AMERICANS HARDEN STANCE TOWARD IRAQ, ARE CONFIDENT OF U.S. SUCCESS, POLL SAYS

Americans are hardening their line toward Iraq and are increasingly optimistic about eventual U.S. success in the Persian Gulf but believe that the conflict will be protracted, according to a Wall Street Journal/NBC News poll.

The survey, conducted Tuesday and Wednesday, found that 68 percent of the 800 persons polled believe the U.S. has the upper hand in the conflict, an increase from a Journal/NBC poll 2 1/2 weeks earlier, when 52 percent said the U.S. held the upper hand.

In the earlier poll, those polled were almost evenly divided over whether the U.S. will be able to obtain its objectives without a shooting war. They now say by a margin of 52 percent to 36 percent that the U.S. will prevail without a war.

Some 84 percent of those surveyed say the U.S. should respond militarily if Iraq attacks Saudi Arabia, up from 74 percent in the earlier poll; 56 percent up from 43 percent, support military action if Iraq fails to withdraw from Kuwait. And 72 percent believe the U.S. should take military action if hostages are harmed.... Overall, the poll found 76 percent support for the deployment of troops to Saudi Arabia and 75 percent approval of President Bush's handling of the crisis, small increases from the earlier survey. BUSH ACCEPTS IRAQI OFFER OF TV TIME; ASKS TO BE GIVEN 15 UNEDITED MINUTES

TOPEKA -- President Bush Thursday quickly accepted an offer to appear on Iraq's state-run television network and the White House called on Iraqi President Saddam to provide up to 15 minutes for an unedited message from Bush to the Iraqi people.

The White House was responding to an Iraqi offer to send a film crew from Iraq's state-controlled media to "interview" Bush and broadcast the message....

The maneuvering over television messages came as Bush pledged that Saddam's "brazen blackmail" in holding Americans hostage will not alter his policies and the U.S. will not compromise on the demand for an Iraqi troop withdrawal from Kuwait and for the restoration of Kuwait's exiled government. "We seek a peaceful solution," Bush told a Florida audience later Thursday, "but on one point let me be clear: There can be no compromise when it comes to sovereignty for Kuwait."

Iraq's withdrawal, he said, "must be complete. It must be immediate and it must be unconditional." The President added that Saddam's invasion of Kuwait was an act of "naked aggression" that "strikes...at the very heart of the international order."...

Bush called the Iraqi offer a "real opportunity" as he flew here from Washington for a fund-raising event in which he warned that "hard choices remain" for the U.S. in the gulf. He appealed for continuing American support.

An Administration official said the White House does not believe that Iraq will broadcast a Bush message but that the White House wanted to accept the offer with alacrity as part of what he called the "media-war part of the war."

Bush Accepts Saddam's Bid To Appear On Iraqi TV

TOPEKA -- President Bush agreed Thursday to appear on Iraqi television by videotape to explain the embargo and other world efforts to force Iraq out of Kuwait.

"It's a real opportunity," Mr. Bush said aboard Air Force One when asked about press reports that the Iraqi government had challenged him to tell his side of the Middle East crisis.

Mr. Bush will tape a speech of 10 to 15 minutes and send it to Iraq's minister of information....

Mr. Bush later offered a preview of his message in a scathing attack on President Saddam, who he said lies to his people about world opinion.

"Saddam Hussein is trying to make it America against the Arabs. It couldn't be more untrue. It's the rest of the world, including most of the Arabs, against Saddam Hussein," Mr. Bush said at a fund raiser for Republican Gov. Mike Hayden....

"America will not be intimidated," he said, vowing to do "whatever it takes" to remove Iraq's forces from Kuwait.

Bush Says He'll Accept Offer To Tape TV Message To Iraqis

TOPEKA -- President Bush will accept Iraq's offer to tape a message to be broadcast on that nation's state-run television, the White House said Thursday.

"It's a real opportunity," Bush told reporters....

In Washington, Iraqi Ambassador al-Mashat said that Iraqi television would broadcast the President's message "in its entirety without editing. Here you edit; in Iraq we do not edit."...

Such a broadcast would bring Bush's message into Iraqi homes for the first time -- a sharp contrast to the domination of the local airwaves by President Saddam.

President Appealing Directly To Iraqi People To End Crisis

President Bush is appealing directly to the Iraqi people for support to end the Persian Gulf crisis as he renews a blistering attack on their president and prepares for a weekend superpower summit.

"We Americans should make something very clear -- our argument is not with the people of Iraq," Bush told a Republican rally in Tallahassee on Thursday night. "Rather it is with Iraq's dictator who uses innocent travelers as shields, who now, in direct contravention of international law, holds hostage civilians from many countries."

He said President Saddam "must know that our policy...will not be altered by this brazen blackmail" and that the U.S. will maintain its military buildup in the region and enforcement of the international economic sanctions against Iraq.

However, Bush told reporters traveling with him on a one-day political trip that he was glad for Saddam's offer of airtime to televise a message to the Iraqi people.

BUSH PRAISES HAYDEN, DENOUNCES IRAQI ACTIONS

TOPEKA -- President Bush blended strong praise for Gov. Mike Hayden with firm resolve to punish Iraqi aggression in the Persian Gulf during a fund-raising luncheon here Thursday.

Bush also told an audience of 750 people gathered in the Landon Arena of Topeka's Kansas Expocentre the time has come to deal with the federal deficit, and improving relations with the Soviet Union has helped keep the Middle Eastern crisis contained.

During his 23-minute address, the President also complimented members of the 190th Air Refueling Group of the Kansas Air National Guard, which has 500 members on voluntary active duty to support the U.S. buildup in the Persian Gulf.

Hayden pointed out that Bush is the first sitting president in modern times to come to Kansas to campaign for a candidate. And the Gov. said the President's agreement to address a $500-a-plate luncheon would help unify the Kansas Republican Party behind him as well as raise campaign cash.

Bush noted the late president Eisenhower had said, "Our best protection against bigger government in Washington is better government in the states."

"And today we meet to help Mike keep making government better in the state of Kansas. Abroad, let us raise the flag of peace and justice. And at home, let's show that Kansas does like Mike."

Bush Says Iraq Sanctions 'Beginning To Bite'

TALLAHASSEE -- One the eve of his departure for meeting with Mikhail Gorbachev, President Bush on Thursday called for increased international pressure on Iraq as well as strengthened American resolve.

"Nothing strikes with greater force at the heart of international order than the act of naked aggression perpetuated by Saddam Hussein or Iraq," Bush said, adding that economic sanctions "are beginning to bite."

The Bush comment, opening the fall campaign season, at a rally for Northern Florida Republican Congressman Bill Grant, also called for a quick resolution of the budget impasse with Democrats.

Bush said he'll tell the Soviet leader in Helsinki, "The world is united against this [Iraq] aggression, and I'm glad the Soviet Union is on our side."

He went on, "Let me be very clear: We seek a peaceful solution to this crisis. But let me also be clear on another point: There can be no compromise when it comes to sovereignty for Kuwait and the removal of all Iraqi forces."

"And that removal must be complete. It must be immediate, and it must be unconditional."...

He got one of his biggest cheers from the crowd of 2,000 when he departed from his script to deplore the continued holding of hostages and added, "I will not change the policy of the United States in standing up against acts of aggression and refusing to submit to this international blackmail."

