THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

THE 99TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE
INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CHIEFS OF POLICE

DATE: October 25, 1992
TIME: 10:00 a.m.
LOCATION: Cobo Hall, Detroit, MI
THROUGH: DAVID DEMAREST DD
FROM: LEIGH ANN METZGER lam
GREG FITCH GF

I. PURPOSE

To address the nation's chiefs of police. To highlight your anti-crime and drug record and stress the differences with your opponent on this issue.

II. BACKGROUND

With 13,000 members in 79 nations, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) is the world's oldest and largest association of police executives. Founded in 1893, most members are from the United States.

You met with the board of officers of the IACP in April 1991 in the Roosevelt Room. Led by New York City Police Commissioner Lee Brown, IACP's then-president, the group asked you to set up a Presidential commission on crime and violence. Also discussed were police brutality, the crime bill and the Brady bill.

Under Roland Vaughn, police chief of Conyers, Georgia, the organization has strengthened its close relationship with the Administration. Vaughn led the IACP in support of your nomination of Judge Thomas to the U.S. Supreme Court, and was helpful in the development of the Attorney General's Violent Crime report which was submitted to you three months ago. And, after initially supporting the conference version of the crime bill with reservations, the IACP now supports your crime legislation.

Although the IACP does not give out political endorsements, the group will warmly greet you. IACP President Roland Vaughn has personally endorsed you.

Because of your hectic travel schedule, you will speak before the first general session of the convention. Approximately 5,000 of the expected 7,000 guests will be in attendance. This is the largest law enforcement convention in the nation.

During the convention, the Attorney General, FBI Director Sessions, DEA Administrator Bonner, and other Administration officials will speak (because the Attorney General is scheduled to speak two days after you, he will not be in attendance). Steve Harris, Chief of Police of Redmond, Washington, will be sworn in as IACP's new president at the conclusion of the convention.

III. PARTICIPANTS

The President
Chief Roland Vaughn, President, IACP
Approximately 5,000 chiefs of police, spouses and vendors

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

October 23, 1992

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: HENSON MOORE tu Am
FROM: BOBBIE KILBERG Et
CLIFF ALDERMAN CA
SUBJECT: MICHIGAN (Detroit)

I. Recent Correspondence

Governor Engler (R) wrote urging you to consider Detroit as a location for a future consolidated Defense Finance and Accounting Service (DFAS) center. His main concern is that current criteria for locating sites for these DFAS centers would place them in suburban areas. He wants cities to be considered as well, specifically Detroit. In September, Secretary Cheney toured a potential DFAS center site in downtown Detroit with Governor Engler and Mayor Coleman Young.

Mayor Robert Kozaren, Hamtramck, wrote to thank you for your Labor Day visit to Hamtramck and to ask your assistance in obtaining Federal funds from the Department of Justice for the construction of a courthouse and police station.

II. Discussion

A. General Motors Shake Up

There have been persistent reports this week that GM's board of directors is about to remove Robert Stempel as GM's Chairman of the board. The report also claimed that the directors are considering eliminating GM's Oldsmobile unit.

Stempel and other GM officials have worked to reassure GM employees and dealers that neither a change in leadership nor the elimination of the Oldsmobile unit is in the offing. However, GM is expected to report a third-quarter loss of approximately $845 million in late October.

MICHIGAN BRIEFING

B. Ethanol

Governor Engler and Michigan agricultural leaders praised your decision to increase the demand and use of ethanol, saying the move will create more jobs and help clean up the environment. By 1995, Governor Engler, a member of the Governors' Ethanol Coalition, could include the reformulated gasoline in Detroit and Muskegon, two Michigan cities that have Clean Air Act non-attainment status.

C. Term Limit Proposal

A term limit proposal will be on the November ballot in Michigan. The proposed limits would restrict state legislators' service to a total of eight years.

D. Unemployment

Rates are seasonally adjusted for the U.S. and Michigan; the rates for Detroit are not seasonally adjusted.

	September 1991	September 1992	Change
U.S.	6.8%	7.5%	+ .7%
Michigan	9.6%	8.8%	- .8%

	August 1991	August 1992	Change
Detroit	8.7%	8.7%	0%

Michigan continues to work toward absorbing announced cuts in the auto industry. Unemployment rates will likely remain high for some time as secondary parts shops lose the supplier business that has kept them in operation.

E. Exports/NAFTA

Michigan's exports to Mexico and Canada:

Mexico:	1991	$1.6 billion
	1987	$1.1 billion
Canada:	1991	$15 billion
	1987	$13 billion

Manufactured exports accounted for 97 percent of Michigan's $16 billion in exports to Canada and Mexico in 1991, and supported an estimated 260,000 jobs.

F. "Cut and Cap" Property Tax Proposal

Governor Engler's property tax proposal known as "cut and cap" has been placed on the November ballot. The proposed constitutional amendment would cut school operating property taxes 30 percent over five years, require that the state reimburse school districts dollar for dollar for revenues lost due to the cut, and cap assessment increases to 3 percent a year or the rate of inflation, whichever is less. Over five years, the plan will save taxpayers more than $6.5 billion.

G. Surface Transportation Funds

FY 1992 available funding	$468 million
FY 1991 apportionment	320 million
ISTEA FY 1992-97	3.13 billion

Through September 23, Michigan had obligated $458.9 million (97.9 percent) of its available FY 1992 Federal highway aid funds.

On August 10, Michigan received $9.5 million in obligation authority from "Moynihan/Courthouse" bill.

H. Welfare Reform

Governor Engler's welfare reform plan is designed to strengthen family responsibility. Engler's plan stresses AFDC as a temporary measure, improves child support collection by requiring absent parents to extend medical coverage to their children, denies professional licenses to parents who do not provide child support, and encourages employment.

Governor Engler's new "social contract" initiative began on October 1, requiring welfare recipients to spend 20 hours a week in school or volunteering if they are not working at least 20 hours a week.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: RONALD C. KAUFMAN
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR
POLITICAL AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: MICHIGAN POLITICAL BRIEFING

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT VISIT

The President will travel to Detroit which is currently located in the 13th Congressional District. Due to redistricting, Detroit will be located in the 15th Congressional District where incumbent Democrat Barbara-Rose Collins is being challenged by Republican Charles Vincent.

POLITICAL HOT POINTS

The latest statewide poll was conducted by the Detroit Free Press between October 20 and 21 and found:

President Bush:	31%
Bill Clinton:	41%
Ross Perot:	19%

A previous statewide poll was conducted by Michigan Research Associates between October 12 and 14. Taken among 2,102 "likely voters" in "GOP leaning/marginal Dem. areas" it found:

President Bush:	31%
Bill Clinton:	39%
Ross Perot:	14%

The poll found that 60 percent of Reagan Democrats supported Clinton and 15 percent supported the President.

The latest internal Bush-Quayle tracking found the following:

All Voters

Likely Voters

President Bush:	30%
Bill Clinton:	39%
Ross Perot:	21%
undecided:	10%

President Bush:	35%
Bill Clinton:	36%
Ross Perot:	20%
undecided:	9%

A statewide poll, conducted by The Detroit Free Press between October 3-7 among 627 "likely voters" found:

President Bush:	31%
Bill Clinton:	50%
Perot:	8%
Undecided:	11%

MICHIGAN POLITICAL BRIEFING

On October 20, Governor John Engler appeared on "Crossfire" with former Governor Jim Blanchard. Engler held his own in a comparison of the Clinton/Bush records.

On Sunday, October 11, the Detroit News endorsed the President. The President was also endorsed by the Macomb Daily. This endorsement is significant due to the large percentage of Reagan Democrats in Macomb County.

The Detroit Free Press endorsed the Clinton-Gore ticket on Sunday, October 4. The Grand Rapids Press also endorsed Clinton.

The current unemployment rate in the state is 8.6%, down from the April rate of 9.4%. Jobs remain the biggest issue facing the state.

NAFTA remains a controversial issue in the state. The Detroit News ran an editorial stating that Clinton "wimped out" on the issue by failing to take a strong stand.

One of the hottest issues in the state is Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards. Both campaigns are battling over the issue.

The Michigan GOP and the RNC will fund the state GOTV activities with $300,000 - $400,000. The third state mailing was dedicated entirely to the Clinton record. On October 18 and 19, Bush-Quayle ran CAFE ads in the Detroit Free Press and the Lansing State Journal.

The Clinton-Gore campaign has used the media extensively to reach Michigan voters. GOP State Chairman Dave Doyle reports that the Clinton Campaign has five paid TV spots for every one Bush-Quayle spot.

On October 16-18 Bill Clinton campaigned in Detroit, Ypsilanti, East Lansing, and Ann Arbor. In Ypsilanti, Clinton received the endorsement of Sarah Brady and 32 State Democrat Attorneys General from around the country. Clinton's press conference was bracketed by the Deputy Director of Corrections for the State of Michigan, two police chiefs, and two county prosecutors. They defended the President's record on crime and renewed their support for the President's crime bill.

The Michigan Police Officers Association has officially endorsed the President, however the national parent organization endorsed Bill Clinton. On October 13, the Michigan Associated Builders and Contractors endorsed the President. The group was originally concerned with the Supreme Court's decision mandating that all federal, state, or local government contracts involving construction must go to unionized labor. Attorney General William Barr met with the group to explain the decision and the President's position.

Governor Engler remains concerned about the minivan issue in the state. Minivan classifications allow foreign auto manufacturers to unload large quantities of minivans on the American market.

The Detroit News ran a full-page interview with Governor Clinton on Sunday, September 6. In this interview, Clinton stated that the 40 m.p.g. CAFE standard he has talked about is only a long term goal. He went on to say he would consider a lower threshold if it would hurt the auto industry. Governor Engler has led Michigan Republicans on the attack against Bill Clinton's proposal.

In the same interview, Clinton claimed he had not waffled on the issue of NAFTA. He stated his belief in the need for a U.S. trade agreement with Mexico, but said he couldn't support a treaty in which he does not know the details.

