TV Marti: PCC Recommendations

Authorizing legislation requires that the President notify Congress that the test of television broadcasting to Cuba demonstrate that TV Marti is feasible and will not cause objectionable interference with U.S. stations. Thirty days prior to making this determination, the President is required to submit a report to Congress on the results of the TV Marti test period. (Tab C: Report on the TV Marti Test Broadcasts to Cuba)

Non-binding report language suggests a ninety day test period, however, the initial test period which began March 27 will be extended until the President submits the report of the TV Marti test period to Congress. After submission of the report, the authorizing legislation permits an extension of the initial test period by thirty days. TV Marti logistic and financial considerations strongly argue for submission of the report as soon as possible.

Test broadcasts began from an aerostat in Cudjoe Key on March 27 and have continued daily usually from 0345-0645 on channel 13 except for those days on which TV Marti was not broadcast because of poor weather conditions or technical difficulties. Except for the first week when the Government of Cuba (GOC) was slower to jam TV Marti, GOC jamming has commenced minutes after the broadcast began.

The PCC has made every effort to determine whether TV Marti is reaching a Cuban audience despite GOC jamming. Our conclusion is that there is some audience. There is considerable disagreement about the size of the audience, and it is unlikely, given the GOC's opposition to the broadcasts, that we will be able to satisfactorily resolve the differences between the conclusions of the United States Interests Section (USINT) in Havana and an independent poll commissioned by USIA.

USINT has conducted a poll of 1,648 Cubans applying for visas at USINT Havana, and, using a portable television set, has monitored television reception in and around Havana and the western provinces. Based on these surveys, USINT concludes that due to effective GOC jamming, TV Marti does not have an audience in Havana, but outside Havana there may be a maximum of 70,000 potential viewers.

An independent poll of 543 Cubans visiting or immigrating to the U.S. indicates that there may be a potential audience of 273,000 families in greater Havana and the three surrounding provinces. Although reception is erratic, those that were able to receive TV Marti despite jamming were able to view it for short periods a few days a week.

Every effort has been made to ensure that the U.S.G. abides by its international obligation not to cause harmful interference to Cuban broadcasting. The GOC has priority rights to channel 13 and any other channel frequency located in Cuban national territory. To avoid harming Cuban service, TV Marti is broadcast in the early morning hours when no Cuban service is on-the-air. However, when TV Marti is broadcast the GOC transmits a test pattern simultaneously with its jamming of the TV Marti program. As a result, harmful interference is caused to the Cuban test pattern either by the GOC jamming or by TV Marti.

The PCC is concerned that in the future more serious interference could be caused to Cuban broadcasts, clearly placing the U.S.G. in contravention of its international obligation not to cause harmful interference to foreign stations. The Cuban Government may at any time begin to transmit a test pattern (without jamming) or programming on channel 13. Should the GOC decide to start a television service during the hours of TV Marti, TV Marti transmissions would cause harmful interference to Cuban broadcasts.

Unfortunately, Cuban actions, rather than our own, determine whether TV Marti will cause harmful interference. If the GOC chooses to broadcast during the time scheduled for TV Marti, which seems increasingly likely given that the GOC has established a new channel 13 station in downtown Havana, the President will face the following choices:

- Continue TV Marti VHF broadcasts; or
- Suspend TV Marti VHF broadcasts.

Were the President to decide to continue TV Marti, despite simultaneous Cuban broadcasts, we might argue that Cuba is not legally entitled to protection from harmful interference from U.S. transmissions because of past and present Cuban harmful interference with U.S. radio transmissions. There is serious disagreement whether this argument derived from the law of treaties would be legally available under the circumstances.

~~SECRET~~

Moreover, were the U.S.G. to pursue this course of action, the GOC could invoke the same argument as justification for using its powerful transmitters to interfere with U.S. telecommunications. We have no equivalent ability to retaliate in part because of the need to protect domestic and other foreign stations. The relevant data on Cuban and U.S.G. broadcasting behavior is being reviewed. Between 1985-89, the U.S.G. has paid $1.5 million to U.S. broadcasters in compensation for interference from Cuban radio transmissions.

