Dear Mr. Secretary:

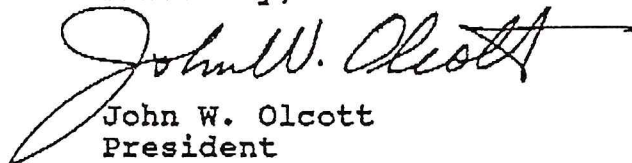

The National Business Aircraft Association (NBAA), which represents more than 3,000 member companies that use general aviation aircraft in the furtherance of their business activities or that provide products and services for business aviation, is concerned with an apparent inequity relative to the current trade embargo prohibiting U.S. aircraft exports to Iran. Relief from the embargo has been provided for foreign aircraft with U.S. content, while remaining in force with regard to aircraft manufactured in this country.

Specifically, foreign manufacturers are capturing the market for non-military aircraft in Iran at the expense of U.S. manufacturers and those they employ. NBAA requests your office to urge the State Department to review the impact of the embargo on an industry that is already experiencing difficult times. In light of recent improvements in related political dynamics, modification or elimination of the embargo altogether might be an appropriate response.

The Association believes this situation provides an opportunity for enhancing U.S. interests (export sales) without adversely impacting national policy goals and objectives.

Your immediate attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

John W. Olcott
President

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Piper Aircraft Corporation has been designing and building general aviation aircraft in this country for over half a century. Our product line has run the gamut from the ubiquitous little Cub (recently pictured with William Piper, our founder, on a commemorative U.S. postage stamp) to the state of the art Cheyenne 400 prop jet. Over the years a major portion of our sales has been overseas; Piper airplanes can be found on every continent.

Although the adverse effects of product liability litigation, among other factors, has caused Piper to seek protection under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code, we are confident of successful reorganization and the retention of hundreds of American jobs because of the continued strong world-wide demand for our products. Overseas sales are particularly important to us because they are accompanied by a much more reasonable risk of product liability when compared to domestic sales. For this reason we are highly interested in maintaining and expanding our overseas markets.

Piper is specifically requesting elimination of the current trade embargo that prohibits U.S. aircraft exports to Iran. Unless this administration relaxes its ban on aircraft sales to Iran, the United States will abdicate its traditional role as the dominate supplier of aircraft to that country. Even in bankruptcy, Piper has successfully competed in the overseas market with government owned or subsidized aircraft manufacturers in countries such as France and Poland. However, the current restraints require Piper to hand over a significant portion of the Southwest Asia market without a fight.

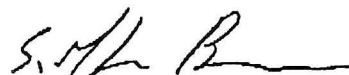

We know that Dornier, Pilatus, Fokker, British Aerospace and Airbus all have recently made major aircraft sales to Iran. Aerospatiale and Pezetel will not be far behind. Once those early inroads are made, United States manufacturers will be at a competitive disadvantage. Maintaining the embargo for one day longer than required by legitimate foreign policy objectives is harmful to the American aviation business.

The war between Iran and Iraq ended in a cease fire four years ago. The U.N. sanctioned war against Iraq ended a year ago with no adverse interference from Iran. The last United States citizen held hostage in Lebanon was released six months ago. The State Department has recently softened its position regarding aircraft sales to Iran by approving several foreign aircraft sales that could have been prevented due to components manufactured in the United States. The time to end the embargo is now.

Piper Aircraft corporation will appreciate any consideration you can give to its request.

Sincerely,

PIPER AIRCRAFT CORPORATION

Dear Mr. Secretary:

The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA) is requesting that you consider modification or elimination of the current trade embargo that prohibits U.S. aircraft exports to Iran. AOPA represents the interests of 300,000 aircraft owners and pilots who are committed to fair trade and the continuing manufacturer of general aviation aircraft in the United States. As you are aware, aviation export sales are an important component in achieving a favorable U.S. balance of trade with many nations around the world.

Our current information indicates that U.S. policy should change for the following reasons:

1. The traditional U.S. aircraft manufacturing role as provider for all types of aircraft to Iran is being threatened by sales from other Europe aerospace companies. Specifically, Dornier, Pilatus, Fokker, British Aerospace, and Airbus have all recently made major aircraft sales to Iran. Unless the State Department relaxes its ban on aircraft sales, the U.S. aviation industry will lose out. There were more than $273 million in exports made to Iran in the first half of 1991.
2. The State Department has previously refused to discuss approval for any type of aircraft exports to Iran. They have now approved several different foreign aircraft sales that they could have prevented due to the U.S. content, but they chose to make exceptions. The State Department has now compromised their embargo because they have relaxed that goal by approving the sales of foreign aircraft with U.S. content.

