--- THE DAILY BRIEFING ON AMERICAN POLITICS ---

Updated Each Morning At 11:50

(c) The American Political Network, Inc.
282 North Washington Street, Falls Church, VA (703) 237-5130

DEBATES: COMMISSION DIGS IN
No change in format; 5:00
deadline for 10/4 event. (#3)

KEMP TO PEROT: "RUN, ROSS, RUN"
"Let the chips fall ..." (#1)

RIDE THE POLLERCOASTER
As ABC/W. POST margin sheds
12 pts in a week, Clinton lead now seen at 9, down to 5 in 3-way. (#29) CBS has Clinton by 13; 11 in 3-way. (#28)

IN THE STATES: Perot draws
21% in MI, takes some from Clinton margin. (#10) It's a dead heat back in Orange Co.,
even with Perot at 22%. (#8)

SINCEREST FORM OF FLATTERY DEPT
NH SEN: 3rd-party candidate may pull GOP votes from Gregg, give margin to Rauh. (#21)

CO SEN: Campbell setting own debate terms; Considine says protest "rings hollow." (#17)

REMAINING HOUSE PRIMARIES
10/1: FL has 6 runoffs in 4
CDs, including Hastings. (#24)
10/4: LA has two Member vs.
Member showdowns, one brother
vs. brother. (#24)

SPOTLIGHT

ROSS THE BOSS

His power to manipulate is back too -- over media and the other campaigns alike. Only the polls seem different: Perot's vote now ranges from 20% (GANNETT) to 9% (NEWSWEEK, CBS); by 2-1 people say "don't run"
(CBS, #28); 47% of his own voters say they may not stick with him (ABC #29).

QUESTIONS: Does Perot
freeze things -- including Clinton's lead? Or will he make Clinton disappear as he did last Spring -- and the Clinton lead too? Does Perot's personality offer a contrast that makes Bush look good? Can he be ruled out of debates? Will Bush or Clinton look weak nixing him? Will Clinton dare to debate him 2-way? Does Bush dare duck it? In the end, will anti-Bush voters treat
Perot as a wasted vote?

===== QUOTE OF THE DAY =====
"We believe he wanted to win in the worst way."
-- Seminole Co., FL Sheriff Don Eslinger, on a state Rep. challenger charged with attempted murder of his opponent, AP, 9/29. (#25)

? ? ? ? OVERLOOKED ? ? ? ?

No wonder they call him Inspector Perot. Perot's VP pick Stockdale's full name: Ret. Vice Adm. James Bond Stockdale.

*1 PEROT: VOLUNTEERS HEAR BUSH/CLINTON PITCHES; 10/4 DECISION?

"One of the most extraordinary days in presidential politics" (Waters, Memphis COMMERCIAL APPEAL, 9/29). "A spectacle unmatched in modern political history" (Shaw, NEWSDAY, 9/29). "A remarkable political pageant" (Richter/Kennedy, L.A. TIMES, 9/29). "A degrading day for American politics" (Jacobs, S.F. EXAMINER, 9/29). W. TIMES runs adjacent front-page pix of Perot laughing it up with Dems Bentsen and Cisneros, and GOPers Teeter, Gramm and Scowcroft (9/29). The closed-door sessions took place all afternoon, with Perot breaking occasionally for televised press briefings. He said he would "button up" a decision on running by 10/1, and most reports characterized the decision as a near-sure thing, based on the expressed sentiments of volunteer coordinators present. "Volunteers insisted they still wanted their champion" (Lehigh, BOSTON GLOBE, 9/29). W. POST header: "Perot on Verge on Reentering Race; Bush, Clinton Envoys Apparently Fail to Convert Texan's Supporters" (9/29). "For much of the day ... Perot seemed to be reaching back for the old, can-do, up-from-the-people innocence of his early days as a potential Presidential candidate" (Toner, N.Y. TIMES, 9/29). "Back in campaign mode," he posed for photos with his family, and with now-permanent VP pick Adm. James Stockdale (Baer, Balto. SUN, 9/29). ABC's Jennings: "An exercise in political power -- the political power which Ross Perot is perceived to have." ABC's McWethy: "Perot enjoyed himself immensely" (9/28). NBC's Brokaw: "Perot gave the political equivalent of a Tupperware party, but whether he was buying or selling, we still don't know" (9/28). CBS' Rather: "What is Perot up to?" (9/28). NBC's Myers: "Perot called it 'democracy at its finest,' others saw it as the largest collective pander in American politics in many years. ... Both campaigns considered today a dog and pony show, but they decided it was smarter to pander than to risk the wrath of Ross Perot" (9/28). CBS' Pelley: "Perot played power-broker in an unprecedented meeting. ... It was an audition in Perot's own smoke-filled room" (9/28). ABC's Greenfield: "Every now and again, someone looks up from this latest chapter of 'Waiting for Perot' and whispers the word 'Crazy.' Well, right now the presidential campaigns of both major parties are frozen in place. And once again, Ross Perot seems to be the only political game in town. Crazy? -- Like a fox" (9/28).

CLINTON TEAM: ABC's McWethy: "The Democrats were selling hard" (9/28). GOP strategist Ed Rollins: "Clinton absolutely benefitted ... Every day he can freeze the political environment and keep moving with a 12 or 15 point lead -- If we spend the next 5 days debating whether Ross Perot gets in or not -- George Bush cannot make up the ground" ("Crossfire, CNN, 9/28). "Several Perot supporters said the [Dem] delegation came better prepared, benefitting from weekend sessions ... with Mr. Perot's top economic advisor" (Smith, COX/ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, 9/29).

BUSH TEAM: W. TIMES header: "Did 'psychodrama' dupe president?" One GOP consultant: "It was nonsense and bad politics for Bush to genuflect to this guy" (9/29). According to Perot's NM chief Jim Bishop, Sec/HUD Jack Kemp "became so worked up" in the closed-door meet, he said: "Run, Ross, run. Let the chips fall where they may" (KNIGHT-RIDDER, 9/29). SC Perot backer Betty Montgomery: "It's a shame Jack Kemp's not the candidate. He makes more sense than Bush" (HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 9/29). W. TIMES' Garrett reports after Perot chastised the GOP at the podium on a number of points, Teeter, Gramm, Scowcroft, and Matalin "stood through it all. But Mr. Kemp ... walked off the podium in apparent disgust" (9/29). Sen. Phil Gramm (R-TX): "I didn't go down there with any idea that we were going to convince these people not to be for Perot, or that we were going to convince [Perot] not to run" ("GMA," ABC, 9/29).

SO WHADDYATHINK? Sen. Warren Rudman (R-NH): "Indicative that money buys a great deal of power in this country. ... I find it rather difficult to comprehend that Mr. Perot is waiting for his supporters to advise him what to do. I don't think he waited for their advice when he pulled out" ("Moneyline," CNN, 9/28). GOP strategist Ed Rollins: "I would not have gone ... It was a circus, it was a fool's folly. ... Neither campaign understood the Perot movement when it was in full force and neither understands it today when it's not in full force. ... Perot had his best day since he dropped out" ("Crossfire," CNN, 9/28). Ex-IL Perot chair David Charlson: If Perot announces 10/1, "I find it very interesting he will not have to file an FEC report until after the election. Therefore, he can do pretty much what he wants to do" ("M/L," PBS, 9/28). On "Nightline," W. POST's Broder observed that one little-noted effect of the renewed media focus on Perot has been to distract much-needed attention from Bush, who remains at 42% in the latest W. POST poll (ABC, 9/29). Analyst Sherry Betitch Jeffe: "How dare they acquiesce to a closed meeting called by one man? This is a circus and I'm really angry" (S.F. EXAMINER, 9/29). S.J. MERCURY NEWS' Trounstine: "Perhaps Perot is hoping that by remaining in the game ... he can prove himself one of the survivors. Or maybe, he'd be satisfied if he could simply moderate a debate between Bush and Clinton. On TV of course" (9/29).

HERE'S THE DEAL: Rollins: "Perot offered to pay me half a million dollars if I would have a taken vow of silence. Literally half-a-million dollars, and I would not do it" ("Crossfire," CNN, 9/28). Sometime Bush advisor Roger Ailes: "If [Perot] is serious about the principles that made him a fortune, he will end up endorsing the [GOP] eventually -- that's where he has been all his life, unless he is in a petty battle with [Bush]" ("Today," NBC, 9/29). Many reports this a.m. look at Perot's budget plan. W.S. JOURNAL's Murray & Noah: "Perot's plan comes at a time when a growing chorus of economic experts say it could be exactly the wrong medicine." They say "any effort by the U.S. to sharply reduce its budget deficit could be an economic misstep of global proportions" (9/29). N.Y. TIMES' Passel: "Relatively few mainstream economists buy Mr. Perot's jeremiad at face value" (9/29). BOSTON GLOBE's Gosselin: "Even some longtime proponents of drastic action to curb federal spending say [the plan] is too much for the economy to take right now" (9/29).

*2 PEROT: THE KING OF "LARRY KING"; THE TALK OF "TODAY"

Just like the 7/92 appearance, Larry King gave Perot 1 1/2 hours. (No call from Cher this time.) Asked about ex-manager Ed Rollins charge that Perot tried to keep Rollins quiet with a half million dollars (see #1): "I probably didn't spend two hours with Mr. Rollins the whole time he was here. Some of my associates felt they needed advice from a person of his background. I humored them and let them bring him to Dallas. And the rest is history." King: "Was that a mistake, too?" Perot: "I don't want to dignify it by talking about it. ... Why would anybody care what he thought? I don't. ... It's ludicrous to even put him on television. ... This is a man who now makes a living pretending to know a great deal about me and knows next to nothing about me because as I had almost no contact with him. I just find it fascinating in America, that's the way the worm turns." On running: "If the volunteers want me to do it, we will certainly run to win. ... Our objective is to know what they want to do by Thursday of this week because the clock's running." On Bush and Iran-Contra: "I would say Iran-Contra, which is current and involved a vice president who was in office and was a mature man, if he was a part of it -- and he was in charge of anti-terrorism, and this is right in the center of the target of anti-terrorism, and a man named Don Gregg, who was one of his principal aides, was deeply involved in the whole thing -- if he was involved in it -- see, the thing I said from day one, just everybody say what you knew. It was a mistake and let's get it over with and let's not have a 10-year investigation." On Clinton and the draft: "I think that has been overworked, fare thee well. Now, the world's a funny place. The real issue that everybody keeps bringing up is not his draft, but is he leveling with the American people. ... If you contrast a mistake a guy made when he was 20 and whether or not he leveled with the American people on that, and a mistake a sitting vice president in charge of anti-terrorism made and whether or not he leveled, I think one carries more weight than the other." Perot, asked if he'd debate at San Diego 10/4: "Let's assume people have asked me to do it and I'm in the game -- sure. Anywhere, anytime. You can't duck that. ... Anybody in America that feels that it is in the best interest of the country for me to get into the race, all they have to do is dial 800-925-1300." CBS' Mike Wallace called in, and invited Perot to declare on "60 Minutes." King: "Good night, Mike" ("LKL," CNN, 9/28).

"TODAY": Perot appeared for the 2nd straight day on NBC. On whether to support Clinton or Bush: "My last words [to the volunteers] were I said, 'Look this has nothing to do with an individual, it has nothing to do with a personality, I want all of you to understand that as you make your decision my feelings are not going to be hurt if you decide support the Democrats, the Republicans, or break up and support both'" (9/29).

RAPID RESPONSE: Perot spokesperson Sharon Holman claims in the first hour after Perot gave out the 800 number, "half a million calls were received" (S.F. CHRONICLE, 9/29).

*3 DEBATE: COMMISSION STICKS TO FORMAT; PRODS CAMPS FOR ANSWER Under the Commission on Pres. Debates plan, today was to have been the VP debate in Louisville. Clinton will be at the debate site and hold a noon press conference. Bush-Quayle dep. chair Clayton Yeutter will also be in town, "to challenge ... Clinton's assertion that his economic plan will only tax the rich." Yeutter will hold a press conference at 1:30p (B-Q release, 9/29).

THE LETTER: As first reported by NBC News last night, the Commission's co-chairs Paul Kirk and Frank Fahrenkopf did fax a new letter to campaign chairs Bob Teeter and Mickey Kantor this a.m.. The Commission, however, maintained its resolve to keep the single moderator format, and did not suggest the campaigns negotiate format without them present. EXCERPTS: "We continue to believe that it is important for the American public to have the benefit of at least two presidential debates. Accordingly, we now propose to use the remaining two announced dates for presidential debates, the first Sunday, October 4, and the second on Thursday, October 15. The CPD also continues to believe that its proposed format of a single moderator will best serve the needs of the public. We invite you once again to meet with us to attempt to resolve the present impasse over format. Time is of the essence. In order to make the arrangements for the October 4 debate, we must hear from you no later than 5:00 p.m. today, September 29. If we do not, we will be forced to cancel the October 4 debate for logistical reasons" (CPD release, 9/29).

BUSH TEAM'S INTERNAL DEBATE: Aides close to James Baker say Baker "is increasingly leaning to the view that the President stands to lose more than he could gain from debating. Mr. Baker is said to worry that time-consuming debate preparations would make it even more difficult for Mr. Bush to gain campaign momentum. ... Other aides contend that debates may be Mr. Bush's last, best chance to reverse the flow of the campaign. They say he must take the risk because risk is all he has left" (Ayres, N.Y. TIMES, 9/29).

CHIT-CHAT: GOP consultant Don Sipple: "Baker is driving at getting the debate late when the Bush advertising has softened Clinton up and put him on the defensive." HOTLINE publisher Doug Bailey: "[Bush] has to change the landscape of this race. Now he really only has one way to do that, and that's with debates" (Phillips, USA TODAY, 9/28). "There is a growing sense among politicians that neither Bush nor Clinton may truly want to debate, at least not enough to make the compromises necessary to make it happen" (Eichel, PHILA. INQUIRER, 9/27). N.Y. TIMES' Quindlen: "You want to do what's right for you, not what's right for us. Frankly, you're being a little obvious about that. Your strategy is showing" (9/27). Mike Royko: "This country has never once re-elected a president who was known as 'Chicken George'" (Harrisburg SUNDAY PATRIOT-NEWS, 9/27). Andrew Greeley: "One must conclude that the Bush campaign is afraid of Clinton's quick mind and comprehensive command of the facts" (CHICAGO SUN-TIMES, 9/27). PHILA. DAILY NEWS editorial: "You don't need guys in chicken suits to dramatize the fact that George Bush and his handlers are afraid to debate" (9/25). BOSTON GLOBE editorial: "The commission would do well to offer a plan that splits the differences between the candidates' positions. One debate before journalists and a second face-to face session, including Perot if he runs" (9/26). CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Daley: "That Bush has spurned the [commission's] recommendations ... can't do him much good" (9/27).

DEBATE BY JURY: Ned Crosby and Bob Meek of the Citizen's Jury suggest their forum, which is being used this year in the PA Senate race, for debates: "Citizens Jury is a tested practical alternative to the media-driven spectacle of the media-driven debate and the superficiality of the call-in show. ... There's no reason why the Citizens Jury process couldn't work in presidential campaigns" (W. POST, 9/27).

