TOAST IN HONOR OF PRESIDENT BORIS YELTSIN
THE WHITE HOUSE \ JUNE 16, 1992 \ 8:00 P.M.

MR. PRESIDENT, MRS. YELTSIN, DISTINGUISHED GUESTS:
BARBARA AND I ARE DELIGHTED TO WELCOME YOU HERE
TONIGHT. //

MR. PRESIDENT, TONIGHT'S DINNER IS A BIT MORE

MADE TODAY WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN POSSIBLE WITHOUT THE TIME WE SPENT TOGETHER AT CAMP DAVID.

I ALSO RECALL THE PRESS CONFERENCE WE HELD AT THE END OF YOUR VISIT, WHEN WE LITERALLY "CROSSED WIRES"
-- GOT OUR HEADPHONES MIXED UP. EVERY TIME I SAID A WORD, I HEARD A TINY RUSSIAN VOICE. EVERY TIME I
STOPPED -- IT STOPPED. I LOOKED OVER AT YOU -- YOU
WEREN'T SAYING A WORD. I REMEMBER AT THE TIME
THINKING, "THERE MUST BE BETTER A WAY TO LEARN RUSSIAN." //

12 JUN 16 P12:59

AS I SAID THIS MORNING AS I WELCOMED YOU TO THE WHITE HOUSE, THIS MEETING MARKS A NEW KIND OF SUMMIT: NOT A MEETING BETWEEN TWO POWERS STRUGGLING FOR GLOBAL SUPREMACY -- BUT BETWEEN TWO PARTNERS, STRIVING TO BUILD A DEMOCRATIC PEACE.

THIS NEW RELATIONSHIP HAS ITS ROOTS IN THE NEW RUSSIAN REVOLUTION -- AND THAT REVOLUTION OWES MUCH TO OUR GUEST TONIGHT. JUST AS CRISES SHOW THE METTLE OF A MAN, SO TOO THEY SHOW THE STRENGTH OF AN IDEA.

WHEN, BACK IN AUGUST OF 1991, THE OLD GUARD THREATENED TO TAKE RUSSIA BACKWARD -- BORIS YELTSIN LED THE DEFENSE OF DEMOCRACY FROM THE BUILDING RUSSIANS CALL THE WHITE HOUSE. THE COUP PLOTTERS SET OUT TO DESTROY DEMOCRACY -- INSTEAD THEY MADE IT STRONGER.

MR. PRESIDENT, YOU'VE BEEN DESCRIBED MANY TIMES AS A MAVERICK -- A WORD COINED IN THE AMERICAN HEARTLAND TO CAPTURE THE INDEPENDENT STREAK THAT SETS SOME INDIVIDUALS APART FROM THE CROWD.

I THINK MY FELLOW TEXAN JIM BAKER WOULD AGREE: YOU POSSESS A CERTAIN SPIRIT YOU FIND ON THE PLAINS OF WEST TEXAS.

TONIGHT WE HONOR YOUR COURAGE -- AND CELEBRATE THE NEW POSSIBILITIES NOW OPEN TO US. THINK BACK TO THE COLD WAR CLIMATE THAT MARKED EARLIER SUMMITS, AND HOW FAR WE'VE COME. HOW MUCH SAFER, HOW MUCH MORE HOPEFUL -- TO MEET TONIGHT AS FRIENDS, UNITED BY COMMON IDEALS. //

MORE THAN 150 YEARS AGO, ALEXIS DE TOCQUEVILLE PREDICTED THAT THE U.S. AND RUSSIA WOULD ONE DAY BE THE WORLD'S TWO GREAT POWERS -- RIVALS FOR WORLD DOMINANCE. WE MUST PROVE THAT PROPHECY WAS ONLY TRUE FOR A TIME -- AND THAT OUR TWO NATIONS CAN FORGE A NEW FUTURE, IN FREEDOM. //

OUR GOVERNMENTS WILL WORK TO BUILD STRONGER TIES, FOR THE SAKE OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY. WE IN THIS COUNTRY MUST REACH OUT -- PROVIDE THE ASSISTANCE THAT CAN HELP RUSSIA'S DEMOCRATIC REVOLUTION SUCCEED.

BUT THE BONDS THAT KNIT DEMOCRACIES TOGETHER CAN NEVER BE CREATED BY GOVERNMENT ALONE. DEMOCRACIES GROW TOGETHER THROUGH THE COUNTLESS ENCOUNTERS THAT TAKE PLACE EVERY DAY BETWEEN PRIVATE INDIVIDUALS AND PROFESSIONALS, BUSINESS AND LABOR, ARTISTS AND EDUCATORS -- IN YOUR COUNTRY AND MINE.

GONE ARE THE DAYS WHEN VAST PARTS OF OUR COUNTRIES WERE OFF-LIMITS TO FOREIGN VISITORS.

UNDER OUR NEW OPEN LANDS AGREEMENT, FOR THE FIRST TIME, RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN OFFICIALS -- AND MORE IMPORTANT, RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN CITIZENS -- WILL BE FREE TO TRAVEL ANYWHERE IN EACH OTHER COUNTRIES -- TO WITNESS THE CUSTOMS AND HERITAGE THAT SET US APART, AND THE COMMON HUMANITY THAT DRAWS US TOGETHER.

TONIGHT, MR. PRESIDENT, I OFFER THIS TOAST IN THE SPIRIT OF FRIENDSHIP:

TO THE NEW PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN OUR PEOPLE; TO THE SUCCESS OF THE NEW RUSSIAN REVOLUTION; AND TO THE NEW WORLD OF FREEDOM WE SEEK.

ENTERTAINMENT CARD

TONIGHT, WE'VE BEEN FORTUNATE TO HAVE WITH US ONE OF THE GREAT ARTISTS OF OPERA: SOPRANO CAROL VANESE.
CAROL HAS PLAYED THE GREAT OPERA HOUSES OF EUROPE AND THE U.S. -- AND TONIGHT SHE MADE HER WHITE HOUSE DEBUT.
MANY THANKS TO CAROL AND TO HER ACCOMPANIST --

THE PRESIDENT

June 16, 1992

Dear Bob,

Thanks for your straightforward letter. It contained much food for thought, and I want you to know I've digested it. The political wars have been ugly -- under attack from the right and left; but I remain confident.

Again, my friend, I appreciate your weighing in and your steadfast support.

*I've decided to stay off the opponents for now.
But I'll try to soar more.
Off now for an eagle-like movement with Bob's*

Warm regards,

Dear Eagle:

Let's hope this gets to you. Ron Kaufman assures me it will.

Four years ago in hard times we shared a correspondence that made a difference. Maybe this will too.

There's not a lot confusing about this election. You represent the status quo. Clinton represents the Democratic political response. Perot represents the anger of America.

You're in neutral, Eagle. You can fly over the landscape and wait for Perot to self-destruct (which I predict he won't) or assume Clinton is a dead duck already (which I predict he isn't). Or you can swoop down and take a closer look.

Take Perot. Image, action, and money. He needs only one more word to take it all. That word is safe. He doesn't have it and he'll never get it. When America votes for Perot, it takes a chance. You've got to prove it's not worth taking. Think twice before you send a quail out to do an Eagle's work. Surrogates if they score make you look weak. Surrogates who fail make you look weaker.

I won't dwell on Clinton. He's the crow waiting to feed on scraps left to him if you stay comatose and Perot drops from the skies.

Years ago I worked for a famous adman who was called to Washington by President Eisenhower during a deep recession. The problem was then as it is today: people out of work, business stalled, morale low. His suggested slogan flew into the face the facts: BUSINESS IS GOOD! Not only did America buy it, they went out and proved it.

There's a lesson here. Americans would rather hope than fear. We are driven by optimism. We can abide bad times if we sense better times are coming. WE'RE COMING BACK is a rallying cry that works wonders on the body politic as it does when a doctor tells a patient "you're going to be all right".

Your campaign needs drive and spirit (remember how we took Iowa in 1980?). Your campaign needs to knife through the gloom and show that after the long, hard winter, there will come spring. And you do this not by boring America with statistics, but by painting a picture of the future you personally will lead America to.

Only in America, do dreams become reality. Build it and they will come turned an Iowa cornfield into a national monument. But you've got to dream it, you've got to say it, you've got to lay down the baselines.

You Eagle. Not your advisors. Not your surrogates. You!

Sincerely,

I. Robert Goodman
President

SURVEY OVERVIEW

Southwest Research Associates is pleased to present the results of this survey. This report contains the results of a telephone survey of 400 randomly regenerated telephone numbers from Lubbock and surrounding counties. Responses to the survey were gathered on June 8, through June 9, 1992. As is always the case, responses to a random sample may result in a sample that is slightly at variance with the actual ethnic population of the total audience. For instance, in this case the number of respondents who identify themselves as Hispanic, while closely representative of the U. S. Hispanic population as a whole, is somewhat under-represented of that population. Effect upon the results is minimal in this case, since a larger than necessary sample was taken. Sample size should result in an accuracy level of plus or minus 5% with a confidence level of 95 percent.

A Note to the Reader

For the first time H. Ross Perot has moved ahead of George Bush on the South Plains as front runner in the race for President.

Statistically the race is now a dead heat between Bush and Perot. Perot leads 35 percent to 34 percent for Bush. The survey, conducted monthly by Southwest Research Associates of public attitudes among 400 respondents in Lubbock and surrounding counties, has a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent. (The survey's results closely track the results of a nationwide survey released three days earlier by CNN relative to Bush and Perot. That survey gave Perot 39 percent and Bush 31 percent, with 25 percent going to Clinton.)

Bill Clinton, the Arkansas governor and apparent Democrat nominee, trails in the South Plains survey as a distant third, with 16 percent. Fifteen percent say they are undecided how they would vote if the election were now.

Apparently, at this stage of the campaign, Perot is hurting Bush more than Clinton. With Perot out of the race 53 percent of the respondents say they would vote for Bush, while only 26 percent say they would vote for Clinton.

The survey reveals, however, a continuing state of flux and frustration among potential voters. While 56 percent say they have pretty well made up their minds as to how they will probably vote in November, a sizeable 34 percent say they "may change their minds" between now and then.

In that regard, 59 percent of the respondents say their vote will probably be finally determined by the different candidates' stand on specific issues, as opposed to 27 percent who say their vote will be determined by their general impression of the candidate as a "political leader."

Perhaps reinforcing that view, 70 percent of the respondents say they feel they have a general understanding of what each major political party stands for, but at the same time 40 percent of them say they think the American political process would be improved by the formation a strong third political party. Only 15 percent say the process would be made worse, while 36 percent say it would make no difference.

And if such a third party grew out of the Perot candidacy, 47 percent of those responding say it should support conservative positions, as opposed to only 13 percent who say a third party should support liberal positions.

Our own analysis of the survey indicates it is clearly among those who call themselves "conservative" or "very conservative, that most of the voter discontent lies on the South Plains. This could be because most voters here describe themselves in those terms. But the discontent evidently lies among all political persuasions. Those who say they usually vote Republican would like to see a potential third party support conservative positions, while those who usually vote for Democrats would like to see a third party support liberal positions. It could be argued that neither conservatives or liberals are completely satisfied with the political status quo.

The strongest support for a potential third political party comes from among those who indicated a preference for Ross Perot. Among those who now indicate a Perot preference, 57.6 percent say the American political process would be improved with a third party, while only 8 percent say the process would be made worse. Among Clinton voters, 39 percent say the process would be improved 17 percent say it would be worse. Among Bush voters it is evenly split, 23 percent say it should be improved, 23 percent say it would be made worse, and 40 percent say it would make no difference.

A PUBLIC OPINION SURVEY
LUBBOCK COUNTY, TEXAS
June 8 - 9, 1992

R. K. Towery
Jane Anne Stinnett
Lisa Nowlin

There has been a great deal of public comment lately concerning developments on the national political scene. As you know, President Bush now has enough delegates to be named the Republican nominee for a second term, and Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton has secured enough delegates to be assured the democratic nomination. In addition it appears Dallas businessman Ross Perot will be on the ballot as an independent candidate in most if not all the states. Our first question is this:

- ✓ 1) If the election were held today, who do you think you would probably vote for? Bush, Clinton, or Perot? (Rotate)

Bush	34%
Clinton	16%
Perot	35%
Undecided	15%

- 2) Do you think your mind is pretty well made up concerning how you may vote for President in the November General Elections, or do you think you may change your mind between now and then?