(Paul Anderson and Mark Silva, Miami Herald, A10)

On The Campaign Trail, Bush Invokes Gulf Crisis

TALLAHASSEE -- Evoking homespun images from Dwight D. Eisenhower to the Wizard of Oz, President Bush brought the Persian Gulf crisis to the campaign trail Thursday. He defended sending troops to Saudi Arabia as a mission to "raise the flag of peace and justice" and appealed for public support as he makes what he called "hard choices" in the Middle East.

"Our cause may not be easy, but it will always be right," Mr. Bush said in Topeka at a campaign rally for Gov. Mike Hayden of Kansas, at the first of two stops on a 2,630-mile swing to the Middle West and South.

Later, in Tallahassee, he called the gulf crisis a challenge to the fundamental international order and said his resolve would not be swayed by what he called Iraq's "brazen blackmail" of using Americans and other foreigners as hostages.

"Every use of force unchecked is an invitation to further aggression," Mr. Bush said in Tallahassee, at a barbecue fund raiser for Rep. Bill Grant, Republican of Florida. "Every act of aggression unpunished strikes a blow against the rule of law -- and strengthens the forces of chaos and lawlessness that, ultimately, threaten us all."

Mr. Bush's appearances in Topeka and Tallahassee set a patriotic tone that Mr. Bush and Republican strategists apparently want to strike in discussing the Persian Gulf crisis in the fall election season. Republicans are hoping that the American military deployment in Saudi Arabia will bolster their efforts to project the party as the safeguard of a strong defense and a strong economy.

BUSH HEADING FOR FINLAND TO MEET GORBACHEV

President Bush leaves for Helsinki Friday night for a weekend summit with President Gorbachev designed to dramatize superpower solidarity in dealing with the explosive Persian Gulf crisis.

One the eve of his trip to the Finnish capital, Bush said that at their meeting Sunday he and Gorbachev would talk about a wide range of issues "including the situation in the gulf -- and the world's response to Iraq's aggression" against Kuwait.

Alluding to U.N. efforts to choke off trade with Iraq, the President said in a Florida political speech Thursday: "Never before have we seen this kind of cooperation between nations -- proof that the world community will not stand aside and watch one nation swallow up another."

"The world is united against this aggression and I'm glad the Soviet Union is on our side in this," he said....

Bush seemed to preview his message [to the Iraqis] during his appearance in Florida -- the second stop on a day-long campaign swing that took him to Kansas earlier in the day.

He was campaigning for state and congressional Republican candidates in the Nov. 2 U.S. elections.

"Our argument is not with the people of Iraq. Rather, it is with Iraq's dictator, who uses innocent travellers as shields," the U.S. leader said.

(Gene Gibbons, Reuter)

Summit Goal: Aid Gorbachev

President Bush's call for the superpower summit in Helsinki to discuss the gulf crisis was driven in part by the Administration's strategy of bolstering President Gorbachev's beleaguered government, according to senior Administration officials.

But despite the Administration's sympathy for Soviet calls for Western aid, officials said they fear the one-day summit snag on Mr. Gorbachev's push to expand the meeting into full-fledged Middle East peace talks.

While many Bush aides have characterized the summit as a move to show world unity against Iraq's occupation of Kuwait, a top official said Thursday that it was called "mostly to show support for Gorbachev."

The White House this week expressed concern with pictures of empty bread shelves in the Soviet Union and said it now stands ready to deliver economic aid once Moscow approves free-emigration laws....

Mr. Bush, campaigning in Kansas and Florida Thursday, said his summit meeting with Mr. Gorbachev could lead to greater cooperation on economic matters as well as arms control.

Mr. Bush told an audience in Topeka that "the better we understand each other, the closer I believe that we can work.... The Persian Gulf shows what this cooperation can achieve."

Administration officials said Mr. Bush would use Moscow's support for U.S. policies in the Persian Gulf as the reason Washington would now consider aiding the Soviet government.

(Paul Bedard, Washington Times, A1)

Gorbachev At Summit Likely To Offer New Measures Against Iraq

MOSCOW -- With the Persian Gulf crisis posing a threat to his domestic reforms, President Gorbachev is likely to urge President Bush to avoid hasty action against Iraq when they meet Sunday.

But, Soviet analysts say, he could offer to help Washington in stepping up world pressure on Baghdad to pull its troops out of Kuwait and signal readiness to take part in an international force in the region.

After apparently fruitless talks with Foreign Minister Aziz Wednesday, Gorbachev will clearly be bearing no message of optimism to his Helsinki meeting with Bush.

However, he will certainly aim to use the impromptu summit as a new demonstration of commitment to working with the U.S. on the world stage to contain and solve regional crises that would once have set the superpowers at odds.

"I have no doubt that he will continue to argue for diplomatic efforts to achieve a political solution, and for military restraint at the present stage," said Igor Belyayev, a prominent Moscow Middle East specialist.

"But given Iraq's intransigence, he may well tell Bush he is ready to accept passing on from words to some sort of action to increase pressure on Baghdad, as long as it comes under the flag of the United Nations."

Leonid Koryavin, a commentator for the government newspaper Izvestia, said the summit could lay the groundwork for a common approach by Moscow and Washington to achieving an overall settlement in the Middle East. (Robert Evans, analysis, Reuter)

U.S. BARGAINS WITH SADDAM OVER PAYMENTS TO LET AMERICANS OUT OF KUWAIT

BAGHDAD -- Washington is bargaining with Baghdad for special charter jets to fly from Kuwait about 1,300 U.S. women and children, many of whom have been in hiding for a month.

Under the deal, Iraqi Airways flights hopscotching from Kuwait to Baghdad to a third Middle East country could start as early as Saturday, Western diplomats said Thursday.

But they will require complicated logistics -- including beaming instructions over VOA and BBC radio stations -- to persuade the women to leave their husbands and bring themselves and their children out of hiding.

"A lot of these people have gone underground and will need to be assured before they're going to come out," a diplomat said.

At the same time, the women and children will have to manage for the most part on their own for the first leg of their journeys, relying on the aid of diplomats other than Americans in Kuwait, the sources said. Their U.S. representatives are under siege at the troop-ringed U.S. Embassy there, and Baghdad has banned U.S. diplomats based in its capital from Kuwait as long as the standoff continues.

SAUDIS AGREE TO PAY BILLIONS FOR DEFENSE
More Egyptian, Syrian Troops Accepted

JIDDAH, Saudi Arabia -- Saudi Arabia gave the U.S. an explicit commitment Thursday night to devote billions of dollars in windfall oil revenues to underwrite the cost of the American military deployment here and to ease the economic woes of other Arab nations joining the international embargo against Iraq, Saudi and Bush Administration officials said.

In an hour-long meeting with Secretary Baker at the royal family's sprawling Salaam Palace here, King Fahd said his nation would make contributions, either in cash or fuel and other necessities, toward the cost of supporting the largest American military deployment in a generation, the officials reported. He pledged additional sums toward aiding the front-line states of Egypt, Turkey and Jordan who have joined the drive to isolate Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait, they said.

In a related development, officials said Washington and Saudi Arabia said the Saudis have agreed to receive about 50,000 more Egyptian and Syrian troops to join U.S. and other multinational forces defending the desert kingdom from attack by Iraq.

Though final details and arrival dates have not been set, the agreements would allow fulfillment of the first large pledges to send Arab forces to defend Saudi Arabia, the officials said.

