U.S. REFINES ITS PLANS TO ENFORCE SERB FLIGHT BAN

The Pentagon has begun refining plans to use American military power in the Balkans should the U.N. Security Council ask for allied help in enforcing the "no-fly zone" over Bosnia-Herzegovina, U.S. officials said Monday.

Plans call for initial monitoring and enforcement operations by F-14 Tomcat fighters and FA-18 Hornet attack bombers from the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy, with help from AWACS radar surveillance planes.

At the same time, the Navy is considering the use of specially rigged Tomahawk cruise missiles to cripple Serbian-held airports in the region, should the Security Council decide to take that step during its deliberations.

Regarding a U.N. enforcement resolution, Western diplomats said the U.S. and its allies still are divided over two key issues -- how long a warning to give the Serbs before beginning military action to enforce the flight ban and how much leeway to give the military in deciding how to do the job...

On Monday, the Bush Administration sharply criticized the handling of the Serbian election. Richard Boucher said that, while American officials had not made a final determination, evidence shows the campaign was "decidedly unfair." Boucher cited several examples of such irregularities, from manipulation of election rules to television bias against Milan Panic's candidacy to omission of many voters from registration lists.

BALKAN STEP? WEST IS WARY

Although Slobodan Milosevic's seeming victory in the election in Serbia increases the pressure on Western nations to live up to their tough warnings in the Balkans, the Bush Administration and its allies seem to have little appetite for military action to stop the killing in Bosnia.

Indeed, despite Secretary Eagleburger's denunciation of Serbian leaders as war criminals and other strong talk from Western officials last week, the U.S. and its allies are primarily interested in preventing the fighting from spreading to regions around Bosnia. They do not have a clear military plan for dealing with the Serbs' "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia or reversing Serbia's gains on the battlefield.

(News Analysis, Michael Gordon, New York Times, A1)

DEFIANT SERBIANS
RE-ELECT MILOSEVIC

BELGRADE -- Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, accused by the U.S. government of war crimes and cited by the West as the instigator of Serb aggression in Croatia and Bosnia, appeared Monday to have easily won re-election.

Voters in Sunday's ballot also gave surprisingly strong backing to an ultranationalist party called the Serbian Radicals, a fascist group that advocates violence to rid Serbia of its large non-Serb minority. The party is led by Vojislav Seselj, the commander of a Belgrade-based paramilitary group whom Washington has singled out as responsible for war crimes in Bosnia.

Incomplete results released Monday night by the ruling Socialist Party showed Milosevic leading Milan Panic, his main challenger for the presidency, by more than 10% and winning at least 50% of the vote -- apparently obviating the need for a run-off ballot.

(Blaine Harden, Washington Post, A1)

MILOSEVIC LEADING BUT OPPOSITION AND OBSERVERS CRY FOUL

BELGRADE -- Yugoslavia was on the verge of deeper isolation Tuesday, with hard-line Serbian President Milosevic leading in elections that foreign observers said were riddled with irregularities.

According to the state news agency Tanjug, with 13.6% of the vote counted, Milosevic was far in front with 56% of the vote, while Panic had 33% and the remainder was split among five other candidates. Final results were not expected before Thursday.

A statement from the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe called Sunday's elections "seriously flawed." It cited "shameless propaganda" in pro-Milosevic state media and widespread registration problems that prevented up to 5% of the electorate from voting.

BUSH, YELTSIN DISCUSS START II ON TELEPHONE

President Bush and Boris Yeltsin discussed for the second straight day Monday the obstacles to completing a nuclear arms treaty that could be signed next month, a White House official said.

"Nothing was finalized," but unspecified progress was made during their telephone conversation, the official said.

Bush called Yeltsin from the Oval Office Monday for a discussion that was termed short but fruitful.

"It represented progress," said the White House official. "It was at least another step in the right direction. It's going to keep the process moving forward."

U.S. ACCUSED OF RETREATING IN TRADE TALKS

BRUSSELS -- France and other European countries Monday accused the U.S. of backtracking in world trade talks and expressed deep pessimism that a global accord can be achieved by the time the Bush Administration leaves office.

"There has been an American retreat on all fronts," declared France's Roland Dumas, who said the U.S. recently revoked earlier concessions at the Geneva trade negotiations and now is pressing for greater advantages in key sectors such as industrial tariffs and financial services.

"The Europeans can attempt to place the blame on the United States, but all fingers point back to the French, who have made no secret of their goal to hold hostage the entire world trade system to get past their March election," said the assistant U.S. trade representative, Kathleen Lydon, in Washington.

ALLIES POISED TO SEIZE 4 MORE KEY SOMALI SITES

MOGADISHU -- After 12 slow days of gathering forces and supplies, the U.S.-led military mission to rescue Somalia is now poised to seize control of this nation's "famine belt" from the warlords and freelance looters who have starved 300,000 of their countrymen to death.

With nearly 10,000 allied troops now on the ground, senior officers said Monday in interviews that the next week will see nearly simultaneous thrusts into four major centers of desperation: Beledweyne, Oddur, Baarheere and Gialassi. Another four have already been seized: Mogadishu, Bela Dogle, Baidoa and Kismaayo. Those eight cities are the hubs in this operation's strategy of humanitarian relief. Each will become the base for a large military force that will seek to impose order and expand outward with aggressive patrols and food deliveries into the countryside.

Senior civilian and military officials announced in a not-for-attribution briefing that Mogadishu's two principal warlords, Mohamed Farah Aideed and Ali Mahdi Mohamed, will finish withdrawing all their heavy gun vehicles by Tuesday and leave them under guard in cantonments outside the city.

(Barton Gellman, Washington Post, A16)

Somalia Task Force Launches Christmas Push

MOGADISHU -- Hundreds of U.S. marines drove out of the Somali capital at dawn Tuesday to extend Operation Restore Hope further into the famished Somali interior by Christmas.

The marine convoy is going first to Baidoa to reinforce French and American forces already there before fanning out toward other desperately needy towns. Mark Thomas, spokesman for the U.N. Children's Fund (UNICEF), said multinational forces were planning to reach Bardere, Jalalaksi and Hoddur by Friday, Christmas Day.

French soldiers, backed by two U.S. attack helicopters which lit up the night sky with flares, shot and wounded three Somali gunmen Sunday after a technical fired on their observation post south of Baidoa. Seven other attackers fled.

U.N. CHIEF SKEPTICAL OF RAPID U.S. PULLOUT

U.N. -- Secretary-General Boutros-Ghali said Monday that despite Washington's insistence for a rapid pullout of U.S. troops from Somalia, he still is not prepared to endorse such a move until security conditions in the famine- and violence-wracked country can be better evaluated.

In a 22-page report to the Security Council that he described as a "conceptual plan," Boutros-Ghali said his discussions with U.S. officials, while "useful," have brought to light "certain differences" of approach concerning the timing of any withdrawal.

The secretary general also reiterated his belief that U.S. forces should gain control over all of Somalia and not just those areas where the famine is most severe. He said that if Somalia's armed gangs retreat to areas outside of U.S. control, the objectives of the international effort will not have been achieved because the gangs could resume their harassment at a future date.

In an effort to bridge the gap with Washington on some points, Boutros-Ghali suggested that rather than carry out a complete disarmament, U.S. troops should focus on heavy weapons by either concentrating them in certain areas for observation or destroying them.

(Trevor Rowe, Washington Post, A18)

Boutros-Ghali Wants U.S. Troops To Disarm Somalis

U.N. -- Secretary-General Boutros-Ghali again called for a wider and longer U.S. involvement in Somalia than originally envisioned by Washington, saying American troops should fan out throughout the country to disarm warlords and gangs.

In a lengthy report to the Security Council late Monday, Boutros-Ghali spelled out his differences with the U.S. and rejected a request from Washington to plan immediately for U.N. troops to replace American forces when they begin to withdraw.

In his report, Boutros-Ghali, however, did propose a possible role for an expanded U.N. peacekeeping operation that would take "forceful action as may be required to neutralize armed elements which attack" relief facilities. He said that such a force would need a substantial number of troops and suggested that the U.S. supply logistics units even after their main troops are withdrawn.

SOMALI CLAN LEADER CALLS FOR PEACE CONFERENCE, ELECTION

HODDUR, Somalia -- Mohammed Noor Shakar, one of Somalia's most powerful clan leaders, has called for peace negotiations between warring factions leading to regional then national elections -- but only after U.N. forces have disarmed gunmen plaguing Somalia.

Shakar, who joined other clan leaders several weeks ago at a meeting with U.S. special envoy Robert Oakley to discuss the rehabilitation of Somalia, said Monday that anarchy could not be stopped until weapons are confiscated by U.N. forces.

But U.S. officials in Somalia and in Washington have said on numerous occasions that they would disarm Somali gunmen only if they posed an immediate threat.

JURY CONVICTS MEXICAN OF CONSPIRING IN KILLING

LOS ANGELES -- Ruben Zuno Arce, brother-in-law of a former Mexican president, was convicted Monday of conspiring in the killing of Enrique "Kiki" Camarena, a U.S. drug agent. In Washington, Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) chief Robert Bonner said he was "gratified by the jury's verdict and am extremely proud of the superb investigation mounted by DEA to pursue Camarena's killers."

Zuno's brother-in-law is former Mexican president Luis Echeverria. (Linda Deutsch, AP, Washington Post, A3)

U.S. EXPECTS NOT TO CHARGE PILOT WHO RESCUED FAMILY FROM CUBA

MIAMI -- Although he broke a host of U.S. laws when he whisked his family out of Cuba and into Florida over the weekend, pilot Orestes Lorenzo Perez probably will not face charges, federal officials said on Monday.

Lorenzo's feat -- flying in and out of the U.S. without permission and bringing undocumented foreigners into the country -- did violate immigration laws.

"It would serve no purpose to prosecute these people," said INS spokesman Duke Austin. "There's no avenue to return them to Cuba." (Deborah Ramirez, Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel)

GOVERNMENT SUIT ACCUSES 8 AIRLINES OF PRICE FIXING

The federal government Monday charged eight major airlines with fixing prices through their computerized fare system and asked a court to forbid the carriers from signaling fare changes to each other.

Mark Ridley, acting assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, said the airlines "communicated the details of proposed fare increases to competitors and obtained their reactions. These discussions often continued until there was an agreement on a higher fare."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court here, said domestic air transportation was a $40 billion industry but gave no estimate of the impact on travelers of the alleged price fixing. The suit asks for no penalties but seeks changes in the airlines' procedures for 10 years.

The airlines denied the charges and said the Justice Department's solution would cause "chaos" in the travel industry.

BUSH AIDE, PASSPORT CASE LINKED

A preliminary Justice Department investigation uncovered evidence that White House aide Janet Mullins may have helped "encourage and direct" the search of Bill Clinton's passport files and then lied about her involvement to State Department investigators, according to court papers unsealed Monday.

The department's evidence prompted a three-judge panel last week to issue an order giving independent counsel Joseph diGenova authority "to fully investigate and prosecute" the passport search case and "all matters and individuals whose acts may be related."

The judicial order appointing diGenova was unsealed along with a strongly worded application from Attorney General Barr that briefly sketched the course of a 10-day preliminary investigation by the department's public integrity section.