The Vice President was in Michigan on October 20 and 21. Mrs. Bush traveled to Detroit on Thursday, October 15 to address the Women's Economic Club. Doro Bush was in Battle Creek on October 8 and 9.

The President's most recent visit to Michigan was on Monday, October 19 for the third and final Presidential debate. Previously, the President was in Michigan on Monday, October 12, where he participated in a rally in Holland and attended a Presidential Trust fund-raiser in Grand Rapids. On Sunday, September 26 and 27 the President traveled by train from Plymouth to Grand Blanc.

1992 PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

The March 17, 1992 Presidential primary results were as follows:

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY:	President Bush	67%
	Pat Buchanan	25%
	David Duke	3%
DEMOCRAT PRIMARY:	Bill Clinton	49%
	Jerry Brown	27%
	Paul Tsongas	18%

The Presidential election is the only statewide political race in Michigan in 1992, aside from non-partisan races including State Board of Education posts and University Board of Regents.

The state will be a key battleground this year with 18 electoral votes.

The BUSH-QUAYLE ticket carried Michigan's 20 electoral votes in 1988 by a 54% to 46% margin. The three major automakers have experienced financial difficulties recently, laying off thousands of blue and white collar workers, many of whom reside in Macomb County, which was a prime target in 1988. Macomb County is important due to the high number of swing voters and conservative Democrats. Some fear these swing voters are disenfranchised and disgruntled due to the perceived gridlock both in Lansing and Washington. As in 1988, Macomb County is a key target for the Bush-Quayle campaign.

Ross Perot's supporters remain visible among Congressional and local elections, however the formal Perot organization, United We Stand, lacks leadership and structure.

On October 19, three Perot electors publicly endorsed the President upon his arrival in Lansing. Governor Engler is working to gain the support of the remaining fifteen Perot electors. Perot Supporters for Bush, headed by Terry Davis, is active, and Governor Engler, Michigan State GOP Chairman David Doyle, and several Bush-Quayle leaders in the state have conducted outreach efforts to win over former Perot activists into supporting the President.

CONGRESSIONAL UPDATE

U.S. HOUSE

Michigan will lose two Congressional Districts as a result of redistricting. A state court approved a compromise plan that should allow Republicans a competitive chance in this election. As a result of redistricting, several Congressmen have announced their retirement. Those retiring include Republicans Carl Pursell, William Broomfield, Bob Davis, while Democrats include Howard Wolpe, Bob Traxler and Dennis Hertel.

As a result, the Michigan delegation will lose 138 years of seniority, including the primary defeat of 26-year incumbent Guy Vander Jagt. Traxler chairs an Appropriations subcommittee while Pursell is ranking member of another; Broomfield and Davis are both ranking members of full committees; Hertel chairs a Merchant Marine subcommittee while Vander Jagt is Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee.

Michigan held its Congressional primary on August 4, 1992. Among the highlights are the following races:

1st Congressional District

Republican Bob Davis announced his retirement after news that he had bounced more than 800 checks. The Republican nominee for this seat will be former Republican Congressman Phil Ruppe.

Ruppe will face former Democratic State Representative Bert Stupak. Ruppe is the heavy favorite to win this seat.

2nd Congressional District

Republican National Congressional Committee Chairman Guy Vander Jagt was upset in his bid for re-election by political novice and local businessman, Peter Hoekstra. Hoekstra will face Democrat John Miltner.

5th Congressional District

This is the seat of retiring Democrat Bob Traxler. The Republican nominee is former State Representative Keith Muxlow. Muxlow will face Democrat State Senator James Barcia.

8th Congressional District

This race is expected to be one of the most closely watched in the Michigan delegation. Incumbent Democrat Bob Carr will face a tough challenge by local businessman Dick Chrysler. Chrysler is a seasoned candidate who served as the Republican nominee for Governor in 1986. Chrysler is well versed on local issues and has a significant war chest.

10th Congressional District

Incumbent Democrat David Bonior is expected to face a rather heavy challenge from veteran Republican State Senator Doug Carl.

11th Congressional District

This is the seat of retiring Republican Bill Broomfield. The Democrat candidate will be Walter Briggs. The Republican nominee is Insurance Executive and Republican activist Joe Knollenberg. Knollenberg is expected to win in this heavily Republican district.

12th Congressional District

Incumbent Democrat Sander Levin is expected to retain his seat against Republican challenger and Oakland County Commissioner John Pappageorge. Due to redistricting, this district now contains portions of Macomb County, foreign ground to Levin, who is said to hold a heavy war chest.

STATEWIDE OUTLOOK

A favorable redistricting plan for state legislative districts will give Republicans an opportunity to take control of the state house. Currently, Republicans hold a 20 to 18 majority in the state senate under the leadership of Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus.

Democrats hold a 60 to 50 margin in the state house, but the new plan is expected to make at least 20 seats very competitive.

Under the strong leadership of House Minority Leader Paul Hillegonds, Republicans filed candidates for all 110 State House seats, while the Democrats failed to file candidates in 13 seats.

There will be a number of ballot initiatives in November. Among those are property tax relief, which is being proposed by the Governor, and term limitations. While the Governor supports term limits, the state GOP has chosen to stay neutral on the issue.

