Dear George:

Thank you for your thoughtful note and kind words. I believe history will judge that our Administration served America well during a time of global transition. Now Barbara and I are looking forward to Houston and to spending time in College Station working on the future Presidential library. Many thanks for your dedication to developing programs that will complement the library. I know that, with your help, we will have an outstanding Center that will enhance public understanding of the Presidency.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President,

Now that the election is a month behind us, I wanted to write simply to say how much we look forward to having you back in Texas. As you know, we are building a set of innovative programs around your presidential library, and we hope you will find it attractive to participate actively in them. I look forward to briefing you on our progress.

Despite the election results, your stature as a world leader remains undiminished and your gracious and thoughtful remarks regarding public service on election night will inspire a generation of students at Texas A&M.

Best Wishes,

Dear George:

Many thanks for your letter and for your wonderful expression of support.

Like you, I was deeply moved by Hugh Sidey's essay about my mother and about the principles that she strived to instill in all of her children: discipline, kindness, honor, and concern for others. We miss her very much, but it helps to know that so many other people loved and admired Mom, too, and have been keeping us Bushes in their thoughts and prayers.

Thanks also for letting me know about your plans to establish a World War II museum here in the United States, and I appreciate your interest in telling me more about the project in person. (My schedule remains a "work in progress" at this time, but I am sure that a member of my staff will be in contact with you, should such an opportunity arise.)

Best wishes to you and Suzanne, in which Barbara joins.

Dear Mr. President:

After reading Hugh Sidey's fine essay on the heritage and values of your mother, I cannot refrain from writing you tonight. I hope that this letter reaches you. I am sending it via my good friend, Roger Porter, who has done such an outstanding job for you.

It seems like a long time ago when, in January 1980, I first met you at the home of the Charles Garlands in Baltimore -- and joined your finance committee, in the first Bush campaign for President! It has taken a couple of weeks for me to get past the disappointment of the election. But, three things have helped:

First, an observation that you made at Camp David when my wife, Suzanne, and I had the privilege of attending the dedication of the chapel nearly two years ago. In your remarks during the service, you spoke of strength in the face of disappointment. That observation, and the grace with which you are transferring power are the essence of leadership.

Second, Hugh Sidey's observations about your mother reminded me of important values for which she stood. My mother, a spry 86, has instilled those same values in our family.

And, finally, a television program I saw last night: "George Bush: His War Years." You guys who fought that war were examples to all of us who were in the service in later years. While not in combat, my three years as a 6th Fleet navigator, 1958-'61, were formative to "growing up." Thank you for that World War II legacy. With its 50th anniversary, the American people need to be reminded of those values of teamwork and courage. With a group of interested citizens I am working on a project to create the first World War II Museum, honoring the D-Day/Normandy invasion on American soil. Bob Dole steered a grant to start this project, through the Senate. And, thanks to Roger Porter, a letter requesting a brief opportunity to tell you about this project has gone to your scheduling director. Steve Forbes, John Eisenhower, Bill Colby, Vernon Walters, Elliott Richardson and I hope to tell you about this Museum that will educate today's Americans about the values of teamwork about courage that you and your avenger crew so eloquently stood for. We look forward to the possibility of that meeting.

Best wishes and congratulations on a job well done, Mr. President. As Hugh Sidey said: "History will remember." The legacy of your public stewardship will be honored in years to come. Please extend best wishes to Mrs. Bush. She gave a wonderful luncheon speech to a group of us Republicans in Baltimore this past summer.

Sincerely,

George S. Wills

Tidings of Sadness and Loss

GEORGE BUSH WAS SHAPED AND TEMPERED BY HIS mother's nature. His was a soul finally formed by strata of love and discipline relentlessly laid down. Bush was lucky, so very lucky, to be rooted in a woman like Dorothy Walker Bush, who died last week at 91. But her death is added anguish in the President's season of political rejection, a burden few men have known. His steady goodwill in handing the White House over to Bill Clinton is a measure of a mother's implanted strength and a final tribute from a son.