*4 BUSH: CRIME AS ISSUE DU JOUR

"While his agents were making an economic sales pitch to Ross Perot" Bush "visited a Dallas neighborhood" 9/28 "to make a speech about crime and target" Bill Clinton. "Although the Texas sky was cloudless, there was little enthusiasm in the air" and Bush's speech "appeared rambling and disjointed, and not relevant to the main political story taking place in Dallas." Bush "made no public reference" to Ross Perot and his speech "leapt from criticism of Congress and a declaration to cut government spending to his central theme of the day, crime." Bush: "My opponent in this presidential race talks a tough game. But I'd like for you to take a look at his Arkansas record. The average inmate in Arkansas served less than one-fifth of his sentence last year. ... Violent crimes in Arkansas went up almost 60 percent in the 80's, over twice the national average. ... Arkansas had the nation's biggest increase in overall crimes" (Wilkie, BOSTON GLOBE, 9/29). Clinton comm. dir. George Stephanopoulos "did not deny the accuracy of the statistics cited by Mr. Bush, but instead went on the offensive, charging that Arkansas's increasing crime rate was part of a national surge in violent crime" over the past 12 years. Stephanopoulos: "George Bush going to St. Louis to talk about his record on crime is like Saddam Hussein going to Kuwait to talk about his record in fire fighting" (Ifill, N.Y. TIMES, 9/29). Bush, in St. Louis, "recounted" the death of an MD woman in a carjacking incident. Bush: "We cannot put up with this kind of animal behavior. These people have no place in a decent society. And as far as this president's concerned, they can go to jail, and they can stay in jail, and they can rot in jail for crimes like that. I want thugs who take cars at gunpoint to stay in a cell so long that when they get out they're too old to drive" (Kasindorf, NEWSDAY, 9/29). W. TIMES header: "Bush seeks death for carjack-killers", noting a Bush "anti-crime package that includes a federal death penalty for those convicted" of carjack-killings (9/29). In "addition to the carjacking legislation, Bush called for increased penalties for fathers who fail to support their children, strengthening legal procedures to thwart domestic and sexual violence and laws to deal with gang violence." Part of the proposals Bush has pushed since taking office, and "as usual, he blamed Democrats in Congress for stalling on his program" (Devroy, W. POST, 9/29). In a live interview with ABC's "Good Morning America", Bush was asked if his statement to not "ever, ever" raise taxes was a pledge. Bush: "As far as I'm concerned, it will be. Pledge has gotten to have a little political connotation of its own. I am going to hold the line on taxes" (Warren, KNIGHT-RIDDER, 9/29). "Four years ago, the twinned issues of taxes and crime became a club that Bush wielded against a hapless Democrat opponent. Now they are more like a wand he hopes will work some magic on the presidential campaign" (Gerstenzang, L.A. TIMES, 9/29). CNN's Crier: "Bush is returning to an issue that has worked for the Republicans since 1968 -- Law and Order" ("Inside Politics," 9/28). NBC's Brokaw: "He also repeated another promise today, 'No new tax increases'" (9/28). CBS' Rather: "Mr. Bush also promised again to hold the line on taxes, but he again refused to call that a 'No new taxes' pledge" (9/28).

VETO #34: "Juggling yet another delicate issue handed him by Congress" Bush 9/28 vetoed legislation "that would restrict China's trade" with the U.S. "unless the Chinese improved their records on human rights, free trade and arms proliferation." In a statement, Bush said "he completely shares the objectives of the legislation" but "argued that punishing China by restricting its American trade would only hurt ordinary Chinese citizens and American companies that sell goods there." Bush: "It is easy to be discouraged by the pace of progress in this area, but it would be a mistake to let our frustration lead us to gamble with policies that would undermine our goals" (Wines, N.Y. TIMES, 9/29). "Congress is expected to try to override the veto in the next week before adjourning for the elections. The House is likely to vote for the override; the decisive vote will be in the Senate, where the margin is expected to be close"

(Mann/Gerstenzang, L.A. TIMES, 9/29). PHILA. INQUIRER's Dubin notes the AARP and American Academy of Pediatrics "are just two of the many organizations that are part of a national lobbying effort to influence" House members before their vote to override Bush's veto of the family leave bill (9/29).

ALMS TO THE POOR: The RNC announced 9/28 that GOPers across the country will link-up via satellite with Bush and Quayle for a nationwide fund-raiser. "Participants in more than 35 locations in 25 states will be joined together via satellite for the simulcast fund-raiser. Each event will be hosted by a featured Republican leader." Some notable hosts: Ex-NFL quarterback Bart Starr in Birmingham; Pat Buchanan in Scottsdale, AZ; Jeb Bush in Oklahoma City; and George W. Bush in Pittsburgh; Doro Bush in Oakland Co., MI; Baseball great Ted Williams in Boston; "Family Feud's" Ray Combs in Cincinnati with Bob Mosbacher (RNC, 9/28).

NAFTA: "Under the rules" Bush cannot sign the NAFTA agreement until 12/92, but "apparently betting that NAFTA will win him votes in Texas," Bush "has set up a substitute ceremony for next week in San Antonio." Bush will meet with Mexican Pres. Carlos Salinas de Gortari and Canada PM Brian Mulroney 10/7 to "initial" the trade agreement (Auerbach, W. POST, 9/29).

GATE: L.A. TIMES' Waas and Frantz report that the "Justice Department blocked an attempt by federal investigators to travel to Rome to interview senior officials of an Italian bank that financed Iraqi arms purchases." According to "documents and a source who asked not to be identified", the Italian ambassador "met with high-level State Department officials" and top DoJ officials to "complain about the criminal probe" of the BNL bank, owned by the Italian government. "The trip was halted by high-level" DoJ officials "after the Italians voiced their complaints" (9/29).

5 OUT OF 8 RECOMMEND: NBC's Jensen examined the Bush economic record, noting NBC asked 8 Nobel Laureate economists who had the better economic plan, Bush or Clinton. Five picked Clinton, three picked Bush: "A lot of the Nobel prize winners said President Bush didn't really have an economic philosophy" (9/28).

*5 CLINTON: CAMPAIGN TURNS TABLES ON BUSH TAX CHARGES

In a N.Y. TIMES' op-ed, Clinton campaign chair Micky Kantor asserts by Bush's own standard for judging taxes -- that he used to determine Clinton's 128 tax increases -- Bush "raised taxes and fees 178 times in only three and a half years." Kantor outlines a list of the 178 tax increases (9/29).

DRAFT: Under Newark STAR LEDGER header "Clinton's draft history is a legitimate issue," AEI's Ben Wattenberg writes, "Americans, each by their own lights, should judge a potential president (like Clinton) and a potential re-elected president (like Bush) on the sum of all his parts and certainly about the main issues of our time." Clinton's draft record "is not a wipeout issue but clearly a stain on a mostly solid political record" (STAR LEDGER, 9/28). GANNETT NEWS' Richard Benedetto writes, "If Bill Clinton wins this election, a possibility that looks stronger every day, it will provide political validation for many who cut their teeth protesting the Vietnam war and backing the doomed presidential candidacies of Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern" (9/28). In a C.S. Monitor op-ed, Jack Duvall writes "For the sake of the country, let us finally end the war about Vietnam. And let us judge Bill Clinton on other grounds" (9/28).

IRAN-CONTRA: "Although Bush has said he failed to voice objections to the arms sales because he did not know the views of ex-Sec/Defense Caspar Weinberger and then-Sec/State George Shultz, N.Y. NEWSDAY's Friedman reports "a source" told him notes written in some of Weinberger's papers, "along with other papers, indicate that Bush was at key meetings in late 1985 and early 1986 at which" Weinberger and Shultz "strongly opposed the arms-for-hostages deal" (9/27).

IRAQ-GATE: In an address to the DC-based Center for Nat'l Policy, Gore is "expected to sharply criticize" Bush's role in Iraq's military buildup (DNC release, 9/28).

BLACK/FEMALE VOTES: Jackson used the pulpit of Mount Zion Baptist Church in East St. Louis this weekend to urge black voters to vote against Bush-Quayle. The article does not mention Clinton's name (ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, 9/28). In a C.S. MONITOR op-ed, S.F. State Univ. professors Rufus Browning and David Tabb urge black voters to "vote their positions on issues" and ultimately for Clinton. "The issues will be with us long after questions about a rift between Mr. Clinton and Mr. Jackson have faded" (9/29). COMMERCIAL APPEAL's Davis writes "Female voters like Bill Clinton so much, opinion polls show they just might hand [Clinton] the key to the White House. Of course women, liked Michael Dukakis even better, and see what that got" the Dems. Nonetheless, "the possibility that the gender gap will hurt the Republicans instead of help this year is getting the attention" of the Bush camp. Bush nat'l field dir. Dave Carney: "What is different this time is Clinton does not have that tremendous deficit with men" (9/29).

NICE OF YOU TO NOTICE US: CA Farm Bureau Federation pres. Bob Vice criticized Clinton for "finally" deciding to say something about American agriculture with just five weeks left in the campaign: "That showed farmers would get the shaft from him." A Bush-Quayle release outlines 5 questions farmers should ask Clinton (9/28).

CLINTON CABINET? "The campaign refuses to discuss it, but that hasn't stopped the capital's rumor mill from speculating over" which Dems might be in line for WH jobs. Among the names in circulation. Sec/State: IN Rep. Lee Hamilton, Carter dep. Sec/State Warren Christopher, who headed Clinton's VP selection team and NY Rep. Stephen Solarz. Sec/Defense: GA Sen. Sam Nunn, and Reps. Les Aspin (WI) and Dave McCurdy (OK). Sec/Treas: Most mentioned are Goldman Sachs co-chair Robert Rubin and Carter asst. Sec/Treas./Clinton college classmate Roger Altman. WA Gov. Booth Gardner "could fill spots" at Interior, Education or EPA (Komarow, AP/RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH, 9/29).

MISCELLANY: "Bush's attempt to portray Bill Clinton as a big-spending liberal received some support at Clinton's rally in Boston [9/21] from most nearly everyone but the candidate. A parade of speakers lit most of the candles surrounding the liberal litany in warming up the Quincy Market crowd" (Turner, BOSTON GLOBE, 9/29). L.A. TIMES' Warren profiles Clinton advance man/movie producer Mort Engelberg (9/29).

*6 VEEP VEEP: QUAYLE AND GORE IN CAMPAIGNLAND

"In the muddle left by the mud thrown by both presidential campaigns, it is the vice presidential nominees who present the sharper contrast for voters." While Clinton and Bush "can trade confusing attacks and statistics over the state of the U.S. and [AR] economies," Gore and Quayle, "represent the most divergent paths of the babyboom generation." Quayle: "We have a totally different perspective on what's good for America" (Brosnan, Memphis COMMERCIAL APPEAL, 9/29).

GORE: In addition to using an address to "a cheering crowd of more than 4,000" at E. Carolina Univ. to make a "direct appeal to college students, Gore "also used his speech in the heart of culturally conservative Eastern North Carolina to respond anew to the 'family values'" theme used by the GOP: "It is insulting to the American people to claim that God is on the side of one political party ... I believe in God. My faith is important to me." The E. Carolina Univ. rally was the third event in a "long campaign day in [NC]." In Morgantown, NC, "a foothills town that recently voted to oust the cable television giant Telecommunications Inc. and operate its own cable system," Gore -- a co-sponsor of the cable re-regulation bill which recently passed the House and Senate, and which Bush has said he will veto -- voiced his support for the measure. Midday, Gore talked to parents of sick children at the Brenner Children's Hospital in Winston-Salem "to emphasize the national health insurance proposal" offered by Clinton. Later in Greenville, Gore "chastised the Bush administration for 'spending taxpayer money' to persuade some U.S. manufactures to move operations to other nations" (Guillory, Raleigh NEWS AND OBSERVER, 9/29). The comment referred to a USAID program giving "manufactures that relocate low-interest loans, free worker training and protection from U.S. tariffs" (Moss, W. TIMES, 9/29).

QUAYLE: Saying "all Americans need affordable health insurance," Quayle in Colorado Springs, CO "said the best solution is [Bush's] system of vouchers that will include 'tax deductions for the middle class to make private insurance more affordable.'" The VP's remarks "capped a busy day of" rallies and fundraising appearances in NM, CO and SD with an overnight stop in Rockford, IL, "where he will begin a bus trip this morning." In Clovis, NM, Quayle addressed a "steaming gymnasium filled with thousands of screaming high school students": "This election is about your future, about our country's future, about who can create the jobs and the opportunities in America" (Jackson, L.A. TIMES, 9/29). Over the weekend, Quayle was in PA "to convince voters that he and [Bush] offer a better cure than Democrats for the nation's economic ills ... accus[ing] Clinton of plotting to raise taxes on anyone who earns more than $36,00 a year": "Bill Clinton defines rich as anyone who has a job, and we're not going to let him raise taxes on the American people" (Schreiber, LANCASTER NEW ERA, 9/26). NEWSWEEK features two pieces attempting to define who the "cultural elite" are and their place in the development of American culture. Included in the coverage is NEWSWEEK's list of the 100 "cultural elite" (Woodward/Alter, 10/5 issue).

*7 PAUL TULLY: MORE REMEMBRANCES

BOSTON GLOBE's Tom Oliphant writes of Tully's first pres. campaign, working as a "grunt" for RFK. After '68, "While his party appeared to go astray, Tully never did as he matured from a world-class tactician and organizer into one of political liberalism's most creative thinkers. ... When Tully died, people wept in board rooms, newsrooms, on Capitol Hill, at a candlelight vigil on the banks of the Arkansas River and on the meaner streets of politics" (9/27). W. POST's Dan Balz recounts his dinner with Tully the night before he died: "As always, he was provocative, enlightening -- and exhausting." Tully once told Balz, "'I don't do government, I do politics.' It wasn't meant to denigrate the business of governing, but only to suggest that to him there was something equally ennobling about the art of fighting and winning elections. ... Gruff, ebullient, bearish, upbeat, insightful, partisan" (9/26). Mark Shields: "Since 1968, Paul Tully had practiced politics working almost non-stop to put a Democrat in the White House. But he was not really a political pro. Paul Tully was a committed, smart, tough, insightful, and passionate amateur. ... As Peter Hart put it so well, 'In a world full of mercenaries, Paul Tully was a missionary.' In the words of his friend Mike Ford, 'Paul Tully truly did a noble politics'" ("Capital Gang," CNN, 9/26). NEWSWEEK's Joe Klein: "He left the way his peers fear most -- alone, in a hotel room, too young. ... He loved the game so he sometimes couldn't find words fast enough, antic scenarios dissolved into unintelligible gasps -- but his friends understood, and will miss him fiercely" (10/5 issue). L.A. TIMES: "In his more than 20 years as a political strategist, Paul Tully ... repeatedly saw Democratic presidential candidates go down to defeat. The experience did not dishearten him; rather it fostered an understanding of political realities that he sought to impart to the Clinton campaign" (9/29). BOSTON HERALD's Helen Kennedy: "Tully once explained that his strategy was to work for the most progressive candidate who had a chance of winning. He had little choice: liberal politics ran in his blood" (9/25). N.Y. NEWSDAY's Myron Waldman: "One of the brightest and most popular political operatives in the business" (9/25). House Maj. Leader Richard Gephardt: "It's hard to accept the fact that Paul won't be staying up all night on November 3rd, following the computers, listening for targeted precincts, shouting at the television ... There are a lot of people who say today, 'I do politics because of Paul Tully.' And now, for them -- for all of us -- there is a hole in our hearts. And as sorry as we are to know Paul is gone, we are grateful that he passed our way" (Spoken on House floor, 9/25).

The memorial service will be held tomorrow, 9/30, at 1:00p at the National Cathedral in DC.

issue, Clinton 46%, Bush 36% (Leshner, L.A. TIMES, 9/29).

Field Poll's Mark DiCamillo called Hillary Clinton "more

(S.F. CHRONICLE, 9/29).

*9 FLORIDA (25): MISSED CHANCE ON SIGNING OF HURRICANE BILL FL lawmakers and aides "were mystified when President Bush signed the hurricane aid bill at 8:24 p.m." on 9/23, "before settling in after a day of campaigning to watch 'The Last of the Mohicans'" at Camp David. "They complain Bush gave up a chance to get another splash of positive publicity" in FL. "The Florida folks had hoped for photos of a sympathetic-looking Bush with Sens. Bob Graham and Connie Mack, Rep. Dante Fascell and others.
Instead the White House issued a standard four-paragraph statement and the news barely got covered. Even worse, White House aides sent confusing signals about the bill-signing all day, saying they weren't sure when the president would act" (Anderson, MIAMI HERALD, 9/28). HERALD's Fiedler examines the lack of Bush coattails in Southern Senate races (9/28).

*10 MICHIGAN (18): CLINTON 50%, BUSH 38%; CLOSER WITH PEROT IN MSU Inst. for Public Policy and Social Research surveyed 772 respondents from 9/12-19; margin of error +/- 3.5%. Respondents are members of an original panel-back group of 1,006 (Release, 9/28). The 5/92 numbers are based on the 1,006 sample.

Among those who see the economy and unemployment as the most important problems facing the nation, Clinton leads Bush head-tohead 52-37%. In a three-way among that group the Clinton lead over Bush falls to 41-31%. Bush '88 voters: 57% Bush, 28%
Clinton (IPPSR release, 9/28).

