LUNCHEON WITH SENATOR BOB DOLE (R-KS)

DATE: January 14, 1993
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 12:00 p.m.

FROM: Nicholas E. Calio NEC

I. PURPOSE

To have a farewell lunch with Senator Bob Dole (R-KS), Senate Republican Leader.

II. BACKGROUND

Senator Dole requested an opportunity to thank you for all you've done; to discuss how Republican Senators can continue to defend your record as time goes on; and to say goodbye.

III. PARTICIPANTS

The President

Senator Bob Dole (R-KS)

James A Baker, III, Chief of Staff
Andy Card, Secretary of Transportation
Brent Scowcroft, National Security Advisor

IV. PRESS PLAN

Dear Bill,
Thanks so very much for the mementos complete with 1 cuff.
It will have a special place in our Library - a tribute to many dedicated law enforcement officers.
Many thanks. G. B. L.

The Honorable George Bush
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of all of the men and women at the Department of Justice, I would like to thank you for your tremendous support for law enforcement. Law enforcement officials around the country have consistently told me that they have never had a better friend in the White House. I have enclosed a token of our admiration for your outstanding leadership -- a plaque that includes the handcuffs used to bring Manuel Noriega to justice in the United States.

The current situation in the Gulf prevented our presenting you with this memento -- and thanking you -- personally. However, I know that I speak for all of the appointees here at the Department in saying that it has been an honor to serve in your Administration. Please accept from us all our heartfelt thanks and best wishes for the future.

Respectfully,

Bill

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Arnold Kanter, ^{me} Acting Secretary

1. Palestinian Deportees. Boutros-Ghali continues to believe UNSCR 799 must be implemented and is expected to send his envoy back to Israel to meet with Rabin. While Rabin is hanging tough publicly, the UN envoy believes he got private assurances that Rabin may be willing to consider a process of phased returns over the next several months. We continue to urge the GOI to be as flexible as possible, while working in the UN to head off premature action in the Security Council. In response to unconfirmed reports that the Lebanese Army is preventing villagers from resupplying the deportees, we are urging the Lebanese to continue to allow the informal, local supply of basic necessities to the deportees. (C)

2. POW/MIA Talks with China. The initial day of meetings in Beijing on expanding POW/MIA cooperation with the Chinese went well. The State-DOD delegation to the talks reported that the Chinese were ready to consider our proposals, with a visit by a Chinese delegation to our POW/MIA Joint Task Force at CINCPAC as the likely first step. We hope this will eventually lead to the Chinese permitting U.S. teams to conduct field investigations (like those we now do in Vietnam) into the fates of the six Vietnam War era MIA's lost over Chinese territory. (C)

3. Macedonian UN Membership: U.S. Views on Timing Critical. The U.S. position will be critical in determining how quickly the Security Council considers Macedonia's application for UN membership. In bilateral discussions, Security Council President Hatano (Japan) found that France prefers to delay the application as long as possible. The British do not object to the process starting. Russia favors early submission of the application. As a result of these discussions, Hatano is leaning towards delaying submission of the formal application for two months, if possible. Hatano told Ambassador Perkins he would like to have U.S. views before discussing the issue with Boutros-Ghali, who returns to New York next week. In response, Larry has instructed USUN not to block Macedonian membership and not to object to the application process starting as long as it is clear the U.S. is not driving it. (C)

FROM: DAVID F. BRADFORD David F. Bradford

SUBJECT: Producer Price Indexes for December, Labor
Department Release, Tomorrow, 8:30 a.m.

Producer prices for finished goods rose 0.2 percent in December. Private analysts had expected a 0.1 percent increase. During 1992 producer prices rose 1.6 percent.

Excluding the volatile food and energy items, producer prices rose 0.3 percent in December and 1.9 percent during 1992. The increase in producer prices excluding food and energy items during 1992 equals the smallest yearly increase on record (the data started in 1974).

FROM: DAVID F. BRADFORD David Bradford 6

SUBJECT: December Retail Sales, Commerce Department
Release, Tomorrow, 8:30 a.m.

