

Originally Processed With FOIA(s):

S

FOIA Number:

S

FOIA MARKER

This is not a textual record. This is used as an administrative marker by the George Bush Presidential Library Staff.

Record Group/Collection: George H.W. Bush Presidential Records Collection/Office of Origin: Speechwriting, White House Office of Series: Speech File Backup Files
Subseries: Chron File, 1989-1993

OA/ID Number: 13735
Folder ID Number: 13735-004

Folder Title:
[Stan] Parris Fundraiser 10/31/90 [OA 7563]

Stack:	Row:	Section:	Shelf:	Position:
G	26	21	1	2

(Smith/Garmey)
October 29, 1990
5 P.M.
PARRIS

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: PARRIS FUNDRAISER
ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1990
8:00 A.M.

Congressman Parris, ladies and gentlemen. As always, it is a pleasure to be in the Old Dominion -- and to speak on behalf of one of this Nation's great representatives. He's not simply on our side -- he's on America's side. // My friend -- and your wonderful Congressman. Stan Parris. //

((As Stan tells it, this visit arose from a phone call from that kinder and gentler human being, John Sununu. // John told him, "We've got a surprise for you that will really excite people." // Stan replied, "You mean big-league baseball's finally coming to Northern Virginia?")) //

Northern Virginia may not yet have a major league baseball team, but it has a major league congressman. And I'm here today to say: On Election Day, Stan is going to do to his opponent what the Reds did to the A's. //

I say that for many reasons. First, Stan is a friend -- not merely of Northern Virginia, but also of me. ((Stan and I have a special bond. I'm the one who taught him everything he knows about charisma.)) //

I also like Stan's honesty and perspective. // For example. Stan's a big Virginia Cavaliers football fan. That's the honest part. // Stan's perspective is realizing the impossibility of his transportation dream: Moving the University of Virginia to Alexandria. //

Finally, there is Stan Parris' record. Korean War hero. Returned to attend George Washington University -- then, practice law -- then, enter the Virginia House of Delegates. // He's served as Secretary of the Commonwealth. Been a superb seven-term U.S. Congressmen. // He's on the side of every decent American who values Growth, opportunity, and prosperity. // GOP. // Has a nice ring, don't you think? //

((You know, enduring the drive over here from D.C., I thought of how I'd vote for Stan Parris just on his transportation policies alone.)) // He co-sponsored legislation which will complete this area's Metro system. / He opposes Statehood for the District of Columbia -- and I support his stand. // Stan Parris reflects the values of America's good, quiet, decent people. // He believes in government which serves the people -- not the other way around.

We could use a little more of Stan's common sense about five miles northeast of here. I'm speaking about the ludicrous spectacle known as the United States Congress. // Yes, Virginia, America finally has a Federal budget. But even Ripley would not believe what it had to endure to get that budget passed. //

All of you know the history of these budget negotiations. For most of the past year, our Administration -- aided by Congressmen like Stan -- has worked to produce a serious response to a serious deficit -- grappling not only with the budget, but a self-serving Congress in which both houses are run by Democrats.

For eight months, this Democratic Congress acted like a 78 record played at 33. The only thing it did quickly was "Tax and spend." Otherwise, for eight months, it postured. Bellowed. Debated. Stalled. // If Congress were a play, it would have closed before New Haven. Congress hasn't been doing the people's business. It's been giving the business to the people. // Now, Stan's opponent proposes to give the business to the Eighth District. //

Part of Congress's problem is institutional. Think of it - - twenty thousand staff members and a Rubik's Cube of committees. Too often, serving liberals like Stan's opponent who pander to pressure groups. // Then, there's a second problem: Congress' left-wing philosophy perpetuated by nearly 40 years of one-party rule. // Because the Democratic Congress has become unaccountable, it has become irresponsible. Yes, the budget process is broke -- and we have to fix it. But we don't just have to change the process. Ask Stan Parris -- he could use some company: We have to elect more Republicans so we can change the Congress, too. //

Six days from now, let's remember who gave us the sorry charade we call a budget process. The Democrats. // And who fought so hard for budget reform -- for built-in enforcement rules to break liberals' tax and spend addiction once and for all. Yes, Republicans like Stan Parris. // Republicans helped us achieve the first five-year curb on spending ever. And ensured over $350 billion in spending cuts -- the largest cut in history. // Republicans helped me reduce the deficit by $500 billion. Hold the line against the ultra-liberals who would cripple our national defense. Finally, thank God for Republicans like Stan Parris who helped me keep Congress from raising income tax rates on working America. //

