12:15 P.M. NEWS UPDATE

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH (Crystal City/Steve Holland, Reuter) -- Protesters shouting "No more lies!" angrily interrupted a speech by President Bush on the fate of American POWs and MIAs. Bush was several minutes into his speech when several dozen members out of an audience of several hundred stood up and shouted the President down. The President, a steely smile on his face, turned to the relative of an Air Force pilot missing in action and they engaged in what appeared to be an angry discussion. The hubbub lasted for more than five minutes. Bush began speaking again and when someone shouted again at him, the President snapped: "Will you please sit down so that I can finish?"

(Crystal City/Harry Rosenthal, AP) -- President Bush was roundly heckled and interrupted when he went before an audience of POW-MIA families to defend Administration efforts to get information about Americans who did not return from combat. The episode began when one woman stood up and yelled at the President, "No more lies." Bush angrily told the group he did not like the suggestion that he would sit on knowledge about missing servicemen. He said such charges were "totally unfair." Bush demanded, "What kind of allegation is that to make against a patriot?"

POW/MIA REPORTS (AP) -- Newly released Pentagon studies sharply criticize the government's efforts to locate American POWs and MIAs in Southeast Asia, saying investigators too often doubted live-sighting reports. One study concluded the Defense Intelligence Agency's POW/MIA Center personnel "were burdened and frustrated with the flood of evidence and tended toward disposal rather than analysis." "There is information, even in our limited sample, which establishes the strong possibility of American prisoners of war being held in Laos and Vietnam," said a 1986 report by a task force headed by retired Air Force Lt. Gen. Eugene Tighe.

IRAQ/MILITARY ACTION (Reuter) -- The U.S., Britain and France have agreed to press for a quick public ultimatum demanding that Iraq comply with Gulf War cease-fire agreements or face allied military attack, Bush Administration officials said. The officials confirmed a report in the Washington Post that the warning could come as early as this weekend. The officials said other countries might join the warning, but refused to give any detailed plans. One official suggested that a military attack could involve repeated bombing of Iraqi military targets until the Baghdad government ends its defiance. The officials said such an attack would probably involve at least U.S., British and French aircraft and missiles.

(Jeddah, Saudi Arabia/Reuter) -- Secretary Baker said a military strike against Iraq "looks pretty certain" if Baghdad continues to defy U.N. resolutions that established the Gulf War cease-fire. Diplomats said he left the clear impression that military action was likely within days. But Baker did not get public endorsement from his Gulf War Arab allies for tough U.S. talk. "The United States is prepared to do whatever is necessary to enforce Security Council resolutions," Baker said. He also told a press conference President Bush had "made clear he has not ruled out military action as an option."

IRAQ/U.N. INSPECTORS (Baghdad/Reuter) -- A U.N. weapons team left Baghdad after an 18-day vigil outside the Agriculture Ministry failed to persuade Iraq to grant access despite the West's warnings of possible military action. Team leader Mark Silver told reporters they were pulling out on orders from Rolf Ekeus, head of the U.N. special commission charged with dismantling Iraq's war machine.

ECONOMY (UPI) -- Orders for big-ticket factory goods rose 2.3 percent in June, turning around May's 2.2 percent drop as increases were posted in all categories of durable goods, the Commerce Department said. The increase was the largest since January's 3.6 percent ascent.

CANADA/LIQUOR DUTY (Ottawa/Reuter) -- The U.S. imposed a duty of 50 percent on imports of beer from Ontario, a move sure to worsen strained trade relations between the North American neighbors. Deputy Trade Representative Julius Katz said in a statement the decision was the result of discrimination against U.S. beer by Ontario.

News From the Hill

SENATE FLOOR: Energy bill cloture fails, trash bill passes.

The Senate yesterday passed, 89-2, legislation (S 2877) that would allow states to block the import of other state's trash.

The bill was the subject of four days of long and sometimes sharp debate as senators from trash-exporting states attempted to loosen the restrictions in the bill and senators from states that accept large amounts of trash from other states sought to tighten language to provide states more power to stop trash at their borders.

The bill does not apply to trash going to landfills that already have contracts with trash haulers.

Energy Bill. Backers of wide-ranging energy policy legislation (HR 776) fell two votes short of the number needed to limit debate and move to the bill. The vote was 58-33.

Language added to the bill by the Finance Committee that would bail out trust funds for coal miners and their families drew strong opposition from several senators.

Senate backers of the energy bill said they will try to reach an agreement in the next few days on the coal language. Majority George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, said the Senate may take up the bill today if an agreement can be reached.

The bill attempts to map out energy policy goals for the nation and emphasizes higher domestic oil production and greater use of alternative fuels.

• The Senate cleared, by voice vote, legislation (HR 3836) that aims to provide a constant supply of a cancer-fighting agent found in the bark of the Pacific Yew tree.

HOUSE FLOOR: Interior bill passes with grazing fee hike intact.

Western ranchers who use federal lands for cattle grazing will have to pay higher fees under a fiscal 1993 Interior Department spending bill (HR 5503) that passed the House yesterday.

The $12.9 billion measure, passed 329-94, would provide $6.2 billion for the Interior Department, roughly the same as the fiscal 1992 level.

Late Tuesday, the House rejected an amendment that would have struck a provision mandating a 33 percent increase in grazing fees. Ranchers currently pay $1.97 a month per head of cattle.

The grazing fee issue has turned into a perennial fight between Western lawmakers and members from the South and East. Proponents of the fee increase point out that the current rates are about one-fifth of those charged for grazing on private lands.

Western members argued that the increase would bankrupt some cattle operators. "We are talking about clobbering the little cattle operators, small business people of the West," said Pat Williams, D-Mont. But the amendment was rejected 164-245.

Yesterday, members got into a fight over whether to reduce the amount of "below-cost" timber sold by the National Forest Service. The timber sales result in a net loss to the Treasury Department because revenues from the timber do not offset the costs to the government. Members approved, 212-206, a substitute amendment that would reduce the Forest Service's administrative budget by $8 million without causing a reduction in timber sales.

The House also approved, 251-171, an amendment that would reduce funding for the National Endowment of the Arts from $179 million to $176 million, its fiscal 1992 level.

House Today. The House will take up a $7.5 billion fiscal 1992 supplemental spending bill (HR 5620) to provide the Pentagon with money to replace equipment used during the Persian Gulf War and for environmental cleanup at military bases.

The money would come from funds already appropriated to pay for the costs of the war.

Democratic Caucus. The House Democratic Caucus plan to meet this morning to discuss health-care legislation.

NUCLEAR TEST ban, super collider funding in spending bill.

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved, by voice vote, a $22 billion fiscal 1993 energy and water spending bill (HR 5373) that would ban most nuclear testing. Appropriators also left in the spending bill the House and Senate versions of an energy policy bill (HR 776) in case that measure remains bogged down on the Senate floor.

The test ban provision is less strict than language in the House bill, which would impose a one-year moratorium as long as the Russians did not conduct similar tests. The Senate language would allow testing if it were announced in advance and for safety reasons, such as for testing the safety of the nuclear arsenal.

At a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing yesterday, Assistant Energy Secretary Richard Claytor opposed the moratorium, calling it a "bad idea." Claytor said that the administration expects no more than six underground tests a year to ensure the safety and reliability of the nuclear arsenal.

Several of the measure's provisions place it at odds with the House bill. Senate appropriators provided $550 million for the superconducting super collider, which the House voted to cancel.

And unlike the House version, which includes no new water projects, the Senate measure, according to Energy and Water Development Appropriations Subcommittee Chairman J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., includes 16 new projects. Johnston noted that 11 of the projects were requested by the Bush administration.

With the future of the energy strategy bill in doubt, appropriators agreed to leave it attached to the appropriations bill. If the Senate is able to resolve disagreements over an energy bill amendment on coal miner benefits, then appropriators will delete the energy measure and report the spending bill.

FOOD STAMPS, WIC receive biggest boost by appropriators.

Nutrition initiatives, such as food stamps and a feeding program for women and children, would receive large increases under a $61.4 billion fiscal 1993 appropriations measure (HR 5487) that gained voice vote approval yesterday from the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Funding for the food stamp program would jump from $23.4 billion provided for fiscal 1992 to $29 billion. And the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program, which provides nutritional aid to about 5 million Americans, would get a $260 million increase to $2.9 billion.

Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said by directing more funds to meet nutritional needs, the measure would benefit urban Americans and has become more "more an urban bill than a rural bill."

Still, the measure includes billions of dollars for rural interests, including $9 billion in farm subsidies and about $2.9 billion for the Farmers Home Administration, which provides and guarantees farm loans. The Rural Electrification Administration, which promotes development and subsidizes telephone service in certain areas, would receive $1.8 billion.

D.C. SPENDING bill minus sewage plant fees OK'd by Senate panel.

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved, by voice vote, a fiscal 1993 spending bill (HR 5517) for the District of Columbia that defers for one year half the federal contribution to the city employee retirement fund.

D.C. Subcommittee Chairman Brock Adams, D-Wash., said the action, which would reduce the retirement fund contribution from $52 million to $26 million for fiscal 1993, was "bad policy and bad government" but was necessary to give the city the funds it needs.

The spending measure would provide the city with $624.8 million in a federal payment and also $30.8 million to help the city in its anti-crime efforts.

The most controversy on the bill occurred over a local issue. The D.C. government in its fiscal 1993 budget planned to collect a payment in lieu of taxes from the users of the Blue Plains sewage treatment plant, which is expected to bring the city about $12 million in revenue. Because the plant is also used by suburban Maryland and Virginia residents, they would also be assessed the fee. Their share is expected to bring in about $3 million to city coffers.

But the Maryland and Virginia congressional delegations oppose the fee, saying that the D.C. Home Rule charter forbids the District to levy taxes on its neighbors.

The House-passed version of the spending bill prohibits the city from assessing the fee. During the Senate subcommittee markup, Adams added language that would allow the District to charge the fee for one year but D.C. officials would have to continue negotiations with its neighbors on the issue.

But the committee approved, by voice vote, an amendment offered by Barbara A. Mikulski, D-Md., that struck Adams' proposal from the bill.

COMMERCE, JUSTICE, State spending bills ready for floors.

The House and Senate Appropriations committees approved different draft bills yesterday to fund the departments of Commerce, Justice and State and the federal judiciary.

The fiscal 1993 spending bills were approved in both committees by voice vote.

The Senate version would provide $23.6 billion, and the House version would allocate $22.3 billion.

One of the largest differences was in spending for the Justice Department. The House bill would allocate $8.9 billion for the Justice Department, significantly under the $9.5 billion that would be provided under the Senate version.

Both bills include $140 million for construction of a new, secure embassy in Moscow to replace a bug-riddled embassy that was built by the Russians.

SPACE STATION remains in VA-HUD spending bill, for now.

The House Appropriations Committee sidestepped a fight over NASA's space station Freedom yesterday when it approved, by voice vote, the bill that funds the space agency, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the departments of Veterans Affairs (VA) and Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

But when the $65.3 billion measure reaches the House floor, VA-HUD Subcommittee Chairman Bob Traxler, D-Mich., will offer an amendment to strike the controversial space project, now set to receive $1.7 billion in fiscal 1993.

Last year, Traxler's move to eliminate space station funding in subcommittee was rejected on the House floor by a 240-173 vote.

Traxler said in committee that if his amendment is not adopted by the House, he would offer a second amendment to cut all spending by 2 percent except for veterans' medical care.

The VA-HUD bill is tight, with most programs receiving either the same funding as in fiscal 1992, or the amount requested by President Bush for fiscal 1993.

The Department of Veterans Affairs would get $34.3 billion in fiscal 1993, compared with $34.5 billion requested by Bush and $32.7 billion appropriated in fiscal 1992. HUD would receive $24.5 billion in fiscal 1993, $2 billion more than Bush requested.

In other action, the committee voted 16-23 by a show of hands to leave in a $500 million earmark for the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study of what constitutes a wetland.

LOW-INCOME SUBSIDIES for energy bills victim of tight budget.

A number of popular social programs, including low-income subsidies for heating bills, would get hit by the budget ax under a draft $244 billion fiscal 1993 spending bill approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

The measure, approved by voice vote, would fund the budgets of the departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education.

Although the measure's funding level jumped $25 billion, the increase was mostly in mandatory programs, which appropriators do not control. They include Medicare, Medicaid, and Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the principal federal-state welfare program.

Discretionary spending, which appropriators control, would be set at $61.7 billion, a 1.5 percent increase over fiscal 1992.

"It's not the best bill we could have presented, but it's the best we could do with the money that was available," said acting Chairman William H. Natcher, D-Ky.

The program that took the biggest hit was the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance program, which helps pay the heating and cooling bills for the poor. Funding for the program was cut to $891 million, a $600 million reduction from fiscal 1992.

Instead, appropriators designated $600 million as an emergency allocation for the program. Because the funds would not count toward spending limits, the Bush administration is unlikely to go along with the provision.

Some programs received significant increases. A program that makes grants to states and non-profit organizations to provide AIDS treatment would receive a $50 million increase, to $326.6 million. Funding to fight tuberculosis would be increased from $58.9 million to $79.6 million.

'STAR WARS' funding trimmed by Senate Armed Services.

The Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday agreed in closed session to provide less than requested by President Bush for development of an anti-missile system and to slow construction of a site to defend U.S. cities from limited missile attacks.

The committee, which is considering a fiscal 1993 defense authorization bill (S 2629), rejected both Bush's $5.4 billion request for the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) and a $4.9 billion Republican compromise on party-line votes.

The bill would authorize $4 billion for SDI unless more changes are adopted as the committee tries to wrap up work on the bill today.

According to panel members, the bill would delay until 2000 at the earliest completion of the first ground-based site to protect cities from limited attacks.

Congress last year agreed that the site should be built by 1996, but Pentagon officials angered Nunn this year by saying that a rush to complete the site earlier than late 1997 or 1998 carried a high risk of costly mistakes.

As a result, the bill proposed by Nunn this year specifies that the construction pace should permit no more than a low-to-medium risk of mistakes.

Bush requested $281 billion for defense spending in fiscal 1993. The House approved $251 billion in its fiscal 1993 defense appropriations bill (HR 5504).

CFTC REAUTHORIZATION discussed; controversial items deferred.

House and Senate conferees, meeting to hash out differences in competing versions of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) reauthorization bill (HR 707), adopted several key provisions, but deferred discussion of the most controversial items in the legislation.

The conference meeting was the second held by legislators trying to finalize new regulatory powers for the commission, which oversees trading of commodity and financial futures contracts. Progress has been delayed because of long-running disputes over whether the CFTC should have regulatory power over newly created financial transaction products — dubbed “hybrids” or “swaps” in the industry.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and others have battled congressional efforts to assign these new contracts to the CFTC's jurisdiction. Yesterday's conference avoided the jurisdictional issues altogether, and dealt only with the first two sections of the bill, which spell out new regulatory duties for the CFTC.

After more than three hours of debate, members agreed on new rules regarding conflicts of interest and insider trading. Under the language adopted, it would be a felony for individuals to trade futures on the basis of material information not available to the public, and futures exchange members would have to refrain from voting or discussing issues in which they knowingly have financial or personal interest.

No agreement was reached on the question of service fees imposed on futures traders or brokers. House members insisted that the General Accounting Office study service fees before they are instituted, while Senate members pushed for the immediate adoption of service fees, arguing that other regulatory bodies like the Grain Inspection Service and the SEC impose similar levies on their wards.

Before adjourning, conferees said they would meet again the week of July 27. A House Agriculture Committee aide said the jurisdictional issues surrounding the hybrid contracts were not likely to be brought up in that week's negotiations.

SURVIVORS' BENEFITS set for boost under veterans bill.

The House Veterans' Affairs Committee gave voice vote approval yesterday to legislation (HR 5008) that would increase the benefits of survivors of those veterans who died of service-related injuries.

The minimum monthly payment to survivors would be set at $750, a $114 boost over the current rate. The payment would be increased by an additional $50 a month if the veteran died in the line of duty or was totally disabled as a result of a service injury.

The current $71 monthly payment to dependents would also increase, to $100 in fiscal 1993, $150 in fiscal 1994, and $200 in fiscal 1995.

Members approved, by voice vote, an amendment that would increase the education benefits available to veterans and extend through fiscal 1996 the $2 fee on prescription drugs for veterans with non-service-related disabilities.

• The panel approved another bill (HR 3236) that would add salivary gland and urinary tract cancer to the list of diseases presumed to be caused by exposure to radiation during service. It would also remove a requirement that the radiation-related diseases manifest themselves within 40 years for the veteran to be eligible for benefits.

HEAD START program modifications sent to full committee.

A House Education and Labor subcommittee voted yesterday to make changes in the Head Start program, which aims to prepare economically disadvantaged youngsters for school.

The Human Resources Subcommittee gave voice vote approval to the measure (HR 5630), which backers believe would increase participation in Head Start and save the program money.

Panel Chairman Matthew G. Martinez, D-Calif., said that Head Start is currently serving less than one-third of the eligible population, adding that the program “should be the cornerstone of our social policy.”

One provision in the bill would allow local Head Start agencies to purchase program facilities with federal grant money. Current law permits the use of those funds only for renovating existing property, not for purchases or construction of new buildings.

Head Start proponents claim that this provision would help save money in two ways: by eliminating project relocation costs and by enabling programs to pay mortgage costs lower than rental costs.

The bill also would make it easier for communities to win a waiver of the requirement that they match grants by 20 percent.

The bill is scheduled for full committee action next week.

ALBANIA, ROMANIA trade measures would lower tariffs.

Imports from Albania and Romania would face lower tariffs under bills approved yesterday by the House Ways and Means Trade Subcommittee.

Approved by voice vote, H J Res 507 would extend most-favored-nation (MFN) status to Albania. H J Res 512 would do the same for Romania.

The former communist countries are two of only a handful of countries that do not have MFN status, which grants low tariffs to exports to the United States.

In June, President Bush asked Congress to grant the normal trade treatment to the two countries.

Dolphin Protection. The subcommittee also approved, by voice vote, a bill (HR 5419) that calls for a worldwide ban on a tuna-catching practice that also kills dolphins.

The practice of encircling tuna with purse seine nets has been blamed for the death of thousands of dolphins each year.

The measure would also grant the administration the authority to lift a ban on the importation of tuna from Mexico and Venezuela. Tuna imports from those countries are barred because their tuna fleets kill too many dolphins.

DES RESEARCH bill receives OK from Health panel.

The House Energy and Commerce Health Subcommittee yesterday approved a bill (HR 4178) that would allow for expanded research into DES (diethylstilbestrol), a drug that was prescribed to 5 million women over a 30-year period in the mistaken belief that it prevented miscarriages.

In 1971 DES was found to cause birth defects and cervical and vaginal cancer in women whose mothers took it during pregnancy. Women who took the drug also face a higher risk of breast cancer.

HR 4178 would create a program at the Department of Health and Human Services to conduct further research on DES and to educate health professionals on the effects of the drug.

The bill also calls on the National Institutes of Health to track disorders in women who took the drug and in their children and grandchildren.

The subcommittee-approved measure would authorize such sums as necessary to carry out the bill's provisions. As, originally introduced, the bill had authorized $1 million in fiscal 1993 and $500,000 each year in fiscal 1994 and fiscal 1995.

• The Health Subcommittee also agreed to the Ways and Means Committee's version of a bill (HR 3837) that would make administrative changes in how the federal government pays Medicare benefits. The bill was approved by voice vote.

It would require the federal government to mail out questionnaires to Medicare recipients to find out if they are covered by other health plans and therefore ineligible for Medicare benefits. The bill would also try to protect the elderly from high-pressure telephone sales of medical equipment. Under the bill, Medicare would no longer cover the cost of medical equipment sold over the telephone.

MILITARY LAND-USE measure gets subcommittee nod.

The House Interior Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands yesterday OK'd a measure that would make it more difficult for the Pentagon to acquire public lands for military uses.