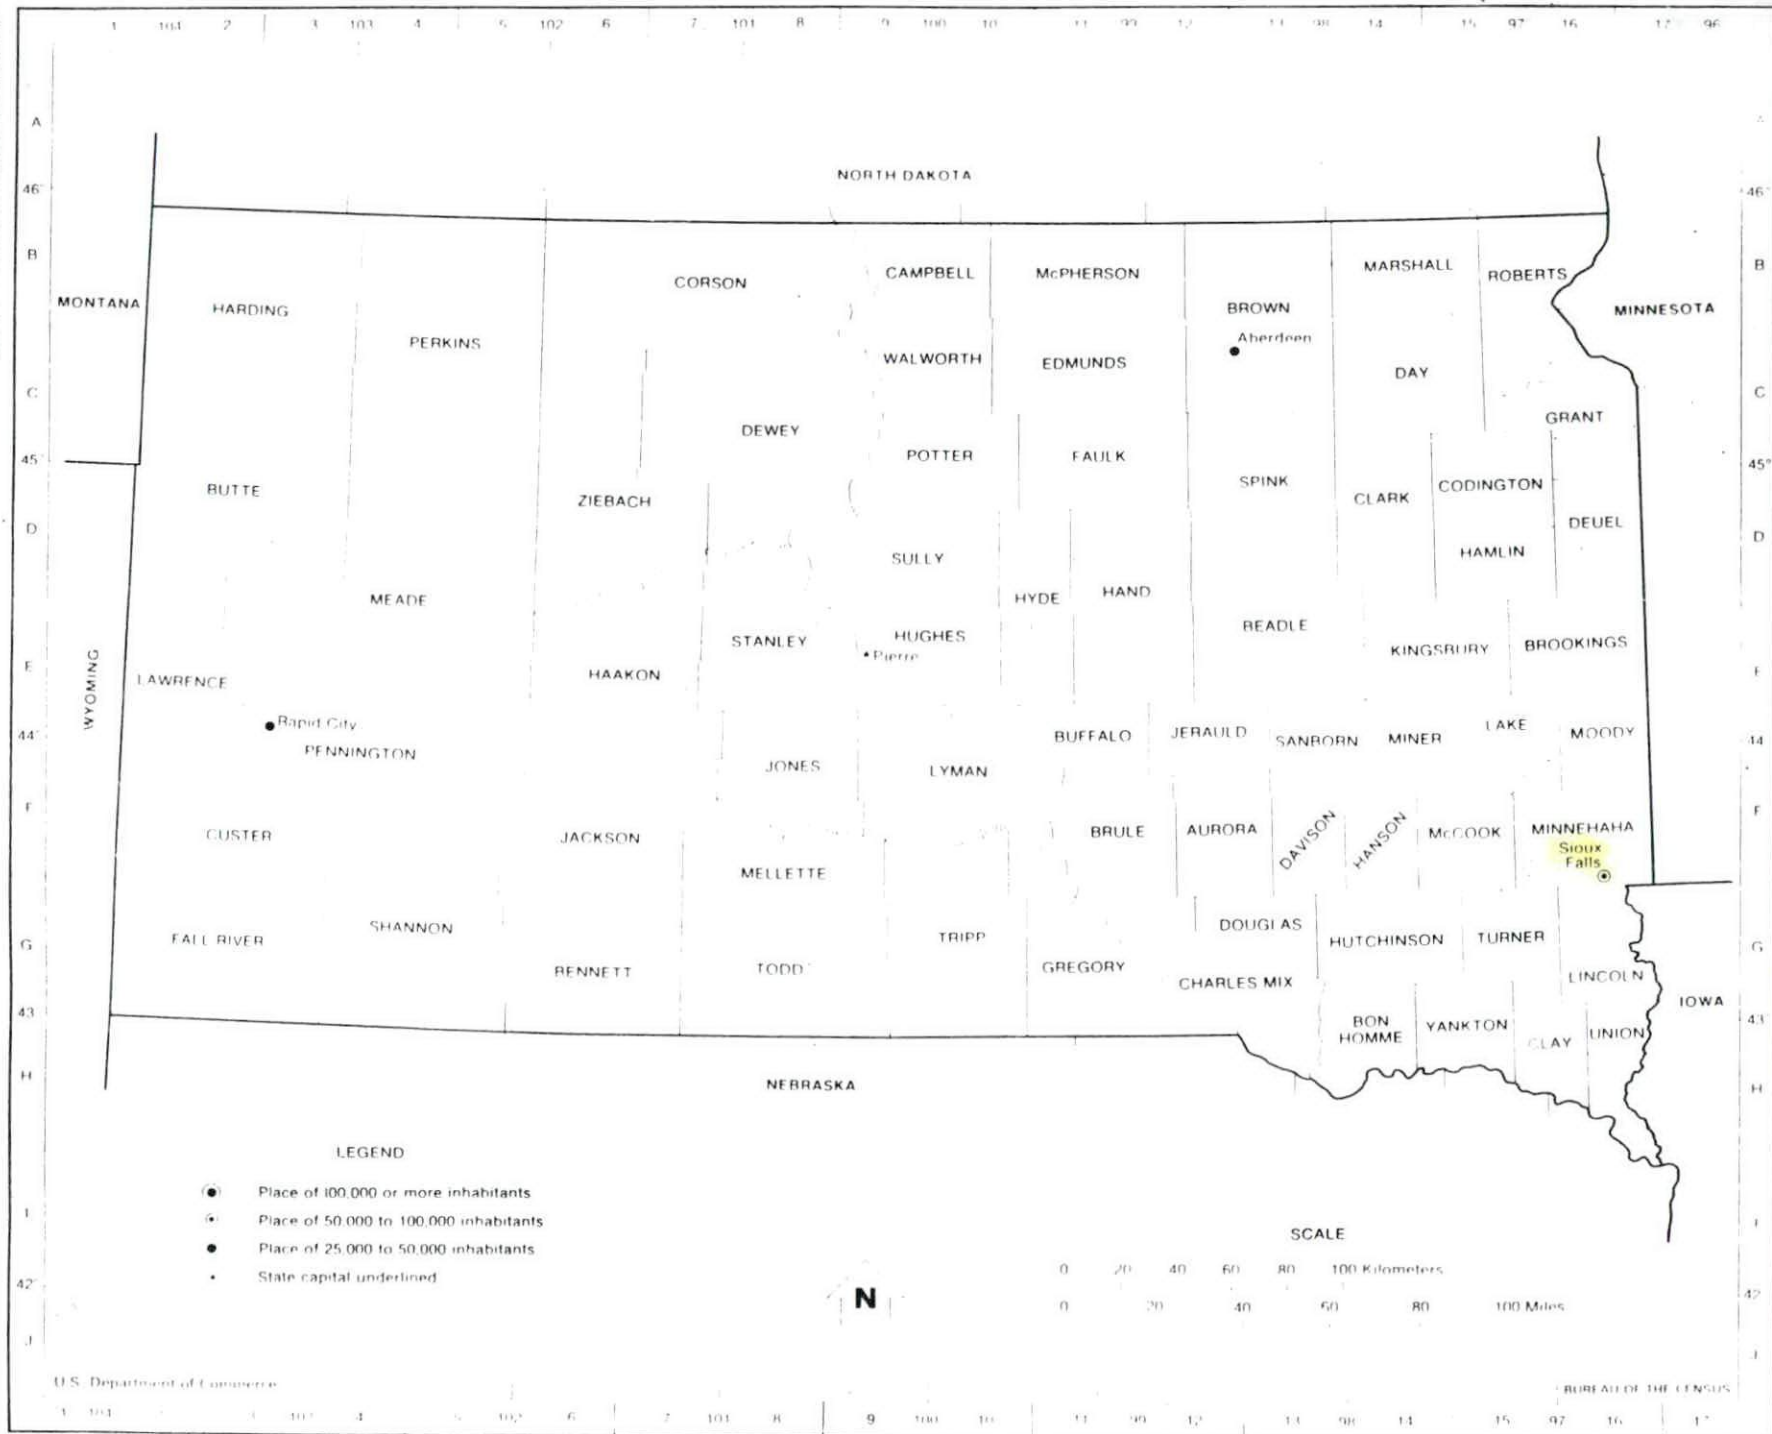

Additionally, there is a possibility of an auto insurance initiative on the ballot. The Democrats are fighting this proposal and AAA has asked the State Court of Appeals to send the referendum to the Legislature to be put on the ballot.

PARTY/CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

Governor John Engler is the Bush-Quayle '92 General Chairman in the state while Tim Leuliette serves as Finance Chairman. Max Fisher serves as an Honorary National Finance Chairman, with Heinz Prechter on the National Finance Committee. Michigan Republican Party Chairman Dave Doyle and the entire Congressional delegation are campaign Co-Chairmen.

The Michigan State Convention was held on May 30. National Committeeman Chuck Yob won re-election without opposition. However, incumbent National Committeewoman Ronna Romney was challenged and defeated by Betsy DeVos. DeVos edged out Andi Fischer on a second ballot vote.

MEMORANDUM TO THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: W. HENSON MOORE BKf-LHM

FROM: BOBBIE KILBERG BK
DONNA BARRON DB

SUBJECT: SOUTH DAKOTA (SIOUX FALLS)

I. Recent Correspondence

No correspondence has been received from the State of South Dakota.

II. Discussion

A. Unemployment Rates

South Dakota (non-seasonally adjusted)

August	1992	2.8 percent
July	1992	2.9 percent
August	1991	3.6 percent
July	1991	3.2 percent

Sioux Falls (non-seasonally adjusted)

August	1992	2.0 percent
August	1991	2.6 percent
July	1992	1.9 percent
July	1991	2.1 percent

B. The Economy

The Department of Commerce reported that South Dakota's personal income in April through June of this year was up 6.6 percent from the same period in 1991. It is the fifth highest growth in the nation. South Dakota's durable manufacturing payroll for the second quarter was up 14.1 percent from a year earlier. Its construction payrolls increased 11.1 percent, while the private services sector grew by 6.2 percent in the three-month period.

C. Sioux Falls is No. 1

In the September issue of Money magazine, Sioux Falls was chosen as the best place to live in the country in its sixth annual survey of the 300 largest metro areas.

D. Budget

South Dakota ended its fiscal year June 30 with a surplus $5.9 million.

E. Media Response to Debate Statement

An October 22 editorial in The Argus Leader, a Sioux Falls newspaper, criticized you for a debate comment about small states. The editorial said you are still welcome in South Dakota, but should leave your "impressions about small states behind."

F. Exports/NAFTA

The South Dakota Department of Agriculture is helping cattlemen sell purebred breeding stock in Mexico through a trade mission sponsored by the Mid-America International Agri Trade Council. Marketing livestock, food products, grain and other agricultural related items is a new area for the State's Agriculture Department. Helping Mexico improve its breeding stock to meet its growing demand for beef means more opportunities for South Dakota breeders to expand their markets and will also help the State's grain producers expand their markets into Mexico's cattle feeding industry.

South Dakota's exports to Mexico and Canada:

Mexico 1991
$6 million

Canada 1991
$105 million

G. Kevin Costner

Kevin Costner and his brother own and run the Midnight Star casino, a new restaurant and sports bar in Deadwood. They are also planning a convention center near Deadwood.

H. Gaming Industry

Last year, a coalition representing Deadwood's gaming industry asked the Legislature to allow gaming devices and to increase the state's $5 bet limit. The legislation died after Governor Mickelson threatened to veto it.

I. Ethanol

Ethanol production is a $21 million industry in South Dakota and your October 1 ethanol decision is very popular in the State.

J. Weather

An unseasonably cold summer was responsible for many of South Dakota crops not maturing this year. Four counties (Harding, Butte, Meade, and Hand) have already experienced serious wheat crop losses and have been granted disaster loan status by the Agriculture Department.

WASHINGTON

October 23, 1992

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: RONALD C. KAUFMAN CKB
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR
POLITICAL AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: SOUTH DAKOTA POLITICAL BRIEFING

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT VISIT

The President will visit Sioux Falls, South Dakota. South Dakota is a single member district represented by Democrat Tim Johnson. Republican John Timmer is the challenger.

POLITICAL HOT POINTS

A Kelo television poll conducted 10/5-10/9, with a margin of error of 4.5% shows the President closing the race:

Clinton	40%
Bush	37%
Perot	6%
Undecided	17%

A Sioux Falls Argus Leader poll taken 9/25-9/26 with a margin of error of 3.5%, excluding Ross Perot:

Clinton	45%
Bush	38%
Undecided	17%

Mrs. Quayle will be in South Dakota on Saturday, October 24. She is stopping in Rapid City and Aberdeen.

RNC Chairman Rich Bond, Clayton Yeutter, and Secretary Lynn Martin were in Sioux Falls on Wednesday, October 21 and held a press conference.

The President's last trip to South Dakota was September 2, when he announced the Export Enhancement Program at Jeff Kapperman's farm in Humboldt, South Dakota.

The Clinton/Gore ticket has targeted South Dakota as a potential state for them to win. The Presidential race in SD has been close in the last three elections. In 1988 Bush/Quayle won by 20,000 votes or 53% to 47%.

South Dakota Political Briefing
Page 2

Pheasant hunting season opened last Saturday.

Nearly 55% of the state's population live in rural areas and 16% of the state's labor force is made up of farm workers. South Dakota agriculture is dependent upon cattle, hogs, wheat, corn, and soybeans.

The President's recent announcement to grant a one-pound waiver of Reid Vapor Pressure requirements for gasoline blended with ethanol in northern U.S. cities will benefit South Dakota a great deal. South Dakota is a leader in the ethanol industry. It contributes about $21 million per year to the South Dakota economy. The politicians of both parties had been vocal in trying to get the EPA to change its rules on the use of ethanol. The proposed construction of an ethanol production plant in Jefferson, SD had been put on hold because of the EPA refusal to allow the use of ethanol-blended fuel in meeting new clean-air requirements.

An initiative to establish the state's first state income tax will be on the November ballot. The proposal calls for eliminating certain property taxes and replacing the state's sales tax with a state income tax. The agricultural community is supporting the state income tax initiative while Governor Mickelson opposes it.

The November ballot also includes a term limit initiative limiting the terms of U.S. Senator, U.S. Congressman, Attorney General, Secretary of State, State Auditor, and State Treasurer.

1992 POLITICAL OUTLOOK

South Dakota held its Presidential primary on February 25, 1992. Following are the results:

Republicans

Bush	69%
Uncommitted	30%

Democrats

Kerrey	40%
Harkin	25%
Clinton	19%
Tsongas	9%
Brown	3%

1992 CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK

1992 U.S. Senate Campaign

Republican Senator Larry Pressler was re-elected in 1990 and will be up for re-election in 1996.