Here's the good news. Our budget agreement will help bring interest rates down in Northern Virginia -- helping you buy that new home or car. It will help build more new businesses -- and that means more new jobs. // But I won't deceive you -- we've had enough deception from the other party. So here's the bad news. This budget's not nearly as good -- nor fair to the Middle Class -- as we would have had under a Republican Congress. // For too long we've endured a Democratic Congress that -- by bowing to special interests -- measures progress made by dollars spent. // Next Tuesday, let's elect Republicans like Stan Parris who measure progress made by people helped -- and who will build a government which stands for America's interests. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs a Republican Congress that will balance the budget by cutting spending -- not a Democratic Congress that tries to raise the income-tax rates of the middle-class. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs a Republican Congress that will pass our tough crime bill -- not a Democratic Congress that tries to weaken the law and gut the death penalty. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs a Republican Congress that will end the influence of special interests -- not a Democratic Congress that wants taxpayers to join lobbyists in re-electing the Tax and Spenders. // In short, the only way to send a message to Washington is to elect a Republican majority. The only way to send a message to Washington is not to elect Democrats. //

I've known Stan Parris for many years. I like him -- respect him. So let's keep him on the side of those who want a Congress which will work with the President for the good of all.

Let's go to the polls. And roll up our sleeves to re-elect a magnificent U.S. Congressman. Thank you for what you've done, and will do, for Stan. / God bless the United States. And let's re-elect Stan Parris as Congressman from the Eighth District of the great State of Virginia.

#

October 29, 1990

MEMORANDUM FOR CHRISS WINSTON
ALL SPEECHWRITERS
ALL RESEARCHERS

FROM: ED McNALLY

SUBJECT: SLAMMING THE DEMOCRATS FOR GUTTING THE CRIME BILL

In one of the most cowardly legislative acts on record, liberal Democrats in the conference committee mugged the President's Crime Bill in the last hours of the Congress. Run down by a mob of desparate Democrats fleeing home to their campaigns, it was a true hit and run.

It also marks the first time in almost a decade that a Congress has gone home without producing a serious crime bill.

The injuries proved fatal. The Crime Bill came in D.O.A. -- "Dead On Arrival" -- and missing most of its vital parts.

- o Gone are the President's habeas corpus reforms aimed at stopping convicted criminals from endlessly abusing the appeals process.
- o Gone are the President's reforms of the exclusionary rule -- a judge-made law that lets the guilty go free.
- o Most outrageous of all -- they cut the President's proposal for a real federal death penalty -- striking out even the death penalty for drug kingpins and terrorists.

For almost 10 years, Republican Presidents have been calling for the Congress to pass workable federal death penalty laws. The American people overwhelmingly support it. Both Houses overwhelmingly passed it. But once again, the Democrats choked -- and failed to send a federal death penalty law to the President's desk. It's bad news for America, and bad news for law enforcement -- and good news only for violent criminals.

This gives us an attack issue the President can and should use in every race. (And, unlike the budget, we can attack without apology or explanation.) The Democrats should be hit, and hit hard, on this in every remaining campaign speech. ("This was a strong anti-crime bill when it left this House," said Henry Hyde. "It left here as Arnold Schwarzenegger and came back as Woody Allen.")

Attached are some materials from Justice -- including language drafted for POTUS that we can use.

DRAFTPRESIDENTIAL STATEMENT ON CONGRESS'S FAILURE TO ADOPT SERIOUS CRIMINAL LAW REFORMS IN THE CRIME BILL

Almost a year and a half ago, I sent tough anti-crime legislation to the Congress -- legislation designed to give police and prosecutors the tools they need to take violent criminals off our streets and put them away for good.

My proposals included a federal death penalty for serious federal crimes, reform of the exclusionary rule to allow courts to consider all evidence gathered by the police while doing their jobs in good faith, and reform of a habeas corpus system that has made a travesty of state death penalty laws through repetitive hearings and endless delay.