Retail sales rose 1.2 percent in December, following a 0.5 percent decline in November. Private analysts had expected an increase of 0.7 percent in December. The estimate for sales in November was revised down from the 0.4 percent increase reported last month.

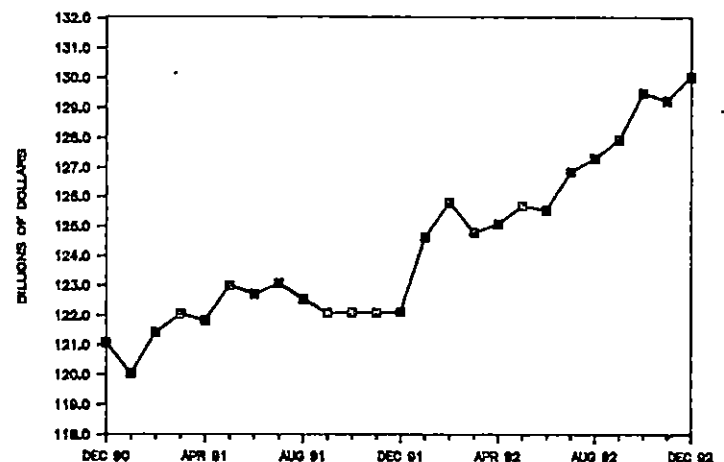

In December, sales of durable goods rose strongly while sales of nondurable goods rose modestly. The largest increases occurred for automotive dealers and building materials stores.

The graphs below show that retail sales have been on an upward but uneven trend over the past year. The strong increases in October and December bode well for growth in consumer spending and the overall economy in the fourth quarter.

THROUGH: DAN MCGROARTY
FROM: JENNIFER GROSSMAN JAG
SUBJECT: POINTS OF LIGHT CELEBRATION

On Thursday, January 14th, at 1:30 p.m. in the East Room, you will deliver remarks (8 mins./cards) to over 100 Points of Light representatives from all 50 states, plus roughly 50 board members and representatives from National Service's various affiliated organizations.

Your remarks congratulate all Points of Light for their magnificent contributions their country and communities, while reflecting on the larger mission of this movement. You exhort them to continue their work, while expressing hopes that a legacy of volunteer service lives on beyond your retirement from the public arena.

LIGHT

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: POINTS OF LIGHT CELEBRATION
JANUARY 14, 1993

[Acknowledgements.]

You know, lots of folks ask me about the phrase "Points of Light." Some say it's religious, others say it's patriotic like the flag, others think it's an image of hope. I think Points of Light are all of these things, and yet still something more: it's what happens when ordinary people claim the problems of their community as their own. It's the inspiration and awakening to the God-given light lit from within. It's the promise of America.

We've got Points of Light here today from [50] states -- shining all the way from Anchorage to Harlem and from Miami to Maine. Never before has there been so much light in this house. Each of you here today knows what I mean. Each of you found within yourselves your own special genius for helping others. And each discovered the imagination to see things others could not: the human dignity in the eyes of a homeless man, the musicians and business leaders in an inner-city gang, the light and laughter in the shadows of a shattered life.

I have always believed that in each individual there is a point of light waiting to be revealed -- in each community a thousand miracles, waiting to happen. And when I assumed this great office, I pledged to do all I could to honor, encourage, and increase volunteer efforts until their light filled every dark corner of our country.

We began with a national strategy, and if you'll bear with me a moment, I'd like to remind you what that strategy is. First, changing attitudes, so that all Americans define a successful life as one that includes serving others. Second, identifying what is already working, so that those efforts can be multiplied and enlarged. Third, encouraging leaders to help others become Points of Light. Fourth, reducing volunteer liability, because I believe that it's time we started caring for each other more and suing each other less. Fifth and finally, within every community, linking people to ways they can help.

Everything I have done as President has supported this strategy. That's why, we've worked together to create the Points of Light Foundation, the Commission on National and Community Service, and the National Center for Community Risk Management and Insurance. We envisioned National Service -- not as a government program or even a White House initiative -- but as a grass-roots movement, a movement that makes full use of the many different ways that Americans want to help.