Approved on a voice vote, the bill (HR 3564) would revise procedures for transferring public lands to the Defense Department. Specifically, the bill would require the government to give greater consideration to the natural resources and environmental values of lands that are used for military operations, such as low-flying combat fighter practice and target practice.

The bill would prohibit further transfers of National Forest Service lands to the Pentagon unless the transfers would help preserve the lands and improve the management of the national forest system.

The measure would also ban the transfer to the Pentagon of national forest wilderness areas and other lands set aside for conservation purposes.

The legislation would require the Defense Department to undertake an inventory of federal lands under its jurisdiction and develop a long-term plan for its use of the lands.

LEGAL ENTRY into U.S. to be streamlined under Judiciary bill.

A measure that would help speed up the processing of all foreigners entering the United States won voice vote approval yesterday from the House Judiciary Subcommittee on International Law, Immigration and Refugees.

The bill (HR 5555) would require the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) to set up pre-inspection stations at foreign airports to help process people with U.S. entry visas as they leave the country of departure.

In approving a substitute version of the bill, offered by Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., the panel cut the number of pre-inspection stations at foreign airports from 10 to six. Three would be established within two years after the bill's enactment and another three would be set up by Nov. 1, 1995.

In response to concerns from human rights groups, the Schumer substitute would not establish pre-inspection stations in countries from which political refugees are fleeing, so as not to impede the refugees.

HR 5555 would make permanent a pilot program that allows individuals from selected countries to enter the United States without a visa as long as they stay no more than 90 days.

The legislation had strong bipartisan support.

ALASKA WILDERNESS OK'd by Merchant Marine; floor next.

A bill to add about 2.7 million acres to Alaska's wilderness areas is expected to head to the floor next week after gaining easy approval yesterday from the House Merchant Marine Committee.

Unlike other bills affecting Alaskan lands, the measure (HR 1219) was non-controversial. About 57 million acres of Alaska have already been designated as wilderness. The bulk of the area covered by the bill — about 1.9 million acres — is in the Alaska Peninsula National Wildlife Refuge.

The measure also would permit the federal government to buy back oil and gas rights to 275,000 acres of lands controlled by Aleuts in the Kodiak region. The buy-back would enable the government to better manage the lands.

The bill was approved by the Interior Committee earlier this month and is expected to be added to a long list of bills to be considered under suspension of the rules next week.

PANETTA UNVEILS plan to reduce deficit, change budget process.

Ignoring Republicans' refusal to participate in budget-reduction talks, House Budget Committee Chairman Leon E. Panetta, D-Calif., forged ahead yesterday with his own plan that aims to cut the federal deficit by $725 billion over a five-year period.

The proposal came on the same day that the Bush administration offered a midyear assessment of the economy that projects less red ink in fiscal 1992.

Officials said the deficit would be $333.5 billion, $65.9 billion less than originally thought.

With Republicans unwilling to negotiate a new budget deal and President Bush opposing any legislation that would raise taxes, Panetta acknowledged that he faced an uphill battle. But Panetta said he hoped the plan would lead to renewed efforts to reduce the budget deficit.

His proposal for fiscal 1993-98 would build on the 1990 budget agreement, which limited total spending in various categories. Most of the savings would come from reductions in entitlement spending and increases in taxes, for a total of $477 billion. Discretionary spending, which is controlled by appropriators, would be reduced by $166 billion over the five years.

The plan would also make a number of changes in the budget process. A Board of Estimates would be created, chaired by the Federal Reserve Board chairman, to decide whether to use budget estimates by the administration or Congress in determining revenue and spending levels.

The president and the congressional Budget committees would have to craft balanced budgets. A new reconciliation process would be established that would require lawmakers to reduce spending to meet budget targets or face automatic tax increases.

Yesterday, Office of Management and Budget Director Richard G. Darman attributed much of the drop in the projected deficit to the failure by Congress to provide additional money to close down failing savings and loans.

ALYESKA PROBE called for by House Interior Committee.

The House Interior Committee is set to vote next week to recommend that the Justice Department consider prosecuting the company that runs the trans-Alaska pipeline for trying to block an investigation of the company's health and safety record.

The committee released a draft of the report on its investigation yesterday.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. and its security contractor "attempted to obstruct the Interior Committee's long-standing investigation of the Exxon Valdez oil spill and environmental problems associated with Alyeska's operation of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline," said Interior Committee Chairman George Miller, D-Calif.

The report calls for the Justice Department to consider charging Alyeska and its security firm, the Wackenhut Corp., with obstruction of justice, surreptitious recording and mail and wire fraud.

Alyeska hired the security firm to spy on long-time oil industry critic Charles Hamel, who had been assisting the committee in its investigation of safety and environmental concerns.

The committee will vote to officially issue the report at its regular markup next Wednesday.

DOD MAKES PUBLIC slew of POW/MIA files.

The Defense Department yesterday released thousands of previously classified documents dealing with the 2,266 Americans still listed as missing-in-action (MIA) or prisoners-of-war (POW) in Southeast Asia.

Release of the files occurred on the same day that the Senate Select Committee on POW/MIA Affairs met to make an assessment of the administration's progress in declassifying the many thousands of files.

The Senate in a resolution (S Res 324) approved on July 2 urged the administration to act "expeditiously" to make the documents public, with the exception of those that have national security implications.

The committee was prepared to release most of the classified files it had obtained from the Pentagon if the administration had not acted.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams yesterday said that 30,000 pages of files were declassified immediately and that nearly 1.5 million pages of formerly secret files would be made public by the time the declassification process was over.

The classified files released include "live sighting" reports and several internal reports and summary reviews of the Pentagon's search for the missing.

OHIO's MILLER contests recount of primary defeat to McEwen.

Ohio Republican Rep. Clarence E. Miller filed suit yesterday in Ohio Supreme Court seeking to overturn the results of the June 2 primary that nominated Republican Rep. Bob McEwen in the 6th District. After a recount, McEwen was declared the winner by 286 votes.

The suit questions the procedures that were used to handle and count ballots in Highland and Hocking counties. It also aims to discover if voters in some Warren County precincts split between the 6th and 2nd districts voted in the wrong district.

Miller's administrative assistant, Robert A. Reintsema, said that Miller was not alleging fraud on the part of local election officials. "We're not accusing anybody," he said. "It could be just pure sloppiness." But he added, "We've been stonewalled" by Highland County election officials who have not responded to the Miller campaign's request for information.

Miller lodged a similar complaint with Ohio Secretary of State Robert A. Taft II. In a July 2 letter, Taft rejected each of Miller's allegations of irregularity.

Reintsema said that all Miller wanted was to have his questions answered. If that happens, he said, the suit "might not go beyond the discovery phase."

???? OVERLOOKED ????

Mario Cuomo on Bill Clinton: "If you make me answer his quotes, he's a dead man" (USA TODAY, 7/24/91).

*1 GOP CONVENTION: GRAMM TO KEYNOTE, MARTIN TO RE-NOMINATE NRSC chair Phil Gramm (R-TX), "a former Democrat and now a conservative Republican," was chosen to deliver the keynote address to the GOP convention. Sec/Labor Lynn Martin will nominate Bush for re-election while ex-presidents Reagan and Ford and Sec/HUD Jack Kemp will deliver "prime-time addresses." Senate Min. Leader Bob Dole will introduce Bush when Bush delivers his acceptance speech. "In a way, the convention nominating Mr. Bush for re-election could become a showcase for the 1996 campaign." Quayle, Kemp, Dole and Gramm all are considered "potential candidates" for president. ON MARTIN: Though Martin's convention speech is unlikely to focus on that divisive issue [abortion] "her prime-time slot is intended at blunting the Democrat's strategy of showcasing women candidates during their convention" (Cummings, ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, 7/24). CNN called Gramm "one of the party's best speakers." (7/23). WHAT'S GOOD FOR GRAMM: Gramm is an important speech not just for me, but for the party, for the president and for what I want to happen in the future." Gramm's prime-time speech will give him "tremendous national exposure that could pay off if he runs for president in 1996, as he has discussed." TX Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchinson, named temporary chair of the convention: "It's very important for him because Phil has not gotten the national exposure that I think will really show the vintage Phil Gramm." Gramm said he has already started working on his speech. One GOP official questioned the selection of Gramm saying "from an electoral perspective I don't know what it gets you" (Lewis/Kilday, DALLAS MORNING NEWS, 7/24). BUCHANAN: "And in a parallel to the dilemma Bill Clinton faced with Jerry Brown, there is still no word of when or whether" Pat Buchanan will speak (USA TODAY, 7/24). ABORTION AND GOP: Republicans for choice's Ann Stone is starting a "two-week political caravan" 7/27 towards Houston. The group will use a decorated van, "a kind of moving billboard," to travel through six major cities ending in Houston on 8/9. The group has been lobbying for a "voice" at the party's platform committee meetings beginning 8/10. The group warns if the GOP does not "soften" their right-to-life plank they stand to lose a growing number of GOP voters (Cobb, HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 7/23). W.S. JOURNAL notes a Houston GOP "brawl" as pro-lifers have taken over the Harris County GOP's exec. comtee. and stripped "moderate" chair Betsy Lake of "most of her powers." Dem official Ken Bentzen "chortles": "They're in total disarray" (7/24). TEXAS TIDBIT: Bush will receive a free pair of $4,500 black-alligator "custom-footwear, specially designed" for the convention. The boots will be inscribed with the words, "Home Town Boy," and emblazoned with a GOP elephant inside a red, white and blue Texas shaped patch (Payne, HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 7/23). *2 QUAYLE: NO NEWS MEANS BAD NEWS IN SUMMER SILLY SEASON L.A. TIMES' Lauter & Jehl report Bush met with a group of GOP Senators and "although the ostensible purpose was to discuss the efforts to revive the massive superconducting supercollider project, before long the discussion turned to Quayle's future." The Senators "made it clear without quite saying so that they favored keeping Quayle only because dumping him would be even more damaging. . . . Even those who ended up supporting [Quayle] had the glint of the knife about them." Although no one present "advocated dropping" the VP, "word spread quickly once more that the subject had been raised." Dem consultant Tony Podesta: "It can go like a wildfire. An absolute denial only feeds the certainty that it's true." Dem strategist Mike McCurry said a campaign "caught in the midst of such a storm" has only one way out: "They've got to figure out a good, solid way to make news every day that will distract everyone from the rumor story. They're losing control of the news cycle." But Bush has "little new to say and network news programs once again focused not on him but on Quayle" (7/24). ABC's Ann Compton: "The real source of [Quayle's] job security is the fact Quayle was George Bush's personal choice. ... Bush has found that sharp reverses can be political disaster" (7/23). CBS' Bruce Morton: "Despite all the rumors he might be dropped from the ticket, Quayle ... has sounded confident" (7/23). CNN's Bernard Shaw: "For now the President appears to have shut down the pressure within the party to dump Dan Quayle. But up on Capitol Hill, the frustration has exploded into open grumbling among Congressional [GOPers] that the President do something to get his campaign going again." CNN's Candy Crowley: "There appears to be a crisis of faith among the party faithful" (7/23). The "whispering campaign against Quayle has been intensified" by Sec/State Jim Baker's rumored return to the campaign. "The latest rumbling among insiders" is Baker's return will allow him "to exact his revenge" after Marilyn Quayle spoke in "resentful terms" in a W. POST interview about the "tight limits" Baker imposed in '88 "on what Quayle could do or say" (L.A. TIMES, 7/24). N.Y. POST cover: "GOP bigs press Bush on ... THE QUAYLE THING!" (7/24).

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING: Sen. Richard Lugar (D-IN), while "expressing support for Quayle," said "more and more of his fellow GOP lawmakers have decided Quayle must go" based on "what they have heard in their home states the last two weeks" (CNN, 7/23). "Voters aren't waiting for a vice president to leave the ticket. They're waiting for a president to lead the country" (Gigot, W.S. JOURNAL, 7/24). Sen. Minority Whip Alan Simpson: "It'd be absolutely absurd. You don't suddenly drop your wing man" (USA TODAY, 7/24). DNC Chair Ron Brown: "My sense is, he's probably going to stick with that mistake. ... Quayle is not taken seriously by the American people" ("Crossfire," CNN, 7/23). In a N.Y. TIMES op-ed, VA Dem chair Paul Goldman asks whether Quayle stepping down "would be his best strategy for a 1996 Presidential bid?" To "rebuild his political standing" Quayle has to do something "dramatic. ... Ironically, stepping down may be his sole option" (7/24). Quayle to a crowd in IN: "I'm a little envious of Murphy Brown, at least she is guaranteed of coming back this fall" (mult., CNN, 7/24).

"KEEP QUAYLE": N.Y. POST editorial: "Bush's problem ... is not Dan Quayle. ... Bush will hurt himself by forcing Quayle from the GOP ticket. ... it wasn't Dan Quayle who decided that the administration should break its pledge not to raise taxes. It wasn't Dan Quayle's idea that the war against Saddam Hussein should be stopped prematurely. ... The problem may have a bit more to do with Bush's failure to listen closely to folks who like Quayle: to the Reagan Republicans" (7/24). GREENVILLE NEWS' Hoover reports religious conservatives "stung by speculation" about dumping Quayle "have mounted a pre-emptive strike to save their favorite half." Bob Jones, founder of his own fundamentalist university: "[Quayle] is a much better man than the president, he has more spiritual vision, understanding and moral fiber" (7/24).

SUMMER REPLACEMENTS: Al Neuharth's "short list" on Quayle replacements: Sec/HUD Kemp ("because of his right wing credentials"), Sec/Def. Cheney ("the chemistry is good"), ex-Sen. Howard Baker ("effective congressional compromiser"), Elizabeth Dole and Colin Powell ("bold" moves) (USA TODAY, 7/24). SC Gov. Carrol Campbell (R) "has stated privately that he 'is not in the ballpark' should it come to replacing Quayle" but TIME suggested Campbell last year as possible Bush VP pick. Another short list: Cheney, Powell, Sec/Educ. Alexander, Kemp and E. Dole (Hoover/Flach, GREENVILLE NEWS, 7/24). "Mere mention" of Powell "leads to cheerful speculation among political handicappers" (Putzel, BOSTON GLOBE, 7/24). "Key" NY GOPers "are secretly moving to back" Kemp to replace Quayle, including an attempt to get state delegates "to commit in advance to support Kemp" in Houston. "Strong Quayle supporter"/NY GOP chair Wm Powers "confirmed" the pro-Kemp efforts (Dicker, N.Y. POST, 7/24). LA GOP chair/Pat Buchanan supporter Wm Nungesser "confided to a reporter" that "a very prominent Republican -- I can't tell you who it is" -- just told him "they're going to dump Quayle for Kemp." A senior Pentagon official "casually slipped the words 'vice president' and 'Dick Cheney' into the same sentence with a reporter." Although the aide "insisted" he did not mean to imply that he had any knowledge Cheney "might be changing jobs" he "no doubt knew the reporter would repeat the story to someone else" (Lauter/Jehl, L.A. TIMES, 7/24). Columnist Wm F. Buckley proposes Kemp (N.Y. DAILY NEWS, 7/24).

WHAT TO DO NEXT: Suggestions for a graceful exit include "his choice of any Cabinet post" to the "presidency of the Professional Golfers Association" (Neuharth, USA TODAY, 7/24).

OTHER CHANGES? Sen. Al D'Amato (R-NY) on his request to fire Darman and Nicholas Brady: "That sends a powerful message that the President understands that there is a battle here at home." Darman addressing the press: "I am now celebrating here with you all the 20th anniversary of the first request for my resignation." CNN reported D'Amato recommends putting Kemp in place of Brady (7/23).

READ MY LIPS, NOT HIS: W. POST's Balz notes Quayle put forth "the latest effort to put Bush's [tax hike] decision into the most acceptable context ... The Republicans are attempting to rewrite history." Quayle on "Larry King" 7/22: "You have to realize that this was the time right in the middle of Operation Desert Storm and Desert Shield." But Bush "broke his tax pledge" on 6/26/90, "more than a month before Iraq invaded Kuwait, and more than three months before" the infamous WH-Dems budget deal. Quayle CoS Wm Kristol said Bush's 6/26 move was merely "putting taxes on the table" (7/24).

HOOSIERS: During an IA campaign stop 7/22, Marilyn Quayle was asked "about late-night talk-show host David Letterman, who went to her high school in Indiana." Quayle "took the opportunity to take revenge for his frequent cracks about her husband": "I didn't like him when I went to school. ... Most of the girls in high school didn't like him. He was not a very nice young man" (DES MOINES REGISTER, 7/23).

*3 QUAYLE: ABORTION COMMENTS TOUCH OFF ANOTHER STORM

The VP "found himself on the defensive once again" 7/23 after his "Larry King Live" appearance, where he said he would "support" his young daughter if she -- as an adult -- chose to have an abortion. The Quayles and his staff "maintained ... the comment did not represent a softening" of his pro-life position. Quayle, at an Evansville, IN, news conference yesterday: "Under the current situation, she would have the child. We are pro-life and we are opposed to abortion" (Sack, N.Y. TIMES, 7/24).

Quayle: "I was asked a hypothetical question about my daughter. I said that I would counsel her and encourage her not to have an abortion but I would support my daughter." Quayle's comments "were notable for what [he] omitted as well as for what he said. He did not mention an opposition to abortion so fierce that he has said he would advise his wife not to have an abortion if she was raped and became pregnant" (Marcus, W. POST, 7/24). The controversy comes amid "intense" speculation on his security on the ticket, and within a month of the Supreme Court PA abortion decision "raising GOP fears that women who oppose the party's anti-abortion stance might be driven" to support Clinton. One GOP official "speculated that Quayle may have deliberately suggested a change in position as a signal to compromise on the emotional abortion question" (Shanahan, NEWHOUSE NEWS, 7/24).

SECOND-FAMILY RIFT? USA TODAY's Hall reports Marilyn Quayle "put her foot down ... on her husband's statement." In a Des Moines, IA, radio interview yesterday, Mrs. Quayle said of her 13-year-old daughter Corinne: "If she becomes pregnant, she'll take the child to term" (7/24). Mrs. Quayle said their daughter had been raised "in a Christian household" in which she was "taught to behave responsibly." When asked who would make the decision if their daughter became pregnant, Mrs. Quayle said, "We'll make it with her" (W. POST, 7/24). Mrs. Quayle said "she wasn't aware" of her husband's remarks to King during her radio interview, "when she seemed to contradict her husband." Quayle spokesperson Jeffrey Nesbitt said the Quayles were asked "different questions; hence the different answers" (NEWSDAY, 7/24).

CLINTON REAX: Quayle's statement "provided fresh ammunition" for Clinton: "I think it reinforces my position that these matters should not be turned back into crimes. ... My impression is he was asked a question that he was not prepared for, prepped for. He answered it as a father, not a Vice President" (N.Y. TIMES, 7/24). When asked what he would do if his own 12-year-old daughter became pregnant, Clinton: "I wouldn't talk to the press about it" (mult., 7/24).

OTHER REAX: House Speaker Tom Foley (D-WA): "Sounds like choice to me" (W. TIMES, 7/23). Pro-choice Rep. Nancy Johnson (R-CT): "The position that Quayle stated is a pro-choice position. Quayle's comment is a very touching recognition that when the chips are down, parents will support children because they love them" (USA TODAY, 7/24). Bush strategist Charles Black: "I thought it was a very human and personal and honest answer to the question that I guess the majority of Americans could identify with." One WH official: "He really gets on a roll and then something like the potato thing just stops it. It's too bad because the disarray and drift in the campaign has given him the opportunity and the obligation to push the edge of the envelope" (Sack, N.Y. TIMES, 7/24). CNN's Bob Franken: "Once again the [VP] had some explaining to do" (7/23). ABC's Ann Compton: "Today, abortion-rights advocates claimed it sounded as if Quayle had switched to the pro-choice side." Quayle: "Not at all. We are pro-life. We are opposed to abortion" (7/23). CBS' Bruce Morton: "Abortion rights advocates gleefully pounced on [Quayle's] new language." Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA): "It's hard to understand how you can object to other women in America having the same choice you would give your own daughter." Gov. Mario Cuomo (D-NY): "You can't make a distinction between your own blood and everybody else's daughter. Therefore, [Quayle], it seems to me, last night, came out for choice" (7/23). Republican Coalition for Choice chair Mary Dent Crisp on Mrs. Quayle: "That is the very kind of attitude that makes children, teenagers, fearful of telling their parents." Ex-Bush domestic advisor Deborah Steelman: "There is no controversy here outside the one created by a couple hundred journalists and advocates. This is a classic case of why the American people ... are turning off politics" ("GMA," ABC, 7/24).