3. The State Department has indicated in the past that as long as Iran had influence over the hostage takers, and as long as U.S. citizens were held hostage in Lebanon, they would never agree to release the aircraft embargo. Since the last hostage was released in December 1991, the State Department should reconsider.
4. The State Department has always brought forth the concern that they did not want to give the Iranians any aircraft that could be used in the war with Iraq. A cease-fire was agreed upon between Iran and Iraq in 1988; however the U.S. policy has not changed.

AOPA is interested in the results of any reconsideration the Department undertakes and I look forward to a decision that will increase U.S. export sales without unfavorable national policy implications.

Dear Mr. LeMunyon:

The National Agricultural Aviation Association (NAAA) respectfully requests the Department of Commerce to urge the Department of State to consider modification of its current trade embargo that prohibits the export of U.S. manufactured aircraft to Iran.

This nation is currently the leader in the manufacture of agricultural aircraft, related support equipment and associated technology. Foreign competition for this market is growing and domestic manufacturers must be able to compete for the business.

When combined with foreign government subsidies of their airframe manufacturers, domestic regulatory compliance costs and the potential of foreign investment and/or take over of U.S. manufacturers, the current U.S. embargo on aircraft exports to Iran could cost this nation its leadership role

NAAA urges you to give consideration to this problem before our nation needlessly loses its world leadership position.

Thank you for your assistance with this issue.

Sincerely,

Harold M. Collins

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Pratt & Whitney Canada Inc. manufactures engines for the general aviation market in Canada, the United States and worldwide. I am writing in support of the American industry initiative towards relaxation of the ban on aircraft sales to Iran. In this I concur with the rationale expressed in the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association's letter to you of today's date.

I appreciate your kind consideration of this matter and look forward to a decision that will re-open the Iranian market for commercial and agricultural aircraft.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. LeMunyon:

Schweizer Aircraft Corp. (SAC) is requesting that you consider modification or elimination of the current trade embargo that prohibits U.S. aircraft exports to Iran. SAC is a small business involved in the manufacture of the Model 300C light helicopter and the Ag-Cat agricultural aircraft. We understand there are significant current requirements for both aircraft in Iran. This comes at a time when our employment has been reduced from 570 to 360 during the past several months due to the worldwide economic recession affecting our markets.

As you are aware, aviation export sales are an important component in achieving a favorable U.S. balance of trade with many nations around the world. Approximately 40 - 50% of SAC's gross revenues have resulted from exports in recent years.

Information we have received indicates that U.S. policy should change for the following reasons:

1. The traditional U.S. role as the major provider for all types of aircraft to Iran is being threatened by sales from European aerospace companies. Specifically, Dornier, Pilatus, Fokker, Aerospatiale, Pezetel, British Aerospace, and Airbus have all recently made important aircraft sales to Iran. Unless the State Department relaxes its ban on aircraft sales, SAC and the entire U.S. aviation industry will lose out. There were more than $273 million in exports made to Iran in the first half of 1991 alone.
2. The State Department has previously refused to grant approval for any type of aircraft exports to Iran. They have now approved several different foreign aircraft sales that they could have prevented due to the U.S.

content, but they chose to make exceptions. The State Department has now compromised the embargo by approving the sales of foreign aircraft with U.S. content.

3. The State Department has indicated in the past that as long as Iran had influence over the hostage takers, and as long as U.S. citizens were held hostage in Lebanon, they would not agree to withdraw the aircraft embargo. Since the last hostage was released in December 1991, it appears that conditions for the State Department to reverse this policy have been met.
4. The State Department has always brought forth the concern that they did not want to give the Iranians any aircraft that could be used in the war with Iraq. A cease-fire was agreed upon between Iran and Iraq in 1988. However, the U.S. policy has not changed.

Schweizer is interested in the results of any reconsideration the State Department undertakes on this subject. I believe that practical decisions can now be made that will increase SAC and other U.S. aircraft export sales to Iran without unfavorable national policy implications.

Sincerely,

SCHWEIZER AIRCRAFT CORP.