This strategy is significant, not because it indicates Washington's role -- but because it illuminates yours. And this is something where it's easy to miss the constellation for the stars. You see, it's not just Points of Light that are important. It's the idea that every community in America could be filled with light. America could become like this room. You are only a fraction of the stories we have told, and those stories are only a fraction of those that could be told.

Look around this room, then picture what would happen throughout America if every former gang-member discovered the Rodney Dailey within, and offered young people good alternatives to life on the streets. Imagine if every member of a club, like the Rotary Readers, filled someone's life with the wonder of reading. Or what if every little girl found the imagination to follow Isis Johnson, to clothe the cold and feed the hungry in her little corner of America. Imagine what that America would look like.

Regardless of what we believe government should do, all of us agree that no serious social problem in this country is going to be solved without the active engagement of millions of citizens and tens of thousands of institutions: Schools \ Businesses \ Churches \ Clubs -- armies of ordinary people doing extraordinary things.

Government has a critical role in helping people and so does solid, sustainable economic growth. But people -- not programs -- solve problems. And somewhere in America, every serious social problem is being solved through voluntary service.

For therein lies the greatest national resource of all. It doesn't matter who you are -- everybody's got something to give: a job skill, a free hour, a pair of strong arms. That's what I mean when I say that from now on, any definition of a successful life must include serving others.

Let me tell you another story about success. Today I have recognized the 1,014th Daily Point of Light the Lakeland Middle School Eighth Grade Volunteers. These remarkable young people from Baltimore have overcome their own challenges to become tutors and role models for younger students in Special Education.

Their special courage reminds me of the words of a poet who said that "generosity lies not in giving me that which I need more than you do...but in that which you need more than I do." That courage has made the Lakeland Eighth Graders into the wonderful and confident young people who grace our lives today.

Because I know that America is filled with young people who want to help, I signed an Executive Order last October that created the President's Youth Service Award. As with the President's Physical Fitness Award, young people in voluntary service will be able to receive Presidential recognition in their local communities. I want to thank the Boards of the Commission, the Foundation, and the American Institute for Public Service for their help in implementing this program.

What all of us seek in our life is meaning and adventure. It is through service that all of us can find both. Barbara and I will soon start making our way back home to Texas, and I'd like to leave you with one thought. If I could leave but one legacy to my country, it would not be found in policy papers, treaties signed, or even wars won. It would be a return to the moral compass that must guide America through the next century -- the changeless values that can and must guide change. I'm talking about a respect for the goodness that made this country great, a rekindling of that light lit from within to reveal America as it truly is -- a country of millions of Points of Light.

I want to thank The Points of Light in this room and everywhere. God bless you, and God bless the United States of America.

The Roosevelt Room

From: Roger B. Porter RBP

I. PURPOSE

To meet with members of the National Commission on America's Urban Families to receive their final report.

II. BACKGROUND

In your January 1992 State of the Union Address you announced that you were establishing a National Commission on America's Urban Families, chaired by Missouri's Governor John Ashcroft. Former Dallas Mayor Annette Strauss has Co-chaired the Commission.

Commission members have met fifteen times, conducted regional hearings across the country and consulted widely with experts and citizens in developing their findings and recommendations. You met with Commission members and families in Columbia, Missouri in July 1992.

The majority of the Commission's recommendations are consistent with your Administration's policies and principles. Others may spark some public debate and discussion.

A brief description of the key findings and recommendations is attached.

III. PARTICIPANTS

National Commission on America's Urban Families
Summary of Recommendations

1. Strengthen the family.

- Decrease the tax burden on families by providing a child tax credit for all children (which would be larger during the year of birth or adoption) and by increasing the differential between the standard deduction for single earners and married couples.
- Redesign the welfare system to provide incentives for employment, responsible fatherhood and marriage, including limiting receipt of AFDC benefits to two years and requiring work of all AFDC recipients, including public employment if necessary.
- Increase the number of married couples in public housing.
- Increase parental authority in education.