"I determined that the allegations against Mullins were specific and from credible sources," wrote Barr. He concluded that further investigation was warranted, noting that Mullins was twice interviewed by the inspector general's office and during those interviews denied "knowledge of, or participation in, the search of Clinton's files."

"Other evidence directly contradicts Mullins' statements," Barr wrote in his application to the court for a special counsel. "There is also evidence that Mullins was aware of the interest in Clinton's files before the search occurred and that Mullins helped encourage and direct the search."

(Michael Isikoff & Walter Pincus, Washington Post, A1)

Bush Aide Accused Of Lying In Inquiry On Clinton Search

The Justice Department says that the White House political director, Janet Mullins, "may have made false statements" to federal investigators and may have helped direct the search of Bill Clinton's passport files during the presidential election campaign.

This finding appears to differ from the conclusion of the inspector general, Sherman Funk. In his report, issued Nov. 18, Funk wrote, "We found no evidence that the White House -- or any other external source -- orchestrated an 'attack' on the Clinton files."

In the request for an independent prosecutor, Attorney General Barr did not name James Baker or Margaret Tutwiler as a target of the investigation.

CLINTON BERATES CRITICS IN WOMEN'S GROUPS

LITTLE ROCK -- President-elect Clinton Monday berated women's groups that have criticized his Cabinet appointments for failing to include more women, vehemently attacking "bean counters" who are "playing quota games and math games" with the selection process.

Clinton, at a news conference announcing his appointment of South Carolina Gov. Richard Riley as Secretary of Education and Hazel O'Leary as Secretary of Energy, protested that he was not getting enough credit for selecting Carol Browner to head EPA and Laura D'Andrea Tyson to be the first woman to chair the Council of Economic Advisers.

"They're playing quota games and math games, and they have diminished the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and the director of the Environmental Protection Agency, and they would have been counting those positions against our administration, those bean counters who are doing that, if I had appointed white men to those positions," Clinton said testily.

(Ruth Marcus, Washington Post, A1)

HOUSING, EDUCATION NOMINEES NOT TOO ALARMING TO RIGHT WING

President-elect Clinton's Cabinet appointments suggest that in the two areas where the Bush Administration had clear policy thrusts -- education and housing -- changes will be less drastic than some conservatives feared.

Richard Riley, Clinton's nominee for Secretary of Education, is likely to make the more radical departure from what William Bennett calls the "conservative empowerment agenda."

"The major policy initiative of the Reagan-Bush era will be shelved, probably," Bennett said. "It's back to the status quo in education, but Riley will not do much permanent damage because the action on education reform is in the states."

In an interview Monday with the Washington Times, Henry Cisneros, Clinton's nominee for Secretary of HUD, appeared to have more policy compatibility with the policies of Secretary Kemp than Riley has with Secretary Alexander.

"I admire a lot about Jack Kemp," Cisneros said. "I have been an advocate of entrepreneurial government, looking for practical solutions, solving problems, blurring ideological lines."

POLL: CLINTON ENJOYS TWO-THIRDS APPROVAL

President-elect Clinton's carefully scripted transition is paying political dividends as he prepares to take office and tackle the economy, a new USA Today/CNN/Gallup Poll indicates.

The poll, taken Dec. 18-20, finds two of three Americans -- 67% -- approve of the job he's doing, 24 points more than the 43% who voted for him.

On another front, the poll shows 49% approve of the way President Bush is doing his job, holding steady over the past two weeks, but up sharply from 34% before the election. His decision to send U.S. troops to Somalia, and other actions he's taken as he prepares to leave office, have helped. (Transition, USA Today, 4A)

MIDDLE-CLASS UNINSURED UP BY 1 MILLION

Nationwide, the number of solidly middle-class individuals without health insurance grew by one million last year, while in the District one in four residents was without public or private coverage, according to newly analyzed Census Bureau data.

The data were taken from the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey and were collected and analyzed by Public Citizen's Health Research Group and Physicians for a National Health Program.

The findings indicated that 35.4 million people, or about 14% of the U.S. population, were without health insurance at some time during 1991.

In 1991, the number of Americans with family incomes of $25,000 to $50,000 who lost their insurance rose by 1.07 million -- compared to about 500,000 in that income bracket who lost their coverage during 1990.

WHITE HOUSE PANEL SAYS UNIVERSITIES NEED LONGER-RANGE PLANNING

Universities must consider "eliminating or downsizing" to cut away substandard programs and maintain the U.S.'s leadership role in research and innovation, a White House advisory panel says.

The group also called Monday for allocating federal support not according to congressional votes but by competition based on scientific merit, a greater emphasis on teaching and renewed interaction between industry and universities. (UPI)

CLINTON PASSPORT SEARCH

ABC's Peter Jennings: The issue of searching Gov. Clinton's files during the election campaign won't go away, his passport files at the State Department specifically. The question from the beginning has been were any laws broken and who gave the orders. Court documents that were unsealed today point to one person inside the White House and hint there may have been others.

ABC's John McWethy: For the last four years, Janet Mullins has worked as a top aide to James Baker, first at the State Department, then at the White House. In documents released by the court today, Mullins is singled out as the prime suspect in the Clinton passport files case, although the independent counsel has given wide authority to investigate other White House officials, such as Baker, even though they are not named in the documents. Attorney General Barr said one of the documents released said there is "evidence that Mullins was aware of the interest in Clinton's files before the search occurred, and that Mullins helped encourage and direct the search." Only last month the State Department's Inspector General Sherman Funk said he had found no evidence that the White House orchestrated the search of Clinton's file. Joseph DiGeneva, the man who was appointed independent counsel, has been asked to investigate whether Mullins or others may have lied to federal investigators, used her position in government to try to illegally influence the outcome of an election or violated the Privacy Act, which protects information contained in passport files. Although many in the White House were stunned by Barr's request for an independent counsel, the move does prevent further investigation of this political scandal by the Democrats when they take over next month.

SOMALIA

CBS's Dan Rather reports that as U.S. Marines attempt to get food to the starving people of Somalia, U.S. officials there say rival warlords have now begun moving their heavy weapons out of the capital city. This is supposed to be a first step toward peace. But Mogadishu is still a city armed to the teeth, and U.S. troops came under fire again today.

(CBS-4)

ABC's Linda Pattillo reports that 200 miles south of Mogadishu in Kismayu, U.S. Marines and Belgian paratroopers patrolled together in an area that just last week was overrun by local gunmen. Less than 48 hours after they arrived, the Americans have secured this city and turned over their posts here to their Belgian counterparts. From here on out, U.S. forces will only deliver supplies and logistical support to the Belgians. If all continues to go as well as Kismayu, U.S. troops could leave here much sooner than expected.

BOSNIA

Jennings reports that in Serbia today, the man who seems intent on continuing the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Slobodan Milosevic, appears to have won another term as president as the result of yesterday's election. His opponent was the Serbian-American businessman Milan Panic, who says he wants to end the war. There is a good deal of evidence that Milosevic's people fixed the election. Milosevic is the most prominent name on the U.S. list for a possible war crimes trial. (ABC-3)

Rather says Newsweek magazine claims that President Bush, it has learned, definitely plans some sort of military action against Serbian forces before he leaves office. (CBS-3)

NBC's John Dancy reports that the State Department today would only comment on the campaign, not the voting itself.

(Richard Boucher: "We believe that the campaign period was decidedly unfair. In Serbian the state-run media did not provide fair coverage and access to the opposition parties.")

With regard to a no-fly zone, Serb planes and helicopters are not flying combat missions. Serb planes have been grounded since the U.N. passed the no-fly resolution, and the helicopters that are flying are not used for combat. Secretary Eagleburger says that's not the point.

(Eagleburger: "The fact of the matter is that they are still violating the resolution, and it is our judgment it's time they were reminded they should stop altogether.")

The no-fly rule would be carried out by American F-16s flying continuous cover over Bosnia, prepared to shoot down any Serbian planes or helicopters that tried to fly. A U.N. no-fly rule resolution could be passed before Christmas and be enforced shortly afterwards. (NBC-2)

SECRETARY FRANKLIN/CHINA TRIP

Jennings: Flying high, courtesy of the taxpayer. In these recessionary times, private companies have been routinely been getting tough on employee travel; don't make any unnecessary trips, and if you do, do whatever you can to save money. Which is why we focus tonight on some soon-to-be unemployed government employees who've just finished a very expensive business trip -- spending your money, about which you had no choice.

ABC's John Martin: Robert Louis Stevenson, the Scottish author, once said, "I travel not to go anywhere, but to go. I travel for travel's sake. The great affair is to move." Secretary Franklin is on the move. In her final weeks on the job -- she was sworn in only nine months ago -- she has flown to China. Her purpose is to encourage the Chinese to import more American goods and therefore create more jobs for Americans. Plutarch, the Greek moralist, said, "Bad news travels fast." The bad news is that this trip is costing American taxpayers nearly have a million dollars just for the airplane. Secretary Franklin and the Commerce Department delegation could have chosen to fly first class on a commercial airliner for about $113,000 round trip. Instead they chose an Air Force C-137, the luxury version of the Boeing 707.

Martin continues: It costs $13,000 an hour to operate. The round trip takes 37 hours, so Uncle Sam is paying more than $480,000 for this trip. Secretary Franklin spent three days in Beijing touring, talking, and toasting. The trip created new avenues for trade, she said, contracts signed for Boeing and AT&T. Was it worth the extra cost?

(Franklin: "That whole business about of the money spent in coming here is truly a ridiculous comment.")

This weekend the delegation flew to Hong Kong where it visited the ports and met with business leaders. The delegation is expected to leave Asia in a few hours. It is due home tomorrow. A trip by Commerce Department officials to Moscow and Leningrad just before Mr. Bush leaves office has been called off as unnecessary. Even so, as it ends at Andrews AFB tomorrow, this trip already will have cost about $370,000 more than necessary -- not an enormous sum by government standards. Still, as somebody once said, it's not the money it's the principle -- and the interest on the national debt.

Jennings says here's another way you could use that $370,000. You could keep the national debt from increasing for a full 28 seconds. The debt increases at the rate of $13,000 every second. (ABC-9)

CLINTON

Jennings: We begin in Little Rock tonight, where Gov. Clinton is doing his last-minute shopping for a new Cabinet, and like a lot of other people showing just a little irritation as the deadline gets closer. Mr. Clinton has said he wants to have his Cabinet in place by Christmas. He has six more positions to go after filling two today: a former governor, Richard Reilly, for secretary of education, and a businesswoman, Hazel O'Leary, for secretary of energy.

(ABC-Lead, CBS-Lead, NBC-Lead)

PRICE FIXING

Rather: Eight major U.S. airlines were charged with price fixing today, including American Airlines, TWA, Delta and Continental. The Justice Department says the airlines broke the law by sharing price information through their computerized ticket system.

Dear Mr. President,

DWB

One of the last things my mother did was to vote for you in 1988. She died a month after the election at the age of 92. She took great pleasure in casting the vote not only because of her admiration for you, but also from the happy recollections of dances at Yale when she had known your father.

All of this comes to mind because of your mother's recent death at the age of 92.

