BAKER HOPEFUL ISRAELI LEADERS WILL ANSWER POSITIVELY SOON

JERUSALEM -- Secretary Baker, trying to coax Israelis into accepting U.S. proposals for peace talks with Arabs, said Monday he was hopeful the Jewish state's leaders would respond positively in a few days.

After two rounds of talks with Prime Minister Shamir, Baker told reporters: "The Prime Minister indicated that he would respond shortly to our proposals.... I look forward with great hope to their response."...

Shamir's spokesman, Avi Pazner, told a separate news conference after Monday's meeting: "There are still different problems which we must consider in the next few days. We had very good talks Sunday and Monday."

Baker...acknowledged he was at odds with Shamir on the issue of Jewish settlement of occupied Arab lands.

But Baker added: "That is quite separate and apart from this question of the peace process." (Alan Elsner, Reuter)

Israel Asks More Time To Respond To Peace Initiative

JERUSALEM -- ...Prime Minister said nothing after the meeting and his spokesman was noncommittal.

"All items regarding the peace process were discussed," said Shamir spokesman Pazner. "We will continue our close contact with the U.S. with the view toward making progress on the road to peace."... "We're not under any pressure to give an answer soon. There is no deadline," Pazner said. "We can take a few days if we need a few days." (William Ries, UPI)

Baker Meets Shamir Amid Reports Of Israeli Compromise

JERUSALEM -- Secretary Baker resumed talks Monday with Prime Minister Shamir as Israeli newspapers reported the government was leaning towards accepting U.S. terms for an Arab-Israeli peace conference....

Israeli newspapers said Shamir recognized he had little choice but to compromise in the face of strong U.S. and international pressure. "What Shamir heard Sunday night from Baker about the Syrian position has made it very difficult for him to reject the American proposal and to keep intact American good will so vital for Israel," wrote the independent Ha'aretz newspaper. Other Israeli newspapers echoed the view. (Alan Elsner, Reuter)

U.S. Presses Peace Plan In Israel

JERUSALEM -- Secretary Baker Sunday night pressed the intense diplomatic mission to transform the Middle East peace process with a one-on-one meeting with Prime Minister Shamir in which he appealed for Israel to join the Arab states in attending a regional peace conference....

Shamir spokesman Avi Pazner said after the meeting that Israel was satisfied that Baker was not concealing any assurances the Americans had provided Syria while eliciting President Assad's support for the conference. But other Israeli sources said officials here still harbored the suspicion that Washington was combining with Arab states either to force Israel to attend a conference weighted against it or to take the blame for wrecking the peace initiative.

In Amman...King Hussein announced that "Jordan will be among the first to attend" the regional peace conference....

Israelis government press office director, Yossi Olmert, said the Arab responses as described Sunday night by U.S. officials were "very mundane stuff."

"They understand it has to be tested. We would like to test Assad as well," said Olmer.

(David Hoffman & Glenn Frankel, Washington Post, A1)

U.S. JEWISH LEADERS HOPEFUL, WARY ABOUT BUSH'S PEACE OFFENSIVE

Jewish leaders in the U.S. view the Bush Administration's Arab-Israeli peace offensive with a mix of hope that it might produce a "sweet peace" and worry that it is subjecting Israel to a diplomatic squeeze play.

"We're definitely hopeful, but along with the hopefulness, there is, I must confess, skepticism about the motives of Syria," said Shoshana Cardin, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations....

Mark Talisman, director of the Washington office of the Council of Jewish Federations, said he believes that the Administration's diplomacy in recent weeks has been "unfair to Israel. The U.S. has been using pressure tactics in an area where Israel doesn't have a lot of room to move."... "This is the lousiest business of all," Talisman added. "This Administration, which says it is for promoting human rights, is messing around with a resettlement that is the equivalent of the U.S. taking in 68 million refugees."

(Paul Taylor, Washington Post, A18)

BUSH WINDS UP VISIT TO TURKEY WITH SIGHTSEEING

ISTANBUL -- President Bush toured old Istanbul Sunday and took a boat ride along the strait that divides the continents of Europe and Asia, ending visits to ancient rivals Greece and Turkey in which he sought to thank one for crucial support in the Gulf War and reassure the other that ties are still strong.

Bush's delicate balancing act -- spending an equal number of days in each country -- appears to have strengthened U.S. ties with both nations. He made little apparent progress, however, on his other goal of the trip, bringing Greece and Turkey together to settle a 17-year-old dispute over Cyprus.

IRAQI DECREES WIDEN AMNESTY FOR SOLDIERS
ICRC Says 20,000 Kurds Flee Toward Border

BAGHDAD -- Saddam Hussein's ruling council issued decrees Sunday forgiving opponents of the government and expanding amnesty for army deserters. The announcements came as relief officials reported thousands more Kurds fleeing Iraqi forces.

The decrees follow reports of renewed fighting between government forces and Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq and troop movements in the south into Shiite Muslim areas.

(AP, Washington Post, A18)

Iraq Declares Amnesty For Political Prisoners

CAIRO -- Saddam Hussein...declared an amnesty for political prisoners and army deserters, the Iraqi News Agency reported....

"The move is aimed at distracting attention away from Iraq's reluctance to allow Kurds and Shiites the full autonomy they are demanding, and to try to placate growing unrest among the population at large with Saddam's handling of the Gulf War and the terrible consequences this has had on the Iraqi people," said an Arab government who asked not to be named. SOVIET SUPERCARRIER STIRS TREATY VIOLATION CHARGES

The Soviet Union next month plans to steer its first supercarrier out of the Black Sea for assignment to the Northern Fleet, a voyage with implications for naval arms control as well as Moscow's ability to project power at sea.

The Soviets have informed Turkey and other countries in the region that the aircraft carrier Kuznetsov will depart in August, according to U.S. officials.... The Kuznetsov's passage technically would put the Soviets in violation of the 1936 Montreux Convention....

U.S. naval analysts...say the Kuznetsov's debut on the open seas will make the Soviets' arms control pitch appear inconsistent.... "Technically, yes, it is a violation," said John Lehmann, secretary of the Navy in the Reagan Administration. "But in reality the Montreux Convention is kind of irrelevant at the present time. I don't consider it a major issue.

PRETORIA ADMITS TO MORE SECRET AID TO INKATHA
De Klerk's Ability To Control Government Is Under Question

ULUNDI -- The government made new disclosures Sunday night about its secret funding of Chief Buthelezi's Inkatha movement, and the widening scandal has strengthened allegations that Pretoria has tried to manipulate events to weaken its chief black adversary and Inkatha's rival, the ANC. In addition, the spreading political-funding scandal has for the first time led to angry questioning in the...news media about the personal integrity of President de Klerk and his ability to control his own government.... The Sunday Times...wrote that de Klerk is in danger of "being dragged down by the sinister forces that lurk in his government" and that it is becoming "increasingly difficult to suspend judgment."

"I will discuss it with the president (de Klerk)," Vlok told Harber.

BANGKOK -- A 25-man U.S. military team conducted searches in Vietnam for evidence of missing Americans as Hanoi formally agreed to investigate a photograph allegedly showing missing GIs, official media reported.

At the same time Sunday, Vietnam demanded punishment of those involved in producing the photo if it is shown to be a fabrication.

THAI PREMIER URGES PATIENCE WITH DEVELOPING DEMOCRACIES

BANGKOK -- Democracy means nothing to the people when votes and ministers can be bought as they were in Thailand before February's bloodless military coup, said Prime Minister Anand Panyarachun.

In an exclusive interview with The Washington Times, Anand warned the U.S. against viewing democracy as a cure-all for the world's ills.

Anand said a "democratic society must, by definition, have economic content."

He urged the U.S. "to look at the Soviet Union..., Eastern Europe and China with more sympathy and understanding." The West's welcome to glasnost and perestroika, Anand said, "has to be tempered by our concern as to whether the breakup of (these countries) won't be a far worse threat to world peace than what went before."

NATIONAL NEWS

THOMAS ACCUSED OF BREACH IN ETHICS

Clarence Thomas may have violated judicial ethics in a 1990 ruling involving his political mentor, Sen. Danforth, a court watchdog group charged Sunday.

Judge Thomas...wrote an opinion throwing out a $10.4 million fine against Ralston-Purina Co., a company founded by Danforth's grandfather.... Danforth owns at least $7.5 million in Ralston-Purina stock.... Danforth said he had no knowledge of the case, had never discussed it with Judge Thomas and did not believe that either man had a personal stake in its outcome.

"We're in the silly season of Clarence Thomas stories," Danforth added in a statement issued by an aide.

A White House spokesman said the White House would have no immediate comment on the report. (Reuters, Washington Times, A10)

Ethics Charge Levelled At Thomas

..."We're in the silly season of Clarence Thomas stories."

Ethics experts disagreed: "I do not see it as a close case," said ethics professor Monroe Freedman of Hofstra Law School. "I think he clearly had an obligation to recuse himself."

GW Law School professor Banzhaf said Thomas's action was a "small black mark" that looks bad, but won't scuttle his nomination. But Ronald Rotunda, ethics expert at University of Illinois Law School, said it's not unusual for judges to know people who appear before them. (Judi Hasson, USA Today, 3A)

URBAN LEAGUE WON'T OPPOSE THOMAS NOMINATION TO COURT

ATLANTA -- The National Urban League will not oppose the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court, the President of the civil rights group said Sunday.

"I think it is important that we have a racially diverse Supreme Court, even if he is not my candidate," John Jacob said....

He said the decision reflects the ambivalence that liberal civil rights advocates feel about the appointment of Thomas....

Jacob said the Urban League's position "is to to oppose him, not to be his advocate, not to be his defender, to simply let the Senate do its job." (AP, Washington Post, A4)

WHITE HOUSE READY TO FIGHT

The Bush Administration, in radical change from the Reagan White House's aloof handling of the nomination of Robert Bork, has joined with conservative groups to mount an attack strategy aimed at putting Clarence Thomas on the Supreme Court....

Clint Bolick, director of the Landmark Center for Civil Rights and an underling of Judge Thomas during his tenure as EEOC head, said: "Clarence Thomas will have enormous appeal among mainstream Americans.... Liberals simply will not be able to overcome that."

Opponents also have trouble opposing a man who has strong public support, particularly among blacks, said Thomas Jipping, legal affairs analyst with Coalitions for America. In at least one poll, 57 percent of blacks questioned said they supported the nominee. (Paul Bedard & Dawn Ceol, Washington Times, A1)

CRIME BILL'S COSTS WORRY U.S. JUDGES
Senate Plan Seen Adding Inmates

The Senate's new crime bill is drawing opposition from federal judges and lawyers who contend it would impose billions of dollars in hidden costs on the criminal justice system and seriously compound inequities in the sentencing of defendants.

The measure...also could have a devastating impact on the federal prison system, according to some critics. In addition to imposing the death penalty for 51 crimes, the bill includes...provisions that some experts say could generate tens of thousands of new federal inmates....

"If these provisions are used, they are going to enormously overwhelm the courts and the prisons," said Eric Sterling, president of the Criminal Justice Policy Foundation....

Critics of Sen. D'Amato's provisions point out that the crime bill does not authorize spending for any new prosecutors, judges and prisons that would be required to implement them.

WAXMAN BLASTS SENATE ON AIDS PENALTIES

Rep. Waxman criticized the Senate for adopting two measures on AIDS testing for health-care workers and said the House should reject a bill for stiff penalties for doctors who work knowing they have the virus....

"There shouldn't have been a Helms amendment.... The House has got to reject that."...

Waxman said the Bush Administration...needs to do more education and testing.

Waxman said young people needed to be educated about risks, while the government steps up testing of individuals at risk of exposure. But such efforts, he said, have been thwarted.

"We're being stopped from doing some of those things by the rightwingers who are now trying to impose criminal penalties on doctors where there is no evidence that any of the doctors are uncooperative in trying to do what's prudent under the CDC guidelines," he said. (UPI)

AIDS TESTING SEEMS INEVITABLE, OFFICIALS SAY

AIDS testing of health professionals is inevitable regardless of congressional action, a House leader on health issues and the director to the NIH's Office of AIDS Research agreed Sunday.

"As a practical matter, the liability insurers are going to require that he (the physician) knows whether he's (HIV-) positive or not, and therefore to know it, he'll get tested," said Rep. Waxman....

The NIH's Dr. Anthony Fauci, who appeared with Waxman on "Face The Nation," agreed that "de facto" mandatory testing of health care workers is coming because of insurers.

YOUNG VOTERS TURN TO GOP - POLLSTER

Once the backbone of the Democratic Party, young people are starting to get in the habit of voting Republican, according to several Democratic Party strategists.

"Bush has surged among young voters, as has his party," said Celinda Lake, a prominent pollster.

"Young people who get in the habit of voting for Republicans (for President) election after election will ultimately start going down-ballot in their party choice," said veteran campaign consultant Tom Donilon....

"We offer the American people no real voice or alternative to George Bush," said former DNC Chairman John White.

He said that all too often his party leadership's criticism of the President's policies "is muted, it is mild, it is inconsistent, it's only occasional." While the Republicans have had a consistent campaign to discredit Democrats and the Democratic Party with "body blows," he said, "we do not fight back."

The former DNC Chief said that if the Democrats were to have any chance of running a competitive race against Bush..., "we're going to have to run an attack campaign."...

Democratic consultant Rory Davenport said there is "still plenty of time for candidates to go out there and establish their candidacies and develop an agenda."

HOUSE DEMOCRATS FEAR INACTION ON 'TAX FAIRNESS' ISSUE

Many House Democrats, who last fall touted "tax fairness" as their most potent domestic issue, fear the issue is slipping away because of their leadership's inaction.

"There's a kind of political gridlock on the subject of taxes," said Rep. Dorgan.

"We ought to be revving up our engines on economic policy.... But our side is not very aggressive any longer."...

Many within the House Democratic caucus say the leadership isn't moving with sufficient urgency, and as a result is squandering the success the party had last year in portraying the Bush Administration as pursuing a tax policy that favors the wealthy.

"There's a growing frustration among members that there is no vehicle to express difference between Democrats and Republicans on tax issues," said Rep. Downey. (Eric Pianin, Washington Post, A4)

DEMOCRATS MOVING SLOWLY ON PROMISED ANTI-RECESSION PACKAGE

Two months after top congressional Democrats pledged to act against the recession, the leaders remain unsure how to proceed and advocates for the poor and even some Democrats are expressing frustration.