$11.3 BILLION COST ESTIMATED IN 1991 FOR GULF OPERATION

New Defense Department estimates circulated in Congress this week suggest that the bill for Operation Desert Shield in fiscal 1991 will total $11.3 billion, an amount that would more than wipe out all the various proposed defense cuts now on the legislative table unless U.S. allies pick up some of the tab.

"The cost of the gulf operation is going to be a real sleeper in all this," said one congressional source, who noted that the latest "preliminary" estimates assume that there will be no shooting war.

The estimates were sent to committees involved in preparing the congressional position for budget summit talks with the White House this weekend. However, sources on several key defensive committees said the panels have not received details necessary to evaluate whether Pentagon numbers include expenditures that might have been made even without the Persian Gulf crisis.

Even with allied contributions to the U.S. effort in the gulf, Administration officials made clear Thursday that they want to use the crisis to try to roll back some of the cuts contained in defense bills now moving through Congress.

A senior Administration official traveling with President Bush said Thursday that Democrats "can't sustain those deep cuts in defense when our young men and women are defending America in the sands of Saudi Arabia."

If they continued to press for them, the official said, "We'll embarrass them politically, I can assure you. They just can't sustain the political pressure we'd put on, and they know that."

However, Speaker Foley said the operations in the gulf should be treated as an "emergency condition [rather] than regular planing for the future.... This isn't something we are ready to assume as a permanent condition of American commitment."

IN '87, U.S. BORE BRUNT OF REFLAGGING

The U.S. bore the heaviest financial burden in providing naval protection for ships in the Persian Gulf in 1987-88, while some nations most dependent on gulf oil contributed little to the effort, according to a GAO reported released Thursday.

A similar pattern appears to be developing in the current gulf crisis, with the U.S. paying most of the military cost for Operation Desert Shield. With strong encouragement from Congress, the Bush Administration has urged U.S. allies to play a larger role in confronting Iraq's aggression toward Kuwait.

"The nations that pulled their weight [in Earnest Will] are the ones doing their part today. Those that shirked the burden during Operation Earnest Will are the same ones balking today," said Rep. Schroeder, who requested the study as chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee on military installations and facilities.

LAWMAKERS SEEK MORE INTERNATIONAL HELP IN SAUDI ARABIA

IN THE NORTHWEST SAUDI DESERT -- Members of a congressional delegation visiting U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia called Thursday on American allies to boost their commitments to the multinational defense effort.

"I'm dissatisfied with the lack of burden-sharing generally so far," Rep. Aucoin said during a visit with the 82nd Airborne Division's 1st Brigade in the Saudi desert.

"My constituents are looking for good-faith efforts on the part of our allies."

Sounding a similar call was Rep. Hefner, who said he expected more European allies to support the Saudi defense effort because they "depend far more on energy supplies from this area than we do." The congressmen, who on Friday were to continue their visit with a planned meeting with Saudi King Fahd, said they came away from a briefing with the top American commander here convinced a formidable deterrent force was in place.

But the leader of the delegation said it was no time to let down the guard. "Anytime you have a potential enemy as fanatical as Hussein is, you have to believe there could be a war," said Rep. Murtha. "But if he has any professional ability at all, he will see that he will pay a high price." (John King, AP)

CHENEY: 100,000 NOT ENOUGH

The buildup of U.S. military forces in the Persian Gulf region has reached 100,000 men and women, but it is "too soon as yet" to halt the flow of troops and weaponry, Secretary Cheney said Thursday.

The month-long deployment "has been an enormously successful one," he told members of the Institute for International Strategic Studies.

Cheney's statement was his first public enumeration of the size of the U.S. deployment....

Queried by a member of the audience whether enough U.S. force was in the region that deployment could be halted, Cheney replied, "It is too soon as yet to do that."

"The worst sin of all is to deploy enough to get into trouble," but not enough troops to guarantee their safety and to complete their mission, Cheney said. (Susanne Schafer, AP)

U.S. CONTENT TO LET SMALL NUMBER OF PLANES EVADE IRAQI BLOCKADE

The blockade of Iraq has been broken by airplanes carrying food, but U.S. officials are not seriously considering stopping them because an air blockade would be too difficult and so little is getting through.

Blockades have been broken from the air before -- most notably in 1948, when the U.S. flew food and other supplies into West Berlin to circumvent a Soviet blockade. The effort was so successful that the blockade crumbled....

Although officials have not provided precise numbers, they say only a few planes have been landing in Iraq, mainly from Libya, since the U.N. Security Council embargo went into effect last month....

Pentagon spokesman Williams has characterized the leak through the air as "a trickle." (Fred Kaplan, Boston Globe)

CONFIDENT IRAQIS SET FOR A LONG HAUL

Iraq's huge military force occupying Kuwait is well-supplied and shows good morale, Bush Administration officials said Thursday, countering press reports from the Middle East that critical supplies were not getting through from Baghdad.

One senior official with direct intelligence reports from the Persian Gulf region said Iraqi leader Saddam has managed to keep his 265,000-man force in and around Kuwait well-fed and supplied. The official said the troops appear to be digging in for a long stay after the Aug. 2 blitzkrieg.

"I don't see any evidence in a broad sense that the forces he used to invade Kuwait are unhappy or disaffected," said the official, who requested anonymity.

A U.S. intelligence official agreed, noting that "they're not being shot at, they're not on the front with Iran, they're at relative peace and they're in Kuwait."

Other officials said Mr. Hussein has built a resilient economic and political system that will not crumble in the near future under the pressure of an almost leakproof economic embargo.

U.S., ALLIES COULD BREAK IRAQ AIR FORCE IN HOURS, OFFICER SAYS

WITH THE U.S. FORCES IN SAUDI ARABIA -- U.S., Saudi and allied forces could knock out Iraq's radar in less than five minutes and destroy its air force within 36 hours, sa senior U.S. officer said Thursday.

Maj. Gen. Royal Moore, commander of the Third Marine Aircraft Wing and head of its air combat forces in Saudi Arabia, told reporters that allied forces in the Persian Gulf would soon have enough ground combat power to push Iraq out of Kuwait if Saudi Arabia and other Arab states wanted them to do so....

Moore said casualties would be light because U.S. Harm and Shrike air-to-ground missiles would be able to take out Iraqi weapons systems and radar.

"We want about three to five minutes, and we're going to give him (Saddam) the most violent three to five minutes they've ever seen."

IRAQ ACCUSES U.S. OF 'ACT OF PIRACY' FOR SEIZING SHIP

UNITED NATIONS -- Iraq accused the U.S. Thursday of an "illegal act of piracy" for seizing the Iraqi ship Zanoobia, bound for Basra with what it said was a cargo of foodstuffs....

In a letter to Secretary General Perez de Cuellar, circulated here, Iraqi U.N. representative Al-Anbari called on the international community to "take appropriate measure to prevent such acts of aggression and ensure that food and medicines do reach the Iraqi people."

BRITISH GULF ROLE WINS BROAD BACKING
Thatcher Government May Deploy More Units With Defense Force

LONDON -- Britain's Parliament, meeting in emergency session for the first time since the Falklands War eight years ago, voiced overwhelming support Thursday for the Western military deployment in the Persian Gulf, but there were also strong warnings that a shooting war could break the consensus here and abroad.