4 A BAKER'S DOZEN SUGGESTIONS FOR NEW SECRETARY OF CAMPAIGN

Amid wide-spread assumptions that Sec/State James Baker will soon leave the State Department to take command of the campaign, the advice is coming from all directions:

STAY AT STATE: The C.S. MONITOR editorializes that his international missions "could prove even more important" (7/24). Ex-U.S. Rep./columnist Otis Pike: "There are many people who think working for peace in the Middle East is a more significant matter than running a political campaign ... It isn't that any one man can solve the infinite complexities of peace in the Middle East, but surely the Republican Party has more than one person who can handle a political campaign" (NEWHOUSE NEWS SERVICE, 7/24).

MAKE THE MOVE FROM STATE: While W. POST's Hoagland warns that the campaign task could seriously harm his reputation, he adds that campaign staff morale demands the shift: "The trial balloons have become trial dirigibles on which Bush and Baker are hoisted" (7/24). Peter Rodman, formerly with State Dept Planning told the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR that with Rabin's election in Israel, the Middle East talks don't need Baker to "knock heads together" and can be facilitated by Under Sec/State Eagleburger (7/24). Sen. Min. Leader Bob Dole: "To be very frank about it, we need help" (CNN, 7/23).

REDUCE ADVICE TO BUSH TO ONE VOICE: Hoagland quotes a long-time Bush friend: "George Bush needs to have one person he can rely on totally to give him an overall construct of what he needs to do. Lee Atwater could do that. Jim Baker can do that. There is nobody else I know that Bush trusts enough to do that" (W. POST, 7/24).

KEEP QUAYLE: Conservative direct mail specialist/activist Richard Viguerie: "He doesn't have a Dan Quayle problem; George Bush has a George Bush problem. There is major world-class anger at George Bush among conservatives. If he insults us he can kiss the election goodbye" (USA TODAY, 7/24). Columnist Gigot: "Voters aren't waiting for a vice president to leave the ticket. They're waiting for a president to lead the country" (W.S. JOURNAL, 7/24).

DUMP QUAYLE: Yesterday afternoon, Bush met with a group of GOP Senators on other subjects. "Before long the subject turned to Quayle's future, said sources familiar with the meeting. No one present advocated dropping the vice president from the ticket, the sources insisted. But word spread quickly that once more the subject had been raised. The steady drip, drip of gossip has begun to wear away at the vice president" (Lauter/Jehl, L.A. TIMES, 7/24).

REPLACE QUAYLE WITH COLIN POWELL: Powell's name "leads to cheerful speculation among political handicappers. ... As the first black on a national party ticket, Powell also could be expected to draw black voters from the Democratic party" (Putzel, BOSTON GLOBE, 7/24).

SERVE AS ECONOMIC CZAR: CSM's Ingwerson says he would probable come to the White House as "as economic policy czar ... with authority to coordinate both the campaign and White House affairs (7/24).

NEW ECONOMIC PACKAGE FOR CONGRESS: Evans & Novak report that under White House consideration are new ideas for an economic legislative initiative -- ranging from a Darman package of "Bush stand-bys" not including any capital gains tax cut, to a Bentsen-backed package of modest research and development tax credits (W. POST, 7/24).

AN EXECUTIVE ORDER TO INDEX CAPITAL GAINS: Supply-siders have recommended the White House ask the Attorney General to review the legality of such a step to bypass Congress altogether (Evans & Novak, W. POST, 7/24).

ECONOMIC GROWTH PLANK IN GOP PLATFORM: That is a current proposal made by HUD/Sec. Jack Kemp and retiring Rep. Vin Weber (R-MN) yesterday to Skinner, Darman, Teeter, Malek. The platform plank would "emphasize economic growth through a series of tax cuts rather than cutting the deficit" (W. POST, 7/24).

ECONOMIC PROGRAM: N.Y. DAILY NEWS' Nelson quotes a "desperate" GOP Senator: "Bush has just got to get out there and fight for things like economic growth and home ownership. On the other hand, who would believe him?" (7/24).

*5 BUSH: ECONOMY REPORT PREVIEW OF CONGRESS-BASHING STRATEGY?

"In a mid-year recalculation apparently motivated by election year [politics] as much as economic considerations," the WH said Bush's econ. program could "eliminate the Federal deficit by 1998 if Congress were to pass it." Meanwhile, House Budget Cmte chair Leon Panetta (D-CA) introduced a bill that "would obligate the President and Congress to eliminate the deficit within five years" by mandating tax increases, and across-the-board spending cuts -- including Social Security (Greenhouse, N.Y. TIMES, 7/24). Presenting the midyear budget report, OMB dir. Richard Darman: "If the president's full program had been adopted in 1989, we wouldn't have had the recession" (W. POST, 7/24). W.S. JOURNAL's Wessel notes the WH report "still foresees a slow but steady economic recovery this year and barely altered the forecast it made in January" (7/24). W.S. JOURNAL cites a source at a Cabinet meeting quoting HUD/Sec. Jack Kemp on the economy: "People can forgive the past. They can't forgive a lack of vision" (7/24). C.S. MONITOR's Dillin writes Bush strategist Charles Black says Bush "has always known it was possible to lose this race" over the economy (7/24). BOSTON GLOBE's Gosslein: "A bid to reclaim the political upper hand." House Maj. Leader Dick Gephardt said Darman was trying to "rewrite history in ways that would make Orwellian propagandists jealous." Bush officials "apparently decided to pull their punches at the last minute, criticizing Congress in general terms but avoiding specific charges and not setting deadlines." Congressional GOPers said Bush aides "are divided about whether attacks on Congress can help or hurt Bush, and have decided to wait until [Sec/State Jim] Baker joins the campaign to resolve the matter" (7/24). S.F. CHRONICLE's Lochhead reports Bush "is ready to step up attacks on Congress in an attempt to blame Democrats" for higher spending and greater deficits." But she highlights conservative complaints about "a domestic spending spree" under Bush's watch (7/24). NBC's John Cochran paraphrasing Darman: "Whatever's wrong is not our fault." Bob Dole "is so worried ... he privately warned [Bush] that he must take bold action. ... That's the same message from another respected Republican." Retiring Rep. Vin Weber (R-MN): "[Bush] needs to take bold action, he needs to take it now." Cochran: "Weber's concern is important because the Bush campaign has asked him to help out as one of its co-chairmen" (7/23).

IRAQ: W. POST's Smith & Devroy report the U.S., Britain and France have agreed to call for an ultimatum, "possibly as early as this weekend," demanding Iraq respect the U.N. orders or face possible military action (7/24). N.Y. TIMES' A.M. Rosenthal: "By keeping Saddam in power after he lost the gulf war, the U.S. made a historic error from which there is no one-track way out short of another all-out war" (7/24). N.Y. TIMES editorial: "Time to Punish Hussein -- Again" (7/24). USA TODAY editorial: "U.S., U.N. must bring Saddam Hussein to heel." Cato Inst.'s T.G. Carpenter in opposing editorial: "Don't risk more gulf folly" (USA TODAY, 7/24). NBC's Fred Francis, quoting a senior administration official: "'Hussein is playing with a loaded gun.' ... The belief here ... is that Iraq could face ... several days of air strikes in about a week" (7/23). Clinton: "Let Saddam Hussein make no mistake: even during an election campaign, Americans are united on this issue. ... We will not tolerate his defiance of U.N. resolutions" (PBS, 7/23). Iraqi UN Amb. Al-Anbari on "Iraqgate": "I'd rather not comment on any American domestic issue" (7/23).

GAY CROSSFIRE: Ex-Bush-Quayle campaign worker Tyler Franz, whose story was broken by ABC's "Nightline" and W.S. JOURNAL, continues to bathe in media attention. On CNN's "Inside Politics": "It was a matter of a campaign policy and anti-gay rhetoric becoming personal policy, and I lost my job because of it." Bush spokesperson Tony Mitchell: "We offered Franz another position here. ... The offer and resignation had nothing to do with his being gay. That is not the issue" (7/23). On CNN's "Larry King Live," King read a STATES NEWS report of one Bush aide's view: "Franz was leaking information about the campaign to the newspapers. We were trying to figure out how to keep him away from sensitive materials, and a demotion seemed the only way." Log Cabin Federation's Richard Tafel: "Bush would have to do a lot of house cleaning to get my support right now." Franz on if he noticed a difference in the Bush wing of the campaign and the Quayle wing: "I most definitely did. ... It was a polarization between the moderate Republicans in the campaign and the evangelical right" (7/23). Conservative activist Rev. Louis Sheldon: "He came into that office to create trouble. ... tried to move up in his mind to oversee policy, then began to call people like me and threaten me with all kinds of things." On homosexuality: "There's no other issue, even more so than abortion, that galvanizes the Republican party." Republicans for Choice's Ann Stone: "We have to show tolerance ... the voices that are being heard in many areas of the country are ones of intolerance and those sorts are getting a vocal position in the party and that's driving people away." Stone on choice: "Choice is absolutely the most divisive issue facing this party ... both women and men are saying the party is betraying its base philosophy" ("Nightline," ABC, 7/23). W. POST "Style" piece highlights the "split ... between gays and evangelicals" in the GOP (Brown, 7/24). W. TIMES' Hallow reports evangelicals, "boiling with anger" at Bush, said Bush and Quayle "need to 'come clean' on homosexual rights or risk being deserted by millions of evangelicals" (7/24). N.Y. POST's Nicholson's lead: "Bush is willing to accept an openly gay secretary of defense -- but not gay soldiers." Bush campaign's Mitchell admitted it would be "ironic to have a gay defense secretary discharging soldiers because they are gay" (7/24).

ALSO: In a "show of bipartisan unity," Bush signed a $100B measure increasing access to college loans and grants for middle-class students (Neuffer, BOSTON GLOBE, 7/24). W. POST's Dewar notes concern among GOP candidates this year over Bush's prospects. Frosh Rep. John Boehner (R-OH): "Some [of us] are getting rather desperate. There's a lot of fear and concern that no one's in charge down there" at the WH (7/24). W. POST's McAllister and W. TIMES' Murray note a report by Rep. Paul Kanjorski (D-PA) which finds that WH employees are exempt from many ethics, civil rights, and labor laws. Bush has criticized Congress for exempting itself and its staff from similar laws (7/24). BOSTON PHOENIX's Jurkowitz hits press coverage of Bush health rumors: While reporters "displayed responsibility and maturity by ignoring the [7/17] appearance of another alleged Clinton bimbo on the talk-schlock 'Sally Jessy Raphael' show, they betrayed a lazy, reckless side by putting the Bush-health scuttlebutt into play." TIME's Carlson: "The smoking thyroid is coming a little early," adding her magazine plans a "major piece" on Bush's health in the fall (7/24 issue).

TODAY: Bush will "toss horseshoes and talk about family values" in Brookville, OH, a small town near Dayton. CINCINNATI ENQUIRER's Wilkinson notes the Clinton-Gore caravan also "shied away from the state's industrial urban centers and concentrated on the small-town, rural vote" (7/24).

6 CRIME: CLINTON HITS BUSH WITH '88-STYLE BACKYARD ATTACK

"In a move made as much for symbolism as substance," Clinton traveled to Bush's "hometown" of Houston "to launch an assault on [Bush] over territory that has been the province of the GOP for a dozen years -- crime" (Decker, L.A. TIMES, 7/24). "Surrounded by dozens of police officers," Clinton "dismissed what he called 'administration rhetoric' on crime": "The fact is, we are No. 1 in the world in percentages of people we have behind bars, and we're only 13th in wages. I want to reverse those numbers." Clinton's national crime strategy calls for "hiring 100,000 police officers and banning some semiautomatic weapons and ammunition"; passage of the Brady Bill, which calls for a seven-day waiting period before purchase of a handgun; tougher penalties for white-collar crime, including enviro offenders; a "safe school plan," with increased funding for metal detectors, security, mentor and counseling programs, and "greater authority for schools to search lockers and automobiles." Clinton "walked a thin line" on the death penalty. "A fact sheet on Clinton's proposal does not mention the role of the death penalty in his national plan," but a section on Clinton's AR record "notes his support for the measure, adding that he 'has signed executive orders for cop-killers and multiple murderers.'" Clinton did not mention the death penalty in his speech" (Frisby, BOSTON GLOBE, 7/24). By appearing with police officers, Clinton "borrowed a prop used frequently by Bush in 1988" (Walsh, W. POST, 7/24). USA TODAY's Nagourney reports, when Clinton praised the Brady Bill, the crowd, "which had waited an hour and had been pelted by intermittent thundershowers, responded with a definite smattering of boos" (7/24). Clinton, on the Brady Bill: "I don't see how a President can ask men and women to put on uniforms and risk their lives to keep the rest of us safe if he won't risk a little political capital" (L.A. TIMES, 7/24). Clinton, "alluding" to Willie Horton: "Four years ago this crime issue was used to divide America. I want to use it to unite America. I want to be tough on crime and good for civil rights. You can't have civil justice without order and safety." Clinton's appearance "was clearly designed to preempt similar Republican attacks this year" (Ifill, N.Y. TIMES, 7/24). AP put the crowd at about 2,500 (PHILA. INQUIRER, 7/24). The event "signaled yet again" that Clinton has learned from Dukakis' experience. The campaign "has come out of the convention mimicking Bush's 1988 tactics." The Houston event "precisely duplicated" Bush's '88 endorsement by Boston police. "The symbolism of Clinton's decision to Bush-bash in Houston was unmistakable" (Decker, L.A. TIMES, 7/24).

TV: Network evening news did not cover Clinton in Houston. In this a.m.'s reports, all three networks showed pictures of Clinton with the officers in Houston. CBS showed pictures of Clinton speaking in front of and shaking hands with the officers. CBS' Bill Plante: "Clinton was taking a page from the Republicans' 1988 playbook when George Bush went to Michael Dukakis's backyard to be endorsed by a police union. This time it was Clinton accepting the endorsement." International Union of Police's Bob Kliesmet was then shown giving his backing to Clinton. Plante reported Clinton announced his support of the Brady Bill, but gave no indication of the crowd response ("CBS This Morning," 7/24). ABC's Mike Schneider reports Clinton "sounded off on one the president's favorite themes -- law and order." Over pictures of Clinton flanked with uniformed police officers, Schneider added, "Clinton charged the president with talking tough on crime and then cutting federal aid to local police departments" ("Good Morning America," ABC, 7/24). Over shots of Clinton waving to the crowd and mingling among the cops, NBC's Ann Curry reported Clinton "was speaking on a platform crowded with police officers" ("Today," NBC, 7/24).

GOP RESPONSE: W. POST's Walsh reports GOP officials "have already signaled that they regard Clinton also to be vulnerable on the crime issue." Bush adviser Charles Black: "Governor Clinton talked for 53 minutes [in his acceptance speech] and had one sentence on crime. ... I predict to you, crime and drugs, law and order, safety in neighborhoods, will be a very major issue in this election, and we're the ones on the side of change" (7/24). RNC chair Rich Bond delivered a response to Clinton's anti-crime talk at Houston's Astrodome, the site of the GOP convention. Bond "attempted to link" Clinton to controversial rapper Ice-T "by noting that Time Warner, whose records subsidiary marketed Ice-T's inflammatory 'Cop Killer' rap song, contributed $500,000" to New York '92, a "non-partisan group that helped stage" the Dem convention in NYC. Bond: "I'm not saying Bill Clinton agrees in the least with Ice-T, but by accepting half-a-million dollars from Time Warner to run his convention, Gov. Clinton condones the actions and business practices of those who would perpetuate violence in our society." In an effort to "better acquaint the Houston media with Ice-T, Bond had film footage of the rapper advocating the burning of the White House shown on one of the Astrodome's large video screens." DNC spokesperson Jim Desler: "We find those lyrics to be completely offensive. This is simply the Republicans stretching and stretching for something because they lack programs and policies to push themselves." HOUSTON CHRONICLE's Roth notes Six Flags, a Time Warner subsidiary owns Asterworld, an amusement park next to the Dome (7/24). Columnist Jeff Greenfield: "Domestic security is a much harder sell against Bill 'I've presided-over-four-executions' Clinton than it was against Michael 'ACLU' Dukakis" (N.Y. POST, 7/24).

POLICE ENDORSEMENT: Clinton was endorsed by the International Police Associations. CNN's Gene Randall: "Clinton is clearly sending a message to George Bush that he will not get a free ride on crime this year" ("Inside Politics," CNN, 7/23).

*7 CLINTON: DECISION TIME COMING ON FREE TRADE

N.Y. TIMES' Rosenbaum notes the trade agreement the "Bush Administration is about to conclude with Mexico will present Bill Clinton with one of his first important policy decisions of the general election." By endorsing the agreement, Clinton will "alienate labor unions, some environmentalists and other legs of his political base. But he will be praised by most academic experts and business interests and will burnish his argument that economic growth is the most important issue of the campaign." Clinton "must decide ... to close off an area of debate with [Bush] and paint himself as an enlightened free-trader, or ... to seize the opportunity to attack the president's competency and say, 'I could negotiate a better deal.'" Until now "Clinton has been able to buy time" saying he believes in the principle of free-trade but "withholding judgment on the pact" until the details come out. "The Bush campaign relishes the issue because it puts Mr. Clinton on the spot." One Clinton chief economic adviser said he thought Clinton "would have to take a firm stand because he could not afford to have the [GOPers] accuse him of dogging an issue involving economic growth." House Maj. Leader Dick Gephardt (D-MO), who has seen drafts of the agreement, told associates that in a speech he will say that the drafts he has seen so far "do not meet his criteria for supporting the agreement." The "prevailing view among Democrats" is that Gephardt "would not take such a public stance on the trade agreement unless he had cleared it first with" Clinton (7/24).

BRING IN THE GREEN-INFORCEMENTS: Clinton named Brett Hulsey as the campaign's new environmental policy advisor. Hulsey was the Sierra Club's Great Lakes Program Director, "where he managed coastal protection, sediment cleanup, and clean air issues in five mid-western states" (release, 7/23). Sen. Tim Wirth (D-CO) said "he will play what may be a major role" in the campaign. "This could include helping woo the Western vote, a feat that may not come too naturally for Clinton and Gore." Asked if he would accept an appointment to head the EPA under Clinton, Wirth: "You never say never to anything" (Boulder DAILY CAMERA, 7/23).

FAMILY VALUES: Charles Krauthammer writes Dems "take indignant offense at the whole 'family values' issue. Real family values, declare the Democrats, means providing welfare and education and health care to families rather than crusading against the culture. But why make the distinction? ... If Democrats would stop portraying this as a Dan Quayle (ha, ha) issue and help forge a national consensus against this stuff [offensive lyrics or violence in TV and movies], the culture makers might begin to listen" (W. POST, 7/24). Raleigh NEWS & OBSERVER's Guillory writes, from Dukakis's experience in '88, Clinton and Gore "seem to have learned ... a lesson about the power of image and symbolism -- and about the importance of candidates building personal connections to voters. ... To appeal to voters only in the political dimension of their lives is to miss the many other dimensions -- familial, economic, religious, cultural and social -- in which people live" (7/24).