Having shared the experience of having these remarkable women at the head of our families for so long, we equally share the sense of loss. Justice Holmes observed that the death of a parent "strikes at the roots", and he was right. It is impossible not to feel such loss as Christmas approaches, in spite of the joy of the season. I am sure that you are finding it so and wanted you to know that we are thinking of you.

Dear George:

You will always be our President, but in this case I shall revert back to our longtime friendship in my salutation.

A situation beyond our control kept Elaine and me from attending the services for your wonderful and lovely mother on Monday. How well I remember when Dotie and her family moved into Greenway - ages past - the field club and tennis, golf at Round Hill.

What a warm, friendly and charming lady.
Whenever she went she added an added touch and warmth to the occasion. Then of course through the "T" I got to know your fine Dad.
You - at Country Day - and over the many years - then at Yale. Bless you for all you have done for our Country!

Your mother had a gentle greatness that may not come around again for a long time, and I just wanted to share some of those long ago, yet everlasting memories of a truly great person.
You and Barbara shall always have my warmest and affectionate regards - Walter

Dear George and Barbara,

For 1961, as Henry Walker kept abed away,

I wrote not to your mother, aware that one very remarkable maternal was dying, finally, her month to the next. Henry Walker, despite that first notebook was talking with her free hand, your mother's spine torn away, supporting her, full - knowing what was taking place and so many confident in her success

It has a moment that focused in on the very meaning of the Book - Walker's legacy, a moment about love, about responsibility about service and about Contribution. And now your mother's death get by. While I am still a Canadian citizen I do compare for you as the best champion of those who. Unfortunately, among the many Mexican establishment figures I know, there is a severe disappointment for that trust and in its place a misinterpreted perception, kindly broad - cast, that you are no more than a privileged little -

.. (When no lobby can buy it). Well, good for you! Thank you both for living and that moment as our leaders. The story will know that out on the end

My deepest sympathy

Dear Mr. President

I have just come from the NAFTA signing ceremony at the OAS, and I want to tell you again how moved and impressed I was by your words. You eloquently articulated the essential goals and progress toward hemisphere cooperation and your talk will resound throughout the Continent.

May I just add a personal word? I know that there are not easy times for you and I deeply admire the dignity and sensitivity of your example of respect for the democratic process. You are showing the nation and the world what William James meant when he said our "civic genius" as a people is "tried and discomfited good temper toward the other side" when it fully wins its inning. You are demonstrating the best of that "civic genius" as a lasting example for all of us and we are grateful.

Although I did not see you often in recent years I have always treasured our friendship - and always shall. I wish every good thing to you and Mrs. Bush and many years ahead of happiness and fulfillment.

Dear Mr. President,

I suppose it is not very often that a state legislator gets the opportunity to visit the White House - especially twice in as many days. Today it was lunch with my fellow "Nutmegger" Cliff Alderman, and tomorrow evening I am told I will stand in the Oval Office.

Knowing that this is a once-in-a-lifetime chance, I thought I would take advantage of the opportunity to leave you a note to express my admiration and gratitude for all you have done for our nation in your lifetime of service.

I entered the Connecticut state House four years ago as you entered the White House. (Perhaps we also share an affection for Maine, because I married a Cape Elizabeth native in June and we always tend to be in Maine at the same time!)

• For what it may be worth, sir, from this legislator's standpoint you have guided our country well - in the world community and here at home. It is a pity that your domestic agenda was never given a chance to work, either by the majority party you face here in Washington or the one I face in Hartford. Not enough people actually sat down and read it, but that's politics.

Should this letter reach you, I know it will do so at a busy time, with you directing the forces of the United States - and the world - on a mission of hope. So let me just say thank you, Mr. President. I am proud to serve with you, to share the same party with you, and perhaps an ideal or two about what it means to live in this democracy - and our duty to serve it.

America is a better place because of your steady hand, as is the world. I wish you and your family many healthy and happy years to come.

(Maybe I'll see you in Maine sometime!)

SUBJECT: SUGGESTED LETTER FOR THE PRESIDENT'S READING FILE

Attached is a letter to the President from State Representative Brian Flaherty (R-CT). Rep. Flaherty was first elected to the Connecticut Legislature in 1988 and, at age 27, is still the youngest member of the Legislature.

Rep. Flaherty has written a very touching letter commending the President for his accomplishments over the past four years. I recommend it be included in the President's reading file.

If you have any questions, I can be reached at x-6697 or through Signal during Christmas week.

For Immediate Release

December 22, 1992

STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

President Bush will visit relief operations and United States military forces in Somalia on New Year's Day. The President's visit will demonstrate United States concern for the people of Somalia, our commitment to humanitarian assistance, and our support for Americans and United Nations forces. The President will leave the U.S. on December 30, and arrive on December 31 to spend New Year's Eve with U.S. troops. On January 1 he will visit relief operations in Somalia, and plans on departing the country that evening.

December 22, 1992

STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

The President met today with the Foreign Ministers from Austria, Hungary, Poland, and Slovenia -- representing members of the Central European Initiative -- to discuss the crisis in the Balkans. The Foreign Ministers emphasized their concerns over the direction of events in the former Yugoslavia.

The President expressed deep concern over the violence still wracking Bosnia and highlighted the efforts that the United States has taken, along with the EC and other concerned nations, to help alleviate the suffering of innocents. He recognized the importance of stability to the new democracies of the region, including those represented in the meeting, and encouraged them to work in support of the efforts under the auspices of the United Nations and CSCE to help defuse the crisis and contribute to the search for a political settlement.

The President today recognized the volunteers of the Tutoring Team of Livonia, Michigan, as the 996th Daily Point of Light for the Nation. Volunteers provide educational opportunities and hope for the future to Hispanic youth in their community.

Founded in 1988 in response to the growing school drop-out rate in the minority-populated area of suburban Detroit, the Tutoring Team is co-directed by Jose Lopez and Ricardo Campos, both of whom are employees of Michigan Bell. The volunteers tutor young students on Saturday mornings from 9:00 a.m. to noon, fostering a positive attitude toward education and the development of language skills among young people, for many of whom English is a second language.

On a typical Saturday morning, children bring their school assignments and review with their tutors the past week's class work. Tutors discuss the week's lessons and prepare material to be covered the following week. Currently, 40 volunteers work with 85 students, developing beneficial, one-to-one relationships with them.

A critical factor in the Tutoring Team's success has been its open communication with local schools. Inquiries are made to the local schools about the students' needs, and local principals provide the students' progress reports to the tutors. Tutors also send schools reports of their work with the students. In addition, a local college professor oversees the training of volunteers at the beginning of each year of operation.

The President salutes the volunteers of the Tutoring Team for exemplifying his belief that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

The President today recognized Theresa Orzechowski of Newburgh, New York, as the 995th Daily Point of Light for the Nation. Mrs. Orzechowski, the founder of Our Lady of Comfort Shelter for Women and Providence House Shelter for Men, offers hope for the future for families in need.

Thirteen years ago, Mrs. Orzechowski was asked by her church to find temporary housing for teenage girls and responded by bringing them into her home. Afterwards, she received more requests to provide shelter for young women in need of housing, many of whom were unwed, pregnant, runaways from abusive homes, or prostitutes trying to change their lifestyle. In 1980, she expanded her services by opening Our Lady of Comfort Shelter in a vacant building which she rented for a nominal fee in exchange for renovating it. Later, she established Providence House Shelter for Men, which burned down in 1985. All the labor and equipment for the buildings was donated by local unions.

Mrs. Orzechowski spends seven to eight hours a day, seven days a week, at the shelter ministering to residents and overseeing the work of the housemothers and volunteers. Volunteers include local church members, students, and West Point cadets. Residents at the shelter receive counseling from trained volunteers, referrals to social service agencies and clergy, and opportunities to earn a G.E.D. through local programs. Volunteers serve shelter residents in a family environment, offering acceptance and guidance. According to Mrs. Orzechowski, fifty percent of shelter residents eventually establish independence and find suitable living accommodations. Over the past twelve years, her volunteers have assisted over 17,000 people.

Mrs. Orzechowski also operates a soup kitchen to distribute bags of donated food each morning and to serve dinner to 100 individuals each night. In addition, she organizes an annual holiday party for children living in the shelter, and this year she organized one for disabled children in the area.

The President salutes Theresa Orzechowski for exemplifying his belief that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

On this Christmas Day, the President recognized Bob Richie of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, as the 994th Daily Point of Light for the Nation. Mr. Richie provides love, friendship, and physical comfort for patients at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children.

For the past two and a half years, Mr. Richie, 53, has been a "grandfather" to hundreds of children admitted to the hospital, many of whom have recently undergone or are preparing for transplant surgery. Although he started volunteering two days a week, he now goes to the hospital a minimum of five days a week, eight hours a day, arriving by 7:00 in the morning and leaving around 4:00 in the afternoon. During the more than 45 hours that Mr. Richie spends at the hospital each week, he is devoted to the children, feeding them, bathing them, rocking them, reading to them, playing games with them, or simply listening to them. He visits a child anywhere from half an hour to four hours, depending on the needs of the child.

Mr. Richie's motivation stems from his own struggle with lung cancer. Realizing after his first surgery how scary the experience can be, he could only imagine the terror children must feel. As a result, he has already dedicated more than 2,000 hours to insure that the children receive care and attention on a one-to-one and consistent basis. When the parents are unable to visit the children, Mr. Richie will pay the children special attention, visiting on weekends, birthdays, or other special occasions. Mr. Richie will even visit the children at their homes after they have been released from the hospital.

Mr. Richie is also an incredible resource to both the nursing staff and parents of the children. Whether it be stocking the refrigerator or comforting parents, he fills the gap wherever it might arise. Mr. Richie is often the first person parents will call after speaking with the doctor. According to one of the many nurses that knows him, he is simply "one of those people who leaves a mark on your life that you will never forget."

The President salutes Bob Richie for exemplifying his belief that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

The President today recognized Kate Porter of Columbus, Ohio, as the 993rd Daily Point of Light for the Nation. Kate, age 7, provides care and a sense of well-being to homeless people in her community.

Volunteering monthly at Faith Mission, a local homeless shelter, Kate washes tables, sets them for dinner, prepares beverages, and serves food. Her favorite task is to greet people as they come in for meals. She is the shelter's youngest volunteer and has befriended many of the people during her service. Often she brings her young friends with her to the mission, sharing with them some of her dedication.

In addition to her service at Faith Mission, Kate volunteers at a food pantry with her mother, filling grocery bags with donated food and welcoming people as they pick these essentials. She began her volunteer work on her own accord at age five, when she started saving part of her weekly allowance to give to those in need. She also raised $150 in pledges for "Swim for Diabetes," with no help from her parents.

Kate recently used the occasion of her seventh birthday to give rather than to receive. Instead of allowing friends to bring presents for her, she requested that they donate toys for needy children. She then shipped the toys, along with many of her own, to children in Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Haiti. Next year, she plans to ask her friends to bring food for Faith Mission to serve homeless people.

The President salutes Kate Porter for exemplifying his belief that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

December 21, 1992

The President today declared a major disaster exists in the State of New York and ordered Federal aid to supplement state and local recovery efforts in the area struck by the coastal storm, high tides, heavy rain, and riverine flooding beginning December 10, 1992, and continuing.