With the White House and many analysts saying the economy is picking up steam, Sen. Bentsen last week announced a proposed $5.8 billion expansion of unemployment insurance benefits....

The Senate has passed a $123 billion highway bill that supporters say will create jobs, and the House is starting work on a similar measure. Otherwise, Democrats have little to show besides a House version of Bentsen's bill....

"If they act soon on unemployment benefits, that will restore our faith in Democrats as champions of the unemployed," said John Dodds, director to the Philadelphia Unemployment Project. "It's been shaken because they haven't done anything for all these many months. We feel like we've been abandoned."

"No, we haven't been aggressive enough," said Rep. Downey. "And I think we're paying a heavy price with the public for it. This should be the party that deals with the recession."

TSONGAS BRANDS PARTY PLAN AS 'TWINKIE ECONOMICS'

The lone announced Democratic candidate for President has berated the party's economic platform as "twinkie economics," which he said is unable to produce an economic recovery.

Former Sen. Tsongas said part of his drive for the nomination is to "alert the country to the economic threat" and to "change the party into a pro economic growth, pro economic patriotism, more aggressively pro business" party.

Speaking on "Meet The Press," he outlined an economic policy that would hold down federal spending, raise the gasoline tax to pay for rebuilding the nation's infrastructure and create a third level of income taxes to offset any revenue loss from a cut in the capital gains tax and use a "means test" for Social Security....

Tsongas also proposed a Middle East Common Market to bring regional peace through economic interdependence. (UPI)

PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFUL ENDORSES MANDATORY AIDS TESTS FOR DOCTORS

The only declared major candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, former Sen. Tsongas, said he favors mandatory AIDS testing for doctors and other health care givers....

But Tsongas said "the idea of a 10-year jail term for a doctor who did not [take a test] is extraordinary, and I think takes it to the point for being ridiculous."...

The Democratic speaker of the California Assembly, Willie Brown, said on "This Week With David Brinkley" that Democrats are avoiding the race because of a mistaken belief in President Bush's invulnerability.

"I believe George Bush is kind of a paper tiger, but my colleagues who are eligible to run...are running away from it because they believe he is so strong," Brown said.

MIDDLE EAST/BAKER TRIP

CBS's Edie Magnus: The U.S. is once again attempting to persuade Israel to attend a peace conference with its Arab neighbors. Secretary Baker is in Jerusalem tonight. He had a brief meeting with Prime Minister Shamir, but wasn't feeling well, and he will meet with Israeli government leaders again tomorrow morning.

CBS's Bill Plante reports on Baker's trip to Israel.

(Baker: "It would be our hope, of course, that we could see the convening of this conference within a reasonable time period.") Twice today Baker hinted that if Israel won't agree to a peace conference, the U.S. might just call one anyway.

(Baker: "At some point, I think you have to consider that.") And that's what the Israelis are afraid of. Saying yes to a conference or a settlement freeze would probably bring down Shamir's government.

(Geula Cohen, Knesset member: "If there will be any concessions, we will not be in the government; the government will not be at all.")

That would stall everything until a new election, something Shamir might find preferable to talking about trading land for peace.

(Ariel Sharon, Housing Minister: "We're not going to accept any pressure -- a waste of time.")

Maybe, but the U.S. has leverage. Baker has carefully orchestrated international pressure by getting Arab agreement to a peace conference, even though many Arabs find it impossible to say -- in answer to a direct question -- that they are willing to talk to the Jews.

(King Hussein: "This is about the most ridiculous question I've ever heard, so please don't [inaudible].")

Many here believe the Prime Minister worries less about making peace with Syria than keeping the peace with the U.S. But Baker intends to keep up the pressure. One option under consideration: to have Presidents Bush and Gorbachev announce a Mideast peace conference at their summit next week, with or without Israel's consent. (CBS-Lead)

ABC's Barrie Dunsmore reports Baker's first meeting with Shamir lasted only an hour and a half.

(Avi Posner, spokesman: "I can only describe the conversation, as a whole, as friendly and good.")

Baker was said to feel the Israelis will ultimately say yes to the U.S. proposals, but then raise other, more difficult issues. One of those issues came up in Jordan today, as King Hussein signed on.

(Hussein: "We are ready to attend the peace conference and we are very happy indeed that it is going to be a comprehensive one.")

But Israel is likely to argue that neither Hussein nor the Syrians really will talk directly to Israel. Baker says they will.

(Baker: "The purpose of this conference would be to launch direct, bilateral negotiations between Israel and Palestinians on the one hand and Israel and her Arab neighbors on the other.")

-more-

Dunsmore continues:

But the King would not flat-out say yes to direct negotiations.

(Hussein: "What do you attend a conference to do? Do you attend a conference to mime, to make faces at each other or to discuss and try to resolve a problem?")

As the U.S. waited six weeks for a positive response from the Syrians, Baker will almost certainly give the Israelis sufficient time to consider. But sooner or later the U.S. will want an answer, and Mssrs. Bush and Baker will not want to hear that Israel thinks they have been wasting their time. (ABC-Lead)

NBC's John Dancy reports Baker for the first time told Shamir the details of Syria's offer to attend a peace conference. No comment from Shamir. King Hussein said he'd be there.

(Hussein: "When the process is there and the conference is there, Jordan will be among the first to attend it. And I repeat that: We are ready to attend, OK?")

Hussein said Jordan is discussing a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation to the talks. The PLO has dropped its demand to attend the peace conference. Meanwhile, as he met with Palestinian leaders, Baker turned up the pressure on Israel, threatening to call a peace conference whether Israel has agreed to attend or not.

(Baker: "We've always indicated that that would be something we might consider. That doesn't mean we've decided to do it, because we haven't. But at some point I think you have to consider it.") The pressure on Shamir is intense. The invitation to a peace conference could come as early as the Moscow summit next week.

(CBS-Lead)

PRESIDENT'S TRIP/MIDDLE EAST

CBS's Susan Spencer: [Audio interrupted]...has made prospects for peace "a whole new ballgame," because they've agreed to what the Israelis have long said they wanted: direct talks.

(TV coverage: President and First Lady arriving in Istanbul.)

The President denied he is pressuring Israel, but called on the Israelis to accept the plan, too.

(President Bush: "And I am confident -- I hope it's not misplaced confidence -- that when the Secretary gets to Israel he will find that they, like all these other countries realize, that time for peace is at hand.")

And Mr. Bush again urged Israel to suspend all settlements on the West Bank.

(President Bush: "I haven't encountered anybody in this part of the world who thinks increasing settlements is a helpful thing. And the U.S. policy has been opposed to it for years.")

But the woes of the Mideast were, for a few brief hours, put aside as the 67-year-old President broke from this trip's grueling schedule to spend much of the last day sightseeing with President Ozal. Istanbul, the capital of the old Ottoman Empire and the only city in the world to straddle two continents, provided the backdrop. And since this is the first time an American President has bothered to visit Turkey in over 30 years, the Turks provided the enthusiasm. Whirling dervishes were the highlight of a quick tour of the sultan's palace. It also included the breathtaking blue mosque in nearby St. Sofia, for a thousand years the cathedral of Constantinople.

Spencer continues:

(TV coverage: President sightseeing.)

The President returns to Washington tomorrow to the usual plate of nagging domestic issues. But none need worry him very long. With the Middle East in flux and the superpower summit just a week away, he can continue to indulge his stated preference for foreign affairs. (CBS-2)

ABC's Brit Hume: The President called on some of Turkey's opposition leaders today and took the opportunity to say a few cautious words on his hopes for Mideast peace.

(President Bush: "We put out a proposal that now is getting the kinds of support from various parties that I think the world has long awaited, so we'll just keep trying.")

But what about Israel? What should it do? His answer repeated familiar U.S. policy against new Israeli settlements in the occupied territories. But coming now, it had new emphasis.

(President Bush: "Well, we're asking that there be positive responses from all the parties and we -- you know, our policy is well known on Israel and settlements. We haven't changed one bit and so there's some sticky points there.")

Asked again what he specifically wanted from the Israelis, the President came back to the issue again.

(President Bush: "I think anybody in the Middle East will tell you -- and I hesitate to speak for my guest that I just met -- but I haven't encountered anybody in this part of the world that thinks increasing settlements is a helpful thing.")

That said, Mr. Bush spent the rest of the day in this fabled city where East meets West, receiving the grandest of tours with his friend, Turkish President Ozal.

(TV coverage: President sightseeing.)

It was a rare day in the life of George Bush, who has been nearly everywhere in the world, but never before here, and seldom spends much time in the role of tourist. An afternoon sail on the historic Bosporus waterway afforded Mr. Bush a spectacular view of this thriving city, which is making the most of his presence here. Sailing under one of the bridges that connects the European part of the city with its Asian section, the President could look up and see giant wind-blown banners bearing his face and that of his host spread against the sky. The President would not likely get that kind of reception in Israel tonight and he knows that it will take more than a suspension of settlements by the Israelis to start anything that could really be called a peace process. But his experience with the Israelis seems to have convinced him that it's best to keep the expectations low and the pressure high. (ABC-2)

NBC's John Cochran: Bush is too experienced to expect too much. But he was surprisingly optimistic about Secretary Baker's visit to Jerusalem.

(President Bush: "I think most people around the world view what has happened as positive -- the Syrian letter, the responses out of Lebanon, the responses out of Egypt are positive and I'm confident -- I hope it's not misplaced confidence.")

Administration sources tell NBC News the key to the Syrian letter is Syria's acceptance of peace talks without any representatives from the PLO. But Bush refused to confirm that publicly.

Cochran continues:

(President Bush: "I think that the Syrian letter and Baker's follow-on talks with Syria is very, very important, and I just don't want to go into the details of what the Secretary talked about.")

Bush was meeting with a Turkish politician, but reporters wanted to know what Bush expected from the top Israeli politician, Prime Minister Shamir, who reportedly rejected Bush's appeal at a White House meeting that Israel stop building settlements in occupied territories.

(TV coverage: President meeting with Shamir.)

(President Bush: "I'm not so sure of that. You don't know what he's made clear to me and what he hasn't. What I'm saying is I'm hopeful he'll accept it.")

Cochran: Sir, is the settlement freeze the most important thing the Israelis could do now?"

President Bush: "Well, I'm not sure. There's a lot of -- we're talking about a conference that'll lead to one-on-one talks. All of these questions are important. But, John, the question of settlements has been important. I think anybody in the Middle East will tell you.")

Tonight a senior Administration official said Bush is especially angered by reports that Israel claims the U.S. has never actually asked for a halt in the settlements. The official said: That's ridiculous and the Israelis know it.

NBC's Garrick Utley discusses the Middle East with Cochran:

Cochran: Baker would seem to hold all of the cards, but American officials don't expect Shamir to just give in. They expect that he will try to finesse it some way, perhaps by raising some new condition, perhaps by objecting to the people who sit on the Palestinian delegation. So they don't expect him to just give up. This is not over yet.

Utley: Israel has done this before. If it continues to drag its feet, will Baker, the U.S. go through with a sort of veiled threat to call a conference and in effect dare Israel not to come to it, or is that a bluff?

Cochran: Yes, I think Baker will go through with it. I don't think it's a bluff and it's a very potent weapon because it could cost Israel a lot of support in the U.S. After all, Israel has been saying for years, we want peace talks if we could just get the Arabs to the peace table. Now they're ready to come and if Israel backs out, a lot of people in the U.S. are going to say, wait a minute, what's going on here? (NBC-2)

SCHWARZKOPF/PERSIAN GULF

Magnus reports Gen. Schwarzkopf returned today to Saudi Arabia on a farewell visit to U.S. troops before retiring next month. He denied his visit is linked to any possible military action to knock out Iraq's nuclear facilities. (CBS-3)

IRAQ/AMNESTY/KURDS

Magnus reports Saddam Hussein declared an amnesty today for all political prisoners and deserters. Not included are military officers who turned against Saddam following the war (CBS-4)

Utley reports another 20,000 Kurds are said to be fleeing toward Iran after a new round of fighting with the Iraqi army. (NBC-5)

GORBACHEV/COMMUNISTS

NBC's Bob Abernethy reports that on Thursday, the central committee of the communist party meets to consider a new reformist platform, and there's wide speculation the party may split and Gorbachev himself may provoke it. Gorbachev has been a master of the middle ground. But now many observers think if there's going to be economic improvement, Gorbachev must join the reformers once and for all. (NBC-10)

GORBACHEV/ECONOMIC SUMMIT

ABC's Forrest Sawyer reports that according to Newsweek, President Gorbachev offered to sell shares in the Soviet defense industry in exchange for access to Western technology. The report says the proposal was positively received, particularly by the Japanese. (ABC-3)

THOMAS NOMINATION/URBAN LEAGUE

Magnus: The nomination of Judge Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court has left civil rights groups deeply ambivalent about whether or not to support him. And that ambivalence was evident today, as the National Urban League began its annual meeting.

CBS's Juan Vasquez: Meeting in Atlanta, the National Urban League refused to endorse the nomination of Judge Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court, although the league said it would not actively oppose him. For the Urban League and for many blacks, the problem is Thomas' disdain for affirmative action programs.

(John Jacob, Urban League: "The burden is on him to assure all Americans that he will not be part of the pack of judicial right-wingers who want to turn the clock back and reverse our gains.") Considering the controversy over the Thomas nomination, a decision not to oppose him is probably the best outcome the Administration could have expected at the Urban League convention. On virtually every other issue, the Administration is taking a beating. Blacks are angry at Washington because they claim the census undercounted minorities, thereby crippling funding for inner-city programs.

(Unidentified: "Successful census is really no good until you know that -- ")

The Administration dispatched a Census Bureau official to reassure the Urban League that its concerns would be met. But officials remain skeptical. They were particularly critical of Cabinet member Robert Mosbacher, a close friend of the President whose department oversees the Census Bureau.

(Jacob: "Commerce Secretary Mosbacher refused to accept the advice of the Census Bureau and its experts, and thereby refusing to adjust for the undercount. That action delivers another unfair blow to minorities and to the cities.")