Prime Minister Thatcher announced that Britain is considering sending additional forces to the gulf, and there were published reports Thursday night that these might include 2,000 ground troops to supplement the three British aircraft squadrons and half-dozen war-ships already there or en route. She also announced allocation of $3.8 million in additional relief funds for refugees in countries bordering Iraq, bring to $10.3 million Britain's total commitment of humanitarian aid.

Thatcher and Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock appeared in total agreement on the steps taken under U.N. Security Council endorsement to isolate Iraq and force it to retreat from its month-long occupation of Kuwait. But Thatcher insisted that the U.S. and Britain could justifiably launch a military strike against Iraq without needing to return to the Security Council for approval.

MITTERRAND, FRENCH AWAIT U.N. ACTION

PARIS -- President Mitterrand pledged Thursday he would not negotiate with Baghdad for the release of "the victims of an act of barbarism" but cautioned France equally would not join the U.S. in an attack on Iraq without a U.N. mandate.

Speaking at a news conference broadcast live on four television channels, the Socialist leader stressed he hoped President Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev would promise to confine the prospect of military action against Iraq to the U.N. framework when they meet at Helsinki for a summit next weekend.

Mitterrand repeated his view first stated last month that "the logic of war" continues to prevail even if "we are doing all we can to get out of it while respecting the rule of law." Only an "implacable" execution of the U.N. embargo against Iraq offered a hope for peaceful solution of the stand-off, he said.

KOHL AIDE AGAINST GERMAN FINANCIAL HELP FOR U.S. GULF ACTION

BONN -- A senior aide to Chancellor Kohl has come out against any financial help from Bonn for the U.S. military buildup in the Persian Gulf, a leading West German newspaper reported Thursday.

Volker Ruehe, secretary-general of Kohl's Christian Democrats said Bonn should instead help Jordan, Egypt and Turkey, three countries hard hit by the Gulf crisis....

Ruehe's comments, to be published in the Friday edition of Munich's Sueddeutsche Zeitung, revealed a split within Kohl's government over the answer to give him.

On Tuesday, a deputy leader of the CDU, Karl-Heinz Hornhues, said: "Our American friends can be certain of our solidarity. For us, friendship does not stop at money."

CRUDE OIL PRICES UP MORE THAN $1 A BARREL

Crude oil prices shot up by more than $1 a barrel and gasoline by nearly 3 cents a gallon as oil markets reacted to news of Iraqi troops shooting an American in Kuwait.

The value of U.S. crude has now increased $5.51 a barrel, or 21.2 percent, in the last five trading sessions, and analysts look for a further rise Friday. (Walter Andrews, UPI)

U.S. APPROVES EXPORT OF ROCKET PARTS TO BRAZIL DESPITE FEARS OF LINK TO IRAQ

The State Department has decided to allow the export to Brazil of rocket components that some experts contend could assist efforts by Brazilian engineers and Iraq to develop a long-range ballistic missile, government officials said Thursday.

The components, seven steel casings, are the outer shells of a three-stage rocket called the VLS which Brazil's air force hopes to launch in 1993. Brazil has long argued that the rocket is part of a civilian project to enter the commercial satellite-launching business. (Michael Wines, New York Times, A8)

KOREAN TALKS END ON UPBEAT NOTE
Two Sides Take Steps On U.N. Representation, Family Reunification

SEOUL -- The prime ministers of South and North Korea ended two days of historic talks Thursday amid conciliatory gestures designed to suggest an easing of the bitter rivalry between the two nations.

South Korea agreed to weigh a North Korean proposal for the two countries to share representation in the U.N., and both delegations said they would take steps to resume negotiations on reuniting families in the divided peninsula. The talks marked the highest-level contact between the two nations since World War II.

Afterward, North Korean Prime Minister Yon Hyong Muk met South Korean President Roh Tae Woo, and the South Korean president was reported to have proposed a summit of the nations' top leaders.

"If we meet often and discuss issues between the North and South, there will be no problems we cannot settle," Roh told Yon.

U.S. MISSIONARIES REPORT ATTACK BY GUATEMALAN REBELS

GUATEMALA CITY -- Leftist rebels acting on orders from a top guerrilla commander attacked a group of U.S. and Guatemalan missionaries in northern Guatemala in retaliation for taking in soldiers wounded in an ambush, a U.S. missionary said Thursday.

A group of 10 guerrillas surrounded an outpost run by eight U.S. and two Guatemalan missionaries last Friday night in Sayaxche, about 130 miles north of the capital, missionary Elam Stolfuz said on the daily television news program Teleprensa....

Hours later rebels of the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Unit pillaged and set fire to three houses and the missionary clinic in retaliation for helping 10 soldiers wounded in a rebel attack last month, he said. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the Guatemalan army evacuated the missionaries from the remote jungle region of Peten to the capital early Thursday. (Reuter)

NATIONAL NEWS

TAX CUT ON OIL COMPANIES

The Republicans may propose a tax cut on big oil companies as an incentive to boost production. The Democrats may propose a tax hike on oil or gasoline to encourage conservation.

Though united on their goals but far apart on how to reach them, congressional negotiators resume the painful and prolonged annual ritual of creating a national budget Friday by traveling to Andrews AFB for a weekend of intensive meetings at the officer's club....

A conciliatory-sounding President Bush is to preside at the opening session before flying off to another summit -- in Helsinki with President Gorbachev, with the Persian Gulf as the meat of the agenda.

"The time for partisanship is past," the President, reversing partisan comments he made last month, declared Thursday at a Republican fund raiser in Topeka. "I pledge to work with the leaders in Congress on both sides of the aisle to get an agreement."...

Despite the soaring price of oil resulting from the confrontation in the gulf, there is still talk among the Democrats about recommending some sort of gasoline or oil tax increase. And because of those soaring prices, Sen. Dole suggested Thursday that the negotiators might consider a tax break for the big oil companies on the condition that they produce more oil.

Budget Negotiators Face Tough Choices

White House and congressional budget negotiators have agreed on the size of the deficit cut they want to achieve next year, but now face hard choices about specific spending cuts and tax increases needed to attain their goal.

President Bush, warning that "time is running out," planned to sit in on the first 90 minutes of the marathon budget summit set to begin Friday at Andrews AFB outside the nation's capital.

Bush, who travels to Finland Friday night for a summit with President Gorbachev, pledged Thursday to approach the budget talks "in good faith" and called for bipartisan cooperation in tackling the deficit.

Democratic leaders said they welcomed Bush's comments, which marked a softening of previous statements accusing Democrats of dragging their feet since first embarking on budget talks with the Administration in May.

Bush, Congressional Leaders Resuming Budget Talks

Democratic and Republican budget negotiators say they agree on the amount of deficit reductions they need, but as their bargaining resumes they disagree strongly over how far to cut military spending.

After a five-week break for Congress' August recess, Administration officials and congressional leaders resume their talks Friday at Andrews AFB. President Bush plans to attend the session.

"It is in the interest of every family here that we get a budget agreement," the President said Thursday at a political rally in Tallahassee, Fla. "I pledge to you and to every American taxpayer that I will not accept a budget agreement that is not fiscally sound and fundamentally fair."...

"The hope is to arrive at an agreement," said Rep. Panetta.

GULF COSTS MAY BE ISOLATED

House and Senate budget officials said Thursday there is growing support for isolating the cost of Operation Desert Shield from the rest of the 1991 budget and financing it later through a supplemental appropriations bill.