Pretty well made up	56%
May change mind	34%
Don't know	9%
No answer	1%

- 3) If Mr. Perot was not on the ballot, and the election was only between Mr. Bush and Mr. Clinton, how would you vote if the election were today?

Bush	53%
Clinton	26%
Wouldn't vote	9%
Undecided	12%

- 4) Generally speaking, do you think your own vote for president is determined more by your overall impression of the candidate as a political leader, or is it determined more by your impression of his stand on specific issues?

(Rotate...on alternate calls make question read "...determined more by your impression of his stand on specific issues, or is it determined more by your overall impression of the candidate as a political leader?")

Impression as a political leader	27%
His stand on specific issues	59%
No answer	14%

- 5) What about health care as a specific issue. Do you feel at this point that your vote for President in November is likely to be determined by the candidate's stand on health issues, or do you think your vote is more likely to be determined by other things?

Determined by health stand	22%
Determined by other things	72%
No answer	6%

- 6) At this point in the campaign do you feel you have a clear picture of what any of the three candidates may advocate concerning health care issues if he is elected president?

Yes, believe I do	23%
No, believe I don't	71%
No answer	6%

- 7) We would like to turn briefly to the political parties themselves. Aside from individual candidates, such as candidates for Congress or the U.S. Senate, and thinking only of the two parties as they relate to the national government, do you feel you have a general understanding of what each Party stands for?

Yes, feel I do	70%
No, feel I don't	27%
No answer	3%

- 8) Do you think the American political process would be improved, or made worse by the formation of a strong third political party, or do you think it would make no difference?

Process would be improved	40%
Process would be made worse	15%
Would make no difference	36%
No answer	9%

- 9) If a third political party is born out of the Ross Perot candidacy, would you prefer that it support conservative positions on issues, or liberal positions on issues, or do you have any views on the subject.

Support conservative positions	47%
Support liberal positions	13%
No opinion	34%

Hello, my name is _____ with Southwest Research Associates. We would like to get your views on three general subjects, national politics, the national economy, and state politics, if this is a good time for you.

- 1) First, Presidential politics. It now appears that Governor Clinton of Arkansas will be the Democratic nominee for President, and that President George Bush will be the Republican nominee. It also appears that Mr. Ross Perot of Dallas will appear on the ballot as an Independent candidate for President. If Mr. Perot is successful in his efforts to get on the ballot, and if we have a three-way race between Mr. Clinton, Mr. Bush and Mr. Perot in the November General Election, how do you think you will likely vote for President?

Clinton	19%
Bush	43%
Perot	26%
No answer	12%

- 2) Now, if Mr. Perot does not get on the ballot, and if the election is between Mr. Bush and Mr. Clinton, how do you think you will likely vote? For Mr. Bush or Mr. Clinton?

Bush	52%
Clinton	31%
No answer	17%

- 3) In terms of deciding how to vote for President, what is more important to you, things like character, honesty and leadership, or is it the way the candidate stands on issues. Is it?

Issues	45%
Character, honesty & leadership	49%
No answer	6%

- 4) We would like you to rate the three potential candidates, Mr. Bush, Mr. Clinton and Mr. Perot on those matters. In terms of the issues that are most important to you, could you tell us which of those is closest to your own views. Is it?

Bush	43%
Perot	22%
Clinton	20%
No answer	15%

In terms of character, honesty and leadership, who would you place first, who would you place last, and who would be in the middle?

- 5) Mr. Bush

Second	28%
Third	17%

8) Now let us turn to the Congress. As you may know there have been many news stories out of Washington in recent weeks and months concerning things like the House Post Office, the House Bank and other matters. Reports indicate that many Congressmen wrote checks on the House Bank without sufficient funds to cover those checks. The first question is: Would whether or not your Congressman was involved in this matter influence how you might vote on his re-election?

Yes, would influence	69%
No, would not influence	24%
No answer	7%

9) Next question: In your opinion, was your own Congressman involved in the check writing scandal, or was he not involved?

Yes, was involved	14%
No, was not involved	65%
No answer	21%

10) Can you identify your own Congressman. Is it Congressman Larry Combest, or is it Congressman Bill Sarpalius?

Larry Combest	76%
Bill Sarpalius	5%
No answer	19%

11) Now turning to the economy. In terms of the national economy only, do you have the feeling that things are getting better, getting worse, or staying about the same?

Getting better	25%
Getting worse	33%

ACTION

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT
SUBJECT: Letter to Jack Stein

Purpose

To let Jack Stein know your thinking on a range of suggestions affecting your dealings with American Jews and Israel

Background

As you know, Jack Stein recently wrote you offering up a host of ideas for improving matters with both American Jews and Israel (Tab B). The attached letter for your signature essentially agrees with his ideas on such things as meeting with a group of rabbis prior to the Jewish High Holy days that come in late September this year, of holding off any meetings with Jewish leaders until after June 23, and of having me meet with David Steiner, AIPAC's new President. Jack's desire to see Pat Buchanan excluded from the convention obviously touches on concerns that far transcend the reaction of American Jews. Last, I am not as confident as Jack seems to be as regards how the Israelis will vote on June 23, and in any event I would hold off using him or anyone to carry a message to Rabin or anyone else until a new government is formed, something that could take months.

RECOMMENDATION

That you sign the attached letter to Jack Stein at Tab A.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Jack:

It was good to hear from you, and as usual, it was good to have the benefit of your thinking. Not surprisingly, in a number of areas, we are in agreement. We will be careful not to do anything that could be construed in Israel as interfering with their elections. But I know that Brent plans to sit down before long with David Steiner, and I like the idea of my meeting with a group of leading rabbis before the Jewish New Year begins. Any ideas you have regarding whom to invite would be welcome.

I much appreciate your offer to carry a message to whomever wins the Israeli election. However, I suggest we revisit the question later. As you know, the process of government formation could well take some time and again we will want to be sure we avoid doing anything that might appear to constitute inappropriate involvement in Israel's affairs.

Thanks again. Barbara joins me in wishing you and Jean only the best.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jacob Stein

President George Bush

Dear Mr. President

Dear George,

I very much appreciated the opportunity to discuss some issues with you on Wednesday, and as requested am following up with a summary.

I continue to urge Jim Baker meet with individual groups to discuss their concerns. His meetings to date have helped to clear concerns about his positions. The letter from Bob Lifton, President of the American Jewish Congress, sent to 5000 Jewish leaders following his meeting with Baker is an example of the benefit of those meetings.

I urged that you defer meetings with the Jewish community until after the June 23rd Israeli election.

You were interested in my suggestion that towards the end of August you meet with 40 leading Rabbis. Our High-Holidays start the evening of September 29, and millions of Jews will be hearing sermons by their Rabbis during the ten day holiday period. You might discuss the issue of Race Relations, Anti-Semitism, Family and Moral issues as well as the Bush involvement in the immigration of Ethiopian and Soviet Jewry, the effort to bring a peace-process into being, the involvement in securing the Syrian issuing travel visas to Jews, as well as your continuing financial and political support for Israel. A new Israeli Government will be in place at that time with hopefully acceptable positions on settlements so that the Loan Guarantees can go forward.

I urged that you have the new President of AIPAC, David Steiner, meet with Brent or with Jim Baker. A first step in bridging the gulf that now exists between the Administration and AIPAC.

JACOB STEIN

Following our meeting, I had a good meeting with Bob Teeter and urged him not to involve Pat Buchanan in the convention. Buchanan is a strong negative in the Community.

All the Israeli polls show Labor with Rabin gaining a comfortable lead over Shamir. I believe that the lead will continue to grow and that Rabin will head a new Government, all Labor, but at the very least, head a Unity Government.

I am planning to go to Israel on June 24, after the election, and would welcome the opportunity to carry your message of Greeting to the winner (Rabin).

Jean joins me in sending best wishes to Barbara.

Written in friendship

ARRIVAL STATEMENT -- PRESIDENT BORIS YELTSIN OF RUSSIA
SOUTH LAWN \ JUNE 16, 1992 \ 10:00 A.M.

NAME

MR. PRESIDENT, MRS. YELTSIN, DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS
OF THE RUSSIAN DELEGATION -- WELCOME TO THE UNITED STATES. AND OF COURSE, ALL OF YOU WHO HAVE COME HERE
TO MARK THIS HISTORIC MOMENT: WELCOME TO THE WHITE
HOUSE. //

MR. PRESIDENT, TODAY MARKS THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA -- A NEW KIND OF SUMMIT: NOT A MEETING BETWEEN TWO POWERS STRUGGLING FOR GLOBAL SUPREMACY -- BUT BETWEEN TWO PARTNERS, STRIVING TO BUILD A DEMOCRATIC PEACE. //

FROM THIS SUMMIT WE SEE A NEW HORIZON: A NEW WORLD OF PEACE AND HOPE, A NEW WORLD OF COOPERATION AND PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN THE AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN PEOPLE. OUR HOPE IS THAT THIS PARTNERSHIP WILL END FOREVER THE OLD ANTAGONISMS THAT KEPT OUR PEOPLE APART -- THAT KEPT THE WORLD IN CONFRONTATION AND IN CONFLICT. //

MR. PRESIDENT, YOUR NATION IS EMBARKED ON A GREAT EXPERIMENT -- A NEW RUSSIAN REVOLUTION -- WITH FREEDOM AS ITS GOAL.

THE PROGRESS RUSSIA HAS MADE, AND THE PROMISE OF MORE TO COME, OWES MUCH TO THE COURAGE AND VISION OF PRESIDENT BORIS YELTSIN. MR. PRESIDENT, LIKE PETER THE GREAT, YOU ARE REDEFINING RUSSIA'S UNDERSTANDING OF ITSELF -- REDEFINING RUSSIA'S ROLE IN THE WORLD. BUT, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MODERN RUSSIAN HISTORY, A LEADER CLAIMS AS HIS AUTHORITY NOT THE DISPENSATION OF HISTORY -- BUT A DEMOCRATIC MANDATE. //

You come here as an elected leader -- elected by the people in a free, fair, & open process

ALREADY, MR. PRESIDENT, WE ARE TOGETHER
TRANSFORMING OUR RELATIONS -- WITH BENEFITS NOT SIMPLY TO OUR TWO NATIONS, BUT TO THE WORLD.

TODAY, THE THREAT OF A CATAclySMIC CONVENTIONAL WAR HAS VANISHED WITH THE WARSAW PACT AND THE RISE OF DEMOCRACY IN RUSSIA. TODAY, THE THREAT OF A NUCLEAR NIGHTMARE IS MORE DISTANT NOW THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE DAWN OF THE NUCLEAR AGE. //

MR. PRESIDENT, I SAY THIS WITH A SENSE OF PRIDE, A SENSE OF AWE -- AND ABOVE ALL, A SENSE OF HISTORY:
THERE IS NO GREATER GIFT TO THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA, TO THE PEOPLE OF RUSSIA -- TO PEOPLE ALL OVER THE WORLD
-- THAN AN END TO THE AWFUL SPECTER OF GLOBAL WAR.
THINK FOR A MOMENT ABOUT WHAT THAT MEANS: NOT FOR PRESIDENTS, NOT FOR HEADS OF STATE OR HISTORIANS -- BUT FOR PARENTS, AND FOR THEIR CHILDREN. IT MEANS A FUTURE
FREE FROM FEAR. //

THIS FIRST U.S.-RUSSIA SUMMIT GIVES US A CHANCE TO LAY THE FOUNDATION OF A MORE PEACEFUL AND PROSPEROUS FUTURE FOR ALL OUR CITIZENS. WE WILL DISCUSS RUSSIA'S HISTORIC TRANSITION TO THE FREE MARKET -- ITS INTEGRATION INTO THE WORLD ECONOMY -- AND OUR COMMITMENT TO SUPPORT THOSE REFORMS. WE WILL SEEK NEW WAYS TO EXPAND TRADE BETWEEN OUR TWO NATIONS, TO CREATE WEALTH AND GROWTH AND JOBS -- NEW LEVELS OF MILITARY COOPERATION TO REDUCE FURTHER THE RISK OF WAR.

