Sport Fishing Institute

Chris - caring about fish really does play well

Dear Jim:

President-Elect Bush has publicly demonstrated his interest in the environment and fisheries by word and deed. Clearly, he believes that fishing is an important part of the quality of his life. One quarter of the people of this nation, 60 million Americans, join him in supporting this belief -- they too are fishermen. In addition, the fisheries resource base supports more than a million jobs and $60 million in economic activity per year. Immeasurable social benefits in recreation and nutrition are dependent on our nation's fisheries resource.

The quality of fishing reflects the quality of living. Fish are indicator organisms reflecting the condition of the environment. The President-Elect linked the quality of the environment to funds made available through the Wallop-Breaux amendments to the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act, the passage of which he supported. We too feel fish are "the canary in the mine" as far as the health of aquatic systems are concerned. Ocean dumping has resulted in fish unfit for human consumption. Acid rain has eliminated fish populations from lightly buffered aquatic systems in the northeast. Point and non-point pollution of our nation's streams, lakes and estuaries have degraded fish habitats and reduced the productivity of these systems. Finally, the continuing loss of wetlands is destroying critical fish nursery habitat for more than 70 percent of our nation's economically important species.

We call on the President to prominently and publicly state his intention to lead the nation in cooperative action agenda to restore the health of our nation's fisheries.

Jim, is there any way we can get this information to Mr. Bush's speech writers? We sure would like him to make reference to angling in his upcoming speeches. The pictures of Mr. Bush in Newsweek and Time were great? It makes him more "folksy" and the common man can relate to a fellow angler.

Sincerely yours,

Gil