A priority item on the political agenda for those attending the convention is a civil rights bill supported by Democrats in Congress but also opposed by the Bush Administration.

Vasquez continues:

Blacks say that in 1991 they are swimming upstream.

(Johnetta Cole, Spelman College: "This is a moment in time when some folks seem absolutely set on turning back every gain we've made in civil rights.")

The Urban League called for an Operation Urban Storm, a domestic counterpart to Desert Storm, to, in its words, win the war to save the cities. Price tag: $50 billion. But with a huge budget deficit in Washington and the prevailing mood against higher spending, no one was prepared to say where the money would come from. (CBS-5)

Utley reports the Urban League said today it will not oppose Thomas' confirmation. John Jacob had an interesting quote: "I compliment the President on the shrewdness of the appointment. He checkmated the African-American community." (NBC-4)

BCCI/TERRORISTS

CBS's Peter Van Sant reports the collapse of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International has become a major political scandal in Great Britain. The Sunday Times reported this morning that the terrorist organization run by Abu Nidal held BCCI accounts at several London branches. The newspaper also reports the British secret service knew of the terrorist link to BCCI early last year. Prime Minister Major is being challenged by critics who say he is trying to put a lid on the growing scandal. BCCI is also being accused in a Time report of running a global secret criminal group called the Black Network, which allegedly is involved in illegal arms deals, drug running and kidnapping. The magazine also claims BCCI engaged in bribery of U.S. officials, with $100 million handed out in the past 10 years. (CBS-12)

MIA/VIETNAM

Magnus reports a 25-member U.S. military team has begun an annual joint search with the Vietnamese government for American MIAs. Vietnam, meanwhile, said it will investigate a photograph made public last week that purports to show three missing U.S. airmen. (CBS-13)

OIL SPILL/AUSTRALIA

Magnus reports pollution experts tonight are fighting what is called a catastrophic oil spill in western Australia. A Greek tanker caught fire and spilled nearly 3 million gallons of crude near major fishing grounds. The slick is seven miles long and a mile wide. The crew was rescued. (NBC-8, ABC-4, CBS-11)

ABC -- THIS WEEK WITH DAVID BRINKLEY

Moderator: David Brinkley. Panel: George Will, Sam Donaldson.
Guests: Gov. Wilson; California Assembly Speaker Brown; Ben Stein, author/columnist.

On conservatism and California: With Stein.

Stein: I think the conservative movement is not bankrupt. But I'd say it's definitely heading towards Chapter 11. The conservative movement allowed itself to be co-opted by a kind of nutty fringe which said: Don't be conservative; pass on all the burden to posterity. The motto of the conservatives has become: What has posterity ever done for me?

On conservatism and California: With Speaker Brown.

Brown: I think conservatives are on the run in this state. With Pete Wilson's election, it clearly signalled a change, although not the one that I would have preferred.... [His action] clearly reflects a different attitude and one that the conservatives did not support.

On the 1992 campaign:

Brown: I don't believe Mario Cuomo will be the candidate that the Democrats will place in the field. As of now, I frankly don't know who will even dare step up to run.... Bush, I believe, is a kind of a paper tiger.... We will move the primary date to March.... And I think that'll help the Democratic Party nationally.

On conservatism and California: With Gov. Wilson.

Will: Is the conservative era -- as it has been defined repeatedly by Republicans around the question of no new taxes -- is that conservative era dead?

Wilson: No...it's alive and well.... If you want to know what a Republican and a California conservative are, they are people who believe that there should be very tight administration of government, that is, should be cost-effective. They are willing to pay taxes.... They are about 75 percent pro-choice.... They feel very strongly about the physical environment. So if that makes them a little different, they may be a little different. But they are mainstream conservatives.

On the national budget:

Will: The President has never proposed anything remotely like a balanced budget. Neither did Ronald Reagan.

Wilson: That is because they inherited 50 years of deficit spending.... I think they have to be given credit for attempting, as both have, to try to bring into balance....

On presidential aspirations:

Donaldson: A lot of people are saying that if you prove to be an effective governor, you, or course, will run for the presidency. True?

Wilson: That's not necessarily the case. I have the job that I've always wanted. It think it's maybe the best political chief executive job in the country.

POLITICAL DISCUSSION

On the President's trip: Cokie Roberts joins the panel.

Will: ...We're sitting here in California talking about enormous problems that we have domestically, and a headline appears this week in The New York Times: "Bush Names the Next Challenge." Air pollution, collapsing schools, recession, unemployment? No. The next challenge is Cyprus, I tell you.

Donaldson: Well, Bush goes to Athens and he has to say something. And he goes to Istanbul and he has to say something -- Ankara, rather. And he says something they want to hear.

Will: Could I suggest two things? He doesn't have to go to Istanbul; he doesn't have to travel all the time.... It is just conceivable that Mr. Bush is precisely the wrong kind of president for this country at this moment, when America has never been safer in its entire history....

Donaldson: But this President has done a great deal. Now, if you also want to say he also should do something in the domestic agenda, I think that's fair....

On the Middle East:

Will: There's no question that the demographic equation in Israel and in the Middle East is going to change with the arrival of a million to two million Soviet Jews in the next few years.... The arrival of those immigrants is giving the U.S. some leverage, which the Bush administration, being, I think, the American Administration least sympathetic to Israel in the history of Israel...is going to try and use American financial aid as a weapon against Israel to try and bludgeon it into going to the negotiating table with the mass murderer from Syria.

Donaldson: ...Israel eventually must come to terms with the fact that land for peace makes sense.

Will: ...Israel has been trying for 43 years now to negotiate with its neighbors. And the idea that Jim Baker invented this idea in a brainstorm with the President is preposterous and insulting.

Donaldson: Israel says it wants direct negotiations, but on its own terms. This peace conference would give it every safety guarantee.... I predict it will go to the peace conference, because I think the pressure now is overwhelming.

NBC -- MEET THE PRESS

Moderator: Garrick Utley. Panel: Elizabeth Drew, Tim Russert.
Guest: Paul Tsongas.

On the Middle East:

Tsongas: ...It is my view that you will never have peace in the Middle East until each of the parties feels it's in their own self-interest to bring that peace into being. The idea you can pressure an Israel or any nation to bring about peace is simply not realistic.... What I'm looking for is a common market between these states so that there's an economic tie that links them so it is in the economic interest of an Arab state to have a viable Israel and vice versa.

Utley: ...The real question on the ground today is, should there be a Palestinian homeland? Do you support that idea?

Tsongas: I think that you have to have that issue negotiated between the parties. The idea the U.S. could impose its view, whatever that may be, on an Israel or an Arab state I think is an illusory notion and will doom whatever that proposal might be.

On the Thomas nomination:

Tsongas: In terms of whether I would vote for him as a senator, it really comes down to the question, what's the alternative? And the idea that George Bush is going to put a pro-choice Supreme Court nominee before the Senate I just don't think is viable, so if we are faced with...a white replacement, that would trouble me.

Utley: Now, you have said -- straightforward, bluntly -- that the President is being divisive in this country on the racial issue, exploiting it. Do you think that he is going to continue to do this in the 1992 campaign?

Tsongas: It depends on how far ahead he is.... Do you think George Bush did not know what the potential was of that [Willie Horton] ad, did not know what the hidden message was?

POLITICAL DISCUSSION

On the 1992 campaign:

Utley: ...Is George Bush really going to run, or is there a chance that he might not?

Drew: ...I think the odds are still very strong, but given his health, given his age, given the fact that second terms are usually bummers -- that's scandal time.... I just don't completely rule it out that he doesn't run.

Russert: ...I think George Bush is a political animal to the core, and they're going to have to drag him kicking and screaming from the White House.

CBS -- FACE THE NATION

Moderator: Bob Schieffer. Guests: Dr. Nancy Dickey, spokesperson, American Medical Association; Dr. Sanford Kuvin, infectious-disease specialist; Rep. Waxman; Dr. Anthony Fauci, director, Office of AIDS Research.

On AIDS legislation: With Dikey, Kuvin.

Dickey: ...Indeed, the epidemic that the Senate is responding to is an epidemic not of AIDS, but of fear, and public policy based on fear, not facts, is not good public policy.

Kuvin: If it's fear for the public to demand the right to know what harm can befall he or she from their health-care worker -- and conversely, the health-care worker has the same right to know what harm can befall he or she from their patient -- then so be it.... [Congress doesn't] go far enough. They don't call for mandatory testing.

On AIDS legislation: With Waxman, Fauci.

Waxman: I think the Centers for Disease Control guidelines are what we ought to look to, because they're the ones who ought to be making these decisions. They are in charge of public health and Jesse Helms is not the surgeon general of this country.

Fauci: ...I think that the CDC guidelines were quite fair, and they do not call for mandatory testing. They do, however, call for continued monitoring and getting more data.

Waxman: That Helms amendment should have been superseded by the leadership proposal, which was adopted unanimously.... The House is going to reject that.

Schieffer: Does the Administration put enough priority on AIDS?

Waxman: ...I think they need to do more. We're not educating young people, particularly, that are at risk. We're not putting funds into that. We haven't been able to put funds into testing people so that we can counsel them and give them early-intervention drugs.... This Administration, I would hope, now will come out and make clear their position that this Helms amendment's unacceptable to them, should be unacceptable to them.

THE McLAUGHLIN GROUP

Moderator: John McLaughlin. Panel: Pat Buchanan, Fred Barnes, Jack Germond, Morton Kondracke.

On the Middle East:

Buchanan: ...[Shamir] doesn't want to give up an inch of territory. He's under tremendous pressure. I think what he's going to do is indicate he's going to go forward into Mr. Bush's conference. That will result in a walkout from his government by the hard, real extremists on the extreme right. I think that will bring down basically his government. He becomes a caretaker prime minister. They put off elections until next year. He goes to Congress, gets his $10 billion and the ball goes back to Bush.

Barnes: It also assumes that Labor members of the Knesset don't step forward and back Shamir and keep his government in power so long as Shamir agrees to the peace talks, and some Labor members have said they will do that. In fact, I think that's probably what should be done.... He should go along and he will go along, but he'll go along with his eyes wide open about Assad. This is not a nice man. This is the guy who's murdered tens of thousands of his own people.... To suddenly think that his motives are pure, that he wants peace with Israel, is ridiculous. He wants the U.S., now being the strong power there, to get the Golan Heights back for him, and all he has to give up is a promise of peace that means nothing to him.

Germond: Assad, our new best friend, is a snake of the worst kind and we should never forget that. I think trusting the guy is ridiculous.... I don't think it means a thing, because in the end, the Israelis are not going to give up the Golan Heights, and if they don't give up the Golan Heights, there's going to be no deal.

Kondracke: I think Shamir is going to agree to go to the conference, with conditions and with assurances demanded from the U.S. He'll get the assurances and the conference will actually take place.... Assad is as dictatorial and as much of a snake as Saddam Hussein and twice as smart. He has not changed his long-term objectives at all....

McLaughlin: He shifted for two reasons. One, the Soviet Union is leaning on him, and number two, because he senses the shift -- a massive shift -- in power in the Middle East. The Arabs are practically helpless....

Buchanan: He's also shifted because the Saudis and the Egyptians are leaning on him. Assad figures now the game goes political.... If Shamir and the Israelis stiff President Bush and President Bush says, OK, that's it for your $10 billion in loan guarantees, we would be headed in for a gigantic collision.... I think Shamir's going to try to slip around that and get the $10 billion and keep the land.

Barnes: I think if he doesn't go into peace talks -- just completely stonewalls it -- then there will be the worst rupture in American-Israeli relations, even worse than back in the '50s.

Germond: I suspect he's not going to go into peace talks and there's going to be a very serious blowup.

Kondracke: I think there's going to be a smaller blowup over the issue of settlements vs. the $10 billion in aid, because I think Bush really is adamant on the settlements issue.... I think that he's going to put the wood to the Israelis in the second Administration -- in the second term -- and that's when you're going to see the donnybrook.

On the economic summit:

Kondracke: I don't think [Gorbachev] came away any big winner.... You have the G-7 standing around talking to each other and saying, I think he's got it, I think he's got. The fact is, he doesn't have it.... The only way he can save his neck in his country is to opt for private property unequivocally....

Buchanan: ...He did do very well in these terms: The Germans, the Italians, the French and the Canadians are lobbying on his behalf. The Americans and the Japanese are against him, but I think Bush is soft. George is going to -- Geoffrey is going to his summit at the end of July, they're going to push him a little further, and I think ultimately Gorbachev could get a lot of this aid, but Bush is waiting for politics.

Barnes: Nobody cares about [the arms treaty].... It doesn't help [President Bush].

On Iraq's nuclear program:

Buchanan: ...I think [the chance of a military strike against Iraq] is less than 50 percent now.

Kondracke: [There will be a strike] by Sept. 15.

McLaughlin: No strike. The Administration believes -- and I think the international community is believing -- that the sanctions are now really beginning to hurt deeply.

PREDICTIONS

Barnes: Clarence Thomas...did fantastically well in his visits on Capitol Hill with senators. His prospects for confirmation are better than ever.

Germond: By Sept. 15, you're going to have five Democratic announced candidates: Tsongas, Harkin, Rockefeller, Clinton and Gore.

McLaughlin: Robert Gates will withdraw his nomination. Brent Scowcroft will become the President's new nominee. Gates will become head of the NSC. Scowcroft will sail through.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Moderator: Gordon Peterson. Panel: Charles Krauthammer, Carl Rowan, Elizabeth Drew, Strobe Talbott.

On the 1992 campaign:

Peterson: How vulnerable is George Bush?

Talbott: The real question is, how vulnerable will he be when people go to the polls in '92?... There's no question that the air of invulnerability that Bush has now is a major factor in the decisions of all these [Democrats]...and that air of invulnerability could, over time, erode, particularly as the subject Bush has been strongest on -- foreign policy -- begins to wane and people clearly are paying more attention to the economy. But if the Democrats keep waiting, they may simply have missed their chance to really get any momentum going....

On the Gates nomination:

Talbott: There's no alternative to letting him dangle, inconvenient and suspenseful as it may be for him....

Krauthammer: All the evidence against Gates is circumstantial. It's plausible, but it's still circumstantial.... There are only two people around who could say he did [know].... Unless they say he knew, I think he deserves to be head of the CIA.