PLAGIARISM IS SUCH AN UGLY WORD: COPLEY's Barabak examines Clinton's adoption of themes from his Dem primary opponents and his use of a Bush line in his acceptance speech ("Now that we have changed the world, it's time to change America.") The line drew quick attacks from Bush officials "on Clinton's character and judgment." Barabak: "Four years ago, the plagiarism charge sparked a conflagration that consumed Biden's presidential hopes. But this week's attack on Clinton produced barely a wisp of smoke, and that was swiftly dispersed by prevailing political winds" (S.D. UNION-TRIBUNE, 7/24). CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Clarence Page: "Next thing you know, [Clinton will] be asking us if we're better off now than we were four years ago" (W. TIMES, 7/24).

PROFILES: N.Y. TIMES' Roberts profiles Convention manager Harold Ickes, who "has emerged, more than anyone, as Mr. Clinton's man in New York. ... Ickes now appears likely to play a national role in the Clinton campaign" (7/24). W. POST's Grove profiles DLC exec. dir. Al From. The "ascension of Clinton ... represents a stunning victory for From and company." The Gore pick "was more cause for celebration" (7/24).

ALSO: N.Y. POST subhead over Ed Koch column: "Dem move to center wins my prez vote" (7/24). Jesse Jackson will make a two-day swing today starting in Chicago and ending in MS, "in part to support" the ticket. Jackson: "While we have not talked with the Clinton campaign people about their strategies and priorities, our work continues with supporting worthy candidates, with voter registration and with organizing workers" (L.A. TIMES, 7/24). W. POST header: "Business Executives Eye Clinton" (7/24).

*8 PEROT: VOLUNTEERS LOOK TO RE-GROUP

MA: Ex-Perot organizers reached "a very strong consensus" to "retool their grass-roots network as a force in the state's congressional races." The group "will feature 10 grass-roots committees in each of the state's congressional districts and a single steering panel." Perot MA co-chair Richard Norman "conceded" the "retooling effort faces a number of significant hurdles." Norman: "Cynics say that without a leader and dealing strictly with issues, you won't have any support. We may have to deal with that down the road." Details such as a name for the group and formal establishment are "still being discussed" and with Perot "making it clear he intends to stay on the ballot" the group's "energies and attention" could "wind up being significantly diffused" (Cafasso, BOSTON HERALD, 7/23).

MD: "A technicality" in MD state law "could help" Gov. William Schaefer (D) "in his effort to get Ross Perot off the ballot." In order to keep his name on the ballot, Perot "must notify the state elections board of his choice of a running mate" by 9/25. Schaefer had written a letter to Perot, "asking him to formally remove his name from the ballot 'in the best interest of the voters'" of MD. Executive manager of the Montgomery Co. Patriot Party, formerly part of the MD Perot petition drive, Peggy Wigle said Schaefer "had no right to do that. People of this state put Mr. Perot's name on the ballot. We spoke, that was our wish." A Perot spokesman said Perot "plans to comply with all legal requirements in order to get on the ballot in the 50 states." The spokesman said if Schaefer requires a letter, "that letter will be forthcoming" (Sarris, BALTO. SUN, 7/24).

MO: State election officials said MO voters "are likely to see" Perot's name on their 11/3 ballot. Volunteers turned in more than 135,000 signatures 7/20, "more than six times" the number needed. Sec./state Roy Blunt (R) said Perot had "filed the necessary statement" to put his name on the ballot. Blunt said Perot sent a letter, dated 7/17, that left "no official doubt about Perot's willingness to have his name on the Missouri ballot as a candidate." Perot volunteer Anne Clark "said it still remained unclear exactly what course Perot would chart and what course his supporters would follow" (Gillerman, S.L. POST-DISPATCH, 7/21). "While some ex-Perotians attended" the Clinton-Gore S.L. rally 7/22, "most appear to be sitting out the race for now." Volunteer Mary Bean: "In order to keep the movement going, we have to stick together" adding "we were empowered, and we're holding on to our power." Bean: "It's like a divorce, a lot of these people are still in denial" (Poor, S.L. POST-DISPATCH, 7/23).

SC: Volunteers plan to submit more than 50,000 signatures 7/29, "a move that could diminish Republican chances of carrying" S.C. State laws require 10,000 signatures. Dem leaders "were ecstatic." Columbia Mayor Bob Coble (D): "From a purely tactical standpoint, it will give Bill Clinton some advantage." Coble "invited" Perot supporters to "consider" Clinton, but didn't "discourage" them from voting for Perot 11/3. Perot volunteer Betty Montgomery: "Our mission in the beginning was to put this man on the ballot, and that's what we're going to do." She added, "If President Bush and Bill Clinton don't address the issues, some people will cast protest votes for Perot" (Bandy, Columbia STATE, 7/23).

VA: "Virginians for Perot will disband" and members "will decide whether they want to form another political group." The group's board decided volunteers "should decide whether they want to reorganize" after Perot's withdrawal. In a statement, the board wrote, "Since this is a grass roots organization, the ultimate decisions and structure of the new organization will have to be made at the local level" (FAIRFAX JOURNAL, 7/24).

OTHER: N.Y. DAILY NEWS reports ex-Perot co-chair Ed Rollins "is coming back" to his job as a "political analyst" for "CBS This Morning." NBC's "Today" which had "picked up Rollins when he left CBS as an unpaid participant in its Tuesday political panel," said "no decision" has been made on whether Rollins will continue on their show as well (7/24). CNN reported that Perot "is likely" to go on TV to announce a line by line budget for the country ("Inside Politics," 7/23). L.A. TIMES' John Broder writes a lengthy highlight story of the Perot campaign. The beginning of the article takes a scene from Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman." "For a salesman, there is no rock bottom to the life, he don't put a bolt to a nut, he don't tell you the law or give you medicine. He's a man way out there in the blue, riding on a smile and a shoeshine. And when they start not smiling back -- that's an earthquake. And then you get yourself a couple of spots on your hat, and you're finished. Nobody dast blame this man. A salesman is got to dream, boy. It comes with the territory" (7/24). PHILA. INQUIRER's B.J. Phillips writes to Perot supporters, "I'm here to tell them that they've got a second chance. There is hope." "His name is Jack Trinsey, and he's going to run for president. In fact, he plans to literally take Perot's place on the ballot and his campaign money as well." Trinsey, a real estate developer, "went to federal court the other day in Dallas to press his claim as the self-anointed heir" to Perot's candidacy. Trinsey: "The independent movement isn't going to die because Jack Trinsey came along and said he wouldn't let it die." Trinsey's legal course was denied by the judge, but Trinsey plans to appeal the decision. "Any way you look at it, the guy's a perfect fit. Jack Trinsey belongs in Washington, and Ross Perot should give him the money to get there. After all, one good con man deserves another" (7/24). '80 presidential candidate John Anderson (I) writes, "I had my name on the ballot in all 50 states and for a time my standing was over 20 percent. ... Yet in the end I only received about 7 percent of the vote." He adds, "Watching the distraught Ross Perot volunteers react to his withdrawal, I was struck by the tragedy that so many Americans want to be involved, want to make a difference, yet keep being disillusioned by broken promises and teflon bureaucracies. Don't we owe them the right to have as much of a voice as possible? I believe we do. A vote is a terrible thing to waste" (N.Y. TIMES, 7/24).

*9 GORE: EXCERPTS FROM C-SPAN INTERVIEW

Gore was interviewed 7/22 by C-SPAN's Brian Lamb. The half-hour taped program will air 7/26 at 10:00 p.m., following a half-hour interview with Clinton that was taped the same day. The Clinton transcript has not yet been released. Gore, on getting along with Clinton: "One among many reasons why the American people are responding so enthusiastically to what we're saying is that I think they really do sense the kind of team work and partnership that we have. ... We work together well because we share the same goals: universal health insurance ... environmental protection, creating millions of new jobs." Gore, asked about Perot's idea of an electronic town hall: "I like the idea, myself. I liked a good many things that Ross Perot said. And I said that before he got out of the race -- unlike Bush and Quayle ... who criticized him, called him a 'temperamental tycoon' and 'paranoid' and continued criticizing him after he got out of the race. That's all they seem to know how to do is just to criticize and point the finger of blame and make excuses and I really think that's one of the reasons the American people are fed up with politics, and they want to see this whole campaign be about more than politics." Lamb, noting only one VP debate is part of the Presidential Commission on Debate's package for the fall, asked whether Gore wanted more. Gore: "I haven't really thought about it. Suits me either way. ... I like debates, but I'm not going to make a big deal out of it" (C-SPAN release, 7/23).

*10 STATE UPDATES

AZ: The Rocky Mountain Poll, conducted 7/11-15 by Behavior Research Center, surveyed 708 adults; margin of error +/- 4% (BRC release, 7/22). NOTE: "Perot supporters" indicates those who backed Perot in the 3-way who were called back 7/16 upon the news that Perot had quit the race. Results in GOP-leaning Maricopa Co. come from an ASU/KAET poll of 400 registered voters conducted 7/19-20; margin of error +/- 5% (ARIZONA REPUBLIC, 7/24).

		PEROT			ASU/KAET
2-WAY	ALL	SUPPORTERS	3-WAY		MARICOPA COUNTY
Clinton	50%	42%	Clinton	28%	40%
Bush	37	25	Perot	26	--
Perot (vol.)	4	9	Bush	23	30
Undec.	9	24	Undec.	23	30

BRC pollster Earl de Berge: "This is the first time in over 26 years of polling in Arizona that we have seen a Democratic presidential candidate in the lead. And recalling that Arizona voters have favored Republican candidates in every election since 1948, Clinton's current lead portends a spirited election and a real potential for departure from traditional voting patterns" (release, 7/22). AZ Dem exec. dir. Melodee Jackson: "Maricopa County doesn't reflect what's happening statewide, but it certainly is encouraging" (REPUBLIC, 7/24).

CA: Bush senior adviser Charles Black said Perot's withdrawal "has lessened what had been seen as a critical need to beat Clinton in [CA], with its price of 54 electoral votes." Black: "We might not need to win California. ... [But] it's hard to create a scenario in which the Democrats can win without California." Clinton senior strategist James Carville agreed: "We know we have to win California. That is a given. California is critical" (Condon, COPLEYS.D. UNION-TRIBUNE, 7/23).

LA: N.O. TIMES-PICAYUNE's Jack Wardlaw writes, the "swing" vote in LA stems from the old George Wallace vote -- "conservative Democrats, mostly inhabitants of small towns, who tend to stay with the party in state races, but abandon it wholesale when the national party nominates for president someone they regard as too liberal. ... One things that could help the [Dems] would be a runoff in the newly created black-majority [CD] that sprawls across the state from the Shreveport area to the Baton Rouge area. Such a runoff likely would boost black turnout." Wardlaw also notes that GOPers "have established a pattern of winning" LA, but as gov. of a neighboring state, Clinton "is positioned to break that pattern, more so than any Democrat since Carter in 1976" (7/22).

MD: Balto. EVENING SUN's Frank DeFilippo writes, "If Bill Clinton thinks he can waltz through [MD] just because he's a Democrat, he'd better take a good look at the primary election returns. ... there's a brooding question over black voter turnout." Clinton has "got to claim the white-bread suburbs he lost to Paul Tsongas in the primary. That will be much easier said than accomplished" (7/23).

MA: BOSTON PHOENIX's Keller queries, "How bad is it for George Bush? In [MA] -- a state that twice delivered a plurality for Ronald Reagan and that is in the midst of a three-year Republican roll -- it's very bad. So bad that GOP congressional candidates blanch at the notion of Bush campaigning on their behalf, and calculate ways of sidestepping the president's tumbling carcass. So bad that even anti-tax independents who've been allergic to Democratic presidential candidates for years are openly considering voting for Bill Clinton. So bad that even a modest [Bush] pep rally holds the prospect of angry protesters storming the gates" (7/24).

NH: Clinton NH dir. Ricia McMahon says the Clinton camp will make only a "'minimal' effort -- financially speaking -- in the Granite State, which has but four electoral votes and hasn't gone" Dem in a pres. race since '64. But McMahon said "she is encouraged by a flood of phone calls from would-be volunteers" (Manchester UNION LEADER, 7/23).

SC: Perot SC coordinator Jon Pruett joined RNC chair Rich Bond last week in "urging Perot supporters to combine their energies with the Bush campaign." But Perot petition organizers insisted Pruett "speaks only for himself." Ex-Gov. Dick Riley (D) "questioned" the request: "I don't see how many of them can go back to Bush. It's a step in the wrong directions" (Perry, GREENVILLE NEWS, 7/18). Within hours of Perot's withdrawal, "press releases inviting Perot supporters into the GOP fold were faxed to the media" by Gov. Carroll Campbell (R) and Sen. Strom Thurmond (R). Thurmond commended Perot supporters as "patriotic and committed," while Campbell promoted Bush's experience. Either Gore or Hillary Clinton are expected to appear in SC 7/27 for the Gallivants Ferry Stump, "which usually offers the biggest gathering of candidates in the state" (ROCK HILL HERALD, 7/20).

*11 ARIZONA: MCCAIN JUST BELOW 50% AGAINST LITTLE-KNOWN DEMS
 The Rocky Mountain Poll, conducted 7/11-15 by Behavior Research Center, surveyed 708 adults; margin of error +/- 4%. (BRC release, 7/23). Candidates: Sen. John McCain (R), Claire Sargent (D), ret. Air Force Gen. Truman Spangrud (D). Primary date is 9/8. Also tested: Sen. Dennis DeConcini (D).

DEM DEBATE: Before the Dem group, the Nucleus Club, Spangrud called himself "the only candidate not blemished by the S&L scandal." Spangrud to Sargent: "How would you handle McCain and the S&L scandal when you are being sued -- by name -- by the RTC?" Sargent and her husband, Henry Sargent, are named in a suit brought by the RTC against executives of Pinnacle West, the holding company for the failed MeraBank thrift. Henry is VP/CFO of Pinnacle West. Sargent said she was only named in the suit due to AZ's community property laws and "dismissed the charge as unfair and irrelevant": "I'm running for office, not my husband." Sargent took a shot at Spangrud saying he, like McCain, moved to AZ to run for office: "Unlike the general and the senator, I did not come to Arizona from the halls of the Pentagon only to seek another job in Washington." Spangrud, who referred to himself throughout the debate as "Truman," said although he moved to AZ last year, he's paid taxes and had legal residence there for 39 years. Both candidates agreed on opposing a ban on gays in the military and are pro-choice (Williams, REPUBLIC, 7/24).

12 ILLINOIS: MARILYN QUAYLE STUMPS FOR WILLIAMSON

"In a pitch" for atty Rich Williamson (R), Marilyn Quayle "left no doubt ... that the voting power of women concerns more than just Democrats": "I find it incredibly offensive for anyone to tell me as a woman that I'm going to vote for a woman because of her gender" (Janota, Arlington Heights DAILY HERALD, 7/23). Quayle: "It's very unfortunate that women have been sold a bill of goods that says women can only support women candidates. ... Women are smarter than that" (CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 7/23). Under header "Republican bastion bends to hear Braun," CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Kuczka writes, Cook Co. Recorder of Deeds Carol Moseley Braun (D) had Dems "hanging from the rafters" at a "standing-room-only crowd of more than 600 -- three times as many as expected" at Harper College in the northwest suburbs of Chicago (7/23). Clinton and Gore "touted" Braun at the Centralia, IL stop on their bus tour and Braun is planning a statewide bus tour of her own (SUN-TIMES, 7/22). In a profile of Williamson manager Tim Meyer, CHICAGO TIMES' Johnson writes, "[He] has never run a statewide campaign and is not exactly an old Illinois hand" but "he has hit the ground running" (7/20).

13 NEW HAMPSHIRE: LABOR ENDORSES RAUH, ANGERS BENNETT

The NH AFL-CIO "unanimously" endorsed businessman John Rauh (D), saying he has "demonstrated a strong commitment to the issues facing working people," such as rebuilding the economy and "revamping" of the healthcare system (AFL-CIO release, 7/22). The endorsement prompted physician Terry Bennett (D) to go "ballistic": "[Rauh] has taken anti-union positions all throughout his life ... I'm stunned by this. I really am" (Distaso, Manchester UNION LEADER, 7/23). Meanwhile, Rauh released a campaign finance reform plan 7/21, which calls for limiting contributions to $100, financing federal campaigns through tax returns and placing a cap on election spending (NASHUA TELEGRAPH, 7/22). Bennett on the plan: "Rauh has managed to put the world asleep all over again" (CONCORD MONITOR, 7/22).

SWEETNESS & LIGHT ON THE GOP SIDE, TOO: Businessman Hal Eckman (R) "accused" Gov. Judd Gregg (R) of "blatant fraud" for transferring $219,479 from his gov. campaign fund to his Senate fund. He said Gregg "deliberately cheated" those who contributed to his gov. fund: "This is a classic example of the morally bankrupt politician who has led this state and country into trouble." Gregg dir. Joe Maiola: "This is yet another example of negative campaigning that people are turned off by" (FOSTER'S DAILY DEMOCRAT, 7/17).

14 NORTH CAROLINA: SANFORD'S "SHARP UPSWING" OPENS 24% LEAD

A Mason-Dixon Political/Media Research poll, conducted 7/17-20, surveyed 834 likely voters; margin of error +/- 3.5% (Greensboro NEWS & RECORD, 7/24). Tested: Sen. Terry Sanford (D), ex-Commerce Sec. Lauch Faircloth (R). The '90 Senate race was between Sen. Jesse Helms (R) and ex-Charlotte mayor Harvey Gantt (D).

	ALL	4/92	MEN	WOM	WHT	BLK	FAV / UNFAV	ID
Sanford	55%	47%	53%	57%	49%	78%	40% / 25%	100%
Faircloth	31	38	35	27	36	9	30 / 19	93

AMONG '90 VOTERS	HELMS	GANTT	JOB PERF.	SANFORD	HELMS
Sanford	33%	83%	Excellent	4%	8%
Faircloth	42	12	Good	45	35
Undec.	25	5	Fair	35	25
			Poor	7	30

The poll shows a "sharp upswing" for Sanford who called the results "cautiously encouraging": "I'm glad to see the polls are holding, but I'm really going to cover the state now." Faircloth "said the results are wrong." Sanford's favorable rating remained at 40% from the last poll, but his unfavorable dropped slightly. Mason-Dixon's Brad Coker: "This is an indication that his support could be soft" (Effron, NEWS & RECORD, 7/24).

15 SOUTH CAROLINA: HARTNETT RELEASES ECONOMIC RECOVERY PLAN

Ex-Rep. Tommy Hartnett (R) released an 8-point economic reform plan 7/21 calling for a capital gains tax and a flexible 4% cap on federal spending. Sen. Fritz Hollings' (D) spokesperson Andy Brack called Hartnett "a Johnny-come-lately to the battle to get this country moving," adding Hartnett "legitimizes more government spending by allowing increases" while Hollings favors a spending freeze (Cooper, GREENVILLE NEWS, 7/23). Hollings called the budget deficit a "fiscal cancer on the body politic" that must be cut in half in the next five years. Hollings also defended his opposition to the Gulf War: "Kuwait is not worth the life of a single G.I." (Sumter ITEM, 7/18). When he stumped for Hartnett 7/17, HUD/Sec. Jack Kemp called Hollings "a bleeding heart liberal": "Of all the races in America for Congress in 1992, in my view, this is the most important" (FLORENCE MORNING NEWS, 7/18).

16 WASHINGTON: CHANDLER ATTACKS ENDANGERED SPECIES ACT

Rep. Rod Chandler (R-08) on the House floor 7/22 "attacked" the Endangered Species Act by proposing to cut off federal spending for the listing of new fish and wildlife. Chandler, the "front-runner" for the GOP nomination, called the act "rigid, it is inflexible, it is used by preservationists as a tool to shut down many industries in this country." Rep. Les AuCoin (D-OR), running for the Senate in neighboring OR, criticized Chandler's effort to "gut" the act: "You can sprinkle pixie dust all you want. You can repeal the Endangered Species Act if you want, but you are not going to restore one timber job" (Sonner, AP/Bellevue JOURNAL AMERICAN, 7/23).

