Jennings continues: In their report, seven months after the women were attacked, Navy investigators wrote, "There is still little understanding of the nature, severity and number of assaults which occurred." "A common thread," they wrote, "running through the overwhelming number of interviews regarding the Tailhook convention was, 'What's the big deal?'" How is it that local Navy and Marine commanders cannot get the ones who were guilty to come forward?

(Sen. Nunn: "Military officers have every obligation to completely cooperate with any investigation by legitimate law enforcement, particularly their own internal Navy investigators.")

And what of the Navy secretary, Lawrence Garrett? He was at the Tailhook convention. He was actually on a patio near the third floor corridor in which the women were abused. Garrett says he didn't know anything was going on until three weeks later.

(Rep. Schroeder: "I don't know of a parent in America that would by that story from their child, so I would hope the taxpayer doesn't buy that story from their secretary of the Navy.")

Secretary Garrett will not answer our questions, and his personal aide, the man who comforted Lt. Kauflin after the attack, will not comment. The best the Navy has been able to do is piece together a rough account that implicates more than 70 officers in either the attack on the women or the subsequent attempts to cover it up. Sens. Nunn and Warner are so aggravated that they have frozen all Navy and Marine Corps promotions until the Navy provides a list of those involved in the Tailhook scandal. If the Pentagon now fails to identify the men who attacked her and the other women, the cover-up will have been successful. (ABC-Lead)

OZONE

Jennings says Japanese scientists report that the ozone layer around the Earth is vanishing at a record place. The Japanese researchers say that the ozone is being destroyed four times faster than it was just 10 years ago. (ABC-9)

BLACK MEN/LIFE EXPECTANCY

Zahn: Some observers of the civil unrest in Los Angeles this year said a major cause of it was the plight of African-American men. Tonight there is more evidence of that plight in a shocking report from the federal government.

CBS's Jacqueline Adams reports there's a new fad sweeping the nation's inner cities. Convinced they won't live past their twenties, black teenagers are picking out their own caskets, preparing for what they think is inevitable.

(Secretary Sullivan: "The violence and other injuries that destroy our youth in their prime are painful to note, and they are impossible to ignore.")

Nationwide statistics released today paint a grisly picture. For white men, life expectancy is on the rise. For black men, life is growing shorter. Among black teenagers, homicide is the leading cause of death, up 74 percent between 1985 and 1989, the results, experts say, of a deadly cocktail: crack cocaine and guns.

Baker Assails Congress On Failure To Back Russian Regime

Secretary Baker slammed the Democratic-led Congress Thursday for failing to support President Yeltsin's democratic government.

"Congress may hesitate. But history will not," Baker told the World Affairs Council in Boston. "It is the time for the Senate and the House to act now."

Baker's speech sought to address criticisms that the Bush Administration has lacked vision and has concentrated on foreign policy triumphs to the detriment of domestic concerns. The Secretary said that by completing the START treaty and proposing a major Russian aid program, "President Bush and the Administration have acted."

Baker sought to present the Administration's policy on aid to Russia as a visionary goal, implicitly in contrast to the caution of Bill Clinton and the hinted neo-isolationism of Ross Perot on the issue.

But a major threat to speedy passage of the legislation has come from the GOP side as Republicans attempted to pass a balanced budget amendment instead. (Martin Sieff, Washington Times, A7)

U.S. ENVOY SAYS TALKS FIND NO NEWS ON VIET MISSING

A special presidential envoy to Hanoi said Thursday that five years of discussions with the Vietnamese about missing U.S. servicemen have produced no evidence that any of the Americans are still alive in Vietnam.

But the envoy, Gen. John Vessey, also said in testimony to the Senate Select Committee on POW-MIA Affairs that he had found no new information to change the perception that Americans were left behind in Vietnam in 1973.

Gen. Vessey said the Vietnamese were not cooperating enough in opening official records to answer questions about missing Americans. (Barbara Crossette, New York Times, A8)

ARISTIDE URGES U.S. TO STAGE
BLOCKADE OF HAITI

MIAMI -- Jean-Bertrand Aristide on Thursday encouraged the U.S. to stage an all-out blockade of his country to help topple the current regime.

"The time has come for the U.S. to do what it said it would do. I support a total blockade," said Aristide. Aristide spoke to about 50 businessmen, mostly Haitians. He came to Miami at the invitation of the Miami-Dade Chamber of Commerce, which had hoped to attract scores of local businessmen to listen to Aristide's speech. DECISION TO WITHHOLD SOME IRAQ EXPORT DATA
LAID TO WHITE HOUSE

The White House decided that the Commerce Department should initially withhold details of Administration deliberations about exports to Iraq from data given to Congress in October 1990, the former department official who carried out the decision said Thursday.

The claim was made in the first public account given by a former undersecretary of commerce for export administration, Dennis Kloske. Kloske's account was denied Thursday night by Commerce Department spokeswoman Marci Robinson, who said the department initially withheld information from Congress not because of a specific White House order but on the basis of a consensus among "senior officials at the relevant agencies."

Kloske's statement, while not alleging any legal violations in the affair, depicted the Bush Administration as eager to withhold from Congress as much data as possible related to U.S. exports of high-technology or military-related goods to Iraq before the Persian Gulf War.

"The guidance that I received... was to provide only the information that was strictly responsive and certainly not to volunteer any information," Kloske said of a September 1990 request by Rep. Barnard for an account of how the department had handled every application for Iraqi export licenses.

(Jeffrey Smith, Washington Post, A10)

WHITE HOUSE COUNSEL OPPOSED GIVING IRAQ DATA TO CONGRESS

C. Boyden Gray opposed giving Congress data on exports of sensitive U.S. technology to Iraq, Dennis Kloske, a former undersecretary of Commerce, said in written testimony Thursday to the House Judiciary Committee.

Kloske said Gray told him in October 1990 that the White House "would not approve" the Commerce Department providing to a House subcommittee the written positions of other federal agencies regarding U.S. exporters' requests for high-tech sales to Iraq.

The Commerce Department submitted the positions of the other agencies -- State, Defense and Energy -- the following December after a specific request by the subcommittee.

"The categories of information were provided when (the subcommittee chairman) requested them, within a reasonable time frame," Commerce Department spokeswoman Marci Robinson said.

Rep. Schumer said Kloske's statement "points to the White House's involvement" in the Commerce Department's preparation of data on technology exports to Iraq for submission to Congress.

1ST-QUARTER GDP RISE
FASTEST IN 3 YEARS

The economy grew at the fastest clip in three years in the first quarter, the government reported Thursday, but rising unemployment is putting mounting pressure on the tenuous expansion.

The gross domestic product grew at a revised 2.7% annual rate between January and March, the Commerce Department said. It was the most encouraging report since the fourth quarter of 1988....

The Labor Department reported a surprising jump of 16,000 in the number of new applications for unemployment insurance in the week ended June 13, with 422,000 seeking jobless benefits for the first time.

The wary consumer was evident in a third report on the housing market, which showed home sales dropping for the second straight month. The National Association of Realtors said the annual sales rate of previously owned homes dropped 1.7% in May after a 0.6% April dip. (Glenn Somerville, Reuter, Washington Post, F3)

BIDEN SETS NEW RULES FOR JUDICIAL HEARINGS

Sen. Biden said Thursday the Senate Judiciary Committee has changed its rules to prevent a repetition of its widely criticized handling of Anita Hill's charges of sexual harassment against Clarence Thomas.

Biden outlined the changes in a wide-ranging address to the Senate during which he said he will oppose Supreme Court nominees who are chosen for ideological reasons if the Senate is not consulted in advance.

Biden said that henceforth the committee will: Advise all sources that their information will be placed in the nominee's FBI file and be shared with all senators on a confidential basis; hold "closed, confidential briefing sessions" to which all senators would be invited to review all committee reports and documents; conduct closed sessions to ask each nominee "face-to-face, on the record, under oath" about all investigative charges against that person.

In his broader discussion of what he called the "current collapse of the confirmation process," Biden blamed "the administration's campaign to make the Supreme Court the agent of an ultraconservative social agenda which lacks support in the Congress or in the country."

A senior White House official dismissed the Biden proposals as Democratic politics and said there had been no indication of a vacancy on the court and if one should occur, "the President will decide then on his own whether he wants to make a nomination and when."

HOUSE COMMITTEE STRIPS FUNDS FROM COMPETITIVENESS COUNCIL

A House committee took a swipe at Vice President Quayle's Council on Competitiveness on Thursday by voting to strip it of funding.