The only way that TV Marti can be confidently broadcast without legal uncertainties is if the GOC refrains from initiating a television service during the TV Marti broadcast hours. In addition, an end to GOC jamming would allow TV Marti to reach a mass audience in Cuba. This might be accomplished by arranging with the GOC for a block of time during which TV Marti could be broadcast on channel 13 in Havana. In return, we would facilitate GOC access to broadcast time in the U.S. Each country would be expected to broadcast within established norms of behavior. The time-sharing arrangement is preferable to program exchanges because it avoids GOC censorship of the TV Marti program by giving each country direct access to the frequencies of the other country. (Tab B: TV Marti Time-Sharing Proposal)

The GOC has repeatedly expressed a strong desire to discuss TV Marti with the U.S.G. Carlos Aldana, a member of the Cuban Communist Party Central Committee, recently stated publicly the GOC's desire to discuss TV Marti. We would like to know what he proposes. Leaders of the Cuban-American community accept the fact that talks with the GOC may be the only way to get unjammed TV Marti broadcasts to a mass Cuban audience. But they insist that a way must be found to keep TV Marti on-the-air. Furthermore, time-sharing discussions would improve the U.S.G.'s position in international fora and comply with International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB) recommendations.

The PCC wishes to emphasize that we have explored other means of broadcasting television to Cuba. All have serious problems. Satellite broadcasts are transmitted simultaneously with VHF TV Marti transmissions. However, very few Cubans have the satellite dish and special amplifier needed to directly receive the satellite signal. In addition, the possibility of UHF transmission has been reviewed. Although relatively few Cubans have access to the equipment needed to tune into UHF, it is possible that Cubans visiting the U.S. would eventually bring back the UHF tuners (whether in TV sets or in video recorders) necessary for UHF reception of TV Marti. UHF transmissions, however, face problems similar to VHF transmissions. The GOC can effectively jam UHF; it has priority rights to all frequencies in Cuban territory; and UHF requires considerably more power to operate than VHF. Finally, (b)(1) would want to review the impact of using UHF stations on (b)(1). Satellite and UHF broadcasts along with other means of providing information to Cuba were discussed in previous PCC papers and in a NSC paper dated January 9, 1990. (Tab E: NSC Paper on TV Marti Options)

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. The President submit to Congress as soon as possible the attached Report on the TV Marti Test Broadcasts to Cuba at Tab C.
2. When the President determines the feasibility of TV Marti, not less than thirty days after he submits the results of the test period to Congress, he provide an additional report to Congress stating the rationale for his determination.
3. The State Department, with advisors from USIA, discuss with the GOC the time-sharing arrangements as a means of securing a mass Cuban audience for TV Marti without legal uncertainties; and
4. VOA continue satellite broadcasts and studies to determine the feasibility of UHF broadcasts to Cuba.

REPORT TO CONGRESS
ON TV MARTI TEST BROADCASTS TO CUBA

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

TV Marti television broadcasts to Cuba, which began on March 27 and have continued generally between 0345 to 0645 (local time), have demonstrated that:

- o A clear and an excellent quality TV Marti signal reaches Havana, Cuba from its broadcast site at Cudjoe Key, Florida.
- o Foreign and domestic stations are not being subjected to any adjacent and co-channel interference from TV Marti.
- o The Government of Cuba (GOC) has consistently and effectively jammed the TV Marti signal since broadcasts began.
- o There is widespread interest among Cubans in seeing TV Marti, notwithstanding its early morning broadcast hours and GOC jamming.
- o Although there is no effective way to overcome Cuban jamming, there are areas where jamming does not interfere with the TV Marti signal.
- o Because of the difficulty in obtaining reliable information about the reception of TV Marti, the actual size of the audience is unknown.
- o The Cubans have effectively prevented reception of the Radio Marti medium wave am signal by counterbroadcasting on that frequency.
- o International and bilateral reaction to TV Marti has been restrained but generally unfavorable.
- o The International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB) has objected to the across border broadcasts, asking that the U.S.G. change the manner in which it operates TV Marti.
- o International telecommunications commitments of the U.S.G. have been observed throughout the TV Marti test period by transmitting TV Marti when no regular Cuban service is using the same channel.

TECHNICAL FEASIBILITY:

Extensive testing, monitoring and observation has shown that the TV Marti antenna and transmission system has met all technical specifications and requirements put forth by the TV Marti Task Force, including National Telecommunication and Information Administration (NTIA) and the Federal Communication Commission (FCC). Essentially, these requirements include sending a grade A television signal into the city of Havana, while simultaneously protecting both foreign and domestic stations from adjacent and co-channel interference. Measurements taken during exhaustive testing over a three week period to construct antenna patterns, demonstrate that the antenna does meet these stringent requirements. Measurements and observations made in Havana prove that the signal transmitted from Cudjoe Key is of high quality and has been described as "clear and bright", prior to GOC jamming. It can also be concluded that weather conditions will occasionally (approximately 20% of broadcast time during the test period) cause TV Marti to be unavailable. Weather effects will vary according to season and time-of-day. Otherwise the TV Marti transmission system performs with high reliability.