Sen. Sasser is among those in Congress who is proposing that the eventual costs be segregated from the rest of the budget so that they do not affect baseline numbers used to calculate overall government spending and revenue projections in the fiscal 1991 budget bill.

Meanwhile, there appeared to be growing disagreement over what the eventual costs of the U.S. military action will be.

FDIC SAYS REAL ESTATE SLUMP IN AREA, NORTHEAST IS WEAKENING U.S. BANKS

Deepening real estate problems in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and other East Coast states are seriously weakening the nation's banks, federal regulators reported Thursday.

In its quarterly analysis of the health of the banking system, the FDIC said New England has already replaced the Southwest as the region with the most rapidly growing real estate problems and the troubles are now spreading down the Atlantic Coast.

Banks' real estate loan troubles grew faster in Maryland and the District than anywhere else in the country, the FDIC said. The total dollar value of real estate loans that are not being paid on time in the two jurisdictions doubled in just three months....

FDIC Chairman Seidman said it is too soon to tell whether the growing real estate loan problems and slumping profits will lead to more bank failures, but it clearly is a sign of economic weakness.

SAVING OWL MAY COST 20,000 JOBSWhite House Said To Accept Proposals By Scientific Panel

Senior Bush Administration officials have reluctantly concluded that saving the Pacific Northwest's rare northern spotted owl from extinction will require the sacrifice of up to 20,000 timber industry jobs, informed sources said Thursday.

An Administration task force charged in June with striking a "balance" between owls and loggers has tentatively embraced the main recommendations of a scientific panel that called for preserving large chunks of the ancient, "old-growth" forests where the owls live, sources said.

The decision to follow the panel's basic strategy, albeit with modifications aimed at cushioning job losses, reflects a recognition on the part of Administration officials that to do anything less would jeopardize the survival of the bird, violate the federal Endangered Species Act and cause unacceptable political fallout, sources said.

"What has happened is that people have gotten education about this," said a senior Administration official.

The Administration's owl strategy, which is not yet final and could be rejected by President Bush, has become a key test of Bush's approach to solving environmental problems....

The evolving owl-protection plan appears to represent a retreat from the Administration's position earlier this summer, when officials indicated that they were not prepared to accept large job losses and suggested that Congress consider revising the Endangered Species Act.

AIR FORCE ONE: MORE THAN FIRST-CLASSOn Maiden Trip, Jet Outfitted For Reagan Suits Bush 'Great'

TOPEKA -- President Bush got to have his cake and eat it too Thursday -- savoring the new luxurious Air Force One while aides pointed out he had nothing to do with the multimillion-dollar pricetag that paid for extras such as the 85 telephones, the seven bathrooms, the built-in movie screens or private office, changing room and presidential medical suite.

Bush, a World War II naval aviator who seems never to have heard of a plane trip he didn't want to be on, pronounced the converted jumbo Boeing 747 "great" before settling in, presidential slippers parked beneath the new presidential bed, for the jet's maiden trip from Washington to Topeka Thursday.

He reminded reporters twice that Congress had approved the purchase of the plane in 1986 and that not he but his predecessor, Ronald Reagan, had planned its amenities. "Thank heavens somebody else did okay for me five years ago," Bush said.

GULF POLICY/POLL

NBC's Jane Pauley: As President Bush politics in Kansas and Florida, the latest NBC News/Wall Street Journal Poll shows American support for his Gulf policy is growing.

(President Bush: "And our cause may not be easy, but it will always be right.")

* * NBC News Theme * *

Pauley: It is clear tonight that American support of the President's policies in the Persian Gulf remains strong. The NBC News/Wall Street Journal Poll, conducted earlier this week, shows 75 percent of Americans approve of what the President is doing in the Middle East. Only 18 percent disapprove.

 POLL *****

President's Gulf Policy:

Approval rating: 75% now; 72% in August
Disapproval rating: 18% now; 16% in August
Not sure: 7% now; 12 % in August.

(plus or minus 4% error)

Pauley: This is more favorable than in the early days of the crisis last month. Even though the President's summit meeting with Mikhail Gorbachev is less than 72 hours away, he spent most of this day campaigning for fellow Republicans. NBC's John Cochran joins us now from one of those political stops, Tallahassee, Fla.

Cochran: For a President who hopes to make a big difference in this fall's congressional campaign, this new poll is a good political omen.

(TV Coverage: President Bush waving to crowd from Air Force One, crowd applauding.)

What the President saw with his own eyes was also a good sign. Welcoming crowds, instead of protesters demanding that he bring troops home from the desert. True, he was campaigning in the conservative heartland, but the NBC News/Wall Street Journal Poll shows that in the past month the number of Americans who approve of sending U.S. forces to Saudi Arabia and the Gulf is up from 70 percent to 76 percent. Twenty percent now disapprove.

With solid backing like that, Bush changed political tactics today. No more hard-hitting attacks on the Democrats. Instead, Bush chose to look more Presidential, less partisan. Calling for a quick budget agreement, Bush did not even mention the Democrats by name.

(President Bush: "The time for partisanship, in my view, is past.")

Cochran continues: Bush may be getting high ratings as Commander-in-Chief, but his aides wonder for how long. The new poll shows that in the Mideast conflict, 66% believe the worst is yet to come. Only 25% think the worst is over for Americans. To pay for the crisis, 38% think the budget deficit should be increased. Twenty-seven percent want to cut domestic spending. Eighteen percent would raise taxes temporarily. And 12%, without even being asked about other countries, said others should help. George Bush emphasized they are helping.

(President Bush: "We're doing this with the cooperation of the United Nations, 22 countries involved in the Persian Gulf effort - - twenty-two!")

But Japan's promise of medical and transportation help has so far been more talk than action. West Germany says it may help transport American troops, but doesn't want to help pay the billions that the U.S. military effort will cost. Late today, the Saudi royal family said it will pay most of the cost. And if the check actually arrives, President Bush may continue to get strong support from American voters. President Bush will also try to win over public support in Iraq. Bush has accepted an offer from Saddam Hussein to send a videotaped message to the Iraqi people. The Iraqis say they will broadcast the message uncut, uncensored.

Pauley: There were more interesting findings from our poll. We asked 800 people, registered voters from coast to coast, why they think American troops have been sent to the Gulf. Fully half say it's to protect the world's oil supply. Thirty-nine percent say to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. And nine percent say it is to overthrow Saddam Hussein. (NBC-Lead)

CBS's Bob Schieffer: President Bush spent most of the day politicking. Campaigning for Republican candidates in Kansas and Florida, the President took to the hustings as both Republicans and Democrats are trying to gauge the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis on the fall elections.

CBS's Wyatt Andrews: While George Bush as President hopes this crisis unites all Americans, today he began to exploit it to help Republicans -- starting with Governor Mike Hayden in Kansas.

(TV Coverage: President Bush stepping up to podium, receiving Kansas cutout.)

(President Bush: "Abroad, let us raise the flag of peace and justice, and at home, let's show that Kansas does like Mike.")

Six weeks ago, Democrats saw the Republican Party as vulnerable - - abortion, the savings and loan scandal, and a sour economy were set to dominate debate. Today, though, Commander-in-Chief Bush is ten points up in the polls, and Neil Bush is no longer front-page news.

(Linda DiVall, Republican pollster: "We haven't heard too much about the abortion issue lately. You haven't heard too much about S&Ls. But what you have heard is the need for strong military defense.")