2. Strengthen marriage.

- Promote premarital counseling and marital enrichment.
- Reform state laws on marriage and divorce to encourage preservation of the marriage and put children first.
- Discourage pregnancies for unmarried couples.

3. Strengthen the relationship between parents and their children.

- Change workplace policies to increase parental time with children.
- Foster parenting skills by incorporating parenting education into school curricula and increasing public and private funding for effective parent education programs.
- Identify the parents of every child born in the United States by ensuring that the birth certificate identifies both parents.
- Strengthen the enforcement of child support orders.

4. Build community support for families.

- Make neighborhoods safe for children and families, including expanding community policing programs and developing effective mentoring programs, especially involving male role models.
- Build grassroots, family-centered programs that involve local leadership, mandate parental involvement, strengthen rather than replace the parent-child relationship, reinforce values, and build relationships between children and their non-custodial parents.

5. Change the nation's culture to give families priority.

- Change television content to support families, including creating national or regional private sector commissions to rate the acceptability of television programs for families.
- Establish a President's Advisory Council on Strengthening Families to review progress on reversing the trend of family fragmentation and create a national clearinghouse for information on effective community programs.
- Create a White House "Families First" Award to honor persons, organizations and programs that exemplify a commitment to family well-being.
- Create a Family Strength Index to measure family well-being, composed of the mean of the percent of adults married, first marriages intact, percent of births to married parents, children living with their two-married parents, and children living with two married parents.

MEETING WITH PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION ON AMERICA'S URBAN FAMILIES

Card 1 of 2

- I am pleased to see you all again on this occasion.
- If there is one single issue that resonates through all Barbara and I have seen and experienced, it is the family -- and the challenge of strengthening our families to successfully nurture each and every American child.
- As you know, that was also the consensus of the nation's mayors when I met with them last January. So I asked you to help us find ways to keep families together.
- Thank you for the many hours you have devoted to tackling this challenge and developing your report. John (Ashcroft) and Annette (Strauss), thank you for your leadership on this important task.

Card 2 of 2

- I am looking forward to having the benefit of your findings and recommendations. John, any thoughts you would like to share?

MEETING WITH
FAMILY MEMBERS OF KAL 007 VICTIMS

DATE: January 14, 1993

LOCATION: Oval Office

TIME: 11:00 a.m.

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT

I. PURPOSE

To meet and have a photo opportunity with three American family members of the victims of the KAL 007 tragedy.

II. BACKGROUND

At their request, you will meet three of the principal organizers of the group of American family members of the KAL 007 victims. The group leader is Mr. Hans Ephraimson-Abt, a Jewish survivor of the Holocaust, who lost his young adult daughter on the KAL flight.

This will be a brief, five-minute photo opportunity and short discussion. They would like to thank you personally for your efforts during the past two years to convince Presidents Gorbachev and Yeltsin to apologize for the shootdown, and to negotiate compensation for the family members, as well as provide information on the remains and personal effects of the victims. In their view, the USG did little to resolve these issues until your Presidency--they have publicly given you the great share of the credit for our recent advances with the Russians.

As you know, our efforts paid off this past October when Yeltsin met this group, apologized for the incident, and promised to work with them to satisfy all of their remaining concerns. Since then, the Russians have turned over the KAL black boxes to the ICAO for independent review--Yeltsin mentioned to you in Moscow that he favored this approach as the best way to close out this sad chapter from the Cold War. We are working closely with the families to set up another meeting with the Russians in February to pursue all of the remaining issues.