NTIA AND FCC PERFORMANCE CRITERIA:

In accordance with NTIA/FCC rules and regulations, the TV Marti Task Force developed an antenna specification to meet strict domestic protection requirements. The Channel 13 station in Tampa and Channel 12 station in West Palm Beach were specific areas of concern within the United States. In Cuba, protection was required for the Channel 13 station in Matanzas.

Despite widely held concerns that the desired protection might be unattainable, the prime contractor, the General Electric Company, and its antenna subcontractor, the Multitenna Corporation, delivered a system with the critical antenna component that provides for protection for both domestic and foreign stations.

To allay concerns about interference, extensive tests of the TV Marti antenna system were conducted in two phases. First, low power and low altitude tests at Cape Canaveral defined the antenna pattern and produced over 140 patterns. Analyses showed that the antenna performed in accordance with specifications and provides protection to domestic stations. The second phase of tests conducted at low altitude at the Cudjoe Key Air Force Station demonstrated full compliance with domestic and foreign protection requirements.

In addition to stringent performance criteria for the antenna, the system included several safeguards to ensure that domestic broadcasting would be protected if the antenna were to become misdirected. First, the servo/pointing mechanism is accurate to with ± 0.5 degrees. An automatic shutdown circuit is activated if the main beam is off line by more than 0.5 degrees. Second, power output is set so as not to exceed the specified power limits. The entire system is controlled from the ground and the aerostat-mounted transmitter will not transmit without a signal provided by the ground station.

RESULTS OF MONITORING IN THE U.S:

On March 27, 1990, TV Marti began its 90-day operational test. Several FCC and NTIA monitors were placed in southern Florida to cover the market areas of channels 12 and 13 to ensure that the conditions of the experimental license were met; that objectionable interference did not occur to other authorized TV stations. The NTIA report stated:

During the period of March 27 through 29, 1990, the NTIA measurement team while monitoring in the Tampa WTVT coverage area did not detect any signals from TV Marti on either the spectrum analyzer or on the TV set tuned to channel 13 that were used for monitoring during the initial turn-on period. Subsequent discussions with FCC personnel in the Tampa field office revealed that FCC's measurement team also did not detect any signals that were attributable to the test transmissions of TV Marti. Based on the results of monitoring during the trial operational period, NTIA concludes that TV Marti is operating in accordance with the design specifications and there is no indication that domestic TV viewers will be subjected to objectionable interference because of TV Marti's transmissions.

(NTIA and FCC reports are attached as addenda to this report.)

TV MARTI'S AUDIENCE IN CUBA:

To evaluate the actual TV signal that was received in the target area, U.S. Interests Section personnel monitored the TV Marti broadcasts at the Interests Section building in downtown Havana. Direct feedback was available immediately. Prior to Government of Cuba (GOC) jamming, the TV Marti signal reception was reported to be very good. This was confirmed upon analysis of video tape of TV Marti VHF transmissions made by the Interests Section. Spectrum analyzer measurements showed the TV Marti signal and power level to be as good as or better than locally broadcast Havana television signals. It was reported that a good quality picture was received in Havana even when the transmitter was operated at reduced power for operational reasons. These observations were made during the first week of TV Marti when the GOC did not jam the programming until 15 to 20 minutes after transmissions had begun.

U.S. Interests Section personnel have monitored TV Marti from the Interests Section building in downtown Havana, from their homes in greater Havana, and by visiting outlying areas in and around a 100 mile radius of Havana with a portable television set in their cars. Less concentrated monitoring has been carried out throughout Cuba. In addition, the U.S. Interests Section consular division has asked Cubans applying for visas to fill out a questionnaire on TV Marti reception.

As predicted prior to the initiation of TV Marti, Cuban jamming is incomplete in some areas. Mobile and stationary monitors have been unable to receive the TV Marti signal in urban Havana because of effective Cuban jamming. However, mobile monitoring teams from the U.S. Interests Section were able to receive good audio and visual reception, despite Cuban jamming, at specific locations within a geographic area which runs from the northeast to the southwest of Havana. This area is 15 to 50 miles outside Havana and is approximately 10 miles wide by 60 miles long. The picture in these areas is clear and remained viewable during the period in which the monitors were present in the specific location. In some areas, however, when monitors moved a few blocks the picture was lost to jamming.