The President's action makes Federal funding available to affected individuals and local governments in New York City, Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

Assistance can include temporary housing, grants, low-cost loans to cover uninsured property losses, and other programs to help individuals and business owners recover from the effects of the disaster.

Federal funding also is available to eligible local governments on a cost-sharing basis for the repair or replacement of public facilities damaged by the coastal storm.

Wallace E. Stickney, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), named Jose A. Bravo of FEMA's regional office in New York, New York to coordinate Federal recovery operations in the affected area.

The Agency said that damage surveys are continuing in other areas, and additional counties may be added after the assessments are completed.

The Agency said that residents and business owners who sustained losses in the designated counties can begin applying for assistance immediately by calling 1-800-462-9029, or 1-800-462-7585 (TDD) for the hearing and speech impaired. The toll-free telephone numbers will operate from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. (EST) seven days a week until further notice.

[Weinberger]

*Early Draft
(12-22-77)*

I am announcing that I am exercising my power under the Constitution to pardon former Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger for his conduct related to the Iran-Contra affair. 9

For more than six years now, the American people have invested enormous resources into what has become the most thoroughly investigated matter in recent memory, and perhaps in our history. In these years, the last American hostage has come home to freedom, world-wide terrorism has declined, the people of Nicaragua have elected a democratic government and the Cold War has ended in victory for the American people and the cause of freedom we championed.

In the mid 1980's, however, the outcome of these struggles was far from clear. Some of the best and most dedicated of our countrymen were called upon to step forward. Secretary Weinberger was among the foremost. Caspar Weinberger is a true American patriot. He has rendered long and extraordinary service to our country.

Caspar Weinberger served for four years in the Army during World War II where his bravery earned him a Bronze Star. He gave up a lucrative career in private life to accept a series of public positions in the late 1960s and 1970s, including Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Director of OMB and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. In all these positions, Caspar Weinberger excelled, and he was admired as a public servant above reproach.

He saved his best public service for last. As Secretary of Defense throughout most of the Reagan Presidency, Caspar Weinberger was one of the principal architects of the downfall of the Berlin Wall and the Soviet Union. He directed the military renaissance in this country that led directly to the breakup of the communist bloc and a new birth of freedom and democracy. Upon his resignation in 1987, Caspar Weinberger was awarded the highest civilian medal our nation can offer its citizens, the Presidential Medal of Freedom and Distinction.

Of course, Secretary Weinberger's legacy will endure beyond the ending of the Cold War. The military readiness of this nation that resulted in large part from the build-up that he led could not have been better displayed than it was two years ago in the Persian Gulf and today in Somalia.

As Secretary Weinberger's pardon request noted, it is a bitter irony that on the day the first charges against Secretary Weinberger were filed, Russian President Boris Yeltsin arrived in the United States to celebrate the end of the Cold War. Instead of praise for his contribution to this historic moment, Caspar Weinberger's reward was a five count felony indictment.

I am pardoning Caspar Weinberger not just to spare a 75 year-old patriot the torment of lengthy and costly legal proceedings, but to make it possible for him to receive the honor he deserves for his extraordinary service to our country.

Moreover, on a somewhat more personal note, I am not unaware of the debilitating illnesses faced by Caspar Weinberger and his wife. When he resigned as Secretary of Defense, it was because of his wife's cancer. In the years since he left public service, her condition has not improved. In addition, since that time, he himself has become ill. Nevertheless, Caspar Weinberger has been a pillar of strength for her; this pardon will enable him to be by her side undistracted by the ordeal of a costly and arduous trial.

Some may argue that this decision will prevent full disclosure of some new key fact to the American people. That is not true. In fact, this matter has been exhaustively investigated. The Tower Board, the Joint Congressional Committee charged with investigating the Iran-Contra affair, and the Independent Counsel have looked into every aspect of this matter. The Tower Board interviewed more than 80 people, and reviewed thousands of documents. The Joint Congressional Committee interviewed more than 500 people, and reviewed more than 300,000 pages of material. Lengthy committee hearings were held and broadcast on national television to millions of Americans. The Independent Counsel investigation has, over the past six years, cost more than $31 million dollars.

Moreover, the Independent Counsel stated in September of this year that he had completed the active phase of his investigation. He will have the opportunity to place his full assessment of all the evidence in the public record when he submits his final report. While no impartial person has seriously suggested that my own role in this matter is legally questionable, I have further requested that the Independent Counsel provide me with a copy of my official statement to his office, which I am prepared to release immediately. And I understand Secretary Weinberger has requested the release of all of his notes pertaining to the Iran-Contra matter. For more than thirty years in public service, I have tried to follow three precepts: honor, decency and fairness. I know, from all those years of service, that the American people believe in fairness and fair play. It would be deeply unfair to allow an honorable man who sought to serve our country to be branded as a criminal because he was embroiled in a political and policy cross-fire between the President and the Congress. Today, I am doing what I believe honor, decency and fairness require.

(1) Why are you doing this now, rather than before the election?

(2) I notice you did not say Caspar Weinberger is innocent.

(3) What was the Department of Justice recommendation?

(4) Is poor health and age as important for other criminal defendants? What about Clark Clifford?

(5) Why not Clarridge (George, Abrams, North, etc.)?

(6) Why not wait until after trial?

(7) How often are pre-trial pardons granted for individuals? Wasn't Nixon the last?

(8) Isn't there a conflict of interest, given your own role in the Iran-Contra scandal?

(9) Isn't this retaliation on your part for the pre-election charge against Weinberger?

(10) How do you explain the discrepancy between Weinberger's note about the January 7, 1986 meeting and your statement that you were "out of the loop" on this matter?

*1 WHAT'S AHEAD: WILL THERE BE A SURPRISE TODAY?

Pres.-elect Clinton will hold a press conference at 3:00p EST today to announce more Cabinet and sub-Cabinet appointments. HOTLINE sources say expect some "surprises" -- names not floated around in the media. Today's focus is the foreign policy/security team (12/22). AP's Fournier cites a Clinton adviser as saying today's appointments would involve: Warren Christopher for State., Les Aspin for Defense, Anthony Lake for NSA, Madeleine Albright for U.N. Amb., ex-Navy Undersec. James Woolsey for CIA Dir. and ex-U.N. Amb. Thomas Pickering for Dep. Sec/State (12/22). Sandy Berger is expected to be named deputy NSA (mult.). Clinton is expected to name the final six Cabinet members "by tomorrow," including AG, "likely to go to a woman," and State, Defense, Agriculture, Interior and Transp. (Black, BOSTON GLOBE, 12/22). Front-runners for the remaining posts: Rep. Mike Espy (D-MS) for Ag, ex-AZ Gov. Bruce Babbitt for Interior, Chicago banker Wm Daley for Trans. Several women are under consideration for AG, but there is no clear front-runner.

BABBITT: W.S. JOURNAL's Birnbaum & Noah report Babbitt's name has come up for U.S. Trade Rep. Babbitt "has been talked about mostly" for Interior, "a job he still might get." But if Babbitt were nominated for Trade Rep., "that could end squabbling between free trade advocates and the more protectionist elements of the Democratic Party." Babbitt "is considered by the Clinton camp as someone who is able to handle almost any job offered." Babbitt as Trade Rep. would make room for Rep. Bill Richardson (D-NM) for Interior (12/22). NBC's Mitchell noted, besides women's groups, "Hispanic groups want more representation in the Cabinet, so Babbitt "may lose" Interior to Richardson (12/21).

AGRICULTURE: Ex-USDA general counsel Ruth Harkin, wife of Sen. Tom Harkin (D-IA), "remains on the short list," although Espy "has been telling associates he is going to take the job" (Birnbaum/Noah, W.S. JOURNAL, 12/22). "The most likely nominees to be made next" are Espy and Babbitt. Espy met with Clinton yesterday morning (Lauter, L.A. TIMES, 12/22).

ATTORNEY GENERAL: "Several potential choices have asked their names be withdrawn," including U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Patricia Wald and Carter Ed. Sec. Shirley Hufstedler (Lauter, L.A. TIMES, 12/22). "No clear favorite has publicly emerged" (Barabak, COPLEY/S.D. UNION-TRIBUNE, 12/22). BOSTON GLOBE's Black calls Hufstedler, DC atty Brooksley Born, NY State Court of Appeals Judge Judith Kaye and U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Amalya Kearse the "leading candidates" (12/22). N.Y. TIMES' Ifill reports Clinton "asked his top selection," Wald, "to reconsider her decision to remove herself from consideration" (12/22). Evans & Novak report, "Contradicting the leaked explanation" that Wald originally turned down an offer "because she did not want to lose her pension rights, well-placed sources say the real reason she will not be in the Cabinet is that her private interview with Clinton went awry." According to sources, Wald and Clinton "could not agree on who would have control" over who would be deputy AG or Solicitor General (BOSTON HERALD, 12/20).

DEFENSE: WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL's Hall reports for the third straight election year, House Armed Services chair Les Aspin's (D-WI) "unique efforts to help companies obtain federal contracts have been followed by a jump in political contributions from those companies." Aspin "received at least $182,000 from employees and [PACs] of companies that have worked with the Aspin Procurement Institute." For the past six years, Aspin has been honorary chair of the "tax-exempt, non-profit institute which uses defense funds and corporate contributions to help Wisconsin companies obtain contracts." WI Common Cause exec. dir. Wm Hauda: "Aspin is going to have to re-examine his ties to that institute." Public Citizen's Ralph Nader said the institute makes Aspin "a significant innovator in the relentless advance of congressional corruption." Explaining the institute before the 11/3 election, Aspin: "I can't deliver the damn contract for [WI-based] Rayovac. What I can do is make sure if Rayovac wants to bid that they talk to the right person" (12/21). STATE JOURNAL lead editorial praises Aspin as Clinton's likely pick for Defense, but a companion editorial calls for Aspin to "sever all ties with the institute and save Clinton the trouble of asking him to do so" (12/21).

TRANSPORTATION: Daley "will be nominated ... perhaps as early as today" (Birnbaum/Noah, W.S. JOURNAL, 12/22).

U.N. AMBASSADOR: Ex-Carter NSC staffer Madeleine Albright met with Clinton in Little Rock. She is considered a "likely candidate" for U.N. Amb., a position Bush removed from Cabinet-level status. "Clinton is likely to reverse that move, aides said, in part to provide an additional slot that could be used to diversify his team" (Lauter, L.A. TIMES, 12/22). N.Y. TIMES' Ifill reports ex-VT Gov. Madeleine Kunin "has emerged" as a candidate for U.N. Amb. (12/22). BOSTON GLOBE's Black reports Amb. to Canada "has been discussed" with Kunin (12/21).

CIA DIRECTOR: Ex-Navy Undersec. James Woolsey met with Clinton in Little Rock. Woolsey has "emerged as a contender" for CIA Director (Lauter, L.A. TIMES, 12/22).

*2 YESTERDAY'S APPOINTMENTS: IRISH EYES ARE SMILING

Clinton nominated ex-SC Gov. Dick Riley to be Educ. Sec. and Northern States Power Co. VP Hazel O'Leary to be Energy Sec.