On the Thomas nomination:

Rowan: The Vice President is irritated that I said on this show that if you sprinkled a little flour on Clarence Thomas' face, you might think you were listening to David Duke....

Krauthammer: That's guilt by association of the worst kind.... The fact is that Thomas is being attacked because he is dissenting from the mainstream of black leadership and they don't like his opposition and I think are going to try to make him an example. I think it's not going to work.

On the economic summit:

Krauthammer: ...There's an interesting event which happened...at the same time Gorbachev and Bush announced the START treaty -- and it was a yawn...and the reason is precisely because if Gorbachev is in London asking to join the West, then his nuclear arsenal becomes largely irrelevant as a threat and START becomes obsolete on the day it's signed.

On the Middle East:

Krauthammer: You really have to ask yourself if Assad is really interested in peace here or if he's interested in cozying up to the one remaining superpower.... His interest is to satisfy the U.S. and to get him off the terrorism list....

Volume 27, Number 119

Last Week in Congress

It was a busy week in the Senate.

Early in the week, after contentious floor debate, senators passed a measure that would overturn an administration ban on abortion counseling at family planning clinics that receive federal funds. Senators also approved four fiscal 1992 spending bills, including one that would raise their salaries by $23,200 a year and prohibit them from accepting honoraria.

Last week was less hectic on the House side. In a victory for organized labor, members passed a measure that would protect striking workers from being permanently replaced by their employers. The White House opposes the bill.

In committee action, the House Appropriations Committee approved the 13th and final fiscal 1992 spending bill — a measure providing funds for transportation programs. And the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a measure that would stiffen criminal penalties for violent acts against women.

1990 Census. As expected, Commerce Secretary Robert A. Mosbacher announced last week that he would not adjust the 1990 census to make up for a 5.3 million undercount in the nation's population.

The decision was met with sharp criticism by Democratic members, who said that most of the people not counted were minorities and the poor living in large cities. Besides determining how many congressional seats a state will receive, census figures determine how billions of dollars in federal aid will be distributed.

Gray's Departure. Majority Whip William H. Gray III, D-Pa., announced on Friday that he would resign from the House on Sept. 11. On June 20, Gray had announced that he was leaving Congress to head up the United Negro College Fund, but he did not set a departure date.

Senate Floor Action

Abortion Counseling. The Senate passed a bill (S 323) that would lift a Bush administration ban on abortion counseling at family planning clinics that receive federal funds.

The administration regulation, upheld by the Supreme Court on May 23, prohibits clinics that receive Title X family planning funds from offering abortion counseling.

During the heated debate on the bill, senators approved conflicting amendments that will have to be resolved at a later date. One amendment would require doctors to notify one parent at least 48 hours in advance of performing an abortion on a minor, except in cases of a medical emergency, parental incest or child abuse.

Another amendment would also require doctors to notify one parent in advance of an abortion to be performed on a minor but would give physicians the latitude to decide that a minor was "mature enough and competent to provide consent."

Appropriations. Senators made significant headway on fiscal 1992 appropriations bills, passing four bills last week.

• Legislative Branch. In a move that prompted a wave of criticism from political pundits, the Senate late Wednesday approved an amendment to the legislative branch spending bill (HR 2506) that would grant senators a $23,200 annual pay raise, increasing their salaries to the same level as members of the House — $125,100.

Offered by Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and other Senate leaders and approved by a 53-45 vote, the amendment would also prohibit senators from accepting fees for speeches and writings.

Overall, the measure would provide about $2.4 billion for the House, the Sen-

This Week

Both chambers next week intend to keep up a steady pace of legislative activity as the August recess draws near.

The House will take action on the last of its 13 regular fiscal 1992 spending bills, a measure that would provide funds for transportation programs.

The Senate, which has approved five fiscal 1992 spending measures, will also be working on appropriations bills, including ones for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State and the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education.

The Senate will also consider a bill that would revoke low-tariff trading status with China next year if that nation's human rights record does not improve.

The House is likely to face an angry debate over a bill that would reauthorize the National Institutes of Health that includes language to overturn an administration ban on using fetal tissue for research purposes.

A House Energy and Commerce subcommittee will continue working on its version of a wide-ranging energy policy bill. And another House panel will mark up legislation that would reject the list of base closings recommended by a special commission and endorsed by the president.

Senate Floor Action

MFN for China. The Senate today will take up a measure (S 1367) that would condition renewal of most-favored-nation (MFN) trade status to China in 1992 on the government of China making substantial improvement in its human rights record.

The Bush administration is opposed to placing conditions on China's MFN status, which provides normal low tariffs on imported products. China received MFN in 1979 and must have it extended on an annual basis.

Commerce, Justice, State. The Senate plans to consider a $22.1 billion fiscal 1992 spending bill (HR 2608) that would provide funding for the Departments of Commerce, Justice and State.

Almost half of the funding in the bill would go to the Justice Department, which would receive $9.5 billion in fiscal 1992, or 12 percent more than current funding.

The State Department would receive $3.8 billion, a $500 million increase.

And the Commerce Department would get $3.1 billion under the bill, or about $400 million over current appropriations.

The bill also includes $130 million to tear down and replace the bug-riddled U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Labor-HHS. The Senate is also expected to take up legislation (HR 2707) that would provide $204 billion in fiscal 1992 for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services (HHS), and Education.

The bill would provide about $21 billion more than current appropriations. The measure includes language that would overturn the administration's ban on abortion counseling at family-planning clinics that receive federal funding.

The Senate version of the bill also includes $162 million for Title X programs of the 1970 Public Health Service Act. Title X programs provide funding to family-planning clinics.

The House-passed version of the bill contains no funds for Title X programs.

House Floor Action

Land Management. The House on Tuesday will consider legislation (HR 1096) that would reauthorize the Bureau of Land Management (BLM).

The measure would require the BLM to give greater attention to environmental concerns on the 270 million acres of federal land that it manages and to give environmentalists more seats on BLM advisory councils as a balance to commercial interests.

The bill would also direct the agency to take steps to increase the number and types of wildlife on BLM-administered lands.

Disaster Assistance. On Tuesday, the House will also take up a bill (HR 2893) that would authorize supplemental disaster relief in fiscal 1991 for farm areas hit hard by natural disasters.

The bill would extend provisions in the 1990 farm bill to cover disaster aid requirements in 1991.

On Wednesday and the balance of the week, the following four bills are expected to be considered:

Transportation. House members plan to take up a fiscal 1992 spending bill (HR 2942) that would provide $14.2 billion for transportation programs.

The bill would limit spending from the Highway Trust Fund to $16.2 billion, up from $14.5 billion in fiscal 1991; and spending from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund would increase by $100 million, to $1.9 billion.

The bill would also provide $141.9 million for 49 new highway demonstration projects and $145.4 million for 16 ongoing projects.

NIH Funds. A bill (HR 2507) that would reauthorize expired programs of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) will also be considered by the House.

A controversial provision in the bill would overturn a Bush administration ban on NIH research using tissue from aborted fetuses.

Airline Workers. Members plan to take up legislation (HR 14) that would limit the amount of hours airline flight attendants could be required to work.

Supporters of the bill say overworked flight attendants can pose serious safety risks to both passengers and crew. The bill would place duty-time restrictions on flight attendants similar to restrictions placed on pilots, airline mechanics and dispatchers.

Dairy Supports. Members next week will also consider legislation (HR 2837) that would institute milk production quotas while increasing the government's support price for milk by almost 25 percent.

The support price — at which farmers can sell excess milk to the federal government — would be raised to $12.60

Chambers Differ on Spending Figures

The Senate has moved into high gear on the appropriations front, dispensing with four fiscal 1992 spending bills last week.

The action brings to five the number of regular appropriations bills dealt with by the Senate. The House has passed 12 of the 13 bills.

But final action on the bills may not come until after Labor Day, when Congress returns from its summer recess.

Before House and Senate conferees can begin negotiations to resolve differences between the two versions of each spending bill, appropriators must agree on how much of the total available for discretionary spending to allocate for each of the 13 bills.

Each chamber's Appropriations Committee divided its $513 billion pot of money a little differently, and the committees' chairmen and subcommittee chairman will have to reach agreement on the allocation for each spending bill.

That meeting is not likely to come before the August recess.

Because appropriators must work within discretionary spending caps established by the 1990 budget summit, any changes in the allocation for one bill will affect funding for the other bills.

Conferences are possible on a few bills, such as the legislative branch funding measure, for which the Senate and House allocations are the same.

The following chart shows how the Senate and House Appropriations panels allocated discretionary spending among the 13 appropriations bills. The amounts in the chart are in budget authority, in billions of dollars.

	House Allocations	Senate Allocations
Agriculture	$12.50	$12.07

Committee Action

Appropriations. The Senate Appropriations Committee is expected to continue work on fiscal 1992 spending bills this week. Likely candidates for consideration are a measure (HR 2686) providing funds for the Interior Department and related agencies and another bill (HR 2698) for Agriculture Department, nutrition and rural development programs.

Fast Flux. After a number of delays, the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee on Wednesday hopes to mark up legislation (S 395) that would reverse a Department of Energy decision to shut down the Fast Flux Test Facility, a research reactor located in Washington state.

Lawmakers from Washington state say the Fast Flux reactor could serve a host of private-sector functions, including research into medical isotopes and nuclear waste disposal technologies.

Base Closings. The House Armed Services Committee on Wednesday will consider two bills (H J Res 308, H J Res 298) that would reject the base-closing list drawn up by the special Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission and approved by the president. The list includes 25 military bases, including the large Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.

If Congress does not pass a measure rejecting the list, the bases will automatically shut. The resolution is subject to a veto.

The Armed Services Subcommittee on Military Installations and Facilities will mark up both bills on Tuesday.

Veterans' COLA. The House Veterans' Affairs Committee on Tuesday will mark up a bill (HR 1046) that would provide a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Under the bill, disabled veterans and their survivors would receive a 5.2 percent COLA, effective Dec. 1.

The committee will also mark up legislation (HR 939) that would extend eligibility for the veterans' home-loan guarantee program to reservists.

Currently, the program is available only to veterans who have served on active duty, but the bill would allow reservists who have served six years or more to qualify for the loan guarantee benefits.

The committee on Tuesday will also consider a bill (HR 1624) that would authorize the erection of a memorial in Washington, D.C., to honor veterans of World War II.

Women Entrepreneurs. The House Small Business Committee on Thursday will mark up legislation (HR 2629) which aims to assist more women in creating and successfully managing their own companies.

The bill would establish a permanent loan program to encourage women to start their own businesses and would provide resources to women for advice on business development.

Highway Bill. The House Public Works Subcommittee on Surface Transportation on Tuesday and Thursday will mark up a $153.5 billion five-year bill (HR 2950) to expand and maintain the nation's highways.

The measure would give states more flexibility on how to use federal transportation funds. Spending for programs covered by the bill would be paid for by a 5-cent gasoline tax increase that is opposed by the White House.

Energy Strategy. The House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Energy and Power on Tuesday and Wednesday will continue marking up draft energy policy legislation.

Subcommittee work this week is expected to focus on the Strategic Petroleum Reserve as well as octane mislabeling of gasoline.

Government Corporations. The House Banking Subcommittee on Housing and Community Development will mark up draft legislation that aims to increase the financial soundness of government-sponsored entities.

The bill would increase oversight on such government-sponsored companies as Fannie Mae, which deals in government-backed securities.

Some lawmakers are concerned that unless there is stronger oversight, government-sponsored companies may eventually need a bailout similar to the one for the savings and loan industry.

Government-sponsored corporations are privately owned but benefit from federal tax and security law exemptions.

Commemorative Coins. On Thursday, the House Banking Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs and Coinage will mark up three coin bills, including one (HR 500) to provide for the minting of coins to commemorate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyage of discovery.

The panel will also mark up draft legislation that would provide for the minting of congressional silver medals to honor Persian Gulf War veterans.

Construction Safety. The House Education and Labor Subcommittee on Health and Safety on Tuesday will mark up legislation (HR 1063) that aims to increase safety at construction sites.

The bill would create an office at the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to monitor safety at construction sites. The construction lobby is opposed to the bill, arguing that it would create needless paperwork and would not lead to increased safety.

Black Lung. On Wednesday, the House Education and Labor Subcommittee on Labor Standards will mark up legislation (HR 1637) that would make it easier for coal industry workers with lung disease to become eligible for medical benefits.

Under the bill, workers in the coal industry would need to provide less evidence of lung disease than is currently required to receive benefits under the Black Lung Benefits Act.

District Workers. The House District of Columbia Committee on Thursday will mark up legislation (HR 2886) that would permit the mayor of Washington, D.C., to reduce the budgets of the city's independent agencies.

The panel will also consider legislation (HR 2885) that would permit the District of Columbia to issue general obligation bonds to finance the deficit of the city's general operating fund.

Also on the agenda is a bill (HR 2887) that would allow the District government to carry out a plan to reduce the size of the city government. D.C. Mayor Sharon Pratt Dixon has pledged to reduce the size and expense of the city government by making cuts in its work force.

ate and various related agencies, such as the General Accounting Office.

The measure would provide $466 million for Senate functions in fiscal 1992, up from $437.1 million in fiscal 1991.

The House would get $709.2 million under the bill, up from $647.7 million in fiscal 1991.

• Treasury, Postal Service. The Senate also passed, 91-8, a $19.6 billion bill (HR 2622) that would pay for the fiscal 1992 operations of the Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President and several independent agencies.

The Treasury Department would receive about $9.7 billion under the bill, about $190 million more than provided by the House-passed version. Postal subsidies for lower mailing rates for non-profit groups would be set at $563 million, about $86 million less than the House.

By an 81-18 vote, members adopted an unrelated amendment by Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that would make it a federal crime for health-care workers who know they have the AIDS virus to withhold the information from patients on whom they may perform surgery.

• VA-HUD. The Senate also approved an $80.9 billion spending bill (HR 2519) that would pay for the operations of the Departments of Veterans Affairs (VA) and Housing and Urban Development (HUD), as well as numerous independent agencies, including the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The measure, which has about $50 million more spending than the House-passed version, includes about $2 billion for NASA's space station Freedom.