===== ON THE HOUSE =====

17 HOUSE POST OFFICE (AND BANK): ROSTY SUBPOENAED

W. TIMES' Rodriguez reports Reps. Dan Rostenkowski (D-IL), Joe Kolter (D-PA) and Austin Murphy (D-PA) have been subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury by U.S. Atty Jay Stephens in connection with the House Post Office criminal investigation. Stephen previously subpoenaed records from the 3 Reps. as part of the probe "but the latest subpoenas would require them to appear in person." In another probe focusing on the House bank, DoJ special counsel Malcolm Wilkey has subpoenaed "at least five" current and former House bank officers and employees. Officials said the subpoenas "signal a connection" between the two scandals. The bank subpoenas "indicate that Mr. Stephens' probe has expanded significantly and may now overlap with a separate inquiry of the [House] bank." House official speaking anonymously: "This is pretty ... significant. ... This shows us that Stephens is beginning to turn up the heat" (7/24). W. POST's Cooper reports only the records of the 3 Reps. have been subpoenaed (7/24).

STAMPS: A Dem Post Office report "conflicts" with the postal employees' account that Rostenkowski "cashed in expense vouchers written for postage stamps." The W. POST reported 5/92 that postal employee James Smith said Rostenkowski's office received $20,000 over the last 5 years for such vouchers, but he "earlier told congressional investigators he had no knowledge of any instances when House members exchanged stamps for cash" according to House Dems who participated in an inquiry 7/22. Rostenkowski called the Dem report "a total exoneration" and said to continue investigating him "would be nothing more than unfounded harassment ... a political witch hunt." U.S. Atty Jay Stephens said the probe will continue (Cooper, W. POST, 7/24).

*18 HOUSE RACE BRIEFINGS

IN 09: Ardent pro-lifer Michael Bailey's (R) campaign cmte paid his $1,091 mortgage payment and "apparently failed to report $7,000 in campaign contributions as required." Bailey, said in order to beat Rep. Lee Hamilton (D-09), "we need to run full time, and to run full time, I have to lay down my job with Christian Media Ministries." The FEC has failed to decide, deadlocked at 3-3, on the issue of a campaign paying salary or personal expenses for a candidate. Bailey, who was the first to air campaign TV ads featuring graphic displays of 2nd and 3rd trimester aborted fetuses, has sold the footage of the ads to other candidates around the country for $50 each (Sword, EVANSVILLE COURIER, 7/21). An EVANSVILLE COURIER editorial on Bailey's campaign paying his personal expenses: "We don't like what Bailey did, but even more, we don't like a system which gives incumbents such an unfair advantage" (7/23).

MA 01: GOP House members accidentally named Rep. John Olver (D-01) as a House member investigated as part of the recent House Post Office probe. "An irate Olver was quick to note the error": "I hadn't even set foot here in Washington at that time. I still don't know where to rent a post office box in Washington." GOP members of the task force probing the post office "were quick to issue an apology. But their actions touched off another firestorm: They said that House Post Office documents indicated the box was registered in the name of a staffer who had once worked for" the late Rep. Silvio Conte (D-MA). "That drew more anger from members of the [MA] delegation and sparked a full-fledged fight on the House floor over whether members suspected in a probe should ever be named" (Neuffer, BOSTON GLOBE, 7/24).

NH 01: Ex-state Sen. legal counsel Ovide Lamontagne (R) charged that Rep. Bill Zeliff (R-01) is using congressional franking privileges for campaign literature. Lamontagne said taxpayers are "footing the bill for poorly disguised campaign letters sent from the Congressman's [DC] office to at least three selected groups." Zeliff said he "scrupulously" adheres to franking regulations (Manchester UNION-LEADER, 7/23).

NH 02: Economics prof. Emily Northrop (D) received an endorsement from NOW 7/21. NH NOW pres. Judy Blachek said Northrop supports the Freedom of Choice Act and would support family medical leave legislation (NASHUA TELEGRAPH, 7/22).

OH 10: The 7/22 Dem report on the House Post Office stated, "The Task Force conclusively determined that no employees who were either the patronage of or otherwise associated with Rep. Mary Rose Oakar [D-20] were ghost employees, as erroneously reported in the press." However, the GOP report stated, "There were allegations that contained potential for a conflict of interest regarding" Oakar. The House Ethics Cmte is considering further inquiry into the alleged wrongdoing involving the Post Office (Michelle Ruess, Cleveland PLAIN DEALER, 7/23). Martin Hoke (R): "It's time to sweep out Mary Rose Oakar and those career politicians who have no understanding of what it means to be a public servant. They have placed their own political motives and personal greed ahead of the unique covenant that exists between elected officials and the people they serve (Hoke release, 7/23).

===== TV MONITOR =====

*19 THIS MORNING: ABC's "GMA" hosted Nat'l Republican Coalition for Choice chair Mary Dent Crisp and ex-Bush adviser Deborah Steelman on Quayle's recent abortion statements. NBC's "Today" hosted Sen. Richard Lugar (R-IN), Rep. Lee Hamilton (D-IN) and ex-Asst. Sec/State Richard Murphy on Iraq and W.S. JOURNAL's Alan Murray on the economy. "CBS This Morning" hosted Rep. Andrew Jacobs (D-IN) and Money Magazine Assoc. Ed. Walter Uperdergrave on deficit (7/24).

LAST NIGHT: ABC led with the new AIDS virus. CBS led with Quayle. NBC, CNN and PBS' "MacNeil/Lehrer" led with the threat of the U.S. to use military force against Iraq. "M/L" focused on the "Cop Killer" rap song with Time-Warner board member Charlton Heston and record company exec. David Harleston. CNN's "Crossfire" hosted DNC chair Ron Brown and Sen. Min. Whip Alan Simpson (R-WY) on the possibility of dumping Quayle. CNN's "Larry King Live" hosted Iraqi U.N. Amb. Abdul Amir Al-Anbari, ex-Bush/Quayle campaign worker Tyler Franz, Log Cabin Fed. pres. Richard Tafel, and the Rev. Jerry Falwell. ABC's "Nightline" hosted Traditional Values Coalition's Rev. Louis Sheldon and Republicans for Choice's Ann Stone on homosexual intolerance in the GOP (7/23).

LOVE THAT C-SPAN: Sen. Min. Leader Bob Dole: "We have trouble getting media coverage on the [GOP] side, so at least on the Senate floor we can get C-SPAN" (CNN, 7/23).

HA HA HA!: NBC's Jay Leno on Iraq: "The Pentagon says the United States may launch another military attack on Saddam Hussein -- I guess president Bush's reelection campaign is in full swing." On Clinton-Gore: "It looks like Bill Clinton was the big winner on the campaign bus tour -- by the time they reached St. Louis, Clinton had spotted over 235 out of state plates and Gore only 178" ("Tonight," 7/23). David Letterman spoke with Clinton by phone, and offered some campaign slogans: "Look, no Dukakis." "Hey, we got a bus!" "Bottoms up Clintoholics." "We've got pictures of Bush with Angela Lansbury." The winner: "We don't have a clue, but we don't have a Quayle!" Letterman: "Governor, we have here for you now a slogan that we think you can successfully incorporate into your campaign, and we've tested it here in front of three hundred in the studio audience. I think it's the kind of thing that will crush the opposition." Clinton: "Lay it on me." Letterman then asked what Clinton thought about Perot. Clinton: "I don't know." Letterman: "There's some insight." Letterman on Quayle: "Down in Washington, earlier today our vice president Dan Quayle went to the Department of the Interior and added his name to the endangered species list" ("Late Night," NBC, 7/24).

THE WHITE HOUSE BULLETIN

BULLETIN BROADFAXING NETWORK, 309 CAMERON ST., ALEXANDRIA, VA 22314 (703) 684-2020

MEMORANDUM FOR HON. SAMUEL SKINNER
CHIEF OF STAFF
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: TODAY'S BRIEFING

DATE: FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1992 - 11:30 AM EDT

SINCE THE MORNING PAPERS:

- o Fierce fighting in Sarajevo resumed today following a short lull yesterday which allowed the opposing sides to swap about 130 prisoners, most of which were women and senior citizens. The exchange was the largest since the Sarajevo siege began in April.
- o Financial news as of 11:30 AM EDT:
 - DOW (30 Industrials): Up 1 point to 3291 on a volume of 68 million shares.
 - Durable goods orders rose 2.3 percent in June, following a 2.2 percent fall (revised) in May.

IN THE WHITE HOUSE AND AROUND TOWN:

- o A White House Bulletin poll of the members of the Republican National Committee shows an overwhelming desire among the party leaders for Jim Baker to take charge of the President's re-election effort, a willingness to keep the Bush-Quayle ticket intact, and a consensus that other top personnel shifts are needed in the Bush Administration. Over the last 24 hours, the Bulletin was able to canvas roughly a third of the Republican Party's national committeemen, committeewomen, and state chairs. The survey's questions and results follow:
 - Q: "Thinking for a moment about this year's presidential campaign, do you think it would help or hurt President Bush's chances of re-election if Dan Quayle voluntarily removed himself from the Presidential ticket?" Results: 45 percent said it would hurt; 30 percent said it would help; and 25 percent were undecided.
 - Q: "Regardless of whether you think Quayle should stay on the ticket, in retrospect, would you have preferred that George Bush had selected someone else in 1988 to be his running mate?" If answered in the affirmative, "Do you have a particular person in mind?" Results: 47 percent said they would prefer Quayle had not been chosen in '88; 40 percent disagree; and 13 percent were undecided. Of those who wanted somebody else in '88, 56 percent named Kemp; 25 percent named Jim Baker; and 13 percent named Bob Dole.
 - Q: "If you had your choice, who would you like to see run with George Bush in 1992?" Results: 38 percent chose Jack Kemp; 16 percent chose Dick Cheney; 16 percent chose Dan Quayle; and 15 percent chose Jim Baker.
 - Q: "Should Jim Baker leave the State Department to take charge of the President's re-election effort?" Results: 79 percent said yes; 9 percent no; and 12 percent were undecided.

The White House Bulletin is a fax-delivered bulletin board covering policy, political and personnel developments in the federal government and Washington. The Bulletin welcomes information from those in Washington. (Tel.) 703-684-2020
Paul Roellig, Publisher and Editor William Armistead, Managing Editor Richard Reed, Political Editor

Q: "Do you think any other changes are needed among the President's senior advisors?" If answered in the affirmative, "Do you have a particular person or persons in mind?" Results: 59 percent thought changes were needed; 27 percent disagreed; and 14 percent were undecided. Of those who thought changes were required, 59 percent volunteered Richard Darman's name; 46 percent said Nick Brady should go; 8 percent said Sam Skinner; 7 percent said Clayton Yeutter; 7 percent said Bill Reilly; and 7 percent said Robert Mosbacher.

- o Secretary of State Baker reportedly said this morning a military strike against Iraq "looks pretty certain" if the Iraqi government continues to refuse compliance with UN resolutions set down as part of the Gulf War ceasefire agreement. The US, Great Britain and French delegations to the UN Security Council are currently backing an ultimatum demanding Iraq comply by allowing at least a small group of inspectors into the Agriculture Ministry building, or face what could be serious consequences. Some UN inspectors have been forced to withdraw from Baghdad by an uncooperative Iraqi government and anti-Western protesters.
- o President Bush was repeatedly interrupted by hecklers while speaking to the National League of POW-MIA Families in Arlington, Virginia this morning. In his remarks to the group, Mr. Bush was attempting to convey both his personal concern for all military personnel who might have been left behind during wartime, as well as his strong conviction to take whatever action is deemed necessary to retrieve those missing. Following the initial volley of verbal attacks, event organizers were forced to take actions to restore order to the proceedings. Upon retaking the stage, the President was again affronted with a series of insults, to which he responded: "Would you please be quiet and let me finish?! Would you please shut up and sit down?! And I would say this: That to suggest that the commander-in-chief that led this country into its most successful recent effort would condone for one single day the personal knowledge of a person held against his will, whether it's here or anyplace else, is simply totally unfair. Now, to say that I understand the agony that I've reheard today is true: I do. But I do not like the suggestion that any American, anywhere, would know of a live American being held of somewhere against his will, whether it's here, or the allegation being over in the other part of the world -- Iran. The suggestion was made that we left people being prisoner in Iran so to win an election. What kind of an allegation is that to make against a patriot?"
- o The White House is still deliberating on a possible veto strategy for the upcoming appropriations bills, with the legislative appropriations bill appearing to be a prime target as a potential October surprise, report senior Administration officials. The House is expected to send their versions of the 13 appropriations bills to the Senate soon, and the White House expects them to trickle down Pennsylvania Avenue during the month of September. The White House is considering vetoing some of the bills as a method to send a strong fiscal message, while a veto of the legislative appropriations bill would be designed to force Congress to act on the President's wish list. According to a White House official: "The goal would be to force action. If you don't sign the legislative appropriations bill you shut down Congress. The staff will go home. ... These guys will either work for free, or they play along." The official added some feel the action required of Congress is a streamlined economic growth package -- probably minus a cut in capital gains -- while others also think institutional changes should also be forced on Congress. While the October timeline would appear to give the President and his advisors a few months to consider their possible veto plan, some Bush officials say this strategy must soon be decided as part of a larger strategy of how to deal with Congress during the presidential campaign. "One of the key questions that will be resolved in the next week or so is whether and how the President runs against Congress this year. It is critical issue," said a White House official. The official, who said OMB Director Dick Darman has joined campaign officials and White House Counsel Boyden Gray as "part of the 'action faction,'" stated the "key to any such strategy is forcing Congress to act. It is not enough simply to get points through rhetoric. Action is the key. The key deadline is when the legislative appropriation comes up. That is where you can force some action. There is a variety of potential actions under consideration -- from executive orders, to a renewed recession battle, to a variety of other options. There is a lot of talking in the halls, but there is no clear decision yet on how to proceed." Another White House official added: "That is not yet fully determined, but it certainly is an issue that's on the front burner and under consideration here as to how we will handle all those [bills]. It is important to begin to send a message to the country in concrete ways that this Administration is serious about spending disciplines and about trimming the federal budget deficit. So it is really a question about how best to convey that message and how best also to make the right decisions in evaluating those appropriations bills." According to a third White House official: "A bunch of these appropriations bills will have to be vetoed over substantive issues anyway." The official said that yesterday, a letter went up to the Hill saying the President may veto the Labor-HHS appropriations bill over concerns about language on the Beck decision and another issue, and that there is "language in the Commerce-Justice-State bill about the legal services corp" which also makes it veto bait. According to the official: "There is also some discussion of saying if these bills are one penny over last year, or if they are for more than the allocation we asked for, we'd veto them, but no decisions have been made yet." The official added: "Darman is trying to look at the numbers, look where we are, look at what the results are, figure the angles, and figure how good our arguments are. The President essentially asked for a freeze on domestic discretionary in budget authority over last year, so it would be simple to say 'anything that is a penny over last year we will veto.' The issue is going to be, does the President, on October first want to take a hard line, close down the government, veto all these appropriations bills, and have a big crisis?" According to an Administration official: "One of the things that is clear is that Democratic Congress is the problem. We sent up a growth package; the Democratic Congress passes a tax increase. We sent up an appropriations bill that invests in the future; the Democratic Congress cuts all the investments in the future and spends on pork. Now, if those bills, as porky as they are, are also excessive, sure, we should veto them."

- o While talk that the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) will be wrapped up this weekend may be overly optimistic, Administration and industry sources are confident on its overall prospects. Asked about rumors that NAFTA will be agreed to this weekend, White House domestic policy czar Clayton Yeutter, who also has served as US Trade Representative, said: "My personal view is that [the negotiators] are not likely to finish up in this [weekend] session. It just seems to me there are still too many loose ends dealing with difficult problems. It is possible it will all be pulled together in this particular session, but I doubt it is probable that will happen." Asked how far along the process is, Yeutter said: "It is awfully hard to tell because negotiations have their ebbs and flows. Most of the remaining controversies are with the government of Mexico, but there are some remaining issues with Canada as well. At this stage, all of them are tough issues and it is just a question of whether the individual governments are prepared to make the concessions to bring it to an immediate conclusion. Obviously, if they do, we will have a deal this weekend, if they don't, it will spill over into a little later time."

According to a top policy aide in the Carter Administration who is following NAFTA for industry: "All the reports that I am hearing are that the negotiators have come a long way and that the deal that they are likely to produce will have enthusiastic support from virtually all segments of the US business community. Secondly, in principle, Governor Clinton has expressed his support for the North American Free trade Agreement, provided it is, in his judgement, a good deal. There will be very intense pressure brought to bear by the labor movement and the environmental community on Members of Congress to react to the agreement negatively, or at least to raise serious questions on what they call parallel issues - things like the environment, adjustment assistance, and worker-rights. No matter how quickly a deal is concluded by the negotiators themselves, it will likely be some weeks before there will really be a chance for people to be able to look at what is in it in a systematic way. There are committees that have to review any agreement before the agreement goes to the Congress and before the President can take a formal action vis a vis the Congress, and that process will take a little while. The odds are that lawmakers who really want to make a reasoned judgement about whether this is a good deal or a bad deal will wait for that process to be completed. Even if the negotiators came to a successful conclusion on the agreement today, there is no way Congress could move to a formal vote on NAFTA this year."

- o Administration officials are pointing their fingers at the Clinton campaign as the original source of the dump Quayle rumors. While they offer no proof, the Bush aides claim Clinton aide James Carville took advantage of the bus loads of captive reporters following Clinton on his recent tour to start the Quayle rumor. "This guy Carville is so good," said a White House official. "He just reminds me so much of Lee Atwater. Remember four years ago at this time when there were so many rumors on Dukakis, [such as those concerning his] medical records. [The Democrats] were the focus of the gossip last time. Everybody blamed Lee Atwater. ... They had that whole media herd trooping around with those guys and I think these rumors are coming from Carville." White House domestic policy czar Clayton Yeutter also suspects the rumors may have originated with the Democratic opposition, telling the Bulletin: "I don't know whether some of this was the folks on the other side of the political aisle attempting to divert the Administration from the political task at hand. In other words, some of that could have been planted." As for his recent comment saying that there was a 99.999 percent chance that Quayle would remain on the ticket, which was parlayed by some in the media to show there was a doubt about Quayle's future, Yeutter said: "How much more definitive can you be than 99.999." According to another Administration official: "There is a probability of one [Quayle] is staying on the ticket. The rumors that he is not were started by the Clinton people. The Clinton people get it started, then the press writes it, then they get our people reacting. It is a standard tactic Carville is using -- tactics that the Democrats have accused Republicans of using. It is the Clinton people who planted the Quayle rumor. It is the Clinton people who are planting rumors about the President's health. It is an old tactic." The official added: "Any of our own people who get caught up responding to it are basically stupid."
- o The selection of Senator Phil Gramm as keynote speaker at the Republican National Convention next month makes sense for at least three reasons, say GOP officials. First, Gramm is from Texas, a must carry state for Bush. Second, Gramm is an economist who has conducted his own thorough analysis of Bill Clinton's economic plan and can credibly undermine it. Third, Gramm is a former Democrat -- who switched to the GOP in 1984 -- and can appeal to the very people Bill Clinton is trying to woo back to his party -- Reagan Democrats.

POLL WATCH:

A Market Opinion Research poll of 503 registered voters conducted July 21 - 23, with a 4.3 percent margin of error, shows:

- Bill Clinton leads George Bush 54 percent to 33 percent;
- 35 percent approve of the job George Bush is doing as President, 58 percent disapprove;
- 18 percent approve of the job Congress is doing, 72 percent disapprove;
- 25 percent approve of Bush's handling of the economy, 69 percent disapprove;
- 13 percent approve of Congress's handling of the economy, 77 percent disapprove;
- 53 percent approve of Bush's handling of foreign policy;
- 62 percent regard Hillary Clinton as an "asset to her husband's political career and position" (up from 45 percent in April);
- 85 percent regard Barbara Bush as an asset (unchanged since April);
- 35 percent would vote to re-elect their representative to Congress, 48 percent would vote for someone new;
- 33 percent would describe themselves as "pro-life, against abortion"; 56 percent would describe themselves as "pro-choice, in favor of abortion"; 6 percent volunteered they were "pro-choice" with certain restrictions.