RILEY: L.A. TIMES' Savage notes the education efforts of several Southern Govs. in the '80s: Riley, Clinton, MS' Winter, NC's Hunt, FL's Graham and TN's Alexander. Among them, "Riley probably gained the least national recognition. ... But education experts have applauded Riley's school-reform plan as the broadest and most effective of them all" (12/22). "The choice of Riley, whose sticks-as-well-as-carrots approach some compare" to Ed. Sec. Lamar Alexander, "seems to be getting approval from liberals and conservatives alike." NEA pres. Keith Geiger said if Clinton "wasn't going to pick a real live kindergarten teacher, this was the best he could do" (Flint, BOSTON GLOBE, 12/22). AFT pres. Al Shanker called the choice an "excellent decision," noting in SC Riley "recognized that real changes require transforming the whole system, not just depending on a single magic bullet" (release, 12/21). "A pragmatic coalition-builder" (Sponhour, KNIGHT-RIDDER, 12/22). An "unassuming man" (Shameer, ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT-GAZETTE, 12/22). Riley "is expected to put more emphasis on improving public education than on school choice" (De Witt, N.Y. TIMES, 12/22). "One of the pre-eminent education governors in the early days of the reform movement" (Innerst, W. TIMES, 12/22). The choices of Riley and Henry Cisneros to HUD "suggest that in the two areas where the Bush administration had clear policy thrusts -- education and housing -- changes will be less drastic than some conservatives feared" (Hallow, W. TIMES, 12/22). Nat'l Assn of Secondary School Principals' Timothy Dyer: "He never played the game of declaring himself the education governor but doing nothing about it" (USA TODAY, 12/22). "In a crowd of politicians, he's the one mistaken for a staffer" (Jordan, W. POST, 12/22). L.A. TIMES editorial: "[Riley] shares with Lamar Alexander ... a strong progressive belief that education is the key to economic development" (12/22).

O'LEARY: O'Leary, the first woman named to head the Energy Dept., "has won praise from those who have worked with her -- and against her -- as intelligent, hard-working and willing to listen" (Sponhour/Laszewski, PHILA. INQUIRER, 12/22). She is "no stranger to the Washington energy scene. She served on federal energy posts under both Presidents Ford and Carter. She is considered an expert on nuclear waste disposal" (Tardy, ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT-GAZETTE, 12/22). The "brightest feather in her cap" at Northern States is a plan to have the utility generate 100 megawatts of power through windmills by 1999. That would make MN second only to CA in wind-powered energy (Abramson, L.A. TIMES, 12/22). O'Leary's appointment "came as a surprise to some energy experts," who expected retiring CO Sen. Tim Wirth to get the job. Wirth "had been under fire" for several issues and some GOPers were promising a confirmation fight. Clinton "suggested that [O'Leary] had been the number one candidate all along and called the speculation about Wirth 'a bunch of bull'" (McDonald, HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 12/22). Wirth: "I would have been pleased to serve, but am equally pleased to be returning to private life." He called O'Leary "a wise and prudent choice, a tough-minded and able leader" (Wirth release, 12/22). In her remarks, O'Leary "blasted 20 years of failed policies and said it's time for an overhaul" (Edmonds, USA TODAY, 12/22). She "has no experience with the politically volatile and extremely expensive nuclear weapons factories, which consume most of the Energy Department's budget" (Lippman, W. POST, 12/22). She "fits the developing mold of the Clinton [Admin.] in that she is familiar with [DC's] power brokers in her field even though her own views are not widely known" (Feder, N.Y. TIMES, 12/22). Clinton "has picked someone who started her career in government pushing energy conservation programs and ended her private career trying to get rid of nuclear waste" (Laszewski, KNIGHT-RIDDER, 12/22). NPR's Arnold: "Energy efficiency experts, along with industry officials all said O'Leary must have been chosen in part because she is a black woman and Clinton pledged to put together a diverse Cabinet, but in making this appointment Clinton said he asked specifically for the names of women in the energy field." Arnold adds that WH CoS-designee Mack McLarty "suggested O'Leary" (12/22).

*3 CLINTON: LASHES OUT AT 'BEAN COUNTERS' AND 'MATH GAMES'

Pres.-elect Clinton "angrily lashed out at leaders of women's groups ... calling those who have been critical of the low number of female appointments to his Cabinet 'bean counters' who are playing 'quota games and math games'" (Baer, Balto. SUN, 12/22). Clinton called their demands "amazing" and "astonishing" but they "continued to lobby" transition officials and were "unfazed by Clinton's barbed complaints" (Kasindorf, N.Y. NEWSDAY, 12/22). When it is completed, Clinton said his Cabinet will "not only be diverse 'but also one in which different kinds of people have more real influence and impact and full partnership and participation in the deliberations of this administration than ever before. And I think that's what really counts.'" Clinton said his critics were "demeaning" other high-level appointments by "focusing on the 14-member Cabinet and ignoring key government jobs elsewhere" (COPLEY/S.D. UNION-TRIBUNE, 12/22). "Despite reports" Clinton said he did not feel "hamstrung" by his "diversity pledge" (Lewis, DALLAS MORNING NEWS, 12/22). ABC's Hume: "An example, perhaps, of seeming not to give in to special interest pressure, while giving those women's groups exactly what they want" (12/21). NBC's Brokaw: "The last thing Bill Clinton must have expected" (12/21). NPR's Liasson: "In Washington 'bean counter' and 'quota' are fighting words. Clinton's aides denied that his outburst was calculated to show he couldn't be pushed around by the women's groups. They said Clinton really feels he's trying hard to find women, but an aide confided 'It never hurts to demonstrate your independence from a Democratic interest group.' Or as another put it more bluntly 'he didn't want to be mow-mowed by a bunch of crazy feminists'" (12/22).

CHARACTERIZATIONS OF CLINTON: L.A. TIMES' Lauter reports Clinton "told staff members ahead of time that he planned to make ... [the] angry statement." His "anger may have been feigned somewhat for political purposes -- when truly angry, his temper is far more volcanic." It "may have been a way for him to extricate himself" from pressure groups. A Clinton aide: "It was not a full-scale blow-up" (12/22). "Contemptuously accusing" (Barabak, COPLEYS.D. UNION-TRIBUNE, 12/22). He "appeared to grow indignant when asked about the criticism" (Oman, DEMOCRAT-GAZETTE, 12/22). "Caustic remarks" (Baer, Balto. SUN, 12/22). "Most testy news conference performance since the election" (Birnbaum/Noah, W.S. JOURNAL, 12/22). CNN's Blitzer: "He strongly expressed his frustration" (12/21). Transition staffers said he "continued to complain bitterly after leaving the stage" (Marcus, W. POST, 12/22). "Tough language" (Nagourney, USA TODAY, 12/22). NBC's Mitchell: "Visibly angry" (12/21). "Unusually candid" (Ifill, N.Y. TIMES, 12/22). "Visibly hot under the collar ... [the] outburst was a rare glimpse of the temper he usually keeps under control in public" (Orin, N.Y. POST, 12/22). "Miffed-sounding" (Milligan, N.Y. DAILY NEWS, 12/22). ABC's Jennings: "Clinton is doing his last-minute shopping for a new Cabinet, and like a lot of other people, showing just a little irritation as the deadline gets closer" (12/21). Harriet Woods: "What I want to tell him is that we're ready to help. But it really is up to him. He has a chance now to fulfill that commitment, and women are waiting now to see whether he does." Dem analyst Bob Beckel: "I think what he meant was the diversity of views. He did not mean taking the 1990 census and taking it down to the decimal point." Fred Barnes: "You live by the quota game, you die by it. ... Everybody thought when he said, 'I'm going to have a Cabinet that's a picture of America,' that he did mean gender and race. ... It was bound to happen" ("CBS This Morning," 12/22).

RIGHT BACK ATCHA: NOW pres. Patricia Ireland: "Sounds a little defensive to me" (BOSTON GLOBE, 12/22). Fund for Feminist Majority pres. Eleanor Smeal: "We should never be denigrated by being called a bean counter. If people call us a little overactive, better than sitting on the sidelines" (N.Y. NEWSDAY, 12/22). NWPC pres. Harriet Woods: "It amazes me to see that male politicians get so upset when women exert their political muscle" (KNIGHT-RIDDER, 12/22). Woods, in a letter to Clinton: "It is ironic that the 'Year of the Woman' in politics is ending in a struggle salvage a few Cabinet nominations for women" (Coalition release, 12/21). USA TODAY's Nagourney notes, "Clinton himself raised these groups' expectations" (12/22). CBS' Spencer: "Seeing Clinton's reaction today, others worry that holding his feet too close to the fire could boomerang" (12/21). In the context of all posts, not just women, W.S. JOURNAL's Hunt writes, "the word from the influence peddlers is that 'Bill Clinton is someone we can do business with.' In other words: This guy can be rolled." But Clinton has "two perfect vehicles" to change that assessment: The line-item veto and campaign finance reform (12/22).

COMING NEXT: Leaders of women's groups showed "no indication of being chastened" by Clinton's "displeasure" when they met with Transition chair Vernon Jordan 12/21 (Marcus, W. POST, 12/22). Amer. Assn of Univ. Women dir. Anne Bryant: "The meeting was overlaid with a flurry about the morning's news" (Roman, W. TIMES, 12/22). Clinton "has also chosen -- but not yet announced -- a woman for surgeon general, and is considering women" for AG, U.S. Trade Rep. and U.N. AMB (Epstein/Ullmann, KNIGHT-RIDDER, 12/22).

*4 CLINTON AND GAYS: FOCUSED ON EARLY; NOW BEING IGNORED?

In a NEW REPUBLIC piece, USA TODAY's Nagourney writes, "As is now generally acknowledged, this election was a landmark for the visibility of homosexuals in American politics. But now the prospects for gay progress are dimmer. The new administration, having opened ties with a fractious gay movement, finds that it has taken on more than it bargained for. Already there are tremors of gay discontent and divisions over the compromises of power." First, Clinton has "softened his pledge to repeal the military's gay ban." Second, his aides say the first 27 appointments, his transition cmte. "is aiming to fill do not include an AIDS Czar, despite the stress Clinton placed on it during the campaign." Dem convention speaker Bob Hattoy: "Am I concerned? Yeah. Act up over it? Not yet." There are also "signs that the divisions in the gay political world may allow Clinton to put distance between himself and gay issues." The "rift" in gay politics between "traditional groups," such as the Human Rights Campaign Fund, and the "radicals," such as Queer Nation, "has widened dramatically." The established groups "tend to have a conventional liberal agenda: ending the military ban, a gay civil rights law, recognition of gay families and more AIDS funding." Clinton's victory to these groups, was "a vindication for gay people who have been working in traditional politics for over [25] years." The left "argues that the election was no unmitigated coup for gays and that more radicalism is needed for any substantive progress." The Clinton camp "was just as ambivalent about homosexuals as the candidate himself." Except for an old friend, David Mixner, "there are no openly gay senior Clinton advisers -- and even Mixner's access is decidedly limited" (NEW REPUBLIC, 1/4-11 issue).