• D.C. Funds. Like the House, the Senate approved a spending bill (HR 2699) for the District of Columbia that would allow locally raised revenues to be used to pay for abortions for poor women. Both chambers' versions of the bill would bar the use of federal funds for abortions.

The measure, which would provide about $700 million in federal funds, also approves the spending of $3.9 billion in locally raised revenues.

• Motor-Voter Bill. The Senate tried and failed twice last week to begin work on a bill (S 250) designed to improve voter participation.

Backers of the bill were unable to attract the 60 votes necessary to cut off debate on a motion to proceed to the so-called motor-voter bill, which would link voter registration to applying for a driver's license.

• Literacy Programs. The Senate cleared legislation (HR 751) that would expand adult literacy programs and create a National Institute of Literacy to conduct research and help states and communities develop reading programs.

• Africa Aid. The Senate passed legislation (S 985) that would spell out U.S. policy toward Northeast Africa. The measure, which would not authorize new spending, is designed to help Sudan, Ethiopia and Somalia cope with food shortages. According to bill sponsors, 20 million people in the area are threatened with starvation.

Unobligated balances from a foreign aid economic assistance account would be authorized to provide emergency food and health assistance to the three countries. The bill would also provide assistance to private volunteer organizations that work in the countries.

• Veterans' Court. The Senate voted to kill a pay raise for judges on the U.S. Court of Veterans' Appeals. A House-passed version of the measure (HR 153) would authorize a $7,000 pay raise for the judges, but the Senate went along with a committee decision not to authorize the salary boost.

The measure would also authorize an annual judicial conference to make recommendations on improvements to the court, which hears appeals from veterans who have been denied benefits.

House Floor Action

• Striker Replacement. The House passed, 247-182, legislation (HR 5) that would bar employers from permanently replacing striking workers. Members overwhelmingly rejected, 28-399, an amendment that would have allowed employers to permanently replace workers after a strike had lasted eight weeks.

Before lawmakers took up the bill, the Bush administration renewed its threat to veto the measure, which it says will lead to labor disputes and business failures. Supporters counter that the measure is needed to guarantee a worker's right to strike.

The House vote on passage, however, fell short of the two-thirds margin that would be needed to override a presidential veto.

• Coast Guard. House members passed a measure (HR 1776) that would authorize $3.6 billion for the U.S. Coast Guard for fiscal 1992. About $3.4 billion was appropriated in fiscal 1991.

Before passing the bill, members approved, 412-6, an amendment that would express the sense of Congress that Coast Guard user fees, included in last year's budget deal, should be repealed.

• Pension Plans. A measure (HR 2031) that would bring employee benefit plans for rural telephone workers under the protection of a federal law that regulates other employee benefit plans was also passed by House members.

Under the bill, rural telephone cooperatives' pension and health plans would be covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, not by state regulations.

• Technology Programs. The House passed, by a 296-122 vote, a bill (HR 1989) that would authorize $348 million for fiscal 1992 for technology programs sponsored by the Commerce Department.

Of that amount, $90 million would go toward a program that provides grants to industry to research and develop new technologies. Current funding for the program is $36 million.

Senate Committee Action

• SDI Funding. The Senate Armed Services Committee approved, 16-4, a bipartisan agreement on the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) that would authorize $4.6 billion for a ground-based missile-defense system.

The panel's SDI proposal does not include funding requested by President Bush for space-based interceptors.

Overall, the fiscal 1992 defense authorization measure (S 1507) would set the defense budget at $290.8 billion.

• Violence Against Women. The Senate Judiciary Committee approved a bill (S 15) last week that aims to decrease incidents of violent crime against women.

The bill would stiffen penalties for violent crimes against women, doubling the current federal penalty for rape to 10 years. Federal dollars would be provided for rape-prevention programs and shelters to protect women from abusive spouses.

• Joint Ventures. The Senate Judiciary panel also approved a bill (S 479) that would broaden the existing protection from antitrust laws for companies engaging in joint ventures.

The measure would expand a 1984 law that granted certain antitrust protections to companies that form joint ventures in research and development. The law would be broadened to include joint production ventures.

• Older Americans. The Senate Labor Committee voted, 13-3, to approve a bill (S 243) that would reauthorize through fiscal 1995 federal programs to assist America's elderly poor.

About $1.7 billion would be authorized for fiscal 1992 for programs under the 1965 Older Americans Act that provide food and transportation assistance for senior citizens.

• Intelligence Budget. The Senate Intelligence Committee approved a fiscal 1992 draft intelligence authorization bill that would require the spending levels for the agencies to be declassified beginning in fiscal 1993.

Howard M. Metzbaum, D-Ohio, said he added the language because it will be impossible to impose financial discipline on the intelligence agencies until their budgets are disclosed.

Environmental Quality. The Senate Indian Affairs Committee approved a measure (S 668) that would aid Indian tribes in establishing environmental regulatory programs on reservations.

Under the substitute version of the bill approved by the committee, efforts to improve environmental quality on reservations would focus on building a tribal structure capable of administering pollution-control grants. The amendment authorizes $15 million annually through 1996 for this purpose.

House Committee Action

Transportation Funds. The House Appropriations Committee last week approved, by voice vote, a $14.2 billion fiscal 1992 spending bill (HR 2942) for transportation programs, a $1.2 billion increase over fiscal 1991.

The spending measure also provides for the expenditure of money from user-supported trust funds. The limit on spending from the Highway Trust Fund would be $16.2 billion, up from $14.5 billion in fiscal 1991. Spending from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund would increase $100 million, to $1.9 billion.

Mass transit programs would receive $3.8 billion, a nearly $600 million increase over current appropriations and the largest increase since fiscal 1983.

Legal Services. The House Judiciary Committee approved legislation (HR 2039) last week that would reauthorize the Legal Services Corporation (LSC), which funds state and local non-profit organizations that provide legal services to the poor. The LSC, which was created in 1974, has operated without an authorization since 1980.

During the markup, members rejected an amendment that would have required legal aid organizations to compete for LSC funds annually. Currently, groups receiving money have a presumptive right to the funds the following year.

Dairy Prices. The House Agriculture Committee approved a bill (HR 2837) that would boost the income of dairy farmers.

The measure would increase government milk subsidies by almost 25 percent but limit the amount of milk each dairy farmer could produce and still receive full government subsidies.

The price the federal government pays for excess milk from dairy farmers would be raised to $12.60 per hundred-weight.

Disaster Assistance. A bill (HR 2893) that would authorize supplemental disaster relief in fiscal 1991 for farm areas hit hard by natural disasters and persistent bad weather won the approval of the House Agriculture Committee.

The bill would extend provisions in the 1990 farm bill to cover disaster aid requirements in 1991.

The bill limits total relief payments to any one person to $100,000. Any farmer with gross revenues of more than $2 million per year would not be eligible for assistance.

Insular Areas. The House Interior Committee approved legislation (HR 1688) that would authorize disaster assistance to island areas governed by the United States.

The bill would authorize assistance to help the islands prepare for and cope with natural disasters. Money would also be provided to help improve the islands' infrastructure, including sewage, water and electrical systems.

Members approved an amendment to make Puerto Rico eligible for aid authorized by the bill. Puerto Rico had been removed from the bill by an Interior subcommittee after the Bush administration raised objections to the bill's cost. As approved by the full committee, Puerto Rico could receive only 25 percent of the aid authorized by the measure.

Energy Policy. The House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Energy and Power began work on a draft bill to craft a U.S. energy policy, approving provisions to improve energy efficiency in buildings and to increase the private and commercial use of natural gas.

By a 22-0 vote, the panel approved language that would update energy efficiency standards in residential, commercial and federal buildings.

The bill would establish a loan program to promote the development of solar energy and other renewable energy sources.

Another provision approved would streamline procedures to enable gas companies to build pipelines more quickly if they agree to assume a greater financial risk. ■

Dear President Bush,

Just checking in! Since my pregnancy I feel like I've been out of touch with the world plus I haven't been able to travel or exercise very much. But it'll all be worth it in the end! I'm in my ~~7th~~ month and my belly button is currently being stretched in four different directions! (Very graphic, sorry!)

Andy and I are now in Aspen where the air is clear, the mountains beautiful and Andy fly fishing! We came here to get away from the humidity of Florida.

I hope your health

A good X saw pictures of you playing tennis in the paper so you must be back in great shape

I look forward to another marathon day of tennis at Camp David in the future!

My love to Mrs Bush

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

THIS IS AN HISTORIC DAY FOR THE UNITED STATES AND FOR EAST-WEST RELATIONS. WE HAVE TODAY CONCLUDED WITH THE SOVIET UNION A NUCLEAR ARMS TREATY THAT WILL BEGIN THE REDUCTION OF LONG RANGE NUCLEAR WEAPONS. THIS TREATY HAS BEEN IN THE WORKS FOR MORE THAN NINE YEARS. I HAVE BEEN ASSOCIATED WITH IT THROUGHOUT THAT PERIOD OF TIME. AND I WANT TO THANK PRESIDENT REAGAN WHO STARTED THIS NEGOTIATION IN 1982, AND WHO NURTURED THE START TALKS THROUGH THE SOMETIMES TURBULENT CHANGES IN U.S.-SOVIET RELATIONS. IT IS PERHAPS DIFFICULT TO UNDERSTAND HOW A TREATY INVOLVING SEVERAL HUNDRED PAGES OF DETAILED NEGOTIATIONS CAN EVOLVE DOWN TO ONE VERY TECHNICAL AND COMPLEX ISSUE. BUT IT DID. AND I AM DELIGHTED THAT WE WERE ABLE TO RESOLVE THAT ISSUE TODAY. IT WAS A MUTUALLY SATISFACTORY SOLUTION. THIS WAS NOT A CASE OF WINNERS OR LOSERS. IT WAS A CASE OF BOTH SIDES AGREEING TO A LIMITATION THAT WILL MEAN REAL REDUCTION IN NUCLEAR LONG-RANGE MISSILES.

I WANT TO ALSO COMPLIMENT PRESIDENT GORBACHEV, WHO HAS STUCK WITH THESE DISCUSSIONS WHILE HE WORKS TO RE-ORIENT THE ENTIRE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL FABRIC OF HIS COUNTRY. HE HAS SHOWN ENORMOUS LEADERSHIP IN FORGING AHEAD WITH THESE PLANS.

IT IS A STRONG SYMBOL OF THE GROWING U.S.-SOVIET RELATIONSHIP THAT WE ACCEPT THE OPPORTUNITY TO MEET WITH PRESIDENT GORBACHEV IN MOSCOW, IN ONLY A FEW DAYS TIME, TO DISCUSS THE MANY OTHER PROBLEMS OF MUTUAL INTEREST TO OUR TWO NATIONS. WE WILL BE IN MOSCOW ON JULY 30 AND 31 TO DISCUSS ISSUES ACROSS THE FULL RANGE OF THE SO-CALLED "FIVE BASKETS" THAT WE HAVE DESCRIBED IN THE PAST.

Bush Library Photocopy
George Bush Handwriting

THESE INCLUDE BILATERAL ISSUES, REGIONAL MATTERS, HUMAN RIGHTS, ARMS CONTROL, AND TRANSNATIONAL ISSUES.

I LOOK FORWARD TO THESE MEETINGS AND THE OPPORTUNITY IT GIVES ME TO FOLLOW UP ON THE PRODUCTIVE DISCUSSIONS OF THE G-7 SUMMIT. TODAY PRESIDENT GORBACHEV OUTLINED HIS PROGRAM FOR REFORMING THE SOVIET ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL SYSTEM. AND THE G-7 HAS RESPONDED WITH THE KIND OF ASSISTANCE WE BELIEVE WILL MOT ENCOURAGE PROGRESS TOWARDS A FREE MARKET ECONOMY AND A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY. WHAT IS IMPORTANT ABOUT TODAY'S MEETING IS THAT THE SOVIET UNION AND THE G-7 HAVE TAKEN THE FIRST STEPS IN THIS PROCESS. IT WILL NOT BE QUICK OR EASY TO IMPLEMENT CHANGE IN THE SOVIET UNION. BUT WE BELIEVE THAT PRESIDENT GORBACHEV HAS MADE AN IRREVOCABLE COMMITMENT.

Re: Costs and Numbers on Recent Overseas Trip

Pursuant to our chat today on AFI please ask the Mil Office supplemented by whatever offices are involved to prepare aa full statement on the London, Athens, Crete, Ankara and Istanbul trip.

Numbers of advance trips to each area- that includes pre-advance.

Please list those who go on the advances. Be sure all advance trips no matter how large or small are covered.

Costs and numbers involved on rest of trips. Please be sure that all departments that have people on these trips are included.

I would like to have this full report in three weeks (By August 12th)

Thanks.

Dear Mr President,

Lynda and I are thrilled to receive the great photograph so beautifully framed. We will treasure it along with your generous inscription.

There are many things I could say at this time to have approached. I think often of your loyalty and support to me and to the Community - couldn't ask for more.

I think of the great leadership you have given our country and

SENATE

On Monday the Senate resumed consideration of the FY 1992 Treasury, Postal Appropriations bill. By a vote of 78-16 the Senate tabled an amendment by Senator Herb Kohl (D-WI) which would have shifted money from U.S. Customs Service Interdiction Programs to IRS revenue enforcement efforts.

On Wednesday the Senate began debate on the FY 1992 VA/HUD Appropriations bill. Senator Dale Bumpers' (D-AR) amendment to cut $2 billion from Space Station Freedom was defeated 35-64. The Senate then passed the FY 1992 Legislative Branch Appropriations bill. By a vote of 53 to 45 the Senate agreed to an amendment increasing Senators' pay to the House level of $125,100, and banning honoraria.

Also on Wednesday the Senate passed, by voice vote, S. 323, which requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to ensure that pregnant women receiving assistance under Title X are provided with information and counseling regarding their pregnancies, including abortion. The bill would overturn an Administration ban on abortion counseling at federally funded clinics. You have stated that you will veto this legislation. During debate on the bill the Senate defeated, by a vote of 64 to 35, an Administration-backed amendment offered by Senator David Durenberger (R-MN) to require Title X family planning clinics to refer pregnant women to other health providers able to offer complete pregnancy counseling and services.