Based on the population in the reception area, the U.S. Interests Section concludes that there are a possible 50,000 to 70,000 individuals who could occasionally view TV Marti. Given that monitoring is carried out in a vehicle and on an occasional basis, the length of time during which viewers receive a reliable and good quality signal is unknown.

The U.S. Interests Section in Havana provided Cuban visa applicants with simple questionnaires designed to determine if they had seen TV Marti or knew of someone that had seen it. Of a sample population of 1,899 respondents, seven respondents claim to have received TV Marti clearly despite jamming, and seven other reported viewing a distorted but not totally jammed image. As an approximate 70% of the sample population lives in the TV Marti viewing area, this would indicate that about 0.5% of the population in the viewing area could receive a good picture.

The United States Information Agency (USIA) commissioned an independent survey research firm, Belden and Russonello to survey Cuban immigrants and non-immigrants to the U.S. about reception of TV Marti. The survey period ran from March 27 when TV Marti broadcasts began until May 6, 1990. Interviews principally were conducted in the Miami International Airport and the INS Krome Center from April 18 to May 6. The research firm of Schulman, Ronca, and Bucuvalas, Inc. analyzed and interpreted the survey data in a report entitled TV Marti Signal Strength Study: Final Report on Survey Findings.

The major findings of the study are:

- o 28% or approximately 273,000 households in the primary target area for TV Marti should be able to receive the broadcasts, at least occasionally.
- o There is considerable interference, which makes reception of TV Marti difficult and sometimes erratic.
- o External directional antennas have a significant impact on both the ability to receive TV Marti and the consistency of reception.
- o The interest in TV Marti, at least among this sample of Cuban tourists, emigres, and political refugees, is stronger and more consistent than the interference, so that they manage to tune in and view TV Marti broadcasts.

CUBAN REACTION:

TV Marti broadcast began on March 27 on channel 13. The GOC jammed the signal about twenty minutes into the initial broadcast. By the end of the first week, the GOC was able to jam the program within a few minutes after the broadcast began at 0345 and until it ended at 0645. This continues to be the case. While TV Marti is on-the-air, the GOC jams both the visual and audio program while simultaneously transmitting a color bar test pattern on the channel 13 station at Alamar, located about ten miles to the northeast of Havana. The GOC also transmits on channel 13 stations outside the Havana area a test pattern simultaneous with jamming during TV Marti broadcasts. The GOC transmits test patterns, with no jamming, on stations other than channel 13 in the Havana reception area during TV Marti broadcasts.

The channel 13 station in Alamar generally runs repeats of other local Havana television stations during the hours of 0700 to 0130. After the initiation of TV Marti, the GOC established another channel 13 station in downtown Havana. This station is scheduled to begin regular service on July 28. There is no television service on either of the channel 13 stations in the Havana area during the hours which TV Marti broadcasts to Cuba on this channel.

The GOC has sent harmful interference complaints to the Federal Communications Commission and complained to the International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB) about U.S.G. use of channel 13. The GOC considers TV Marti a violation of its sovereignty because TV Marti transmissions are directed at Cuba from US territory.

In April, the GOC began interfering with Radio Marti medium wave am broadcasts. The interference is effectively blocking medium wave reception in Havana. In mid-June the GOC announced that it was extending its interference to stations throughout Cuba. The high-powered Cuban counterbroadcasts on Radio Marti's frequency also cause harmful interference to radio stations in the am-band within the U.S. Fortunately, about seventy percent of Cuban listeners have access to Radio Marti on short-wave frequencies.

INTERNATIONAL AND BILATERAL REACTION:

International and bilateral reaction to TV Marti has not resulted in any demonstrable harm to U.S. foreign policy. Although there has been a generally negative reaction, especially in Latin America, public statements by officials and commentators have been mild with few exceptions. Our European allies stated prior to the broadcasts that they noted that it was our intention to abide by our international obligations. The Soviet Union and Cuba have strongly stated their objections to TV Marti. Cuba considers TV Marti a violation of its sovereignty. There has been little if any commentary from Eastern Europe and Africa.

The Government of Cuba (GOC), as a member of the United Nations Security Council, attempted to obtain support from the members of the United Nations for a statement that would condemn TV Marti. It was unsuccessful.

In response to Cuban complaints of harmful interference and charges that the U.S.G. was violating its sovereignty, the International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB) of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) informed the U.S.G. that TV Marti operations do not conform to a regulation which in principle admonishes members to avoid across border broadcasts. The U.S.G. disputes the IFRB's interpretation of this regulation because many countries broadcast across borders. The U.S.G. believes that the IFRB argument is flawed and that it is acting beyond its scope of authority.