*11 NEW JERSEY (15): SOME BERGEN CO. PEROTIANS DEFECT

Both Clinton and Bush NJ campaigns "unveiled ex-leaders of [Perot's] crusade who have defected to their sides." They "were trying to preempt any surge of support for a renewed Perot candidacy and portray themselves as legitimate heirs to the insurgent campaign." The Bergen and Union Co. Perot coordinators "were among several ex-leaders of [Perot's] petition drive to line up behind Clinton." Later in Kenilworth, Bush-Quayle "displayed four former Perot county coordinators who had joined its team." Both groups "agreed on one point: Perot should stay out of the presidential contest now." A Perot supporter who went to Clinton "said informal polling of former Perot supporters in Bergen County shows that two-thirds have turned to Clinton. The unscientific survey squares with" the RECORD Poll from last week, which found Clinton leading Bush among Perot supporters in NJ by 55-30% in a 2-way race (Hendrie, BERGEN RECORD, 9/29).

*12 NEW YORK (33): WEIGHING THE PEROT FACTOR

N.Y. DAILY NEWS' Lombardi reports. "The prospect of Ross Perot's second coming to the presidential race heartened die-hard New York supporters ... but critics and independent analysts dismissed him as just a jack-in-the-box distraction." Ex-Perot NY organizer Matthew Lifflander: "He's good at getting attention, but I see no outpouring for him after an initial commotion." Current Perot NY head Kurt Koenig predicted a Perot re-entry will make the NY race closer "because Perot will pick up votes that might have otherwise gone to Clinton." Marist's Lee Miringoff didn't think Perot would be a factor (9/29).

*13 OHIO (21): LOCAL PEROT LEADER COMES OUT FOR BUSH

Cliff Arenbeck, who served as Perot's Columbus coordinator, said he now supports President Bush. He cited Bush's "stance that encourages more turnover in Congress" and his foreign policy experience. Arenbeck, on Perot: "It was really a ploy to drop out until he could regroup, pick his time and jump back in at a time when he could avoid the scrutiny. We are not really going to know who he is" (AP/Cleveland PLAIN DEALER, 9/28).

*14 TEXAS (32): SEPTEMBER DRIER THAN EXPECTED

AUSTIN AMERICAN-STATESMAN's Bruce Hight writes, "Where is 'September Storm,' the Republican campaign assault that was supposed to blow away ... Clinton this month and secure" TX for Bush in Nov. "So far, the so-called storm has been nothing more than a 'gentle breeze,'" according to Land Commis./Clinton-Gore TX chair Garry Mauro. TX GOPers "say the all-out campaign will start any day now. But with only three days left in September, the calendar dictates that the barrage will be more of an October offensive. ... Don't worry," said TX GOP Victory '92 head Rob Mosbacher. GOPers have "a big TV thing about to hit and a big radio thing about to hit. It's going to hit all over the place." Mosbacher said 750,000 pieces of mail already have gone out and 46 telephone banks have been opened (9/28).

GUERRERO FACTOR: FT. WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM's Northcott reports Gov. Ann Richards (D) and the Dem ticket "might suffer" from the resignation of TX RR Commis. Lena Guerrero (D) following her admission that she lied about her academic record. Guerrero said she would stay in the race and let the voters decide whether she should return. TX Dem exec. dir. Ed Slagle "said he expects Guerrero to jointly campaign" with Clinton and Gore "when their schedules permit. But some Democrats speculated that Guerrero might not be welcomed by other candidates." The only races above Guerrero's on the ballot are the presidential race and congressional races (9/25). Gov. Richards: "People will judge me on what I do. I don't think they judge me on someone else" (HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 9/27).

TENNESSEE (11): Bush will spend today in East and Middle TN -- "a certain signal that the GOP is not conceding [TN] to the Democrats." Bush will hold airport rallies in Johnson City, Knoxville and Chattanooga, address a rally at Austin Peay State Univ. in Clarksville, and end the day at Opryland in Nashville. TN GOP chair Tommy Hopper: "[TN] is not going to be conceded to Bill Clinton because Al Gore is on the ticket. Bill Clinton has serious problems in the South and in the country on issues such as the economy, taxes and spending. And it didn't help that he dodged not only the draft but he's continued to dodge the truth about his efforts to avoid serving his country during the 1960s." Clinton-Gore TN coord. Jim Hall said Bush was "hiding" from the Louisville debate scheduled to have been held tonight. Hall added Bush "is in trouble on the South": "The Clinton-Gore ticket is the strongest ticket we've had in this region since 1976" (Locker, Memphis COMMERCIAL APPEAL, 9/29).

SENATE WATCH =====

*17 COLORADO: CONSIDINE, CAMPBELL TUSSLE OVER AD ACCURACY

"A back-and-forth battle" over 30-sec. TV ads "took a new bounce" 9/24 when ex-state Sen. Terry Considine (R) "accused" Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell (D-03) "of running an inaccurate response to a Considine" spot. The Considine ad "attacks" a trip Campbell took to AL paid for by Chevron oil during "a time Congress was debating" whether to open the Arctic Nat'l Wildlife Refuge to oil exploration. Considine ad: "Should a Congressman take a free trip to [AL] from a company trying to influence his vote? Well, that's what Congressman Campbell did." Campbell responded with a TV spot of his own that accuses Considine of running a "negative campaign of lies and distortions." Text: "The truth: When Ben returned from the trip, he voted against the oil companies" (Kowalski, DENVER POST, 9/25). "The implication here is that Campbell voted against the drilling" which the trip "was designed to promote." But "that vote has yet to be taken." However, the "Considine folks are gratified that Campbell finally has been forced to abandon the feel-good biographical ads that won him the primary" (Blake, ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS, 9/25).

FAMILIAR STORY? Campbell said "he will engage in debates" with Considine "only if they are moderated by the media." Campbell said his decision was made after a 9/19 debate which he described as a "food fight." Campbell said a "news moderator would help the candidates to 'better address the issues.'" Considine manager Dick Wadhams: "Campbell has rejected debate requests from a multitude of organizations, and his call for debates with a news moderator rings very hollow" (Herrick, ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS, 9/26).

FEELING THE DRAFT: Considine is "again trying to clarify the circumstances" that kept him out of Vietnam. He "has long said he wanted to fight in Vietnam but was ineligible because of a bad back. An element of the story which Considine has given footnote status, however, is that he sought a student deferment in 1965," granted in November '65, 3.5 years before he was classified as "medically ineligible." In his '82 U.S. Senate bid, Considine described himself as "a young man fresh out of high school who was eager to be where the action was." Considine's "language suggests he was ready to go to war when he tried to enlist," but Selective Service records indicated he had already "sought a student deferment." Considine "says he does not recall the circumstances," but denies ever trying to avoid Vietnam: "I've made hundreds of thousands of mistakes in my life. But I didn't make this one" (Herrick, R.M. NEWS, 9/24).

GOP POLL: Hill Research poll, conducted for the NRSC and the Considine campaign, surveyed 500 registered voters on 9/27; margin of error +/- 4.5% (NRSC release, 9/29).

*18 ILLINOIS: WILLIAMSON REVIVES '82 BRAUN COLUMN ON GANGS

"Placed in rare defensive posture," Cook Co. Recorder of Deeds Carol Moseley Braun (D) "angrily denounced gangs" 9/26. She "insisted" that a 9/82 column she wrote for the Hyde Park

Herald "praising two notorious Chicago gangs for trying to 'acquire a new respectability' was 'factual at the time.'" The column "is being circulated" by GOPers "hoping to bolster the chances" of atty Rich Williamson (R). Braun's column "assailed the impact of 'Reaganomics' on the minority community and lauded those who turned to 'self-help as a 'last ditch attempt.'" At a "rare joint campaign appearance" 9/26 Williamson called the column an "outrage": "You don't praise the Mafia because they gave money to the churches." Williamson, who has come under "sharp criticism for allegedly trying to inject race into the campaign," was apparently "not worried that he might face further criticism" for trying to link Braun to gangs (Pearson, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 9/27). CHICAGO JEWISH STAR editorial: "Braun's view that Williamson's current linkage" of her to defeated Rep. Gus Savage "is 'race-baiting' and 'evil, pure and simple' is ... not a convincing response. [But] it is clear that the Braun-Savage linkage is nonsense, and Mr. Williamson and his followers should know that" (9/25 issue).

DA ADS: Braun launched a week-long TV ad buy 9/28 in Downstate media markets. Two ads -- 60-sec. "History" and the 30-sec. abridged version "Always" -- feature Braun sitting in her kitchen speaking directly to the camera. PARTIAL TEXT: "I've always felt that where you've been has a lot to do with where you stand. ... I worked my way through the [U/Chicago] to become a lawyer and a federal prosecutor. I beat the Chicago machine; went to the legislature as a working mother. And I took with me the lessons of my life. ... I fought for school reform because without education, I would have been left behind. Today, in Illinois, working families are falling behind. And we're not going to turn things around until we send some people to Washington who knows that struggle. That's where I've been. That's where I stand" (Braun release, 9/27).

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT: "Even though two Cabinet members campaigned" for Williamson 9/24, "there is a lingering perception [he] has been abandoned by his party." Williamson, citing the Cabinet members and an upcoming event with Bush: "That sounds like pretty good support to me." Braun's "symbiotic relationship with her party ... indicates how unified the Democrats are for a change" (Hardy, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 9/25). NRSC chair Sen. Phil Gramm (R-TX) said the cmte will fund Williamson "with the maximum amount allowed by law" (NRSC release, 9/25).

DEBATES: Braun and Williamson have agreed to two debates. A 10/7 meeting will be televised from Peoria, and a 10/22 debate will be held in Chicago (CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 9/26).

19 INDIANA: AD WAR CONTINUES AS HOGSETT RELEASES ANOTHER

Sec/state Joe Hogsett (D) released a new TV ad 9/25 attacking Sen. Dan Coats (R) for supporting NAFTA. Video is a photo of Coats with confetti falling. Ann-cr: "It's party time in Mexico thanks to politicians like Dan Coats." Video: Newspaper headline -- "Trade Pact could cost up to 150,000 U.S. jobs." Ann-cr: "Coats helped Mexico by voting to fast track legislation which sends our jobs over the border." Video: Empty warehouse. Ann-cr: "Want to keep sending our jobs to Mexico? Then keep Dan Coats." Ann-cr with text on screen: "Someone to fight for Indiana?" Video: Hogsett speaking to factory workers. In foreground, newspaper headline -- "Hogsett slams pact on trade." Ann-cr: "Joe Hogsett. He opposes the Mexican Free Trade Agreement and Hogsett will work for Indiana companies and Indiana jobs. Joe Hogsett. For us." Ann-cr closing remarks with text on screen and a photo of Coats: "Dan Coats. A senator Mexico can be proud of" (Release, 9/25). Hogsett is questioning the "accuracy" of a Coats TV ad. The two have been "running dueling ads" for almost 2 weeks, both questioning the ethics and integrity of the other." Coats' ad accuses Hogsett of using the Sec/State's office "as one big perk," spending $8 million in tax dollars. Hogsett manager Christopher Klose: "The $8 million is the four years of office appropriations for the [sec/state]. They say that is all spent on perks, when obviously, none of it is spent on perks" (FT. WAYNE JOURNAL-GAZETTE, 9/24).

44% UNDECIDED? Indiana Univ.-Purdue U at Indianapolis poll surveyed 825 registered voters from 9/24-27; margin of error 3.5% (IUPUI release 9/28).

Coats	38%
Hogsett	18%
Undec.	44%

*20 LOUISIANA: BREAUX A VIRTUAL SHOO-IN IN SATURDAY PRIMARY
Monroe NEWS-STAR/KNOE-TV poll, conducted 9/23-24 by Mason-Dixon Opinion Research, surveyed 807 registered voters; margin of error +/- 3.5%. Tested: Sen. John Breau (D), '90 Sen. Johnston challenger Nick Accardo (D), three others (NEWS-STAR, 9/27).

Breau	68%	BREAUX RATING	FAV/UNFAV
Accardo	7		51%/ 16%
Others	4

Despite Breau's clear lead, "he is taking no chances. Dipping into his $2 million plus war chest, he is running newspaper, radio and [TV] spots picturing himself as an independent thinker willing to challenge" the GOP admin. "on any issue" (Grissett, N.O. TIMES-PICAYUNE, 9/27).

*21 NEW HAMPSHIRE: THREE-WAY RACE WITH ALL CANDIDATES ANNOUNCED
Ex-Reagan aide Larry Brady (I) dropped out of the GOP race in the spring to become an Independent. Yet he "distanced himself" from Perot -- something "that proved to be a smart move." Analysts say Brady "may upset" Gov. Judd Gregg (R) "by siphoning off enough" GOP and independent votes "to give the contest to" businessman John Rauh (D). FOSTER'S DAILY DEMOCRAT's Jon Breen: "If Brady gets any more than 15 percent ... it gets dicey. ... Not one of the votes Brady gets on Nov. 3 will be a vote that otherwise would have gone to John Rauh." Ex-NH Dem chair Joe Grandmaison: "Brady getting as few as 5, 6 or 7 percentage points out of Gregg's backside can easily be a deciding factor" (Ghioto, BOSTON GLOBE, 9/27).

DRAFTY: Although Gregg had to answer draft-dodging allegations in 1988 (see HOTLINE 9/24) "Rauh's decision to start kicking" Gregg on the issue have "some Dems partisans rubbing their hands in glee" (Ghioto, B. GLOBE, 9/27).

*22 NEW YORK: ABRAMS OUT OF "ISOLATION"; D'AMATO CHURNS AWAY
"Ending a week and a half of self-imposed isolation, spent mainly on the telephone pleading for money," AG Robert Abrams (D) "finally took up a microphone [9/25] to ask for votes in his race against" Sen. Al D'Amato (R). The "vehicle" for Abrams' speeches was "a series of stops on a bus trip billed as the kickoff of the Clinton-Gore-Abrams campaign." Abrams to a crowd in Albany: "[NY] has always sent down senators of real distinction, and some of them were Republicans as well as Democrats, whether it was Herbert Lehman, Robert Wagner or Robert Kennedy or Jacob Javits or Pat Moynihan, but Al D'Amato? Give me a break." Even though Abrams had not "delivered a major speech" since the primary, his voice "was hoarse and he was popping cough drops." Abrams "said his condition resulted from making as many as 78 phone calls in a single day" since the primary (Verhovek, N.Y. TIMES, 9/26).

ETHICS: D'Amato is "trying to raise questions about Abrams, citing a 1989 report of the state commission on Government integrity, which criticized Abrams and other state officials ... for taking campaign contributions from people who do business with their offices." NYC Consumer Affairs commis./'86 D'Amato foe Mark Green (D), on ethics as "a central issue": "Abrams will net nine votes for every one who responds to D'Amato ads" (Keeler, N.Y. NEWSDAY, 9/25). D'Amato released a new 30-second ad based on the commission's findings. The ad "contains no footage" of D'Amato, but "features" Abrams three times "saying that he runs his office 'in a highly professional ethical manner.'" The ad "seeks to throw doubt on Mr. Abrams's claim by interspersing criticisms from the commission and concluding with an announcer who says in a mocking tone, 'Really Bob.'" The "approach" of the ad "could backfire, because a casual viewer may be left with the dominant image of Mr. Abrams's face on the screen, asserting that he runs his office 'in a highly professional manner'" (Verhovek, N.Y. TIMES, 9/26). N.Y. TIMES reports D'Amato has paid only $25,000 of his $417,000 in legal bills for his defense before the Senate Ethics Cmte. D'Amato has chosen to separate his campaign fund-raising from his legal defense, setting up a trust fund for legal bills (9/29).

ALSO: ROLL CALL reported the Senate Ethics cmte agreed to let D'Amato's Legal Expense Trust Fund continue to exist for "good cause shown." The fund was supposed to have ceased 8/2/92 -- one year after the cmte dropped ethics charges against D'Amato. The "good cause" was not made public (9/28).

SHARPTON AS "KINGMAKER"? N.Y. POST editorial: "Stranger things have happened. ... Let's face it: An endorsement from [Dem candidate Rev. Al] Sharpton would help Abrams" (9/26).

*23 WISCONSIN: THE WELLSTONE LEGACY

State Sen. Russ Feingold's (D) latest campaign ad asks viewers "Who's more in touch" with WI and says Feingold knows the state "like the back of his hand" -- a reference to a rough shape of the state. The ad features Feingold campaigning in his hometown of Janesville and ends with him holding up the back of his hand, pointing to his pinkie joint: "Next stop, La Crosse." The ad, which begins running this week, makes "no direct reference" to GOP Sen. Bob Kasten (AP/WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL, 9/28). Another new ad, "continues in the humorous vein" of his primary campaign and features him holding the book "The Little Engine that Could" saying "I think I can" (Lamke, MILWAUKEE SENTINEL, 9/23). The Feingold camp reported a Kasten film crew came to their HQ on "the only two days of the 56-day general election campaign when Feingold wouldn't be in [WI]." Feingold manager Bob Decheine said Kasten is "apparently preparing to run a 'where's Russ?' TV ad designed to imply that Feingold spends too much time out of state" and "may be trying to inoculate himself against a 'Where's Bob' charge." Decheine called Kasten's campaign "unimaginative" and said his "Elvis" ad was a "rip-off" of Feingold and his "Where's Russ" ad is a "rip-off" of Sen. Paul Wellstone's (D-MN) 1990 ads (Lamke, SENTINEL, 9/24).