And what voters are seeing is the creative injection of Gulf issues into politics. In Illinois, Republican challenger Lynn Martin has pounced on Sen. Simon's call to cut defense spending.

Andrews' report continues:

(Martin: "Thus far, the only thing we've been able to hear from him is that he would cut Stealth and SDI. And I wish to remind the people of Illinois that the Stealth technology is in use in Iraq.") While the Simon campaign calls that tactic desperate, Democratic challengers for office have been no less innovative. Kentucky's hot new issue is gasoline price-gouging. Democrat Harvey Sloane has forced incumbent Sen. McConnell of the Energy Committee to defend against the charge he owes too much to big oil.

(Sen. McConnell, in campaign commercial: "We need to fight back.") Some experts say any crisis helps the incumbent, regardless of party, especially if incumbents can share the glory of success. But the risk is that the crisis can backfire.

(Paul Maslin, Democratic pollster: "Two months from now, if our troops are still stuck in the desert, we have a stalemate in the Persian Gulf, some hostages still haven't been released, and we are knee-deep in a recession, at that point I don't think Republican candidates are going to be all that happy.")

As much as anything, the Gulf crisis will now freeze American politics in place while voters wait to see how it plays it. Still, those Democrats who hoped this September would dawn with Republicans on the defensive will have trouble unwrapping Republicans from the flag. (CBS-7)

MESSAGE TO IRAQ

ABC's Peter Jennings: Noting all the exposure that Saddam Hussein has had on American television, President Bush said earlier this week he wished he had the same opportunity in Iraq. This morning, the Iraqis offered him time on television. Bush said that was a real opportunity, and said he'll make a tape next week and send it to Baghdad. We'll see if it's played. (ABC-7)

CBS's Dan Rather: On the campaign trail in the U.S., President Bush said he's decided to take up an offer from Saddam Hussein. A White House spokesman said Bush will videotape a message in the next few days and give it to the Iraqi Information Minister for broadcast inside Iraq.

CBS's Doug Tunnell reports a senior Iraqi official said Iraq was willing to broadcast an interview with President Bush nationwide.

(Naji al-Hadithi, Iraqi Information Minister: "We have no conditions. Since he is asking for a chance to address the Iraqi public opinion in exchange for the chance given to our president on American TV, we are ready to do so.")

Some Western diplomats in Baghdad say that a Bush broadcast could be interpreted in Iraq as a slight softening in the American position that there will be no discussion or dialogue with the Iraqis until they withdraw from Kuwait. Meanwhile, the Canadian Embassy in Baghdad succeeded in organizing the first government charter flight from Kuwait. American citizens trapped in Kuwait are being advised to stand by for what diplomats call an air bridge to get them out to safety. But with so many Americans in hiding, the evacuation plan poses tremendous risks. One is that if too many women and children show up at the airport for the first evacuation flight, anyone without a seat on the plane may be stranded there, known to Iraqi troops and unable to return to their hiding places. (CBS-Lead)

U.S. TROOPS/POLL

Pauley: There are now 100,000 American troops in the Gulf region. In our poll, we asked people how long they expect the U.S. military to remain there. Nineteen percent say they expect them to be there six months or less. Twenty-five percent say between six months and one year. Thirty-nine percent say one year or longer. Some say much longer.

NBC's Arthur Kent reports that on Saudi Arabia's border with Kuwait, American Marine reconnaissance officers suspect that Iraqi spies posing as refugees from Kuwait are active here. (NBC-3)

GULF CRISIS RESOLUTION/POLL

Pauley: In our poll, we found that people back home are optimistic about how this Persian Gulf crisis will end. More than half say the U.S. will win, achieving its objectives, without firing a shot. That's up sharply from the 40% who believed that last month. But 36% still say they think there will be a shooting war in the desert.

 POLL *****

U.S. will probably win with no war:	52% now; 40% in August.
Probably be a shooting war:	36% now; 42% in August.

(NBC-4)

AMERICAN SHOT

Jennings: We begin tonight with one of those incidents in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait which, while it turned out to be not as bad as it could have been, makes it very clear that Americans hiding from the Iraqis there are truly in danger. An American man was shot as he tried to evade the Iraqis' dragnet. The Iraqis say it was a mistake. The State Department says it was outrageous. The man was not seriously hurt; but as far as we know, it is the first such incident involving an American civilian.

ABC's David Ensor: The Iraqi Ambassador was called to the State Department to explain the shooting. The U.S. says the American was hanging out of a window, trying to avoid being rounded up by Iraqi soldiers, and was shot in the forearm.

(Mark Dillen, State Dept. spokesman: "This is outrageous behavior. As we've said all along, we hold the Iraqi government responsible for the health and welfare of all American citizens.")

Ambassador al-Mashat called the shooting an unfortunate incident, but said the Iraqi troops were within their rights to fire.

(Ambassador al-Mashat: "The whole incident is just accidental, because he violated the curfew. And he was not picked up as an American. This is, I want you to underline this.")

The U.S. says using live ammunition is unacceptable, and wants the wounded man to be allowed to leave, along with other hostages with medical problems. U.S. officials say Undersecretary of State Kimmitt also demanded the Iraqis return the body of an American, James Worthington, who died of a heart attack while in Iraqi detention.

Jennings continues: Kimmitt told the Iraqi ambassador that incidents like the shooting and the heart attack will continue until all foreigners are free to leave. His warning came as U.S. officials said they have more reports of foreign men being rounded up in Kuwait.

Jennings: It is the U.S. government's estimate that there are more than 2,000 Americans still hiding from the Iraqis in Kuwait. Today we talked on a very poor phone connection with an American named Bob in Kuwait City, who said that 25 other Americans had just been picked up by the Iraqis.

(Bob: "The Americans were taken from two apartment complexes. They were taken to the Regency Hotel today. The doors were broken into and soldiers entered their apartments, as we understand.")

Jennings: Tell me what you think your own prospects might be in the next several days. Bob: "Our morale is near zero. We still wait for the knock on the door. We're keeping a very low profile."

Jennings: Have the Iraqis been around your building? Bob: "We are totally surrounded. We cannot move." Jennings: Do you think they know you're in there? Bob: "We think that we're already hostages.")

We also talked on the phone with a young Kuwaiti, who, like many, many Kuwaitis, was educated in the U.S. What was life like for Kuwaitis now?

Kuwaiti: "It's like, from a scale of ten, we've dropped all the way to zero. And we've never been prepared for that.... And the last week it's been hell, and it's getting worse. A lot of bodies are found in hospitals, being executed with a bullet in the back of the head." Jennings: Tell us about the resistance to the Iraqi occupation. Kuwaiti: "It's mainly small arms.... And it's mainly snipers... And people are getting panicky. You can't go on like this. About half of the city is empty."

Jennings: We cannot, he said, resist the Iraqis much longer. The Iraqi government said today that any foreigner caught trying to leave the country without an exit permit could be sentenced to life in prison; for moving to a new location without telling the Iraqi authorities, up to three years. Some people in Iraq are getting the necessary papers. But only some. (ABC-Lead, CBS-2)

HOSTAGES

ABC's Morton Dean reports that the exodus of Westerners from Kuwait is proceeding at a breathless pace now. Once in Iraq, though, the bureaucratic process to get them home can be agonizingly slow. In Kuwait, the Voice of America spread the news that some Americans would soon begin the trip home.