POINTS TO BE MADE
MEETING WITH KAL 007 FAMILY GROUP

- I WANT TO LET ALL OF YOU KNOW HOW SORRY WE ARE FOR YOUR PERSONAL LOSS, AS WELL AS FOR THE UNCERTAINTY WITH WHICH YOU HAVE HAD TO LIVE DURING THE PAST NINE AND A HALF YEARS.
- WE UNDERSTAND THAT YOU HAD RECEIVED NO INFORMATION FROM THE SOVIET AUTHORITIES ABOUT THE FATE OF YOUR LOVED ONES, AND THEIR PERSONAL EFFECTS UNTIL THIS YEAR.
- BUT WE ARE NOW VERY ENCOURAGED THAT PRESIDENT YELTSIN HAS TAKEN RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE SHOOTDOWN, AND THAT HE HAS PLEDGED TO WORK ON ALL ISSUES OF CONCERN TO YOU.

- I SPOKE TO PRESIDENT YELTSIN ABOUT THIS ISSUE DURING MY RECENT TRIP TO MOSCOW. HE AGREES THAT THE ICAO SHOULD UNDERTAKE AN INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION OF THE TRAGEDY, AND WE ARE VERY PLEASED THAT IS NOW UNDERWAY.
- WE WILL ASSURE THAT THE NEW ADMINISTRATION IS AWARE OF OUR EFFORTS. I AM SURE THEY WILL CONTINUE TO BE SUPPORTIVE OF YOUR CONCERNS.

A CELEBRATION OF POINTS OF LIGHT

Date: January 14, 1993
Location: The East Room
Time: 1:30 p.m.
From: C. Gregg Petersmeyer gpr

I. PURPOSE

To underscore the meaning and potential of Points of Light for the country; to honor the Daily Points of Light who will be representing the fifty states and the District of Columbia; to draw attention to the institutions created during your Administration; and, to announce the President's Youth Service Award.

II. BACKGROUND

On your behalf, the Office of National Service has invited one representative Daily Point of Light from each state and the Board members of the Points of Light Foundation, the Commission on National and Community Service and the National Center for Community Risk Management and Insurance. The Points of Light who are coming are of the group you have not met. Many of them raised money over the past two weeks or have driven great distances in order to be here for this celebration.

You have taken a phrase and turned it into a concept, if not a movement, that today is widely understood and supported across America. You are the first President in history to honor an individual or group of Americans almost every day.

You signed the Executive Order establishing the President's Youth Service Awards. This award, is patterned after the President's Physical Fitness Awards which were originated by President Eisenhower and expanded by President Kennedy. The award will be administered under the authority of the Commission on National and Community Service in partnership with the Office of National Service, the Points of Light Foundation and the Institute for Public Service. Your friends, Charlie Bartlett and Mrs. Potter Stewart, are members of the Board of the Institute and will be attending the event.

January 13, 1993

MEETING WITH
AMBASSADOR MALCOLM TOON

DATE: January 14, 1993
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 10:00 - 10:30am

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT AK

I. PURPOSE

To accept a report from the U.S. Commission on POWs/MIAs in Russia, and to personally thank Ambassador Toon for serving as chairman of the Commission.

II. BACKGROUND

At our request, Ambassador Toon has prepared a report for you (attached at Tab C) on his Commission's progress in working jointly with the Russians to resolve American POW cases involving the Former Soviet Union. In the most important of the Commission's findings, Ambassador Toon and his colleagues believe there are probably no Americans being held against their will in Russia. The report also recommends that the Commission continue its work until the next joint meeting with the Russians in April 1993.

Your meeting with Ambassador Toon provides the opportunity to thank him for putting his past experience as Ambassador in Moscow to such good use. He has served us well over the past year as chairman of this bi-partisan commission (both Republican and Democratic members of Congress also serve on the Commission), and during his meetings with Russian President Yeltsin and President Kravchuk of Ukraine.

POINTS TO BE MADE FOR MEETING WITH
AMBASSADOR MALCOLM TOON

- I want to thank you for the report you sent me on the progress you have made working with the Russians on POWs and MIAs.
- You have done an excellent job and a great service for the country, for the servicemen still missing, and for their families. Please give my personal thanks to the others on the commission.
- I understand that working within the old soviet bureaucracy on matters as sensitive as POWs is still not easy.
- Do you think the Russians are making a genuine effort to cooperate and provide information?
- Are there any specific actions beyond your report we should be undertaking that we are not now doing?
- I wish you great success during your next meeting in Moscow. We will be sure to pass your report on to the new administration.

REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT ON THE
U.S.-RUSSIAN JOINT COMMISSION ON POWS/MIAS

I wish to extend my sincere gratitude for the opportunity to serve as head of the U.S.-Russian Joint Commission on POWs/MIAs, and to thank you on behalf of the entire Commission for personally supporting our efforts. Your personal endorsement has been essential to sustaining the momentum of our work with the Russians. I also want to express my deep appreciation to the qualified and committed group of Commissioners who have served with me over the past year, and who have so diligently worked to resolve cases of U.S. POWs and MIAs that may have involved the Former Soviet Union. The Commission remains hopeful that you and the new administration will continue to support our efforts.

Recommendation:

As you prepare to leave office, I would like to recommend that the Commission be allowed to continue its efforts through at least April 1993, when our Russian counterparts have invited us to meet again in Moscow.

We on the Commission would like to use the next few months to continue our most promising area of research into the whereabouts of American crews shot down over Soviet territory during the Cold War. We are hopeful that progress can be made on resolving this aspect of the broader POW/MIA search. We also believe that the Russians should be forthcoming with information on these incidents if they intend to genuinely cooperate with us.

If no significant progress is made by April 1993, I would recommend reevaluating the mission and structure of the Commission, and perhaps scale back the Commission's activity. We should be prepared to explain our rationale to the American public, citing the apparent reluctance of lower level Russian officials to comply with their leaders' appeals for maximal cooperation. We should also maintain our research staff in Washington, known as Task Force Russia, in order to continue analyzing all existing information and to follow up on possible new developments.

If, on the other hand, we are satisfied with Russian cooperation in April, I recommend maintaining the Commission's present structure and work place.

I also recommend expanding contact with other independent states of the former USSR and Eastern Europe either through the Commission, or if our activity is scaled back, via our embassies in those countries. Although Russia holds the key to our efforts, our meetings with leaders of Ukraine and the former Czechoslovakia indicated that valuable clues about Soviet involvement with U.S. POWs/MIAs may be unearthed in the non-Russian independent states of the former Soviet Union and in Eastern Europe.

Background:

As you know, the U.S.-Russian Joint Commission on POWs/MIAs held its first meeting in Moscow in March 1992. The idea for a Commission was originally suggested by President Yeltsin in a letter he sent to you in December 1991.

We have also visited Prague and Kiev and made stops in the Russian cities of Khabarovsk, Vladivostok, and St. Petersburg. Everywhere, we have met with top defense, foreign policy and intelligence officials, as well as with political leaders such as Presidents Yeltsin and Kravchuk. I have appeared twice on Moscow television with the Commission's Russian co-chairman, General Dmitriy Volkogonov, to appeal to Russian citizens to come forward with any information they may have concerning U.S. POWs/MIAs. I have made similar appeals on local radio and television networks in Prague, Kiev, Khabarovsk, and Vladivostok. During these press conferences, I have assured viewers that, unlike the past, they will be commended by their government for their cooperation.

Progress to Date:

The U.S. side has two major objectives: first, to determine whether any American POWs/MIAs are living in Russia against their will; and second, to determine the fate of any servicemen who may have been under Soviet control during World War II, the Cold War, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. If possible, we are committed to recovering their remains.

In response to our inquiries concerning American POWs/MIAs living in Russia, General Volkogonov told the Senate Select Committee on POWs/MIAs in November 1992 that President Yeltsin is "almost completely convinced that on the territory of the former USSR there are at the present time no forcibly detained citizens of the United States." U.S. members of the Commission have uncovered no information providing grounds to reject this claim. Only two serious "live sighting" cases have arisen, one of David Markin and the other of a Vietnam-era POW allegedly sighted in 1967 in Kazakhstan. Both cases were followed as far as the evidence permitted and remain unresolved. Any new information which should arise concerning a possible live American will, of course, immediately be followed up as our top priority.