"ELVIS-FREE ZONE" That's what a WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL editorial suggests in a reference to Feingold and Kasten's ads so that WI voters can focus "on the core issue" of the race -- the economy. "[WI] faces a classic choice. One candidate proposes to cut spending, taxes and red tape ... the other promises deeper cuts and the codliver oil remedy of a tax increase" (9/27).

DEBATES: The "first of at least five" 10/92 debates will be the "most widely broadcast event in [WI] political history." The one-hour 10/3 debate will be broadcast live on 22 TV stations and 54 radio stations (Mayers, WI STATE JOURNAL, 9/24).

FROM THE RIGHT ... Under header and subhead "Kasten sticks to conservative agenda; His views are opposite of Feingold on just about everything," MILWAUKEE JOURNAL's Jasperse profiles Kasten's positions on a variety of issues (9/27).

BOB & JERRY: Northwest Airlines' World Traveler magazine reported in its 9/92 edition that Kasten has been "lauded" by Grateful Dead fans for his pro-enviro. stance and that he has sent Dead CDs as gifts to colleagues (MILWAUKEE SENTINEL, 9/23).

BACK IN BUSINESS: Feingold is leasing office space from the camp of primary foe Joe Checota (WI STATE JOURNAL, 9/27).

===== ON THE HOUSE =====

*24 HOUSE RACE BRIEFINGS: FL RUNOFFS 10/1; LA PRIMARY 10/3

On Thursday, FL will hold 6 runoffs in 4 different CDs -- FL 03: Dem runoff between state Rep. Corrine Brown and radio talk host/ex-state Rep. Andy Johnson; GOP runoff between FL Physicians Assn dir. Don Weidner and businessman Steve Kelley.
FL 13: GOP runoff between businessmen Brad Baker and Dan Miller.
FL 20: GOP runoff between businesswoman Beverly Kennedy and atty Marilyn Bonilla. FL 23: Dem runoff between ex-federal judge Alcee Hastings and state Rep. Lois Frankel. GOP runoff businessman Ed Fielding and atty Oliver Parker.

LA 01: "Five people are hoping to cash in on general anti-incumbent sentiment among voters and are taking on" Rep. Bob Livingston (R-01). The CD is "so Republican that [Livingston] has no Dem opponents. In fact, he has no opponents that are widely known, even within the district" (Wardlaw, N.O. TIMES-PICAYUNE, 9/27).

LA 02: Although Rep. Wm Jefferson (D-02) "has drawn" re-election opposition from within his own party "most political pundits don't expect an upset." Councilwoman Wilma Irvin (D) has never run for a statewide office and "jump[ed] into the race" because of Jefferson's endorsement of his brother-in-law in a parish judicial race. Ex-Maritime Capt. Roger Johnson (I) makes his 6th bid for election. Johnson's main issue is the MS River and "the jobs he believes it can provide with some right thinking in Washington" (Grisset, New Orleans TIMES-PICAYUNE, 9/25).
PICAYUNE's Wardlaw: "Jefferson has credible opposition but not enough to keep him from a first primary victory" (9/27).

LA 03: Rep. Billy Tauzin (D-03) faces ex-industrial engineer Paul Boynton who "has said he thinks he has little chance of unseating" Tauzin, but "Tauzin said he probably will spend more on his campaign than usual" (TIMES-PICAYUNE, 9/25).
Tauzin "faces only one opponent, a political unknown" (Wardlaw, N.O. TIMES-PICAYUNE, 9/27).

LA 05: A Mason-Dixon poll conducted 9/23-24 surveyed 406 registered voters; margin of error +/- 5%. Internal poll for the McCrery camp, conducted by Elliott Stonecipher Events Management from 9/23-24, surveyed "more than 700 people"; margin of error

+/- 3.5% (Monroe NEWS-STAR, 9/27). Tested: Rep. Jerry Huckaby (D-05), Rep. Jim McCrery (R-04), Robert Thompson (D), 2 others

	M-D	MCCRERY
Huckaby	43%	35%
McCrery	32	39
Thompson	8	7
DK/Other	17	19

If neither candidate receives 50%, the top two will meet in the general election in November. "Because neither candidate's support ... is a majority, a November runoff is still possible" (Crain, NEWS-STAR, 9/27). TIMES-PICAYUNE's Wardlaw: "This one's almost too close to call, but I'll do with McCrery" (9/27). W. TIMES header, "Gay Accusation Hits McCrery again in Louisiana House Race" (9/29).

LA 06: GOPers see the CD as "a win-lose proposition. A GOPer "is expected to win, one will lose." "The race pits" Rep. Richard Baker (R-06) against Rep. Clyde Holloway (R-08). Alexandria Mayor Ned Randolph (D) "will have an impact on the race, but every one has a different view as to how he will effect the campaign" (Monroe NEWS-STAR, 9/27). Randolph could make it into a Nov. the runoff if Holloway and Baker split the GOP vote, with the Alexandria GOP vote going to Holloway and the Baton Rouge GOP vote going to Baker. The "overwhelmingly white district, which stretches from the Baton Rouge area to central [LA] is indeed conservative." David Duke beat Gov. Edwin Edwards (D) in last year's gov. election in the area (McMahon, Baton Rouge ADVOCATE, 9/25). Randolph and Baker participated in a 9/26 TV forum in Alexandria. Holloway "failed" to appear. Baker "criticized" Dem leadership in the House, while Randolph "said he would not raise taxes unless there is some national emergency." Both men agreed that "a balanced budget amendment is needed" (Leggett, Alexandria TOWN TALK, 9/27). TIMES-PICAYUNE's Wardlaw: "It's tempting to pick a Randolph upset, but I'll stay with form and forecast a Holloway-Baker forecast" (9/27).

LA 07: N.O. TIMES-PICAYUNE's Anderson writes "View it as a blood feud, a philosophical difference ... or a future question for a Trivial Pursuit game," but the "sibling rivalry" between Rep. Jimmy Hayes (D-07) and older brother/atty Fredric Hayes (R) won't make for "a happy holiday season this year." Fredric "insists" he's running because his younger brother has become "too liberal" for the CD, but "between them is a nasty legal fight" over family money and control over their late father's estate. In a statement, their mother called on Fredric to reconsider his move "to transform a family matter into a public forum." Fredric "shot back" and said Jimmy had "used his mother to say that": "He has hidden behind his mother's skirts his entire life" (9/28). Wardlaw's pick: "Younger brother tops older brother" (PICAYUNE, 9/27). Others: Robert Nairn (R).

===== HOTSPOTS =====

*25 FLORIDA: THAT'S THROW THE BUMS OUT, NOT RUB THEM OUT
Eric "Rick" Kaplan (D), challenger to state Rep. Bob Starks (R), was arrested in connection with the shooting of Starks' wife at the legislator's home. The charge is attempted murder. Seminole Co. Sheriff Don Eslinger: "We believe Kaplan intended to kill the representative. There is no connection other than politics. We believe he wanted to win in the worst way." Judith Starks was shot in the leg while lying in bed. Rep. Starks, an airline pilot, was out of town at the time of the shooting. Kaplan, 28, was making his first bid for public office (AP, 9/29). Rep. Starks: "It's just so bizarre. ... I'm only a state representative" (ORLANDO SENTINEL, 9/29).

===== CALIFORNIA CABLE =====

*26 SENATE "A" & "B": DEMS SHOW WIDE LEADS IN SACRAMENTO COUNTY
SACRAMENTO BEE/KVOR-TV poll, conducted 9/13-16 by Richard Hertz Consulting, surveyed 500 registered Sacramento Co. voters; margin of error +/- 4.5%. Tested: Sen. John Seymour (R), ex-S.F. Mayor Dianne Feinstein (D), Rep. Barbara Boxer (D-06), ex-TV commentator Bruce Herschensohn (R) (SACRAMENTO BEE, 9/23).

"B" SEAT	ALL	MEN	WOM	"A" SEAT	ALL	MEN	WOM
Feinstein	51%	41%	60%	Boxer	47%	45%	48%
Seymour	31	37	25	Hersch.	22	27	17

This is "especially good news" for Feinstein, who lost the county to Pete Wilson in '90, 53-47% (S.F. CHRON., 9/28).

THE GEOGRAPHY THING: Sen. Min. Leader Bob Dole's prognosis was "bleak" on a recent CA swing: "From what I've seen ... the Republicans are down to one argument -- that [CA] won't elect two Democratic women from the north. ... Maybe that's true." S.D. UNION-TRIBUNE's Braun examines this premise and cites CA's history of ticket-splitting, the north-south feud, and gender as arguments both GOP men won't win. "The geographic argument seems to be the most plausible. ... This is a strategy suited for the last desperate days of October, when a candidate is willing to risk everything on one long bomb to the end zone" (9/27). Under header, "Calif. appears ready for two female senators," Germond & Witcover write that because of the cost of CA TV, the candidates "probably won't" run ads until "the last two or three weeks of the campaign" (Balto. EVENING SUN, 9/25). CBS' Cinny Kennard: "Observers say with five weeks left, it may be too late for the GOP to turn it around here. And if Boxer and Feinstein do go on to win, it may be less because they're women and more because they're Democrats" (9/28). "Like the swallows returning to Capistrano or the buzzards to Hinckley, Ohio, the appearance of the 30-second political spots on the state's airwaves last week marked the turning of another season. ... If 1992 runs true to form, the five-week media barrage will include plenty of personal attacks and slanted comparisons" (Wildemuth, CHRONICLE, 9/29).

*27 SENATE "B": SEYMOUR STAYS ON ATTACK

"An enormous red and white dredge plowing the Port of Oakland's inner harbor ... provided a perfect backdrop" for Sen. John Seymour (R) "to boast how he helped clear the way for the East Bay facility to compete with rival ports. But Seymour, arriving late for his scheduled campaign event, instead moved quickly to announce the filing of a complaint" with the FEC against Feinstein. "Passing up a chance to tout his record," Seymour "clearly demonstrated a political axiom: Portray your opponent as out of touch with the mainstream." Both Seymour and ex-S.F. Mayor Dianne Feinstein (D) "are considered mainstream political moderates" and both are "doing their best to focus on their differences." CA Dem consultant Joe Cerrell: "If they make the other candidate look like an extremist, they win"

(Gunnison, S.F. CHRONICLE, 9/28).

THE FRONTS COLLIDE: Feinstein has so far "fought a two-front war" -- against Seymour and also against a lawsuit by the Fair Political Practices Commis. for violations in her '90 gov. race. But "the two fronts have begun to merge as Seymour has focused his campaign on her troubles." Feinstein has "counterattacked by stepping up her charge that the FPPC lawsuit is politically motivated." Gov. Pete Wilson (R) had similar violations "treated as routine" (Richardson, SAC. BEE, 9/28).

*31 THIS MORNING: ABC's "GMA" hosted Sen. Phil Gramm (R-TX) and Rep. Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) on the Perot Summit. NBC's "Today" hosted Perot in a live interview from Dallas. "CBS This Morning" also hosted Sen. Gramm and Sen. David Boren (D-OK) on the Perot Summit. ABC's "Nightline" examined Perot's possible candidacy (9/29).

LAST NIGHT: CNN led with a segment from "Democracy in America." All other nets led with Perot. PBS' "MacNeil/Lehrer" focused on Perot with United We Stand chair Orson Swindle, UWS MD chair Joan Vison, ex-IL Perot chair David Charlson, ex-Perot organizer Joe McCutchen, ex-Denver Co. Perot coord. Carrie Cramlich and ex-Perot CA vice chair William Meyers. "M/L" also explored waning GOP support among younger Southern voters. CNN's "Crossfire" hosted ex-Perot manager/GOP strategist Ed Rollins, Sen. Alan Simpson (R-WY), and Paul Tsongas on Perot.

ABORTION: CBS' "Reality Check" dealt with the shifting GOP position on abortion. CBS' Engberg: "The [GOP's] hard-line stance against abortion ... has cost the GOP so many votes, especially among women, that the Bush team is now scrambling to change its image on the issue. At the GOP convention, the Bush camp pushed the anti-abortion agenda of the Christian Right. ... When it became clear those uncompromising positions were costing votes in the suburbs, the GOP tried to recapture the moderates." Engberg then recounts the attempts by the Bushes and Quayles to soften that "hard-line" stance. Engberg concludes: "The GOP was once able to finesse the abortion issue enough to keep moderates in line. But that was before the vetoes, before the Clarence Thomas confirmation and before Roe versus Wade seemed in jeopardy -- a series of events that has produced an angry backlash, especially among women voters" (9/28).

LAUGHS: NBC's Leno on Bush's train tour: "That's funny, just a year ago who ever thought the Amtrak train would be on track, and Bush's campaign would be derailed." On the candidates talking like train conductors: "Bush says he's going to blow the whistle on Clinton, Bill Clinton says George Bush is a sleep at the switch, and Ross Perot on 'Larry King Live' is saying 'I think I can, I think I can, I think I can.'" On Bush's call to call to cut his pay by 10%: "This is his final markdown before the big November clearance sale." On the Chicken following Bush: "Michael Dukakis says this is the most degrading job he has ever had." On Perot's possible re-entry: "It has all the excitement that Ford is going to make Pintos again" ("Tonight," 9/28).

===== TV SOUNDBITE =====

"What is it that you get on the 'Larry King' show, Mr. Perot, that you don't get on 'Face the Nation' or 'Meet the Press' or the Brinkley show? Is it the softballs that my friend Larry throws at you?"

-- CBS' Mike Wallace to Perot, calling in on

SUBJECT: TENNESSEE (Blountville, Alcoa, Chattanooga, Clarksville & Nashville)

I. Recent Correspondence

Assistant Attorney General Barbara Faris wrote (8/6) urging you to support changing the Bankruptcy Code to enforce child support collection from absent parents who file for bankruptcy.

II. Discussion

A. Economy

1. Unemployment Rates - Seasonally adjusted for the U.S. and Tennessee; the rates for Chattanooga, Clarksville and Nashville and are not adjusted.

	August 1991	August 1992	Change
U.S.	6.8%	7.6%	+ .8%

	July 1991	July 1992	Change
Tennessee	7.1%	6.5%	- .6%
Chattanooga	6.2%	6.1%	- .1%

Nashville	5.3%	5.2%	- .1%

2. Other

Lettica Corporation, a food container manufacturing company, will open a plant in Clarksville that will employ up to 150 people.

B. Education

The State of Tennessee kicked off its AMERICA 2000 program on October 25, 1991. Out of the five cities you are visiting, Nashville is the only one that has officially joined the AMERICA 2000 effort. Alcoa is a very small town located in the same county (Blount) as Maryville -- Maryville is an AMERICA 2000 city and the hometown of Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander.

TENNESSEE BRIEFING

The State Legislature recently passed its Education Reform Act. Stipulations of the Act include: mandatory kindergarten; high-school graduation with either "work-oriented" or "college bound" curriculum; annual assessment testing of the schools and school districts; "teacher effect" assessment by the students; stepped-up accountability of decision makers; increased empowerment of teachers and principals; and the elimination of 3,700 State rules and regulations.

C. NAFTA/Exports

Manufactured exports accounted for 95 percent of Tennessee's $1.8 billion in exports to Canada and Mexico in 1991 and supported an estimated 47,500 jobs. In 1991, exports to Mexico totalled $291 million and exports to Canada totalled $1.5 billion -- 35 percent of the state's total exports.

Since 1987, Tennessee's exports to Mexico have nearly tripled, while exports to Canada have doubled.

Canada and Mexico are now Tennessee's first and fourth-largest export markets. An estimated 13,300 new jobs have been created by growth in Tennessee's manufactured exports to our North American trade partners since 1987.

D. Surface Transportation Funds

FY 1992 available funding	$337.6 million
FY 1991 apportionment	$219.5 million

ISTEA FY 1992-97	$2.17 billion
------------------	----------------

Through September 22nd, Tennessee had obligated $289 million (85.6 percent) of its available FY 1992 Federal-aid highway funds.