POLITICAL ANALYSIS:

This morning, the Bulletin invites David Jones, Chief Economist for Aubrey Lanston & Company, a New York securities firm, to discuss the economic proposals put forth by George Bush and Bill Clinton. Jones served as senior analyst for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 1963 to 1968.

BULLETIN: In general, what do you think of President Bush's economic proposals in this election year?

JONES: While many of the proposals Bush outlined in his State of the Union address were right in theory or concept, in practice, I think Bush underestimates the boost this economy needs to get us out of this "triple dip" or slump that we are in or are heading into. By "dip," I simply mean either a real decline in GDP or a pronounced slowing of GDP.

Bush needed a stronger economic stimulus package. Having said that, I did like parts of his plan. On the tax side, his investment incentives, particularly for capital spending, were good. I was less impressed with his housing incentives. If we know anything about Washington, it is that it has been turning on the faucet for housing and then turning it off. They turned it on in the early '50s with perhaps excessive tax incentives for professionals to invest in multi-family housing and other areas of housing, and then turned them off again in the revenue act of 1986, which helped cause the crash in housing we have since seen. I would prefer Washington to take a neutral stance on housing and just get out of the way.

But on the incentives for capital spending, and on individual savings to some degree, I think Bush's proposals were good. Bush's savings component, however, has something of a split personality in that he wants to make it more attractive to save through IRAs, but also proposes allowing more exceptions to getting your money out of IRAs. Either you want to promote savings or you want to promote spending, but you can't try to do both in the same mechanism. But the general idea of promoting more savings and investment is a very good idea. I would do it with the investment incentives first. Bush's enterprise zone concept in inner cities is a good one.

Looking at investment and incentives for investment, I think Bush should be stronger on building infrastructure. Additionally, while I like Bush's emphasis on investment in physical plants, I also think we need to invest in human capital, because we so desperately need to have a better trained work force and more technically proficient workers. (Although it is true that some of those people who are now being laid off in the defense industries may leave us with a temporary oversupply.) In the area of human capital, the sort of choice/voucher plan advocated by Lamar Alexander is a pretty sharp idea. George Bush's problem in all of this is that it seems to be his fate that he doesn't have the fire in his belly or the interest in domestic programs that provides him with the salesmanship to push it through.

The dollar amounts of Bush's economic stimulus plan were a little small, I think -- something like $20 billion. In normal times, we would be looking at tax cuts equal to about one to one-and-a-half percent of nominal GDP -- between $55 and $85 billion dollars. The bottom line is that the President wasn't aggressive enough in this area. In part, that may have been attributable to the Administration misjudging the direction of the economy. They assumed the economy would be accelerating by now. In fact, they assumed it would be accelerating by last year. They didn't see that we would be caught in these double- or triple-dip situations that are due in part to the paying off of debts from the 80s -- clearing the balance sheets.

Real estate and massive layoffs due to corporate restructuring and defense cutbacks are the real limitations to economic growth now. Bush just underestimated those factors, and so his recovery program wasn't big enough. Bush's plan is short on stimulus and woefully inadequate in salesmanship.

BULLETIN: What about Governor Clinton's economic proposal?

JONES: Clinton is probably looking at the right amount of stimulus -- proposing to spend over $200 billion over four years on infrastructure. He's come up with some imaginative Keynesian fiscal stimulus and, he claims, in incentives. Clinton's trouble is that he is more than a little bit unsure of where all the money is going to come from. The danger would be that he comes up with too much deficit financing at a time when the budget is already too large.

Now, Clinton says he can get the money from additional cuts in defense spending and by taxing the rich, but his revenue sources are very uncertain. There are even liberal Congressmen now who don't want to cut defense any faster because it means a major loss of jobs in the short term. Service men and women may find jobs in the private sector -- which is the best solution -- but the engineers General Dynamics lays off in Texas may take a long time to get up to AT&T to build new fiber-optic cable. Worker relocation is a long process.

I also think Clinton is not strong enough on business-investment incentives. He is hitting companies with all kinds of penalties and taxes, and then he turns around and says, "I am going to give business an investment credit," somehow figuring it will benefit those companies. I don't think that is going to work. Clinton is even trying to tax foreign companies, which is something that is utterly absurd.

The danger in Clinton's plan is that it would lead to more deficits, not less. And that, in turn, would cause an increase in interest rates that would hurt housing and business capital spending, tending to offset somewhat his huge infrastructure-type investment spending by federal, state, and local governments.

BULLETIN: In analyzing Bush's and Clinton's proposal, you seem to be saying that there are both supply-side and Keynesian economic proposals that could help spur economic growth.

JONES: You bet. There are great ideas on the supply side with respect to business investment. I like this idea of a selective effort on supply-side incentives for setting up entrepreneurial businesses. This would involve capital gains breaks for businesses rather than capital gains breaks for everything. Clinton is a little vague on this, and his effort to tax businesses for various things seems to offset whatever benefits that would come from that. I want the best of the supply-side and the best of the Keynesian proposals. The best economic plan lies somewhere between Bush's and Clinton's plan.

LAST LAUGHS:

- o Jay Leno: "Ross Perot says one of the reasons he quit is that he's not a politician. Now, see, I don't know about that. I mean, he broke promises, the public doesn't like him any more, he won't admit he's wrong -- I think he's turned into a pretty darn good politician." (NBC The Tonight Show, 7/22/92)
- o Jay Leno: "Yesterday, First Lady Barbara Bush told reporters that retired Americans can still help their country, even if they work just two or three hours a week. I think she got this idea from watching her husband, George." (NBC The Tonight Show, 7/22/92)

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: STEVE PROVOST SP
FROM: JANICE CROUSE Janice Crouse
SUBJECT: PROPOSED REMARKS TO BROOKVILLE COMMUNITY PICNIC

I. SUMMARY

On Friday, July 24 at 11:40 a.m., you will deliver remarks to an audience of 4,000 community members at the 42nd Brookville Community Picnic in Golden Gate Park, Brookville, Ohio. Gov. Voinovich and Lt. Gov. DeWine will attend.

Prior to speaking you will play softball and horseshoes, view antique tractors, and watch a hay bailing demonstration.

II. DISCUSSION

Your remarks (approximately 12 minutes / cards), focus on defining family values and recent legislative proposals you have put forward to help strengthen the American family.

Following your remarks, Mayor Michael Duncan [Democrat] will present you with a proclamation announcing April 24, 1992 "George Bush Day". Then you will participate in planting a sugarmaple tree commemorating the day.

Presidential Remarks: Brookville Community Picnic
Brookville, Ohio
Friday, July 24, 1992

Thank you for that warm Brookville welcome ... and thanks for inviting me to this year's picnic.

(Acknowledgements)

I've had a lot of fun today. I love the chance to eat a little food ... play a little softball ... and get to know the legendary Cloyce Copley [COP lee]. Cloyce may be the northern side of 90 ... but he can still throw a mean horseshoe.//

I was told that the most popular booth here is the "Waffle Trailer." I asked somebody: "what is a waffle trailer?" ... and they told me about those delicious deep fried snowflakes. And to think I was worried that a "waffle-trailer" is what you call six politicians in a truck with aluminum siding. //

Now, I know I'm no Andy Weaver ... // but I'd like you to reflect for a few moments ... on where our great nation stands today.

The past four years have been a crummy time for the world's fortune tellers. Month after month ... day after day ... events occurred that busted all the crystal balls.

The Berlin Wall crumbled. Russians trooped to the polls. The Poles opened a new stock exchange ... in communist party headquarters. // The Cold War is over. After four decades of sacrifice ... four decades of selfless commitment to our democratic ideals ... the world has said in unison: "We'd rather go the way of the good ole "U.S.A."

What does it mean for us? Well when your kids and grandkids go to bed tonight ... they can think about the name of the first crush they carved in these old beech trees ... or the start of football "two-a-days." But they don't have to worry about nuclear war. The world is safer than it was a decade ago. Safer than it was a year ago. Safer than it was even a month ago ... before I sat down with Boris Yeltsin and cut those nuclear weapons.

This new world poses huge challenges. Our economy is undergoing wrenching change ... as we adjust to a world in which so many nations are now playing our game. Can we compete? I believe we can. But it's going to require some changes in America.

That's why I'm running for re-election. We have changed the world ... and now I believe we can change America. Change by taking us back to some enduring values ... so that we can build a stronger and better future.

I'm concerned about a new nuclear threat facing our country today ... a threat more dangerous than any missile or submarine ... I'm talking about the breakdown of the nuclear family.

Some say that "family values" is merely a slogan ... a rhetorical sweatshirt that politicians pull over their heads every four years. I'm sorry ... but I just don't agree.

On the way here ... I had the pleasure of reading one of the beautiful poems by Brookville's own Ruth Ditmer Ream. She wrote about a world "short on hope ... where there is so much pain." Ruth asked ... "how can we mend the 'golden thread' ... to weave our dreams again?"

Well ... I see the family as our "golden thread." The center of our lives ... the glue that holds us together. I believe that family can do things that no government program ever can.

Look right here in this community.

Where would you find a government program ... that would guarantee that Brookville High School ... would have a 95 percent attendance record? Government can't do it ... but family can.

Where would you find a government program ... that motivates six of your best and brightest to earn perfect Grade Point averages ... and the Class of '92 to earn a quarter of a million dollars in college scholarships? Government can't do it ... but family can.

Where would you find a government program ... to teach and shape a good, solid young man like Derek Brown ... who can earn a national merit scholarship? Government can't do it ... but Derek's mom and dad can.

Family teaches us simple values ... work and responsibility ... to love thy neighbor and respect our Creator.

Families can do things that government should never even try. But government must try ... to keep our families together.

It's expensive to raise a family today. You know that. I believe government can help ease the burden.

Yesterday I signed a law expanding financial aid available to students of all ages. Not just the poor ... but also middle class families. Those of you who skip the vacation or drive the old clunker ... so that your son or daughter can go to college and chase a dream. Parents -- who want to go back to college and finish that degree -- even if it has to be one course at a time. You all deserve support. //

What about the young children ... with working parents ... who need quality day care? Last year I fought for an important new effort to help assist these working parents. I stood for principle, against those who said that only government-sponsored day care will do.

I asked: what's wrong with day care in an aunt's house ... or even a church? When it comes to deciding who cares for children ... bureaucrats don't mother ... father and mother really do know best.//

Choice is the hallmark of our free enterprise system. I believe the same principle ought to apply to our schools. If we have the freedom to choose the kind of wood we use to build our homes ... shouldn't we be free to choose the kind of school our kids use to build their dreams?

So I believe in a "GI bill for children" ... to give low-to-middle income parents a thousand dollars to help send their child to the best school they can find. Whether it's a public school, a private school or a religious school ... I say ... let parents choose!//

These are some of the ideas I have been fighting for. There are others. Like a $5,000 tax credit ... to help young families buy their first home. I want families to be able to use their IRA's ... for unexpected health care costs.

Our families who are poor or struggling pose an especially daunting challenge. We know that in recent years ... the number of single-parent families has exploded. About half the children in single parent homes live in poverty ... five times the rates of other children.

Our nation and our children ... cannot afford to lose the future. So I believe it's high time we changed our system to reward work ... not welfare. It's time to give these families an incentive not to fall apart ... but to stick together.

These are the economic ideas I am advancing to protect the family. But there are other pressures ... more subtle ... that tear at the fabric of this institution.

Drugs can sap the vitality from a young person. We have fought drugs with more cops on our streets ... and more concern in our classrooms. We have brought drug use down ... but it must fall further. I say that if drug kingpins prey for profit on our children ... they deserve the death penalty.

And what about dads ... who leave their children stranded, without support? We have passed landmark legislation that says to deadbeat dads ... "we will find you ... and we will make you pay." //

I remember a story about a small boy on his knees one night at bedtime. And he said ... "oh Lord, please bless mother and daddy, and brother and sister. And by the way, God, take care of yourself, because if anything happens to you ... we're all sunk!" As a nation we will sink if our families cannot take their strength from above. And that's why I believe we need a constitutional amendment ... to permit voluntary prayers in our schools.//

These are the ideas I am proposing to combat our new nuclear threat ... the erosion of the nuclear family. / Not all of these ideas are popular in Washington. While they protect old values ... they do so in bold and original ways. Yet ... with your support ... your commitment ... I will continue the fight. It would help a great deal if you'd send me a Republican Congress ... people who believe that the family is not just a slogan ... but something worth fighting for.//

Can America compete in the new world we face today? I believe we can. I believe our future has never been brighter. But only if we understand the limits of government ... and the power of families.

We can create byzantine bureaucracies along the Potomac ... we can pour billions of your tax dollars into government programs ... but we will never be able to replicate the enduring power of a loving mom and dad. You know that here in Brookville. And today ... I ask you to join me in taking this crusade to every corner of our nation.

To spread the word far and wide ... that the only way to keep America first ... is to put the family first.

Thank you. God bless Brookville ... and God bless the United States of America.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: C. GREGG PETERSMEYER
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND DIRECTOR, OFFICE OF NATIONAL SERVICE

SUBJECT: The Establishment of a Presidential Youth Award for Community Service

- I. ACTION-FORCING EVENT: Voluntary youth service has been a centerpiece of your Presidency. While the Presidential Physical Fitness Award recognizes the physical fitness achievements of young Americans, no Presidential award currently exists which is exclusively devoted to recognizing voluntary community service achievements of young Americans. Your Administration is now in a position to administer such an award.
- II. BACKGROUND/ANALYSIS: In 1989, you announced the Youth Engaged in Service initiative to engage young people in community service. As part of the ongoing development of that initiative, a dedicated award recognizing outstanding community service initiatives is appropriate. The National and Community Service Act of 1990, authorizes the establishment of an award to recognize outstanding community service activities of young people; the commission it established would be the Federal entity that would work with the White House to administer an award program. Attached is a description of how the award program will function.
- III. RECOMMENDATION: I recommend that you approve the establishment of a Presidential community service award for youth based upon the model of the Presidential Physical Fitness Award which would allow for the recognition of thousands of young people for their service activities. This would advance the Administration's goal of engaging every American in direct and consequential community service on a large-scale basis. If you approve of this concept, an Executive Order would be drafted to implement your decision.
- IV. DECISION: Approve  Approve as amended Reject

PROPOSAL FOR THE PRESIDENT'S YOUTH SERVICE AWARD

PURPOSE

The President's Youth Service Award will recognize on a large-scale basis young people who are engaged in direct and consequential voluntary community service focused on serious social problems. By honoring these youth engaged in service, the award will foster the ethic of voluntary community service among young people throughout the nation.

ELIGIBILITY

The President's Youth Service Award will enable young people in America who participate in age-specific types of community service to be eligible to receive recognition for engaging in voluntary community service. The award will be based on the structure of the President's Physical Fitness Award which allows individuals who complete established physical fitness criteria to receive Presidential recognition. As in the case of the Physical Fitness Award, this structure will permit the bestowing of thousands of awards at the community level. Young people ages five to twenty-two will be able to receive the award.

CRITERIA

Age-specific criteria will be established. The following general criteria will be used in presenting the President's Youth Service Award:

- o HANDS ON SERVICE - Young people will be recognized who engage directly in community service.
- o SERVICE TARGETED AT THE ROOT OF SERIOUS SOCIAL PROBLEMS - Youth will be recognized whose service activities address serious social problems.
- o SUSTAINED COMMITMENT TO SERVICE - Young people will be recognized who demonstrate ongoing involvement in service.
- o VOLUNTARY SERVICE - Only unpaid service will be recognized.

Young people who qualify will be honored for engaging in service activities which concentrate on achieving one or more of the elements of a strong community:

- o Commitment to children, youth developing good character and values and strong families;

- o Excellent schools and a culture that fosters lifelong learning;
- o Meaningful employment opportunities and the hope of economic advancement;
- o A decent, drug free and safe place to live in a clean environment; and,
- o Quality health care and a sense of well-being.

PARTICIPANTS

The recipients of the awards will be chosen within communities by local institutions, including businesses, schools, places of worship, clubs and neighborhood groups, and public sector organizations. These institutions will be authorized to bestow the awards using the established selection criteria. The criteria will be age-specific and uniform throughout the country. Regardless of the awarding institutions, the use of consistent age-specific criteria will ensure that those recognized are deserving of this Presidential honor.

The entity presenting the award could do so in a ceremony of its making or in any other appropriate manner. This would not preclude corporate, educational, religious, or other leaders, Members of Congress, Governors or the President from recognizing award recipients at ceremonies in their institutions, states, or in the case of the President, at the White House.

Memo to the President
from Charley Bartlett

This is an extraordinary year and it cannot be much fun to be in the middle of it. If there is a tide in the affairs of men and nations, I feel we are ready for a phase of slack tide. It does not seem possible that the roll of events will continue at its present pitch.

As a reader of The L.A. Times, I wanted to tell you that I thought your son Jeb did a splendid job of stepping up to all this stuff about the offspring. It was time for someone to say something and he said it very well. My thought is that he should be encouraged to say the same thing whenever this issue comes up. The innuendoes have been floated so often that Jeb's response will bear repeating.

Would you ever think of postponing that space laboratory to pay for a new version of CCC camps to get those rotting young men out of the slums? They used to be able to escape into the army but now that is closed to them. The CCC concept is deep in everyone's heart as the best thing that FDR did. I find that conservatives react to it as strongly as liberals. You are already spending $900 million a year on Job Corps but that has never attained the emotional appeal of the CCC. And the latter is certainly a lot cheaper per enrollee. It seems to me that you can get out in front of middle class sentiment on this whole issue with a strong move to take those ailing, aimless souls into the fresh air.

A parallel move is the Police Corps proposal, already in the crime bill. I enclose a memo on an idea for expanding the police forces by using the veterans who are being phased out. The author is Adam Walinsky, a Democrat but a good man. I have been pushing this at Yeutter since April 15 and he has a lot of material that I have forwarded on to him. It would seem to me to make a lot of sense.

Gregg Petersmeyer has consensus agreement on Presidential Youth Service Awards, an exercise in which the American Institute for Public Service (an interest of mine) is going to be involved. I am told that your people at the staff level are excited about this initiative. I am told that if you would prod Gregg to complete the staff work quickly, the awards could be announced at the June 17 ceremony at which the student winners of Jefferson Awards will be honored. This is a great group of young people from cities all around the country and the hope of Sam Beard of the Institute is that you will greet the winners in the garden at the White House. Lots of local winners means lots of local TV coverage so this could be an ideal occasion to announce the creation of the Presidential Youth Service Awards.

Martha and I are going off under the leadership of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service on a short swing through Turkey and Italy. You need the break far more than I do and I wish you were getting it. Meanwhile, for a slight lift, I enclose Ned Patterson's latest attempt to help.

Beard -

NATIONAL LEAGUE OF FAMILIES OF AMERICAN
PRISONERS AND MISSING IN SOUTHEAST ASIA
STOUFFER CONCOURSE HOTEL
JULY 24, 1992
9:30 A.M.

SUE. ANN. MEMBERS OF THE BOARD, FAMILY MEMBERS
AND FRIENDS. LET ME SALUTE TWO OLD N.S.C. HANDS -- BUD
MCFARLAND AND DICK CHILDRESS. AND ALSO MY OLD FRIEND,
YOUR CHAIRMAN EMERITUS, MR. GEORGE BROOKS.

LET ME BEGIN BY THANKING YOU FOR THE OPPORTUNITY TO SPEAK AGAIN TO ONE OF THE BRAVEST AND MOST DEDICATED GROUPS OF AMERICANS IN THIS COUNTRY.

WE LIVE AT A TIME OF TREMENDOUS OPPORTUNITY. WE'VE SEEN THE END OF THE COLD WAR -- THE COLLAPSE OF IMPERIAL COMMUNISM -- AND A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM, FROM MOSCOW TO MANAGUA. AMERICA'S COURAGE -- AMERICA'S VISION -- AMERICA'S VALUES -- HAVE CHANGED THE WORLD.

