take those steps, at the earliest possible time, that would normalize diplomatic relations with the new government of Lithuania."

(UPI) -- The House called on the Soviet Union Wednesday to negotiate with Lithuania on its bid for independence and to refrain from military or economic intimidation of the Baltic republic. Sponsors of the non-binding resolution said it expressed congressional support for Lithuanian independence while acknowledging the potential implications for U.S.-Soviet relations. The measure was passed on a 416-3 vote.

LITHUANIA/DEMONSTRATION (UPI) -- Hundreds of demonstrators, carrying Lithuanian and American flags, formed a broad circle Wednesday before the White House gates to call for President Bush to formally recognize an independent Lithuania. "We are asking President Bush to recognize the new republic of Lithuania. He must be firmer and stand up for the rights of Lithuanian people because everything depends on the opinion of the U.S.," said Audroni Pakstys, a chapter president of the Lithuanian American Community of the United States, an organization with 75 chapters across the U.S. "Now, with Mr. Shevardnadze here, it is time for him to be firm," she added.... Several hundred demonstrators, who chanted "Red Army go home" and "Free Lithuania," came to Washington in buses from Illinois, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and Florida, Pakstys said.

ESTONIA/GORBACHEV (Tallinn, U.S.S.R./AP) -- Mikhail Gorbachev phoned the president of Estonia Wednesday and sharply criticized the Baltic republic's drive for independence, Estonian media reported. Arnold Ruutel, president of Estonia's Supreme Soviet parliament, told official television that Gorbachev used strong words and was generally very angry during the conversation. In a later radio interview, Ruutel said Gorbachev criticized Estonia's Supreme Soviet for declaring the republic an occupied state. "When I heard your resolution I was completely beside myself. You must declare the resolution null and void. It is an invalid one," Ruutel quoted Gorbachev as saying. "It seems to me that I have to introduce similar measures as those taken in Lithuania," he quoted the Soviet leader as saying.

WEST GERMANY/U.S. TROOPS (Frankfurt/Reuter) -- Hesse Premiere Walter Wallman has requested U.S. soldiers be withdrawn from the West German state as part of any European arms cut. Hesse has one of the highest concentrations of U.S. troops of any West German state, including most of the 60,000 troops of the Army's Fifth Corps. In a letter Tuesday to Chancellor Kohl, released Wednesday, Wallman called for the U.S. military to give up Rhine-Main air base and for the Fifth Corps to move out of Frankfurt, a growing European financial center in need of building space. He also suggested the U.S. military abandon a second base in nearby Erbenheim, where residents have complained about some 100 U.S. combat helicopters stationed there.

U.S.-JAPANESE TRADE (AP) -- Complex trade negotiations with Japan entered an unscheduled third day as U.S. Trade Representative Hills warned that the Japanese must make concessions or face growing prospects of economic retaliation by the U.S.... Hills denied that the lengthy negotiations indicated unexpected roadblocks had developed. "There is no deadlock. We are making progress," she told reporters following a speech to the National Association of Manufacturing. "We want to get it done." ... "If the Japanese do not open up the second largest market in the world, there will be enormous political pressure," she told the manufacturing officials.

SDI (UPI) -- Rep. Dickinson (R.-Ala.) told the Pentagon's "Star Wars" director Wednesday that the anti-missile defense program is "under the gun" and President Bush must "get involved" to avoid deep budget cuts. Dickinson, the ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, issued the warning to Air Force Gen. Monohan, director of the Strategic Defense Initiative Office. During a research and development subcommittee hearing, Dickinson told Monohan that SDI...is already being studied by Congress for possible spending cuts to help finance military personnel accounts. "We're at a very tenuous juncture," Dickinson said. "If we are going to continue the practice of the past of always taking big chunks of money (out of SDI), the President's going to have to get involved, in my opinion."

ARAFAT/CARTER (Paris/Reuter) -- PLO leader Yasser Arafat and former President Carter arrived in Paris Wednesday for a meeting at the French presidential palace that has outraged the nation's Jews. President Mitterrand was to meet the two before their bilateral meeting for an update "on he prospects for peace in the Middle East," the Elysee Palace said.... The former U.S. president has been touring the Middle East at the request of President Bush.

PLO/LEBANON (Ain El Halweh, Lebanon/UPI) -- A ranking PLO official said Wednesday that the number of Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon has sharply increased since the ouster of the PLO guerrillas from the nation eight years ago. Zeid Wehbeh, the PLO representative in Lebanon, also warned that violence against Israel will be escalated in the event that U.S.-spearheaded efforts to settle the Palestinian question fail.... "The number of our fighters is much larger that what the Western media mentioned," Wehbeh told UPI.... Wehbeh did not disclose any figures, but his remarks followed a report in the New York Times that the number of Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon has increased from 8,000 to 12,000.

CONTRAS (Reuter) -- The U.S. government, responding to a Central American presidents' summit call for disarming all Nicaraguan Contra rebels by April 25, said Wednesday that artificial deadlines would not solve the problem. "For demobilization to proceed it is essential that an expanded (U.N.) force be deployed right away in order to verify a mutual cease-fire and separate forces," State Department spokeswoman Tutwiler said. She said the U.S. supported a timely demobilization process that addressed the legitimate security concerns of both sides. She added: "Artificial deadlines will not solve the problem; it must be solved on the ground with adequate security guarantees and verification mechanisms."