On Thursday the Senate passed H.R. 2622, the FY 1992 Treasury, Postal Appropriations bill, by a final vote of 91 to 8. The following amendments were adopted:

- An amendment by Senator Jesse Helms (R-NC) to impose criminal penalties on doctors and dentists who have AIDS and continue to perform invasive procedures without warning their patients, by a vote of 81 to 18;
- A Helms amendment to toughen criminal sentences for child pornographers, by a vote of 99 to 0; and
- An amendment by Senators Bob Dole (R-KS) and Edward Kennedy (D-MA) to require states to adopt the recommendations of the Centers for Disease Control regarding health workers' precautions against transmitting the AIDS virus, by a vote of 99 to 0.

The Senate then passed the H.R. 2699, the FY 1992 District of Columbia Appropriations bill. The bill contains objectionable abortion language that is subject to a veto threat. Following action on H.R. 2699, the Senate failed twice to invoke cloture on

PRESIDENT TURGUT ÖZAL'S REMARKS
AT THE DINNER GIVEN IN HONOR OF GEORGE BUSH,
THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

Mr. President,
Mrs. Bush,
Dear Guests,

This is an historic evening. We are all delighted and privileged to have President and Mrs. Bush in Turkey and here in the ancient city of Istanbul, where history speaks for itself. From this city, where the Ottoman Sultans ruled an empire which once stretched from the doors of Vienna to Yemen, from Algiers to Crimea. Istanbul was not only the capital of the Ottomans, but also of the ancient Romans, when their power extended to the borders of Persia. Christianity flourished in Anatolia and spread from Tarsus, Iconium and Ephesus to Greece and Rome. Throughout history Anatolia has been the center of many diverse civilizations. In this land, Moslems, Christians and Jews have lived in harmony for centuries.

Turkey is a young Republic with a rich and long history. Over the centuries, Turkey has had one foot planted in Europe and the other in the East. The Ottoman reform movement oriented towards the West dates back to the first half of the 19th century. With the principles laid by Kemal ATATÜRK at the foundation of the Republic, Turks made an irrevocable choice. Today Turkey views herself as an integral part of the West. Our membership in western organizations like NATO, the Council of Europe, OECD, and our long-standing relationship with and application for full membership to the European Community reflect this alignment. With a population predominantly Moslem, Turkey is the only secular democracy in her region. I strongly believe Turkey's application for membership to the EC provides an opportunity to overcome prejudices towards differing cultures and religions.

Some people maintain that the EC should be a Christian club. I believe that such tendencies do not contribute to universal tolerance and open-mindedness. Mr. President, as the American experience eloquently testifies, cultural and religious diversity can enrich and strengthen democratic societies. We believe that Turkish membership in the European Community would indeed provide that. It is this strongly-held belief that is behind the Turkish bid to take part in European integration.

Mr. President,

The Turkish economy has made enormous strides in the last decade. To liberalize and integrate our economy with the free economies of the world, we have opened it to international competition. Turkish businesses not only survived but also became more competitive and prospered in the new environment. I am rightfully proud of Turkish businessmen for reaching out and participating in economic and commercial activities in our region and beyond.

Today there are Turkish banks in the U.S., Turkish construction companies in the USSR, and many highly appreciated Turkish businesses in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East. Turkish firms are fiercely competing with other western firms in almost all parts of the globe on an equal footing. The recent competition between Turkish and German firms and the success achieved by the Turkish firms in the biddings for the construction of housing for Soviet troops returning from eastern Europe is a case in point.

Mr. President,

We are doing our best to encourage economic cooperation in our region. I have put forth the idea of a "Black Sea Economic Cooperation". This will include the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, Romania and Turkey, as well as the individual Soviet Republics of Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Moldavia, Russia and the Ukraine. This is not an initiative to create a Black Sea common market, but rather to create an environment in which goods, capital, people and services can move freely for the welfare of the region. Negotiations among the countries I mentioned have been concluded and a document will be signed during the next few months to put this idea into practice.

We are also trying to encourage economic cooperation and interdependence in the Middle East. With these thoughts in mind, I have proposed a multilateral venture, a peace water pipeline to deliver water from Turkish rivers from southern Anatolia to the Arabian peninsula. I have a strong conviction that these kinds of projects will not only serve the well-being of the peoples in the region, but also contribute to the peace process and create a milieu for dialogue and cooperation. In this context, I have also undertaken an initiative to convene an International Water Summit in Istanbul from 3 to 9 November 1991. At this meeting, we will discuss the ways and means this crucial resource could be best utilized to the benefit of everyone concerned.

In short Turkey has a unique location and a dynamic, young population. We are pleased to note a growing appreciation of Turkey as a hub of international commerce and investment. There is growing interest among U.S. investors to enter joint ventures and conduct business in, around and with Turkey. Such cooperation will benefit both countries. We must encourage U.S. entrepreneurs to come to Turkey to assess the manifold opportunities here.

Mr. President,

We Turks value friendship, we stand by our friends. When we have committed ourselves to someone, we will endure many hardships to preserve the trust. Turks and Americans enjoy deep-rooted friendship, one that has withstood the test of time. Just a short while ago, we joined in an exemplary solidarity with other allies against aggression in the Gulf. This has brought new dimensions to our relations. I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your swift and effective action for the realisation of "Operation Comfort" which first alleviated the sufferings of the thousands of Iraqis massed on the Turkish border and then secured their safe return home.

Mr. President,

Turkish-U.S. relations are based on solid principles: a shared commitment to democracy, freedom and human rights. These principles complement our mutual desire for global peace and prosperity, fuelled by a free market economy.

Turkish-American defence cooperation has over the years matured and diversified encompassing many fields. This multifaceted relationship has woven a fabric of mutual trust and economic cooperation has become an important dimension of this relationship.

The recent presidential mission of Secretary Mosbacher and chief executive officers from prominent U.S. business, which was conducted under your instructions, proved to be highly successful. The mission once again highlighted existing potentials for expanding our economic relations and directed us to fresh ideas for cooperation. I am confident that these efforts will lead us to new partnerships.

Your visit to Turkey, Mr. President, gave us the opportunity to build on these foundations and to open a new era in Turkish-U.S. relations. Indeed, we have now been able to mould our past achievements into a strategic relationship. This involves the expansion and deepening of our relations in virtually all fields. A relationship which encompasses intensified cooperation in the field of security, as well as intensive political consultations on all issues of mutual interest. It also includes enhancement and diversification of our economic relations through increased trade and greater United States investments and joint ventures in Turkey and collaboration in such areas as science and technology, environment, health and cultural exchanges.

Your support for the production of 160 F-16's for the Turkish Air Force in the years ahead is one of the most concrete examples of your political will to move ahead in our relations. We thank you for your confidence in Turkey. The institutionalisation of our relationship is yet another indication that we are determined to reach the full potential of our relations.

I know, Mr. President, how much you were involved personally in the realisation of these results, and I wholeheartedly thank you for it.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

Please thank everyone involved from your end who contributed to the success of this great visit. Barbara and I are very grateful to you for the thoughtful arrangements and the time you spent with us discussing official business, and also the time spent talking about the wonders of Turkey on our unforgettable boat trip on the Bosphorous.

Good luck in all that lies ahead, and my sincere thanks again.

Dear Turgut:

Before I land at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, I want to fire off this thank you letter -- friend-to-friend.

Barbara and I will never forget your many kindnesses to us on our fantastic two-day visit to your wonderful country. You achieved for us just the right mixture of business and pleasure. Our whole travelling team came away from Turkey raving about the kindness of its people and the beauty of its very soul.

I will continue to stay personally involved on the issues we discussed, and, of course, I send you my warmest best wishes for your continued success and happiness. Please thank Semra for her hand in all of this, too. We will never forget it.

Most sincerely,

Dear Bob,

Great job on the Summit. You brought the Sherpa business to a new high level of achievement, and you damn sure did a great job avoiding pitfalls and getting our views not only considered but thoroughly factored in.

*My sincere thanks

Dear George,

We had a most happy visit from Pres and Betty Lou. He told me about the joy of having the brothers on the links together. Great!

C I trust there will be no more. Got a few of the wiley mackeral yesterday. The blues have arrived so the mackeral will flee.

I do hope you get some rest this summer, but its hard to see how. Sara would like to have a fly rod session with you. Its a lovely occupation which is good for the soul, and fun too.

Love to Bar.

WASHINGTON — U.S. District Judge Jane R. Roth received bipartisan support and some gentle ribbing about her marriage when she appeared Thursday before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee.

The committee is considering her nomination to the Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In an unusual demonstration of the principle of separate but equal powers, the judge was introduced to the committee by her husband, the senator. Delaware's premier power couple, Jane and William V. Roth Jr., a Republican, have been married for 25 years.

Jane Roth got a friendly reception from the committee, which is headed by Delaware's Democratic senator, Joseph R. Biden Jr.

She earned her law degree from the University of Delaware in 1965 and her undergraduate degree from Smith College in 1956. Between college and law school, Roth spent six years in the Foreign Service.

According to her application, Roth listed her net worth as $2.78 million, with the bulk of her wealth coming from a trust fund left to her and her brother and sister by their father, attorney Robert H. Roth: Considered for appeals court

Jane Roth, 56, had been a federal judge for 5½ years and was nominated for the appeals court last month by President Bush.

Her nomination could be considered by the Senate by late next week, Biden said.

The hearing lasted only 15 minutes, a sign that she is likely to be confirmed easily.

The sharpest questioning of Roth concerned her membership in two exclusive Delaware clubs, the Greenville Country Club and Vicmead Hunt Club, but she passed muster because neither club discriminates.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill. chaired the hearing while Biden led the crime bill debate on the Senate floor. Simon noted that Roth and her husband supported opening the Greenville Country Club to minorities. Jane Roth told him that there are no religious barriers to membership in the Hunt Club.

"The membership is small but not exclusionary," she said.

There were a number of jocular allusions to the Roths' marriage. A nominee for a federal judgeship in New York thanked two members of Congress who introduced him by saying, "I didn't have to marry either one of them to get here."

Even William Roth said, "I knew Jane was a wise and prudent judge of men because she married me."

The hearing lasted only 15 minutes, a sign that she is likely to be confirmed easily.

There were also sly references to Jane Roth's aspirations, indicating that she could be back before the committee someday as a U.S. Supreme Court nominee. After praising her lavishly, Biden quipped, "I do look into philosophy a lot more closely when it comes to the Supreme Court."

The appeals court position was one of two created in last year's crime bill. Roth made it known in Washington circles that she wanted to be considered for an appointment.

12:00 P.M. EDT NEWS UPDATE

TRIP (Istanbul/Helen Thomas, UPI) -- President Bush bade farewell to President Ozal before heading for Washington "very optimistic about Turkey's future." Bush told reporters during a picture-taking session that he had a "very good two days" in Turkey and "good talks." Bush cited Turkey's growing economic system and their assistance to the U.S.-led coalition during the Gulf War for his optimism about the country's future. Asked for his assessment of Bush's visit, Ozal said, "I am very much satisfied."

CYPRUS (Nicosia/Reuter) -- Cyprus rejected Turkish proposals backed by the U.S. for talks on the future of the divided island but said its own proposal for negotiations still stood. "We reject four-way talks," Cyprus government spokesman Akis Fantis said in a statement, referring to Turkey's proposal for talks between Turkey, Greece and the Greek and Turkish communities on the island.

ISRAEL/BAKER (Jerusalem/AP) -- Secretary Baker met with Prime Minister Shamir and then expressed hope that Israel would accept the U.S. formula for a Mideast peace conference. The Israeli Cabinet met shortly after Baker and Shamir completed their talks. No final decision was made on an Israeli response, Israeli sources said. Shamir gave the Cabinet an upbeat assessment of the latest U.S. effort and Arab response, according to the sources. Israeli radio quoted Shamir as calling Syria's support for peace talks a "revolutionary change" in its position, but later corrected the report to say Shamir was quoting Baker's view to the Cabinet.

(CNN) -- ...Israeli radio reports Baker told Shamir there are revolutionary changes in Syria's new position and that Baker would like a peace conference to convene in October.

(Jerusalem/Reuter) -- ...Prime Minister Shamir's office said a reply could come in days. "Baker was...very cautious not to set any dates, any target dates, but I would say that we are speaking of days and not weeks," Shamir spokesman Pazner told reporters. Interior Minister Deri said after a Cabinet meeting that the usually stern Shamir had been upbeat. "The prime minister is in a good mood today. He himself stressed...the fundamental change in the Arab stance," Deri said.

(Reuter) -- Prime Minister Shamir spokesman Pazner said there was a "good feeling" about prospects for Mideast peace after talks with Secretary Baker. "There is a good feeling here in Jerusalem after these talks," Pazner said in an interview with NBC's "Today." "We feel that maybe there is a change now in the Arab world and that countries which until now were not ready to talk to us are now ready to sit down and negotiate with us." But Pazner said Israel was seeking several clarifications before committing itself to joining Arab states in a regional peace conference. "But if there is really a change, if there is really a willingness of the Syrians to sit down and talk, they will find us ready," he said.

BAKER/BEGIN (Jerusalem/AP) -- Former Prime Minister Begin, the man who returned territory to Egypt for a peace treaty in 1979, said he would object to a similar land-for-peace deal with Syria. "The Golan Heights will always be part of Israel," Begin said on Israel Radio.

BAKER/JORDANIAN PARLIAMENT (Amman/Reuter) -- Jordan's parliament has denounced U.S.-led Mideast peace efforts and Egypt's call for ending an economic boycott of Israel in a snub to King Hussein, who had approved both. But officials said parliament's move would not affect the government of Prime Minister al-Masri, which won a confidence vote against Moslem fundamentalist foes last week.

THOMAS/URBAN LEAGUE (Atlanta/AP) -- The Urban League has become the first major civil rights group to announce it will not oppose the nomination of Clarence Thomas, but it also will not actively support him.... Urban League President Jacob said of the nomination: "I compliment the President on the shrewdness of the appointment. I think the President checkmated the African-American community with the appointment."

IRAN/BRITISH JETS/U.S. (Nicosia/AP) -- The U.S. has blocked the sale of up to 50 passenger jets to Iran by British Aerospace because Western hostages held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems have not been freed, Flight International magazine reported. The aviation weekly, in an article made available to the AP in advance of publication, said Washington was able to do so because the British-built BAe-146 aircraft contain U.S.-made components.