E. Recent Department of Labor Grants for Tennessee

Program	Amount
Chronic Unemployment	$1,115,669
Older Americans Act (Nashville)	$1,636,421
Summer Youth Employment & Training Program	$8,673,044
(Nashville allocation)	$531,965
Native American Employment & Training (Nashville)	$352,277
Migrant & Seasonal Workers (Nashville)	$1,115,669
Trade Adjustment Assistance (March)	$287,500
Clarksville received a portion of a $172,500 grant in September 1992 for training of workers laid off from Acme Boot Company.

F. Drug Efforts

The Governor's Alliance for a Drug Free Tennessee is an umbrella organization which coordinates anti-drug programs and activities of 18 state agencies and over 150 community programs. This program involves building Community Alliances to ensure the coordination of services in education, treatment, and law enforcement.

Federal Drug Grants to the State estimated for FY 1992 are $27.4 million, compared to $12.5 million for FY 1989 -- an increase of 119%.

G. Anti-tax Sentiment

At present, Tennessee's constitution prohibits a state income tax. State Senator Leonard Dunavant (R) and State Representative David Copeland (R) submitted a bill that would amend the constitution to provide for an income tax. Senator Dunavant and Representative Copeland, who had served 26 years and 24 years respectively in the Legislature, were defeated in their bids for re-election. The anti-tax mood in Tennessee is strong.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: RONALD C. KAUFMAN RC
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR POLITICAL AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: TENNESSEE POLITICAL BRIEFING

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT VISIT

The President will travel to Johnson City, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Clarksville, and Nashville. Johnson City is located in the 1st Congressional District where incumbent Republican James Quillen is running unopposed.

Knoxville is located in the 2nd Congressional District where Republican Jimmy Duncan is also running unopposed.

Chattanooga is located in the 3rd Congressional District where Republican Zach Wamp will face Democrat incumbent Marilyn Lloyd.

Clarksville is located in the 7th Congressional District where Republican Don Sundquist will be challenged by Democrat David Davis.

Nashville is located in the 5th Congressional District where Republican candidate Tom Stone will face Democrat incumbent Bob Clement.

POLITICAL HOT POINTS

Two recent polls, including one by the heavily Democrat Chattanooga Times, had the President trailing Clinton by only 8 points. The Tennessee Bush-Quayle leadership believe this is a clear indication that the state is winnable for the President.

Democrat Governor Ned McWherter's campaign reports for the past several years were subpoenaed by federal authorities last week. The reasons are not known at this time, but this could mark the second scandal to impact the McWherter administration.

The President visited Memphis on Tuesday, September 22, where he addressed supporters at an airport rally. Memphis was the last stop during the six-city visit that day.

Handwritten: 100

TENNESSEE POLITICAL BRIEFING

On August 24, the Vice President addressed a large and enthusiastic crowd at a rally in Maryville, and attended a Victory '92 fundraiser in Knoxville.

Mrs. Quayle made a campaign stop in Nashville on Tuesday, September 15, where she met with the local Bush-Quayle '92 and Victory '92 leadership to thank them for their efforts on behalf of the campaign.

Secretary of Commerce, Barbara Franklin, attended a Victory '92 fundraiser in Memphis on August 13.

Bill Clinton and Al Gore attended major fundraisers in Memphis and Nashville on August 26. Over a million dollars was raised.

Clinton purchased TV commercials for September 16 to 22. Al Gore has been campaigning fairly actively in the state. It has become obvious to the Clinton team that they cannot take Tennessee for granted.

1992 PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

The primary election was held on March 10, 1992 -- Super Tuesday. Pat Buchanan and David Duke were both on the Republican primary ballot in Tennessee, but neither had a credible statewide organization. Buchanan received only 22%, and Duke only 3% of the primary vote, while the President was favored by 73% of the primary electorate. Consequently, the President won the support of all 45 Tennessee delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Governor Bill Clinton prevailed in the Democratic primary receiving 67% of the vote, compared to 19% for Paul Tsongas, and 8% for Jerry Brown.

Tennessee was the first state in which Ross Perot officially qualified for the general election ballot. He has set up an office in Memphis to serve as his state headquarters. Recently, there has been very little activity from the "United We Stand" group, and it is questionable whether the Perot movement can be reactivated.

The Bush-Quayle ticket carried Tennessee with 58% of the vote in the 1988 Presidential election. Tennessee will have 11 Electoral votes in the 1992 election.

CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK

HOUSE OUTLOOK

Tennessee did not gain or lose any Congressional districts after the reapportionment process. The current Congressional delegation balance is 3R to 6D. All three Republican Members of Congress -- James Quillen, John Duncan, and Don Sundquist -- will seek re-election in 1992. There are no open-seat races in Tennessee this year.

Key Congressional races are as follows:

In CD 03, Republican Congressional candidate Zach Wamp is running to unseat Democrat incumbent Marilyn Lloyd. This is a winnable seat.

In CD 06, Republican Congressional candidate Marsha Blackburn is running a very respectable race against Democrat incumbent Bart Gordon.

STATEWIDE OUTLOOK

The Presidential election will be the only statewide race held in Tennessee in 1992.

The GOP is closer to assuming control of the state legislature in Tennessee than in any other Southern state. Under Tommy Hopper, the Tennessee Republican Party has stated that its primary goal is to assume control of both the Tennessee House and Senate. The party is making large strides toward that end. In 1990, more incumbent Democratic state legislators were defeated in Tennessee than in any other state in the U.S.

The current balance in the State House is 43 Republicans to 56 Democrats. The current balance in the State Senate is 13 Republicans to 20 Democrats. Currently, 16 of 33 seats in the State Senate, and 49 of 99 seats in the State House, are up for re-election.

PARTY CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

Tommy Hopper, former Executive Director of the state party, serves as State Chairman. The National Committeeman for Tennessee is Ted Welch, Co-Founder of the Republican Majority Fund, a member of the RNC Rules Committee, and a member of the Chairman's Executive Council. Alice Algood is Tennessee's National Committeewoman.

Former U.S. Senator Howard Baker is Chairman of the Tennessee Bush-Quayle Campaign. The Finance Chairman is Andy Adams. Congressmen Don Sundquist, James Quillen, and John Duncan serve as state Co-Chairmen. Knoxville Mayor Victor Ashe also serves on the statewide steering committee.

Bush-Quayle Chairman Howard Baker recently convened a joint Bush-Quayle/Victory '92 leadership meeting. They have a comprehensive statewide organization and an aggressive campaign strategy which are currently being implemented.

Tennessee Victory '92 suffered a severe set-back when Ted Welch was called to Washington to head up Victory '92 nationally. He was in attendance, however, at the joint Bush-Quayle/Victory '92 meeting convened by Senator Baker. A Comprehensive plan to raise the necessary $600,000 for Victory '92 programs has been developed. Andy Adams has been appointed to head up the Victory '92 as Finance Chairman.

Bush-Quayle Co-Chairman Congressman Don Sundquist will organize Republican areas of West Tennessee and Memphis where Bush-Quayle must draw a substantial number of votes in order to win Tennessee.

BUSH LOCKS IN ON CRIME IN SPEECH HERE President Raps Congress, Clinton's 12-Year Record

ST. LOUIS -- Speaking here Monday within a stone's throw of former crack houses, President Bush portrayed himself as a law-and-order leader whose anti-crime proposals over the past four years have been stymied by Congress. And taking a page from his 1988 campaign against Michael Dukakis, Bush accused Bill Clinton of being soft on crime and criminals during his 12 years as governor of Arkansas. Clinton's campaign countered with its own accusations that Bush had failed to help local law enforcement fight a rising tide of crime nationwide. Bush chose the basement of St. Francis DeSales Catholic Church in the Fox Park neighborhood to deliver his 25-minute speech, which primarily focused on his own proposals to "win the peace right here at home, in the streets of Fox Park." Bush's speech was interrupted frequently with applause from the enthusiastic audience of about 600 ticket-holders -- a mix of neighborhood residents, Catholic schoolchildren and Republican elected officials or activists.

(Jo Mannies, St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Bush Hits Congress On Fighting Crime, Clinton As 'Chicken'

DALLAS -- Standing in front of a former cocaine crack house, President Bush accused Congress of being laggard in fighting crime and indirectly called Bill Clinton a "chicken" because of his efforts to avoid the draft. About 2,000 people and another 150 protesters greeted Bush Monday in a tough East Dallas neighborhood where he visited the Mohawk Apartments, recently seized by police and U.S. marshals and renovated by private investors. Dallas is not in the federal Weed and Seed program, and the President blamed Congress. "This year I asked the Congress for $500 million to fund Weed and Seed programs in 50 or more communities, and I know East Dallas would like to be one of them, and Congress appropriated the money but they have not authorized it," he said. "Until Congress acts, Dallas or any American city won't get a single dollar for what it needs. We need help, and we need it now..."

One protester in a chicken suit yelled, "Chicken George."

"Are we talking about the chicken in the draft or the chicken in the Arkansas River?" Bush shot back.

(Dick Kelsey, UPI)

Pushing Anti-Crime Issues, Bush Cites Arkansas Crime

DALLAS -- President Bush made a new bid for support Monday on an issue that had served him well in the past, saying he would reduce crime in a second term by compelling Congress to pass a stalled anti-crime bill. Declaring that the nation must now "win the peace," having won the Cold War, the President listed an array of increased penalties and crimes that he said he would bring under federal jurisdiction. He contrasted these proposals, most of which he has offered before, to the record that Bill Clinton has compiled on crime in Arkansas. He attacked Clinton as a leader who had failed to control a rising crime rate in Arkansas. and he suggested that the Democratic nominee would be unable to control it nationally.

Bush Rhetoric Subdued On Arkansas Crime

ST. LOUIS -- President Bush returned to what had been one of his most potent issues in 1988: crime. But Bush's rhetoric Monday was notably subdued for a Republican in an election year.

Unlike in 1988, when Bush repeatedly attacked Michael Dukakis as soft on crime and a threat to the country, Monday the President mentioned Bill Clinton only to reel off crime statistics in Arkansas, saying that crime has been increasing there and that state inmates serve less than a fifth of their sentences, compared to federal inmates who serve on average 85% of their sentences.

In terms of policy, the President's address offered little that was new beyond calling for increased penalties against carjackers.... Sen. Gore said Monday that it is Bush who is the obstacle, not Congress at least in the case of the cable TV re-regulation bill. "It's up to President Bush whether he's going to side with the people or side with the wealthy and powerful monopoly that is trying to rip off the people of this country," Gore told 200 supporters jamming the Burke County Courthouse in Morganton, N.C.

(Ann Devroy, Washington Post, A6)

Bush: Death Penalty For Carjacking

ST. LOUIS -- An angry President Bush joined the national outcry against carjackers Monday and unveiled an anti-crime package that includes a federal death penalty for those convicted for crimes like the killing of Howard County's Pam Basu.

"We cannot put up with this animal behavior," Bush said in his first comments on the sensational Baltimore-Washington corridor crime. "These people have no place in a decent society, and as far as this president is concerned, they can go to jail and they can stay in jail until they rot in jail for crimes like that."

Bush said the Basu carjacking and murder prompted him to order William Barr to demand that Congress make similar crimes punishable by death and to convene a task force to push development of anti-car-theft devices.

(Paul Bedard, Washington Times, A1)

BUSH VISITS EX-DRUG HOUSE IN EAST DALLAS

DALLAS -- President Bush assailed Bill Clinton's crime-fighting record Monday and reached out to Ross Perot backers, saying the Democrat's economic plan falls short of combating the federal deficit. As Perot and his supporters, heard from representatives of both campaigns, the President campaigned in east Dallas to praise residents for helping reclaim their neighborhood from crime. "My opponent in this presidential race talks a tough game, but I would like you just for a minute to take a look at the Arkansas record and see where Governor Clinton stands on crime," Bush said. He said the average inmate in Arkansas last year served less than one-fifth of his term and that violent crimes in Arkansas rose almost 60% in the 1980s. The Clinton campaign said Bush is distorting the record. "The only thing that makes George Bush's record on the economy look good is his record on crime -- and the only people better off today than they were four years ago are the drug dealers, gang leaders and crime barons in this country," George Stephanopoulos said.

(Kathy Lewis, Dallas Morning News)

BUSH RIPS FOE ON DRAFT, AIDES WOO PEROT

DALLAS -- President Bush took a sharp new jab at Bill Clinton's draft record Monday as his top aides wooed Ross Perot.

Bush launched his offensive after Clinton supporters wearing chicken costumes showed up at a Republican rally and taunted him with clucking sounds for balking at a debate with Clinton.

Bush smiled broadly and chuckled when a demonstrator shouted "Chicken George!"

"Let me say a word about the chicken," the President said, interrupting his speech.

Then, addressing the demonstrators directly, he asked: "Are you talking about the draft record chicken, or the chicken in the Arkansas River?"...

Before flying to Missouri, Bush vowed anew to hold the line on tax increases if re-elected and termed Clinton's call for tax hikes the "defining difference" in the election campaign.

"Leave the rhetoric aside. I'm holding the line on taxes," Bush told "Good Morning America." (Gene Gibbons, Reuter)

PEROT ON VERGE OF REENTERING RACE Bush, Clinton Envoys Apparently Fail To Convert Texan's Supporters

DALLAS -- Top-level representatives of George Bush and Bill Clinton apparently failed Monday to convince Ross Perot's supporters that it would be a mistake for the independent candidate to get back into the presidential race.

Perot said he would decide by Thursday whether to resume an "all-out" effort in the final month of the campaign and would "be bound" by the decision of his volunteer backers, who say they are eager to see him run.

The latest Washington Post/ABC News poll shows that Perot has the potential to cut into Clinton's current lead over Bush, but not come close to winning.

The emissaries from the President and his challenger stressed their areas of agreement with the billionaire businessman's economic and deficit-cutting plan. But both sides conceded there were clear policy differences, and that Perot coordinators who attended the extraordinary, closed-door meetings with the Bush and Clinton representatives expressed strong skepticism that any other candidate could match Perot commitment to change.

The Post/ABC poll taken last Wednesday through Sunday showed Clinton leading Bush by 51 -42 percent. With Perot added to the options, the poll showed Clinton with 44%, Bush with 39% and Perot with 14%.

Once Again, Perot Plays The Tease

After auditioning the economic plans of President Bush and Bill Clinton in a unique show-and-tell session Monday in Dallas, Ross Perot again played the role of national tease, saying he'll let his supporters decide whether he should enter the presidential race.

Monday night on "Larry King" Perot said that if the 5.5 million people who have signed petitions to put him on the ballot in all 50 states tell him to run, he might show up for the next scheduled debate....

On Monday Perot summoned the Bush and Clinton campaign managers to Dallas.

After the Democrats finished, Perot was full of enthusiasm, said his ideas have "a lot of commonality" with Clinton's and compared the session to a town meeting with his 50 people getting to ask questions of some of the "best informed" people in America.

"It was like standing in front of a fire hose with hard statistics and information pouring out," he said.

After the Republicans' presentation, Perot was less effusive, calling it a constructive session with a lot of questions and answers. But he said there's a "lot of overlap" between his plan and Bush's plan.

Perot Edges Closer To Renewed Campaign

DALLAS -- Ross Perot's backers say they are ready to push Perot back into the presidential race, even after leaders of the Clinton and Bush campaigns tried to persuade them that Perot has the least attractive plan to solve U.S. economic troubles.

It was clear the backers have already made up their minds.

Ron Di Donna of New York said, "I have already talked to quite a few volunteers back in New York...and our network indicates that hundreds and hundreds of volunteers have already just since this afternoon said they want him back in the race."

DID 'PSYCHODRAMA' DUPE PRESIDENT?

Ross Perot, the decade's most famous quitter, has nonetheless managed to make a sucker out of President Bush or Bill Clinton -- or both -- analysts in both major parties said Monday.

"My sense is that they sort of got suckered into this trap," said Ed Rollins when asked by a TV interviewer what Bush and Clinton had in mind. But most observers, including some staunch supporters of the President, thought Bush the biggest sucker.

"It was nonsense and bad politics for Bush to genuflect to this guy," said a GOP consultant. "I see a lot of downside and no upside for Bush." Republican consultant David Keene said the spectacle of the President and his Democratic challenger sending their top people Monday to kow-tow to Perot was not the republic's finest hour. Keene agreed that the man most demeaned by it all was Bush. "It's absurd for him from a political standpoint and on a par with giving Clinton an excuse not to debate," he said.

