MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

From: Chase Untermeyer CGU

Subj: Numbers on Ambassadorships

9.

Here are the numbers on the career/non-career ambassadors which you requested yesterday:

* With the selection of Bob Strauss, the numbers will be:

CAREER: 104 (72%)
NON-CAREER: 41 (28%)

* The 72% level compares with 64% at the end of the Reagan Administration. Moreover, it's the highest percentage of career ambassadors in more than 10 years. The highest in the last quarter-century was 78% in 1977.

* Here are the administration averages of:

JOHNSON: 71%
NIXON-FORD: 70%
CARTER: 76%
REAGAN: 68%

* In case anyone is dismayed over the selection of a non-careerist for Moscow, he/she should recall that in 1989 you agreed to send an FSO (Bill Clark) to India -- historically a non-career post -- in exchange for a major draft choice to be named later. The USSR is that post.

* Not only that, but you have named FSO's to ambassadorships that historically have been non-career: China, Japan, Argentina, Sweden, Luxembourg, USUN, OAS, and of course the UK. (Mexico has been half/half but arguably is traditionally non-career.)

* Finally, today's WASH POST said that you and Jim Baker "have yet to give a clear signal to (non-career ambassadors) that their resignations are expected" at the conclusion of three years service. I recently met with JAB, Larry Eagleburger, and Brent Scowcroft on this matter and composed a memo now in circulation among these gents and which I expect you'll see within the next two weeks.

FROM: CLAYTON YEUTTER CY

First, thanks to both you and Barbara for making two appearances this week with the Republican Eagles. They really enjoyed what you had to say. Their mood was upbeat, we gave them a first rate program, and their rapport with each other was very good. We're going to try to give that program a shot in the arm in a number of ways so that we boost the retention rate. There has been too much attrition to suit me. It should be easier to retain major donors than attract new ones.

On that same front, I had a conversation today with Skip Hove, my fellow Nebraskan who is Vice Chairman of the FDIC. Skip feels that real estate values are now leveling off in the South and Southwest, though not yet in some areas of the East and Northeast. He sees this as encouraging since he believes most (though not all) of the credit crunch is real estate related. Skip agrees with me that by far the healthiest sector of the U.S. economy today is the Midwest.

Thanks for having a conversation with Dick Thornburgh on the Pennsylvania Senate situation. His prospective opponent is credible but by no means outstanding, so Dick should be able to hold that seat easily if he runs. But he'll irritate people in Pennsylvania if he delays too long and appears indecisive. Should Dick not run, the nod may well go to Congressman Tom Ridge even though his name identification is the lowest of the potential Republican candidates.

Our friends in Louisiana are still working hard to avoid having a state convention which would likely endorse someone other than Governor Roemer. And they're still trying to persuade Clyde Holloway to drop out of the gubernatorial race and concentrate on winning re-election to the Congress. Both endeavors are still below 50-50 in probability, but not impossible. Former Governor Dave Treen has been devoting a lot of time to this, and a note thanking him would be very appropriate.

Dan Cook, another fellow Cornhusker who is Goldman Sachs' top man in Dallas, has just taken on a big fundraising obligation for us. He has been attempting to raise $1.5 million for our redistricting battles. That would be worth a 10 minute motivational stop in the Oval Office sometime if you can spare it.

Tom Pauken did lead the race for the Congressional contest in Dallas, with Sam Johnson, a state legislator, joining him in the runoff. Pauken took some flak for publicly criticizing you on domestic spending, but he responded by saying that critics failed to appreciate the context of his remarks and that he was really a big fan of George Bush. He would appear to have some unguided missile characteristics!

My impression is that Boyden Gray and his staff did a fine job on the travel controversy, though it is too early to tell whether that will extend the story or cause it to wind down. My guess is the latter because the press is now relegated to working the details, and the American public is not much interested in those.

There are a couple of lessons to be learned from this experience. One is that it almost never pays to be dilatory in providing the facts in such situations. That simply generates suspicion of wrongdoing, and fosters conjecture and innuendo which keep the story alive. It would have been better to have gotten the facts out more quickly in this case, but what has now been done seems responsive.

The second lesson is that one has to be scrupulously careful about travel because it is such a political lightning rod. Perceptions count for more than reality in this area, and we sometimes learn that the hard way.

I took the political pulse of some of our top Republican chairmen, committeemen, and committeewomen this past week and found them optimistic. All said the travel allegations were a negative, though not nearly as big a story as here in D.C. All were more concerned about your health, and about the political impact of that incident on the Vice President. They are very supportive of the Vice President but concerned that he may now be battered even more in the press. Fortunately, that pendulum seems to be swinging a bit to the Vice President's side in recent days. It has required remarkable restraint on his part over the past couple of years not to strike out against the press, but that will pay political dividends for him in years to come. People respect a class act, and the Vice President has been just that.

Finally, I hope you'll ease your schedule a bit. The American people want you strong and healthy for the long pull.