MIA PHOTO (Bangkok/AP) -- The U.S. government is stepping up its investigation of a photograph that purports to show three American fliers missing from the Vietnam War, sources said. The American sources said Assistant Secretary of State Quinn will fly to Vietnam and Laos while a 10-man DOD team visiting Thailand investigates the photo, which was reported carried across the Thai border from Cambodia.

DRUGS/BURMA (Kuala Lumpur/Reuter) -- The U.S., concerned about Burma as a drug source, plans to launch a joint anti-drug campaign with Southeast Asian nations, Undersecretary of State Zoellick said.

ASIAN SECURITY/JAPAN (Kuala Lumpur/Reuter) -- Japanese Foreign Minister Nakayama called for a new security forum to be set up in the Asia-Pacific region, saying doubts remained about Soviet intentions in the area.

DUBCEK (Prague/Reuter) -- Reformist politician Alexander Dubcek has quit the Public Against Violence movement he co-founded 20 months ago and which helped overthrow Communist rule in Czechoslovakia. "I have quit VPN because it abandoned centrist policy...", Dubcek told the state news agency CTK.

2:45 P.M. NEWS UPDATE

TRIP (Istanbul/Martin Crutsinger, AP) -- President Bush flew back to Washington from a grueling nine-day trip, saying he was eager to sleep in his own bed and then plunge into preparations for next week's Moscow summit and the signing of a landmark nuclear arms treaty.... Bush was asked about Secretary Baker's travels through the Middle East. "From what we see, things seem to be going reasonable well," Bush said. The President frequently looked tired during the closing days of the trip. "A lot of evening action out there coupled with getting up pretty early," he said. The President told reporters he had two objectives once back in Washington. "One, get some rest in our own bed and be ready to go; and secondly, brief for the important meetings with President Gorbachev."

BAKER/ISRAEL/SCOWCROFT (Jerusalem/AP) -- ...Shamir was quoted by Yossi Ahimeir, a key adviser, as having told the Cabinet there had been a "revolutionary change" in Syria's attitude. But Ahimeir, appearing on Israeli television, said "we want, first of all, to know what is the true Syrian position" on negotiations with Israel. Foreign Minister Levy said on Israel army radio: "Not all the problems have been solved, but our discussions are, indeed fruitful. I would say the understandings with the United States are a foundation that is quite stable"

During a flight from Israel to Malaysia, Baker telephoned President Bush. Gen. Scowcroft told reporters that Baker and Bush talked about the talks with Israel for about seven minutes. "I think the President is encouraged that there wasn't a rejection," Scowcroft said. Scowcroft also said Bush wanted a quick response from Israel. "I think he would like it to be resolved by the time he gets to Moscow" for next week's summit, Scowcroft said.

BAKER INITIATIVE/MUBARAK (Cairo/UPI) -- President Mubarak urged Israel in a national speech to respond positively to the latest U.S. effort to achieve Mideast peace. Mubarak also reiterated his call for an end to the Arab economic boycott against Israel in return for Israel's agreement to stop building new settlements on the occupied territories. Mubarak warned that if Israel continues settling the occupied territories there would be no land left to trade for peace. "Now with Arab parties adopting a positive stance to the peace process, Israel has to publicly declare its position and refrain from any action that might hinder the march to peace - and most important, it must stop all settlement activity in all occupied territories," the Egyptian leader said.

ENTERPRISE ZONES/TAX REVENUES/KEMP (AP) -- Secretary Kemp said the Bush administration is wrong in predicting that tax breaks for businesses that locate in poor areas would lose revenue for the government. "It is my opinion that enterprise zones will actually increase government revenues by spawning new business and by putting unemployed people and resources back to work and back on the tax rolls," Kemp told the Senate Small Business Committee. "The 'black box' (computerized economic projection that predicts a loss of revenue) at OMB, the 'black box' at CBO, and 'black box' at the Joint Committee on Taxation -- they are all wrong," Kemp said.

CLEAN AIR ACT/ENERGY DEPT. (CNN) -- Is the White House interfering with energy regulations on behalf of industry? A House subcommittee is hearing testimony to decide on the legality of some components of the new clean air rules. Rep. Waxman told the panel that the Energy Dept. wrote a letter to the EPA requesting changes in the Clean Air Act; Waxman says those same changes were mentioned in a letter Edison Electric Institute previously sent to the DOE. Waxman said: "...It's about the electric utility industry escaping vitally important clean air regulation through illegal new loopholes. It's about the Department of Energy, the agency with the worst environmental record, writing Clean Air Act regulations to specifications provided by the utility industry...." An Energy Dept. spokeswoman testified that the high cost of the Clean Air Act justifies administration involvement in drafting details of the new rules. She also said the DOE supports the proposal in question, saying it's well balanced and responds to both environmental concerns and energy objectives.

7:30 P.M. ATHENS/12:30 P.M. EDT UPDATE

PRESIDENT'S TRIP (Athens/Helen Thomas, UPI) -- President Bush Thursday urged Greece to join in building a new world order and pledged that the U.S. will do whatever is necessary to help Greece, Turkey and Cyprus settle a nearly 20-year dispute. In an address to the Parliament..., Bush also invited President Karamanlis and Prime Minister Mitsotakis to visit Washington to "let the whole world know that our friendship...will endure."

GREECE/TERRORISM (Reuter) -- The State Department said Thursday terrorists may seek to target U.S. interests during President Bush's visits to Greece and Turkey.

G-7/SOVIETS (Moscow/AP) -- Political and economic leaders today gave no hint of disappointment over the outcome of the London summit, saying they never expected a pledge of foreign aid. Pravda also cast a positive light on the meeting Wednesday between President Gorbachev and the G-7. "No one is going to give us anything simply because they like our perestroika, glasnost and freedom of speech," Pravda said. "The powers that be safeguard their interests."

MIA PHOTO (Hanoi/Reuter) -- Vietnam said Thursday that Air Force Col. John Robertson, one of three missing American airmen allegedly shown in a recent photograph, is dead. Vietnam handed over Robertson's remains to Washington in April 1990, a Foreign Ministry spokeswoman told Reuters. "He is dead," she said.

IRAN-CONTRA/GATES (AP) -- Iran-contra prosecutors notified Robert Gates long ago that the nominee for CIA director is no mere "witness" in their long-running criminal investigation, government sources say. Gates, said the sources, got the word months before President Bush tapped him for the CIA job that he is a subject in the investigation.... Gates is one of many CIA officials questioned at length by Iran-contra prosecutors this spring before a federal grand jury, the sources added Wednesday night.... "[Counsel] Gray basically ignored warnings that [Prosecutor] Walsh could come back to bite them," said a source. "The White House felt it had taken the air out of [Walsh's] sails."

IRAQI NUKES/CONGRESS (AP) -- Two members of Congress said it is time for the world to confront Iraq over its continuing defiance of international agreements, implying support for new military action against Baghdad. "It seems to me we eventually have to have a confrontation, and the sooner the better," said Rep. Bereuter at a hearing of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. "Frankly, I think we've exceeded that point" where a confrontation is called for," added Rep. Levine. Assistant Secretary Bolton said Saddam has hidden his development of nuclear weapons and exploited the food and medical needs of his people to begin rebuilding his regime. "In short, Saddam Hussein is a liar," Bolton told the subcommittee on Europe and the Middle East. U.N. Amb. Pickering, said Saddam's behavior has ranged from compliance with post-war requirements imposed by the U.N. to outright defiance. "It is stupid to think you can get away with it," Pickering said. "Iraq must not miscalculate a second time," Pickering said, issuing an ultimatum to Baghdad. "Its pattern of reckless defiance of the expressed will of the international community is intolerable."###

Take Pride in America event

Pool Report

July 22, 1991

The president appeared for about 10 minutes looking slightly sun-burned and puffy. ~~then disappeared~~ The highlight of this event was definitely Linda Evans, the lovely blond of Dynasty fame, who helped give out the awards, posed for pictures, then withdrew with the president to the Oval Office. (He may be tired, but he's not stupid.)

The purpose of this event was to honor individuals and groups who have donated time and effort to help clean up the environment, or otherwise protect nature resources. For example, a group of Marylanders volunteered their time to teach visitors to the Antietam Battlefield about the Civil War. There were 119 volunteers recognized but Bush only mentioned two. The first was a woman, Pat Mitchell (sp?) dressed in a green-striped jersey and a blue jumper covered with stars. Across her jumper top were the words, Recycle USA. The second (named by the president in his remarks, as was the woman,) was a young boy dressed in a white shirt buttoned up to his neck and dark pants. He looked nervous and uncomfortable.

Linda Evans, who apparently has been very active in promoting such activities, wore an orange quilted jacket over a black skirt. She stood with Bush on podium and Interior Secretary Emanuel Lujan, who wore a baggy, blue suit. The East Room was decked out simply in potted greenery.

When Mr. Bush arrived a few minutes late, he apologized saying he had been busy "filling out frequent flyer forms" a reference to his 10-day trip to London, Greece and Turkey, which had ended only about 90 minutes earlier.

Pool Report: AFl Istanbul to Andrews

22 July 91

Gen. Scowcroft agreed to your pool's request that he tell us what he could about any report today from Secretary Baker to the President. Scowcroft strolled into the press cabin about 10:30 a.m. EDT and reported that ~~the~~ Baker, after his meetings with Israeli officials and while flying to Kuala Lumpur, had called the President for about a seven-minute talk on the progress of his talks in Israel.

Baker told the President, according to Scowcroft, that "the Israelis took our proposals for the situation very seriously and said they would study them and then get back to us...They did not say when, but the Secretary said [to the Israelis] that time was important."

Asked about press reports that have quoted senior Israeli officials as saying that their approach would be to delay and study the latest peace proposals until they went away, Scowcroft acknowledged that "that is a tactic the Israelis have used in the past. Whether they plan to now or not, I don't know. I don't think we're prepared for indefinite delay...I think he [President Bush] would like it [the Israeli response] to be resolved by the time he gets to Moscow" next week."

Asked whether he thought it likely that Bush and Gorbachev would be able to announce agreement, during next week's Moscow summit, to convene an Arab-Israeli peace conference, Scowcroft said "Well, I think that would depend on what the situation is with the Israelis by then. The two [the U.S. and U.S.S.R] would be co-sponsors of any conference, so I think you can anticipate that they will discuss it."

~~Secretary~~ Baker reported that ~~the~~ "the tone was good" in his meetings in Israel, but Scowcroft added ~~the tone was good~~ that, in terms of substance, "I don't want to characterize ~~what~~ the Israeli response or potential response...I don't want to speculate on what the Israelis will or will not do. Obviously, they're agonizing over what to do. Their press statements up to now, before the meetings with ~~the~~ Secretary Baker, were cautious to negative." Asked for the President's response to Baker's readout, Scowcroft said "I think the President is encouraged that there wasn't a rejection, but I don't think any of us want to characterize what the Israeli response will be." He added, "I don't think it's surprising that the Israelis didn't say 'we heard what Assad told you and the answer is yes.'

It's a pretty serious decision for them."

Asked what the administration might do if Israel stalled in delivering its response, Scowcroft said "I don't want to speculate on that." Asked whether ~~the~~ Bush and Gorbachev might simply invite the parties to Washington or elsewhere for a ~~summit~~ peace conference and see who shows up and who doesn't, he said "That, of course, would be one possibility." ~~He~~ He added that "It's pretty difficult to have a conference if one of the sides is not gonna be there."

Asked what would happen if a peace conference cannot be arranged, Scowcroft said "If there won't be a peace conference, I don't think it would be the end of the road, but it would require a change of tack."

~~Asked whether the~~ In response to a question, Scowcroft refined the administration's position on the relationship between the Arab-Israel peace process and Israel's request for $10 billion in U.S. loan guarantees to finance construction of housing for Soviet immigrants to Israel. "What the President is talking about is no conditionality, but ~~at~~ they're obviously associated...There would not be a formal conditioning, but of course they are related issues."

Asked whether Bush might phone Shamir, Scowcroft said "I don't know at this juncture that it's necessary."

Outlining one of the areas of disagreement on the proposed peace conference, Scowcroft explained that while ~~Syria~~ Syria had wanted a conference that could be reconvened, with superpower ~~involvement~~ and U.N. involvement, at any time at the request of any party, ~~the~~ ~~Israelis~~ Israel objected both ~~to~~ to U.N. representation and to reconvening of the conference ~~once bilateral talks had started~~ for any reason, once bilateral talks had started. "The formula that was worked out, that the President sent to both the Syrians and the Israelis, was a conference that could be reconvened by consensus of the parties... which would mean the Israelis would have a veto," Scowcroft said. "The Syrians accepted that; ~~that~~ that's one of the things the Israelis have not accepted."

On a final subject, Scowcroft said the START experts are ~~xxxx~~ "still working like crazy to get the treaty language down so there will be a document" to sign in Moscow.

Haiga Sophia, the Bushes' second stop, is not the Mosque of Suleyman as the pool report said. My mistake.

POOL REPORT # 31

July 21, 1991

PRESIDENT TOURS ISTANBUL

The president shed his suit coat, white shirt and tie on Air Force One in favor of a bright blue polo shirt in order to play tourist. His first stop was Mosque of Sultan Ahmed, commonly known as the Blue Mosque. Turkish soldiers and Secret Service sharpshooters could be seen in the minarets. Mrs. Bush wore a white dress with blue polka dots. President Ozal had gotten rid of the white jacket, but was still dressed as your pool described in the report from Air Force One. Mrs. Ozal was dressed in a dark blue blouse and matching pants. They paused for a brief photo op outside the mosque. "Amazing," the president murmured to Mrs. Bush as he glanced over his shoulder at the huge, domed building.

Then it was off to the Mosque of Suleyman, or Hagia Sophia (this stop is described by your leapfrog pool) and Topkapi Sarayi, the palace of Mehmet II which is now a museum. After a welcoming ceremony outside and outside your pool's coverage (we could hear the band playing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandee"), the Bushes and the Ozals sat in a courtyard (after a complex choreographed dance to get four armchairs in place for them) and watched five whirling dervishes. "A whirling dervish?" Bush could be heard asking Ozal as they approached. "Wonderful." Mrs. Bush watched attentively, tapping her right foot and nodding her head to the music. Ozal appeared to explained the ritual to Bush, who appeared to relay the explanations to Mrs. Bush. At one point, when the sun came out, Bush unbuttoned the bottom button of his polo shirt, spread the color and leaned his head back a bit to take in the sun. At the end, Mrs. Bush cheered: "Bravo, bravo."