FINALLY, NEW AGREEMENTS TO REDUCE NUCLEAR ARMS -- AND TO REMOVE FROM OUR ARSENALS THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE WEAPONS.

BUT THIS MORNING, I WANT TO FOCUS ON OUR ULTIMATE GOAL: ON THE CHALLENGE WE FACE TO FORGE A NEW PEACE -- A PERMANENT PEACE BETWEEN TWO NATIONS WHO MUST NEVER AGAIN BE ADVERSARIES.

RIGHT NOW, THE PEOPLE OF RUSSIA ARE WAGING A VALIANT STRUGGLE FOR THE VERY SAME RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS WE AMERICANS PRIZE SO DEARLY.

THE FATE OF THAT REVOLUTION -- THE FUTURE OF DEMOCRACY
IN RUSSIA AND THE OTHER NEW NATIONS OF THE OLD SOVIET EMPIRE -- IS THE MOST IMPORTANT FOREIGN POLICY ISSUE OF OUR TIME.

THE UNITED STATES AND ITS DEMOCRATIC ALLIES MUST PLAY A KEY ROLE IN HELPING FORGE A DEMOCRATIC PEACE.

THAT IS WHY I URGE CONGRESS ONCE AGAIN TO PASS THE FREEDOM SUPPORT ACT -- TO STRENGTHEN DEMOCRATIC REFORM
IN RUSSIA AND THE OTHER NEW NATIONS OF THE OLD SOVIET UNION.

YES, THE AID I'VE REQUESTED FROM THE CONGRESS IS SIGNIFICANT -- BUT IT IS ALSO A TINY FRACTION OF THE FOUR TRILLION DOLLARS THIS NATION SPENT TO SECURE PEACE
DURING THE LONG COLD WAR.

- 10 -

THE RESOURCES WE DEVOTE NOW ARE AN INVESTMENT IN A NEW CENTURY OF PEACE WITH RUSSIA. //

HISTORY OFFERS US A RARE CHANCE -- A CHANCE TO ACHIEVE WHAT TWICE BEFORE THIS CENTURY HAS ESCAPED OUR GRASP: IT IS THE VISION THAT PERISHED TWICE IN THE BATTLEFIELDS OF EUROPE -- THE VISION THAT GAVE US HOPE THROUGH THE LONG COLD WAR: THE DREAM OF A NEW WORLD OF FREEDOM. //

- 11 -

MR. PRESIDENT, WHEN WE THINK OF THE WORLD OUR CHILDREN AND THEIRS WILL INHERIT, NO SINGLE FACTOR WILL SHAPE THEIR FUTURE MORE THAN THE FATE OF THE REVOLUTION NOW UNFOLDING IN RUSSIA. YOUR RUSSIAN REVOLUTION -- LIKE OUR OWN AMERICAN REVOLUTION -- SIMPLY MUST SUCCEED. //

ONCE AGAIN, WELCOME TO THE WHITE HOUSE -- AND MAY GOD GRANT A PEACEFUL FUTURE TO THE AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN PEOPLE.

News From the Hill

HOUSE FLOOR: Pennsylvania Avenue development bill passes.

Legislation (HR 4999) that would reauthorize a government corporation charged with revitalizing the stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue between the White House and the Capitol passed the House by voice vote yesterday.

The bill would authorize $2.7 million in fiscal 1993 and such sums as necessary for fiscal 1994 and 1995 for the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation. Current funding is $2.8 million.

• The House also gave voice-vote approval to a measure (HR 4548) that would authorize $350 million for fiscal 1992 and $366.1 million for fiscal 1993 for U.N. peacekeeping activities in a half-dozen countries, including Angola and Yugoslavia.

SENATE FLOOR: Striker replacement debate rolls on.

The Senate yesterday continued debating legislation (S 55) that would bar employers from permanently replacing striking workers, with most of the debate centering on a new compromise proposal designed to pull in more GOP support.

The compromise, developed by Bob Packwood, R-Ore., would allow employers to permanently replace striking workers if they agreed to accept a third-party mediation panel's recommendations and the striking workers did not.

Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, the chief Senate opponent of the bill, was sharply critical of the compromise provision, saying it would overturn laws that have "worked well for 54 years." Hatch said the provision would give the AFL-CIO, the nation's principal labor organization, a "new weapon" to launch strikes.

The administration says the bill will encourage strikes and has threatened a veto of the measure.

S 55 would effectively nullify a 1938 Supreme Court ruling that allows employers to permanently replace striking workers. Bill backers say companies in the last decade have increasingly replaced, or threatened to replace, workers that walk the picket line.

DEFENSE SPENDING bill markup under way in House.

The House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday met in closed session to begin marking up a draft fiscal 1993 defense spending bill.

The panel will continue marking up the bill today.

The subcommittee is working under a $256.3 billion spending allocation that stays in line with the fiscal 1993 budget resolution (H Con Res 287) adopted by Congress last month. (Two other Appropriations subcommittees — Military Construction and Energy and Water Development — also have a piece of the defense budget.)

As the markup continues, the subcommittee will have to resolve a number of differences between the administration's defense requests and the fiscal 1993 defense authorization bill (HR 5006) already passed by the House.

One sensitive subject will be the size of cuts to be applied to the national reserve. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney proposed a cut of 116,000. But the authorization bill would approve a cut of 67,000 reserve troops.

Members must also decide whether to concur with language in the authorization bill that would reshuffle the Navy's and Army's proposed acquisition plans for a new generation of tactical fighter planes.

HEALTH-CARE flexibility urged by Leahy, state officials.

Two governors and a senator yesterday urged Congress to give states more flexibility in how they spend federal health-care dollars.

"If a consensus cannot be reached on

Today

Senate Floor: The Senate continues consideration of the striker replacement bill (S 55), which would bar employers from permanently replacing striking workers.

Members will vote on whether to invoke cloture, or limit debate, on a substitute version of the bill that includes compromise language allowing a company to permanently replace strikers if it accepts the recommendations of a federally appointed mediation panel.

The Senate failed to invoke cloture on the bill on June 11. The 55-41 vote was five short of the 60 needed to limit debate.

The measure would, in effect, overturn a 1938 Supreme Court ruling that allows employers to permanently replace striking workers unless they are protesting unsafe or unfair working conditions.

GOP opponents contend that the measure would give an unfair advantage to unions when negotiating collective bargaining agreements. The administration has threatened to veto the bill, saying it would encourage strikes and hurt the economy.

House Floor: The House will take up a bill (S 250) that aims to make it easier for U.S. citizens to register to vote.

Known as the "motor-voter" bill because it would allow individuals to register to vote when applying for a driver's license or a number of other licenses or certificates, it would also require states to allow voter registration through the mail.

In a bid to move the legislation quickly through the House, Democratic leaders agreed to send the Senate-passed measure straight to the floor without committee action, where amendments could be added that would require a conference with the Senate.

Proponents of the measure say it will a national reform plan this year, flexibility must be given to the states that are ready to pursue their own reforms," Florida Democratic Gov. (and former Sen.) Lawton Chiles told the Senate Finance Subcommittee on Health for Families and the Uninsured.

Another Democratic governor, John Waihee III of Hawaii, told the panel how his state has provided universal health-care coverage since 1974 through employers.

With Congress unable to reach an agreement on a national health-care policy, states have begun passing their own plans. Florida, Vermont and Minnesota each have enacted, in the last three months, legislation that would provide universal health-care by 1994.

But some of the plans would require Congress and the executive branch to give states waivers from federal Medicare and Medicaid regulations.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., who explained to the panel what changes Vermont has undertaken, said that states should be allowed to spend federal Medicare and Medicaid money in ways that state officials deem is best.

Leahy said Congress is unlikely to approve a comprehensive health-care policy this year, but held out hope that a bill (S 1972) that would grant certain states waivers from federal Medicare and Medicaid regulations would be cleared before Congress adjourned for the year.

HORTON JOINS list of House retirees, is fifth from New York.

Frank Horton, R, the dean of New York's House delegation, announced yesterday that he would not seek election to a 16th term.

Horton became the third New Yorker to announce his retirement from the House since the state Assembly on June 9 approved a tentative redistricting plan for the 1992 elections. Republicans Raymond J. McGrath and David O'B. Martin announced last week plans to retire. They joined Matthew F. McHugh, D, and Robert J. Mrazek, D, who earlier announced their plans to retire at the end of the 102nd Congress.

In a floor speech yesterday, Horton said the redistricting map "has caused me to reassess my options." Although the remap plan is not final, Horton would likely have been placed in the same district with Louise M. Slaughter, D.

Horton, a low-key lawmaker who was first elected in 1962, is the ranking Republican on the Government Operations Committee and also serves on the Post Office and Civil Service panel.

Seventy-two House members are now certain to leave at the end of this Congress, either through retirement or a loss in a primary. ■ help boost lagging voter participation, while critics refute that claim and contend that it would increase the chances for voter fraud.

Republicans are expected to offer a substitute amendment that would replace the bill's language with a provision to authorize a total of $25 million from fiscal 1992 to fiscal 1994 for state block grants to support voter registration efforts.

Higher Education: Conferees on legislation (S 1150) to expand and revamp student aid programs will resume negotiations today.

A key issue to be resolved is how extensive to make a pilot program that would provide government loans to students through their schools rather than through banks.

Proponents came up with the demonstration program after the administration came out against a more extensive plan to replace the guaranteed student loan program with a direct loan program. Supporters said it would save money by eliminating the cost of subsidizing bank loans but the Office of Management and Budget said the risk to the Treasury was too great.

Members must now decide how large the pilot program should be.

The House bill would allow the Education secretary to choose a group of schools with a combined loan volume of $500 million and provide direct grants to all students at those institutions who qualify.

Robert E. Andrews, D-N.J., is fighting to increase the program to include about 200 more schools. And Republican conferees and the administration want to scale back the size of the program and cap annual funding, which the House-passed bill would not do.

Cable TV: A cable television reregulation bill (HR 4850) is expected to be stripped of two of its more contentious provisions when the House Energy and Commerce Committee marks up the measure.

In an effort to avoid a referral to the Judiciary Committee, panel Chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., has pledged to back efforts to remove the two sections dealing with retransmission of local signals and equal access to specialty programming.

The retransmission consent provision would allow local broadcasters to charge cable companies for signals that are currently provided free of charge.

The nation's broadcasters, who are no longer as financially robust as in previous years, strongly back the retransmission consent language. The provision has sparked an all-out battle with the cable industry.

The program access language is aimed at ensuring that cable program vendors, who typically have financial ties to the cable industry, provide popular programming such as MTV and ESPN at reasonable prices. Presently, cable competitors, such as companies that package satellite dish programming or so-called wireless cable operators, generally pay far higher prices for programming than do cable operators.

The Senate has already passed its cable bill (S 12). The reregulation effort follows a wave of large cable rate hikes. The industry was deregulated in 1984.

Housing Programs: The House Banking Committee will consider a one-year, $35.4 billion omnibus housing reauthorization bill (HR 5334). The legislation would authorize fiscal 1993 funding for such high-profile programs as the administration's HOPE initiative, which aims to increase home ownership among low-income urban residents, and the Democrats' block grant program dubbed HOME, which provides federal money for community housing developments.

Members are expected to offer more than 60 amendments expected at the markup, including one that would reduce the bill's authorization by $6.9 billion.

The legislation addresses a variety of programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

More than $1.5 billion would be earmarked for public housing grants. The bill also provides for community block grants in which localities match housing loans by 10 percent. Republicans will push to raise the matching percentage required of communities.

Among the other amendments expected to be offered is one that would establish a demonstration program for emergency relief in Los Angeles.

The program would establish two mini-towns within the South Central section of Los Angeles. These mini-towns, which aim to keep people from abandoning the area, would be built as self-contained communities with moderate-income housing.

Energy Bill: The Senate Finance Committee will mark up legislation (HR 776) revising U.S. energy policy. The panel will be considering tax provisions in the House-passed bill that were not included in the Senate version (S 2166).

The markup, originally planned for June 11, had to be postponed until today because of objections by Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., who is unhappy with a provision that would make it easier to put a high-level nuclear waste dump in Nevada. He and fellow Nevada Democrat Richard H.

Bryan have pledged to impede the bill until that provision is removed.