YES, THE COLD WAR MAY BE OVER, BUT THE NOBLE CAUSE
THAT TOOK YOUR FATHERS, YOUR SONS, YOUR HUSBANDS AWAY FROM HOME ... IS WITH US STILL.

OUR WORK MUST NOT END. OUR WORK WILL NOT END -- UNTIL YOU HAVE ANSWERS ABOUT YOUR LOVED ONES. //

OVER THE PAST 20 YEARS, THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF FAMILIES HAS SEEN THE ISSUE OF YOUR MISSING RELATIVES SWEEPED UP IN INTERNATIONAL OR DOMESTIC POLITICS, MANIPULATED BY FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS / EXPLOITED BY CON MEN / SENSATIONALIZED BY THE MEDIA. ALL THAT TIME, YOU NEVER LOST SIGHT OF WHAT YOU WERE LOOKING FOR: GOOD FAITH -- AN HONEST EFFORT TO RESOLVE YOUR UNCERTAINTY, TO FIND ANSWERS TO THE AGONIZING QUESTION YOU LIVE WITH EVERY DAY.

SOMETIMES YOU MAY HAVE EVEN WONDERED WHETHER YOUR GOVERNMENT HAD FORGOTTEN YOU. / WHEN RONALD REAGAN AND I TOOK OFFICE IN 1981, WE MADE YOUR ORDEAL ... OUR PRIORITY. WE KNEW THAT -- WITH ALL THE UNCERTAINTIES YOU LIVE WITH -- THE ONE THING YOU SHOULD BE SURE OF ... IS THAT YOUR GOVERNMENT CARES.

SO WE SET OUT TO MEET WITH YOU -- TO ASK YOUR ADVICE.

WHEN WE TOOK OFFICE, NO POLICY-LEVEL NEGOTIATIONS WITH VIETNAM, LAOS OR CAMBODIA HAD BEEN HELD FOR SEVERAL YEARS. DESPITE THE FEARS OF SOME THAT NEGOTIATING WITH VIETNAM IMPLIED RECOGNITION -- DESPITE THE FEARS OF OTHERS THAT THE POW/MIA ISSUE WAS A COLD WAR FANTASY -- WE TOOK YOUR ADVICE / AND ENTERED HIGH-LEVEL NEGOTIATIONS.

WHEN WE TOOK OFFICE, SOME SAW THIS ISSUE AS A MATTER BETWEEN THIS NATION AND VIETNAM -- NOT PART OF THE BROADER RELATIONS BETWEEN THE U.S. AND SOVIET UNION, CHINA AND OUR FRIENDS IN ASEAN. WE TOOK YOUR ADVICE / AND URGED OUR FRIENDS AS WELL AS OUR ADVERSARIES TO HELP US FIND ANSWERS.

AND LET ME ADD THAT I'M GRATIFIED TO HEAR THE ASEAN AMBASSADORS ARE HERE TODAY. THE ASEAN COUNTRIES DESERVE CREDIT FOR THEIR UNDERSTANDING, FOR THEIR HELP -- AND FOR THEIR FELLOWSHIP WITH YOU, THE FAMILIES.

MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL: WHEN WE TOOK OFFICE, WE CAME UP AGAINST A STRING OF OFFICIAL STATEMENTS, PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSIONS AND CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES INDICATING THAT THEY FELT VIETNAM HAD DONE ALL IT COULD. ONCE AGAIN, WE TOOK YOUR ADVICE -- AND REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE FACT THAT THE BOOK WAS CLOSED.

IT IS NO SECRET TO ANY OF YOU THAT FOR MANY YEARS NOW, SIGNIFICANT LOBBYING HAS TAKEN PLACE IN OPPOSITION TO OUR POLICY. SOME OF IT COMES FROM THOSE SAME VOICES WE'VE HEARD SINCE THE '70'S -- PEOPLE WHO WANT US TO PRETEND VIETNAM NEVER HAPPENED. SOME COMES FROM PEOPLE WHO SEEK TO SMOOTH OVER STICKING POINTS THAT STAND IN THE WAY OF COMMERCIAL OPPORTUNITIES.

OTHERS SIMPLY SAY, "THE WAR IS OVER. / LET'S MOVE ON." //

THAT IS SOMETHING WE CAN NEVER SAY. ///

FOR US, THE POW/MIA ISSUE IS NOT A STICKING POINT.
NOT SOME BAD DREAM WE SHAKE OFF. NOT A FOOTNOTE FROM A FORGOTTEN TIME WE CAN SIMPLY IGNORE.

THE POW/MIA ISSUE IS SOMETHING DIFFERENT -- SOMETHING MORE: IT IS ... A QUESTION OF JUSTICE. OF OATHS SWORN -- AND COMMITMENTS KEPT: A NATION'S TEST
OF ITS OWN WORTH -- MEASURED IN THE LIFE OF ONE, LONE INDIVIDUAL.

THIS WE KNOW: THE WOUNDS WON'T HEAL -- THE
AMERICAN FAMILY WILL NOT BE WHOLE -- SO LONG AS BRAVE MEN REMAIN MISSING. //

IN MY INAUGURAL ADDRESS AS PRESIDENT, I SAID THAT
"GOODWILL BEGETS GOODWILL." IN THE SPIRIT OF THAT STATEMENT, WE DEVELOPED A DETAILED ROADMAP FOR VIETNAM
-- A ROADMAP THAT ADDRESSES OUR OBJECTIVES, AS WELL AS THAT GOVERNMENT'S DESIRES IN TERMS OF DIPLOMATIC AND ECONOMIC RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES. LET ME BE CLEAR: WITHOUT POSITIVE MOVEMENT ON POW'S AND MIA'S,
WE CANNOT AND WILL NOT MOVE FORWARD WITH HANOI. //

WHERE VIETNAM HAS MOVED, WE'VE RESPONDED. WHEN THE GOVERNMENT OF VIETNAM PLEDGED GREATER COOPERATION -- INCLUDING FIELD OPERATIONS -- WE GREATLY INCREASED OUR MANPOWER, EVEN OPENED A PERMANENT OFFICE IN HANOI. AND WHILE WE'VE SEEN AN UNPRECEDENTED LEVEL OF JOINT INVESTIGATIONS -- THESE ACTIVITIES HAVE NOT PROVIDED THE CONCRETE RESULTS WE SEEK. MAKE NO MISTAKE: WE WANT TO CONTINUE AND EXPAND OUR JOINT EFFORTS. I WILL NEVER ACCEPT JOINT ACTIVITIES AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR REAL RESULTS. YOUR LONG YEARS OF UNCERTAINTY MUST END. //

AS A MEASURE OF SIMPLE HUMAN DECENCY -- I CALL ON THE GOVERNMENT OF VIETNAM TO REPATRIATE ALL RECOVERED AND READILY RECOVERABLE REMAINS. I CALL ON THE GOVERNMENT OF VIETNAM TO ACT -- WITHOUT DELAY. //

I CAN SAY, IN RETURN, THE UNITED STATES STANDS READY TO MOVE FORWARD ON THE ROADMAP WE'VE LAID OUT.

MY MESSAGE IS THE SAME TO THE OTHER NATIONS OF INDOCHINA. IN LAOS, OUR JOINT FIELD OPERATIONS HAVE PRODUCED DEFINITIVE ANSWERS, BUT THE PROCESS REMAINS PAINFULLY SLOW AND CUMBERSOME. WE RECOGNIZE THE REALITY THAT MOST OF OUR MEN UNACCOUNTED FOR IN LAOS WERE LOST IN AREAS UNDER VIETNAMESE CONTROL.

OUR RELATIONS WITH LAOS HAVE GROWN FROM WARY DISTRUST IN THE EARLY 1980'S TO A BROADER, MORE OPEN RELATIONSHIP. WE CANNOT LET THIS MOMENTUM WANE, AND I ADDRESS THE LAO LEADERS WHEN I SAY OUR RELATIONSHIP CAN GROW FURTHER, AND WILL -- IF AND WHEN THEY PROVIDE THE COOPERATION WE NOW SEEK.

OUR YEARS OF ATTEMPTING TO SEEK COOPERATION FROM CAMBODIA AND THE SOVIETS WERE NOT REWARDED -- UNTIL JUST RECENTLY. THE U.N.-SPONSORED SETTLEMENT PLAN IN CAMBODIA -- THE HISTORIC CHANGES IN THE LANDS OF THE OLD SOVIET UNION -- HAVE OPENED THE WAY FOR UNPRECEDENTED ACCESS. WE WILL PUSH HARD TO TRANSLATE THIS ACCESS INTO ANSWERS.

I KNOW YOU'VE LIVED THROUGH ALL THIS BEFORE.
UNFORTUNATELY -- AND IT BREAKS MY HEART TO SEE THIS HAPPEN -- WE HAVE SEEN FALSE REPORTING, EVEN SCAM
OPERATIONS, THAT DIVERT MANPOWER AND SAP OUR RESOURCES.
I SIMPLY CANNOT FATHOM THE CRUELTY OF THOSE WHO WOULD EXPLOIT THIS ISSUE FOR PERSONAL GAIN. NEVERTHELESS, WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO ALLOW SUCH INCIDENTS TO DISCOURAGE US. WE WILL CONTINUE TO PURSUE AND OPENLY RECEIVE INFORMATION FROM ALL SOURCES. WE WILL CONTINUE TO TREAT EACH REPORT -- EVERY REPORT -- AS THE BREAKTHROUGH THAT JUST MIGHT END ONE FAMILY'S ORDEAL.

OUR EFFORTS SINCE 1981 HAVE PRODUCED RESULTS. FOR 241 FAMILIES, THE UNCERTAINTY HAS ENDED. FOR OTHERS -
- TOO MANY OTHERS -- THE QUESTIONS LINGER. AND EVERY DAY NOW, IT SEEMS, THE NEWS PURPORTS TO UNEARTH SOME GREAT NEW REVELATION OF FACT -- FACTS YOU'VE KNOWN FOR 20 YEARS. FACTS WE'VE SHARED WITH YOU FOR A DECADE.

WELL, THE KEY FACT IS ONE WE ALL AGREE ON:

THERE ARE AMERICANS WHO DID NOT RETURN HOME AT THE END OF HOSTILITIES -- AMERICANS LAST KNOWN TO BE ALIVE.

ACCOUNTING FOR THESE MEN REMAINS OUR HIGHEST
PRIORITY. // AND ALTHOUGH WE DO NOT YET HAVE PROOF THAT ANY AMERICANS ARE NOW ALIVE, IN THE ABSENCE OF FIRM ANSWERS -- OUR ASSUMPTION WILL ALWAYS BE: LET FACTS DIRECT OUR POLICY. AND LET HOPE BE OUR GUIDE.

OUR POLICY REMAINS: FULL DISCLOSURE -- FULL
DISCLOSURE OF ALL RELEVANT INFORMATION TO FAMILIES. WE WILL CONTINUE TO COOPERATE FULLY WITH CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES -- TO ENSURE THE ACCESS THEY MUST HAVE TO PERFORM THEIR IMPORTANT OVERSIGHT ROLE.

BUT THERE ARE SOME THINGS WE WILL NOT DO -- HOWEVER
LOUD THE CRITICS MAY COMPLAIN. WE WILL NOT PUBLICLY RELEASE ANY INFORMATION THAT WOULD JEOPARDIZE ONGOING INTELLIGENCE OR NEGOTIATING EFFORTS TO ACCOUNT FOR YOUR MISSING LOVED ONES -- AMERICA'S MISSING HEROES.

I REPEAT: LET THE CRITICS COMPLAIN. WE HAVE A JOB TO DO. //

AS PRESIDENT, I TAKE IT TO BE AN ARTICLE OF FAITH -
- A SOLEMN COVENANT WITH THOSE WHO SERVE THIS COUNTRY:
THE UNITED STATES WILL ALWAYS MAKE EVERY POSSIBLE EFFORT -- TAKE EVERY POSSIBLE ACTION -- TO ACCOUNT FOR THOSE TAKEN PRISONER OR MISSING IN ACTION. OUR AIM REMAINS: THE FULLEST POSSIBLE ACCOUNTING FOR OUR POW'S
AND MIA'S -- NOTHING LESS. //

LET ME CLOSE TODAY WITH A FEW WORDS FROM THE HEART.

NO, I DON'T KNOW THE GRIEF YOU CARRY WITH YOU. I CAN'T CLAIM TO UNDERSTAND THE ANGUISH OF UNCERTAINTY -
- OR THE SOLACE OF HOPE.

BUT I CAN REMEMBER THE DAY -- ALMOST FIFTY YEARS AGO NOW -- WHEN I WAS A SCARED KID, ALONE IN A RAFT, PADDLING AGAINST THE CURRENT TO KEEP FROM WASHING
ASHORE ON AN ENEMY ISLAND. I CAN REMEMBER -- WHEN I WASN'T WONDERING IF ANYONE WOULD FIND ME AT ALL -- WORRYING ABOUT WHO MIGHT FIND ME FIRST. //

I WAS FORTUNATE. / I KNOW THAT.

AND I LEARNED FIRST-HAND WHAT IT MEANS TO KNOW THAT AMERICA WILL NEVER ABANDON ITS FIGHTING MEN, WHATEVER THEIR FATE. ///

YOU HAVE MY WORD: AMERICA WILL NEVER FORGET.
AMERICA WILL STAND WITH YOU -- UNTIL AMERICA'S HEROES
HAVE COME HOME. //

THANK YOU AGAIN FOR HAVING ME WITH YOU. GOD BLESS YOU -- AND MAY GOD BLESS THE GREATEST COUNTRY ON EARTH,
THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

LOCATION: Stouffer Hotel, Crystal City, Virginia
THROUGH: DAVID DEMAREST
FROM: CECE KREMER
LEIGH ANN METZGER

I. PURPOSE

To address the National League of Families of American MIA/POWs in S.E. Asia, and strengthen your relationship with veterans service organizations.

II. BACKGROUND

The National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia was incorporated in Washington, D.C. on May 28, 1970. Membership is comprised solely of the immediate families of Americans who were, or are, listed as prisoners of war, missing in action, or killed in action, and returned Vietnam prisoners of war.

The League's purpose is three-fold: 1) to obtain the release of all prisoners, 2) to ensure the fullest possible accounting for the missing, and 3) to repatriate all recoverable remains of those who died serving our nation in Southeast Asia. The organization is non-profit, non-partisan, and financed through contributions from the families, concerned citizens, and various organizations.

Prior to your remarks, you will participate in a brief photo op with Ann Mills Griffiths, Executive Director of the League, and nine other board members.

TALKING POINTS FOR THE OHIO VICTORY '92 LEADERSHIP MEETING

-- GEORGE VOINOVICH, MIKE DEWINE, BOB BENNETT, DAVID HOBSON, FELLOW REPUBLICANS - GOOD AFTERNOON AND THANK YOU FOR THAT WARM WELCOME.

CARD 2 OF 9

-- IN JUST THE LAST FOUR YEARS, THE WORLD THAT WE HAVE KNOWN
FOR THE LAST FORTY YEARS HAS TURNED UPSIDE DOWN. I BELIEVE THAT THE NEXT FOUR YEARS PRESENT AN OPPORTUNITY TO SET THIS COUNTRY
ON A NEW TRACK THAT WILL DEFINE THE NEXT FORTY. AND THAT IS EXACTLY WHY I WANT TO BE YOUR PRESIDENT - BECAUSE I KNOW THAT I AM THE RIGHT MAN FOR THAT JOB.

CARD 3 OF 9

-- THE VISION THAT WILL GUIDE THE CHANGES THAT WE MUST MAKE IS ONE THAT WE ALL SHARE: STRONG FAMILIES, GOOD SCHOOLS, SAFE NEIGHBORHOODS, A JOB-CREATING ECONOMY, A WORLD AT PEACE. IT IS A VISION OF THE SORT OF FUTURE THAT YOU AND I WANT FOR OUR KIDS, OUR GRANDKIDS, - FOR ALL OF AMERICA'S CHILDREN.

CARD 4 OF 9

-- OUR CHILDREN NOW GO TO SLEEP AT NIGHT WITH FAR LESS FEAR OF A NUCLEAR WAR. THAT SIMPLE FACT IS A DREAM COME TRUE FOR AMERICA, AND I AM PROUD OF THE WORK THAT I HAVE DONE TO HELP MAKE IT SO.

CARD 5 OF 9

-- HOWEVER, FOR ALL THE GREAT TRIUMPHS FREEDOM HAS MADE, THE WORLD REMAINS A DANGEROUS PLACE. AND TO ENSURE THAT WE CONTINUE TO LIVE IN SAFETY AND PROSPERITY, I WILL NEVER SHORTCHANGE OUR NATIONAL SECURITY. THE BEST WAY TO KEEP AMERICA SAFE IS TO KEEP AMERICA STRONG.

CARD 6 OF 9

-- FURTHERMORE, THE SUCCESSES THAT WE HAVE ENJOYED INTERNATIONALLY HAVE LAID THE FOUNDATION FOR STEPPING UP OUR ATTACK ON OUR DOMESTIC PROBLEMS. WITH OUR BORDERS SAFE, WE CAN NOW FOCUS EVEN GREATER AMOUNTS OF ENERGY INWARD TO HELP IMPROVE THINGS RIGHT HERE AT HOME.

CARD 7 OF 9

-- NOW, THERE ARE SOME WHO ASK "WHY CAN'T YOU BRING THE SAME KIND OF PURPOSE AND SUCCESS TO THE DOMESTIC SCENE AS YOU DID IN DESERT SHIELD AND IN DESERT STORM?" FAIR QUESTION. AND THE ANSWER IS THAT I DIDN'T HAVE TO GET PERMISSION FROM THE CONGRESS TO KICK SADDAM HUSSEIN OUT OF KUWAIT.

-- GIVE ME A NEW CONGRESS, GIVE ME FOUR MORE YEARS, AND JUST WATCH ME GET THIS COUNTRY MOVING AGAIN.

CARD 8 OF 9

-- THE PRINCIPLES THAT YOU, THE PEOPLE OF OHIO, HAVE ALWAYS HELD DEAR ARE THOSE UPON WHICH OUR PARTY WAS FOUNDED. THEY ARE PRINCIPLES THAT WE KNOW ARE RIGHT. WE ARE RIGHT ABOUT FAMILY, ABOUT FREEDOM, AND ABOUT FREE ENTERPRISE. WE ARE RIGHT ABOUT FAITH. AND MOST OF ALL, WE ARE RIGHT ABOUT AMERICA'S FUTURE.

CARD 9 OF 9

-- WITH YOUR SUPPORT, WITH OUR PRINCIPLES, WE CAN TAKE OUR DREAMS FOR A BETTER AMERICA AND MAKE THEM HAPPEN.

-- AS COMMITTED REPUBLICANS, AND AS PROVEN FRIENDS, I THANK YOU AGAIN FOR ALL OF YOUR HARD WORK AND DEDICATION.

-- GOD BLESS YOU ALL.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: DAVID F. DEMAREST, Jr.
FROM: BOBBIE G. KILBERG
MARGARET M. JONAS
SUBJECT: OHIO

I. Recent Correspondence

Governor Voinovich has written you several letters regarding the Clean Air Act. One of his major concerns is the first-come, first-served queuing system used to grant allowances under the Clean Air Act. He favors a pro-rata system, and asserts that the first-come first served system supported by the Administration is "anti-Ohio, anti-Midwest." In addition, the Governor seeks your support in discouraging EPA from maintaining support for nitrogen oxides (NOx) emissions control technology.

The Governor also has written Chief of Staff Skinner seeking assistance in curtailing EPA action against electric utility companies with regard to the aforementioned NOx emission control requirements.

Mayor Michael White (D-Cleveland), Mayor William Snavely (Oxford), State Representative William Mallory (D-Cincinnati) and City Councilman Mike Ferner (Toledo) wrote expressing their concerns over the Los Angeles riot.