Rep. Skaggs said the council "operates in complete secret" contrary to congressional intent. "If the American people knew the details of the special influence the White House is doing out to its special friends, they'd never stand for it," Skaggs said. David Beckwith characterized the committee's action as "an obvious knuckling under to special interest groups." He said that "the same congressmen who complained that the council is operating illegally have now apparently abandoned that tactic and are resorting to political harassment."

The House Appropriations Committee voted 30-18 to attach the amendment written by Skaggs and Reps. Hoyer and Aucoin to legislation that appropriates $22.7 billion for the Treasury, Postal Service and various general government expenses. The Bush Administration has threatened to veto the appropriations bill if the measure stays in it.

Bush pledges aggressive campaign; 'GI Bill for children' proposed

Casting himself as a "spear catcher" for Democratic critics, President Bush on Thursday signaled his frustration with attacks on his record by campaign rivals and promised to "roll up my sleeves" for an all-out political skirmish after the Republican convention.

Earlier in the day, Bush made a separate bid to woo conservative and religious voters when he proposed a $500 million "GI Bill for children."

Speaking to his college audience at the Omni Shoreham Hotel, Bush played for conservative support by taking extensive credit for the collapse of Soviet communism. He repeatedly alluded to his role as Vice President under President Reagan, whose name drew the day's loudest applause.

Although the audience of more than 1,000 cheered Bush wildly, it was apparent that his much-criticized record on domestic policy had dampened the enthusiasm of these young supporters.

Before Bush's appearance, when convention leaders urged the audience to chant pro-Bush slogans, they drew only scattered applause. But when the names of Newt Gingrich and Secretary Kemp were mentioned, the crowd went wild.

(Stephen Power & John Mashak, Boston Globe)

GOP BID TO CUT CLINTON FUNDS FAILS

The FEC Thursday unanimously rejected a Republican request to cut off public financing to the Clinton campaign.

The RNC had sought the action in a petition alleging that the Democratic Party improperly used general election money to help raise primary election cash for Clinton.

Benjamin Ginsberg, RNC general counsel, told AP that he was not disappointed by the 6-0 ruling, noting that the GOP complaint had forced the Clinton campaign to say it made a mistake. The commissioners cited that acknowledgment as a factor in their decision. The GOP complaint alleging a violation of campaign laws on the same issue is still pending.

(Politics, Washington Post, A18)

RNC AMENDS COUNSEL'S DUTIES PENDING PHOENIX SET PROBE

The RNC has removed its general counsel, Gerald Jacobs, from consideration of potential lawsuits against former SET officials pending an internal investigation of Jacobs' own dealings with a Phoenix SET before he joined the RNC.

The action was taken by Albert Casey, chief executive of the RNC. Casey stopped short of placing Jacobs on administrative leave or transferring him to other duties, actions sought this week by Sen. Wirth.

NATIONAL NEWS

BUSH PRAISES BILL AND CONGRESS

President Bush signed a bill early Friday ending a two-day railroad strike that threatened to cripple the nation's soft economy just as it was in a delicate process of recovering from a recession.

Earlier, both houses of Congress overwhelmingly adopted the legislation that orders striking workers back to work and provides a 38-day period to reach a settlement in a process that includes binding arbitration.

The bill passed the House on a 248-140 vote and was sent to the Senate where it was approved on a 87-6 vote just after midnight Friday. President Bush signed the bill immediately after it arrived at the White House. "The President is pleased with bipartisan cooperation," the White House said in a statement. It said Bush believes "Congress has met its responsibilities to end the rail crisis," and it called the arbitration plan "a fair way to resolve any impasse." (Robert Shepard, UPI)

President Signs Bill Ending Rail Action

President Bush signed legislation early Friday to force an immediate end to the two-day labor dispute that has shut down railroad freight service nationwide and to block a threatened strike against Amtrak.

Secretary Card suggested that as a result of this latest rail shutdown, it might be time to change the Railway Labor Act, the arcane, 1926 law governing labor relations in the railroad and airline industries. The shutdown, he said, "has allowed a significant opportunity for us to revise it."

Card's suggestion was echoed by Republicans and Democrats alike during Thursday night's debate on the measure. It was unclear just what, if any, plans either the Bush Administration or Congress had for changing the law, but both labor and management have been complaining about its lengthy and cumbersome provisions that often leave contract issues unresolved for years.

(Don Phillips & Frank Swoboda, Washington Post, A1)

WHITE HOUSE, HILL RESIST URGE TO PLAY POLITICS ON STRIKE

The rail strike, coming in the middle of a presidential election year and threatening to jolt an economy just getting to its feet, looked like a dream come true for Democrats and a nightmare for President Bush.

But the White House had its act together. Although some Democrats in Congress appeared ready to exploit the strike, the Bush Administration joined Democratic and GOP lawmakers in meeting on Capitol Hill Wednesday night to agree on a solution that put the economy ahead of politics.

"The political stakes were real high here," said Rep. Ritter. "But the White House got it together on this one."

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

From: James A. Baker, III

JAB

1. Iraq: Implementing UNSC Resolutions. We may have moved one more step toward Iraqi acceptance of UNSC resolutions 706 and 712, which would permit controlled Iraqi oil sales of $1.6 billion to pay for humanitarian imports and UN operations in Iraq. After three days of talks with the Iraqis in Vienna, the UN negotiator told us yesterday that the parties had agreed ad referendum on the most difficult issue, the UN monitoring regime for the distribution of relief supplies. Until now, the Iraqis have cited sovereignty concerns in rejecting the intrusive regime that we hope to impose. The parties did not reach agreement on a number of technical issues, including the possible use of the Iraqi port of Mina-al-Bakr for oil exports. In addition, we still do not yet know whether Saddam will ultimately be willing to accept the agreement. (C)

2. Thailand: U.S. Relations with Interim Government. Prime Minister Anan has stated that the primary goal of his interim government is to prepare for September elections. He has explained that, in its caretaker role, the government will limit itself to day-to-day administration and will refrain from policy or legislative initiatives. Despite these constraints, the integrity and quality of Anan's cabinet will facilitate cooperative approaches to problems, and progress is possible on intellectual property rights, civil aviation, and a double taxation treaty. The reappointment of Asa Sarasin as foreign minister is already proving helpful to our Cambodia policies. (C)

3. Cambodia: Tokyo Aid Conference. Participants in this week's conference greatly exceeded UNSYG requests by pledging $880 million in humanitarian and development assistance to Cambodia. We will contribute $135 million for FY 1992 and 1993. In light of the Khmer Rouge's (KR) refusal to proceed with cantonment and demobilization, conference participants urged UNTAC to accelerate its deployment and, in particular, its control and supervision of civil administration throughout Cambodia. This would ensure a politically neutral environment for upcoming elections and presumably meet the KR's standards of fairness in the administration of assistance. Participants have presented the KR with the clear choice of complying with the agreement or bearing full responsibility for its failure. (C)

POLISH-AMERICAN RECEPTION HONORING THE LATE IGNACY JAN PADEREWSKI

DATE: June 26, 1992
TIME: 10:30 a.m.

FROM: CECE KREMER
CLAYTON FONG CF

I. PURPOSE:

To participate in a reception with Polish-American leaders and the Presidential Delegation for the Return of the Remains of Premier Ignacy Paderewski to Poland.

II. BACKGROUND:

This event is the first of several events honoring the late Ignacy Jan Paderewski (1860-1941). Paderewski was both a world renowned musical composer and concert pianist. He headed the Polish government in 1919 and again in 1940-41. He died shortly after coming to the U.S. to plead for Poland's cause against Nazi aggression. Paderewski was buried with honors at Arlington National Cemetery for temporary repose until Poland regained its freedom.

For decades the Polish-American community has revered Paderewski as Poland's greatest national hero. The return of Paderewski's remains fulfills the dreams of many Polish-Americans who consider that event symbolic of Poland's new freedom and independence.

Polish-American community leaders throughout the nation have gathered in Washington this weekend to participate in a series of events honoring the return of Paderewski's remains to Poland. Other events include classical concerts featuring Paderewski's music and a memorial service at Fort Myer Memorial Chapel with the Vice-President in attendance.

II. BACKGROUND (CONTINUED):

On March 16, 1992 you participated in an event at the Polish National Alliance Headquarters honoring the Polish-American community of Chicago.

III. PARTICIPANTS:

The President
Secretary Derwinski
12 representatives of the Presidential Delegation for the Return of the Remains of Ignacy Jan Paderewski to Poland (please see attached sheet)

In attendance:

Kazimierz Dziewanowski, Polish Ambassador to the United States
Janusz Ziolkowski, Minister, Chief of Staff of President Lech Walesa

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: DAN MCGROARTY DMH
FROM: ANDREW FERGUSON af
SUBJECT: RADIO ADDRESS ON GI BILL FOR CHILDREN

On Friday, June 26th, at 8:00 a.m., in the Cabinet Room, you will record a brief radio address (approximately 5 minutes) on the GI Bill for Children. Your remarks follow the same themes discussed in Thursday morning's South Lawn address.