Regarding our second objective, the Russians have provided over 1800 pages of documents concerning U.S. POWs/MIAs from conflicts since World War II. Most of the information contained in these documents was either unknown or had never before been systematically studied.

I am satisfied that the Russians are turning over to the U.S. all relevant documents they uncover concerning World War II. While over 20,000 Americans passed through Soviet hands, primarily when German POW camps were liberated by the Red Army, few unanswered questions remain. With a few exceptions, the Soviet Government seems to have repatriated interned Americans. The Commission does not find credible the claims that tens of thousands of American GIs were not returned from World War II. We believe that only a few soldiers suspected of being Soviet citizens were not initially repatriated by the Soviets and that most of these soldiers were ultimately returned to the U.S. We also accept General Volkogonov's assurances that information on the fate of the remaining few will be given to us when found.

The Commission believes, however, that much work remains to be done on incidents of U.S. planes shot down over Soviet territory during the Cold War. As I have told General Volkogonov, the American public will not understand why the Russian Government is not able to tell us what happened to crews of U.S. planes shot down by the Soviet Government over its own territory. We have provided the Russians with extensive details on ten specific downed aircraft, and we have asked for information in Russian archives on the fate of the crews. However, such information has not been forthcoming. We would like to meet with the Russians in April to focus on this issue. We believe their willingness to provide information on these cases will be an important indicator of their overall intent to cooperate on broader POW/MIA issues.

The Korean War presents us with our greatest challenge. Sufficient evidence exists to argue plausibly that U.S. POWs were transferred from Korea to the Soviet Union, although General Volkogonov says no archival information has been found to substantiate this claim. We believe that, if such information does exist in Russian-controlled archives, it is being withheld by a few individuals. We are gathering data from interviews of former Soviet Army officers and former Gulag prisoners.

As regards the Vietnam War, we have seen no unambiguous evidence that U.S. POWs were taken to the Soviet Union. We are committed to follow up immediately on any new information. We continue to believe that these cases, if they occurred, offer the greatest possibility of finding someone still alive.

This Commission has fostered unprecedented cooperation on the POW/MIA issue. Our work has uncovered information that may eventually resolve the fate of missing American servicemen. Our meeting in April should allow us to determine whether the prospects of further cooperation are sufficiently bright to justify the Commission's continuation.

MEETING WITH
AMBASSADOR MALCOLM TOON

DATE: January 14, 1993
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 10:00 - 10:30am

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT AK

I. PURPOSE

To accept a report from the U.S. Commission on POWs/MIAs in Russia, and to personally thank Ambassador Toon for serving as chairman of the Commission.

II. BACKGROUND

At our request, Ambassador Toon has prepared a report for you (attached at Tab C) on his Commission's progress in working jointly with the Russians to resolve American POW cases involving the Former Soviet Union. In the most important of the Commission's findings, Ambassador Toon and his colleagues believe there are probably no Americans being held against their will in Russia. The report also recommends that the Commission continue its work until the next joint meeting with the Russians in April 1993.

Your meeting with Ambassador Toon provides the opportunity to thank him for putting his past experience as Ambassador in Moscow to such good use. He has served us well over the past year as chairman of this bi-partisan commission (both Republican and Democratic members of Congress also serve on the Commission), and during his meetings with Russian President Yeltsin and President Kravchuk of Ukraine.

POINTS TO BE MADE FOR MEETING WITH
AMBASSADOR MALCOLM TOON

- I want to thank you for the report you sent me on the progress you have made working with the Russians on POWs and MIAs.
- You have done an excellent job and a great service for the country, for the servicemen still missing, and for their families. Please give my personal thanks to the others on the commission.
- I understand that working within the old soviet bureaucracy on matters as sensitive as POWs is still not easy.
- Do you think the Russians are making a genuine effort to cooperate and provide information?
- Are there any specific actions beyond your report we should be undertaking that we are not now doing?
- I wish you great success during your next meeting in Moscow. We will be sure to pass your report on to the new administration.