COLOMBIA/VIOLENCE (Bogota/UPI) -- Authorities said Wednesday that cocaine cartel hitmen killed 13 law enforcement officers in two days and President Barco said drug lords who surrender would face impartial Colombian justice.... News reports and authorities said the number of policemen killed since Monday in Antioquia state, where Medellin is located, rose to 13. Barco told reporters Wednesday if the drug lords surrendered they would be tried by Colombian judges. He did not rule out, however, eventual extradition to the U.S.

(Bogota/Reuter) -- Drug barons claimed responsibility Wednesday for kidnapping a Colombian senator and said they would execute him if two men detained by police were killed. In a statement sent to Colombia's national news agency, the drug traffickers also said they would explode a bomb in a wealthy Bogota suburb because authorities had not met their demand to release two other detainees.

SUPERPOWER SUMMIT (AP) -- President Bush and President Gorbachev have agreed to hold their next summit from May 30-June 3 in the U.S., the White House announced Thursday.

PHILIPPINES/AQUINO (Manila/Reuter) -- Philippine President Aquino, who ruffled U.S. feelings recently by refusing to meet U.S. Secretary of Defense Cheney, has agreed to receive Assistant Secretary of State Solomon. A presidential palace spokesman said Aquino would meet Solomon when he visits Manila from April 11 to 13 to discuss military and aid issues.

LITHUANIA (Moscow/UPI) -- Lithuania's permanent representative in Moscow said Thursday the republic is ready for compromise and he does not reject the possibility of a referendum on secession, the official Tass news agency reported.... "Egidius Bickauskas, the permanent representative of Lithuania in Moscow, said he does not reject the possibility of a referendum on Lithuania's secession from the U.S.S.R.," Tass said.... "The republic, according to Bickauskas, is ready for compromise," Tass said. Tass quoted Bickauskas as saying, "Lithuania can offer more (in the way of compromise) than the center expects." ... In Strasbourg, France, Thursday, the European Parliament said it supports Lithuania's "process of independence" and urged Gorbachev to reach "an agreement by negotiation" that would exclude use of force.

LITHUANIA/KGB (Moscow/Reuter) -- Soviet security forces have increased surveillance of fishing boats in the Baltic to prevent contacts with foreigners and arms shipments to separatist Lithuania, a senior KGB officer said Thursday. Lt. Shlyakhtin told the weekly Pravitelstvenny Vyestnik that frontier guard units on land had also been strengthened, leave and weekends canceled and training courses cut short.

HOSTAGES/ABU NIDAL (Beirut/UPI) -- A radical Palestinian group holding eight Europeans expressed willingness Thursday to free some of the captives in response to an appeal from Libyan leader Gadhafi. The Fatah-Revolutionary Council of Abu Nidal revealed it was engaged in contacts with what it said were "concerned parties" to release French hostage Jacqueline Valente and two of her children. In a statement delivered to a Western new agency in Moslem West Beirut, the FRC said: "In light of the appeal made by brother Col. Gadhafi to free the captives, particularly Jacqueline Valente and her family, we are taking into consideration these efforts. Our group is at present studying the humanitarian appeal of Col. Gadhafi and is already engaged in immediate contacts with the concerned parties."

CHEMICAL ARMS TALKS (Geneva/UPI) -- U.S.-Soviet talks on deep cuts in deadly nerve gas and other chemical weapons will resume next week and aim at completing a treaty in time for signing at the Washington summit in June, officials said Thursday. The April 10 date is two weeks earlier than planned to give negotiators additional time to meet the objective set by Presidents Bush and Gorbachev.... The previous round [of talks]...ended March 8 and both sides reported major progress with prospects good for a treaty in time for the end-of-June summit.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

April 5, 1990

STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

Since the March 2-4 Palm Springs meeting between President Bush and Prime Minister Kaifu, Japan and the United States have been busily engaged in strengthening the U.S.-Japan relationship by resolving on-going trade and economic issues. An agreement has been concluded on supercomputers, and agreements in principle have been reached on satellites and telecommunications.

Today the U.S.-Japan SII Working Group released its Interim Report on the progress achieved to date. The SII talks represent an approach that may be unique in the history of bilateral trade and economic discussions. The talks were designed to identify and resolve the structural impediments that contribute to economic tensions between the two countries. Accordingly, the Interim Report and Assessment identifies specific areas impeding the adjustment of the trade imbalance in both countries. The Interim Report is the first major step in a process that will include a final SII report in July as well as implementation and follow on.

Prime Minister Kaifu and the political leadership of Japan have worked long and hard to produce the policy commitments embedded in the SII Interim Report. Because structural problems are deeply ingrained in both economies, complete results will not come quickly. However, the SII Interim Report is an important way station along the road leading to a strengthened U.S.-Japan relationship. We believe that the Prime Minister will continue to exercise his assertive leadership on these issues and that this will greatly facilitate the work on remaining economic and trade issues. Japan's inputs to the SII Interim Report have been very positive ones and we look forward to further cooperation on the final report in July. For its part, the United States will continue to do its utmost to address the structural issues identified in the SII Interim Report as affecting the competitiveness of the U.S. economy.

As President Bush has said, the leadership of Prime Minister Kaifu has brought a new spirit of cooperation to our relationship -- a positive, cooperative force which will strengthen our security relationship and enhance the U.S.-Japan global partnership while simultaneously facilitating the solution of outstanding economic differences.