Draft Two

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: RADIO ADDRESS
GI BILL FOR CHILDREN
JUNE 26, 1992

Today I would like to speak with you about a subject close to the heart of every American -- the education of our children. You might not know it to read the morning paper or watch the evening news, but there is a revolution going on in our country -- a revolution with a single aim: to make American schools the best in the world.

This week I proposed a giant step forward in that revolution. I sent to Congress legislation authorizing $500 million dollars to help states and communities give children from middle- and low-income families a $1,000 scholarship. And here's the crucial part: Families will be allowed to spend this money at any school of their choice -- whether that school is public, private, or religious.

This proposal is in the greatest American tradition. Forty-eight years ago this week, President Roosevelt signed the GI Bill, creating scholarships that veterans could use at any college -- any college of their choice. The GI Bill created opportunity for Americans who never would have had it -- and in so doing, it helped to create the best system of colleges and universities in the world.

We can do it again -- this time with a GI Bill for Children, helping state and local governments create the best elementary and secondary schools in the world.

My proposal is based on a few fundamental truths. I believe that parents are their children's first teachers. Parents, not bureaucrats, know what's best for their children. Parents, not the government, should choose their children's schools.

For too long, we've shielded schools from competition -- allowed them a damaging monopoly power over our children. This monopoly turns students into statistics and parents into pawns. Let's be clear about who's hurt most by the present system. It's not the wealthy -- they can already afford to send their children to whichever school they choose. The GI Bill for Children will give low- and middle-income families more of those choices. Whether it's the public school down the street or across town, whether it's a parochial or Yeshiva or Bible school -- parents should be able to decide which school will provide the best education for their kids.

By injecting competition into our education system -- by allowing parents to choose their children's schools -- we can break the monopoly, provide the catalyst to open up opportunities for our kids, and create genuine change in our schools.

Abraham Lincoln said: "Revolutions do not go backward," and all across the country -- from Pennsylvania to California, from San Antonio to Indianapolis -- the school-choice revolution is gaining steam. I met with many leaders of that movement at the White House this week. They are the true heroes of school reform. They aren't afraid to stand up to the status quo -- to say, loud and clear, that when it comes to educating our kids, business-as-usual just isn't good enough. I am proud to stand at their side.

The protectors of the status quo should understand: this revolution will succeed. With or without their help, we will create the finest schools for our children and grandchildren, and we will do it by restoring to education the truest American principles: freedom and opportunity and choice.

Thank you for listening. God bless you, and God bless the United States of America.

PADEREWSKI DELEGATION \ THE ROSE GARDEN
FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1992 \ 10:30 A.M.

SECRETARY DERWINSKI. WELCOME TO THE WHITE HOUSE
AND TO THE ROSE GARDEN. WITAMY! [VEE-TAH-MEE] [POLISH
FOR "WELCOME!"] TODAY WE BEGIN A SERIES OF CEREMONIES
FULFILLING THE DREAM OF ONE OF THE GREAT MEN OF OUR TIME -- IGNACY JAN PADEREWSKI [IG-NOT-SEE YAHN PA-DEH-REVS-SKEE].

THIS OUTSTANDING MUSICAL ARTIST AND VISIONARY STATESMAN DIED IN EXILE IN AMERICA WHEN THE CLOUDS OF WAR AND OPPRESSION LOOMED DARKEST OVER HIS NATIVE POLAND. BY DIRECTION OF PRESIDENT FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT, PADEREWSKI'S
REMAINS WERE GIVEN A PLACE OF HONOR FOR TEMPORARY REPOSE IN ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY, UNTIL POLAND REGAINED ITS FREEDOM.

THAT DAY HAS COME. POLAND HAS THROWN OFF THE YOKE OF SOVIET COMMUNISM.

THE DREAM OF POLISH FREEDOM AND INDEPENDENCE HAS BECOME A BRIGHT REALITY -- AND IT IS GROWING STRONGER EVERY DAY. WITHIN A FEW DAYS, THE DISTINGUISHED DELEGATION HERE WILL ESCORT PADEREWSKI'S REMAINS HOME TO POLAND. ON JULY 5TH, BARBARA AND I WILL HAVE THE PRIVILEGE OF ATTENDING THE SOLEMN REQUIEM MASS AT ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL IN WARSAW.

GOD GAVE IGNACY PADEREWSKI EXTRAORDINARY TALENTS, AND PADEREWSKI WAS GENEROUS IN THEIR USE.

HE BROUGHT THE BEAUTY OF CLASSICAL MUSIC PERFORMANCES TO HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF LISTENERS AROUND THE GLOBE. HE SHARED HIS FINANCIAL SUCCESS WITH CHARITIES AND PATRIOTIC CAUSES. HE TOOK A LEADING ROLE IN THE STRUGGLE FOR POLISH FREEDOM: INDEED, MORE THAN ANYONE ELSE, HE WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR PRESIDENT WILSON'S INCLUDING POLISH INDEPENDENCE AMONG HIS FOURTEEN POINTS FOR PEACE FOLLOWING THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

DURING THE PERIOD OF INDEPENDENCE THAT FOLLOWED, HE PUT HIS TALENT FOR STATESMANSHIP INTO PRACTICE AS POLAND'S PRIME MINISTER. PADEREWSKI'S LIFE WAS TRULY A SYMPHONY. THE NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM IN POLAND -- INDEED IN ALL OF EUROPE -- IS IN GREAT PART DUE TO THE PERSEVERANCE OF MILLIONS OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELVES HERE IN THE UNITED STATES -- PEOPLE OF THE POLONIA.

JUST AS PADEREWSKI HAD FOUGHT AGAINST DICTATORSHIP HALF A CENTURY EARLIER, PEOPLE OF POLISH ORIGIN AND CULTURE IN AMERICA PLAYED A CRITICAL ROLE IN RAZING THE IRON CURTAIN AND LAUNCHING EUROPE INTO A NEW ERA OF FREEDOM AND UNITY. WE CANNOT NAME THEM ALL, BUT WE SHOULD HONOR THEM JUST AS WE DO SUCH MODERN HEROES AS PRESIDENT LECH WALESA AND HIS HOLINESS, POPE JOHN PAUL.

BARBARA AND I ARE LOOKING FORWARD TO OUR RETURN TO POLAND NEXT WEEK, TO THE WARMTH OF THAT COUNTRY AND ITS PEOPLE.

IT WILL BE ONE OF THE GREATEST HONORS OF MY PRESIDENCY TO TAKE PART IN THE FINAL RITES FOR IGNACY PADEREWSKI -- WHEN, TO PARAPHRASE THE STIRRING STRAIN OF THE POLISH ANTHEM, HE WILL BE "REJOINED WITH THE PEOPLE OF HIS NATION."

AS WITH MY TRIP TO POLAND IN JULY 1989, WE'RE MAKING THIS VISIT ALSO TO DEMONSTRATE AMERICA'S STRONG SUPPORT FOR POLAND'S BOLD MOVEMENT TO DEMOCRACY AND FREE MARKETS.

IT WILL BE A DIFFERENT POLAND FROM THE COUNTRY I VISITED THREE YEARS AGO: ALONGSIDE THE GREAT SUCCESS OF POLAND'S PIONEERING REFORMS ARE THE HARDSHIPS RESULTING FROM 40 YEARS OF COMMUNIST MISMANAGEMENT. I WANT THE POLISH PEOPLE TO KNOW THAT AMERICA STANDS RESOLUTELY WITH THEM IN THEIR HEROIC EFFORTS TODAY.

THANKS TO EACH OF YOU FOR ALL YOU HAVE DONE TO MAKE THIS OCCASION POSSIBLE -- AND MAY GOD BLESS THE PEOPLE OF POLAND AND OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

OVER TO THE HIGHLANDERS.)

Archbishop of Philadelphia
(h) 215-587-2499 (private)

DATE: June 26, 1992

RECOMMENDED BY: David Demarest LAM Jn PP
Assistant to the President for Communications

PURPOSE: To extend personal greetings and express your commitment to educational choice and ask for the Cardinal's support for the
"G.I. bill for Children".

BACKGROUND: Cardinal Bevilacqua has been active in Pennsylvania to get a school choice plan through the legislature. He has worked with Secretary Alexander on the concept of a national "G.I. Bill for Children" and helped develop the name.

You last personally met with him on September 12, 1991, while on an official trip to Philadelphia.