Dorothy Bush was of another era, and her sense of propriety and modesty and self-control was cast in iron. Never trendy. It was forever. That armored her second son for the rough reaches of politics. Hindered him too, in a fuzzy and formless era of national debate.

Oh, yes, son George strayed from the Dorothy doctrine during the political campaigns of his long public life. He began to talk about his virtuositities and his great record, but he was never comfortable doing it. He had the angel of that remarkable woman hovering over him. And his father, a stately tower of a man who used to walk the Senate chamber with mirth on his lips and a deep love of country. So much of George Bush is family.

So when George entered the killing field of presidential politics, he gave it a good amateur's try, but he never went the full distance. And when the returns came in on that soft November night and told him he had lost, he emerged from his profound disappointment and made a special effort to honor his conquerors.

Those who watch Bush know he is pondering the meaning of existence on this planet as never before. Here and there he has muttered a phrase or two about the transience of political power and wondering what is left when it passes. He has answered his own question. What is left is the infinite tenderness and love within a caring family. He had the best. And there is irony in the fact that he may never have understood that so many others were not so blessed by Providence, and that is one of the reasons he lost this election.

What is it in the stars that piles one tragedy on another? Perhaps what is happening to Bush now is his ultimate test, and his response will be his final statement in his stewardship. It is fascinating how these men who climb to the heights of power almost always at some point pause and look back and truly understand what they owe their mothers. There was a night in the long past when John Kennedy, so heralded as a son of the grasping, determined Joe Kennedy, lowered his voice and mused how his sense of history and understanding of this nation began with his mother Rose, not his father. "She was the one who told us about the founding fathers, who read history to us, who took us to Plymouth Rock and the Old North Church," he said.

Almost anytime, anywhere, Lyndon Johnson would tell you about Rebekah Baines Johnson, who pounded it into him that his way out of the hard life on the Texas plains was through education. Along the Pedernales River on the old family ranch one night when the moon was rising, he recalled to a friend the terrible times his mother went through trying to hold her family together and keep her dignity while living on the edge of poverty and uncertainty. She broke into tears one evening at the water pump, nearly overwhelmed with fatigue. Johnson, a small boy, put his arms around her legs and said he would take care of her. He always did. And she cared for him through that ethereal bond of motherhood.

It was the idea of obligation to others, as preached by Dorothy Bush, that drove the President into a life of service, now winding down in bittersweet days. His presidential record was better than anybody in this dismal campaign ever admitted, and better than he could articulate. And there was something more that could never be fitted into the strictures of raucous electronic politics. The sheer decency of the son of Prescott and Dorothy Bush, obscured by his style of campaigning. Now that link is finally severed.

All last week as his mother faded from this world, Bush toasted his friends and adversaries in elegant farewells. The battle was over, he told those who had marched along that journey with him or against him. He did not believe in continuing hatred or grudges. Speaker Tom Foley laughed and joked about old skirmishes, shared goals. Once or twice Bush's voice broke and his eyes misted over. There was one night, after the ceremony ended and the guests were departing, when there was a glimpse of the 41st President of this enduring republic standing in the corridor of the mansion: he was sending Republicans and Democrats off into the night with one of his atrocious neckties flapping and his crooked grin playing across his face and his basic goodness asserting itself above all hurt and pain. History will remember. ■

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for a lifetime of service to the people of the United States.

I was one of hundreds of journalists who were in Iraq and Jordan during Operation Desert Shield, and in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait during Operation Desert Storm. While we dodged Scuds in Dhahran, ate MRE's with members of Task Force Ripper near Khafji, or were hugged by members of the Resistance in liberated Kuwait City, we were always surrounded by reminders of your leadership in forging the coalition.

Best wishes to you and your family for many years to come.

Dear George:

I know this past year has not been a lot of fun for you, but I wanted you to know that I have been proud to have been able to support you over the years and to let you know you have done a fantastic job.

Our life is short and we are temporal creatures, but we can find permanence through our faith in God. As humans, our emotions run across the board and your emotions have been greatly tested this past year.