Junior Democratic Senator Tom Daschle is up for re-election this year facing Republican school teacher Charlene Haar. In this "year of the woman", little has been said about the only Republican woman running for the Senate. Haar has never before run for political office although she has served many positions within the state party. Haar received the nomination after the GOP effort to draft former Governor Bill Janklow failed.

Daschle has a tremendous advantage in dollars over Haar and has a good reputation in the state. Mrs. Haar surged in the polls following the Republican Convention and two trips by the President and Vice President. Recently however, Mrs. Haar was misquoted in the Sioux Falls Angus Leader concerning an ad Senator Daschle was running concerning a Vietnam veteran. According to the paper, Mrs. Haar made a comment about the veteran being a long haired hippy. Mrs. Haar has stated this is a mis-statement and has also met with veterans to clarify her comments. In the most recent poll, Sioux Falls Angus Leader (9/25-26) with a margin of error of 3.5%:

	NOW	8/15
Daschle	56%	61%
Haar	33%	37%
Undecided	11%	2%

U.S. House Outlook

Incumbent Democrat Tim Johnson will face state Representative, John Timmer this year. Timmer has received attention for his pushing of term limits, the line item veto and the Balanced Budget Amendment, however his campaign has been fairly lackluster thus far. In the same Sioux Falls Angus Leader poll, Timmer has made no head way against Johnson.

	NOW	8/15
Johnson	65%	53%
Timmer	19%	24%
Undecided	16%	24%

This will be a difficult seat for Republicans to pick up.

South Dakota Political Briefing
Page 4

STATEWIDE OUTLOOK

GOVERNOR

Republican Governor George Mickelson was re-elected in 1990 and will be up for re-election in 1994.

STATE LEGISLATURE

The Republicans presently control both houses of the legislature but only have a slim margin in Senate. (House 45 R - 25 D, Senate 18 R - 17 D) There is a chance the Democrats will receive a majority in the Senate this year. All 70 House seats are up for re-election while 18 or half the Senate seats are.

PARTY / CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

Mary McClure, former Special Assistant to the President of Intergovernmental Affairs, is the Executive Director of Bush/Quayle in South Dakota.

As of the Presidential primary, Republicans out numbered the Democrats by 25,000 registered voters.

A letter to the editor drive is in effect across the state. The volunteer letter writers are targeting both daily and weekly newspapers.

Bush/Quayle literature and collateral material has been distributed to county coordinators across the state for distribution at local festivals and fairs.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: W. HENSON MOORE BK for HM
FROM: BOBBIE KILBERG BK
HELEN R. MOBLEY HRM
SUBJECT: MONTANA (BILLINGS)

I. Correspondence

Governor Stan Stephens (R) wrote (10-9-92) urging you to sign H.R. 429, the Water Bill.

Tom Olson, the Montana Director of the Department of Family services, wrote (10-1-92) urging you sign the tax and urban aid bill because of its section on child welfare and family preservation.

II. Discussion

A. Unemployment Figures

Statewide (Not seasonally adjusted)

August 1992	6.0 percent
July 1992	5.4 percent
August 1991	5.9 percent

Billings (Not seasonally adjusted)

July 1992	5.0 percent
June 1992	6.1 percent
July 1991	5.3 percent

B. Exports/NAFTA

Canada

1991	$144 million
1987	$ 91 million

* an increase of 60 percent

Mexico

1991	$ 10 million
1987	$ 1 million

 please note that in 1989 exports increased to $20 million and in 1990 decreased to $10 million.

MONTANA BRIEFING
PAGE TWO

Montana's leading exports are industrial machinery and computers, transportation equipment and fabricated metal products.

C. Education/AMERICA 2000

Peter Carparelli, the Billings Public Schools Superintendent, has presented a proposal for "Renaissance 2000" which includes the AMERICA 2000 education goals.

Rob Natelson, a law professor at the University of Montana, is forming an organization to study various education choice plans around the country. A meeting of interested citizens was held on October 19th. The group has announced their intention to press for a state constitutional amendment that would expand the number of opportunities for parents to select educational experiences for their children.

D. Crime and Drugs

Combined Federal anti-drug assistance to Montana:

FY 1992	$6.1 million
FY 1989	$3.6 million

* an increase of 66 percent

E. Health Care

Governor Stephens began his Health Care for Montanans initiative in the fall of 1990. The Governor's plan passed the legislature early last year. It provided a series of tax incentives to businesses and health care providers to improve both the quality and availability of health care, particularly in the rural areas of the State. Efforts are now underway to develop cost containment initiatives for Montana's health care providers.

F. Economy

The State Board of Examiners agreed to borrow $135.6 million from Citicorp at 3.4% interest in order to keep the State from running out of money this year. The bonds would be repaid by future tax revenues, although other state funds would be pledged to repay the bonds if necessary.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: RONALD C. KAUFMAN RC
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR
POLITICAL AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: MONTANA POLITICAL BRIEFING

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT VISIT

The President will travel to Billings, Montana. Montana lost one of its congressional districts leaving it with an one member at-large district. This has pitted two incumbents against each other, Republican Ron Marlenee and Democrat Pat Williams.

POLITICAL HOT POINTS

Governor Clinton was in Billings on October 21. He held a rally at Rocky Mountain College attended by 6,000 people. Secretary Martin, Rich Bond and Clayton Yeutter held a press conference earlier in the day to counter Governor Clinton.

In the latest poll, (PMR done for Lee Newspapers of Montana 10/12-10/15, with a margin of error of +/- 3.5%:

Clinton	41%
Bush	33%
Perot	18%
Undecided	8%

In another poll, (Great Falls, Tribune 10/1-10/7, +/- 5%):

Clinton	39%
Bush	28%
Perot	10%

The Montana Rifle & Pistol Association released a press release on October 20th, one day before Governor Clinton arrived in Billings, strongly disagreeing with Clinton's gun control position.

The big game and pheasant hunting season starts Sunday, October 25.

Montana Political Briefing

1992 POLITICAL OUTLOOK

Montana held its Presidential Primary on June 2, 1992. The President received all 20 delegates.

Primary Results

Bush	72%	Clinton	47%
Uncommitted	17%	Uncommitted	24%
Buchanan	12%	Brown	19%
		Tsongas	11%

The BUSH/QUAYLE ticket won the state of Montana in 1988 with 52% of the vote. Montana will have three electoral votes in 1992.

1992 CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK

1992 U.S. Senate

Democratic Senator Max Baucus was re-elected in 1990 over Republican Allen Kolstad (presently U.S. Border Commissioner) and will not be up for re-election until 1996.

Republican Senator Conrad Burns was re-elected in 1988 and will not be up for re-election until 1994.

U.S. House Outlook

Montana lost one of its Congressional seats after reapportionment, leaving Montana with the most populated district in the country. The two incumbent Members could not be more different ideologically. Pat Williams (D) represents the populous western part of the state while Ron Marlenee (R) represents the more rural and conservative eastern portion. Many are calling this race a referendum on, "What is the role of government." One of the most recent examples of the Congressmen's differing opinions is the vote on the Balanced Budget Amendment -- Williams voted no and Marlenee voted yes.

The latest poll, (PMR done for Lee Newspapers of Montana 10/12-10/15, +/- 3.5%), has Williams over Marlenee however the poll was taken mostly in the western part of Montana or Williams old district. The state GOP believe the poll is skewed.

	NOW	August	May
Marlenee	40%	46%	32%
Williams	50%	43%	44%

Montana Political Briefing
Page 3

Both Congressmen are check bouncers with Williams having 66, and Marlenee with 20. However, Marlenee has been very public about his overdrafts while Williams has said little. This race is a toss up.

STATEWIDE OUTLOOK

GOVERNOR

After suffering a heart attack, first term Republican Governor Stan Stephens is retiring. Republican Attorney General Marc Racicot (pronounced Roscoe) won the Republican primary and will face Bozeman state legislator Dorothy Bradley in the general election.

Bradley first ran for Congress in 1978 but lost in the primary against present Congressman Pat Williams. Bradley introduced Roe v. Wade language to the state assembly before the Roe v. Wade decision was handed down and has also been pushing for a 4% state sales tax in order to boost funding for education and human services by $120 million. Racicot also supports the sales tax, but he wants income and property taxes to be reduced in return.

The latest poll, (PMR done for Lee Newspapers of Montana 10/12-10/15, with a margin of error of +/- 3.5%:

	NOW	August
Bradley	42%	43%
Racicot	41%	34%
Undecided	17%

PARTY / CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY

The Bush/Quayle headquarters is located in Billings. The campaign has been utilizing the B/Q briefings and backgrounders by sending them to 25 newspapers and radio stations a few times a week. Their focus has been on weekly newspapers and radio talk-shows.

Bush/Quayle has been running a letter to the editor campaign and has reached a total of 80 volunteers on their way to a goal of 160 volunteers.

State GOP conducted a voter identification program by calling a total of 80,000 households. The results showed a dead heat between Bush and Clinton.

Victory '92 presently has $ 10,000 in the bank.

Montana Political Briefing

Montana has the largest per capita population of veterans in the country.

Bush/Quayle has been successful in convincing some of Perot's leadership to come back to Bush/Quayle.

11:30 A.M. MST/1:30 P.M. EDT NEWS UPDATE

CLINTON/COVER-UP (Winston-Salem/Reuter) -- Al Gore said the Bush Administration's handling of the "Iraq-gate" affair was "a bigger coverup than Watergate." Clinton, appearing on CBS "This Morning," noted the FBI, Justice Department and CIA are all investigating each other for a possible coverup. And Gore added, "It's a bigger coverup, if you look at that as part of arms for the hostage sale and Iraq-gate scandal, it's a bigger coverup than Watergate, and that undermines the confidence in the kind of leadership that the White House ought to be providing for justice in this country." Clinton, in response to a question, gave $1.20 for the price of gas, about right, but said hamburger was over $1 a pound, which is below the price nearly everywhere. A loaf of bread he gave as $1.