IS THERE HOPE? S.F. EXAMINER's Ness reports, "Openly gay people ... are filling an unprecedented 13 spots" on the transition team. Mixner: "This is historic for us, having (openly) gay people on the transition team. It's never been done before." The 13 appointees "are assigned not just to areas one might expect, such as civil rights, but to a broad range" of areas. A coalition of 18 gay, lesbian and AIDS groups, who helped screen individuals for jobs in the transition, is also "promoting candidates" for possible appointments in the admin. (12/18). W. POST's Masters writes, "For gay people, the inauguration of [Clinton] will be an opportunity to celebrate." Three national gay rights groups are sponsoring an inaugural ball "held specifically for gay people." The Triangle Ball will be held at the National Press Club (12/19).

NATIONAL BRIEFING =====

*5 STATE DEPARTMENT: MULLINS NAMED IN UNSEALED ORDER

A preliminary DoJ investigation "uncovered evidence that [WH] aide Janet Mullins may have helped 'encourage and direct' the preelection search of [Clinton's] passport files and then lied about her involvement to State Department investigators, according to court papers unsealed yesterday" (Isikoff/Pincus, W. POST, 12/22). The allegations against Mullins "were made in the DoJ's request for appointment of an independent prosecutor to investigate possible crimes. The text of the request was disclosed" by the U.S. Ct. of Appeals for DC, "in response to a petition" by CBS, N.Y. TIMES and W. POST (Pear, N.Y. TIMES, 12/22). Though Mullins, a special asst. to the President for political affairs, is the only one named, "the order in effect gives" special prosecutor Joseph diGenova "the power to conduct a wide-ranging inquiry that is almost certain to reach into the upper levels of the Bush" WH. DiGenova, in an interview said he'd "conduct a full and fair investigation. ... We will take the evidence wherever it goes" (W. POST, 12/22). ABC's McWethy: "Although many in the White House were stunned by Barr's request for an Independent Counsel, the move does prevent further investigation of this political scandal by the Democrats when they take over next month." Both ABC and CBS reported Mullins is the target of the probe (12/21).

THE ORDER: In the written request for special counsel, AG Wm Barr wrote: "I determined that the allegations against Mullins were specific and from credible sources," adding that an investigation beyond the DoJ's preliminary inquiry was justified. Barr noted, "that Mullins was twice interviewed by the [State Dept.'s] inspector general's office and during one of those interviews, denied 'knowledge or, or participation in, the search of Clinton's files.'" Barr continued: "Other evidence directly contradicts Mullins' statements ... There is also evidence that Mullins was aware of the interest in Clinton's files before the search occurred and that Mullins helped encourage and direct the search" (W. POST, 12/22). Barr said that sources for the charges included ex-asst. Sec/State Elizabeth Tamposi, who was dismissed from State 11/10 (N.Y. TIMES, 12/22).

OPINION: W. POST editorial: "Given the seriousness of the of the criminal offenses on the table, Mr. diGenova's task is to thoroughly and exhaustively sort this out, and fast" (12/22). W. POST's McGrory: "The most Baker can hope for, it seems, is for exoneration from any part in a potentially criminal blunder he thinks he should not even be suspected of" (12/22).

*6 HOUSE: NOW ISN'T THAT SPECIAL! A 1993 CALENDAR

Via appointment by Pres.-elect Clinton, appointment to VP-elect Gore's Senate seat, election/appointment to Treasury Sec.-designate Bentsen's Senate seat, or by resignation, there will be a number of early 1993 special elections to the U.S. House. Here are names mentioned, with CD, recent election history and state rules governing the process. (Note: Of those listed only Leon Panetta, Clinton's OMB Dir.-designate, is certain to be leaving.)

US REP (Party)	STATE & CD	WINNING PCT.	RULE ON FILLING VACANCY
Leon Panetta (D)	CA-17	92 90 88 72 74 79	Within 2 weeks, Gov (R) sets date 112-119 days from that proclamation.
Jill Long (D) (Note: # = special election)	IN-04	62 61 51#	Gov (D) sets date; State party officials in District caucus and nominate candidates.
Mike Espy (D)	MS-02	76 84 65	Within 60 days, Gov (R) sets date 40 days later for open General, with a top two runoff two weeks later if no one gets 50%.
Bill Richardson (D)	NM-03	67% 74% 73%	Within 10 days, Gov (D) sets date 84-91 days from vacancy, with the 2 party Cmtes picking candidates.
Bill Gradison (R)	OH-02	70 64 72	Gov (R) sets dates "upon satisfactory information" with Primary 10 or more days before General. SOP for getting on ballot.
Jim Cooper (D)	TN-04	67 67 100	Within 10 days, Gov (D) sets dates for Primary (55-60 days from call), and general (100-107 days from call).
Bob Clement (D)	TN-05	73 72 100	Same.
Bart Gordon (D)	TN-06	57 67 76	Same.
Joe Barton (R)	TX-06	72 67 68	Date of open General will be 5/1, 8/14 or 11/2 (1st one that is 36 days after vacancy), with a top two runoff 4-5 weeks later if no one gets 50%.
Jim Chapman (D)	TX-01	100 61 62	Same.
John Bryant (D)	TX-05	60 60 61	Same.
Martin Frost (D)	TX-24	60 100 93	Same.
Michael Andrews (D)	TX-25	57 100 71	Same.
Les Aspin (D)	WI-01	58 99 74	Gov (R) sets general date 62-77 days from call, with Primaries (4 weeks earlier) if candidates get 1000-2000 signatures.

*7 ARIZONA: '94 GOV. AND SEN. RACES BEGINNING TO RUMBLE

Sec/State Richard Mahoney (D) "is the most prominent" of Gov. Fife Symington's (R) would-be opponents according to consultant Bob Robb. Robb "points to a letter" Mahoney sent to Symington last week "telling [him] how and why he should restrict his travels." Mahoney "acknowledged the news release was beyond the purview of his office, but said that [Dems] like himself need to be speaking out about Symington's actions." Robb: "I certainly have heard Mahoney is tramping around Democratic circles and trying to line up support. Clearly this is an effort to position himself as governor." Mahoney has set an exploratory cmte, "but is playing down interest." Ex-Phoenix Mayor/'90 Symington opponent Terry Goddard (D) "said he remains interested in a rematch." Symington spokesperson Doug Cole "said the governor has better things to do than keep tracks of Democrats jockeying." Both potential candidates "said Symington will be vulnerable in two years and point to" a Resolution Trust Corp. lawsuit against him having to do with his dealings with Southwest Savings & Loan. Robb said if this lawsuit or "something else political, cripples him," then AG Grant Woods (R) "would be waiting in the wings" (AP/PHOENIX GAZETTE, 12/21).

IF YOU GOTTA, YOU GOTTA: ARIZONA REPUBLIC's Barker writes, Sen. Dennis DeConcini (D), "who has called for curtailing the role of special-interest groups in election campaigns, has been gathering money from just the sort of organizations whose influence he wants to curb." DeConcini "is to be the beneficiary" of a $1,000/person fundraiser organized by the Motion Picture Assn of America at Disney Studios in CA on 1/12. Similar events have been held for him San Francisco and New York. DeConcini "said he wishes he did not have to accept campaign contributions from out-of-state interest groups but that he cannot ignore the reality that such money is needed for election survival." He added, he is not "in the bag" of the MPAA "or any other contributing group. He said he will "pursue legislation, as he did last year, imposing campaign-spending limits and restricting contributions" by PACs. DeConcini: "You don't do it with $10 backyard hot-dog-and-popcorn barbecues. You go to big economic interests, and most of them, not all of them, have some interest in government somewhere down the line" (12/20).

*8 CALIFORNIA: "STRIP JOINT" ALLEGATIONS REVISITED

Four days before the 11/3 election, CA Dem political dir. Bob Mulholland "confronted" GOP Senate nominee Bruce Herschensohn about allegations he frequented a Sunset Blvd "strip joint." Questions "still linger about the origin" of the attack. Herschensohn "maintains" Sen.-elect Barbara Boxer (D) was behind it and Mulholland "continues to say that his was a rogue action and that no one knew about his intentions. But the day before the disclosure, a Washington political activist says she was told by a Boxer fund-raiser that the disclosure was going to occur soon." When it occurred, Mulholland's attack was "condemned" by Dems and GOPers, but now CA Dem chair Phil Angelides says it "was a legitimate issue to raise" (Bunting, L.A. TIMES, 12/21).

THE SCOOP: L.A. TIMES printed 10 questions which were posed to Boxer, Herschensohn, their campaign aides, Dem and GOP officials, political consultants and other knowledgeable sources.

No evidence "has emerged that Boxer ordered the disclosure or knew about it in advance. But the interviews revealed that at least some" Boxer officials were not "as in the dark about the disclosure as they have claimed" (12/21).

BEAN SPILLER: Mulholland said he heard the rumor from two people who worked with Herschensohn at L.A.'s KABC-TV. He then "relayed the information" to Angelides, who was "not interested" in the matter and also "did not consider the information important enough to inform anyone" in the Boxer camp. Mulholland "decided to check the story" and said he went to the "Centerfold Newsstand" where the manager told him Herschensohn was a "regular customer who spent time in the adult section and bought sexually explicit magazines." Mulholland then went to the nude dance club "where a parking attendant outside and a hostess inside confirmed that Herschensohn had frequented" the club. Mulholland "described his decision to expose Herschensohn's conduct as spontaneous." However, a "day before Mulholland's attack," a Boxer fundraiser "alerted" a Dem women's activist in DC that "there is going to be a scandal about Herschensohn' dealing with pornography." None of the sources "said that Boxer knew or that her campaign ordered Mulholland to act" (12/21).

RESPONSE: Herschensohn "now admits that he made a major tactical error by telling reporters he had gone" to the dance club once: "I should never have dignified it with any answer or explanation" (12/21).

DIFI FINED: Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D) agreed to pay a $190,000 fine to the Fair Political Practices Commis. for failing to comply with finance disclosure rules from her unsuccessful '90 gov race. It is the "largest cash settlement" ever for a state-wide candidate (Jacobs, L.A. TIMES, 12/22). S.F. CHRONICLE's Gunnison calls it "the second-largest penalty ever" (12/22).

ONE LESS UNEMPLOYED: Gov. Pete Wilson (R), who appointed ex-Sen. John Seymour (R) to the Senate in '90, named him exec. dir. of the CA Housing Finance Agency. Seymour will direct CA's $5B loan program for low- and moderate-income housing (Ingram, L.A. TIMES, 12/22). The 5-year term requires approval by the state Senate and pays $98,076 annually (S.F. EXAMINER, 12/22).

*9 COLORADO: THE BOYCOTT KEEPS GROWING AND GROWING ...

NPR's Adams reports the S.F. Board of Supervisors "announced that next month it will officially ban the city from doing business with the state of [CO]. The decision adds to a growing number of calls for a nation-wide economic boycott." The U.S. Conference of Mayors has already "agreed to move its 1993 meeting out of" CO Springs, and "several groups have canceled plans to hold conventions in Denver." NPR's Roberts: "The calls for a boycott of [CO] over gay rights have already cost the state close to $10 million dollars in lost convention and tourist business." N.Y., Phila., Austin, Seattle and L.A. "have officially joined the boycott, but the city of Atlanta was the first to protest the vote banning all city travel" to CO. Despite the boycott, December reservations in Aspen are up 12% over last year. Fewer people are expected to show up for Aspen's 'Gay Ski Week' in January, but the event will go ahead as planned. ... Opponents of Amendment 2 promise to put a measure on next year's ballot to overturn the new law, and a bill to wipe out Amendment 2 will likely be introduced when the [CO] legislature convenes" next year ("All Things Considered," 12/21).