John D. Rockefeller IV, D-W.Va., may offer an amendment to provide a new financing mechanism to shore up the health-care trust fund for retiring coal miners. Rockefeller had successfully attached the amendment to the tax bill that was vetoed by President Bush in March. After Congress failed to override the veto Rockefeller promised to attach the language to another high-profile bill.

Trade Bill: The House Ways and Means Committee will begin work on a trade bill (HR 5100) approved by the Trade Subcommittee last week.

The legislation is part of an attempt by the Democratic leadership to take a more aggressive and retaliatory position on trade issues, especially with Japan.

But an effort to clamp down on imports of Japanese automobiles ran into a snag when the subcommittee deleted language limiting Japanese car imports. That provision would have included cars produced at Japanese-owned U.S. factories under the limits, and members with such factories in their districts feared U.S. workers would lose their jobs if the plants were forced to close.

But it is likely an effort will be made to craft a compromise that would restrict imports while protecting U.S. jobs.

The reauthorization of the "Super 301" section of U.S. trade law, which expired in 1990, may also cause problems. The administration and free-trade advocates oppose renewal of 301, which as drafted would force the administration to negotiate with countries with trade barriers to U.S. products.

NASA Authorization: The Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee is expected to rebuff the House again this year by approving a short-term rather than a longer-term reauthorization bill for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The draft NASA bill, which would authorize funds for fiscal 1993, tops a lengthy markup agenda.

In an effort to provide more guidance to NASA, the House passed a three-year authorization bill (HR 4364) on May 5.

Critics say that a one-year approach provides insufficient guidance to appropriators because the authorization bills tend to clear well after appropriators have made spending decisions.

Proponents of a one-year bill say that it enables Congress to exercise greater oversight over the space agency. The bill would authorize $14.7 billion for NASA in 1993; the House bill would authorize $15.3 billion for fiscal 1993, rising to $17.9 billion by 1995.

For the space station Freedom, the Senate bill would authorize $2.1 billion, compared with $2.3 billion by the House.

Interior Spending: The House Interior Appropriations Subcommittee will mark up the fiscal 1993 spending bill for an array of programs ranging from parkland and wilderness management to arts grants and Indian programs.

House appropriators have allocated $13.2 billion for the subcommittee to divide. The level represents a $13 million cut from the fiscal 1992 allocation but is considerably higher than sought by the President Bush. The administration had proposed cutting $562 million from Interior Department programs, including a significant reduction in funding for the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Among the issues that members are likely to address during the markup are fees for grazing on public lands and how much to allot for land acquisition. Bush requested additional funds this year to purchase public lands for the government; but members may pare that back.

The subcommittee is also likely to vote to continue the large-scale moratorium on offshore oil drilling and a one-year moratorium on mining patent claims.

Indian Health: Legislation to improve health-care services for Indians will be marked up by the Senate Indian Affairs Committee.

The multiyear measure (S 2481) seeks to boost the health of the Indian population and to eliminate deficiencies in resources by improving health-care facilities, granting better access to Medicare and Medicaid programs and making health services available to urban Indians.

The bill would expand certain Indian health programs such as those for the treatment of alcohol and substance abuse on Indian reservations.

The measure also would establish scholarship grants to increase the number of Indians entering health professions. The bill would provide for two- and four-year health scholarships. ■

U.S. MAY WITHDRAW
NAVAL FORCE OFF JORDAN

AMMAN, Jordan -- The U.S. has proposed a plan for enforcing U.N. sanctions against Iraq that would result in withdrawing a U.S. naval armada off the Jordanian coast after a team of U.N. observers arrives to inspect incoming goods at the seaport of Aqaba and patrol Jordan's long desert border with Iraq, according to Jordanian and diplomatic sources.

U.S. officials say implementation of the proposal, known as "Aqaba Plus," would be likely to curb what they describe as shipments of contraband across the Jordanian-Iraqi border in violation of the sanctions.

At the same time, officials and diplomats here said, it could expedite shipments of supplies permitted under the U.N. embargo, thereby saving Iraqi and Jordanian importers time and money.

Many Jordanians, however, said they see the plan as an infringement of their country's sovereignty and the U.S. insistence on it largely as pressure for a political gesture. The proposal also could be politically risky for King Hussein, since he would be allowing foreign inspectors to operate inside Jordan, Jordanian officials and diplomats said.

ISRAEL AIR CHIEF WARNS
AGAINST NUCLEAR WEAPONS

TEL AVIV -- Israel's air force chief, Maj. Gen. Herzl Bodinger, said Monday the Jewish state could attack any country that introduced nuclear weapons into the Middle East. He also accused the U.S. of failing to do enough to halt the advance of nuclear technology in the region.

"If we will have any kind of report that any country in the region is getting close to getting nuclear ability, it should be looked after," he told foreign journalists.

Bodinger said the U.S. was doing too little to prevent Israel's neighbors and enemies from acquiring nuclear weapons. He defended Israel's decision to stop U.S. investigators from questioning a former air force brigadier-general at the center of a multimillion-dollar fraud involving U.S. weapons sales to Israel.

BUSH IMPOSES DUTIES ON IMPORTS FROM SYRIA

President Bush on Monday suspended Syria's right to duty-free imports into the U.S. Bush, in a notice to Congress, said he took the step because Syria has not taken steps "to afford internationally recognized worker rights."

He suspended its participation in a program for developing countries that allows duty-free access to U.S. markets under the so-called Generalized System of Preferences. As a result of Bush's action, Syrian businesses will no longer be able to ship goods to this country under an arrangement that last year admitted $13.7 billion worth of imports duty-free, or at special low duties. THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Jay:

Thank you for your good letter regarding race relations. I appreciate the time that you took to share your perspective on this issue with me.

Like you and so many Americans, I am deeply concerned about the social problems that citizens who are living in our urban areas face, as well as the unrest that triggered those troubling events in Los Angeles and elsewhere. You're right: we need to do a better job as a country in building bonds between individuals. America needs to recapture the same sense of unity -- or teamwork -- that you witness daily as a college football coach.

We have made dramatic progress. The Civil Rights Act of 1991, for example, will help to eliminate the blight of racism from the workplace. Yet, much remains to be done to alleviate the tensions of which you wrote. Government can assist in some areas; in other areas, it falls upon the community, the family, and the individual to make a difference.

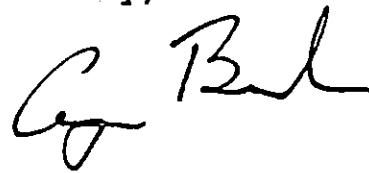

After more than two decades and trillions of dollars spent on social welfare, the time to change fundamentally our approach toward helping people has clearly arrived. Federal spending alone will not solve these problems. I think you will agree that it would not serve the people of South Central Los Angeles well if we were to restore the burned-out buildings while neglecting the ability of citizens there to build businesses and better lives for themselves and their families. We need to create the opportunities that provide hope for a brighter future.

For this reason, I have asked Congress to act promptly on our six-point package of urban initiatives to empower individuals and to enhance commercial development, homeownership, drug eradication, and welfare reform. Hopefully, the Democratic leadership in Congress will put partisan politics aside long enough to help me enact these and other constructive measures and, thus, help the Nation.

Meanwhile, you can be sure that I will continue to lead the fight for the values that we share. In these and other efforts, I am heartened to know that I can count on your steadfast support.

Good luck to you in the upcoming football season. Also, please give my best to your father.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jay Paterno

Dear Mr. President:

I am writing is to ask you to use your position of President to do what you can do to help heal the racial wounds that divide our great country.

As the recent events in Los Angeles and various other cities across America indicate, there is a great divide in this country. I have been aware of the problem for a number of years and have tried to do what I can in order to educate those around me to the problem.

What I have found from most of white America is a deaf ear. I myself am white and it gives me great pain to be lumped into a group that has perpetuated the racial divisions in America.

I, like my father am a college football coach. In fact I was fortunate enough to meet you in your hotel room in New Orleans at the 1988 National Convention after my father had made a speech seconding your nomination.

One of the things that has attracted me to coaching is the fact that young men black and white work together towards a common goal and in so doing they erase the lines that would normally divide them.

The other thing I see at this level are young black men who get a chance to go to college and get a degree. Many of them have gone on to become leaders in society.

I am tired of the racial tensions that are holding America back from reaching it's full potential. I hope for a day when we can all work together and all share in the full blossoming of the dreams that our forefathers had for this new nation so many years ago.

I can offer you no bold new plan, only my support as you set out on this rough but needed course.

I thank you for your time and I'll be voting for you in November.

Sincerely,

Jay Paterno

The Honorable George Bush
President of the United States

Dear Mr. President:

As Republican Members of New Jersey's Congressional delegation, we are writing today in regard to the disproportionate share Medicaid payments claimed by the State of New Jersey. We are pleased to see that your Administration shares our concern, that this issue be resolved as fairly, equitably and quickly as possible.

As you know, New Jersey's application for $412 million in reimbursement for retroactive matching funds, current and future years' disproportionate share payments, remains under consideration. As you are well aware, New Jersey's Legislature must approve a balanced state budget by July 1, 1992.

Unfortunately, the misinformation and misunderstandings surrounding this issue have already resulted in chaos in Trenton. Perhaps most alarming, the firm of Standard & Poor has already placed New Jersey's bond rating on a credit watch, threatening the State's AA+ bond rating.

As you are no doubt aware, the rejection of these monies would wreak fiscal havoc on New Jersey.

Having reviewed the application of the State, and the State Plan Amendments submitted in September, 1988, and modified in November, 1991, it is clear that every consideration must be given to New Jersey's reimbursement request before arriving at any final disposition.

We are informed that representatives of New Jersey's Governor and the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) will meet on June 10, 1992, to consider the merits of the State's $412 million claim. We urge that you focus your personal attention to this matter, and make every possible effort to resolve this matter quickly.

So that the State Legislature may fulfill its legal obligation to produce a balanced budget, it is of paramount concern to us that New Jersey receive a firm commitment that it will be reimbursed the monies paid to disproportionate share psychiatric hospitals in good faith, and in substantive compliance with Congressional mandates.

The Honorable George Bush

The Honorable George Bush

The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

I have reviewed the June 4, 1992, letter of your Chief of Staff, Samuel Skinner, to Speaker of the New Jersey Assembly Garabed "Chuck" Haytaian, in regard to the disproportionate share Medicaid payments claimed by the State of New Jersey. I am pleased to see that your Administration shares my concern, that this issue be resolved as fairly, equitably and quickly as possible.

As you have observed, and contrary to media reports and the report of New Jersey State Treasurer Samuel Crane, New Jersey's application for $412 million in reimbursement for retroactive matching funds, current and future years' disproportionate share payments remains under consideration. As you are well aware, New Jersey's Legislature must approve a balanced state budget by July 1, 1992.

Unfortunately, the misinformation and misunderstandings surrounding this issue have already resulted in chaos in Trenton. Perhaps most alarming, the firm of Standard & Poor has already placed New Jersey's bond rating on a credit watch, threatening the State's AA+ bond rating.

As you are no doubt aware, the rejection of these monies would wreak fiscal havoc on New Jersey.

Having reviewed the application of the State, and the State Plan Amendments submitted in September, 1988, and modified in November, 1991, it does appear that the State is in substantive compliance with the intent of Congress, as expressed in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-203), and the Medicaid Voluntary Contribution and Provider Specific Tax Amendments of 1991 (P.L. 102-234).

Furthermore, both HCFA and New Jersey have been engaged in continued negotiations, and I am informed that HCFA acknowledges New Jersey's November 22, 1991, submission as modification of the State's SPA 88-29. As the rate of payment to county and state hospitals under the modified SPAs (88-29A, B, C, and D) has not changed, the conclusion of HCFA Region II Acting Administrator Saperstein that federal payment may be denied under the public notice requirements in 42 CFR 447.205 ("proposed significant change") would appear to be an incorrect interpretation.

It is my understanding that representatives of New Jersey's Governor and the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) will meet on June 10, 1992, to consider the merits of the State's $412 million claim. I would urge that you continue to focus your personal attention to this matter, and make every possible effort to resolve this matter before the end of New Jersey's fiscal year.

It is of utmost concern to me that New Jersey be reimbursed the monies it put forward to disproportionate share psychiatric hospitals in good faith, and in substantive compliance with Congressional mandates. I cannot understate the damage to the State's budget and economy of denial of these funds. I would urge, in the strongest terms possible, that neither bureaucratic technicalities nor procedural administrative delay be allowed to interfere with this approval.