PEROT/DIRTY TRICKS (Dallas/AP) -- Ross Perot angrily defended his accounts of alleged Republican dirty tricks aimed at sabotaging his campaign but said anew he had no proof. Perot abruptly strode into a briefing his aides were conducting to deliver an angry statement defending his conduct. He refused repeated requests to identify the sources he said had informed him of the alleged GOP plot. Perot said he had become convinced there was a smear campaign when President Bush canceled plans to meet with him after Perot insisted the meeting include a discussion of "this plan to smear my daughter and disrupt her wedding." Perot said he now accepts Bush campaign denials of his allegations.

PEROT/CHARACTER (Dallas/AP) -- Ross Perot laughed off his suggestion at a weekend rally that he was more trustworthy than either President Bush or Bill Clinton. "It was done in kind of a light-hearted way, they took it in a light-hearted way," Perot said of his attempt at a New Jersey rally to raise the issue of who had the best character to be president. "Which one of the three candidates... would you want your daughter to marry?" Perot asked the crowd Sunday at a stock car racetrack near Flemington, N.J.

OHIO/POLL (Akron/Reuter) -- Ross Perot has cut into Bill Clinton's lead over President Bush in Ohio, but Clinton still holds a nine-point edge, according to a poll. The survey, done for the Akron Beacon Journal by the University of Akron, showed Clinton with 42%, Bush with 33% and Perot with 19%. A similar poll published Oct. 8 had Clinton at 48%, Bush 35% and Perot 8%.

CLINTON/ARKANSAS (Little Rock/AP) -- Bill Clinton has the title, the office, the mansion and the power, all the trappings befitting a governor. But he doesn't have the time, most of the time, to govern. "He's the absent governor of a small state," said Democratic state Sen. Stanley Russ. Records kept by Lt. Gov. Jim Guy Tucker's office show that Clinton has been out of Arkansas for all or part of 248 days this year, or about 84% of the time.

CLINTON/POLLSTER (Little Rock/Reuter) -- Clinton pollster Stan Greenberg said he thought Ross Perot's surge had peaked as the front-running Democrats waited impatiently for the clock to run out a week before Election Day. But Greenberg also said more than 20% of voters were backing Perot in Texas, Colorado and Wisconsin, according to the campaign's internal polls.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

It gives me great pleasure to sign into law S. 2322, the "Veterans Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 1992."

Our Nation provides compensation payments to service-disabled veterans and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) benefits to the survivors of those who die as a result of military service to our country. My Administration is committed to ensuring that these payments keep pace with changes in the cost of living.

S. 2322 provides a 3 percent increase in compensation and DIC benefits, which is the same cost-of-living adjustment and Social Security beneficiaries and veteran pensioners will receive. Nearly 2.2 million veterans and their dependents and about 313,000 surviving spouses and children will benefit from this increase, which is effective December 1, 1992.

As a Nation, we must always remember the special debt that we owe those veterans who unselfishly give of themselves to assure that the security and honor of this country are maintained. The freedom and liberty that we enjoy as citizens of this great Nation depend on the men and women of our Armed Forces. The measure that I sign today bears witness to our gratitude and continued commitment to those who serve our country. It tangibly demonstrates that the American people will not forget the valuable contribution that veterans have made to this Nation.

The Cuban Democracy Act of 1992

The President signed the Defense Authorization Bill today in Miami, giving force of law to the Cuban Democracy Act of 1992. This legislation represents another step forward toward the achievement of the Administration's policy of encouraging a peaceful transition to democracy and resumption of economic growth in Cuba. It does so through a combination of sanctions directed at the Castro government as well as support and incentives for the Cuban people.

The Act is a strong statement to Castro that the United States will maintain sanctions against his regime so long as it continues to reject democracy and deny its citizens basic human rights. The legislation strengthens our embargo against Cuba by imposing sanctions for certain types of trade relationships with Cuba.

- It bans trade by U.S. subsidiaries located in third countries, except for trade based upon contracts entered into before the enactment of the Act.
- It prohibits commercial vessels which have entered Cuban ports from loading or unloading any freight in the U.S. for 180 days, except pursuant to a license issued by the Treasury Department.
- It bans vessels carrying goods or passengers in which Cuba or a Cuban national has any interest from entering a United States port--a step that President Bush imposed last April.
- It gives the President authority to strictly limit remittances to Cuba by U.S. persons for the purpose of financing Cuban travel to the United States.

The Cuban Democracy Act also states that the President may apply sanctions against any country that provides assistance to Cuba, including terminating U.S. foreign assistance and debt forgiveness or reduction programs to that country. The President has long worked to ensure that other countries do not provide aid to Cuba.

The Cuban Democracy Act is not intended or designed to hurt the Cuban people. It provides relief for the Cuban people by allowing donations of food to nongovernmental organizations or individuals in Cuba, and the export (i.e. sale) of medicine and medical supplies when licensed by the Department of Commerce. The law also permits "efficient and adequate" telecommunications between the United States and Cuba. This will facilitate contact between family members divided over the years by Cuba's harsh emigration policies.

The bill allows for direct mail delivery to Cuba, although Castro has turned this down when the Administration has pursued it in the past. It also permits the United States to provide assistance, through appropriate nongovernmental organizations, to individuals and organizations promoting nonviolent democratic change in Cuba.

Underlying the President's policy and embodied in the Cuban Democracy Act are the incentives offered to encourage a transition to representative democracy in Cuba. The bill gives the President authority to end sanctions if the Cuban Government holds free and fair elections and shows respect for the Cuban people's civil liberties and human rights. When Cuba is free and democratic, the legislation encourages the President to help Cuba gain admission into international organizations and international financial institutions, to provide emergency relief, and to take steps to end the U.S. trade embargo. The President has long said that he stands ready and willing to help the Cuban people rebuild their economy and become a full and prosperous member of the world community when they regain their freedom and restore representative democracy.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today I am signing into law S. 1002, the "Child Support Recovery Act of 1992." I am particularly pleased that it includes two of my proposals to improve interstate child support enforcement.

When parents separate, children may suffer. Their suffering is, unfortunately, often made much worse through the deliberate failure of a parent to comply with legally imposed child support obligations. According to evidence presented to the House Committee on the Judiciary, over $5 billion in child support goes unpaid in the United States each and every year. This outrage -- which frequently forces innocent and blameless families onto State welfare rolls -- is something that we can, and indeed must, address.

S. 1002 attacks this serious problem in several ways. First, it creates a new Federal criminal offense for failure to make child support payments for more than 1 year or amounting to more than $5,000 with respect to a child who resides in another State. This new Federal offense, which I proposed in both my Project KIDS initiative and my Violent Crime Control Act of 1992, carries a potential prison term of up to 2 years for repeat offenders.

Second, the bill includes the proposal in my Violent Crime Control Act of 1992 to give Federal judges discretion to require full payment of child support obligations as a condition of probation.

Finally, the bill authorizes the Department of Justice to make grants to States to develop, implement, and enforce criminal child support legislation and to coordinate interstate enforcement activities. Up to $10 million could be devoted to these grants for each of fiscal years 1994, 1995, and 1996.

The welfare of our families and our children is a deep and abiding concern of all Americans. This legislation is a positive and significant step in holding irresponsible, deadbeat parents accountable to those who depend on them financially. I congratulate the sponsors and supporters of this important legislation, especially Congressman Henry Hyde, on their leadership in bringing it to a successful conclusion.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today I am signing into law H.R. 4844, the "Elwha River Ecosystem and Fisheries Restoration Act." This Act authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to prepare a detailed report on alternatives for restoring the important Elwha River ecosystem and fisheries in the State of Washington. The ecosystem includes resources inside one of our Nation's premier assets, the Olympic National Park.

I wish to express, however, two concerns that I have with the Act. First, the Secretary of the Interior is given only 15 months to prepare the required report. This report must include a study on the acquisition of the existing Elwha River dams, plans for full restoration of the Elwha River ecosystem, and alternatives to removal of the dams. Considering the amount and the complexity of the information required to be included in the report, this timeframe is very unrealistic.

Second, the Secretary of the Interior is required in the report to identify nonfederal parties, besides Indian tribes, that would directly benefit from restoration of the Elwha River ecosystem, if the Secretary believes that these parties should assume some portion of the costs of restoration. However, the Act does not provide express authority to require restoration cost sharing among the benefitted parties. I am instructing the Secretary of the Interior to prepare alternatives for Elwha River restoration, including potential dam removal, that assume nonfederal cost sharing.

I am also instructing the Department of the Interior to consult with the Department of Energy in the preparation of the report on alternatives to dam removal.

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

Today I am pleased to sign into law H.R. 4542, the "Anti Car Theft Act of 1992." This legislation is absolutely critical if we are to strike back against auto thieves and carjackers. These criminals, who show no respect for the lives or property of law-abiding Americans, must be punished in the strongest possible manner.

This bill makes armed carjacking a Federal offense. The recent wave of these carjackings has made the need for action clear.

The bill also seeks to sap the profit motive for auto theft. Last year in the United States, auto thieves stole cars valued at $8 billion. H.R. 4542 creates a second Federal crime: operating or maintaining a "chop shop" to alter stolen cars for resale or reduce them to parts that can be resold.

It is my sincere hope that this legislation will reduce the level of auto thefts and carjackings. Thugs and criminals will now have to think twice about stealing a car. If not, they will pay a high price for their actions.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you, Chief Vaughn, and all of you -- thank you very much. (Applause.) Thank you so much. I'm just delighted to be here. Thank you, Chief Vaughn, the president, for that kind introduction. And may I salute Steve Harris, who I understand is the incoming leader of this most distinguished group.

I don't know where you get that enthusiasm. I fell asleep in the ninth inning and I'm sure some of you stayed up until the 11th. (Laughter.) But nevertheless, may I salute the distinguished members of the board. And a special welcome to the Chiefs of Police from around the world.