(Voice of America broadcast: "Iraqi authorities have said that only women and children will be permitted to leave, but we are continuing to urge that all American citizens be permitted to leave Kuwait and Iraq.")

Beginning Friday, Iraqi Airways planes, chartered by the U.S. government, are expected to begin an airlift which will eventually bring an estimated 1,300 American women and children from Kuwait to Baghdad. The big story on Iraqi TV tonight was not the movement of hostages or the shooting of an American -- it was the visit of Jordan's King Hussein.

Pauley reports that the State Department announced an agreement with Iraq to begin evacuating Americans with a chartered Iraqi jetliner Friday. In Kuwait City today, an American man was shot in the hand by Iraqi troops as he tried to escape a roundup of foreigners. After some confusion and tension, Iraq called it an accident.

NBC's Mike Boettcher reports that Iraq moved quickly to defuse the situation. Iraq's Ministry of Information hastily summoned reporters to a news conference to report that the American was alive and in good condition. As a further departure from the tough rhetoric of war, Saddam Hussein donned a business suit for a meeting with Jordan's King Hussein. Iraqi television played soothing music while it broadcast pictures of the event.

(TV Coverage: President Saddam, King Hussein kissing, shaking hands.)

And in Baghdad, there are signs the economic situation is worsening because of the international embargo. (NBC-2)

Jennings: A number of countries today have said they want to send food and other humanitarian supplies to the Iraqis. The Indians say today they will ask the U.N. for permission to send food and medicine to Iraq to be used specifically for the Indians who are still stranded in Kuwait. The Indian government is making eight flights a day to get its citizens out of Kuwait and Iraq, but there are still 100,000 Indians stranded there. (ABC-3)

BURDEN-SHARING

Jennings reports that the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury are on the road today to get the financial support of other nations for the effort to isolate Iraq. The Secretary of State is in Saudi Arabia. The Saudis, he said today, have been very forthcoming in the view that they should contribute substantially to their own defense.

ABC's John McWethy reports that by one estimate, Secretary Baker is looking for a total of at least one billion dollars a month. (TV Coverage: Secretary Baker arriving in Saudi Arabia, shaking hands, speaking with Saudis.)

Baker comes to Saudi Arabia first because this is where he will be asking for the biggest contribution. Though the Saudis are already paying for all of the fuel American forces are using, by some accounts the U.S. wants Saudi Arabia to kick in the equivalent of $500 million a month more for as long as U.S. forces stay. The Saudis have made a vast windfall profit from the recent oil price increases, and American officials say just a fraction of that new revenue could easily cover what Baker is asking for. Baker's mission also includes a search for money to help the poorer nations, such as Egypt, Turkey and Jordan, which have been badly hurt by the economic embargo against Iraq. For that account, Baker is said to be asking for another four to five billion dollars from the Saudis. Friday, Baker visits with the two other major targets in his search for money: the government of Kuwait, in exile in Saudi Arabia, and the U.A.E. (ABC-4)

Jennings reports that among the countries outside the Gulf most able to share the burden, there is both approval of U.S. leadership, as well as some concern about the costs and the length of time involved. The most committed ally so far is Great Britain: 2,000 troops, three Air Force squadrons, and four warships. Prime Minister Thatcher said today she will send more.

(Thatcher, speaking to British Parliament: "The nub of the debate is to secure the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait. Mr. Speaker, such a man must be stopped, and we shall persevere until he is.")

The largest European contingent represented in the military task force is French. But politically, the French are concerned about the future. President Mitterrand said today that France would not automatically support an American attack against Iraq. The Germans, constitutionally forbidden from sending troops, are sending humanitarian aid to the refugees in Jordan, and they say they will do more. And then there is Japan.

ABC's Mark Litke reports that Japan is beginning to react to international opinion that as one of the world's richest nations, and heavily dependent on Middle Eastern oil, it must shoulder a greater share of the burden in the Gulf, or risk the anger of a U.S. Congress already inclined to impose trade sanctions.

(Taizio Watanabe, Foreign Ministry spokesman: "We feel that heat, that is true. But at the same time, it is not the heat coming from the outside only, but coming from inside.")

The internal heat is coming from an unprecedented debate here about how much Japan can do without violating its constitution, which forbids Japan from engaging in war. Some Japanese now fear that sending too much aid or manpower may violate the spirit of the constitution, or worse. Others say Japan should amend its constitution, and act like a world power. Meanwhile, Prime Minister Kaifu is trying to build a national consensus for greater involvement by Japan, and recent surveys indicate growing support among the usually apolitical Japanese public. (ABC-5)

Rather reports that sources tell CBS News Secretary Baker is seeking a major commitment from the Saudis to finance the U.S. troop buildup -- as much as $6 billion for the soldiers and weaponry, and another $4 billion for the Arab nations straining under the weight of the crisis. (CBS-3)

Schieffer reports that there is late word from Saudi Arabia that secretary Baker did succeed in his request for a multi-billion commitment from the Saudis to help pay the cost of keeping U.S. forces in the kingdom. No exact figures were given, but a Saudi official said there was a meeting of the minds during Baker's talks with King Fahd. (CBS-6)

GULF CRISIS/CONGRESS

Jennings reports that congressmen paying a visit to U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia today complained about the pace of the military buildup, saying it is going too slowly. They've also been hearing complaints from the troops.

ABC's Bill Redeker reports that for the fifth time in a month, U.S. politicians took the tour of our forces in Saudi Arabia. But this group heard some complaints. Weapons are overheating, for example. The congressmen were from a defense appropriations subcommittee which influences military spending, and they were critical of the slow sealift of tanks here.

(Rep. Dicks: "We've got to have better lift here. It's something that the services have neglected over the years. I think this operation clearly demonstrates that that's a high priority.")

(Rep. Murtha: "We'll be going back, and we'll be changing the mix of the money that was asked for this year.")

The congressmen told commanders not to waste money, but to prepare for a six-month stay, and plan for enough ammunition and supplies.

(ABC-6)

U.S. AIR FORCES

Rather: From the top Marine aviator in country today, tough talk and a warning for Saddam Hussein. Marine Maj. Gen. Royal Moore said U.S. forces could neutralize the Iraqi air force within 36 hours.

(Moore: "I think the Air Force and we think that there will be a very very short air war.")

At a northern Saudi base today, the Marines flexed their air muscle for the press and Iraqis to see. Gen. Moore said U.S. aircraft could destroy enemy air defense batteries in minutes.

(Moore: "We want about three to five minutes. And we're going to give him the most violent three to five minutes that they've ever seen.")

(CBS-Intro)

U.S. FORCES/MEDICAL SUPPLIES

CBS's Bob Simon reports on a clash of cultures with U.S. hospital staff in Saudi Arabia. The Marines unveiled what was hailed as a medical miracle today -- a 500-bed field hospital assembled over the last 12 days, capable of providing every service available at any major facility back home. But a Saudi official complained that GIs working in the street for a medical resupply depot, which is across from a Saudi park, provide a spectacle unfit for Saudi families -- because the GIs were women, wearing T-shirts instead of wrist-to-ankle coverings. An American general ordered the depot closed down. And at the new facility, soldiers have been warned to be very careful of Saudi sensitivities if they don't want to be closed down too. Meanwhile, officers worry that the medical response should fighting break out might be inadequate, since 400 tons of medical equipment is now sitting on the docks. (CBS-4)

JORDANIAN REFUGEES

CBS's Tom Fenton reports that Asian refugees have been kept in intolerable conditions for 10 days by Jordan, because Jordanian officials built a camp for them to use over a major water supply. Since that could contaminate it, the camp had to be torn down and moved. The Jordanian government is trying to cover up its mistake.