George you are going to be remembered as a great President in history. It usually takes our looking back on an era to assess one's success. Tremendous feats were accomplished under your leadership. The Berlin Wall came down; Russia is no longer a communistic country; you stood up to the world with the Persian Gulf situation.

You got caught up in political cross fires, but when all is said and done, you have been a magnificent President.

Now is the time to get emotions back in balance and I want to wish you and Barbara the best and I know you will enjoy the many years to come with your family and loved ones.

AN OPEN LETTER TO EMBASSY COLLEAGUES

Dear Friends:

Since February, I have devoted my full effort to preparing for and serving as ambassador to Spain. Without doubt, it has been one of the most rewarding experiences of my career. Given the demands of the job, Joan and I think we have crammed three years of work and experience into one year.

With your cooperation, we have helped to strengthen our embassy operations. We have set clear strategic goals, and we have aggressively pursued programs designed to promote strong relations between Spain and the United States.

We have brought new American business opportunities to this country, we have experienced the thrill of the Olympics and Sevilla's world exposition, and we have made a personal commitment to provide an American Spirit of Excellence award for leadership at each of the six American high schools in Spain.

We also have tried to bring a sense of unity and pride to those who work at the embassy. By Christmas, more than 5,500 guests will have shared American hospitality at our Residence for receptions, dinners, working luncheons and copitas. By early January, we will have held official meetings in more than 50 cities and towns in all 17 autonomous regions of Spain.

It's been a privilege to have met several times with His Majesty King Juan Carlos and Her Majesty Queen Sofia. Joan and I have a deep personal and professional admiration for the inspired leadership they have brought to modern Spain.

In our discussions in Madrid and around the country, we have met with President Felipe Gonzalez, cabinet leaders, local mayors, regional presidents, educators, military commanders, businessmen, religious leaders and a wide range of dedicated Spaniards who devote their lives to promoting and protecting Spain's priceless cultural and artistic heritage.

Along the way, we have endeavored to share some of our American values, while underscoring our commitment to learn more about this country. We have met wonderful people everywhere. Some will be personal friends for life.

Embassy of the United States of America

Now, the time has come to move on. As you know, I was appointed early this year by President Bush who has had my support for many years. I am quite confident there are many candidates for this post - it clearly is one of the best diplomatic assignments in the world. And so, President-elect Clinton deserves the fullest latitude to select his own personal representatives for important posts, including this key one in Madrid.

Meanwhile, I am grateful to those Senate Democrats and Republicans who have urged that I continue in the spirit of the bipartisan support I received early this year from both the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the full Senate. Like all appointees, I submitted my resignation effective at the pleasure of the President-elect and I offered to remain for a reasonable transition.

In early November, Joan and I decided that we would leave Spain no later than March 1. We have important family responsibilities in California that need our attention, and we have a number of business prospects that I need to finalize. I also have a strong desire to complete a book on personal values started before coming to Spain.

We chose to delay telling our Embassy friends of our decision until now because we did not want to create any distractions from our full time commitment to this job. We plan to leave Madrid on February 23 so that we can be in California later that week to accept an award for public service.

From the beginning, it has been our goal in Spain to represent the United States with honor, dignity and enthusiasm. Above all, we have sought to do so with absolute substance.

Though we will be leaving Spain in a few weeks, we will remain significantly involved in the years ahead with efforts to enhance business, cultural and educational ties with Spain.

Joan and I are proud to have served our country as America's Ambassador to Spain, and we thank President Bush for the opportunity to do so. We also are grateful to have worked closely with so many good people at the embassy.

Best personal regards.

Dear Mr. President,

I can't believe the American people didn't return you to office. You gave so much and accomplished so much. The country is in an incredibly strong position to meet it's challenges thanks to your policies. Clinton inherits a strong country, much as Kennedy, winning with words- one with "change" and the other "the missile gap".