TOPIC OF DISCUSSION:

1. I appreciate your support and leadership in fight for education choice. Your schools prove that families need and want choice, particularly in the inner cities.
2. Yesterday I met with some of the parents and teachers from Milwaukee where they have choice in the public and non-sectarian private schools.

3. After hearing from these parents, I am convinced more than ever that we are on the right track choice is fundamental to real reform.
4. I announced yesterday our proposal, "G.I. Bill for Children". Under my plan the federal government would provide $500 million in new federal money for $1,000 scholarships to lower and middle income families to use at the school of their choice, public, private or religious.
5. Your school system has long endorsed the theory that parents are capable of choosing their children's education.
6. Your leadership will be critical to helping people understand the power of choice to transform education.

POINTS TO BE MADE FOR TELEPHONE CONVERSATION WITH
NELSON MANDELA

- W-- I hear you have a touch of the flu. I want to wish you a speedy recovery.
- I know that Bill Swing has delivered my letter to you, but I want to reiterate personally how shocked I was by the awful massacre at Boipatong (boy-pat-TONG). It was a terrible tragedy for the innocent victims and their families, and has the gravest consequences for the future of South Africa.
- The most critical need now is to get the negotiations back on track, avoiding rhetoric and keeping your eye on the future.
- This is a point I have been making to Mr. de Klerk, as well. I am confident he, like you, remains committed to achieving a truly democratic and non-racial South Africa.
- What do you think needs to be done, by you as well as the government, to get process going again?

(If Mandela raises taking the issue to the UN)

- We'd have to think very carefully about that.
- I'm not sure that the UN is the best approach right now.
- Judging by their public announcement, Mr. de Klerk and the government seem somewhat more willing to have international involvement. At this stage, however, this might be more effective using a less formal mechanism than the UN Security Council.

- Usually the Security Council is willing to become involved in promoting peaceful resolution of armed conflicts, where there is a substantial regional threat to peace and where all the parties are willing to have the UN play a role. This would not seem to be the case in South Africa at this point.

(If he raises a U.S. role)

- As I said in the letter, we are willing to consider a greater role if both you and the government believe it would be useful.
- If you want to pursue this in detail, I would be happy to have Secretary Baker meet with you to explore the possibilities.
- Let me just say that we are not seeking a formal role like we are playing in the Middle East peace process.
- We want to help overcome the current impasse and get negotiations back on track so South Africans themselves can make these fundamental decisions about their future.

(If he asks for U.S. pressure on de Klerk to fulfill all the ANC's conditions)

- I've also written to President de Klerk, and told him he needs to work with you to find the necessary compromises.
- I know you have outlined a series of measures you want the Government to undertake.
- I was pleased that the ANC was careful not to make any non-negotiable demands. Your approach of making a decision based on the Government's overall response strikes me as very sound.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

PHONE CALL: TALKING POINTS

- ✓ 1 • I'm calling because I am very concerned about the continuing tragedy in Bosnia. We are watching wholesale slaughter, and the deliberate starving of a city.
- ✓ 2 • I don't know how the world can sit by in good conscience and let this happen.
- ✓ 3 -- I think we, collectively, must act, and I'm convinced we can no longer let Serbian gunners prevent the opening of the airport and ground routes into Sarajevo.
- A benign environment may never come, but unfortunately, we know that we are on the brink of witnessing mass starvation in Sarajevo.
- I'm asking Jim Baker to come over and see you and others in the next few days. He'll talk to you about the steps we would be prepared to take along with others to ensure that the relief operation gets underway and is no longer blocked.
- That's our sole focus and objective: make sure relief supplies and operation are not blocked.
- Jim will outline the steps needed, including also possibly the urgent adoption of a new UNSC resolution that would authorize the use of all appropriate means to launch the relief operation and implement it.
- We are speaking of a new resolution that would be tied only to the delivery of humanitarian assistance.
- We are not speaking of a resolution or any steps designed to change or sort out the political situation or conflict in Bosnia.
- Simple humanity requires us to take steps now, and head off the mass starvation and death of hundreds of thousands of innocent men, women and children.

4 I just want to tell you that I may have some proposals to make in the near future to cope with this humanitarian crisis.

6/26/92

FOR YELTSIN

- Boris, I don't think we can wait any longer to take the steps necessary to get relief to Sarajevo.
- We're on the brink of mass starvation and hundreds of thousands of men, women, and children may die.
- A benign environment -- called for by the UN -- may never come. Serbian gunners are making a mockery of the UN effort, effectively blocking it from getting under way.
- I think we have to be prepared to take whatever steps, including military steps, are needed to implement the relief effort.
 - That will probably require a new UNSC resolution to authorize the appropriate means needed to carry out the relief operation.
 - That's our sole focus and objective: make sure the relief supplies and operation are no longer blocked.
- I'm sending Jim Baker to Europe to talk to others about the urgent need to adopt such a resolution, and the steps we would be prepared to take along with others to make sure that the relief operation is launched and is not blocked.
 - I hope you will join with us in supporting such a resolution and in whatever steps, including military ones, that might be needed to prevent the mass starvation in Sarajevo.
 - We are not speaking of a resolution or any steps designed to change or sort out the political situation or conflict in Bosnia.
- I realize this might pose problems for you, and I'd appreciate whatever you can do. If Jim's coming to Moscow now would help make it easier for you to join with us, I'll have him go. But I don't in any way want to add to your problems or make it more difficult for you to support a more activist approach under UN auspices.
- I leave it up to you as to how best to proceed, but I wanted you to hear from me why Jim will be in Europe, and what we're trying to do.

I sent the attached letters along to the three essayists.
Thanks for sending these outstanding essays to me.

It was great seeing you at the Yeltsin dinner; and yes,

Dear Ms. Presock:

At the dinner for President Yeltsin last week, President Bush asked me to send him the prize-winning essays from the Foreign Policy Association's recent competition in New York. I enclose the three essays and some of the information given to me by the FPA for him.

Please tell the President how much both Madeleine and I enjoyed the dinner (especially Mr. Yeltsin's display of dancing ability) and thank him for inviting us.

MR. PRESIDENT:

The campaign would like to send this letter to prospective volunteers in California.
It has cleared staffing.

Thank you.

Phillip D. Brady

Dear California Republican Volunteer:

Your role in providing grass roots leadership to our great Republican Party has encouraged me to ask you to join the Bush-Quayle campaign in California.

I saw firsthand what volunteers did for President Reagan in 1980 and 1984 and benefitted from a tremendous volunteer effort in our winning campaign for President in 1988.

The role grass roots volunteers will play this year is even more important. Republican leadership for this country is being challenged once again, and we must make sure every voter knows our side of the story -- our policies to promote jobs, family, and peace. The key to a successful campaign will be to secure our votes, one voter at a time. That is why your help is so important to me and to the rest of our Republican ticket.

Enclosed is a volunteer card that I hope you will complete and return to our statewide headquarters in Sacramento. The campaign is in the process of building our county organizations, and it will be important to supply them with names of able and eager volunteers this summer.

As Republicans, we face a tough campaign this year, but that is when we are at our best. I am confident of victory in November, and I want you to be part of it. Please sign up to volunteer today.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "G. Bush", written in a cursive style.

Re: Andrew Falkiewicz(sp?)

I know Andrew is at AID. He is a close friend.

Please ask someone to look at his file to see if there might be a more challenging assignment for him than what he is doing now.

He was once considered for Ambassador, but maybe there is something coming up that would fit.

Were there some financial problems with him? Have they been solved.

In the letters, you describe the historic agreement on strategic offensive arms and our hope to codify it in a treaty text for Senate ratification. You also outline our agreement to begin work with Russia and the allies to study a global protection system against limited ballistic missile attack.

In addition, you discuss progress made on economic issues, including our continued support for Yeltsin's reforms and our hope to achieve an IMF standby program this summer. You also ask for their help on the Freedom Support Act with Congress. You conclude by describing the challenges Yeltsin faces in promoting reform in Russia and the benefits to the U.S. of our new relationship.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT BS

SUBJECT: Poland Strategy

Purpose

To approve conversion of the Polish Stabilization Fund to new uses once Poland is in compliance with the IMF and other donors agree; and to preview this initiative with your G-7 counterparts.

Background

We are developing a strategy for you to announce in Warsaw a three-part initiative: (1) that the U.S. is prepared to convert its $200 million grant contribution to the Stabilization Fund to new productive uses once Poland is back on track with reform and the IMF, (2) that the other grant contributors (the UK and Canada) are prepared to do likewise, and (3) that the U.S. calls on others to consider making the same commitment. At Tab II is the substance of what you could announce in Warsaw, briefly in your speech and in greater detail in a Fact Sheet that we would issue immediately thereafter. We have worked out this strategy with State and Treasury, with OMB concurring.