(CBS-5)

NUCLEAR WEAPONS/IRAQ

NBC's Fred Francis reports on the case of Raymond Roberts, who almost sold equipment which could be used to make nuclear weapons to Iraq just days before Iraq invaded Kuwait. Iraq wanted Roberts' New Jersey company, Comsock [phonetic], to build three furnaces to make, Iraq said in documents, artificial hip and knee joints out of titanium. But Roberts was suspicious, and told the Commerce Department the end use of the equipment could also be nuclear. NBC News has learned that the furnaces could be used to cast highly enriched uranium from bomb cores, or for melting titanium for rocket motors. But after learning that last year, the Commerce Department gave Roberts permission to sell Iraq the furnaces. It was an honest businessman's warning ignored, said one U.S. official. Everyone in this government knew Saddam Hussein was building nuclear weapons with Western technology. On top of that, the furnaces were being shipped to the same complex south of Baghdad where Iraq was planning to send smuggled nuclear triggers it tried to acquire from a California firm. The Israeli government heard about the furnace deal, and protested. But the furnaces were already under construction, and the Israeli concern was ignored. That is, until U.S. intelligence learned that other equipment Iraq was buying in other countries, along with the furnaces, could only mean production of missiles and nuclear warheads. It was almost too late; Roberts had the first furnace crated and ready for shipment. By early summer, the Pentagon was in a high-level debate with the Commerce Department to stop the shipment. Commerce refused, and then the President was told.

(President Bush, Aug. 28, 1990: "And so we stopped the export of furnaces that had the potential to contribute to Iraq's nuclear capabilities.")

Iraq won't get the furnaces, and Ray Roberts is out $10 million. He says he was misled by Iraq and the U.S. Commerce Department. The Pentagon says it's not the first time Commerce has sided with Iraq. Three years ago, over the Pentagon's objections, Congress approved the sale of a very sophisticated U.S. computer to Iraq - one that could be use for nuclear missile development. (NBC-5)

FUEL SHORTAGES

CBS's Ray Brady reports that there are new warnings this country will be facing shortages of fuel because of the Persian Gulf crisis.

(Edward Krapels, Energy Security Analysis: "On a global basis, we see a shortage of around two million barrels per day, lasting several months.")

That worry sent crude prices up $1.66 a barrel today. Many analysts say that means gasoline prices could rise another 25 cents a gallon at the pump. Even though OPEC nations are pumping more oil, the embargo has shut off huge supplies of gasoline from refineries in Kuwait. Because of environmental and economic reasons, more than 100 refineries in the U.S. have closed in the past ten years, and therefore cannot take up the slack.

(John Easton, Asst. Energy Sect., testifying Wednesday: "It's the longer-term, the last half of the fourth quarter that does give us concern, as the demand for winter heating stocks in the Northern Hemisphere rises.")

The trouble could come around Dec. 1, say experts.

CLEAN AIR/GASOLINE

NBC's Don Oliver reports on the competition between oil and gas companies to come up with reformulated, less-polluting gasoline blends before the U.S. requires gasoline's replacement with alternative fuels through clean air laws. (NBC-7)

WAR ON DRUGS/SMUGGLING

NBC's Brad Willis reports on the Dominican Republican connection for smugglers of drugs. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of drugs are now being flown here from Colombia on the way to the streets of America. Many politicians and policemen take bribes in the country to look the other way, and the army is short on money and crime-fighting technology. The temptation to make many times more than the average Dominican salary of $50 per month is becoming harder to resist for the average Dominican. Immigration officials say at least one million Dominicans enter the U.S. every year, many of whom sell drugs. Their turf spans from New York to New England, and is spreading west. (NBC-6)

NATIONAL HEALTH GOALS

Schieffer: Federal health officials set 298 national health goals today they hope can be met by the year 2000. The goals include reduction of AIDS cases, cutting tobacco usage, more exercise, and healthier diets. Many of the health goals are the same ones the government set for the last decade, but were never met. (CBS-11)

SHUTTLE COLUMBIA

Jennings reports that the engineers at Cape Canaveral said they will try to replace the fuel pumps on the Columbia Space Shuttle over the weekend. (ABC-9, CBS-8)

SUBWAY MURDER

ABC's Gary Sheppard reports on the New York City subway murder of Utah native Brian Watkins, who was killed trying to defend his mother from muggers who were allegedly attempting to rob them for money to go dancing. (ABC-8, NBC-8)

EDUCATION/COOPERATIVE LEARNING

ABC's Bill Blakemore reports on the educational concept of cooperative learning, which allows students to band together in the classroom to help one another learn the subject matter, rather than just focusing on what the teacher has to say and learning independently. Teachers say it is producing higher test scores, trouble-free school integration, and fewer discipline problems -- all without sorting children out into ability groups. (ABC-10)

MAPPLETHORPE

Schieffer reports that a judge in Ohio refused to dismiss obscenity charges against a Cincinnati art gallery and its director for a recent exhibit featuring works by controversial photographer Robert Mapplethorpe. The trial's set to begin later this month. (CBS-9)

COUNTRY: USSR/IRAQ/ARAB STATES

SUBJ: SOVIET AGENDA ITEMS FOR THE SEPTEMBER HELSINKI
SUMMIT

DOI: 1.4(c)

SOURCE: 1.4(c)

TEXT: 1. ON 4 SEPTEMBER 1990 PALESTINE LIBERATION ORGANIZATION (PLO) CHAIRMAN YASIR (('ARAFAT)) RECEIVED A LETTER FROM SOVIET LEADER MIKHAIL ((GORBACHEV)), DELIVERED BY THE SOVIET AMBASSADOR TO TUNISIA, VLADIMIR ((SOBCHENKO)), IN WHICH GORBACHEV STATED THAT DURING THE UPCOMING U.S.-SOVIET SUMMIT IN HELSINKI, THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT WOULD DEMAND A GUARANTEE FROM THE U.S. THAT IT WOULD NOT INITIATE MILITARY ACTIONS AGAINST IRAQ. THE LETTER ALSO STATED THAT THE SOVIET UNION WOULD INSIST THAT THE U.S. LIMIT ITS FORCES IN THE GULF REGION TO THOSE FORCES SUFFICIENT TO DETER AN OFFENSIVE THREAT FROM IRAQ AND THAT THESE FORCES NOT BE ALLOWED TO GROW INTO AN ARMY SUFFICIENT TO ACT OFFENSIVELY AGAINST IRAQ. THE LETTER FURTHER STATED THAT THE SOVIETS WOULD DEMAND A TIMETABLE FROM THE U.S. REGARDING THE WITHDRAWAL OF THESE TROOPS IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE SITUATION STABILIZED. 1.4(c) COMMENT: GORBACHEV'S LETTER WAS IN RESPONSE TO AN EARLIER LETTER FROM 'ARAFAT IN WHICH 'ARAFAT REQUESTED THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT'S HELP IN DETERRING U.S. MILITARY ACTION AGAINST IRAQ.)