You'll have to excuse me if I'm not talking today about the importance of international cooperation. But don't think I've lost it. I understand. And I hear it from the domestic chiefs, from the local chiefs, how important cooperation is with the international component represented here today. Whether it's in antinarcotics, or whether it's in antiterrorism, we are very, very grateful to those law enforcement officers from overseas who are here today, and to your colleagues who may not have made it to this wonderful convention.

I would simply say to you that you're choosing, or you have chosen a very interesting time to visit our great country -- the weather's turning colder, and if you turn on the TV you can't help but notice that there's an election going on in just -- and Barbara and I were talking about this a few minutes ago -- just nine days. In fact, some of the U.S. police chiefs here may ask if they can go back with you to your country until all this hectic yelling and shouting is over with.

But we are getting down to the home stretch, and so let me talk this morning about government's first and foremost domestic responsibility -- function, and that is to protect every citizen at home and on the street.

Let me start with a story that most of the domestic chiefs have heard about, probably the kind of story you hear about every day, but one that just sickened Barbara and me when we saw it on the news I believe it was about a month ago.

In broad daylight in a neighborhood near Washington D.C., a woman was forced from her car at a stop sign by two men, who then drove off. But the woman got tangled in her seatbelt outside the car. Or maybe she hung on. What mother wouldn't? You see, her baby was locked inside.

And that woman was dragged almost two miles before the thieves crushed her to death against a fence. And then they tossed her little baby out by the roadside, like some kind of a piece of trash.

And I know that on this special Sunday in this special audience I am preaching to the choir, but this sort of thing must provoke outrage. People who act like animals have no place in decent society and they should go to jail, and stay in jail. And I strongly support you and your effort to do just that. (Applause.)

I think when the history of this century is written, America -- it will see -- it will be clearly seen that America got too soft on crime in the 60's, and for twenty years you and your brothers and sisters in law enforcement paid for it. But we fought back, and for the first time in decades -- the overall crime index is actually down.

And with your help, your leadership, we've slowed the rate of violent crime the past 12 years. We are turning the tide on drugs. I take heart from the fact that there's 60 percent use of cocaine by teenagers. But as you can tell by comparing our crime statistics with other nations, we still have a way to go, a long way to go. And that's what I really want to talk to you about today.

There are so many issues in this presidential campaign where the voters have a clear choice. And crime is one of the most important. And I do have big differences with Governor Clinton on crime and law enforcement. And I would only ask a simple, objective look at the record. Records reveal it. And here are some facts. Under Governor Clinton, Arkansas' violent crime rate went up about 60 percent in the 80's -- more than twice the national average. They had the nation's single-biggest increase in serious crime during the decade.

In '83, there were about 300 violent crimes for every 100,000 people in Arkansas. Last year, there were almost 600 violent crimes. It has doubled on the Governor's watch. The average inmate there served less than one-fifth of his sentence last year. But the federal inmate, as I'm sure most know here, an inmate for which I had responsibility -- he served 85 percent of his time.

You can't obviously -- and I don't mean to leave that impression -- blame the dedicated law enforcement officers from that state. Because you've got to look behind that at the statistics. Arkansas ranks near the bottom for every important per-capita crime dollar that it spends -- 46th -- for police officers: 49th. Spending on judicial and legal systems, Arkansas ranks 50th. Dead last in the country.

And so, no wonder crime goes ballistic there during the 80's. You're supposed to handcuff criminals -- not tie the hands of the police.

It's obvious -- (applause) -- and I firmly believe, and I'll get to the positive aspects of this in a minute -- that that crime record, that Clinton record is wrong for Arkansas, and, clearly, it would be wrong for America. And if you don't believe me, ask the Fraternal Order of Police in Little Rock. They know the Clinton record better than anyone, and they're joining hands with their national organization -- to endorse me for President of the United States. (Applause.)

And I think they did take the time to look at the overall record -- the good news that you don't hear out there on the network news every night. And let me just tick off a few of our priorities.

Start with money. Since I took office, we've increased the crime budget by almost 50 percent. We've hired more than 1,200 new federal prosecutors since 1989, assigned 300 FBI agents to help you get the gang members off the streets -- and proposed a program to double federal spending for prison

Since 1989, we've taken more than $400 million from criminals and used it to help the victims of crime. And we've also targeted the violent repeat offender, putting over 3,000 of those most dangerous fugitives in America behind bars in just a couple of months last spring.

Finally, we're helping to take back 20 worst inner-city neighborhoods. And, again, I salute the police chiefs and the law enforcement officers for this. Take it back with our acclaimed "Weed and Seed" program. Weed out the criminals and the drugs, and then seed the neighborhood with education and training. And, hopefully, if we can ever get enterprise zones enacted into law with jobs in the private sector.

Now, listen to Bernie Edwards, a 70-year-old resident of a tough neighborhood in Fort Worth, Texas -- Tarrant County. He saw Weed and Seed help to keep the young kids in his neighborhood off drugs and out of gangs. And he says, "For the first time in years I can sit on my porch. It sure feels good." There's example like example all across this country. And you know them far better than I do.

We've fought for these initiatives, though. Not just tough talk -- and we're taking action. But our action would be stronger if it were part of a national crime strategy supported by Congress.

That's why, 1,228 days ago, on June 15, 1989 -- the same day Mikhail Gorbachev first hinted that the Berlin Wall might someday come down -- I sent a comprehensive crime bill to Capitol Hill up to the Congress. And I extended my hand in partnership to Congress, and I asked for help fighting crime on a national level.

Since I first sent that bill to the Hill in 1989, 60,000 Americans have been murdered. There have been 260,000 rapes, 1.6 million robberies and 2.6 million assaults. And 69,000 of those violent crimes took place, regrettably, right here in Detroit.

Think about it. Enough Americans to fill Detroit's Cobo Hall four times over were brutalized by assault, rape or murder while that bill languished on Capitol Hill. No wonder Americans stare at every news every night, shake their heads and ask, why doesn't somebody do something about this incredible mess? People are dying in the streets.

Well, as frustrating as this crime bill has been for me, it is still my job as President to get results. And so we've fought and won a couple of big battles the past few weeks. And today I'm proud to announce that right after this speech, I'm going to sit down here at Cobo Hall and sign two of the crime initiatives that I've fought for -- two tough new federal laws.

The first one severely punishes carjackers. And we told -- (applause) -- and we told the Congress that I wanted to make armed carjacking a federal offense with harsh penalties. And thugs who take cars at gunpoint should sit in a cell so long that when they get out they're going to be too darn old to drive. (Applause.)

And the second one deals with parents -- mostly fathers -- who refuse to make child-support payments -- they're called "deadbeat dads". And right now, a single mother in Detroit can struggle to keep the kids fed on a small salary while their father's on a lark in Chicago. And he could be way behind in child support, but no one can touch him across state lines. Well, that's a disgrace, and now the long arm of the law can reach over that border, and tell that dad to pay up, or go up the river.

Why did these two ideas become law? Because national attention created national outrage that brought pressure on Congress to act. It's a formula I want to use again and again in the next four years.

You see, there are at least six other initiatives that Congress didn't pass -- that I care a great deal about and that I think would benefit your work. So next year, with a new Congress -- and there's going to be a new one. You might ask why and I would say to some of the foreign officials here you have been spared the sight of a Congress controlled by one group for 38 years that can't even run a two-bit bank or a two-bit post office. And so there's going to be a lot of new members. (Applause.) And those members, regardless of what party, are going to do what the people want. They'll be listening to the same voters I do. And so, then we're going to go after them and we're going to be given a new Congress. And with 150 new members next session -- maybe up to that many in the House -- we're going to pass those six items into law, too.

And here they are: Number one, I want to strengthen the laws dealing with sexual and domestic violence. It's bad enough -- (applause) -- it's bad enough when a woman is brutally attacked in the first place. Then, she takes the stand for testimony and gets attacked by some clever lawyers. And I say that's two attacks too many. And so we're going to go after tightening up these laws. (Applause.)

Two, I want repeat armed offenders behind bars until trial. Today, even a repeat rapist can get arrested and be out on bond hours later. I say, detain him until the trial, let the prosecution use past behavior against him. (Applause.) Right now, certain little details often can't even be mentioned in court. Like the fact that everyone within a country mile knows the guy's done this before. And that's wrong. Let him face what he's done and pay for it.

We've got to -- on the second major point here, we've got to crush gang violence. I want the gangs to be treated like the criminal enterprises that they are, so we can go after the leaders with federal medicine that they deserve. And I want to toughen penalties for using juveniles in crimes. (Applause.) I've talked to many chiefs about this, and they tell me that gangs send out these under-age kids -- send them out to do the dirty work of the leaders, and because they're minors who will get off easy if they're caught. That's disgraceful.

I remember going out to South Central in L.A. and hearing about two that were apprehended by the law enforcement community. I think they were 13 or 14. And they had been assigned targets to fire bomb during the outbreaks -- two little kids. It's a heartbreak. It's disgraceful. We've got to go after the big guys, make the big boys pay -- those that would use little kids in this way. (Applause.)

And, three: Protection for the elderly. It's absurd that the folks who have contributed to society all their lives have to live in terror just because some young punks see them as an easy target.

And I want to beef up the laws, so instead of stalking the streets -- (applause) -- and mugging grandmothers, they're down at the precinct, mugging for the police camera. (Laughter and applause.) Four -- and I've heard from many of you on this one, and we promise you we're going to keep on trying -- habeas corpus reform. (Applause.) Habeas corpus? Yes, habeas corpus should protect the innocent. But it's turned into a perversion of the law.

Some petitions can drag on for more than a decade, more than 10 years. And criminal lawyers are abusing the law to postpone justice, and it's time we put a stop to it. Let them have one habeas petition and be done with it. (Applause.)

Five -- and I know this one's controversial, but I'll tell you exactly how strongly I feel about it -- and I'm talking about a federal death penalty. I think certain acts of violence deserve the ultimate penalty. The sentence should be carried out fairly, but swiftly. Assassinations, murder for hire, terrorism, random drive-by shootings, gang massacres, and certainly and especially the killing of a police officer. All must pay with the death sentence. (Applause.)