I thank you again for your timely consideration of this matter. If I may be of any personal assistance to you, I trust you will not hesitate to call on me directly.

Sincerely,

Marge Roukema

REVISED

ARRIVAL STATEMENT -- PRESIDENT BORIS YELTSIN OF RUSSIA
SOUTH LAWN \ JUNE 16, 1992 \ 10:00 A.M.

MR. PRESIDENT, MRS. YELTSIN, DISTINGUISHED MEMBERS
OF THE RUSSIAN DELEGATION -- WELCOME TO THE UNITED STATES. AND OF COURSE, ALL OF YOU WHO HAVE COME HERE
TO MARK THIS HISTORIC MOMENT: WELCOME TO THE WHITE HOUSE. //

MR. PRESIDENT, TODAY MARKS THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA -- A NEW KIND OF SUMMIT: NOT A MEETING BETWEEN TWO POWERS STRUGGLING FOR GLOBAL SUPREMACY -- BUT BETWEEN TWO PARTNERS, STRIVING TO BUILD A DEMOCRATIC PEACE. //

FROM THIS SUMMIT WE SEE A NEW HORIZON: A NEW WORLD
OF PEACE AND HOPE, A NEW WORLD OF COOPERATION AND PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN THE AMERICAN AND RUSSIAN PEOPLE.
OUR HOPE IS THAT THIS PARTNERSHIP WILL END FOREVER THE OLD ANTAGONISMS THAT KEPT OUR PEOPLE APART -- THAT KEPT
THE WORLD IN CONFRONTATION AND IN CONFLICT. //

MR. PRESIDENT, YOUR NATION IS EMBARKED ON A GREAT EXPERIMENT -- A NEW RUSSIAN REVOLUTION -- WITH FREEDOM AS ITS GOAL.

6:37

THE PROGRESS RUSSIA HAS MADE, AND THE PROMISE OF MORE TO COME, OWES MUCH TO THE COURAGE AND VISION OF PRESIDENT BORIS YELTSIN. MR. PRESIDENT, LIKE PETER THE GREAT, YOU ARE REDEFINING RUSSIA'S UNDERSTANDING OF ITSELF -- REDEFINING RUSSIA'S ROLE IN THE WORLD. BUT, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MODERN RUSSIAN HISTORY, A LEADER CLAIMS AS HIS AUTHORITY NOT THE DISPENSATION OF HISTORY -- BUT A DEMOCRATIC MANDATE. //

ALREADY, MR. PRESIDENT, WE ARE TOGETHER TRANSFORMING OUR RELATIONS -- WITH BENEFITS NOT SIMPLY TO OUR TWO NATIONS, BUT TO THE WORLD.

TODAY, THE THREAT OF A CATACLYSMIC CONVENTIONAL WAR HAS VANISHED WITH THE WARSAW PACT AND THE RISE OF DEMOCRACY IN RUSSIA. TODAY, THE THREAT OF A NUCLEAR NIGHTMARE IS MORE DISTANT NOW THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE DAWN OF THE NUCLEAR AGE. //

MR. PRESIDENT, I SAY THIS WITH A SENSE OF PRIDE, A SENSE OF AWE -- AND ABOVE ALL, A SENSE OF HISTORY: THERE IS NO GREATER GIFT TO THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA, TO THE PEOPLE OF RUSSIA -- TO PEOPLE ALL OVER THE WORLD -- THAN AN END TO THE AWFUL SPECTER OF GLOBAL WAR. THINK FOR A MOMENT ABOUT WHAT THAT MEANS: NOT FOR PRESIDENTS, NOT FOR HEADS OF STATE OR HISTORIANS -- BUT FOR PARENTS, AND FOR THEIR CHILDREN. IT MEANS A FUTURE FREE FROM FEAR. //

THIS FIRST U.S.-RUSSIA SUMMIT GIVES US A CHANCE TO LAY THE FOUNDATION OF A MORE PEACEFUL AND PROSPEROUS FUTURE FOR ALL OUR CITIZENS. WE WILL DISCUSS RUSSIA'S HISTORIC TRANSITION TO THE FREE MARKET -- ITS INTEGRATION INTO THE WORLD ECONOMY -- AND OUR COMMITMENT TO SUPPORT THOSE REFORMS. WE WILL SEEK NEW WAYS TO EXPAND TRADE BETWEEN OUR TWO NATIONS, TO CREATE WEALTH AND GROWTH AND JOBS -- NEW LEVELS OF MILITARY COOPERATION TO REDUCE FURTHER THE RISK OF WAR.

FINALLY, NEW AGREEMENTS TO REDUCE NUCLEAR ARMS -- AND TO REMOVE FROM OUR ARSENALS THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE WEAPONS.

BUT THIS MORNING, I WANT TO FOCUS ON OUR ULTIMATE GOAL: ON THE CHALLENGE WE FACE TO FORGE A NEW PEACE -- A PERMANENT PEACE BETWEEN TWO NATIONS WHO MUST NEVER AGAIN BE ADVERSARIES.

RIGHT NOW, THE PEOPLE OF RUSSIA ARE WAGING A VALIANT STRUGGLE FOR THE VERY SAME RIGHTS AND FREEDOMS WE AMERICANS PRIZE SO DEARLY.

THE FATE OF THAT REVOLUTION -- THE FUTURE OF DEMOCRACY IN RUSSIA AND THE OTHER NEW NATIONS OF THE OLD SOVIET EMPIRE -- IS THE MOST IMPORTANT FOREIGN POLICY ISSUE OF OUR TIME.

THE UNITED STATES AND ITS DEMOCRATIC ALLIES MUST PLAY A KEY ROLE IN HELPING FORGE A DEMOCRATIC PEACE.

THAT IS WHY I URGE CONGRESS ONCE AGAIN TO PASS THE FREEDOM SUPPORT ACT -- TO STRENGTHEN DEMOCRATIC REFORM IN RUSSIA AND THE OTHER NEW NATIONS OF THE OLD SOVIET UNION.

YES, THE AID I'VE REQUESTED FROM THE CONGRESS IS SIGNIFICANT -- BUT IT IS ALSO A TINY FRACTION OF THE FOUR TRILLION DOLLARS THIS NATION SPENT TO SECURE PEACE DURING THE LONG COLD WAR.

THE RESOURCES WE DEVOTE NOW ARE AN INVESTMENT IN A NEW CENTURY OF PEACE WITH RUSSIA. //

HISTORY OFFERS US A RARE CHANCE -- A CHANCE TO ACHIEVE WHAT TWICE BEFORE THIS CENTURY HAS ESCAPED OUR GRASP: IT IS THE VISION THAT PERISHED TWICE IN THE BATTLEFIELDS OF EUROPE -- THE VISION THAT GAVE US HOPE THROUGH THE LONG COLD WAR: THE DREAM OF A NEW WORLD OF FREEDOM. //

BUSH DOESN'T SEE HOUSE DECIDING PRESIDENTIAL RACE

President Bush said Monday he doesn't think the three-way presidential race will end up in the House. But he told a TV interviewer "don't press me" on how Ross Perot will fare.

And, while asserting that he wanted the interview to focus on international affairs rather than domestic politics, Bush made an extraordinary election-year appeal for his own re-election. He said he liked to "finish what I start out to do... whether in my business experience... or being President of the United States."

Bush refused to answer specific questions about Perot. Asked if he thought the election might end up in the House, Bush answered, "Nope." But when CNN's Frank Sesno asked Bush if that meant he believed Perot would fizzle, Bush retorted: "You can interpret it any way you want. But don't press me."

Bush Confident Of Avoiding Deadlocked Election

President Bush Monday scoffed at the possibility of a deadlocked presidential race, but said there was a chance "in a crazy year like this" that his Republican Party would win control of Congress from the Democrats.

In a wide-ranging interview shown live on CNN, Bush also said he might try some unorthodox campaign communication tactics in his bid for re-election. Asked if he would go on popular TV talk shows and take questions from viewers like Bill Clinton and Ross Perot, Bush replied that he might.

Bush said he was optimistic voters would conclude that he deserved a second four-year term because of his experience and his willingness "to make decisions that might not be popular or might draw the fire of the editorialist or... the network man."

Since the Democratic Party has lopsided majorities in both houses of Congress, most political experts believe it would be virtually impossible for Bush's fellow Republicans to win control of Congress. Asked if the experts could be wrong, Bush replied: "Sure, in a crazy year like this, absolutely."

(Gene Gibbons, Reuter)

Bush Says Election Won't Land In House

President Bush said Monday this is a "crazy year" in politics, but he does not expect the presidential election to be decided in the House.

The President cited the end of the Cold War and the fall of communism and the lessening of nuclear-war fears as major achievements of the Reagan-Bush years. He also cited his programs that have been blocked by a Democrat-controlled Congress.

As for handing out an 800 telephone number so that people can call him at the White House, Bush said, "I'm not going to do that. I hope I'm not going to turn the White House into an 800 line."

(Helen Thomas, UPI)

Bush And Clinton Take To Noncombative Milieu

The questions were friendly and the formats ran as long as two hours, but both President Bush and Bill Clinton appeared satisfied Monday by their efforts to reach voters by appearing on established television news programs.

Neither candidate's appearance appeared to break much new ground. Bush continued to dodge questions about Ross Perot's likely bid for the presidency, but he did express doubt that the fall election would be thrown into the House.

The White House said later that the President's response indicates he believes he will receive the required 270 electoral votes as a result of the Nov. 8 election. The White House said Bush's appearance was another in a series of responses to news media requests for interviews.

Bush Rails Against TV News

President Bush made his first 1992 campaign foray into TV talk shows Monday, challenging a symbol he called "The Networkman" as he followed the lead of Bill Clinton and Ross Perot in arguing personally to voters.

"Who has the experience to lead this country, to make decisions that might not be popular or might draw the fire of the editorialists or that first guy on the evening news, 'The Networkman?'" Bush said on CNN.

His comment seemed to refer to CBS' Dan Rather more than to Peter Jennings and Tom Brokaw.

VOTERS DESPERATE FOR FRESH FACE IN WHITE HOUSE -- POLL

Voters are desperate for fresh faces in Washington, backing a strong leader in the White House even if that person lacked experience and would ignore Congress and the courts to get things done, pollsters reported Monday.

Their latest Times/Mirror poll found 36% of the electorate backed Perot to 31% for President Bush and 27% for Clinton. But a separate sounding pitting Bush and Clinton against Norman Schwarzkopf found Schwarzkopf winning nearly as much of the vote as Perot without even trying. The poll gave Schwarzkopf 29% of the vote to 35% for Bush and 27% for Clinton.

The poll found that 63% of Americans think the country needs a strong leader who would try to solve the nation's problems without worrying about how Congress and the Supreme Court would react.

VICE PRESIDENT SAYS PEROT COULD BE BUSH'S MAIN CHALLENGER

NEW YORK -- Vice President Quayle ridiculed Democratic leaders on Monday as advocates of a liberal ideology that has failed to solve urban problems and said Ross Perot could be President Bush's main opponent in November.

If that happens, he said, "Throw away the strategy books. This is unprecedented. This is highly unusual.... It will be a wild and probably free-swinging campaign."

Quayle, addressing a sympathetic luncheon audience of the Manhattan Institute, also held up New York as an example of Democratic failure. He called Gov. Cuomo "liberalism's sensitive philosopher-king" who could be counted on for "a touching oration on compassion" at the Democratic National Convention....

Asked why people continue to watch T.V. sitcoms that allegedly mock traditional family values, Quayle replied that "People ought to think about it... and corporations and businesses ought to think about what they're sponsoring." At a brief news conference later, Quayle said he was not suggesting that corporate sponsors should try to control or dictate the content of programs such as "Murphy Brown."

Quayle Attacks New York As Home Of Liberal Failure

A month before the Democratic Party arrives in New York for its national convention, Vice President Quayle returned here Monday to lambaste the party's liberal leaders, warning, "We must not let them do to the rest of America what they have done to the people of New York City."

Attacking policies ranging from condom distribution in schools to high local taxes to rent control, and politicians like Mario Cuomo, the Vice President used a speech to the Manhattan Institute to paint New York anew as the epitome of liberalism's failures.