Democratic pollster Bob Shrum said the President may have been duped. "Perot may be setting Bush up to stick him," he said. "It looks to me like Clinton has done pretty well, since I see Perot coming out and praising him." (Ralph Hollow, Washington Times, A1)

PEROT'S EX-CAMPAIGN CHIEF CITES HUSH MONEY OFFER

NEW YORK -- Ed Rollins said Monday that Ross Perot had offered to buy his silence for $500,000 after he left the campaign.

Perot "offered me half a million dollars if I would have taken a vow of silence -- literally half a million dollars," Rollins said on "Crossfire." Perot, interviewed in CNN, denied having made any such offer.

DEBATE PANEL SEEKS END TO IMPASSECandidates May Be Pushed Toward Direct Negotiations If Necessary

Hoping to break the impasse over debates between President Bush and Bill Clinton, the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates is expected to call on the two candidates to resolve their differences over the format, with direct negotiations if necessary.

Facing the possibility of having to cancel Sunday's debate in San Diego, the commission is expected to urge the two campaigns to reach an agreement on format, with or without the commission's involvement in the talks, by sometime on Wednesday, sources said Monday night. NBC News reported Monday night that the new offer will come in a letter from the commission to the campaigns.

CLINTON DRAMATIZES BUSH STAND ON DEBATES AS LEAD NARROWS

LITTLE ROCK -- Bill Clinton takes his campaign to Louisville, Ky., Tuesday to dramatize President Bush's snubbing of a second invitation to debate as a new public opinion poll [Washington Post/ABC] shows Clinton's lead against Bush narrowing.

Clinton, hoping to score some points against Bush, travels to Louisville because he was supposed to debate President Bush there over the sluggish economy and other issues dominating this year's election campaign.

"George Bush was like a kid on a play yard," Clinton said in an interview on "Today." "He said I don't want to play that way, I don't like them, we will do it my way or no way."

CLINTON'S EYEING YOUR WALLET, BUSH TELLS UPPER MIDDLE CLASS Says Tax Increase Isn't Just For Rich

The Bush Administration Monday continued its assault on Bill Clinton's tax proposals, contending that his plan to tax the nation's richest taxpayers will cut deeply into upper-middle class incomes.

Senior Treasury officials, pressing an attack begun by President Bush over the weekend, said Clinton has been "dishonest" in saying that his tax increases would be limited to people earning $200,000 a year or more.

Referring to the Clinton claim that he would raise taxes only on the top 2% of taxpayers, Administration tax experts contended that Clinton's taxes would actually hit much lower income earners....

The officials argued that the Clinton tax plan would not produce the $150 billion he claims and that to achieve that level of revenue he would have to raise taxes on people earning from $36,000 and up.

"These numbers speak for themselves," said Alixe Glen, a spokeswoman for the Bush campaign. "Clinton knows these numbers don't add up. It plays into the whole honesty issue."

BUSH SEEKS JUSTICE DEPT. OPINION ON ETHANOL WAIVER

Hoping to sway the farm vote, President Bush has sought an opinion from the Justice Department on granting an air-pollution waiver to allow more burning of ethanol.

The request to review the legality of the waiver is the latest in a series of behind-the-scenes maneuvers by the White House related to ethanol and alcohol fuels, according to sources involved in the discussions. "The Justice Department has been asked to look at some of these complex legal issues," said an anonymous White House official. Efforts to boost ethanol have taken on a sense of urgency at the White House as Bush tries to revive his political fortune in the Midwest.

Sources...said Monday that Administration officials doubt the waiver will win Justice Department approval, and they already are looking at other plans. These plans could include increases in government subsidies, or programs to increase ethanol's share of ethanol alternative fuels market.

NOFZIGER CALLS KEY BUSH ADVISERS
INCOMPETENT, SAYS TIME RUNNING OUT

SAN DIEGO -- A longtime confidant of Ronald Reagan Monday assailed President Bush's campaign as out of touch with average Americans and on the verge of fumbling away the President's fading re-election hopes.

"I think they stink," Lyn Nofziger said of the Bush White House and re-election campaign staff in an interview.

"I think they're the most incompetent bunch of people I've seen during my time in politics, including the Jimmy Carter people."

"What you've got here is a bunch of country-club Republicans," Nofziger said of the Bush organization. "You've got the guys who grew up rich, who went to private schools, who've never had to worry about a job or earning a living or paying a bill. How in the hell do they identify with you or me?" (John Marelus, Copley)

QUAYLE PREACHES PRIVATE-MARKET REMEDY FOR HEALTH-CARE ILLS

COLORADO SPRINGS -- Vice President Quayle preached his private-market remedy for the nation's health-care ills Monday, claiming the Democrats' plan would ration health care and diminish its quality.

"You will have rationed care and wherever you have rationed care, like in Canada, quality suffers," Quayle told staffers at a Penrose Hospital during a tour of the city.

"Insurance companies are now selective about who they insure. We will tell them, 'Forget it. You are going to insure everyone.' We'll tell the companies they're going to have to manage risks and costs," he said. "They will not like it originally, but they will adapt to it." (Scripps Howard)

QUAYLE: TIMES NOT AS BAD AS WE'RE TOLD

CLOVIS, N.M. -- Vice President Quayle said Monday times are difficult but "not as bad as we're being told" and cautioned voters against putting Democrats back in control in both the White House and Congress.

Quayle attacked Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale as well as Bill Clinton in a speech to a young, enthusiastic crowd of more than 2,000 at Clovis High School.

"Yes, times are difficult, times are challenging, but it's not as bad as we're being told. America is still the greatest country in the world," Quayle said. (AP, Washington Times, A4)

GORE SPEAKS OUT ON BUSH FOREIGN POLICY 'MISTAKES'

The Democrats are training their sights on White House dealings with Iraq before the Gulf War as they seek to undermine President Bush's credibility on foreign policy.

Al Gore was speaking today before the Center for National Policy on "the mistakes, consequences and coverups of the Bush-Quayle Administration's policy toward Iraq."

GORE SAYS LOBBIES HAVE BUSH IN TOW

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. -- Al Gore Monday accused President Bush of being a captive of special interests.

At a town meeting in Morganton, Gore challenged the President to sign a bill to regulate the cable TV industry, which he said owns Bush "lock, stock and barrel."

Later at a news conference in Winston-Salem, he said Bush had spent $1 billion in tax dollars to ship jobs out of the U.S.

"George Bush is hunkered down there in the White House in a state of political panic. He knows that on this issue the big cable monopolies own him lock, stock and barrel, but we also know that the American people are overwhelmingly on the other side of the issue," Gore said....

At the Winston-Salem news conference, Gore focused on a CBS "60 Minutes" report Sunday that disclosed that a program started during the Reagan administration encourages companies to relocate in Central America. The U.S. Agency for International Development is giving manufacturers that relocate low-interest loans, free worker training and protection from U.S. tariffs.

"The very idea that President Bush would force the U.S. taxpayers to finance an operation to shut down factories here in the U.S., throw the employees out of work and then subsidize the moving of those factories to foreign countries is an absolute outrage," Gore said.

EXECUTIVE FIAT: HOW A NEW PRESIDENT COULD MAKE A BIG DIFFERENCE

In the opening days of this year's election campaign, President Bush wrapped much of his rhetoric around the theme of running against a gridlocked Congress.

But many of the most hotly contested political issues in recent years -- fetal tissue research or the abortion pill; environmental, consumer or health regulations; civil rights enforcement and affirmative action; trade relations with China, Vietnam or Cuba; asylum for Haitians -- have not been the result of congressional action, or inaction.

Those battles were sparked by the President's vast power to control the federal bureaucracy and to issue executive orders, regulations and policy directives.

Should the White House change hands and Bill Clinton move to carry out his pledge to "change America," executive actions that have been taken without congressional support are especially vulnerable.

That is why activists on both sides of the issue are anxiously awaiting Election Day.

MARILYN QUAYLE EXTOLS BUSH-QUAYLE ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN KENTUCKY

OWENSBORO -- Marilyn Quayle told a group of high school students Monday that the world is a safer place today, largely because of the leadership of President Bush. "Because of true leadership in international affairs, we have a new world for you," said Mrs. Quayle. "You are no longer under the threat of nuclear annihilation." Mrs. Quayle was in Owensboro Monday to campaign for Bush and her husband. She had lunch at Moonlite Barbecue and spoke to more than 1,000 students gathered in the auditorium at Daviess Country High School.

ANGRY VETERANS GROUPS SAY THEY MADE BUSH OUST AGENCY'S HEAD

American veterans groups said Monday that they pushed for the ouster of Secretary Derwinski because they were angry over a series of perceived political slights and steadily eroding health care benefits.

Fearful of further alienating American's 27 million war veterans, a core constituency of the Republican Party, the Bush Administration said on Saturday that Derwinski would resign immediately to join the Bush presidential campaign as an adviser on ethnic issues.

"There's no doubt in my mind that his leaving the post of Secretary was due to his unhappy relationship with the veterans community," said John Heilman, national legislative director for the Disabled American Veterans.

NATION FACES A DUEL FOR DWINDLING DOLLARS Debt Crisis To Force Choices

Of all the federal government's commitments, none is more sacred than its promises to assist the country's elderly citizens with payments from the Social Security retirement fund.

Not even this pledge, however, can escape the twin realities of a federal budget far out of balance and a growing population of retirees whose claims on scarce tax dollars will collide with the government's other spending priorities....

The costs of a decade of escalating budget deficits and federal debt are even more clear. The deep spending cuts and new taxes needed to close the budget gap threaten to pit the old against the young, the healthy against the sick, cities against suburbs and rich against poor.

In the heat of the election, neither President Bush nor Bill Clinton have gone very far in talking about the choices that loom ahead.

STRIP MINING ON U.S. LAND DEBATED
Environmentalists Say Interior Dept.
Rule Would Threaten Acreage

Environmental activists and the Interior Department took opposing positions Monday on whether a new policy, slated to go into effect in November, would open millions of acres of national forest and other public lands -- but not national parks -- to strip mining for coal. Some environmental groups said the policy would allow environmentally damaging strip mining on land that Congress sought to protect in a 1977 law. But an Interior Department spokesman said that while some federal land would be opened to strip mining, it would only be areas that an agency environmental impact statement, still in preparation, finds "not environmentally sensitive." The policy's chief purpose, interior spokesman Steven Goldstein said, is to compensate those who own rights to the coal but who are prohibited from mining it.

"This is the same plan that got the Reagan administration into hot water when they tried to do this in 1988," said Dave Albersworth of the National Wildlife Federation. "Interior is holding off until after the election because they know this issue is political dynamite." (Boyce Rensberger, Washington Post, A10)

BERKELEY LAW ADMISSION POLICY VOIDED Minorities' Treatment Found Illegal By U.S.

An admission policy that gave special treatment to minority candidates at the law school of the University of California at Berkeley violated federal law, the Department of Education announced Monday.

Assistant Secretary Michael Williams, head of the department's office for Civil Rights, said the law school has agreed to change its policy of placing minority candidates into tracks so that they competed only with members of their minority group for admission.

"African-Americans only competed against African Americans and Hispanics only competed against Hispanics," Williams said, who added that "the broad message" of the decision was that "it behooved all schools" to reexamine admission policies to see if they amounted to racial quotas. U.S. KIDS NEAR TOP OF THE CLASS IN READING

U.S. students are among the best readers in the world, says a new international study comparing reading proficiency.

The study, based on a test given last year to 210,000 9- and 14-year-olds in 31 countries, is the largest of its kind, says Alan Purves of State University of New York, Albany, the study's U.S. director.

It was conducted by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement, based at The Hague, Netherlands.

Finnish students outperformed others in both age groups, with 9-year-olds in the U.S. ranking second.

Fourteen-year-olds from France, Sweden and New Zealand outperformed U.S. students, but by tiny margins.

150 ARRESTED IN 6-NATION DRUG STING Money Laundering Disrupted, DEA Says

Federal drug enforcement officials said Monday they have disrupted the money-laundering wing of the leading Colombian cocaine cartel by arresting more than 150 people in six countries and seizing nearly $42 million in illegal drug profits.

DEA officials said the three-year undercover effort was the first instance of international cooperation on a drug-money-laundering case and the first time authorities uncovered enough evidence to link the Colombian Cali drug cartel to the Sicilian Mafia.

ADMINISTRATION BACKS MORE MONEY, BUT OVERHAUL, FOR LATIN BANK

The Bush Administration will support a "healthy" increase in the resources of the Inter-American Development Bank, but the new money for loans should be accompanied by an overhaul of how the bank operates, a Treasury Department official said Monday.

Olin Wethington, assistant treasury secretary for international affairs, told reporters at a briefing that the Administration would like to see the bank increase its support of private-sector projects in Latin America, ranging from loans to small businesses to helping privatize large state-owned industries.

While saying that the Administration was "prepared to explore a healthy capital increase to accommodate the bank's lending requirements," Wethington refused to discuss a specific dollar amount although he indicated that it would be at least in the range of the previous $26.5 billion increase. BUSH VETOES CHINA TRADE CONDITIONS

President Bush Monday night vetoed another congressional attempt to attach conditions to renewal trade privileges for China.

Shortly before 7 p.m., the Administration announced the veto of a MFN trade bill passed by voice vote in both houses of Congress and sent to the White House Sept. 22. Congressional sources said the veto would likely be sustained.

Bush Again Vetoes Trade Curbs On China; Override Is Unlikely

Juggling yet another delicate issue handed him by Congress at peak election season, President Bush vetoed legislation Monday night that would restrict China's trade with the U.S. unless the Chinese improved their records on human rights, free trade and arms proliferation.

In a written statement to reporters, Rep. Gephardt said: "Democrats and Republicans in the Congress believe a country like China that violates the human rights of its people and traffics in weapons of mass destruction should not receive special trade benefits from the United States. Unfortunately, George Bush does." (Michael Wines, New York Times, A1)

ROAD TO BAGHDAD

Gen. Schwarzkopf was interviewed on CBS Monday about one of the most persistent questions of the past 18 months. "So many people have said, 'Gee, why didn't we go into Baghdad?'" the general acknowledged....

"We could have been there in about two or three hours if we wanted to.... But that was never the plan. No one, absolutely no one in the international diplomatic community, world leaders, anywhere, no one ever envisioned us going to Baghdad.... The objective of the whole thing was:...Kick the Iraqis out of Kuwait.

CBS's Paula Zahn: "What difference do you think it would have made to continue the ground war another 24 hours, another 36 hours?"

Schwarzkopf: "I've thought about that a lot. The answer is none whatsoever." ("Inside the Beltway," Washington Times, A6)

IRAQ PROPOSES OIL SALES PLAN TO SECURITY COUNCIL MEMBERS

U.N. -- Iraq has offered to resume talks on limited oils sales with U.N. officials and proposed petroleum exports of $4 billion over a six-month period.

Baghdad's U.N. mission Monday sent a memorandum to all 15 Security Council members designed to counter a U.S.-initiated resolution to seize frozen Iraqi assets abroad. The memo said Iraq was ready to resume talks on oil sales broken off last March in Vienna, "without preconditions." (Reuter)

IRAQ OPPOSITION SAYS PARLEY IN NORTH UNIFIES ITS RANKS

SHAQLAWA -- Strengthening its drive to topple the Baghdad government, the Iraqi opposition has announced a unification of ranks after meetings in Kurdish-controlled northern Iraq, and has called on all Iraqis to join its efforts.

The meeting of some 60 opposition officials, from turbaned Shiite Muslim clerics and Kurds to Arab nationalists, held its closing session on Sunday.

The new unity agreement will pave the way next month for the creation of a united opposition leadership and probably, participants said, of a military committee to organize its forces. (New York Times, A5)

MEMO FAULTED U.S. ACTION IN PROBE OF LOANS TO IRAQ Complaint At Odds With Statements By Officials

The chief federal prosecutor probing illicit bank loans to Iraq complained in an internal memo last spring that the Bush Administration ignored damning information when it gave Baghdad $500 million in agricultural loan guarantees in October 1989.

The memo from the prosecutor, Gale McKenzie, appears to be at odds with previous statements by officials at the White House and elsewhere in Washington that McKenzie assured them at that time there was no reason to withhold the credits.

McKenzie's complaint represents one of several indications in newly released government documents that she and Washington frequently squabbled over her handling of the politically sensitive case.