The Bushes and the Ozals then went up to a spectacular high-ceilinged balcony in Topkapi overlooking the Bosphorus River where the Bushes signed the guest book. The two couples then posed for yet another photo op.

The two couples then walked out to a terrace overlooking the river. Asked by CBS News's Susan Spencer his reaction, the president said: "Awe. It's so beautiful. Where's Sig? Is this another photo op?"

It was.

Then it was down to the river he had been looking over for the boat ride. As he boarded, CBS' Randall Pinkston asked if he was having a good time. The president flashed a double thumbs up.

NOTE TO SUMMITEERS: Aboard Air Force One, Bush said he didn't know yet whether he would go to Kennebunkport after Moscow; the guidance from senior staff is that the president MAY go to Kennebunkport straight from Moscow but would probably return to Washington Monday morning or so for a week before encamping at Walker's Point for August.

POOL REPORT # 30

Bush meets with two Turkish opposition leaders

July 21, 1991

Bush again calls on Israel to freeze settlements and answers questions generally on prospects for a Middle East peace conference. He says, however, he has not talked to Sec. Baker today. The president also says he is personally willing to go anywhere "if it were truly productive," for peace, but he says such questions are premature.

The press office will provide a transcript.

His comments come during a photo op with Suleyman Demirel, a former prime minister and leader of the True Path Party, in a parlour suite at the Ciragan Palace Hotel

Bush met earlier with the nation's major opposition leader, Erdal Inonu, head of the Social Democratic Populist Party. He refused questions then, but changed his mind and welcomed questions at the second session.

Scowcroft and Sununu were with him.

Bush Boats on the Bosphorus

No news, all color. Your pool saw the president for about 10 seconds of a boat ride that lasted a little more than two hours.

Bush boarded a converted steamship called the Sarayburnu at about 12:20 p.m. local time. Barbara bounded up onto the boat wearing one red and one blue sneaker, and a white dress with black polka dots. Anna Perez, asked to explain the First Lady's footwear, explained that the president had given Barbara 20 pairs of Keds for her June 8 birthday "and this ~~way~~ ^{way} she gets to wear them all."

The boat, which was partially wooden and had two black smokestacks that didn't appear to be used for anything other than decoration, held perhaps 100 or so people.

Bush was confined to the upper deck. At the only photo op, Bush waved from the third-story deck to the photo dogs. Below him, on the second deck, was a small circular swimming pool, but the photogs were unsuccessful in getting Bush to jump in and make their day. Helen Thomas asked Bush whether he would like to swim in the (obviously polluted) Bosphorus River, and Bush grimaced at his host, Turkish President Turgut Ozal, and then walked away from the photo op.

Because there was no tourism official on board to help the press, we unfortunately didn't know what we were seeing. The hilly shoreline, dotted with homes, palaces, high-rises and marinas, was lovely for the most part. If you were on the press boat, you saw the same thing.

The catered boat tour then went down (or is it up?) the Bosphorus toward the Black Sea. Crowds seemed to line the shoreline part of the way, but it was impossible to tell if they had gathered to see Bush or catch a breeze. It was partly cloudy and windy on the water.

Security was tight. Several Coast Guard-style cutters, spewing huge clouds of foul-smelling black fume into Bush and his party, provided an escort, and at least five smaller boats tagged behind. Several SEAL-type units in small rubber motorized boats bobbed and weaved along throughout the journey, following Bush like so many dolphins. Snipers could be spotted perched in minarets, according to eagle-eyed Terry Hunt.

When Bush passed under the first Bosphorus Bridge, those ubiquitous cult-of-personality bedsheets with colorful drawings of Bush and Ozal could be seen hanging from the superstructure at the bridge's midway point. The breeze made the portraits snap at an angle as if they were on the side, giving the appearance that the faces were flying. It seemed corny and most people on the boat laughed at them. At one point, Barbara Bush, who briefly waved a white cloth napkins at people on the shoreline, could be seen pointing to the portrait of her husband. We wish we could have heard what she said.

The journey ended at the much-lovelier-than-the-Sheraton hotel called the Ciragan Palace Hotel. The palace was being restored, while Bush was staying overnight in a new building that had a modern, but somewhat similar architectural style. After some trouble in getting the boat turned around, a gangplank was lowered and Bush departed. He stepped onto a red-carpeted platform and walked through a magnificent marble arch with gold-leafed doors. Bush, who wore a blue polo shirt and slacks, said as he left the boat: "Thank you captain. Great day."

Leap-Frogging Istanbul with Barefoot George

Zero news, some color, lots of description from visits to the Blue Mosque (one of 400 in Istanbul), Sophia Museum (Haghia Sophia or Aya Sofya in Greek), and departure on Bosphorous cruise. The president was virtually tongue-tied.

Blue Mosque (Sultan Ahmet Camii): President and Mrs. Bush arrived with the Ozals shortly after a muezzin named Ismail finished vacuuming carpets near the focal point of the main praying floor. It is unfurnished and covered from wall to wall with hundreds of carpets, in a multitude of sizes and colors, laid over straw mats. A mosque official told your pool that as many as 15,000 people pray simultaneously on the main floor, its two balconies and a walled forecourt through which the VIPs entered. (Although the place is large, your pool cannot vouch for the numbers. They would have to be awfully friendly.) Your pooler also was told very reliably that security agents looked under every rug in the place when it was swept. The mosque was begun in 1609 by Sultan Ahmet I when he was age 16 and completed in 1616 in time for the sultan to see it before his death at age 28. The name comes from the color of the light that streams through 260 blue-tinted windows and from the blue tiles that cover much of its interior walls. When it was built with six minarets, we are told, it was the only mosque outside of Mecca to have six and was considered improper. That was solved by adding two minarets to the Mecca mosque. The Bushes arrived when the mosque was empty with the next prayer time more than two hours away. They had a view of the massive interior, the gilded and painted dome and the bank of southerly windows facing towards Mecca (CQ, not east here, and they pray facing south as well). Four huge columns about 15 feet in diameter support the roof from which hangs a network of black wrought iron supporting hundreds of electric bulbs in small globes. The globes once held candles and earlier were oil lamps. For trivia fans, Ismail tells us he and his magnificently huge vacuum can do the whole job in one hour flat and then climb the minaret and call the faithful to prayer.

Mr. Bush wore a blue golf shirt, gray slacks and lovely black socks for his visit. Mrs. B wore a white dress with blue polka dots, a multi-colored scarf over her head, and stockinged feet. His brown shoes and her blue ones were left outside the front door (although most U.S. security guards and military escorts slipped blue plastic booties over their shoes and kept them on). President Ozal wore white, including socks and suspenders, and his wife wore a black pants suit. They were greeted just inside the restored wooden gates by the Muftu of Istanbul, Selahattin Kaya, who wore, well, mufti, a dark business suit, shirt and tie, and by the Imam of the mosque in clerical garb. From the front vantage, Mr. Bush said "Magnificent." At the section of the mosque where a Christian church would have altar Mr. Bush surveyed the multitude of lights (a thousand points?) hanging about 12 feet above the floor and said, "And these were all oil lights?"

Haghia Sophia: This is now a museum but has been both a mosque and a Christian church, the Church of Divine Wisdom dedicated by Emperor Justinian in 537 on the site of another church destroyed by earthquake. The ancients believed its massive dome was suspended from heaven on a golden chain. From the Turkish conquest in 1453 until it became a museum in 1935 (and therefore not a place one enters shoeless), it ranked first among the imperial mosques of Istanbul under the name of Aya Sofya Camii. Catholic frescoes were plastered over during its centuries as a mosque but were uncovered in the museum period. Above the one-time altar is a large portrayal of Mary and the Christ child. At one side is a major angel in full wingspread - both discordant images above the Arabic lettering and usual mosque decor of tiles and floral patterns.

Mr. Bush stood arms akimbo as he got the tourist spiel from museum director Erdem Yucel, Mrs. Bush leaning in from the side at times as if to better hear details. They all stopped at a marked circle on the floor somewhat off-center and not seeming to be at any particular focal point, surrounded by theater-style brass posts holding a velvet rope. The guide explained that the spot was where Byzantine emperors were enthroned. "Oh, really? Right here?" Mr. Bush asked. Mr. Bush nodded a lot as they then went to the elevated "altar" area and got the final details. Very agreeably, the Bushes and Ozals moved at photographers' direction so they would have the colorful windows behind them. But when reporters began asking questions, basically asking a comment on the sights, Mr. Bush said, "We don't answer questions inside St. Sophia. I have that policy everytime I come here." He apparently has never been here, but an aide picked up the theme outside and joshed, "He's had that rule a long time." He then went to a post described as the Weeping Column, in which water somehow is forced up from the ground and emerges in a drip at a gold-colored plate which has a make-a-wish hole in the middle.

"Turgut, want to make a wish?" he asked Mr. Ozal. Apparently not, so Mr. Bush poked his trigger finger into it as uncounted tourists had done before him. "You feel it all worn down by time," the president observed of the smoothness inside. When those nosy reporters asked him what he wished for, Mr. Bush said, "One of the things you do when you make a wish here is you never tell what it is."

About 1,000 people were on both sides of the street at the dock opposite a passenger rail yard to greet the motorcade. As agents ran beside his car, Mr. Microphone and the Talking Car told the fans, "Thank you very much. Thank you. Good morning." Mr. and Mrs. Bush boarded the Sarayburnu, a handsome boat with black hull and wooden sides. Mr. Bush gave a thumbs up and spread hands (as if "I don't know" to shouted questions). He and Ozal waved to other press on a nearby balcony while three civilians with machine guns and banana clips taped together walked around them on the edge of the quay. We saw three decks from shore including the top one which had a round swimming pool on the open rear deck. Tables were set with linen there and inside. Among the business types seen boarding with the usual politicians was Sakip Sabanci, described as Turkey's leading mogul. He is in textiles, food processing, cement and chemicals. Medicine manufacturer Nejat Gozacibashi also was identified for us. Dueling motorcades, equipped with flocks of security guards, had preceeded the prez so all were gathered on that rear deck and the Bushes went right there to shake hands all round. For a tired, old man he looked right sprightly as he climbed the ladder to the top deck and waved both arms.

ANKARA TO ISTANBUL

The motorcade to the airport was uneventful. Crowds were sparse though thicker in the downtown area. At the airport, Bush inspected three F16s built in a joint program with Turkey and General Dynamics. The fashion award of the day goes to President Ozal, who was decked out in a short, white double-breasted "Ike" jacket, white pants, white shoes, a cream-colored monogrammed shirt ("TO") and white suspenders.

The President brought both Ozal and his wife, Semra, back to meet your pool. On the Middle East peace process, the President said: "People want peace in the Middle East...I hope we have something going here that all Americans will enthusiastically support...I really believe they will...We're beginning to see the kinds of cooperation necessary...It's not a question of pressuring any other country, it's a question of reasoning...I'm avoiding using these volatile words like pressure..." He spoke of a "new credibility for the United States in the Middle East and using that to encourage, what is a very reasonable and important step...." Asked about the Saudis' response, he said, "It's not the whole solution, but it's important...We see reason to be optimistic."

Bush said he's looking forward to his visit today, his first to Istanbul. "It's going to be wonderful."

Ozal gave the pool Presidential dispensation from wearing ties during the trip.

POOL REPORT # 32

Dinner at Dolmabahce Palace

July 21, 1991

No substance; all color, and most of the color involved the palace itself. Its gold inlays and its chandelier. Built by Sultan Abdulmecit in the 19th century shortly after he ascended to the throne at age 16. Built at a time Ottoman Empire was westernizing. It is the most western in style of palaces, and its high cost helped bankrupt the empire at the time of the Crimean War. It has 11 tons of gold inlays, a magnificent 600-meter frontage on the Bosphorous, and a chandelier that weighs four-and-a-half tons and has 750 lamps. The chandelier was blazing away tonight, its 9,000 pounds poised above the head of Terry Hunt, who was seated at a middle table. The dinner was held in the palace's vast reception salon, which has 56 columns. Final history note: it was in this palace that Ataturk died on November 10, 1938.

The President's motorcade to the dinner was unremarkable except for exceptionally heavy security and a smattering of applause from the citizenry watching curiously from the sidewalks.

The guests for the dinner were the usual crew from the White House -- Sununu, Scowcroft, Fitzwater, Rogich, et al -- augmented by a remarkably important looking crew of guests, including Messrs. Hunt, Glass, Maier, Hume, Gibbons, Bierbauer, Murray and Cochran as well as Ms. Thomas, Ms. Lee and Ms. Spencer. This crew could probably help you more on the menu since the pool did not see the meal and various officials stumbled over the translation of the menu, which they suggested including some kind of fish, a kebab and a caesar salad.

The salon was very humid, a condition particularly noticeable during President Ozal's lengthy address (a copy was provided to the press office). Curiously the Americans and the Turks in the hall reacted differently to the heat. The Americans stoically sweated; the Turks pulled folding fans out of their purses and waved them vigorously, or turned their menus and place cards into makeshift fans.

President Bush, who was mostly faithful to his text, wore a standard black tie, yielding the fashion spotlight once more to Ozal with his by-now-trademark white tie and all-white outfit. Barbara Bush could only be seen partially by your fashion-ignorant pool. But she seemed to be wearing a lovely black dress with a lattice-like design that appeared lacy on the sleeves and bodice. Toss in the standard pearls and you push the President even further out of that style spotlight.

Two final pool notes -- the advance work again broke down with a Turkish guard stubbornly refusing to permit the pool into the palace, forcing a bottleneck at the entrance that threatened until the last moment to force all the guests to wait on the red carpet leading to the palace because the doors were blocked by an angry pool. After a shouting match and a threat to arrest Michael Busch, the guard relented. Finally, Michael Busch urged the pool to return to get this report in faster instead of eating in a side room. The return motorcade in which the pool cannot even see the President's car is being covered kindly by a fellow pooler.