And there is another collateral point here, and that has to do with justices. And I notice that Governor Clinton is here today with Mario Cuomo. But Governor Clinton has mentioned Cuomo for the Supreme Court. And it is my conviction to get this kind of tough crime legislation through, that we must not go back to appointing judges to the Court who oppose tough anticrime measures, who oppose the death penalty for these most heinous of crimes. (Applause.)

And the sixth one is firearms. This one's short and sweet. I want much tougher penalties for the criminal use of firearms.

So there's a lot of work to be done. But America's worth it. For every hardened criminal you face down, there are countless thousands of good and decent Americans out there with strong values and big hearts. And you don't hear much from them. But I happen to know on good authority that they certainly appreciate you, and I know because so many people tell me this.

So, in conclusion, let me just pass it on to you: America stands behind you. And you should never understand some of these crazy liberal appeals as an attack on our law enforcement officers. And I am with you 100 percent, bringing to bear the full weight of the federal government. And on behalf of all those unheard but grateful Americans, I really do thank you. I thank your families.

I know sometimes it must be a real strain when your chief or your officer goes out there and you're not going to know how he's going to be treated by these thug elements out on the street. So we can identify with that. And I really came here to say thank you to every single one of you for putting your lives on the line for us every single day.

Now you pass it on -- that support -- and go back and tell your brave men and women that we appreciate you and we need you all. You've done so much already. But let's face it, there is much more to be done. And to do it, I'd be remiss if I saw this many voters out here if I didn't say to you I need your support and I ask for your vote on November 3rd -- (applause) -- because I want to be in Washington for four more years.

Thank you. And may God bless our great country on this beautiful fall day. (Applause.) May God bless the United States. Thank you very much. (Applause.)

BAKER WATCHED<

<
A very senior White House official wearing Jim Baker's shoes climbed off Marine One and stepped aboard Air Force One this morning. He was accompanied by a senior White House official wearing Margaret Tutwiler's bows. Neither was heard to speak either on the record or on backward, and it was feared that carryover State Department ground rules might forbid their identification. But a chief White House spokesman travelling aboard President Bush's plane later identified the two as Baker and Tutwiler, and said they would be travelling with Bush from now until Election Day.<

Marlin said the two had left the White House for the road because ``It's pretty much all scheduled through the end.'' An alert Terry Hunt quickly asked what that schedule might be, but was told: ``There's a time and a place for everything, and this is not your time.'' Marlin said he knew nothing of the New York Times report about internal Administration disputes about the pre-war message to Iraq. He also said he did not know the details of the tale Ross Perot is said to tell on ``60 Minutes'' tonight about his decision to leave the race. Apprised of Perot's claim, however, he said: ``My one question for Americans: Do you believe it?''<

Bush conducted three- to four-minute interviews on board Air Force One with a Detroit television station, a Detroit radio station and ESPN (really!). Leslie Goodman said he told the Detroit interviewers that he believed the race was tightening in the state. She said the sports-cable interview was for an hourlong broadcast on sporting presidents. It was unclear whether Bush wore his beloved Atlanta Braves jacket during the session, but there were signs that his allegiance had been fickle. Marlin said Bush tried unsuccessfully during the flight to telephone Cito Gaston to invite his Blue Jays to the White House; Bush will try again later. ``They won,'' Fitzwater said of the Canadian team Bush openly rooted against. ``You invite the winners to the White House.''<

Marlin and Mary Matalin both appeared upbeat and spoke optimistically about the tightening of the race. ``We're running smooth; we're picking up ground,'' Marlin proclaimed on the tarmac in Detroit. But a moment later Matalin sidled up to him: ``Marlin,'' she asked, ``do you have any Roloids?'' It was the breakfast, Mary insisted.<

<
Motorcades uneventful, although on arrival Bush did meet with a sea of signs, mostly positive, but including one that read: ``George: The Fat Lady is Singing. Hear the Music?''<

Souix Falls to Billings
(Billings, Montana)

October 25, 1992

At the Souix Falls event Baker was asked about the Washington Post story today saying he had pushed Agricultural credits for Iraq before the war. He said that American policy was carried out under Political Directive 26 which was signed by Bush. He said: "the objective was to try to include Iraq in the Family of Nations. That's what we did. You can argue in hind sight... but that was the policy."

Margaret Tutwiler said that Perot had talked to Baker in general terms about "Republican Dirty Tricks" during one of two meetings that they had after Perot dropped out of the race in July. "There was no evidence presented. It was a conclusive type of statement. Baker thought it was far fetched," she said. Asked what she meant by a conclusive statement she said that Perot simply had stated his suspicions. "Mr. Perot did not ask Secretary Baker to do anything," she said.

In Billings, Marlin said that Bush called Sito Gaston of the Blue Jays from Air Force One. He quoted Bush as saying that "America is proud of you." Marlin said Bush watched the last game of the series last night and congratulated the Blue Jays on their entire season." He said the President invited the team to the White House. When asked if Bush had mentioned his fondness for the Braves to Gaston, Marlin just laughed and did the tomahawk chop.

Marlin also commented further on Perot's allegations: "there's nothing to it. I don't want to attack Perot but I don't know where he gets it from. I mean fantastic stories about his daughter and disrupting her wedding and the CIA. It's all loony.

Baker watched continues. This being the first day of the big game hunting season, one of the greeters in Billings presented the President with a hunting riffle at the airport. The President obligingly took it out of the case for the cameras. Baker took one look at this photo op, looked queasy, turned his back and covered his face to get out of the picture.

POOL REPORT #3

(SIOUX CITY, SOUTH DAKOTA)

October 25, 1992

Baker and Tutwiler showed up in the pool area and Baker was asked by members of the pool how things were going. Baker responded by uttering quotes as follows:

"In 80, when I was here with Reagan, we were down at this point. I think it is winnable."

And: "It is absolutely doable and we're going to win it."

There ensued a discussion between Baker and other members of the pool about whether this was all on the record, or on background, but it was being recorded by numerous cameras and tape recorders and by members of the pool who were uninvolved in the attribution discussion.

Marlin Cornered --

Before leaving Detroit, Fitzwater was cornered by Press asking questions about:

(1) Perot dirty tricks charges, and (2) New Yorker magazine piece on alleged Bush participation in SECRET CIA trip to Middle East in 1986 to encourage ~~Sadam Hussium~~ ^{SADDAM HUSSAN} to step up attacks on Iran so that Iran would buy more American defensive weapons.

According the article, CIA director, William Casey told Reagan administration pressure was needed to get Iran to bargain on stalled talks relating to Arms For Hostage release.

Fitzwater said of the New Yorker charges, quote: "baloney." The report is totally false. Those conversations simply didn't happen. ^{Vice} ~~President Bush did not take any message back to me about this.~~ unquote.

He added: "quote: A lot of people are putting ^{phony} ~~phony~~ stories together in the final days of the campaign to embarrass the President. This is all political." unquote Responding to the Perot charges of Republican dirty tricks to get him out the the race last July, Fitzwater said: quote, "My answer to this is the same, It didn't happen, it's just crazy." Perot has been told directly ^{and} personally it didn't happen. ^{prosperous} ~~prosperous~~ The stuff about his daughter is just crazy. It's ^{prosperous} ~~prosperous~~, " Unquote.

Fitzwater also said, quote" You're going to see a lot of desperation moves in the last days of the campaign. The race is getting tight and people are getting scared. These are desperation tactics.: unquote

The flight to South Dakota was uneventful. Nobody important was sighted.

POOL REPORT #5

(Billings, Montana)

October 25, 1992

No news, but some color.

While President Bush was holding the stage at the "Ask George Bush" campaign rally, Mary Matalin was just off to the right, snapping a picture of Secret Service agent Don Coyer posing with Floyd Real Bird, 68, a Crow medicine man in full bonnet and regalia.

When the President left the event, he paused briefly to shake hands with Real Bird and receive a gift from the Native American shaman--a terra cotta Crow peace pipe that Real Bird described to the pool as a "friendly" pipe, presumably in contrast to an unfriendly peace pipe.

During the event, a young man holding a protest sign reading "Let April Speak," referring to April Glaspie, came in for some partisan treatment from Bush fans, who stood in front of him to block the view, then tried to grab or tear the sign. No word on whether the sign survived.

Short motorcade to the Holiday Inn uneventful.

Mr. President;

1992 is quickly closing for all of us in the political process. I know it can't end quickly enough for you as you are locked in a tough battle for the minds and hearts of our Countryman. As this struggle gets down to the last days, Phyllis and I want you and Mrs. Bush to know you are in our thoughts and prayers everyday.

Not many folks in America will ever know or understand the hardships, sacrifices and loneliness of National Leadership. Not even your own personal staff and those close to you. Although I am not close to you, we can see it in your face, see it in your eyes and hear it in your voice and can't feel what is in your heart.

GEORGE BUSH

WASHINGTON

Mr. Jonathan Bush, Jr.
530 East 86 Street
New York, New York 10028

JONATHAN BUSH, JR.

October 15, 1992

Dear Uncle George,

After a life-time of obeying the rules, this is one time I just can't keep myself from offering a suggestion. I know you're long on advice, but I keep seeing the same gaping hole in your armour and it seems that neither Mary Matalin in her patronizing op ed pieces nor Charlie Black in his spitting matches with James "Ragin' Cajun" Carville (which he looses) have caught it. You are letting this campaign be argued on Clinton's turf!

Bill Clinton is a want-to-be social engineer, running for President of a country that is extremely resistant to behavior modification from above. Even though historical evidence of this is plentiful (see the mess that the "War On Poverty" became despite the unprecedented cooperation of the "Fabulous" 89th Congress and the deathbed mandate that Johnson had at his disposal), Clinton is using his sex appeal to smooth over the fact that idyllic master plans rarely get implemented, don't work when they do get implemented, and aren't remotely related to the requirements of Presidential leadership.