For almost ten years Republican Presidents have been calling upon the Congress to pass workable federal death penalty laws. Congress has failed to act, and as the law now stands, the federal government is powerless to impose the death penalty even for the most coldblooded acts of murder, such as terrorist bombings of civilian airplanes or the use of mailbombs against federal judges. We need a workable federal death penalty to send a message to drug-dealers and terrorists that America will not stand by while these violent criminals prey on her citizens or her public officers.

Despite the fact that the American people overwhelmingly support the death penalty, and despite the fact that this year both House of Congress overwhelmingly passed federal death penalty bills, the Congress has again failed to send a federal death penalty law to the President's desk.

In one of the most cowardly legislative acts on record, liberal Democrats in the conference committee mugged the crime bill in the last hours of the Congress. They cut the federal death penalty passed by both Houses -- They lifted habeas corpus and exclusionary rule reform -- They heisted the death penalty for drug kingpins -- and, in a time of budgetary crisis, they larded the bill with half-baked spending measures. There is no beef left in this so-called crime bill, only pork.

There has been alot of rhetoric about civil rights in the last few weeks, but this Congress has done very little to protect what I regard as every American's first civil right -- the right to be free from fear in our homes, in our streets, and in our neighborhoods. The American people deserve better than a cynical pork barrel measure dressed up as a crime bill, and I intended to seek better next year.

DATE: 10/29/90
PAGE: 6A

The Philadelphia Inquirer

KNIGHT-RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

'Congress passes weak crime bill

By David Hess
Inquirer Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Worried about a voter backlash if it failed to produce a crime bill, a homeward-bound Congress passed an eviscerated version that dropped every contentious item in the bill — including expanding the death penalty to cover more than 30 federal crimes.

"It was either that or no bill at all," said Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. (D., Del.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee, acknowledging that the original bill had been "emasculated."

To make the legislation more acceptable all around, conferees had erased the last traces of provisions sought by President Bush. Liberals took a dim view of the expanded death penalty; conservatives were cool to restrictions on assault weapons.

The compromise measure, approved earlier by the Senate by voice vote, was passed by the House late Saturday by 313-1. The lone dissenter was Rep. George W. Gekas (R., Pa.), who objected to the removal of the death-penalty provisions.

The heart of the substitute was a section cracking down on savings-and-loan villains, including imposing life imprisonment for S&L officials who conspire to steal millions.

The S&L section increases the power to seize the fruits of illegal profits amassed by thrift managers, including homes. It provides for hundreds of new federal prosecutors, FBI and Secret Service agents.

Congress approved new protections to make it easier for child-abuse victims to testify, banned trafficking in steroids, made child pornography a federal crime and increased funding for drug-education programs in schools.

It authorized $220 million for new types of prison programs, including boot camps for nonviolent first offenders. And it bolstered procedures for cooperating with foreign governments in cracking down on international money-laundering operations.

Items dropped included:

- A provision permitting a "good faith" exception to the rule that prohibits prosecutors from using evidence seized illegally.

- A "racial justice" provision enabling minority defendants to avoid the death penalty by producing valid statistics showing that a disproportionate number of minorities had been sentenced to death in their state judicial districts.

- A provision restricting the number of appeals a death-row inmate could make and imposed a six-month deadline on the time for filing appeals.

- A ban on the manufacture and sale of assault weapons.

Republicans expressed disappointment about the loss of tough provisions.

"This was a strong anti-crime bill when it left this House," said Rep. Henry J. Hyde (R., Ill.). "It left here as Arnold Schwarzenegger and came back as Woody Allen."

29

Department of Justice

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1990

CONTACT(202) 514-2007

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh issued the following statement in response to Congressional conference deletion of key provisions from the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1990:

"The conferees' decision to drop use of the death penalty for federal crimes is welcome news only to violent criminals.

"To deny use of the ultimate sanction for such crimes as mail bombings, terrorism and assassination of the President would thwart the will of the American people, state and local prosecutors and the overwhelming membership of the House and the Senate.

"Striking the death penalty from this bill would be an enormous step backwards in the fight against violent crime and would leave the federal government without the authority to impose the death penalty which 36 states now have.

"Rejection of the death penalty along with the stripping of proposals which would control endless appeals by death row inmates and which would assist police in the gathering of evidence now takes the teeth out of this legislation.