At Tab I is a message to G-7 leaders previewing this initiative. It should be easy for the UK and Canada to go along, because their contributions were cash grants like ours. For the others, whose shares were loans or lines of credit, it will be tougher. The message takes note of that and avoids putting them in an embarrassing position; it asks only that they consider continuing their present commitments but for different purposes. The messages to Major and Mulroney seek their prior commitment to join you in this initiative, so that you could announce that in Warsaw and use it in Munich to help bring along the others.

RECOMMENDATION

That you approve the message at Tab A for dissemination to your G-7 counterparts via Head of State channels.

POLISH STABILIZATION FUND:
INSERT FOR PRESIDENT'S WARSAW SPEECH

In the fall of 1989, as Poland was launching its historic economic restructuring, the United States helped organize a $1 billion stabilization fund to back the zloty as Poland made its currency convertible. Now, with the success of Poland's currency and economic reforms, it is time to start planning for the day when the stabilization fund will no longer be needed.

There will be many benefits to Poland of an economic program that strengthens the market economy, builds confidence among foreign investors, and opens the way to new IMF and World Bank credits. An additional advantage will be the freeing of the resources now devoted to the stabilization fund.

The U.S. believes that fund should be harnessed to new uses as Poland moves to the next stage of its pioneering economic transformation. Accordingly, once Poland and the contributors to the stabilization fund agree that it can be liquidated, the United States is prepared to convert its $200 million grant contribution to new productive uses.

I am pleased to report that Great Britain and Canada are also prepared to make their grant contributions available to Poland, and I have suggested to our other G-7 partners that they also consider converting their loans and credits to new uses, on terms and for purposes to be worked out by those governments and Poland. For example, some of these resources could be used to help Poland develop a modern and efficient banking system or an export financing facility to help Poland compete fairly in world markets.

Unbalanced House wrong to spike budget amendment

In defeating a balanced-budget amendment Thursday, the House of Representatives delivered a stinging rebuke to the American public, which overwhelmingly wanted the government to get spending under control.

What ought to be kept in mind, though, is that there is not now, nor ever has been, a reason that Congress and the president cannot balance the budget without the sword of a constitutional amendment hanging over their heads.

The hard truth is, however, that the federal government, special interests and the public in general have gotten in the habit of wanting the government to provide more, more and more. The obvious trouble with that is it costs, more, more and more.

In spite of the public's huge appetite for federal largesse, polls consistently showed Americans wanted Congress to rein in runaway spending and start to get the national debt under control.

President Bush, who had campaigned for passage of the budget amendment, praised those who voted for the issue and said the 153 dissenters mistook "the will of the American people." True.

The amendment would have imposed, beginning in fiscal 1998, a requirement that the president send and Congress adopt a budget in which outlays would not exceed receipts. If three-fifths of the members of both houses voted to allow deficit financing, an exception could be made.

All sorts of arguments were marshaled to defeat the amendment, such as the charge that Social Security would be hurt and the nation's economy would suffer if a cap were put on spending.

The real reason the House defeated the issue, though, is that it has not learned how to say "no." It is much easier to keep ladling out pork, and thus help ensure re-election, than it is to rein in non-essential spending and to begin insisting that people revert to doing for themselves what they have come to expect from an ever burgeoning government.

Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the second-ranking Republican in the House, called the amendment "the one chance to shrink the budget-spending side by cutting out the pork barrel that is not necessary, is not vital." Gingrich, who is sometimes too partisan to be taken seriously, spoke the truth in this case.

House members proved they just can't let go of their penchant for spending. If they ignore the will of the people on this issue, it is hard to see how and when they will ever get spending under control.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Phillip D. Brady

The Chief of Staff asked that the attached letter you sent to Ross Perot on January 4, 1990 be brought to your attention, as it may be mentioned in an Ann Devroy Washington Post story tomorrow. Apparently, Perot has made the letter available to the Post as part of a story about Brent Scowcroft having called Perot following Operation Just Cause to enlist his help in Panama's economic recovery.

Per the Chief of Staff's request, Records Management has conducted a search for all exchanges of correspondence or similar materials involving Perot since the beginning of your Presidency. Counsel is preparing a full chronology of contacts with Perot during your Vice Presidency with respect to the POW/MIA issue.

Thank you.

Dear Ross:

Brent Scowcroft told me of your generous thoughts on getting Noriega out of the Nuncio's residence, and also of your offer to help with Panama's economic recovery. I am glad the Noriega matter is now resolved; but I wanted to thank you for caring so much.

Your offer regarding rebuilding that destroyed housing will, I am sure, be well received. Once again, you've shown the Perot spirit of unselfishness when there's trouble or when Americans' lives are at stake.

Most sincerely and gratefully,

The Honorable George Bush
President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Thanks to you I have had the privilege of attending numerous White House events. Today's, was by far, the finest. You were outstanding! You can't lose when you're talking about education and empowerment.

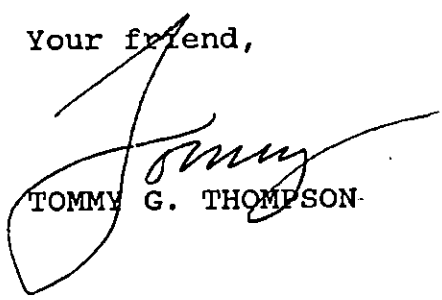

Choice is the linchpin in restructuring our educational system, and I thank you for highlighting our Milwaukee program.

On another note, I visited with Eddie Mahe the other day to discuss how we can be helpful to your re-election. I am a firm believer in letting George Bush, be George Bush. I am convinced that you need to be out among the people where you really shine.

Eddie and I agree that one way to accomplish this would be to have you take a train ride from Washington, D.C. to Houston four or five days before the convention. If you were to do so, stopping along the way to "listen to the American people", you would arrive at the convention atop an unstoppable wave of PR.

There is nothing that I would like better, than for the United States to truly see the man that I respect, love, and admire.

Your friend,

TOMMY G. THOMPSON

Thanks for all you do for the GOP.

Dear Mr. President:

Recently, the Saline County Republican Central Committee met and discussed the Clean Air Act, and its ramifications for Southeastern Illinois. It was unanimously decided that we should bring the plight of Southeastern Illinois residents to your attention. Saline County has an unemployment rate of 10.3%. Every 100 jobs lost will raise that rate by 1%. Enforcement of the Clean Air Act as it presently stands would be devastating to our local economy. In view of these factors, we, as a committee, ask that you would consider two proposals:

1. Extend compliance deadlines in the Clean Air Act for utilities planning to install clean coal technologies.

2. Institute cost-sharing subsidies, tax credits, and other measures designed to protect Illinois jobs.

Our economy relies heavily on the coal industry. While we are deeply concerned with the environment, and urge you to take all steps possible to bring our air and water quality standards to the forefront of your administration's agenda, we also ask that you do so with an eye towards preserving the integrity of our economy.

Thank you for your kind attention to our concerns.

Mr President:

A couple of reflections on life:

1) Learning all of the details of legislative proposals, initiatives and budgets is a pain. The human mind is not linear and after the age of 60 it is a very hard task to cram all that stuff into your head. Pres Reagan never tried; he decided to talk about three, four or five principles ones that he was convinced of and which the public understood because they were word pictures. [Non-linear]

All of this doesn't mean you have to choose one way over the other. The best way is the word picture with a couple of concrete examples.

The Editor of The Wall Street Journal:

It is strange that Mr. Perot claims that President Bush had to have the Gulf War to prove his masculinity; he did that many times in World War II.

1. He had been accepted at Yale and could have gone there for the duration. Instead, he joined the Navy and became the youngest naval aviator and an aircraft carrier combat pilot.

2. He was hit by enemy fire while attacking Chichi Jima; his plane burst into flames but he continued his run and hit his target, a radio station.

3. He was rescued by a submarine. When it returned to Pearl Harbor after 43 days of a combat deployment, he was told he could go home. Instead he returned to his ship. By that time, the fleet was in the Phillipines and he gave air support in three more amphibious invasions.

One would think that a person as smart as Mr. Perot would realize that had we not stopped Hussein, he would have controlled about four-fifths of the known oil supply.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SEEN 6/26

June 19, 1992

Dear Dr. Reid:

The President shared your letter with me and asked I respond to your suggestions on ways to address the social unrest in the Nation.