*10 ILLINOIS: COMMON CAUSE WANTS OUTSIDE INVESTIGATION ON ROSTY

Common Cause "urged" the House Standards of Official Conduct Cmte "to initiate an investigation into the serious questions raised by recent published reports regarding possible violations" by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski (D-08) "of House ethics rules prohibiting the conversion of campaign funds to personal use." Common Cause pres. Fred Wertheimer, in a letter to House Ethics Cmte chair Louis Stokes (D-OH): "We strongly urge the [Cmte] to initiate an investigation of the Rostenkowski matter involving the leasing of the Noble Street space by his campaign [cmte] and to retain immediately an outside counsel to carry out this investigation." Wertheimer referred to the CHICAGO SUN-TIMES pieces which broke the story (see HOTLINE 12/14 & 12/15). Wertheimer: "We are writing to urge the [cmte.] to exercise its jurisdiction under House Rule 10 to initiate an investigation to determine whether" Rostenkowski "has violated House Rule XLIII, clause 6, which prohibits the conversion of campaign funds to personal use" (Common Cause release, 12/21). A Rostenkowski aide: "It's a functioning office and it's where he hangs out. ... The chairman is confident Common Cause is going to withdraw its complaint once it understands the facts." Wertheimer recently asked the Senate Ethics Cmte to appoint an independent counsel to investigate the harassment allegations surrounding OR GOP Sen. Bob Packwood (Pianin, W. POST, 12/22).

*11 MICHIGAN: ENGLER RATING FALLS; ADD ONE TO "PROBABLY" LIST
Public Sector Consultants poll, surveyed 800 residents, 11/4-8; margin +/- 3.7% (12/18). Tested Gov. John Engler (R)

ENGLER JOB RATING	NOW	7/92
Approve	47%	54%
Disapprove	44	39

Engler's approval rating "has varied between" 41-54% since 4/91, his disapproval has varied between 38-47% (AP, 12/18).

LINE 'EM UP: State Sen. Debbie Stabenow (D) "said she'll probably form an exploratory committee in January to prepare" a campaign against Engler: "I will announce and be in a race that I believe I can win" (AP, 12/21). Stabenow is term limited and is also "buoyed by signs that the 'Year of The Women' isn't necessarily a catch phrase confined only to '92." The "main deterrent" for her "would be if organized labor decides to throw its weight behind another candidate", but overall, Stabenow "would be formidable in a multi-candidate primary where she is the lone female. Even if she if she loses, she'd be an appealing" possibility for LG or Sec/State. Others mentioned for '94: Ex-Gov. James Blanchard (D), Rep. Howard Wolpe (D), ex-Rep. William Brodhead (D), Wayne Co. exec. Edward McNamara (D) (INSIDE MICHIGAN POLITICS, 12/14). AP adds Sen. Don Riegle (D) (12/21).

SPEAKING OF RIEGLE: DETROIT FREE PRESS editorial: In '90, Riegle "pledged greatly to limit campaign contributions" as a response to his "conflict-of-interest charges arising from his role in the 'Keating Five' charges." Now Riegle "appears to be qualifying his self imposed donation restriction." Riegle has said "his staff is using a 'rule of reason' in reviewing contributions. ... The loopholes Mr. Riegle seems to have created in his fund-raising promise, appear about as persuasive as his previous explanations of his connection to the" S&L scandal. ... The need for Congress to adopt genuine campaign finance reform legislation remains crucial. And we continue to doubt that Sen. Riegle is the best person to chair the banking" cmte (12/18).

*12 NEW YORK: AILES "ONLY JOKING" ABOUT GUBERNATORIAL BID

"Controversial" GOP consultant Roger Ailes "ruled out running for" NY Gov. in '94, "insisting he was serious when he 'quit politics' earlier this year." Ailes said he was "only joking" when he told NY GOP chair Wm Powers last week that he was interested in running in '94. But Powers said "he was sure Ailes wasn't joking when they talked, and speculated that Ailes' business connections may have led to his change of heart":

"Maybe Roger is worried about how some of his clients are going to react." According to Ailes, a misunderstanding occurred at the WH Christmas party when "Powers told me that there were 21 Republicans who had expressed an interest in running against Cuomo." Ailes then said: "Why not make it 22?" Ailes issued a release headed "Roger Ailes for Governor? Not!" in which he contended that "there are at least three solid candidates ahead of me: Al D'Amato, Pat Barrett and Rudy Giuliani, although I think Giuliani will be the next mayor'" (N.Y. POST, 12/22).

*13 TEXAS SENATE: RICHARDS' DECISION EXPECTED BY C.O.B. 12/23
AUSTIN AMERICAN-STATESMAN's Elliot reports Gov. Ann Richards (D) will choose a successor for Treas/Sec designate Lloyd Bentsen's Senate seat "from four Democratic congressmen." Reps. Mike Andrews (D-25), John Bryant (D-05), Martin Frost (D-24) and Jim Chapman (D-01) are "considered the front runners." Ex-federal prosecutor Paul Hobby's (D) "stock suddenly has risen" as well (12/22). DALLAS MORNING NEWS' Slater reports Andrews "remains high on the list" although Richards did meet with Frost, ex-LG Bill Hobby and RR Commis. Bob Krueger 12/21 (12/22). Krueger told Reuters he will run in the special election next Spring "even if he is not picked" for the appointment. HOUSTON CHRONICLE's Robison calls Andrews "a leading contender" but notes a key aide to Richards said she "hadn't made a final choice": "I'm hearing a lot about Mike Andrews, but it would be going out on a limb, too brittle a limb, to suggest the decision has been made." AG Dan Morales is also "interested in meeting with Richards to discuss the Senate seat" (12/22).

WHEN WILL WE KNOW? Richards PAC dir. Kirk Adams said he expected her to announce her decision "either late today [12/22] or Wednesday" (HOUSTON CHRONICLE, 12/22). Richards spokesperson Bill Cryer said she "could name her appointment for the seat this week" (DALLAS MORNING NEWS, 12/22). Richards spokesperson Joe Holley: "It will be possibly by Wednesday. But there is a chance it will not be by Wednesday. And if that is the case, it will bounce over past the holidays" (AMERICAN-STATESMAN, 12/22).

DRAFT ANN: TX GOP chair Fred Meyer criticized the call to draft Richards: "We understand it might be tempting for the governor to run away from her many failures in Texas. ... When you take away the glitz and glitter and look at substance instead of her style, Gov. Richards' performance in office wouldn't earn her a bit-part in a B-movie" (DALLAS MORNING NEWS, 12/22).

OTHERS: Rep. Joe Barton (R-06) has announced his candidacy for the Spring special election. Treas. Kay Bailey Hutchison is also expected to announce. Other Dems either said to be under consideration or interested in running: Activist Sissy Farenthold, ex-AG Jim Mattox. GOPers: Public Utilities Commis. Marta Greytok, ex-RR Commis. Kent Hance and ex-Dallas appeals court judge Charles Ben Howell.

===== INSIDER COMMENTARY =====

*14 IOWA & THE ERA: IS THERE AN "ANTI-WOMAN SENTIMENT" IN IA?

David Yepsen is chief political reporter for the DES MOINES REGISTER. The Equal Rights Amendment, on the fall ballot in IA, failed by a 52-48% vote. It also failed in 1980.

TEXT OF AMENDMENT: "All men and women are, by nature, free and equal, and have certain inalienable rights -- among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty, acquiring, possessing and protecting property, and pursuing and obtaining safety and happiness. Neither the State nor any of its political subdivisions shall, on the basis of gender, deny or restrict the equality of rights under the law."

HOTLINE: Did the opponents target any clauses in particular?

YEPSSEN: The clause about gender really stirred the opponents' emotions because they thought that was the sort of language that could be used by the courts to construct pro-choice language. That is what a lot of it came down to: Putting the word "gender" into the constitution. Opponents also argued the language could be used to extend gay rights.

HOTLINE: Who ran the campaign to defeat the amendment publicly?

YEPSSEN: Publicly, it was a lot of groups affiliated with the Christian Coalition. It was a lot of the religious right groups, a lot of people who were active in Pat Robertson's '88 campaign, people who are active in the Christian Coalition, Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum, a lot of conservative activists. I also think the Catholic Church provided some networks that were used to oppose the amendment, but that is a subject of some debate. Enough questions about abortion rights were raised by the Church that a lot of people were concerned that the Church was too actively involved in opposing it.

HOTLINE: No major officials were against the amendment and two groups organized themselves to pass it. Any strategic errors?

YEPSSEN: Having two groups was part of their problem. One was Eleanor Smeal's group with [ex-Harkin aide] Cindy Terrel running the campaign. Terrel is a pretty good political mechanic, and she understood the problems she was up against, but I think she was always vexed by a lack of money. The other group was just a group of Iowans, sort of League of Women Voter types. The problem that this campaign suffered goes back to maybe a year ago. The supporters failed to develop a coherent strategy, a single unified campaign. All the problems that the campaign later confronted can be attributed to that. This was a campaign that began with 78-80% of the voters saying they're for it. You were either for it or you weren't taking a position. If you take 78% approval and then lose with 48%, you've got to do something to blow it, and they did. This state does not have initiative and referenda on the ballot. In some states it's a growth industry, but in Iowa, ballot issues are not done that often. Also, they understood very clearly who their opponents were going to be. The ads the opponents used had been used in Vermont. It's a pretty rare campaign that knows everything its opposition will do.

HOTLINE: What was the response of men?

YEPSEN: The battle got lost in the votes for men. The network exit poll showed, men opposed this and women supported it -- a 9-point gender gap. Too much of the campaign was focused on women as opposed to reaching out to men. You hear it, anecdotally, in conversations between men. I think a lot of men are fed up with the women's movement.

HOTLINE: Did the weak Dem Senate candidate have an effect?

YEPSEN: It may have been the "Year of the Woman" every place else in America, but it was not here. Jean Lloyd Jones went down, Elaine Baxter lost, they made no gains in the legislature and they lost the ERA. The reality is that there are still a lot of people in Iowa who have trouble with women in high positions. One example is [Dem AG] Bonnie Campbell. Two years ago, she was supposed to win the job in a blowout, but she won only narrowly against a token opponent.

HOTLINE: What kind of power has the religious right gained?

YEPSEN: The religious right has been operating in Iowa, in the modern sense, since '78. They helped Roger Jepsen beat Dave Clark and helped Chuck Grassley beat John Culver in '80. Pat Robertson in '88 came out here and spent a lot of time, money and effort, which left a good base. Whoever runs for president in '96 will have to deal with the religious right in Iowa early on. I think that will serve to pull candidates to the right. Now the only guy on the horizon who seems to be able unite the GOP factions is Jack Kemp. It may not be that important, but I certainly think having a lot of clout in Iowa means that those candidates are going to be coming out here talking about the issues the religious conservatives want to talk about.