There is such a terrible tendency to want to second guess oneself. I just pray that you'll be able to think back on what you almost single-handedly accomplished: a real chance for peace in the world, the minimizing for now of the nuclear threat, a World organization, the U.N., that for the first time acted as it should for world peace against tyranny, the restoring of America's will and world leadership, maintaining on balance an underlying dynamic economy torn by extreme, but necessary, regional and industry readjustments.

I am so grateful to you for saving our world and our country for my children and grandchildren and my nine month old son. While you say you'll be spending more time in the grandchildren business, I could always use some help in the young wife and young son department. Something I never thpught I would be doing in my sixties with seven grandchildren on a ranch in Wyoming.

You might get a kick out of an envelope that miraculously arrived from your office. (A copy of which I've enclosed). Anna had sent James Scott Polk's birth announcement to you and Bar, signing it "Anna Oakley and Buffalo Bo." It obviously got screened before it got to you.

Your Mother's death on Friday though expected still came as a shock. She always so warm to me and mad me feel so welcome. Believe me on some occasion that was no mean feat. It was wonderful that you could see her before she passed on. I was granted a similar blessing with my mother.

Now that you're out of office, have some fun and rest, and then let's get some private initiatives going in areas we care about.

I have written a little tribute to you. You might have expected more from an Andover, Yale and Harvard education but those helmets weren't as thick as they probably should have been when I was co-captaining an undefeated Andover football team.

Warmest,
Bo

P.S. Maybe Anna, James and I can visit the White House in December. Love to Bar. At the meantime we

THE PRESIDENT

December 14, 1992

Dear Mrs. Jarvis:

This is just a belated happy birthday wish to you. Your great friend, Jane F. McBride, said that you recently celebrated being 99 years young. I wish you many more.

Mrs. Bush joins me in wishing you and yours a happy holiday season.

Sincerely,

Dear President Bush:

I'm writing on behalf of a dear friend of mine, Mrs. Scottie Jarvis, a 98 year old Scottish lady who practiced as a nurse-anesthetist until she retired 25 years ago.

X
One of her fondest memories is of spending a few days at your house in Kennebunkport to administer anesthesia to you or your brother during a tonsillectomy. Scottie isn't sure of the date but remembers it as July, sometime in the early 1930's. Your parents met her and the doctor at the train station (Scottie remembers that they were late!). Do you recall having your tonsils out as a boy?

Scottie is widowed, and lives alone with her cat, Cheetah. She is a self-described "dyed in the wool Republican" and continues to vote. I drove her to the polls in 1988 so she could be sure to vote for you and keep "that little pipsqueak Dukakis out of the White House." She's planning to cast her vote for you again in November, shortly after her 99th birthday.

She's a great animal lover and is a big fan of Mrs. Bush (and Millie, too). A note from you would really make her day.

I've enclosed a photo of Scottie blowing out the candles at her last birthday (one for every ten years - to prevent a meltdown!).

Scottie's address is: Mrs. Scottie Jarvis
39 Moody Street
Chestnut Hill, MA 02167

Sincerely,

Jane F. McBride

Dear Dr. Hayden,

Thank you for your letter of December 3 and your very kind offer to join Surgicad's Technology Advisory Board.

Barbara and I will moving to Houston on January 20 and my primary focus will be on my Presidential Library at Texas A&M. I do appreciate your considering me for a position on the board, but hope you understand that I cannot make any other commitments at this time. Thanks, again, for your letter. With best wishes,

The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

The management of Surgicad Corporation is very appreciative of your efforts on the part of small businesses and taxpayers during your 12 years in Washington. We also feel that history will record your significant foreign policy achievements.

While times may be changing in Washington, make no mistake that we feel the country needs you more than ever. We would like to extend to you an offer to join our Technology Advisory Board. The Board meets four times per year, and advises the Company on a broad range of topics having importance to the Company, including marketing and distribution of software, technical issues, and the like. We feel that your expertise in foreign policy would certainly provide great insight to our efforts to market our products internationally. I have included a videotape for your review to give you an idea of what we do.