Character is related to Presidential leadership, and since the press wanted to let Clinton's lie, I guess you had to raise it. You did; its out there; nuf said. As for your character, don't side-step Iran Contra. Communicate your tremendous frustration that that after countless depositions, and corroborations of your story, there seems to be no litmus test that will lay all doubt to rest. At least you addressed the doubts that were had about you in a straightforward manner.

Also related to Presidential leadership, is a cogent philosophy of government that will serve as what you call a "compass" when issues get complex. Yours is intact. You haven't used "plans" because the U.S. government can not and should not operate that way. There are other systems of government that efficiently seek to legislate people's behavior, but ours is not one of them. Bill Clinton has no such "compass." He agrees with you on choice in schools but throws a caviat in to make the idea sound like his own. At the same time, however, he supports policy initiatives that come from a text-book social engineering philosophy of government...in a nation that runs on compromise. Stick it to him on this! It's not just that "change for change's sake is not enough," it's also that a "grand plan" -- no matter who thinks it sounds like a nice idea -- is not change, its a heap of papers that paint a nice picture but can't be implemented in their original form. The fact that he has no underlying philosophy -- no compass -- means that he's not offering real change at all. If the plan does go through, we're in for a whole new generation of disjoint, inefficient regulations and irremovable budget items. If it doesn't, we're left with a sexy President utterly lacking a moral and philosophical compass.

By talking about your "Plan for American Renewal," you concede that "plans" are relavant to the

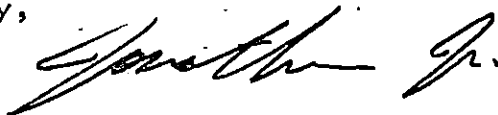

JONATHAN BUSH, JR.

Presidency. By extension, this infers that the broad based philosophy which you have is less relevant. This is too much of the battle to concede to him. When he throws those vetos at you like he did in tonight's debate, use them to illustrate what you mean by a philosophical compass. Even though it was clear how important those bills were to you and to America, Foley and his colleagues -- mention them by name -- slipped in taxes and alteration that would have been dammaging. It takes a lot of philosophical perspective to refrain from selling your clients a popular bucket of ripe fruit just because theres a poisonous worm in one or two at the bottom. This is the compass in action and the fact that Clinton ridicules you for these vetoes is evidence that he doesn't have one. Don't just side-step those veto jabs, turn them around and stick them in his pudgy, self-satisfied, ignoble face.

Finally, as a twenty-three year old whose weekly travel is limited to a trip to Super Stop & Shop, I'm no one to talk, but as your biggest fan I can't not tell you this: Light a torch under it! Think back to that guy with the black rimmed glasses who couldn't help but bang the podium during his speeches. This man knew he was right and wouldn't accept for a moment that people could not be convinced of this. You and your faithful old World War II vintage compass are RIGHT. I don't agree with every position you take, but I go to bed every night -- and I literally mean every night -- thinking of that compass of yours... and Dad's as well. No matter what challenges arise, I basically know the philosophy behind the descisions, and because I elected that philosophy, I genuinely feel represented. I've even developed a compass of my own now, and I use every single challenge I face -- no matter how small -- to tune it just a little more. It'll never be perfect, but some day, with luck, I'll trust it enough to lead the way for others. You've given so much to me over the years that the last in the world I deserve is a favor from you but I'm asking anyway. Keep faith in your philosophy of government and don't loose one minute in the fight to get it heard. If we American people don't want it, then we'll elect that horny social engineer instead and we kids will be able to hang around with you and Aunt Bar without feeling like we're wasting the American people's time. But whatever you do, don't let us vote that way without knowing what what we're getting first.

Anybody can do anything for two weeks... take it to Bill Clinton, so I know I can take it to the next little ego-maniac that thinks he's JFK.

Devotedly,

P.S. Don't write me back. Use that time to stick it to Bill.

JONATHAN BUSH, JR.

Presidency. By extension, this infers that the broad based philosophy which you have is less relevant. This is too much of the battle to concede to him. When he throws those vetos at you like he did in tonight's debate, use them to illustrate what you mean by a philosophical compass. Even though it was clear how important those bills were to you and to America, Foley and his colleagues -- mention them by name -- slipped in taxes and alteration that would have been dammaging. It takes a lot of philosophical perspective to refrain from selling your clients a popular bucket of ripe fruit just because theres a poisonous worm in one or two at the bottom. This is the compass in action and the fact that Clinton ridicules you for these vetoes is evidence that he doesn't have one. Don't just side-step those veto jabs, turn them around and stick them in his pudgy, self-satisfied, ignoble face.

Finally, as a twenty-three year old whose weekly travel is limited to a trip to Super Stop & Shop, I'm no one to talk, but as your biggest fan I can't not tell you this: Light a torch under it! Think back to that guy with the black rimmed glasses who couldn't help but bang the podium during his speeches. This man knew he was right and wouldn't accept for a moment that people could not be convinced of this. You and your faithful old World War II vintage compass are RIGHT. I don't agree with every position you take, but I go to bed every night -- and I literally mean every night -- thinking of that compass of yours... and Dad's as well. No matter what challenges arise, I basically know the philosophy behind the descisions, and because I elected that philosophy, I genuinely feel represented. I've even developed a compass of my own now, and I use every single challenge I face -- no matter how small -- to tune it just a little more. It'll never be perfect, but some day, with luck, I'll trust it enough to lead the way for others. You've given so much to me over the years that the last in the world I deserve is a favor from you but I'm asking anyway. Keep faith in your philosophy of government and don't loose one minute in the fight to get it heard. If we American people don't want it, then we'll elect that horny social engineer instead and we kids will be able to hang around with you and Aunt Bar without feeling like we're wasting the American people's time. But whatever you do, don't let us vote that way without knowing what what we're getting first.

Anybody can do anything for two weeks... take it to Bill Clinton, so I know I can take it to the next little ego-maniac that thinks he's JFK.

Devotedly,

P.S. Don't write me back. Use that time to stick it to Bill.

Dear Ed,

George passed along to me your wonderful letter of October 20, and I appreciate the suggestions.

You are right when you say that my export message should be tied to jobs for Americans and I am trying to do just that. I am sure you know I agree with you on the question of those ridiculous law suits and the cost they impose on society, with special emphasis on health care costs.

I am encouraged by today's national polls and remain confident that I am going to win despite the ugliest press I have ever seen.

Sincerely,

GEORGE BUSH

Dear Patty:

Sorry I missed your call the other day. Christy took care of your request, and I'm enclosing 2 trench coat models for your consideration. Each comes in three colors - tan, black and olive.

Just as soon as you make your selection and send us the sizes, please call me or Christy, and we'll get these out as soon as we can. As you know, we do not make the trench coats, but we do have a licensee for the Haggar name, and these will come from that source.

I thought the President did great last night - we're rooting and praying for him - America needs President Bush!

My very best wishes.

Sincerely,

E. R. Haggar

Dear Patty:

Just a short note to say how nice it was to talk with you last week on the phone and I hope the President likes these two choices of outerwear.

I know you must read tons and tons of mail, but I just have to let you know how my heart breaks when I think of the upcoming election. The Eardley family will be out there, casting our votes for the President, and I pray the American people will open their eyes and recognize what a fabulous job the President and Mrs. Bush have done for this country. The President did wonderful in last night's debate, but how good can you really be with people picking you and everything you do completely apart? People who have no earthly idea what a terribly stressful position the Presidency is! I wish the American people would thank God we have a good, Christian, decent, moral man for President who has done so very much to make the world safer for our children, instead of constantly harping on what he hasn't accomplished!!

I'll climb down off my soapbox right now, before I really get started!! I'm sure nothing I could say would be anything you haven't already heard 1,000 times - let it suffice to say my prayers (and my vote, of course) go with the President and YOU - you both get the prayers, he gets the vote!

Let me know about the coat when you get a chance - thanks for taking the time to read this letter. PLEASE don't bother to reply!!! You guys are busy enough as it is! Just give me a call when you can about the coats, or anything else you might need.

Take care,

Christy

Dear Helen,

I was deeply touched by your supportive letter.

Things are tightening up now; and I continue to go all out.

I honestly believe
I will win.

Both Barbara & I

Dear Mr. President,

As I did in 1988, I am going to vote for you in 1992 for the following reasons:

Because you contained the scourge of Communism.

Because you had the vision to recognize, and the judgment to repel, the threat Saddam Hussein posed to our way of life.

Because you represent the very best in fidelity, integrity, honesty, and responsibility, among other traits I admire in your character.

Because you were straightforward in admitting your mistake in being a part of raising our taxes.

Because you better understand that we must find a balance in the way we protect and use our environment and its natural resources.

Because you will devote your enormous energies to reversing our country's economic problems with the same zeal you addressed the demise of Communism.

Because I realize that the recession is not of your making alone, is a global one, and that others must bear some of the responsibility.

235 NORTH BROADWAY
NYACK, N.Y. 10960

Because I believe what you tell us of your plans to solve the problems of the economy, health care, education, and others now confronting us.

Because I admire your service to our country and your unselfish response to our Nation's call.

Because I trust you.

With deep admiration and respect,

Sincerely,

Helen Hayes

Dear Rich,

I just saw your
Oct. 20th letter. It was a kind and understanding letter.

I have never wavered in my conviction that I will win. The press has been ugly, but now people will decide on whom to trust.
These days have not been easy or pleasant, but then along comes a wonderful letter from you, a guy who went through hell, and it lifts me up. So many thanks - Sincerely,

Dear George,

You hit a home run
last night!

I know how difficult it is to keep your spirit up when the odds are against
you. But you are setting an example for others to admire & to follow.

World events beyond your control are having a negative effect on the economy. But win or lose your old friends are proud of you & many new friends have recognized that their President is a man of character & courage.

Pat joins me in sending our best wishes to Barbara & to you

Sincerely Dick -

Dear Kara,

Thank you for your good wishes and colorful note.
I loved it. With you on my side, I know I'm going to win.

Tell your Dad how much I appreciate his helping out in the motorcade today.

Good luck in your school work and give my best to your family.

Sincerely,