In regard to your first suggestion for adequate employment opportunities in communities through the creation of businesses, you noted that tax relief can be the incentive used to accomplish this goal. As you may know, the Administration has strongly promoted the establishment of enterprise zones for the purposes of promoting investment in economically distressed neighborhoods, attracting businesses and returning employment opportunities to the residents of those areas. Enterprise zones will attract new seed money for small business start-ups, and create new incentives for entrepreneurial risk-taking. Enactment of enterprise zone legislation will target tax incentives and regulatory relief to some of our Nation's most economically depressed areas.

You also mentioned the need for education and job training programs in these communities. In the budget submitted to Congress for the next fiscal year, the President has given the Department of Education $6.8 billion in funding for compensatory education for the disadvantaged, serving over 5 million children in a variety of programs. This is the largest discretionary program increase for any department in the Federal Government. The programs benefiting from this increase include Head Start, mathematics and science education and programs promoting drug-free schools.

As for job training, President Bush believes that America needs a dynamic, flexible, and well-trained workforce. While he believes the primary responsibility for job training must remain in the private sector, Federal, State and local governments can play an important supporting role. The Administration intends to build a comprehensive and coordinated job training system by streamlining Federal programs currently dispersed across numerous agencies. This will allow for "one stop shopping centers" designed to serve individuals and employers more effectively. Using 600 business-led Private Industry Councils, local businesses will be able to provide greater input to job training and education programs in communities. These councils will manage Skills Center, the primary point of entry into Federally-funded job training and occupational education programs.

Your third point about creating a network of Daily Points of Light in order to address urban problems is very revalent right now. In September of 1991, the first 575 Daily Points of Light met at Disney World in Orlando, Florida to meet with the President and do precisely the type of networking you suggest. As a result of the positive feedback received from the participants of that effort, a more organized process is being contemplated. Your offer to help in your letter to the President is greatly appreciated. I have passed your letter onto Miah Holmstad and Perry Lucas of my staff so that they may follow-up with you on this matter.

The President greatly appreciates your taking the time to communicate your thoughts and your willingness to serve. You have his best wishes.

Sincerely,

Mr. President:

The Negro Educational Emergency Drive (NEED) is proud to be the 631st Point of Light. It is a humbling experience to represent the volunteers who dedicate their daily effort to improving the quality of life for our young people. Supporters like Mrs. Elsie Hillman make this program possible.

Since it began in 1963, the program has helped 13,000 young people complete their college, business, trade or technical school education. This is the kind of self help program that has reduced the chances of racial unrest and violence in Pittsburgh.

As result of this experience, I would like for you to consider the following as part of a plan to address the legitimate grievances that are the source of racial unrest. I would welcome the opportunity to expand on the areas cited below.

POINT #1 EMPLOYMENT

The need for well paying jobs in the community is paramount. Creation of new businesses in the community can address this problem. Tax relief is an incentive to business ownership.

POINT #2 EDUCATION

Education and job training programs must be initiated in the community. The Negro Educational Emergency Drive (NEED) has been a leader in this effort since 1963.

POINT #3 PRESIDENT'S POINT OF LIGHT ADVISORY COMMITTEE

You have the nucleus to address the current urban problems in your "Points of Light". Your staff could organize a network and use us to help you solve many of the urban ills.

Although, I am only one small voice in the scheme of things, I want to be a part of the healing process. This must be our finest hour. I look forward to working with you in this crucial area.

Sincerely,

Herman L. Reid, Jr., Ed.D.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS

June 25, 1992

2 JUN 25 P6:44

To: The President
From: Mike Boskin MB
Re: May Personal Income and Outlays

Personal income rose 0.3 percent in May; private analysts had expected a 0.4 percent gain. After taxes and inflation, personal income rose 0.1 percent, following a small decline in April. It had risen strongly in February and March. Consumer spending adjusted for inflation rose 0.3 percent in May mostly due to stronger auto sales. Consumer spending outside of the auto sector was little changed.

This will, and should, be taken as another sign of continued but sluggish recovery.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: MICHAEL J. BOSKIN MJB

SUBJECT: May Personal Income and Outlays, Commerce
Department Release, Tomorrow, 10:00 a.m.

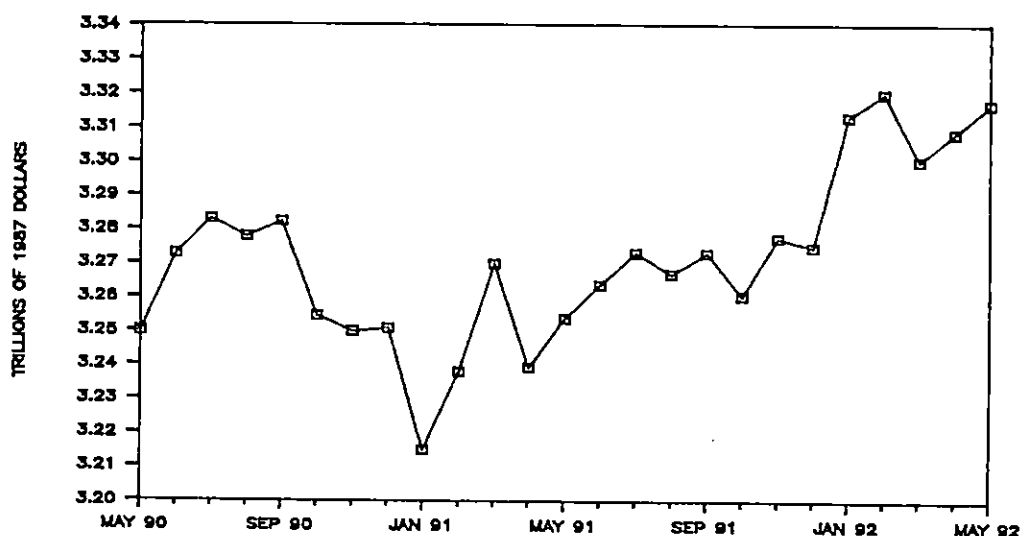

Personal income rose 0.3 percent in May, following a 0.1 percent increase in April. Private analysts had expected a 0.4 percent increase in May.

Real disposable personal income--income adjusted for inflation and taxes--rose 0.1 percent in May, following a 0.2 percent decline in April and 0.6 percent gains in March and February.

Consumer spending adjusted for inflation rose 0.3 percent in May, following a 0.2 percent rise in April. About three-quarters of the increase in spending in May was accounted for by higher outlays for motor vehicles and parts. There was little change, on balance, in spending for other goods, and there was a small increase in outlays for services.

The graph below shows that the increases in real personal consumption expenditures the past 2 months did not offset the large decline in March. The average level of consumer spending in April and May was only marginally higher than the average in the first quarter of 1992.

Dear Katie,

Just a quick note to thank you for your welcomed letter. The Bay area event was at the Woodard's house. It was fantastic. Mr. Mondavi supplied a fine red wine. We talked about you -- all good, all glowing.

Things are looking up around here. Love from all Bushes.

LETTER FROM KATE BOYD
(In Paris, France)

Dear George,

I understand from my secretary that you plan to be in the Bay area, June 18, for a Republican fundraiser and I am really sad not to be back by then. This will be the first time you have been in my area that I have not been there. My heart and all good thoughts will be with you, however, and I am doing what I can for the event from here as long, of course, as it does not interfere with B-Quayle '92 fundraising which continues wherever I may be.

We had a nice visit with Walter Curley, who was off to play in the Haut Brion Golf Invitational in Bordeaux. He's in great shape and much admired in France -- an excellent representative of our country and a true Bush loyalist. He sends his best.

In London we had a marvelous time with John Davidovich, who heads up Americans abroad for the U.S. and is doing a fabulous job as such. He was about to receive your brother Bucky when I left. I understand they had a good visit.

Bill has been under the weather in Paris so we did not go to Prague as planned but I did have a long conversation with Shirley Black, whom I gather is coming back in July. She has offered to help me with your campaign in California.

Believe me, in Europe they are all praying for your success in November. It is important to the world and God knows, to our country.

Take care. My love to Barbara.

Affectionately,

Kate

Dear Lulu,

Thanks for your great letter of June 20. It really touched my heart. Here's a little souvenir of the Yeltsin visit which I thought you might enjoy. Getting rid of those ICBM's is, indeed, a monumental achievement, but the press only seems interested in Ross Perot's pocket.

I appreciate your comments on Strobe Talbott. I know that he is strong for Clinton, but far more important is that you are for me!

Many, many thanks.

Love,

LETTER FROM MRS. JOHN M. WALKER, SR. (AUNT LULU)

Dear George,

This is to congratulate you on this monumental accomplishment -- bringing this treaty to fruition. For those of us who have worked for 10 (?) - these many years for arms reductions it is especially meaningful.