The senior U.S. attorney in the case, Gerrilyn Brill, said Monday she could not respond until she reviews the memos and discusses them with McKenzie. (R. Smith, Washington Post, A3)

SERBS WARN ON SANCTIONS AS NEW PEACE TALKS BROACHED

BELGRADE -- Yugoslav and Croat leaders have agreed to hold peace talks in Geneva and the U.N. is increasing pressure on the Zagreb government to halt a march by Croatian refugees to recover their homes in territory now held by Serbs.

Yugoslav president Dobrica Cosic and Croatian president Franjo Tudjman agreed to meet Wednesday after the intervention of peace envoys Cyrus Vance and Lord Owen.

Vance and Owen visited Belgrade Monday and met Serbian president Milosevic.

He warned them their efforts to stop fighting between Moslems, Croats and Serbs in Bosnia and engineer a global peace between the past and present Yugoslav republics could be endangered if sanctions against Serbia were not lifted.

"We expect them to be lifted soon," Milosevic said on TV. His office issued a statement saying there had been no justification for imposing the sanctions and even less for keeping them.

PEROT MEETING

ABC's Peter Jennings: We begin tonight with an exercise in political power -- the political power which Ross Perot is perceived to have. Today he was able to force Gov. Clinton and President Bush to send some of their most influential representatives to Dallas to explain themselves to Mr. Perot and his 50 state chairmen. For Gov. Clinton and President Bush it was raw political power they could not ignore, worried as they are that Perot -- or at least his supporters -- may hold important keys to the kingdom come election day. John McWethy has been there all day to watch what Mr. Perot called democracy at its finest and others called a circus.

ABC's John McWethy: Perot volunteers from all 50 states were here, their air fares and rooms paid for by the man they ardently support.

(Perot: "I think it's a historic day certainly in this campaign because we will only talk about issues.")

Ross Perot was enjoying himself immensely. He played master of ceremonies all day, appearing three times before reporters challenging the Clinton and Bush campaigns to show how their plans to reduce the deficit compared to his. The Democrats were first up with a group including Campaign Chairman Mickey Kantor, Sen. Bentsen, Wall Street financier Felix Rohatyn and Adm. Crowe.

(Perot: "Like standing in front of a fire hose with hard facts and information pouring out. The volunteers love it.")

Perot said that his ideas and Clinton's have much in common, such as higher taxes for the rich, but also significant disagreements like Perot's gasoline tax proposal. The Democrats were selling hard.

(Bentsen: "We hope that those who support Ross Perot will join us in being part of our movement for change and true economic growth.")

The Republican delegation included Robert Teeter, Gen. Scowcroft, Secretary Kemp and Sen. Gramm.

(Sen. Gramm: "Where is our program similar to Ross Perot's and where is it different? It's similar in that we want to put the federal government on a budget like everybody else.")

Perot said there were areas of overlap between the President's ideas and his. Many of Perot's supporters were skeptical about both presentations.

(Jim Serur, Texas Perot supporter: "Mr. Perot is the one that I believe most strongly advocates change and the one that I believe would carry out the measures that he has proposed.")

Perot now wants his delegates to return to their home states to poll other Perot supporters about whether he should run. The deadline is Thursday, but many say whatever Perot decides he already knows what they want. They want him to run. (ABC-Lead)

NBC's Tom Brokaw: Ross Perot today gave the political equivalent of a tupperware party. But whether he was buying or selling we still don't know. The Texas renegade called together his volunteers to hear high-price pitch men for the Bush and Clinton camps make their best case why it's not necessary for Perot to get back in the presidential race.

NBC's Lisa Myers reports Perot calls it democracy at its finest. Others saw it as the largest collective pander in American politics in many years. Perot was where he wanted to be, on center stage. (Perot: "This is an interesting day in the history of American politics where one large group basically said to its competitors in the campaign, come in and convince us that we should close our operation down and vote for you or whatever you think we ought to do.")

Emissaries from both campaigns new they'd have a tough time convincing anyone. After all, these state coordinators are Perot's staunchest supporters. They hung on after he quit. Some are even on Perot's payroll, and almost all want Perot back in the race. Judging from comments afterward, the Clinton delegation's top priority was to stroke Perot and stick it to Bush.

(Sen. Bentsen: "We could not help but note the wide areas of agreement between Bill Clinton and Ross Perot.")

The Bush group came because Clinton's did and because not coming would have given Perot political ammunition.

(Bob Teeter: "This is a group of very important people. I think these are a group of people who have had a major effect and are going to have a major effect in this campaign and in the country.") Perot says his coordinators now will take the information to volunteers in their states who then will decide whether Perot should re-enter the race. Since he supposedly dropped out, Perot has spent almost $7 million on headquarters, workers and ballot drives. When his volunteers didn't care enough to get him on the ballot in New York, he placed want ads and hired workers to gather signatures. His former campaign manager says this is all driven by Perot's ego.

(Ed Rollins: "He's sort of like a kamikaze pilot who obviously is trying to affect the process, and he doesn't deserve to affect the process.")

The truth is that both campaigns considered today a dog-and-pony show. But they decided it was smarter to pander than to risk the wrath of Ross Perot.

(NBC-Lead)

CBS's Dan Rather: Good evening from sunny Los Angeles, where people, as they are just about everywhere in the country, are scratching their heads about what Ross Perot may be up to. You have to be wondering tonight, what is Perot up to? In one of the strangest days of campaign '92, top aides to the Bush-Quayle campaign and to the Clinton-Gore campaign traveled down to Dallas to court Perot. Before the day was out Perot had held no fewer than three -- count 'em, three news conferences. And when it was all over, Perot still wasn't ready to say whether he's running again.

CBS's Scott Pelley reports that surprisingly, after months of blistering rhetoric, today Perot seemed ready for compromise.

(Perot: "To all of you, you are terrific. Where there are differences of opinion they are honest differences of opinion with both sides looking for the best answer and neither side being frozen in place for some ideological reason.")

It was an audition in Perot's own smoke-filled room.

(Mickey Kantor: "If you look at Mr. Perot's book, United We Stand, America, and you look at Gov. Clinton's book, you will find a huge number of areas about 80 or 90 percent complete similarity in fact.")

(Bob Teeter: "It is incredulous to say that in some ways that Gov. Clinton's programs are closer to those of this group than ours are. I think the real measure is simply the degree to which each group believes that the problems are going to be solved by government rather than the economy.")

In truth, neither campaign came anywhere close to Perot's principle goal: eliminating the deficit in five years. The Bush and Clinton plans would cut the deficit by only half in four years. Ironically, Perot's power meeting came at the same time when his own supporters aren't sure whether he should run. They were evenly split on that question in a new CBS News national poll taken over the weekend [46 said yes, 45 percent said no].

(Linda DiVall, GOP pollster: "He looks as bad as any other politician because he lied to the American people in a very fundamental way and disappointed a lot of people whose vote he could have had.")

This evening the Texas tycoon says on Thursday he will decide once and for all whether he is in or out. (CBS-Lead)

DEBATES

Brokaw: In addition to what's going on in Dallas, NBC News has learned tonight that the Commission on Presidential Debates tomorrow morning will send letters to the Clinton and Bush campaigns saying the commission now is willing to discuss other formats. President Bush objects to a single moderator as the commission has recommended. So the commission is offering to talk about alternatives for the remaining scheduled debates Oct. 4 and 15.

Brokaw talks with NBC's John Cochran, NBC's Andrea Mitchell, and Myers:

Brokaw: Will the Bush White House respond to this latest commission proposal?

Cochran: They don't know about it yet, but I think they will. After all, everywhere George Bush goes now the Clinton camp puts a man in a chicken's costume with a sign "Chicken George" saying that Bush is afraid to debate. The President cannot afford that kind of publicity. And the President, I think, is ready to debate. Jim Baker has simply wanted to debate at the right time and under the right format. They could compromise, for example. Bush has said he'd like three questioners. He could, for example, accept two questioners.

Brokaw: The commission wants an answer by tomorrow night. That would be before any Perot announcement. Would they like to have Perot in the debate?

Cochran: They don't want to debate Perot because the morning after the first debate they want all the headlines to say 'Bush Cleans Clinton's Clock.' They don't want any publicity about Perot. But they want him in the race, because right now George Bush's campaign is stuck. He's still 10 points behind. Perot would shake up the race, he would get people to start paying attention to the campaign once again.

Brokaw: What about Bill Clinton and a new debate format, and what about Ross Perot if he gets in? Does that help Clinton in Texas?

Mitchell: Sure, it would help Clinton in Texas. But the Clinton people feel that while they would prefer not to have Perot in -- because anything that changes the dynamic of a race which they are, right now, ahead in all polls, is not necessarily good, they do say that it doesn't really hurt them because it helps them in places like Texas where they had no real chance of winning. It helps them in the South and other places where Democrats don't usually win. But it will hurt them in places like California where they have such a big lead that they could afford to have Perot in the race.

Cochran: What the Bush people are saying is they want Clinton to have to campaign in California to waste time and money in California.

Brokaw: We're told a lot of those volunteers today were questioning these people about gridlock in Congress, and not necessarily about the deficit. Do you think the volunteers have one agenda and Ross Perot has another?

Myers: I think the volunteers may have read Mr. Perot's economic program. I mean if some of these people are not that keen on having a 50-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline tax or any number of the other tax increases or benefit cuts that Mr. Perot has on his agenda, that may be why when Mr. Perot goes on television he talks about what a wonderful economic plan he has he never discusses the specifics, because the specifics are not very popular even among his own people. (NBC-2)

POLL/TRIP/CAMPAIGN

Jennings: The background to all of this attention being paid to Mr. Perot today by the governor and the President is no mystery. It is in the polls, and here's what we mean: Our latest ABC News-Washington Post poll with Mr. Perot in the picture looks like this: Mr. Clinton has 44 percent, Mr. Bush 39 percent and Mr. Perot 14 percent. And our polling unit notes that Perot takes more votes from Clinton at the moment than from Bush, especially among the so-called Reagan Democrats. In a two-way race, our poll shows Gov. Clinton's lead over President Bush has narrowed to 9 points [51 percent to 42 percent]. Last week it was 21.

Jennings continues: We have a follow-up of sorts tonight on President Bush's effort to transfer a little bit of the Harry Truman come-from-behind magic to his campaign. Mr. Bush spent Saturday night and all day yesterday, as you may know, on a train whistle-stop through Michigan and Ohio. We heard the President's end of the dialogue on the news last night. Tonight, Jim Wooten on how he impressed the people he met along the way, in Bowling Green, Ohio, to be specific.

Jim Wooten: Small-town Americans probably love football so much because it reflects their values: hard work rewarded, the virtue of victory, the very same values George Bush tapped into so successfully in 1988. This weekend, though, as Bowling Green, Ohio, grandly prepared itself for a presidential visit, some who liked what they saw four years ago were taking a second look.

(Unidentified woman: "I voted for Bush the last time, but I'm not sure I'm voting for him again.")

(Unidentified man: "I don't know. I voted for him last time. It's questionable this time.")

No wonder the President was on his way to Bowling Green. Most local voters remain loyal.

[TV coverage of a cheering crowd.]

(Unidentified woman: "I'm going to vote for Bush. He's there. He knows what he's doing.")

And he isn't likely to lose little towns like this.

(President Bush: "Thank you for this fantastic Bowling Green welcome.")

But if he doesn't win them as big as in 1988, the Democratic vote in the cities will tip the state and perhaps the election. So he presented himself here as the same fellow who swept Ohio four years ago. The crowd was happy, the local coverage friendly, but the doubts still lingered after his visit. Policewoman Vicky Goodman was on his security detail.

(Goodman: "He seems like a really nice person, but I just don't think that he's really in touch with what's going on.")

Kathy Aldridge waited eight hours to hear him.

(Aldridge: "When you go see the President of the United States you want to hear what he's going to be doing for you and the country, and instead he didn't say anything.")

And Kevin Wenner thought listening to Bush would help him make up his mind. It did.

(Wenner: "As I walked away I felt that here's a man who doesn't support me; why should I support him?")

The President's re-election may now depend to a large degree on his answers to questions like that in places like this -- small-town America where once he was so greatly admired and no longer sure he's on the right track. (ABC-3)

Rather: Gov. Clinton was effectively off the campaign trail today, taking care of what he called state business in Little Rock. President Bush campaigned again in Missouri, and again he was attacking Clinton, this time what he called Clinton's record on crime in Arkansas. Mr. Bush also promised again to hold the line on taxes, but he again refused to call that a no-new-taxes pledge. Back at the White House, Bush campaign officials were watching very closely Ross Perot's maneuvering himself back into center stage.

Rather talks with CBS's Susan Spencer:

Rather: A lot of the California politicians I talked to say, well, the Bush-Quayle people have to be hoping Perot gets back in because it could be the break they're looking for. Is that the way they view it?

Spencer: Not exactly, although they certainly are scratching their heads over what's going to happen. Mr. Bush has been literally campaigning his socks off now for about 10 days, and not much has changed. So there's one school of thought here that says, well okay, let's have Ross Perot. At least it will keep things mixed up a little bit, and maybe it will stop people from making up their minds finally right now. When you're 10 or 15 points behind, having people make up their minds is not what you want. On the other hand, it does keep this race focused on the economy and the deficit. That's probably not to the President's advantage. And when it comes down to the individual states, Clinton can afford to take hits right now far better than Mr. Bush, especially in the state of Texas.

Rather: Could this change the Bush-Quayle position about the debates, which up to now has been 'We're not going to do it unless we get our terms?'

Spencer: I think that if Perot said, 'Yeah, I'm in, I'm going to run, I'm going to debate,' and Bill Clinton said 'I'm going to debate,' the White House would have to re-evaluate. As things stand now, though, the answer is still thanks but no thanks. There's a feeling that with Clinton having this lead that the press might declare Clinton a victor after a debate that was essentially a draw. That would be the end of it. And there's also a real problem here with the format, the one-on-one format. Each side is going to try to exploit the other's vulnerabilities. It's much easier for Bill Clinton to look George Bush in the eye and say 'What about the economy?' than it is for the President to look Bill Clinton in the eye and say, 'What about the draft?' or 'What about character issues?' That gets a little dicier.

Rather: Any way out of this logjam? By your analysis, are we likely to have a debate, at least one, or not?

Spencer: I think we may have one. I think if we do it will probably be quite close to the election. The campaign here does not see a debate as the answer to getting out of this logjam. I think what you're going to have instead is non-stop campaigning and a lot of very intensive negative ads. (CBS-2)

PRESIDENT'S ECONOMIC PLAN/ANALYSIS

Brokaw: President Bush was also in Dallas today, not meeting with Perot but promising a tougher stand on violent crime. He also repeated another promise today: No new tax increases. We've asked NBC's Mike Jensen to size up the President's economic plan and his performance so far.

Jensen: We studied President Bush's new economic plan, analyzed his record, polled voters, talked to leading economists, and the results were not kind to George Bush.

(President Bush: "I want a government that spends less, regulates less and taxes less.")

That's the heart of George Bush's message.

(President Bush: "We know that the clumsy hand of government is no match for the uplifting hand of the marketplace.")

The problem is the marketplace has not been very uplifting. For the last four years the government has had what President Bush calls "its clumsy hand in everyone's pocket." It's spending more, far more than it's taking in, and it's taxing more. With the exception of a very low rate of inflation, the economy under George Bush has done terribly. Economic growth, far and away the slowest of any four-year presidential term since World War II. Under Bush the economy has grown only 2 1/2 percent, compared with average growth of 13.7 percent for the previous 10 administrations. Under Bush there has been almost no job growth [0.7 percent]. The previous average, 7.2 percent. A lot of people worry that if they vote for Bush there'll be more of the same.

(Ray Jefferson, retired sales executive: "You can't change spots on an old dog.")

That's typical. In an NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll this month, only 26 percent said they thought George Bush would do the best job dealing with the economy; 41 percent said Bill Clinton. What do the experts think? NBC News talked to eight Nobel Prize-winning economists. By a margin of five to three, they favored Bill Clinton's economic plan over George Bush's. James Buchanan was one of those for Bush. He, too, favors a smaller role for the government.

(James Buchanan, Nobel Prize-winning economist: "I think as of now Bush is making a better argument of it.")

But even he had doubts about President Bush.

(Buchanan: "I think the philosophy he's pronouncing now sounds pretty good, but I don't think his record stands up to it.")

A lot of the Nobel Prize-winners said President Bush didn't really have an economic philosophy. Tomorrow night we'll see what they think of Bill Clinton's plan. (NBC-3)

PEROT/DEFICIT REDUCTION

Jennings: So is he running? Mr. Perot would not be pinned down today. He would only go as far as saying, 'Maybe I'll tell you by the end of the week.' But if he does run again he now has an economic platform to run on. He came up with it after he said in July he would not run.