Surgicad (previously Aesculys Research Corporation) Corporation is a high technology software start-up which was founded in Dallas, Texas in 1988. Our product direction emphasizes orthopaedic and sports medicine related solutions for the surgeon and patient, and given your role as an avid sportsman, we hope that you will find the potential for this association an exciting one.

I suspect that you are presently contemplating your future plans. Please take a few moments to consider membership on our TAB. An immediate answer is not necessary, but I hope you will give us the opportunity to discuss this further with you.

Sincerely,

Shawn A. Hayden, M.D., Chairman and CEO
Surgicad Corporation

P.S. Considering our company's ties to Texas, we hope that you will consider saving Texas, and running to be her governor in 1994!

Dear Mr. Jermanok,

Thank you for your letter of December 8 and for sending a brochure on ICM Artists Lecture Division. I do appreciate your very kind offer to represent me, however, I have decided not to consider any future opportunities until I am actually out of office and have moved back to Houston. It is too early for me to make a commitment of any kind.

Again, thanks for writing. With best wishes,

Dear President Bush:

I am writing to you at the suggestion of my friend, Neil Bush, and Marlin Fitzwater.

I have never written to someone I admire so much. Your personal attributes are exceeded only by your political achievements. The courage and strength which you have displayed even in the most trying moments of your historic tenure as President will be long remembered. Whatever path your lecture career takes, I strongly salute you!

We are part of International Creative Management, one of the most prestigious entertainment, literary and newscasting agencies in the world. Our Lecture Division is one of the few exclusive lecture agencies in the country and we are in close contact with all of America's most prominent lecture series and lecture presenters.

I have enclosed our ICM Artists Lecture Division Brochure for your perusal. This should give you an idea of the lecture clients we exclusively represent in addition to Arthur Miller, Tom Peters and several others not in the brochure.

Like yourself, I live and work by a set of strong moral and ethical standards given to me by my parents. To the extent that I have never lost a lecture client and that I work with most presenters on a regular and continuing basis, I guess some of my parents' advice wasn't wasted.

I am grateful for your consideration and hope to speak with you at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President:

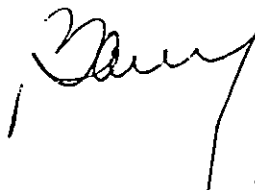

Sandy and I wanted to pass along to you are deepest sympathy upon the death of your mother. What a great woman! My first memories of her go back to the very early sixties when your esteemed brother Jonathan got me into some paddle tennis games with her. She was a great lady in the finest sense of the word and leaves us much to try and emulate.

Regarding the election, those who like to fish with you (my wife Sandy being #1 on the list) take heart in that you will have more time available to fight the giants of the deep. But any time you want to be president again, South Carolina is just one of a number of states who would be pleased to secede. I was pleased that the town of Beaufort, Beaufort County and the state all went for Bush.

Sandy has been shrimping, crabbing and catching trout and bass down here in de low country. We be havin fifty pounds of shrimp in de freeza to keep de body and soul togetha in de winta.

December 10, 1992

Dear George and Barbara,

What a wonderful example both of you together have provided over the years for our nation and for the world . . . an example of family, civic, and presidential responsibility and leadership. I am sure that, when the history of our time is written, it will recognize and celebrate your unique and lasting contribution.

With admiration and respect,

Charles H. Tower
official

Mr. President, Mrs. Bush & Family -

Fourteen years have gone by since I began this series of Christmas messages on my return to Washington in 1979. Fourteen years would be a long run on Broadway. It is not very long measured by the centuries old story of Christmas.

This year's message comes from Peter Marshall's book, Let's Keep Christmas. He was a very well known Presbyterian minister and a widely read author of religious books when his life was cut short at the age of 46 in 1949. This passage reflects his special gift for expressing some of the important things of life in very simple, direct and human terms.

Charles H. Tower

The Christmas Season of 1992

And then you will remember what Christmas means -- the beginning of Christianity . . . the Second Chance for the world . . . the hope for peace . . . and the only way.

The promise that the angels sang is the most wonderful music the world has ever heard. "Peace on earth and good will toward men."