Cuomo challenged Quayle to a game of one-on-one basketball. "If you really want to come and make a fool of yourself, bring your jock and a pair of sneakers and let's play ball," Cuomo said.

CLINTON RIDICULES QUAYLE'S CLAIM TO BE CAMPAIGN'S 'PIT BULL'

SAN DIEGO -- Bill Clinton took a swipe at Vice President Quayle's claim to be the "pit bull" of the election campaign, saying "every fire hydrant in America is going to be terrified."

Clinton, in an address to the UAW national convention Monday, also suggested that Quayle was a hypocrite for his recent attacks on the nation's "cultural elite" when he himself benefits from a trust fund.

SUNUNU REGISTERS AS LOBBYIST ON HILL FOR FLORIDA COMPANY

John Sununu has registered to lobby lawmakers on behalf of W.R. Grace Co. Sununu's first lobbying assignment, according to congressional records, is to help defeat proposed bankruptcy legislation that would allow the legal judgments against an insolvent company to be transferred to a solvent one.

Besides lobbying against the bill, Sununu was hired by Grace to provide other services, said Alan Fiers, a former CIA official who is director of the firm's Washington office.

Sununu is also expected to play a role in President Bush's re-election campaign, according to Charles Black. On CBS's "Face The Nation" Sunday, Black said Sununu "is going to help us in the campaign. He's a great spokesman, a great leader for the party and a great leader on behalf of the President."

REPORT: $18,200 IN TRIPS FOR SKINNER

Sam Skinner received $18,200 in aircraft lodging while serving as secretary of Transportation last year, according to a financial disclosure report released Monday by the White House.

Skinner generally took the trips in connection with some political or charity event. Two exceptions were last May: Skinner and his wife made a $4,714 trip to Malibu, Calif., to attend the law school commencement at Pepperdine University; he attended the Kentucky Derby with Secretary Brady paying transportation, food and expenses.

ALEXANDER SEEKS MORE SCHOOL CHOICES

America must give its schools more independence to educate children creatively, Secretary Alexander said Monday. This strategy would be more successful than simply pouring millions more dollars into traditional public shooools, he said, noting that the U.S. already spends more on education per pupil than any other country except Switzerland.

"If you have break-the-mold schools that are open 16 or 18 hours a day every day of the year with a fantastic menu of educational offerings... they will attract customers and attract investment in a way that our existing schools don't," Alexander told the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

JAPANESE COMPANY
SUES BUSH BROTHER

NEW YORK -- A Tokyo investment company linked to the Japanese underworld has filed a $2.5 million lawsuit against Prescott Bush, Jr., over an investment that he helped arrange in an American firm that collapsed last year.

The lawsuit, by West Tsusho Co., was filed in federal court here on May 8 but attracted public attention only Monday, when a judge ordered Bush to respond by June 25.

The suit involves Prescott Bush's role as a member of the senior advisory board of Asset Management, International Financing & Settlement Ltd., or AMIFS.

According to the complaint by West Tsusho, Bush reneged on a promise he allegedly made in the summer of 1989 to protect West Tsusho against part of the risk that it might lose money when it invested $5 million in AMIFS at that time.

SBA'S HELP TO MINORITY FIRMS HIT

The SBA has been "bureaucratically strangling minority businesses" and should be stripped of its programs dealing with such firms, according to a report by a commission charged by Congress with assessing federal minority business development programs.

"After 23 years, it is time for a structural change at SBA," said Joshua Smith, a Prince George's County business executive who is chairman of the federal Commission on Minority Business Development. "The process has become more powerful than the product -- that is, the minority companies."

Smith said the commission's recommendation with the most "guts" calls for the creation of a new agency responsible for helping minority-owned firms. The agency would operate within the Department of Commerce. (Michelle Singletary, Washington Post, C1)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

YELTSIN ARRIVES FOR SUMMIT WITH BUSH

Russian President Boris Yeltsin arrived here Monday night for a two-day U.S.-Russian summit meeting that, both sides declared, would underscore the demise of the Cold War and the emergence of a new partnership between the former foes.

In an airborne interview with NBC News, Yeltsin said Soviet archives show that some U.S. prisoners from the Vietnam War were transferred to the Soviet Union and kept in labor camps. He said he "can only surmise" that some may still be alive.

President Bush conceded in a CNN interview that "we have some differences," referring to the still-unfinished arms negotiations, but added that both he and Yeltsin believe this is "a good time to take another step" toward reducing the awesome stocks of nuclear weapons piled up during the years of mutual fear and antagonism.

Secretary Baker told reporters that four or five areas of difference -- including at least two "extraordinarily difficult problems" -- stand in the way of full agreement on nuclear weapons cuts that would go well beyond those called for under START. Baker declined to elaborate but expressed hope that meetings here, starting with a session he held at the State Department with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev, would resolve the remaining issues.

Both Bush and Baker issued last-minute appeals to Congress to promptly pass an aid bill for the states of the former Soviet Union. Sen. Mitchell remained noncommittal on the timing of Senate action. He said he is canvassing Democrats on the issue and has asked Sen. Dole for an account of GOP stands. A Senate Republican aide said Dole determined last week that at least half of the body's Republican members would vote for the aid bill.

Bush Greet Summit Guest 'As A Friend'

Boris Yeltsin arrived Monday to meet President Bush at his first formal nuclear summit, an event robbed of drama by Moscow's loss of world prestige and superpower status. "He comes as a friend, not an adversary," Bush said.

In an interview with CNN, Bush defended the planned outcome of arms control talks -- leaving the U.S. better armed than Russia -- on grounds of the greater U.S. responsibility to maintain world peace.

Despite top-level U.S. denials, the Russians may find their search for $24 billion in the West irrevocably linked to surrender on contentious nuclear arms control issues that were still being argued Monday night.

Yeltsin: U.S. POWs Taken To U.S.S.R.

Boris Yeltsin said Monday that U.S. prisoners from the Vietnam War were transferred to the Soviet Union and kept in labor camps - and some of them may still be alive.

Monday night, the Pentagon said it still has no knowledge that American POWs from the Vietnam era were transferred to the Soviet Union and kept in labor camps, despite Yeltsin's confirmation.

Also Monday, a Russian military historian said a "small portion" of 59 American pilots captured by the North Koreans during the Korean War were incorporated into the KGB as agents.

Russian authorities received a letter several days ago from someone in the Ural Mountains who said "there was an American there," Gen. Volkogonov said. The government is working "very diligently" to find out if the man is a missing American serviceman, he said. (Carleton Bryant, Washington Times, A1)

FINALLY, YELTSIN SHOWN RESPECT BY BUSH, PRESS

Boris Yeltsin was met at Andrews Air Force Base Monday with all the pomp befitting a man who stared down a hardline coup, outlawed the Communist Party and chased Mikhail Gorbachev from power.

The greeting stood in stark contrast to the welcome Yeltsin received in Washington less than three years ago, when his upstart challenge to Gorbachev evoked fear and uncertainty in the Bush Administration.

Yeltsin first visited Washington in September 1989 to find himself enormously distrusted by an Administration that had banked on Gorbachev as the man who would usher in a decade of Soviet reform.

Now the Bush Administration looks to Yeltsin as the man who, in the words of Robert Gates, "comes as close to being indispensable as anyone can imagine" for the success of Russian reforms. (Martin Sieff, Washington Times, A10)

CLINTON SECURES YELTSIN MEETING;
BUSH SAYS IT'S OK

Bill Clinton will meet with Boris Yeltsin -- on President Bush's turf -- this week in what campaign officials hope will be a boost for Clinton's campaign.

The Clinton campaign anticipates the kind of news videotape footage that money can't buy: Clinton emerging from Blair House after meeting with Yeltsin.

Campaign staffers said a Yeltsin meeting would raise Clinton's profile on foreign policy, one of his campaign's weakest points. At the same time, they said, the meeting is another jab at Bush. They boasted Monday that their coup in setting up the meeting "puts us on somewhat of an equal footing" with Bush.

Bush confirmed the planned meeting Monday on CNN. Asked by CNN to react to plans for a Clinton-Yeltsin meeting, Bush said, "I think it's fine." (Ronald Taylor, Washington Times, A4)

YELTSIN NAMES ECONOMIST ACTING PREMIER

MOSCOW -- Boris Yeltsin Monday appointed economics czar Yegor Gaidar as his acting prime minister, a clear signal of Yeltsin's commitment to further economic reforms on the eve of his summit meeting with President Bush.

The appointment of Gaidar, the 36-year-old economist who as first deputy prime minister has plotted Russia's "shock therapy" course toward a free market, was described by Yeltsin aides here as a necessary first step toward making him the permanent prime minister with day-to-day responsibility for running the country.

Secretary Baker hailed Gaidar's appointment, saying it "sends the signal that one of the champions of democracy and commitment to a free market economy is still very much a player" in the government. "My sense is that President Yeltsin and his team are still very much committed to the reform effort," Baker said.

(Margaret Shapiro, Washington Post, A15)

Yeltsin Tilts Back To Free Market On Eve Of Summit

MOSCOW -- Boris Yeltsin issued a batch of economic reforms before flying to Washington on Monday in an apparent effort to signal his U.S. hosts and political foes at home that Russia will stick with its painful market changes.

Hours before his departure, Yeltsin issued decrees to lower export duties and make them payable in rubles; ease taxes on companies; and pave the way for making the ruble convertible. He also raised the stature of Yegor Gaidar.

But it was unclear whether Gaidar's promotion, or Yeltsin's new decrees, would ease doubts that he is backing away from creating a capitalist economy.

WHITE HOUSE, IN BID FOR SUCCESSFUL VISIT BY YELTSIN, URGES IMF TO AID RUSSIA

The Bush Administration, trying to set the stage for a successful visit to the U.S. by Boris Yeltsin, prodded the IMF to move ahead with aid to Moscow.

While Russia should comply with the "major elements" of an economic reform program negotiated with the IMF, Secretary Baker told reporters, Yeltsin's government shouldn't be judged by the "crossing of each and every 't' and the dotting of each and every 'i.'"

"That isn't the way it works," Baker said. "That isn't the way it normally works with any country, and it shouldn't work that way with Russia."

(Gerald Seib & Adi Ignatius, Wall Street Journal, A14)

U.S. WON'T HURRY IMF INTO REACHING PACT WITH RUSSIA

Treasury Undersecretary David Mulford signaled Monday that Washington would not hurry the IMF into reaching a crucial agreement with Russia on a $4 billion loan. Mulford said an agreement between the two sides on a reform program was not likely before next month's economic summit of leaders from the G-7 industrial nations.

The G-7 have promised Russia $24 billion in financial help this year, but Moscow won't receive most of that until it reaches agreement with the IMF on a reform plan. Yeltsin is expected to ask President Bush to pressure the IMF for an early agreement.

YELTSIN BLAMES '79 ANTHRAX ON GERM WARFARE EFFORTS

Boris Yeltsin has acknowledged that an epidemic of anthrax in the Ural Mountains about 12 years ago was caused by military researchers trying to make a germ weapon, not by natural causes as previously claimed by senior officials of the former Soviet Union.

Yeltsin's unusual public statement -- an admission that the Soviet government hid the truth for a long time on an issue of importance to Washington -- is being taken by U.S. intelligence analysts as a final vindication of the view they first put forward in 1980. Their claim was criticized by some U.S. allies and U.S. experts who said it was based on thin evidence.

(Jeffrey Smith, Washington Post, A1)

WITH END OF COLD WAR, ARMS CONTROL FADES AS GOAL

If Russia and the U.S. reach a long-range nuclear weapons accord this week as expected, it seems certain that traditional arms control has come to an end after decades as the dominant issue of world diplomacy....

If President Bush and President Yeltsin do agree upon unprecedented and radical new reductions at this week's Washington summit, the two sides are then likely to let the situation stabilize and resist indefinitely any pressure for quick additional cuts as they turn their attention to the economic side of their new relationship.... But even as 11th hour negotiations went forward, there was debate over whether the U.S. should bother. Most arms control advocates and U.S. officials argue that with all the political uncertainty in the former Soviet states, the U.S. should move fast to lock Moscow into the deepest weapons cuts possible....

And if 2,000 or 1,000 warheads ever became a serious U.S.-Russian target, it would bring pressure on France, Britain and China to join the cuts....