State Representative Michael Fox (R-Hamilton) wrote in support of your privatization and deregulation initiatives.

II. Discussion

A. Brookville, Ohio

The nearest major city to Brookville (population of 500,000) is Dayton, Ohio with a population of 951,270. Mayor Mike Duncan (NP), on behalf of the town of Brookville, has proclaimed Friday, July 24th, as George Bush Day. Attached is a copy of the Mayor's Proclamation.

OHIO BRIEFING
PAGE TWO

B. Economy

1. Unemployment Rates - Seasonally adjusted for the U.S.; the rates for Ohio and Dayton are not adjusted.

	June 1991	June 1992	Change
U.S.	6.9%	7.8%	+ .9%
Ohio	6.5%	7.6%	+1.1%
	April 1991	April 1992
Dayton	6.7%	6.2%	- .5%

2. Economic Conditions

Children's Palace, the nation's second largest toy retailing chain, is closing numerous stores in Ohio, two of which are in Dayton. Closings are due to the retail recession and the scarcity of financing. Liquidation sales began on Sunday, July 12th.

Layoffs in the Dayton area include:

Metropolitan Life Insurance laid off 53 employees in late May 1992.

Fox River Paper Company announced the layoff of 71 workers beginning in late March.

The State expects 55 workers from Monsanto to be laid off in late August.

NCR (National Cash Registers) announced the ending of all production in the Dayton area and a layoff of 200 people this year.

C. Waste Technologies Industries (WTI) Incinerator

This large hazardous waste incinerator in East Liverpool (where Ohio, Pennsylvania & West Virginia meet) was issued a permit by EPA in 1983, and is nearly constructed. In February 1992, EPA approved a permit modification, which allows WTI to add a spray dryer to its air pollution control equipment at the incinerator. During the modification process, opponents from the three states sought to reopen the entire permit in order to block the facility (a position neither EPA nor Ohio supports). EPA's approval of the spray dryer modification has been appealed by the Sierra Club. Six others also filed appeals for various reasons.

In March, WTI applied for a temporary authorization to conduct a trial burn. EPA granted the temporary authorization on July 9. On July 10, a group of WTI opponents took over Administrator Reilly's office. The citizens left without incident after EPA and WTI officials agreed to delay the trial burn activities (including the acceptance of hazardous waste at the facility) for ten days, during which time the Environmental Review Board will make its decision on the seven appeals. The Environmental Review Board will release their report late in the afternoon on Friday, July 24th. There is a possibility that protestors will come to Dayton.

On July 20, EPA staff met with WTI opponents at EPA headquarters. After the meeting they refused to leave and tried to stage a sit-in. Twelve of the representatives were arrested. Further protests could occur. The WTI opponents insist that the incinerator, which is located in close proximity to a school, never be allowed to operate. The WTI incinerator is the most controversial environmental issue in Ohio, attracting national attention from the anti-incineration movement, and bipartisan opposition from Members of Congress. Governor Voinovich supports the operation of the incinerator, though he maintains the original siting of the facility was by a previous administration and also supports an Ohio legislature initiative to adopt an incinerator moratorium. Congressman Mollohan (D-WV) has called for a GAO investigation of the permitting of the facility; this investigation is underway.

D. Clean Air Act

Ohio is a major producer and user of high-sulfur coal and therefore is a major source of sulfur dioxide and acid rain. The Clean Air Act Amendments impose strict new requirements on the coal and utilities industries in Ohio to install scrubbers, switch to low-sulfur coal, or purchase allowances from other sources that have cleaned up beyond requirements. Ohio coal miners fear the loss of hundreds of jobs. Phase I of the Act requires 15 Ohio power plants to reduce their cumulative sulfur dioxide emissions by 50 percent by 1995. EPA is working closely with Ohio officials and industry to ensure the requirements are implemented at minimum cost to the economy.

The Clean Air Act Amendments also require auto emissions testing programs to be established in several metropolitan areas, one of which is Dayton. Voinovich, as mayor, opposed imposition of the program on the city. The Act requires state and urban areas having similar air pollution problems to treat them in a consistent manner for auto emissions testing.

E. Mound Plant

The Mound Nuclear Weapons Facility, located in Miamisburg, Ohio (10 miles southwest of Dayton), is being considered for consolidation by the Department of Energy (DOE). Under DOE planned consolidation of nonnuclear facilities associated with the nuclear weapons complex, the preferred option is to move production work from Mound and other DOE sites to Kansas City in order to reduce overhead costs. At present, no decision has been made on this option. The DOE decision, expected later this year, will take into account public comments and findings from an environmental assessment.

If a decision is made to terminate production, DOE hopes to minimize effects on personnel by transferring them to other programs or by early retirement. DOE will also conduct environmental restoration of the site in consultation with state and local officials.

Mayor Richard C. Church (Miamisburg) opposes the possible closing and has requested to meet with you on this topic. On April 8th, Secretary Watkins met with Lt. Governor Mike DeWine to discuss nonnuclear consolidation. Mayor Church and a delegation of local elected officials from Miamisburg met with senior Department of Energy officials on May 20th to discuss this issue. Jim Snyder of the White House Intergovernmental Affairs also met with them separately on May 20.

F. USS/Kobe Steel

This joint America/Japanese venture steel mill located in Lorain, Ohio began a $100 million reconstruction of its blast furnaces in Fall 1991, under provision of a State air permit. EPA challenged the compliance of that permit with the Clean Air Act's requirement for review of major new pollution sources, and issued an enforcement order on January 9, 1992, with a stop-construction provision if permit deficiencies could not be resolved.

On April 29, Kobe signed a proposed consent decree which stipulates, among other things, a $500,000 fine. EPA signed the proposed decree on May 7. Terms of the proposed decree will not be made public until the Department of Justice lodges the decree in Federal court within the next few weeks. This issue has been of particular concern to Governor Voinovich.

G. Waste Importation

Waste importation is one of the major environmental concerns in Ohio and is an issue of particular interest to Governor Voinovich. Ohio is both a chief generator and major importer of garbage and hazardous waste. In 1989, the State imported a net of over 130,000 tons of garbage and hazardous waste. In 1990, the State imported 12 percent of its total solid waste landfill disposal.

H. Welfare Reform Proposal

On June 29, 1992, Governor George Voinovich unveiled a package of recommendations to reform Ohio's Medicaid and public assistance programs. However, no package has been submitted to the Administration for consideration as of yet. The plan is a result of three months of work by the Interagency Medicaid Reform Work Group which included representatives from the Ohio's Dept. of Human Services (Medicaid), Aging, Health and the Office of Budget and Management.

The recommendations would provide for greater reliance on managed-care for Medicaid recipients. Also, the package draws a stronger linkage between school attendance and the receipt of full aid, in an effort to keep teens in school.

On July 7th, 1992, representatives of the Governor met with Dr. Gail Wilensky on the White House staff to gain support for the Governor's proposals. Staff of the Health Care Financing Administration's (HCFA's) Regional and Central Offices have been providing ongoing technical assistance to staff of the Ohio Medicaid program to assist in any way possible in the development and implementation of programs that meet federal requirements.

I. Welfare Bill

Legislation introduced in the General Assembly on July 14 and intended to carry out the welfare revamping program of Governor Voinovich would require welfare parents to be given information about "natural family planning". The Governor said two weeks ago in announcing his plan that women who have babies while receiving AFDC would be required to undergo family planning counseling within 30 days of the birth to continue receiving aid. One of the bill's sponsors indicated that the purpose of the legislation is to teach women who have children out of wedlock about contraception including abstinence.

J. Job Development Initiative

Governor Voinovich and the Ohio Senate Republican Caucus have put together an extensive jobs package. The goal of the package, which was introduced in the Ohio Senate on July 2nd, is to make it attractive to create jobs in Ohio, but not negatively effect the General Revenue Fund. The package of five bills is an outgrowth of the Senate ad hoc committee on job development chaired by Senator Anthony C. Sinagra (R-Lakewood). It includes; Job Creation Tax Credit, Research and Development Sales Tax Exemption, Export Tax Credit, Tax Increment Financing, and Highway Funds.

The bills will be referred to the Senate Economic Development, Technology and Aerospace Committee chaired by Senator Charles Horn (R-Dayton).

K. Education

1. America 2000

On November 25, 1991, you joined Secretary Alexander and Governor Voinovich in Columbus, Ohio to kick-off Ohio 2000, the 26th statewide initiative to join the AMERICA 2000 effort. Since that time, over 70 communities across Ohio have initiated the AMERICA 2000 effort in their areas. Dayton is a America 2000 community.

The Ohio 2000 Committee of 1000 consists of 1000 education, government, business and community leaders. On February 9, 1992, Governor Voinovich and Ted Sanders (Ohio State Superintendent of Education and former Deputy Secretary of Education under Secretary Cavazos) convened an education summit attended by the Committee of 1000 and other key leaders to discuss education issues.

2. Education Developments

Legislation allowing local superintendents to expel students permanently for being caught with a gun or other deadly weapons on school property now awaits Governor Voinovich's signature. The bill would allow students 16 years of age or older to be barred from attending any public school, anywhere in Ohio, until the age of 22. In May, the bill cleared the Ohio House 90-7 and the Senate 26-6. The Senate voted to expand the legislation to authorize local school officials to search a student's locker and its contents at any time.

Governor Voinovich signed into law legislation revising Ohio's school testing and diploma system. The new legislation redirects the focus of testing toward measuring how students are performing compared with other students. High school graduates will be eligible for two types of diplomas. A general diploma will be awarded to those who complete high school and pass a ninth grade proficiency test. A new honors diploma will go to students who pass a twelfth-grade proficiency test and meet other criteria that are to be established by the State Board of Education.

The Governor's Commission on Educational Choice recently held its first public meeting. The charge of this Commission is not to debate educational choice but to suggest how Ohio can institute it. State Senator Cooper Snyder (Hillsboro) indicated to the Commission that he would be willing to sponsor legislation that would allow pilot choice programs.

L. Exports

Ohio ranks eighth among all 50 states in total exports. State businesses export to 173 different countries.

Ohio's exports grew 58% from 1987 to 1990. Ohio's biggest export market is Canada, which in 1990 bought 46% ($7.3 billion) of the state's total exports. Exports to Mexico -- the sixth largest trading partner of the state -- have grown 81% since 1987. In 1987, a total of 311,700 Ohio workers were employed by exports.

M. Recent Department of Labor Grants

On June 29, 1992, Secretary Martin provided $270,000 in grant funds to assist 540 workers dislocated in a mass layoff caused by the bankruptcy of the Peter J. Schmitt Company in Austintown and North Jackson, Ohio. Funds will provide basic readjustment services, retraining, supportive services and needs-related payments.

On June 25, 1992, Secretary Martin announced a Senior Community Service Employment Program grant for $3.5 million to the Ohio Department on Aging in Columbus. Funds are to be used to promote the creation of part-time jobs in community service activities for jobless, low-income persons who are at least 55 years of age and have poor employment prospects.

N. Wetlands

Ohio farmers are concerned about Federal involvement with wetlands on private property. The basic issues involve the perception of overzealous regulation of wetlands and the "taking" of private property rights. Ohio farmers are also concerned about Federal restrictions which could decrease the value of farmland and effect the farmer's borrowing power when they use the land for collateral. Additionally, Ohio farmers and landowners are concerned that there has been little thought of compensation for wetlands that they can no longer use or sell for development, but on which they must still pay high taxes.

O. Drugs

Federal drug grants to Ohio have increased 102% (from $30 million in '89 to $62 million in '92) since you started the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: RONALD C. KAUFMAN
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR POLITICAL AFFAIRS

FROM: ~~WALTER WHITE~~
~~ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR~~
~~OFFICE OF POLITICAL AFFAIRS~~

SUBJECT: OHIO POLITICAL BRIEFING

1992 POLITICAL UPDATE - PRESIDENTIAL

The President's latest visit to Ohio was on May 21 in Cleveland where he attended a Bush-Quayle fundraiser which raised more than $300,000.

Ohio will be a key political battleground in 1992, as it was in 1988. Ohio has supported Republican Presidential candidates in the past three elections (1980 - 1988), but the Democrats have indicated that they will work hard to break that tradition in 1992. Democratic Governor Bill Clinton has made a number of campaign trips to Ohio, including stops in Utica, Columbus, and Wilmington on his bus tour during the past week with Senator Gore.

Governor Voinovich serves as General Chairman of the Ohio BUSH-QUAYLE campaign effort, with W.R. "Tim" Timken serving as Finance Chairman. The BUSH-QUAYLE Ohio Steering Committee is composed of the following individuals: Keith McNamara, Paul Mifsud, Tally Krumm, Bob Bennett, Martha Moore, Mike Colley, Alex Arshinkoff, Tom Van Meter, Jim Tilling, Bruce Johnson, Joe Deters, Jim Brennan, Senator Grace Drake, and Melanie Mitchell. The BUSH-QUAYLE campaign headquarters opened on Monday, April 20, 1992, in Columbus. Doug Preisse serves as Executive Director.

The Ohio Presidential primary was conducted on June 2, 1992. The President easily defeated Pat Buchanan garnering 83% of the primary vote as opposed to Buchanan's 17%. The President won the support of all 83 Ohio delegates to the Republican National Convention.

OHIO POLITICAL BRIEFING

In the Democratic Presidential Primary, Bill Clinton received 61% of the popular vote, defeating Jerry Brown with 19%, and Paul Tsongas with 11%. Clinton thus garnered 113 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, as opposed to 34 delegates for Brown, and 1 for Tsongas.

Ross Perot developed an extensive campaign organization in Ohio and qualified for the general election ballot in the Buckeye state before withdrawing from the Presidential race.

The most recent state-wide poll in Ohio was conducted before Perot withdrew from the Presidential race (June 17-22, 1992) by the Public Relations firm of Paul Werth Associates. The poll showed Perot holding a slight lead over the President 32% to 26%. Clinton trailed in third with 18%. The margin of error for the poll was +/- 3%. 27% indicated they were undecided.

Ohio will have 21 electoral votes in the 1992 Presidential contest. The BUSH-QUAYLE '92 ticket carried Ohio in the 1988 election with a 55% to 44% margin.

1992 POLITICAL OUTLOOK - U.S. SENATE

On Monday, February 3, 1992, Lieutenant Governor Mike DeWine announced his candidacy for the United States Senate -- challenging Democratic incumbent Senator John Glenn. DeWine is a popular Ohio figure and expects an uphill battle, but he is considered an aggressive campaigner. His strategy will be to portray Glenn as out of touch with mainstream Ohio, and ineffective as a legislator. DeWine hopes to tap into the current anti-incumbent mood, and suggest that Ohio needs a new face in Washington. DeWine is 49 years old, Glenn is 70. DeWine is a conservative, Glenn a liberal. DeWine endorses term limitations, Glenn has served in the U.S. Senate for 18 years. The contrasts between the two candidates could not be sharper.

Though initial state-wide polls on the Senate race showed Glenn with a 47% to 29% lead, he has steadily lost ground to DeWine. A poll on this race, conducted on June 17-22 by Paul Werth & Associates, showed DeWine trailing Glenn by a 42% to 31% margin. The latest state-wide poll, conducted by Tarrance and Associates on July 1-4, showed Glenn leading DeWine by only two percentage points. Glenn received support from 48% of those surveyed, as opposed to 46% for DeWine. The margin of error for the poll was +/-3.5%.

Many have asserted that Glenn has been hurt by the "Keating-Five" scandal as well as a vigorous, issue-oriented campaign conducted by DeWine. Glenn has amassed a war chest in excess of $2 million while the National Republican Senatorial Committee has publicly committed to spending $897,097, the legal limit in coordinated campaign funds. DeWine currently has $347,000 cash-on-hand and $1 million in aggregate receipts.

DeWine must raise over $3 million to mount an effective challenge to the nationally known and popular John Glenn. Governor Voinovich (who will serve as DeWine's campaign Chairman) and the Ohio Republican Party have pledged their full support to DeWine, and he has requested the President's participation in an Ohio fundraising event.

Despite his involvement in the Savings and Loan "Keating Five" scandal, Glenn remains a popular elected figure in Ohio. Glenn's longstanding career in public service has given him tremendous credibility with voters, and most residents of the Buckeye State are willing to look past his obvious mistakes. DeWine will be careful not to attack Glenn's hero image, but will rather stress the need for change. Most experts agree that Ohio's two Democratic U.S. Senators (Glenn and Howard Metzenbaum) are far too liberal for a state with a Republican Governor, Lt. Governor, and Secretary of State.

There were four contested Republican Congressional primaries in Ohio on June 2nd. In the most hotly contested race, Rep. Bob McEwen and Rep. Clarence Miller -- both forced into the 6th Congressional district by reapportionment -- fought a bitter battle for the Republican nomination, with McEwen prevailing 51%-49%. McEwen has come out recently with rather harsh criticism of the President. He has accused the President of being too accommodating to the Democratic leadership in Congress. He has also derided the President as "coming to the American people with an empty basket."

The three other Congressional Republican primaries were in the 10th, 11th, and 19th Congressional districts, all for open seats. In the 10th District, Martin Hoke won a three-way race, garnering 33% of the primary vote. In the 11th District, Beryl Rothschild won a four-way race for the GOP nomination taking 45% of the vote. Finally, in the 19th District Robert Gardner won a five-way race for the GOP nomination by garnering 34% of the vote. The only other Congressional primary in the state was held in the congressional district in which Democrat Mary Rose Oakar sustained a heated challenge from Tim Hagan and four others, receiving 39% of the vote compared to 30% for Hagan.

On June 28th, incumbent U.S. Representative Charles Luken announced that he would not seek re-election at the completion of his first term. The announcement came as a great surprise because Luken had no primary opposition and was running unopposed in the general election. Cincinnati Vice-Mayor Peter Strauss, public relations expert Steve Reece, and State Representative Jerome Luebbers will run for the Democratic nomination. Ex-Cincinnati Mayor, Reagan staffer, Undersecretary at HUD, and current U.S. Envoy to the United Nations, Kenneth Blackwell, a black Republican who lost to Luken by 3,000 votes in 1990, appeared to be the likely Republican nominee.

However, because no Republican candidate had successfully filed to challenge Luken for the Congressional seat before the June primary, Democrats in the state moved to bar the Republican party from fielding a candidate for the race. Republican Secretary of State Bob Taft concurred with the Democrats, rejecting a special Republican primary election for the first district seat. The GOP will rely on Steve Grote, disqualified in his attempt earlier this year to gain access to the Republican primary ballot due to problems with his signature petitions, who is now running as an independent in the general election.

Luken has donated $100,000 in campaign funds to help defray the estimated $300,000 cost to the city of a special election for his seat. He has offered to further reimburse the state should he have additional campaign funds upon retiring his campaign debt.

STATE LEGISLATURE

Currently, Republicans control the State Senate 21-12, and trail in the Assembly 38-61. While it is a formidable task, the state GOP is confident that it can make major gains -- if not capture the Assembly -- because Republicans control the reapportionment process. Remapping and reapportionment have resulted in the creation of 16 open seats. State Chairman Bob Bennett and Governor Voinovich are aggressively recruiting candidates, and are hopeful that their efforts will allow the Governor to further the gains he has made in the past year -- with a Republican controlled Assembly.

PAGE FIVE

OHIO GOP UPDATE

The Ohio Republican Party continues to strengthen its position under the leadership of Chairman Bob Bennett. The Ohio GOP is arguably one of the best run state party organizations in the nation. Bennett is backed up by National Committeeman Mike Colley and National Committeewoman Martha Moore, as well as a top-notch political staff.

REAPPORTIONMENT UPDATE

Ohio will lose two Congressional seats in 1992 as a result of reapportionment. Republicans control the Reapportionment Board 3-2 (Governor, Secretary of State, Senate President). Ohio Republicans fared well in Congressional redistricting. As a result, Democrat incumbents Edward Feighan, Donald Pease, and Dennis Eckart will all retire in 1993.