No one without your special experience in foreign affairs and your very personal approach ever could have pulled it off. It has a lot to do with trust, trust which you evoke in others and above all trust in your own best instincts which then translates into the best possible action. The world is indeed a safer one and I hope you're filled with pride! I wish like anything I had been there to share your joy that day, but by the time I got the call I was locked into giving a dinner with your friend Sara Arenour in Chicago and I simply couldn't let her down. She had offered this for our Committee and the Lawyers Alliance for World Security who we have just merged with. A generous gal!

Hope you'll be touching base in K-port. We have the Prussie (?) house for just three weeks, then Pressy gets it.

With love and admiration,

Lulu

A post script on another subject or two-- You probably know that Brooke (Shearer) Talbott is helping Hillary Clinton in their campaign. Those two have been pals since their husbands were in Oxford together, about which Strobe wrote in one of his time pieces. Not long ago I took Strobe to task, in a letter, for referring to you as "wimpish." The only really critical thing I have seen him say. I spelled out why this was unfair, that is the contrary you were very determined and forceful when you felt strongly about an issue.

At any rate, much as I love them both I guess I won't be seeing them so often until the election is over. Even though I favor strong gun control, pro-choice and above all more environmental restraints I will vote for you enthusiastically.

- a) I know how difficult the pro-choice issue is and I feel a lot of sympathy for those who believe in anti-abortion.
- b) I have hopes that you could change on gun control,
- c) You have done a great deal for the environment, and may do more.

But above all, I've spent many years of my life since W.W. II and George's death working with those interested in foreign relation. No one could ask for a President more skilled in that field. So I'm strong for Bush.

And beside, as a human being you are head and shoulders above the other two!

Forgive me for being long winded, but I've wanted for a long time to tell you all this.

Much love,

Lulu

Dear Mr. Chambers:

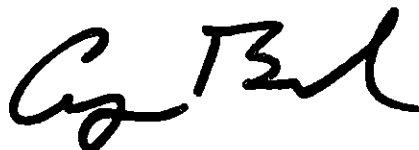

Thank you for your thoughtful message. I appreciate your words of support.

At the same time, however, I am appalled and saddened by the incident that you described in your letter to District of Columbia Mayor Sharon Pratt Kelly. Although I have not heard "the other side of the story" as far as the actions of local police officers are concerned, I do know this: America must not and will not tolerate wanton lawlessness and destruction. There is no place for mob violence in this country, just as there is no place for bigotry and discrimination of any form.

As you noted in your letter, we Americans need to talk openly about race, family, and moral values -- including personal responsibility and concern for others. I will continue to speak out on these topics, and the Administration will continue to promote policies and programs to uphold law and order in our communities, to strengthen families, and to extend hope and opportunity to all of our citizens. It is heartening to know that we have your support in these vital efforts.

Best wishes.

Dear Mr. President,

As was once written, "news reports of my death have been greatly exaggerated." Likewise, news reports in Washington that I've signed on with the Perot campaign are totally without basis. No amount of money can buy my loyalty.

You and Mrs. Bush have been generously kind to me and to my family; my gratitude and devotion is neither fleeting nor temporary. We spent too many hours and traveled far too many miles together for me to jump ship.

I am true to myself, true to my principles, and true to you. The trust you have placed in me on so many occasions is not misplaced.

I am prepared to come on board your team to assist you. I am a loyal soldier willing to do whatever you may ask.

Dear John:

Per our conversation this morning, I have attached some numbers on M2 and M3 from my old firm (DLJ).

Until M2 and M3 turn up, it is unlikely that the economy is going to be very strong. In my own view, these monetary aggregates should be growing at least at a 5% rate to accommodate 2.0% real growth and 2 to 3% inflation. A cut in the discount rate combined with appropriate open market activities is the easiest way to stimulate these money figures.

A strong economy is key to George Bush winning the election in 1992!!

Dear Deborah,

Thank you for your kind words about my participation in the NTI Conference in Orlando. It was a neat experience for me, and I thoroughly enjoyed the occasion and all the folks I met.

As you may be aware, Dr. Jack Williams from Department of Commerce and Bill Sharp from the Colorado School of Mines have asked me to give the "kick-off" speech for the NTI conference in Denver on June 11. I am honored to be invited and have accepted the opportunity. They have asked that my remarks center on Cooperative R&D. This will be a true joy!

President Bush's vision in establishing the National Technology Initiative is simply tremendous. From my perspective, this time in history is unique and the leaders of this great nation of ours have an opportunity to make the transition from cold war, military mind-set to peacetime, peace-keeping World pre-eminence. The NTI is perfect for framing a network of resources cooperating to re-establish the United States as the greatest wealth creating country in the World.

Whatever I can do to help you, the Department of Commerce, the President, or any other participating office, would be my honor and privilege. NTI is exciting, and I want my enthusiasm for it to be very evident.

Hope to see you in Denver on June 11. If not then I will be in D.C. May 19-21 for the United States Advanced Ceramics Association (USACA) meeting and would be glad to make time for a visit. Enclosed is a copy of our proceedings to which I invite you to be my guest as your schedule permits.

Bush, Baker Plan On Fishing During July Convention

It is unclear what they will talk about since Secretary of State James A. Baker III is supposed to be out of politics and into diplomacy, but Baker and President Bush next month will repeat their 1988 routine of spending much of the Democratic convention together in the wilderness.

Baker, who has a ranch in Wyoming, will be fishing with the president there for two or three days of the July 13-17 convention.

It was after the 1988 fishing trip that Bush announced Baker would leave his job as treasury secretary to take over Bush's foundering campaign.

But Bush and Baker aides said yesterday it would be wrong to assume that the trip presages any move by Baker out of the State Department and that Bush and Baker have had no such discussions.

In 1988, they had no discussions, either, until they had one and then, within a matter of days, Baker was out of the treasury business and into politics.

Baker has said on about a dozen occasions in the past month—most with a straight face—that he is out of the business of politics and is devoting all his attention to the problems of the world.

Bush Son Takes Leave

■ Meanwhile, another of the president's trusted political advisers and major troubleshooter, his son George W. Bush, said he is taking a leave of absence as director and consultant at Harken Energy Corp. to help out his father's reelection.

"I don't want to involve this company in any kind of allegations of conflicts or whatever may arise," he said. "I am going to take this leave so as not to drag Harken into this campaign in any shape or form."

Some Harken critics suggested the company won a chance to drill off Bahrain because of Bush's political connections, but he has denied that and no wrongdoing has been proved.

Campaign officials in Washington said Bush's role as a senior adviser, announced by his father earlier this year, remains the same and that he would not move to Washington and have day-to-day campaign involvement until the fall.

Known as "Junior" to many of Bush's aides, the president's son has played a key role in times of political peril for his father, privately talking with longtime Bush aides and supporters and giving his father an unvarnished assessment of what could be done.

RNC Enlists Bond Protege

■ A third old Bush hand, William Canary, has signed up with the Republican National Committee to be chief of staff to chairman Richard N. Bond.

Canary, a Bond protege and longtime friend, has been national political field director at Bush-Quayle, and had served as assistant for intergovernmental affairs in the Bush White House. Like Bond, he is product of New York politics and also like Bond, is considered a skilled political operative.

He assumes the job of Norm Cummings, who was named a senior field consultant to the party and the reelection campaign.

Gore on the VP List

■ Add Sen. Albert Gore Jr. (D-Tenn.) to Bill Clinton's list of possible vice presidential candidates.

It would be unusual for one southern moderate to pick another southern moderate as a running mate.

But some Democrats think Gore nicely complements Clinton in several ways and would give the party a generational advantage against President Bush and Ross Perot.

Gore has defense and foreign policy credentials that Clinton lacks, and as the author of a best-selling book on the environment, would shore up any weaknesses Clinton has in that area.

More important, perhaps, he has run for president before, lessening the chances of revelations that would damage the campaign.

SHERWOOD L. BOEHLERT

November 26, 1991
12:32 A.M.

Dear Mr. President,

As Bill Safire concluded in yesterday's Column, "If you run as an unabashed moderate against the extremes of right and left, you'll win."

My Bush credentials are solid, dating back to '79 and including an endorsement of your anticipated bid for the Presidency in January, 1985.

My greatest thrill in politics, other than my first election, was your come-from-behind previous victory in New Hampshire in '88. I was there campaigning non-stop for you those eventful ^{final} 96 hours. After that, it was all down hill. You are where you belong.

I want you to continue for another four years and am committed to that end.

With all due respect, the Democrats aren't your principal obstacle, they can easily be overcome. It's your "new found friends." They will never consider you "pure" enough to match for a minute the enthusiasm and from-the-heart effort those of us who really care for and respect you put forth.