Some conservative experts say that while an accord promising deeper strategic cuts would be welcome, it is not needed because economic deterioration in the former Soviet Union will make advanced arms impossible to maintain. They argue that by pouring so much energy into the last-minute arms deal, Bush is giving short shrift to the more profound problem of Russia's efforts to make the transition from a command economy to democratic capitalism.

ALBANIAN LEADER TELLS BUSH OF HIS FEAR OF SERBIA

President Sali Berisha of Albania met with President Bush Monday and said his country was doing what it could to keep the conflict in neighboring Yugoslavia from spreading.

He told Bush that he was most concerned about fresh threats to the several million ethnic Albanians in the Kosovo region of Serbia, northeast of Albania, who he said were being severely repressed by the Belgrade government. Serbian leaders recently warned that hundreds of thousands of Kosovo Albanians might be moved by military force into Albania, the poorest country in Europe.

Specifically, Berisha proposed that special guarantees be extended to the Albanian population of Kosovo from the U.N. and the EC.

KIDNAPPING OUTSIDE U.S. IS UPHELD

The U.S. government may kidnap people from foreign countries to stand trial here, even if the U.S. has an extradition treaty with the other country, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

Voting 6 to 3, the court cleared the way for the trial of Humberto Alvarez-Machain, a Mexican doctor who is accused of participating in the 1985 kidnap and murder of DEA agent Enrique Camarena Salazar and his pilot.

Chief Justice Rehnquist, writing for the court, said that although such kidnappings may be "shocking" and violate international law, they are not prohibited by the extradition treaty outlining procedures for obtaining criminal suspects or the Constitution. "The fact of (Alvarez-Machain's) forcible abduction does not therefore prohibit his trial in a court in the U.S. for violations of the criminal laws of the U.S.," Rehnquist said.

Justice Stevens, in a dissenting opinion joined by Justices Blackmun and O'Connor, said the "desire for revenge" is "no justification for disregarding the rule of law that this court has a duty to uphold."

Attorney General Barr called the ruling "an important victory in our ongoing efforts against terrorists and narco-traffickers who operate against the U.S. from overseas."

MEXICO BANS ALL ACTIVITIES BY DEA AGENTS

MEXICO CITY -- Mexico banned all activities by U.S. DEA agents Monday to protest a U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing authorities to capture suspects abroad for trial in the U.S.

Mexican agents in the U.S. will also suspend all activities, according to a statement by the Department of Foreign Affairs. The move virtually severs all cooperation between the two countries in the war against drugs.

U.S. MAY WITHDRAW
NAVAL FORCE OFF JORDAN

AMMAN, Jordan -- The U.S. has proposed a plan for enforcing U.N. sanctions against Iraq that would result in withdrawing a U.S. naval armada off the Jordanian coast after a team of U.N. observers arrives to inspect incoming goods at the seaport of Aqaba and patrol Jordan's long desert border with Iraq, according to Jordanian and diplomatic sources.

U.S. officials say implementation of the proposal, known as "Aqaba Plus," would be likely to curb what they describe as shipments of contraband across the Jordanian-Iraqi border in violation of the sanctions.

At the same time, officials and diplomats here said, it could expedite shipments of supplies permitted under the U.N. embargo, thereby saving Iraqi and Jordanian importers time and money.

Many Jordanians, however, said they see the plan as an infringement of their country's sovereignty and the U.S. insistence on it largely as pressure for a political gesture. The proposal also could be politically risky for King Hussein, since he would be allowing foreign inspectors to operate inside Jordan, Jordanian officials and diplomats said.

ISRAEL AIR CHIEF WARNS
AGAINST NUCLEAR WEAPONS

TEL AVIV -- Israel's air force chief, Maj. Gen. Herzl Bodinger, said Monday the Jewish state could attack any country that introduced nuclear weapons into the Middle East. He also accused the U.S. of failing to do enough to halt the advance of nuclear technology in the region.

"If we will have any kind of report that any country in the region is getting close to getting nuclear ability, it should be looked after," he told foreign journalists.

Bodinger said the U.S. was doing too little to prevent Israel's neighbors and enemies from acquiring nuclear weapons. He defended Israel's decision to stop U.S. investigators from questioning a former air force brigadier-general at the center of a multimillion-dollar fraud involving U.S. weapons sales to Israel.

BUSH IMPOSES DUTIES ON IMPORTS FROM SYRIA

President Bush on Monday suspended Syria's right to duty-free imports into the U.S. Bush, in a notice to Congress, said he took the step because Syria has not taken steps "to afford internationally recognized worker rights."

He suspended its participation in a program for developing countries that allows duty-free access to U.S. markets under the so-called Generalized System of Preferences. As a result of Bush's action, Syrian businesses will no longer be able to ship goods to this country under an arrangement that last year admitted $13.7 billion worth of imports duty-free, or at special low duties. SADDAM HUSSEIN STRENGTHENS, U.S. SAYS

Despite stringent economic sanctions and diplomatic isolation, Saddam Hussein is stronger now than he was a year ago, according to a classified intelligence report that will be presented to President Bush and his chief aides.

The interagency report, known as a National Intelligence Estimate, concludes that Hussein has begun to rebuild some of his country's infrastructure by importing goods from Jordan in violation of the U.N.-mandated sanctions and by tapping into hidden Iraqi reserves, said Administration officials familiar with the report. It also states that he is trying to reconstitute his military and is strengthening his political base by imposing more repressive measures on his population.

U.S. TIGHTENS CONTROLS ON GOODS FOR BUILDING MISSILES

U.S. authorities announced tightened controls Monday on people and materials that could be useful in building missiles in 21 countries, including Iraq. The controls also apply to reexports of American goods from other countries.

"This new step... is part of the international effort to prevent the further spread of weapons of mass destruction," said a statement from Joan McEntee, acting undersecretary of commerce for export administration.

The rules take effect Tuesday, when a complete text will be published. They will prohibit Americans from knowingly selling, without an export license, goods and services that would help build particular weapons in, among others, Iraq, China, India, North Korea, Pakistan and South Africa.

INDEPENDENT PANAMA AID STUDY SOUGHT

A senior official at AID called Monday for outside investigators to evaluate the economic impact that $420 million in U.S. assistance authorized for Panama has had there.

Analysts at GAO have concluded in a draft report that the aid package, appropriated by Congress after the U.S. invasion in 1989 and meant to jump-start the economy, has had "no significant impact on the economy." It also says that 70% of the money earmarked to aid the poor and promote democratic institutions has not yet been disbursed.

"The allegations are so serious and damaging, so contrary to what I strongly feel is a well-designed and -managed program," said James Michel, assistant administrator at AID for the Latin America and Caribbean bureau. "I want to know if this is right. Can we be so wrong? If it's so, get rid of us all."

Michel said in an interview Monday the money did help build the business confidence necessary to avert a banking crisis and better Panama's standing among international financial institutions.

U.S. RETURNS DESTITUTE HAITIAN FAMILY THAT SOUGHT SCHOOLS ON ITS SHORES

PORT-AU-PRINCE -- Sony Clairmont crouches in the meager shade of a parked bus to tell his story. The youngest of his six children -- a feverish, angel-faced 2-year-old named Jessica -- drapes her arm around his neck. She is a large part of the reason he tried to leave Haiti.

Clairmont and his family did not get far. In a small wooden boat captained by Clairmont and crammed with 27 other Haitians, they set off last month, spent three days floundering in the Windward Passage and were picked up by the U.S. Coast Guard. The Americans delivered the Clairmont family to the tent city at the U.S. Navy Base at Guantanamo, where they spent nearly a month.

Their application for U.S. political asylum was denied, Clairmont said, on the basis of a five-minute conversation with an immigration official at Guantanamo.

U.S.-RUSSIA SUMMIT

NBC's Jane Pauley: The President of the U.S. and the first non-Communist leader of Russia since the days of the Czar meet in Washington tomorrow. High on Boris Yeltsin's agenda: arms control and Western aid. But domestic political headaches also have both men keeping one eye on matters close to home.

NBC's John Cochran: George Bush and Boris Yeltsin can help each other, but it won't be easy. Yeltsin came to Washington frustrated that Congress has not yet approved the American part of a $24 billion international aid package for Russia. Bush is frustrated too because he staked some political capital on Russian aid, so far with no results.

(TV coverage of President and guest in Oval.)

(Sen. Dodd: "The President is able to come up the with the resources when it involves international investments. And yet here is a president that won't even meet with the American mayors of this country to talk about investments here.")

(Rep. Traficant: "President Bush wants to give Boris Yeltsin $12 billion. I think it's time for Congress to tell the President to shove that $12 billion up his deficit.")

Actually, Bush is asking Congress for $4.5 billion in direct aid.

But some critics say he isn't asking very loudly because foreign aid is a vote loser in an election year -- a charge Bush denied on CNN.

(President Bush: "I have met with members of Congress, and they should not hide behind the ruse that I need to do more.")

Yeltsin can help the case for aid by agreeing to large cuts in Russia's land-based missiles without insisting on deeper cuts in American submarine-launched missiles.

(TV coverage of Presidents Bush and Yeltsin outdoors and coverage of President Bush and Chancellor Kohl in the East Room.)

An arms deal would also enhance Bush's image as a President who, whatever one thinks of his domestic policies, knows foreign affairs cold. Bush's own aides said voters cared more about foreign policy than polls suggest. And he thinks his experience will pay off in November.

(President Bush, CNN: "Who has the experience to lead this country, to make decisions that might not be popular or might draw the fire of the editorialists or that first guy on the evening news -- the network man?")

Although Bush initially disliked Yeltsin, he now says he is a big fan of the volatile Russian. But Yeltsin will have to be on his best behavior here to protect not only his own credibility but George Bush's as well.

Pauley says NBC's Stone Phillips spoke with Yeltsin on the plane from Moscow.

Phillips says Yeltsin's made it clear that threats from right-wing military leaders in his country will not stop him from negotiating a new strategic arms agreement. But his most intriguing revelation came when I asked him about another legacy of the Cold War.

(Phillips: "There have been many rumors for years in the U.S. that American POWs from the Vietnam War were transferred from Vietnam to the Soviet Union. Do you know that to have been true? If so, are any of those men still living?")

(Yeltsin: "Our archives have shown that it is true. Some of them were transferred to the territory of the former U.S.S.R. and were kept in labor camps. We don't have complete data and can only surmise that some of them may still be alive.")

A source at the Defense Intelligence Agency tells NBC News tonight that if indeed Boris Yeltsin's said that, it would be a bolt from the blue -- that nothing like that has come from that side, nothing at all. That kind of openness on issues as sensitive as the POWs should play well in the U.S. (NBC-Lead)

CBS's Dan Rather report President Bush praised Russian President Yeltsin in a CNN interview today, calling Yeltsin a courageous leader. Yeltsin arrived today for his White House summit starting tomorrow. (ABC-15, CBS-6)

SUPREME COURT RULING

ABC's Peter Jennings: We're going to begin tonight with what has turned out to be the very long arm of the law. The Supreme Court has ruled today that the U.S. may reach out and grab criminal suspects anywhere in the world even if international law says otherwise. The case involves a Mexican doctor [Dr. Humberto Alvarez-Machain] who was kidnapped in Mexico two years ago and hustled back to the U.S. to face charges in the murder of U.S. narcotics agent Enrique Camarena. Even the chief justice called the kidnapping shocking, but he said the Bush Administration was within its right to do it.

ABC's Tim O'Brien reports Mexico argued the kidnapping violated an elaborate extradition treaty with the U.S. governing the arrest and transfer of fugitives. But today Chief Justice Rehnquist, writing for the Supreme Court said, "The treaty says nothing about obligations to refrain from forcible abduction." Rehnquist conceded the abduction may be shocking and even a violation of general principles of international law, but said, without specific treaty language prohibiting kidnapping, it's a matter for the Executive Branch, not the court.

(Robert Muller, Assistant Attorney General: "The decision today affirms a principle that's been in effect since the 1800s. And the policies of the U.S. have not changed.")

The dissenting justices didn't mince words. Stevens was joined by Blackmun and O'Connor: "Most courts throughout the civilized world will be deeply disturbed by the monstrous decision the court announces today." Other critics warned the ruling cuts both ways.

(Michael Posner, Lawyers Committee For Human Rights: "How are we going to feel when a New York businessman or a college student in California is abducted by a foreign government because they're wanted for a crime?")