LEGAL CONSIDERATIONS

There is no legal basis for objection per se to radio and television broadcasts from one country to another. Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, a widely-cited but non-binding resolution adopted by the United Nations Assembly in 1948, provides that:

"Everyone has the right of freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers."

This concept is expressed in other international instruments including the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Helsinki Final Acts. While such provisions do not affirmatively grant governments the right to send radio or television programs into another country, the precedent is well established. Stations which operate across borders include the BBC External Service, Vatican Radio, Radio Berlin International (GDR), and until recently, Radio Moscow, from Cuba in the English language. Initiatives undertaken by the United States in international broadcasting have further fostered the free flow of information. Radio Free Europe, Radio Liberty, and RIAS-TV (Radio-TV in the American Sector, Berlin) have provided information to those unable to obtain it; they have continued despite protestations from affected governments relating to program content and national sovereignty.

Radio Marti and TV Marti continue this tradition of VOA programming. The Government of Cuba, entities such as the Vatican, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, as well as other governments, have long engaged in the cross-frontier international broadcasting of information and ideas.

At the same time, however, there is an obligation not to cause harmful interference to another country's broadcasts. As the largest user of the electromagnetic spectrum, the United States actively supports the international legal regime which allocates the radio frequency spectrum and allows for the registration of radio frequency assignments in order to ensure orderly international use of the frequency spectrum and to avoid harmful interference between radio stations of different countries. Cuba and the United States are both party to the International Telecommunication Convention (Nairobi, 1982) and to the Radio Regulations (Geneva, 1979) which complement it. (The term "radio" encompasses all forms of broadcasting including "television".) The obligations described in these agreements relate to frequency use and are neutral with regard to program content of the signal.

The fundamental obligation regarding the use of radio (TV) frequencies as expressed in Article 35 of the International Telecommunication Convention is for radio transmissions to avoid harmful interference to frequencies used by other members:

"All stations, whatever their purpose, must be established and operated in such a manner as not to cause harmful interference to the radio services or communications of other Members..."

The Radio Regulations permit member countries wide latitude in their use of frequencies, notwithstanding other detailed provisions, so long as stations do not cause harmful interference.

"Administrations of the Members shall not assign to a station any frequency in derogation of either the Table of Frequency Allocations given in this Chapter or the other provisions of these Regulations, except on the express condition that harmful interference shall not be caused to services carried on by stations operating in accordance with the provisions of the Convention and of these Regulations."

FUTURE OPERATIONS OF TV MARTI

TV Marti was designed and is operated so as to avoid harmful interference to Cuban, United States and third-country television services. The antenna which directs the signal carrying TV Marti programming was constructed to minimize side lobe radiation which could interfere with stations outside the Havana area. The antenna design is suitable for the frequency associated with channel 13, the channel unused by Cuba in the Havana area during broadcasting. Additionally, as the notification to the International Frequency Registration Board makes clear, the operating hours of TV Marti are selected so as to avoid harmful interference to a low power Cuban station, even though it seems to have been established by the Cuban regime principally to frustrate the prime time operation of TV Marti.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, DEPARTMENT OF STATE

SUBJECT: NSA Comments on TV Marti Policy Coordinating Committee Papers: - INFORMATION MEMORANDUM

1. (U) The National Security Agency has reviewed the draft NSC Policy Coordinating Committee for Latin America (NSC/PCC) papers on TV Marti received at this Agency on 4 June 1990, and offers the following comments.

2. (S) In reference to Tab A, we support the recommendations to explore means other than VHF television to continue broadcasts to Cuba. Please be advised that the Cuban inventory of jammers is as capable of disrupting UHF broadcasting as it has demonstrated it can do on VHF. 1.4(c), (b)(3)

[REDACTED]

3. (S) We offer the following comments to Tab C:

a. Executive Summary, first bullet, change to read: "The television signal which reaches the Havana area is of grade A quality during the few moments jamming or counterbroadcasting is not present". This addition will clarify that TV Marti's lack of success is caused by jamming and not by any inherent shortcoming of the transmission system.

b. Technical Feasibility section, penultimate sentence: change to read "... 'clear and bright' given no jamming and counterbroadcasting". This addition will track this section with the Executive Summary.

4. (S) With regard to the last paragraph of the TV Marti's Audience in Cuba section, we believe the statistical extrapolation of TV Marti's viewing audience should be weighted to take into account the likely reception area of the TV Marti signal.