Sure I vote against your position (not you) on some of the big issues. My approach to government and its role is not going to change. I'm me. But when those rare moments come when you and your people convince me "this is do or die" as with last year's budget/deficit reduction agreement, I'm with you.

Not on civil rights (I never believed it was a quota bill) or family leave (where are our values?) or the endless arguments over choice and the "gag" rule (I have to live with my conscience and be true to myself or I'll be no good to my family, my job or my President).

What are your friends doing? As Yogi would say, "it's déjà vu all over again."

Last year it was Bush. Looking over the Andrews Summit. This year it's that stupid domestic car letter which, when asked to sign, I told them to (expletive deleted). And trying to shove down your throat their economic growth package.

Think about it, some Republicans and not the other side of the aisle are causing your biggest headaches.

John Sununu is not the problem, although he gets higher marks for substance than for style. His "buddies" up here are cutting him deep, wide and consecutively. So much for those kind of friends.

What to do?

Respectfully, let me suggest a couple of things.

First, take a couple of days to go hunting or fishing or something away from it all with Jim Baker. Talk things over. Sort things out.

Then spend some private time with your best friend (America's best friend) Barbara. And George W. Deal with "that vision thing," about what you want for your children and grandchildren and ours. About the kind of America you want on this dawn of a new century.

And, if you have any time left, have a couple of old time political friends who are daily in touch with the real world over, not for a State Dinner or a frenzy of activity, but for a couple of beers and a chat about that wide expanse beyond the White House and outside the beltway called America the beautiful.

I couldn't admire you or respect you more than I do. You are a most special, kind, decent human being.

But I agree with Bill Safir.

Respectfully,

Sam

Dear Eagle:

Your note touches me deeply. To think that on the very day you made the world safer for your grandchildren and mine, you took the time to write a friend. That's so typical of you. And unique.

I'd like to add just one further thought to my letter of May 29. It's an attitude that captured in your paid advertising will bring people to you in droves. Harry Truman beat the odds with it. And it fits the Eagle to a tee because it unearths the human feelings America attaches to you as a person.

Imagine a series of television spots opening with this line: THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. THE UNDERDOG. The copy goes on to describe that sure the polls have you embattled and that people are understandably concerned about their lives. But we're America, folks. Challenges only make us stronger. So get your chin up off the floor. If we can bring the world to a new day, we can bring the sunshine back to our country. If we can make the world safer, we can do the same thing with our streets. When some said it couldn't be done you went ahead and did it. And you'll do it again.

You want people rooting for you, Eagle. And what more wonderful idea to root for than a President who won't quit on his country.

Look at the election of 1992 as ROCKY VI. Starring the Eagle and the most admired first lady in the world by his side. It's a drama not played out in a rose garden but in town meetings across America. Go to the people with it in a way that shows energy the way Harry Truman whistle-stopped it. Leave the sax playing and dark eyed glasses to Clinton and the Larry King Show to Perot. Make your campaign more personal than squinting through a TV camera at America. Press the flesh, see the faces, hear the voices, and watch what happens.

Los sandinistas aún son el verdadero poder en Nicaragua

Por Georgie Anne Geyer

WASHINGTON.— El joven nicaragüense habló en voz baja y con vacilación de la alarmante situación existente en Nicaragua hoy; con todo, las palabras de Carlos Hurtado eran enérgicas y entristecedoras.

"Estamos a punto de perder una única y valiosa oportunidad para la democracia", dijo Hurtado, que hasta abril ocupara la posición clave de Ministro del Interior en el gobierno de la Presidenta Violeta Barrios de Chamorro. "Nuestra política de seguridad básica, que depende de las fuerzas armadas, se encuentra ahora totalmente bajo el control sandinista. Encaramos una situación que pudiéramos llamar explosiva".

Después, haciendo una breve pausa en la entrevista que concediera aquí al Instituto Puebla, añadió que el antiguo Ministro de Relaciones Exteriores Sandinista, Miguel D'Escoto, dijo a la prensa en Washington, en abril, que los sandinistas forman efectivamente el núcleo del gobierno de Chamorro.

En realidad, es peor que eso. Lo que D'Escoto realmente dijo fue: "Cada vez es menos apropiado calificarnos de partido de oposición. Nosotros somos la base fundamental de apoyo del gobierno de Chamorro".

Han transcurrido exactamente dos años desde aquella primavera en que el mundo democrático fuera cautivado por la Sra. Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, cuyo esposo fue asesinado en 1978 por la antigua dictadura derechista. Ella se había convertido en la presidenta libremente electa de Nicaragua y substituía a la dictadura izquierdista de los sandinistas. Las elecciones de aquel invierno asombraron al mundo. Por primera vez en la historia, los marxistas (los sandinistas nicaragüenses) eran derrotados en unas elecciones.

Pero el infortunado desenlace fue visto aquí esta primavera, cuando su yerno, Antonio Lacayo, se presentó en busca de inversiones —en reuniones con representantes del Banco Mundial y la administración— con muchos antiguos destacados sandinistas tras él.

Participantes de la reunión con el Banco Mundial —al que normalmente exponen sus planes los países en busca de préstamos de inversión— me dijeron que nunca habían visto una reunión como esa. Primero, Lacayo al que muchos consideran el Presidente "Svengali" del gobierno de Chamorro, trajo consigo a los que el mundo creía que el pueblo nicaragüense había sacado del poder, incluyen al ex presidente sandinista Daniel Ortega.

Todavía más asombroso para los funcionarios y economistas de la reunión fue que el delegado español del Banco Mundial preguntara directamente a Daniel Ortega su opinión al respecto. (Normalmente, en reuniones de ese tipo, es inimaginable que un delegado subestime al representante del gobierno en cuestión, y prefiera preguntar a un representante de la oposición, lo que demuestra dónde los analistas de afuera ven el verdadero poder).

Para ser justos, debemo

HUMBERTO ORTEGA

rar la genuina pasión de la Sra. Viuda de Chamorro por la "reconciliación" de las facciones por largo tiempo en pugna en la sociedad nicaragüense. Ella creyó que al enviar a Washington a representantes de todos los grupos (en la delegación había también representantes obreros y del comercio) reconciliaría a los grupos hostiles y mostraría un frente unido. Pero, como escribí el pasado mes de noviembre, eso no es lo que está sucediendo.

En vez de ello, lo que ha sucedido es que los sandinistas se han convertido en su base de poder y detentan el verdadero poder. Mujer decente, pero también irascible y obstinada, la presidenta Chamorro apenas habla ahora a ninguno de los políticos demócratas que la llevaron al poder.

Cada vez que he hablado con ella he encontrado en su pasión y su compromiso, no la necesidad de enarbolar el lema de "redimir" al pueblo nicaragüense, avota católica, de ahí deriva su noción.

Mientras tanto, desde que la presidenta despidiera a Carlos Hurtado y lo substituyera por un sandinista de línea dura, los sandinistas controlan totalmente las fuerzas armadas, la policía, 28 de las 30 estaciones de radio, 2 de los 3 periódicos, 1 de los 2 programas de noticias y, por supuesto, sus turbas, que lanzan a la calle cada vez que quieren algo.

La pequeña Nicaragua, con una increíble riqueza en tierras y recursos, pero con una pobreza que (gracias a los sandinistas) la coloca por debajo de Haití, nunca ha carecido de intrigas bizantinas. Pero ésta es excesiva incluso para Nicaragua.

En Managua se dice en estos días que el yerno, Antonio Lacayo, aspirará a la presidencia en las próximas elecciones... en la boleta sandinista. Pero más impresionante es lo que se dice del hermano de Daniel, el duro y ambicioso Humberto Ortega, que ha permanecido como Ministro de Defensa de la presidenta Chamorro a pesar de sus firmes simpatías por el marxismo.

Humberto —dicen todos— quiere ser el próximo dictador; es decir, el descendiente liberal de Anastasio "Tachito" Somoza, el corrupto dictador derechista derribado heroicamente por los sandinistas en 1978. (¿Será posible que "Tachito" sea substituido por "Humbertico"?).

En Nicaragua se comete un error. La reconciliación suena bien, lo mismo que el perfecto amor; pero el primero puede terminar en capitulación, y el segundo en divorcio. Eso es lo que está sucediendo con programas similares de reconciliación en Panamá, en Hungría, en Checoslovaquia y...

Llega un momento en que el antiguo régimen pierde y debe ser obligado a salir, o el gobierno que lo sucede paga caro por no sacarlo. Ese momento ha llegado para Nicaragua en esta hora. El problema es que doña Violeta no escucha el tic tac del reloj.