This country has extradition treaties with more than 100 countries, and not one of them specifically prohibits kidnapping. Justice Department officials, acknowledging that such tactics could be politically damaging, said today they would only be used in "unique circumstances."
(ABC-Lead)

Rather: The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled the U.S. government does have the right to kidnap criminal suspects abroad, including Mexico, and bring them to the U.S. for trial even without a foreign country's permission.

CBS's Rita Braver reports Alvarez-Machain's lawyers said the case could set a dangerous precedent.

(Paul Hoffman, lawyer for Alvarez-Machain: "It's an invitation to lawless conduct by U.S. government officials, and it is also an invitation to foreign officials to kidnap Americans from our own territory.")
(NBC-5, CBS-Lead)

POLITICS AND RELIGION

Pauley reports Vice President Quayle met with Cardinal O'Connor in New York City. Among the topics discussed: abortion. It's no accident the Vice President is mixing religion and politics this election year. It is a powerful combination in presidential politics.

NBC's Jim Cummins says these are people who may cast the deciding votes in a three-man race for president -- Evangelical Christians. In 1988 they energized the campaign of Pat Robertson. After he dropped out they overwhelmingly supported George Bush.

(TV coverage of President Bush praying with a group of Evangelical Christians.)

There are growing signs that Ross Perot is splitting the Evangelical Christian vote. Recently, Robertson [on the "700 Club"] asked viewers to call in and say who they support. Half said Bush [50%], 47% said Perot, and 3% said Clinton.

(Pat Robertson: "The significance of that is that in 1988 then-Vice President Bush got 83% of what is known as the Evangelical vote.")

That's why Dan Quayle is bashing Murphy Brown and the so-called media elite now.

(Quayle, last week: "I wear their scorn as a badge of honor.") That plays well in the heat of the moment at a Southern Baptist convention, but polls indicate many of these people have ambivalent feelings about the Bush Administration. In Dallas, John Clemens and Kirby Anderson say the Evangelicals who call their network radio talk show are truly uninspired about this election.

(Anderson: "If they decide to stay home, if they decide to go fishing, if they decide not to be involved, then I don't think that George Bush is going to have the same kind of constituency that elected first Ronald Reagan and then elected him.")

Since the President takes the toughest stand against abortion, he's more likely to get the support of these people.

(TV coverage of President Bush on stage and waving to crowd.)
But he has to turn that support into votes to win a three-man race. (NBC-2)

CLINTON ON QUAYLE

Rather reports Bill Clinton fired back today at some shots from Vice President Quayle, and Clinton stuck by his criticism of a rap music singer who allegedly made racist remarks, including allegedly talking about the desirability of killing white people.

CBS's Bill Plante says Republicans don't even acknowledge that Clinton is a real opponent.

(Quayle: "Someone asked me the other day, 'What do you think of this third candidate out there?' I said, 'I don't think much of Bill Clinton.'")

Clinton, the butt of Quayle's jabs about elitism, is happy to return the compliment.

(Clinton: "He's had a trust fund all his life. I've worked my way through college and law school, and here's this guy telling us that we're in the cultural elite. I mean, that's ridiculous.") (CBS-9)

INTERNATIONAL ARMS SALES

Pauley reports the U.S. Commerce Department today announced new restrictions on the sale of missile technology to individual nations, including the Middle East and China.

NBC's Martin Fletcher says the arms race is speeding up in the Middle East, and tonight the head of Israel's Air Force warned if negotiations fail, Israel may consider an attack against Arab nuclear plants. One of the chief villains of this race, according to top military officials here and in Washington, is China. And where China ends, North Korea begins. After promising the U.S. to comply with missile restrictions to the Mideast, weapons experts say China is simply using North Korea as a front man. Secretary Baker says that's news to him.

(Baker, White House briefing room: "I've not heard the suggestion made that North Korea is acting as a proxy for China. There may be some in this vast government of ours who believe that.")

Israel is especially worried about North Korean extra-long-range Scud C and D missiles that Syria and Libya are getting. Israel's Air Force chief sounded the ultimate warning.

(Major Bodinger: "We have to fight back and win the war. If we lose the war here I think it's the last war we lose. We don't have another choice.")

Israel would prefer the U.S. solve the problem by stopping the spread of North Korean and Chinese weapons and technology. Officials here believe the U.S. is not doing enough. (NBC-4)

BANKRUPT AMERICANS

Jennings reports there is another sign today about how the economy has affected people's lives. More Americans have filed for bankruptcy during the first three months of this year than during any previous three-month period -- a quarter million filings in all. (ABC-8)

GERMAN HOSTAGES FREED

Jennings reports the last two Western hostages [two Germans] held in Lebanon have been freed. The two Germans were handed over to the local security officials in Beirut today.

(NBC-8, CBS-7, ABC-13)

JAPANESE TROOPS ABROAD

Jennings reports the Japanese parliament has finally passed a law allowing Japanese troops to be sent abroad for the first time since WWII.

(ABC-14)

ILLEGAL TOXIC WASTE DUMPING

Pauley reports the EPA estimates that one third of the nation's largest sewage systems have been lax in enforcing government rules about toxic waste. The percentage is even higher in industry.

NBC's Robert Hager says an unpublished report by the EPA shows a shocking number of workplaces dump more than permitted into the sewers. The EPA report says a spot sampling of companies allowed to dump in sewers indicated 63% violate limits occasionally by dumping too much. Thirty-five percent violate limits chronically or significantly.

(NBC-3)

BOSNIA

NBC's Tom Aspell reports there was a little shelling and a little shooting in Sarajevo on the first day of the cease-fire, but it seems to be holding.

EDITORIALS/COLUMNISTS

RIO

Bush's Wasted Opportunity At Rio -- "President Bush's grudging decision to sign some of the Earth Summit declarations and treaties is not leadership.... Bush's entire conduct around the Earth Summit has not only tarnished the image of the U.S. as a world leader, but has insulted the millions of Americans who care about the environment and act daily to protect it.... It was an opportunity lost, and Americans may be paying the price sooner than they think."
(Boston Globe, 6/12)

Can We 'Balance' A Planet? -- "It's all a question of 'balance,' says Mr. Bush. In international negotiations at the Earth Summit, and in crafting policy here at home, the President speaks of seeking a 'balance' between environmental protection and the pursuit of profit. The talk is baloney. A healthy environment is a basic necessity that cannot be 'balanced' against any competing interest. In a conflict between environment and economy, we can no more split the difference and call it 'balance' then we can split a baby.... To choose profit, as Mr. Bush advocates, is to commit the same crime against the future that we have committed in racking up this monstrous federal deficit, only on a much larger scale. In both cases, we steal the short-term benefits for ourselves while sticking our children and grandchildren with the bill."
(Atlanta Constitution, 6/12)

PANAMA

Anti-U.S. Incident Should Be Kept In Perspective -- "The embarrassment of having Mr. Bush's outdoor appearance cut short by demonstrators and tear gas should not be permitted to overshadow the real issues -- narcotics interdiction and money laundering, the jump-starting of the Panamanian economy and the environmental health of the isthmian watershed that is vital to the functioning of the Panama Canal.... Unfortunately, responsible governance and diplomacy seldom lend themselves to stirring video or crisp sound bites."
(Dallas Morning News, 6/13)

Perils Of The President -- "Mr. Bush's visit to Panama was ill-planned from the beginning. He of course had good reasons to celebrate the return of democracy to that country. But he also should have seized the opportunity to address some of the lingering problems that the Panamanian people face, such as an extremely high unemployment rate and a painfully slow recovery process. Instead, Mr. Bush seemed either unaware of or unconcerned about the Panama that the 1989 U.S. invasion left behind. For example, he sought to downplay the protesters by calling them a 'tiny little left-wing demonstration.' Actually, many were not leftists at all, but homeless or unemployed victims of the U.S. invasion. Thus the President missed yet another chance to show wisdom and leadership at a time when he needed it most -- just before the Rio showdown and the campaign battles that await him at home."
(Miami Herald, 6/13)

FOREIGN MEDIA REACTION

RIO

"The overwhelming applause for Fidel after his speech was an evident slap against Bush, who is becoming more isolated at UNCED.... The U.S. has shown in the climate convention that its major concern is not the environment, but the nation's economy."
(SBT network, Brazil)

"Bush kept his promise. Placed on the defensive...the U.S. leader transformed the conference's dais into an electoral platform to please the Republican Party's conservative wing and tried to transform the isolation of his country in the conference into an unconvincing demonstration of leadership."
(O Estado de Sao Paulo, Brazil)

"UNCED debates have clearly shown that the U.S. is far from being able to assume the role of arbiter of the world's environmental behavior. The isolation of the U.S. at Eco-92 reflects both strength and weakness. The strength of still being able to say no to international aspirations...and the weakness of being unable to impose its will on the international community.... It is not Eco-92 that weakens the U.S. position in a New World Order...but the U.S. position in the UNCED that reflects that country's internal deterioration."
(Folha de Sao Paulo, Brazil)

"From the lofty heights of sole remaining superpower, the U.S. now threatens to go into free fall from a qualitative new anti-Americanism. Although it must be noted that the United States' stubborn stance in Rio must have come in quite handy for some participants: Many a troublemaker could hide behind Washington's broad back."
(General-Anzeiger, Germany)

"A decisive aspect is that a new consciousness was raised for the environment and development in Rio, particularly among the Third World countries.... The Americans did not cut a good figure in Brazil; they blocked many things. But this should not be blown out of proportion. There is no doubt that it would have been better if Bush as the key politician of the sole remaining superpower had taken the lead. But he is caught up in a difficult election campaign.... The Americans have done quite a bit for the environment in their own country. Now they must help others as well.... But the U.S. cannot isolate itself and fall behind the other countries when it comes to solving one of the most important global tasks ever. This would be tantamount to the U.S. losing stature and influence."
(Frankfurter Allgemeine, Germany)

"Rio will remain an acute failure for U.S. diplomacy. 'Whatever Bush says, the U.S. has ceased to play the role of the world leader,' a member of a nongovernmental organization said."
(Liberation, France)

"The international community needs a devil: Today it is George Bush. The U.S. just received the formidable boomerang effect of the New World Order back in its face.... We should thank Bush for having broken the consensus of false principles that was being outlined under an environmental pretext in Rio."

(Le Quotidien, France)

"With a tough speech, George Bush dominated the summit yesterday.... In Rio the world saw a different America from the one it is used to seeing. An America no longer generous but stingy. No longer tolerant but abusive.... An America whose leadership, hailed for over half a century of Cold War, may be fading in the dawn of the New World Order.... The negative judgement of the superpower is also fueled by its refusal, or its inability, to face domestic problems.... The U.S. is not on the verge of collapse; its potential for renewal is enormous. But its problems are growing in an unprecedented vacuum of ideas and with a lack of charismatic leaders -- a situation which has given birth to the Perot phenomenon."

(La Repubblica, Italy)

"It is natural for U.S. leadership, which led the free world during the Cold War, to weaken under new, changing circumstances. U.S. isolation on the biodiversity treaty is symbolic of the weakness in U.S. leadership."

(Asahi, Japan)

VI. REMARKS

Talking points to be provided by the Office of Intergovernmental Affairs.

NATIONAL GOVERNORS' ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING / ROOSEVELT ROOM
JUNE 16, 1992 / 2:35 P.M.

- President Yeltsin and I had a good and lengthy discussion this morning in the Oval Office on a wide range of issues and I am looking forward to a continuation of those discussions in the Cabinet Room as soon as we leave here, with a specific focus on military and security issues and economic development.

- 2 -

- Before I go, I want to reinforce my strong commitment to flexibility in state-based health care reform. I appreciate the time you are taking to discuss Medicaid and other health issues with the staff and I think we are all moving in the same direction.

- As you know, I am disappointed in the Congressional vote on the Balanced Budget Amendment. But our bipartisan amendment came within just a few votes of getting the two-thirds needed to pass. Action is critical and I will continue to work for it. The American people want a balanced budget amendment and it is absolutely essential to the economic health of our country.
- I also know that, as Governors, you do not want to see a balanced budget amendment used by the Congress as an excuse to pass more unfunded mandates onto the states. I oppose unfunded mandates and would work with you to prevent that from occurring.