It was not a pronouncement upon the state of the world then. Nor is it a reading of the international barometer of the present time . . . but it is a promise -- God's promise -- of what one day will come to pass.

The years that are gone are graveyards in which all the persuasions of men have crumbled into dust. If history has any voice, it is to say that all these ways of men lead nowhere. There remains one way -- The Way -- untried, untested, unexplored fully . . . the way of Him Who was born a Babe in Bethlehem.

In a world that seems not only to be changing, but even to be dissolving, there are some tens of millions of us who want Christmas to be the same . . . with the same old greeting "Merry Christmas" and no other.

We long for the abiding love among men of good will which the season brings . . . believing in this ancient miracle of Christmas with its softening, sweetening influence to tug at our heart strings once again.

We want to hold on to the old customs and traditions because they strengthen our family ties, bind us to our friends, make us one with all mankind for whom the Child was born, and bring us back again to the God Who gave His only begotten Son, that "whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

So we will not "spend" Christmas . . . nor "observe" Christmas. We will "keep" Christmas -- keep it as it is . . . in all the loveliness of its ancient traditions.

May we keep it in our hearts, that we may be kept in its hope.

We wish you a merry Christmas filled with the love of family and friends and a 1993 blessed with peace on our earth.

Dear George,

I wanted you to know how deeply I sympathize with you and your family over your mother's passing - which I think of as a triumphant climax to a glorious, eventful, productive, Christian life.

I can't resist telling you about my memory of the last time I was with your wonderful mother.

It was around 1976 when Bob, Rudy, and I were playing tennis with Meredith Hones on her court (next door to where Freddy and I lived for the four years we were in Washington.) Suddenly we were riveted by the sight of your mother whizzing down the driveway next to the curb on a bicycle - all smiles and waving triumphantly to all of us with her white-gloved free hand!

What a rare person - full of pep and fun - and stylish and ladylike besides. We cheered her for all we were worth!

I know you must have a lifetime of similar treasured memories to ease the pain of her passing. And I must be a great comfort to realize what

Dear President and Mrs. Bush,

I would like to extend my sympathy to you and your family on the death of your mother. I have a little story I would like to share with you.

My husband had the opportunity to teach on a Fulbright Exchange Program in England in 1978-79. After our year there we arrived at the airport to find our plane had been cancelled. We were placed on another flight, this was on a plane which had every seat occupied. We had the maximum carry-on luggage containing our "treasures" purchased during our year. Our almost two-year old daughter had no seat, this was a little bit difficult since I was over seven months pregnant at the time. Needless to say, we looked a bit like gypsies! On the trip, my husband and daughter struck up a conversation with a woman sitting behind us. After a little history she asked what he knew of American politics, we had kept up somewhat but were not very well informed politically. She asked, "Have you heard of a man named George Bush?" Rob said he didn't know much about him, and then was given an extensive biography on you! He asked how she knew Bush and she said, "He's my son, he's such a nice boy!"

I wanted to tell you that she must have been such a nice mother! When we landed in New York, she took time to find my parents who were meeting us and say what a lovely grandchild they had (Kristin never fussed on that whole 24 hour trip!), she certainly seemed like a lovely lady.

I hope you receive this, I think good memories help keep that person alive in us, and I hope this story might do that for you.

Sincerely yours

Dear George -

I hope I can be $\frac{1}{2}$ the woman Aunt Dottie was - even $\frac{1}{4}$ would be good. She was such a warm caring woman and so nice to me & my kids - somehow she remembered their names & made us all feel cared about. I was in Hobe S. over Thanksgiving and it seemed awfully empty over the wall and through the gate.

You and Ben have been through so much this fall. You have been the most wonderful leaders. Honest, Respected & Trusted. Your decisions have been sound and you guided the American slip through the most turbulent waters.

the world has ever known. Government's nose which had been squeezed shut for years love, hate etc etc exploded out. You were there to make the hard decisions - You got us through it - Thanks from Colorado.

And now on to the next chapter !!

I hope I'll see you both soon.