HOTLINE: Does this "anti-woman sentiment" hurt Campbell for '94?

YEPSEN: I know that's a factor in her thinking. She is a good politician and married to one of the best tacticians in the U.S. -- her husband Ed. They'll be thinking, how difficult will it be to overcome this tendency of a small percentage of voters who are reluctant to vote for women for high office. She may just stay right where she is. Terry Branstad is not going to run forever. However, Branstad did well in this election. He got a [GOP] House of Representatives, the conservatives gained in the Senate. He's sitting pretty tall. He's a lot more upbeat. Six months ago, I'd have said, he probably wouldn't run for a fourth term.

*17 THIS MORNING: ABC's "GMA" hosted ADVERTISING AGE's DC bureau chief Steven Colford. The magazine named Ross Perot "Adman of the Year." Also Benjamin Edwards and Shellville Services pres. Joseph Criville. Edwards is the unemployed man whom Clinton asked participants in his economic conference to place in a job. Criville is employing Edwards as a janitor. NBC's "Today" hosted co-chair of the U.N. Yugoslavian peace talks Lord Owen. "CBS This Morning" hosted analysts Bob Beckel and Fred Barnes on Clinton's appointments.

A.M. QUOTABLES: NBC's Miklaszewski, profiling Clinton CoS Mack McLarty: "Friends called [McLarty] Spanky. Straight out of 'Our Gang,' it's a group that produced so many political and business leaders, some call it the 'kindergarten mafia'" (12/22).

LAST NIGHT: CNN led with the crash of a Dutch plane in Portugal. All others led with Clinton's Cabinet announcements. PBS' "MacNeil/Lehrer" focused on Ed/Sec-designate Riley with Charleston County Housing Authority's Montez Martin and GREENVILLE NEWS' Tom Inman, Sec/Energy designate O'Leary with MN Commissioner of Dept. of Public Service Kris Sanda and ENERGY DAILY's Llewellyn King, and Clinton's cabinet with TIME's Margaret Carlson. "M/L" also hosted Sec/State Lawrence Eagleburger on the Serbian elections. CNN's "Crossfire" hosted Israeli Amb. to the U.S. Zalman Shoval and U. of Chicago's Rashid Khalidi on the Middle East peace talks. ABC's "Nightline" hosted Rep. Charles Schumer (D-NY) and ex-FDIC chair L. Wm Seidman on the growing banking crisis.

MCLARTY: NBC's Miklaszewski: "Mack McLarty probably has three things going for him when he gets into the White House. He doesn't have his own agenda; he'll be able to walk into the Oval Office when he has to and tell Bill Clinton 'no'; and he's good friends with Hillary Clinton. That's a key factor in dealing with this team" (12/22).

FUNNY? Leno on Clinton's plan to ring a Liberty Bell replica at the Inauguration and have all Americans also ring bells simultaneously: "Is that a good idea? Won't Canada and Mexico be banging on the walls going, 'Hey, keep that racket down!'" ("Tonight," NBC, 12/21).

President George Bush
President of the United States of America
The White House
Washington, DC 20500
Attn: Patty Presock

Dear Mr. President:

My father and I watched together your speech at Texas A & M.

It was truly moving. In your public life you have "shaped our times" and my father and I are proud beyond words both that we had the honor to play a small role in your career and that we may have the opportunity and privilege of resuming that role when you are a private citizen again, contributing to the marketplace of ideas.

We are, of course, looking forward with great anticipation to meeting Mrs. Bush on January 7th.

Best wishes on behalf of my father and my whole family to you and your family during this holiday season.

Respectfully,

Dear President Bush:

I want to convey to you, on behalf of the Warren Wilson College campus community, our deep appreciation for the thoughtfulness of your mother in remembering the College in her will. I know that your cousin, Betty Holden, and Warren Wilson College President Emeritus Ben Holden, were especially touched by this gesture, and it comes as a special Christmas season gift to the campus community and the young people we serve.

There still are wonderful memories of your visit to the campus in 1986 as commencement speaker, and I hope you might have the opportunity to visit again in the future. Please accept our deepest gratitude for the magnificent service you have given to our nation throughout a lifetime commitment to public service. As you may know, public service is very much a part of our campus program and is a graduation requirement for our students.

All the best to you, Mrs. Bush and the family for a restful and fulfilling holiday season.

Sincerely,

Dear General ^{Sam} Lessey,

Your thoughtful letter arrived and I appreciate so much your kind words. Victory was just not to be. Barbara and I gave it our very best and now we look forward to returning to Houston on January 20. It has been a privilege and a pleasure to serve as President of this great country. Thanks so much for all you did for us.

I noted your interest in serving on the Board of Visitors of one of the Service Academies. However, I am sorry it does not appear that we will be able to make it happen for you at this late date. All the positions have already been filled.

Thanks, again, for your letter and also for your caring words about my beloved mother. She was my inspiration and my mentor. Now, she is in heaven and at peace.

Best wishes to you and yours for a wonderful holiday season.

Sincerely,

General Samuel K. Lessey, Jr., U.S. Air Force, Ret.

Dear Mr. President,

You will remember my meeting with you and General Scavcroft in February 1991 upon my departure from Selective Service. At that time you expressed a desire for me to rejoin your administration, and I was committed to you at that meeting. However, this was never implemented. As you know, I spent most of the last year working on your campaign, and I feel the voters made a serious error in not returning you to office.

Because I cannot rejoin you full time, I do wish to express an interest in any part time position with which you might choose to honor me.

My first choice would be on the Board of Visitors of one of the Service Academies.

Dear Mr. Breton,

Thank you for your letter of December 14 and resume. I appreciate knowing of your interest in being a member of my Presidential Library construction team. The Library is still very much in the planning stages and the University does not expect to award a construction contract until October 1994.

Once again, thanks for writing. Best wishes to you and yours for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Dear Mr. President,

I have enclosed my resume for your review and consideration for a position as a resourceful member of your Presidential Library construction team.

I feel strongly that my 37 years of experience and having been exposed to all the major stone producing regions of the globe have given me a unique opportunity to fully comprehend all aspects of the building stone industry.

My experience at the quarry and factory level and at the building construction sites where I supervised the installation of exterior and interior building cladding would serve me well as a member of your library construction team.

Your Presidential library should certainly be one that reflects your dedicated service to your country and to the world. it should express your can do attitude, one that I'm sure was learned early in your military career.

Your library should reflect in it's construction your strong belief in having a strong America. It also has to demonstrate your commitment to the average American citizen. Granites and marbles of Texas or Maine will express these attributes.

I respectfully ask that you consider or pass on to the appropriate person or persons my resume and inquiry. I realize I maybe late in forwarding you my request. Your Library plans may be on going.

I would like to wish you and your family the best of life in your active retirement. My wife and I thank you for making us feel proud to be Americans in our travels around the globe.

Thank you Mr. President and good luck.

Yours truly,

Washington, DC 20500

Dear George.

February 25 - 27, 1993 South Florida will host the Shula Celebrity Classic, an event that will fast become one of the nation's premiere celebrity tournaments. The star spangled weekend, to be held at Don Shula's Hotel and Golf Club, will include celebrity golf, tennis and fishing tournaments topped off with a black tie gala at Joe Robbie Stadium on the 50 yard line. Five-star celebrities from all walks of life - sports, government and business - will be invited to travel to South Florida and participate in a fantastic weekend of competition and charity.

The '93 Classic Co-Chairman - Tim Robbie, President, Miami Dolphins, Wayne Huizenga, CEO of Blockbuster Entertainment Corporation and owner of the Florida Marlins, and Billy Cunningham, partner of the Miami Heat, have formed a league of their own and joined me in the fight against breast cancer.

I invite you and a guest to be my guests for the celebrity weekend events. Tee off on the greens at the Don Shula Hotel and Golf Club, swing your rackets in a celebrity mixed doubles and pull in the bilfish from South Florida's waters. Friday night we will seat celebrities and their guest at VIP tables at the Celebrity Gala on the 50 yard line of Joe Robbie Stadium.

Enclosed you will find general information about the Don Shula Foundation, Inc., the weekend agenda, and a confirmation form to return. I look forward to your response and thank you in advance for making the Classic a success.

Will and Sarah Farish hope you will join us in South Florida for my celebrity event.

Sincerely,

Don F. Shula

Dear George,

Catharina and I have watched with great admiration your performance as President of USA and Barbara's as First Lady, for there last four years, when life was never easy for you in conflict with the Democratic Congress, both Houses. And we greatly enjoyed receiving each year your Presidential Christmas Card. At that time we never presumed to write to either of you, but now that you are in the "Transition" period, we feel it is possible to write and send you a Card wishing you well. We are all the more sure of this as we can also send our sympathy in the loss of your mother - a very ancient distinguished lady. Whose obituary was very well written in the British Press.

We are both now in our eighties and much has changed from the old days. Joanina and Eric have both passed on, but Jimmy Samwell and Roger Inglis are still to the fore, though I see little of either of them. But I have strong memories of your early days, in Bush Oueby, Zapata, and Pennagoil. Jimmy & I had talked about you (Poppy Bush) with your uncle Herbert in New York before flying to Midland. There your reception girl was astonished that we both came from the wilds of Scotland, and yet did not wear kilts! So then we met you, and soon you took us to meet the Leiths (Hugh and father and brother)

That evening we met Barbara, who had just arrived from the States, and I was astonished to see that Hugh's wife - we sat on the sofa with them on an know, and I was astonished to see that Hugh's two little daughters (ages about 4) had red-painted feet - nails!
 Hugh presented me with a 10-gallon hat (which I wore throughout that trip) and a few of red-painted soap (which Barbara & I were concerned
 I thought a game of golf with you, and even had a walk lunch in a boat, and an interesting the officers of the Sucker-Red Company. We also visited a big you were sitting with, and I was made to eat a very hot chili or so decent restaurants.
 Then, some years later, during 1911 with the and sailed out from Galveston in the steamship Kato to the Nola, in a white sail, which was unpleasant but most interesting and educational Another occasion after two or three more years, was our visit, in your company, to Fiddling, to see the launch of the motor driving large, created by Karamo, in the Mississippi.
 That was a great time, particularly descending, in the twilight, on the day boat, in a cage knotted up in the portage by two catfishes who were working on the unfinished bridge.
 Then you and Hugh came to Fiddling on a visit - staying with Henry & the family, and on your way to dinner with our friend & wife, you "ran out of gas!"
 My last trip to USA was with Eric (very in the early decades, the room taken in the Remington St. House from St. Louis to New York and then on to Kingman (Copper Mine) Tucson (Copper Open-cast mine) El Paso (Sulphur Mine) Houston (where Hugh Locke took us to see the Dove) and so to Washington. There we had lunch in your Club with you and Barbara, and you were called away to the telephone. When you returned you told us there had been an invitation to you to run for a seat in the Senate, and you and Barbara were very concerned as to what was the right thing to do. From that flowed everything up to your becoming, First Vice-President, and now President.

You must both be tired, and you deserve a long holiday. I don't suppose you will be thinking of coming to Britain for a visit?

Anyway we wish you both very well and hope you will like the enclosed Christmas Card.

With all good wishes to you both

Sincerely yours

Alastair and Catriona Blair