ABC's Bob Jamieson: Perot's economic plan is the centerpiece of his book, a best-seller despite its harsh message. His proposals to eliminate the deficit would leave no one untouched, including the poor and the elderly. He would add a tax on gasoline, rising to 50 cents a gallon over five years. He would increase taxes on Social Security benefits for those with incomes of more than $25,000 a year. He would raise the top income tax rate from 31 percent to 33 percent starting with those earning $55,550 a year. He would tax some health care benefits provided by employers as income and cap mortgage interest deductions.

Jamieson continues: Perot would eliminate programs like the space station while cutting government spending by 15 percent and eliminate many government subsidies.

(Barry Bosworth, economist: "The average American would be faced with significantly fewer public programs and significantly higher taxes. There is a short-run cost required to sort of improve the long-run situation for the economy. We're going to have to take a dose of this medicine. And the longer you put it off, the longer you continue to ring up these deficits, the bigger dose you're going to have to take down the road.")

But even economists who like the Perot plan say it should not be implemented now. With the economy stagnant with consumer spending low and unemployment high, such bitter medicine would likely cause things to get dramatically worse.

Jennings: But will Mr. Perot run with this platform? There is a feeling -- and it is only a feeling in both the Bush and the Clinton campaigns, as well as among some of those who work for Perot -- that in the final analysis, having got all this attention now, he will not.

ABC's Jeff Greenfield reports on Perot's past unpredictability. Every now and again someone looks up from this latest chapter of Waiting for Perot and whispers the word "crazy." Well right now the presidential campaigns of both major parties are frozen in place, and once again Ross Perot seems to be the only political game in town. Crazy? Like a fox. (ABC-2)

ABORTION/GOP

Rather: At the Republican National Convention, the Bush-Quayle campaign trumpeted a party platform that promised to flatly outlaw abortion. Late Friday, after the evening news, President Bush vetoed a bill that would have let government-funded clinics give out abortion information. But Mr. Bush, Quayle and their surrogates regularly put out statements that are widely viewed as trying to create other impressions. What's going on here?

CBS's Eric Engberg: Californian Jennifer Deaner has the pedigree of a solid Republican: an upscale suburbanite, a former business executive who voted twice for Reagan and once for Bush. But this year she'll pull the Democratic lever.

(Deaner: "I mean, I woke up, and I hope a lot of women are.") The alarm bell was the party's hard-line stance against abortion, which has cost the GOP so many votes, especially among women, that the Bush team is now scrambling to change its image on the issue. At the GOP convention, the Bush camp pushed the anti-abortion agenda of the Christian Right, including a declaration the right to life cannot be infringed even in cases of rape or incest and a call for a constitutional amendment to ban all abortions. When it became clear those uncompromising positions were costing votes in the suburbs, the GOP tried to recapture the moderates, the President saying he wouldn't stand in the way of a granddaughter seeking an abortion. Mrs. Bush, whom the moderates see as a secret ally, said abortion didn't belong in the platform. Vice President Quayle did the talk show two-step.

Engberg continues:

(Questioner: "What about the constitutional amendment?"

Vice President Quayle: "Abortion is a tragedy."

Questioner: "Do you not want to answer this question?"

Vice President Quayle: "I've already answered that. I'm going to talk about what we're trying to do, and that is to change attitudes, change behavior.")

More strikingly, Mrs. Quayle seemed to reject the party's own official position.

(Mrs. Quayle: "I think if you're raped you really ought to go in and report it to the authorities, and then everything possible should be done to prevent a pregnancy from occurring."

Questioner: "How about incest?"

Mrs. Quayle: "Incest, which is one of the most sickening crimes I can think of, I can see a case for having an abortion done for a child.")

The words conflict with the Bush record. Friday's veto was the eighth time the President has blocked funding for abortion, including funding for victims of rape and incest, or abortion counseling in government-supported clinics.

(Deaner: "Oh, I'm sure they're trying to have it both ways. It's a very highly divisive issue and I don't think you can have it both ways. And I think actions speak louder than words, and that's how I perceive it and that's how I will vote.")

The GOP was once able to finesse the abortion issue enough to keep moderates in line. But that was before the vetoes, before the Clarence Thomas confirmation, and before Roe v. Wade seemed in jeopardy -- a series of events that has produced an angry backlash, especially among women voters. (CBS-5)

HAZARDOUS WASTE DUMPING

Jennings: Just one campaign note today. The Bush Administration dropped a controversial proposal to allow hazardous waste dumping in unlined landfills. The proposal was pushed by Vice President Quayle's Competitiveness Council and widely condemned by governors, Democrat and Republican alike. Administration sources say the proposal was withdrawn today to head off potentially damaging headlines tomorrow, when some congressional Democrats planned to publicly denounce the proposal. (ABC-4)

DOLLAR/YEN

Jennings reports that investors sold more than $7 billion U.S. dollars and bought Japanese yen, forcing the dollar to its lowest value on the Japanese money market since the late 1940s.

ABC's Bill Redeker reports that analysts say investors dumped their dollars because they expect U.S. interest rates to go down again soon, lowering the return on dollar investments. Japanese investors are also worried about a change at the White House.

(Paul Summerville, economist: "The market has decided that Bill Clinton's the next president of the United States, but until they see what his policies are going to be they're going to bring money back home, leave it in yen, and wait and see how things pan out.")

(ABC-7)

DRUG ARRESTS

Jennings reports that authorities in Washington and Rome claim that they have dealt a crippling blow to the Colombian cartels that control most of the world's cocaine. Police officials say that a two-year operation called Green Ice has resulted in more than 200 arrests, some of them very important, in four countries, including Italy and the U.S. (ABC-9, NBC-4)

CBS's Rita Braver reports:

(Robert Bonner, DEA Administrator: "We've dealt a very serious blow to the ability of the Cali cartel to be able to move its money, which is its lifeblood.") (CBS-4)

SOUTH AFRICAN NUKES

NBC's Fred Francis reports that the South Africans, aided by some strange international bedfellows, now have enough weapons-grade uranium for at least two-dozen nuclear warheads -- and the know-how to make them. Documents obtained by NBC News revealed the scheme to get the material for the South African bomb began near the capital, where for more than a decade scientists combined uranium-based material purchased from China, the enrichment technology acquired from Germany and the missiles systems and weapons know-how from Israel -- odd partners all joined secretly with the Apartheid regime. U.S. and western intelligence agencies thought F.W. DeKlerk's government had only a fledgling effort with only a few pounds of bomb-quality uranium. Last year DeKlerk agreed to accept international inspection of the international program. The fear is that one day there will be elements in South Africa, white elements who will establish an enclave there, a nuclear enclave hostile to all. (NBC-9)

Today's Schedule on Capitol Hill

Senate Floor: The Senate has a busy day, with a vote scheduled this morning on invoking cloture and proceeding to full consideration of the START arms reduction treaty.

Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., has objected to the treaty (Treaty Doc 102-20), which is supported by President Bush and members from both parties.

If cloture is invoked, the Senate is expected to spend much of the day on the matter, perhaps in closed session.

• Members also will vote on final passage of the tax bill (HR 11), which was the subject of lengthy floor consideration last week and most of Saturday.

• Majority leader George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, said he will try to bring up the fetal tissue research bill (S 2899) that would reauthorize the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Republicans may block consideration.

S 2899, a revised version of a bill (HR 2507) vetoed in June, would permit federally financed research using tissue from aborted fetuses if tissue was not available from ectopic pregnancies and miscarriages.

House Floor: Lawmakers will tackle a long agenda of more than 50 bills today, including a measure (HR 3203) that would give the Federal Trade Commission and states new tools to crack down on telemarketing fraud.

Coercive or abusive marketing techniques are estimated to cost consumers $1 billion a year. The measure would make it easier to sue companies for telemarketing fraud.

Here are some of the other measures the House will consider:

• HR 3258, which would reauthorize federal programs created in 1988 to inform the public about the dangers of radon. Through fiscal 1994, $10 million would be authorized annually for regional centers that distribute information about the health risks of the radioactive gas, which is linked to cancer.

• S 2681, which would reauthorize for 10 years federal health programs for native Hawaiians. The programs aim to promote disease prevention among the native population, which make up 20 percent of Hawaii's population and have a mortality rate 34 percent higher than the U.S. average.

• HR 3475, which would authorize grants to local groups to train women for non-traditional jobs. Another measure, HR 3476, would establish a commission to examine how opportunities for women in the fields of science and engineering can be expanded.

• S 2572, which would authorize a land exchange between a private timber firm and the federal government. In exchange for 41,000 acres of wetlands in Arkansas and 1,200 acres in Idaho, the Potlatch Corp. would receive about 17,625 acres of federal forest lands in Idaho.

• S 2853, which would reauthorize the Justice Department's Office of Special Counsel. The office, which protects federal "whistleblowers," would be reauthorized through fiscal 1994.

Defense Appropriations: House and Senate conferees will meet in closed session today to discuss competing versions of the fiscal 1993 defense appropriations bill (HR 5504).

The Senate, which passed the $251 billion spending plan by a vote of 86-10 last week, has provided $3.8 billion for the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). The bill would also fund the purchase of four more B-2 bombers and direct the Pentagon to choose which of its proposed new generation of combat aircraft should be funded.

When the Senate took up the legislation last week, lawmakers added an amendment that would sidetrack $200 million from SDI to go toward research on breast cancer.

The House version, which would fund Department of Defense programs at a level of $251.7 billion, also includes money for SDI and the stealth bomber program.

The defense appropriations bill conference is closely linked to the negotiations on the defense authorization bill

Hill News

SENATE FLOOR: Debate begins on START arms treaty.

Action in the Senate was confined generally to initial debate on the strategic arms reduction, or START, treaty that would draw down U.S. and Russian stocks of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The treaty (Treaty Doc. 102-20) is generally popular among members of both parties as well as with President Bush, who wants to see it ratified before Congress leaves.

But Wyoming Republican Malcolm Wallop objects to the treaty, saying it is a product of election year politics.

Wallop, who has a record of opposing arms control agreements, said the treaty falls short in a number of areas, especially in provisions pertaining to the monitoring of nuclear weapons destruction. Wallop put a hold on consideration of the treaty, forcing supporters to file a cloture motion last week to cut off initial debate.

Only a handful of senators were present for yesterday's debate and no roll calls were held so Jewish members could observe Rosh Hashanah.

• The House conducted no legislative business yesterday, also in observance of Rosh Hashanah.

Bill and Background	House	Senate	Final
Aid to Former Soviet Republics. (HR 4547, S 2532) The measures would provide broad authorization for President Bush's proposed aid to the former Soviet Union. The measures, which anticipate $24 billion in multilateral aid to Russia this year, would also authorize a $12.2 billion increase in the U.S. contribution to the International Monetary Fund.	HR 4547 passed as S 2532 8/6/92	S 2532 passed 7/2/92	Conference completed 9/24/92
Cable Television Reregulation. (HR 4850, S 12) The final bill would regulate basic cable rates and services and require cable programmers to deal fairly with competitors such as satellite operators, wireless cable, telephone and other cable franchises. The bill also would allow broadcasters to charge cable operators for their signals.	HR 4850 passed as S 12 7/23/92	S 12 passed 1/31/92	House adopted conference report 9/17/92 Senate cleared measure 9/22/92

The Senate bill would authorize $274.5 billion. Both bills would authorize completion of 20 B-2 bombers if certain conditions are met. Both would authorize $4.3 billion of the $5.4 billion that Bush sought for the Strategic Defense Initiative.	HR 5006 passed 6/5/92	S 3114 passed as HR 5006 9/18/92	Conference began 9/22/92

(HR 5006) now under way. Major funding decisions often follow the lead of the authorizing legislation.

Intelligence Authorization. Conferencees will meet to work out differences between House and Senate versions of legislation (HR 5095) that would approve fiscal 1993 funding for the nation's intelligence community.

Both the House and Senate versions of the bill would cut intelligence funding — believed to be about $30 billion a year — below the fiscal 1992 amount and 5 percent below President Bush's budget request. The actual amount of the intelligence budget is classified.

The intelligence budget includes money for the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and other intelligence operations.

The House passed its version of the authorization on June 25, while the Senate bill (S 2991) won passage on Sept. 23.

According to a House Democratic staffer, the differences between the bills are not great. ■

11:00 A.M. NEWS UPDATE

TRIP/TENNESSEE (Dallas/AP) -- President Bush, seeking to deflect attention from his refusal to participate in a presidential debate in Kentucky, was dashing across neighboring Tennessee bashing his Democratic rival as a tax-and-spend liberal. The Bush campaign chose the home state of Al Gore to stage another attack on Bill Clinton's economic agenda. The University of San Diego, meanwhile, gave Bush and Clinton another day to decide whether they would participate in a debate scheduled for Sunday.

ECONOMY (AP) The government's chief economic forecasting gauge fell 0.2% in August, the second decline in the past three months, as the economy continued to suffer widespread weakness, the Commerce Department said. The decline in the department's Index of Leading Indicators followed a slight 0.1% increase in July and a 0.3% June decline, which had been the first drop in six months.

CONSUMER CONFIDENCE (New York/UPI) -- Consumers' confidence in the U.S. economy sank to its lowest level in seven months during September, the Conference Board said. The private business research organization's closely watched Consumer Confidence Index, which uses 1985 as a base of 100, sank to 56.4 in September -- its lowest level since a 47.3 reading in February.

PEROT/DEBATES (Reuter) -- Ross Perot said he will show up in San Diego for a scheduled debate Sunday with President Bush and Bill Clinton if he decides to run for president. "Sure I will go. I will be there," Perot said on NBC's "Today" show.

POLL/MICHIGAN (East Lansing, Mich./UPI) -- A Michigan State University survey shows Bill Clinton is preferred over President Bush by most state voters but the lead could be significantly cut if Ross Perot re-enters the presidential race. Findings showed in a head-to-head contest Clinton had the support of 50% of those polled compared with 38% for Bush. The remaining 12% were undecided. According to the survey, if Perot re-entered the race voters would divide with 39.6% for Clinton, 32.2% for Bush and 20.9% for Perot.

YUGOSLAVIA/AIRLIFT (Geneva/Reuter) -- The U.S. will restart the suspended relief airlift to Sarajevo within the next 24 hours, authoritative diplomatic sources said. The sources were speaking after Bosnia's President Alija Izetbegovic said he had been told of the planned U.S. move by Cyrus Vance.

IRAQ/CHEMICAL (Baghdad/Reuter) -- Virtually all Iraq's chemical nerve agents to be scrapped under terms of the Gulf War cease-fire have been stockpiled at a plant for destruction, a U.N. inspector said. Bernhard Brunner, the Swiss head of the latest U.N. inspection team in Iraq, said he did not believe the Iraqis had more chemical munitions to transfer to Muthana, a site 80 miles northwest of Baghdad where some destruction facilities are ready and others are being built.

Ted Welch has requested that the President stay for mix-and-mingle following the photos and before remarks. He has been told that this is unlikely due to time considerations. At his direction, there is no curtain dividing the room, as this would be "insulting" to the donors.

REQUEST FOR PRESIDENTIAL PHONE CALL

It is strongly suggested that the President phone Minnie Pearl during his private time in Clarksville. She is recovering from a stroke, and would greatly appreciate the call. He should then reference the call in his remarks at the Roy Acuff Theater.

THE PRESIDENT

September 29, 1992

Dear Chris,

I'm glad to hear that you're enjoying your job at the RNC. We've got a good team over there and I'm delighted to have you aboard. You're right, the press has been very pro-Clinton -- attacking me from right and left, but I'm confident that people will see the difference and we will win.

Our tour through the Midwest was a big success. Now, we're back on the road again and counting down the days to victory in November. Thanks for your support and encouragement. Give my best to your Mom and Dad.

Sincerely,

From the desk of

Depe Mr. President,

I wanted to write to tell you how much I am enjoying working on your behalf at the RNC. The Press office is in a state of constant activity and it is a great experience to be working there.

Best of luck on the campaign trail and I hope your trip to Ohio this weekend goes well. You are doing a great job and I can't wait for, as you say,
"a little dog eat dog" in those debates! Give Clinton Hell.

All the Best,
Chris

P.S. - The press/media should have a disclaimer at the end of their stories which reads, "PAID FOR BY CLINTON/GOORE."