"It is hard to comprehend at a time when citizen concern about crime is so high why some on Capitol Hill have such difficulty in passing a crime bill which is pro-law enforcement instead of pro-criminal. I will repeat that the first civil right of all Americans is the right to be safe in our homes, on our streets and in our communities."

Anti-Crime Proposals Excluded From The 1990 Crime Bill

1. All Death Penalty Provisions
Including the death penalty for assassinating the President, treason and drug kingpins who traffick in extremely large quantities of drugs, murdering judges, witnesses, jurors, federal law enforcement officers, diplomats, hostages, victims of kidnapping, and killing by genocide, bank robbery acts of terrorism and mail bombing.
2. Habeas Corpus Reform
3. Exclusionary Rule Reform
4. Anti-Public Corruption Provisions
5. Drug Testing of Federal Offenders
6. Penalty for Firearm Possession by Juveniles Who Are Convicted of Three Serious Drug Offenses
7. Increased Firearms and Explosives Penalties
8. Several Anti-Drug Trafficking Provisions
9. Expanded Asset Forfeiture Authority
10. Drug User Accountability Provisions

U.S. Department of Justice

Office of the Deputy Attorney General

The Deputy Attorney General

Washington, D.C. 20530

October 27, 1990

Honorable Thomas S. Foley
Speaker
House of Representatives
1201 LHOB
Washington, D.C. 20515-4705

Dear Mr. Speaker:

The Department of Justice and the Nation's law enforcement community are shocked and dismayed at the evisceration of the crime bill since it left the House of Representatives three weeks ago.

Almost a year and a half ago, President Bush and Attorney General Thornburgh, with the support of state and local police and prosecutors, sent a comprehensive legislative proposal to the Congress to take violent criminals off our Nation's streets and put them away for good. This package contained a federal death penalty, exclusionary rule reform and habeas corpus reform. Subsequently, the Administration added a proposal providing for the death penalty for drug kingpins.

The House of Representatives, reflecting the will of the American people, passed each of these tough anti-crime measures by lopsided majorities. In addition, just this week, by a vote of almost three to one, this House instructed its conferees not to recede from the tough positions adopted by the House on federal death penalty, habeas corpus reform, the death penalty for drug kingpins, and exclusionary rule reform.

Unfortunately, the Conference Committee ignored the instructions of this body, and deleted the death penalty, habeas corpus and exclusionary rule provisions from the bill. No conference report was issued and a free standing measure was introduced in the Senate -- a measure containing none of the critical criminal law reforms proposed by the President and passed by the House. In a word, there is little beef left in this crime bill, some pork, and a lot of bun.

Because of Congress's persistent failure to act, the United States is powerless to impose the death penalty against the most violent criminals who threaten American citizens and public officers. Particularly at a time when the world's most vicious terrorists are poised to strike at American citizens, Congress's failure to provide a death penalty for terrorist murder is inexcusable.

The Department of Justice urges the House of Representatives to pass and send to the Senate the President's federal death penalty proposal which passed the House as the Gekas Amendment by a wide margin less than a month ago.

Sincerely,

William P. Barr
Deputy Attorney General

Department of Justice

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
MONDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1990

AG
202-514-2007
(TDD) 202-514-1888

In assessing the impact of law enforcement legislation passed by Congress on the Department of Justice Attorney General Dick Thornburgh issued the following statement:

"The work of the 101st Congress in the area of anti-crime legislation is a considerable disappointment. Beginning with the President's announcement of his anti-violent crime initiative on May 15, 1989, the Administration had high hopes that this was the Congress which would finally respond to the nation's need for a workable death penalty, and an end to continuous death row appeals and criminals going free on legal technicalities. These hopes were dashed with passage of the so-called 'comprehensive crime bill'.

"The best that can be said about this anti-crime package is in the area of white collar crime. It includes measures which will allow us to step up our efforts at prosecuting and punishing white collar criminals. Dishonest savings and loan president executives, corporations which defy anti-trust laws or dirty our air and those who think they can cheat the taxpayers out of debts owed to the government will feel the pain of these new arrows in our law enforcement quiver."

-more-

-2-

WHITE COLLAR CRIME PROVISIONS

Highlights of these new enforcement measures include possible life sentences for savings and loans kingpins along with fines up to $10 million. The federal government will also be better able to protect assets from being transferred or lost through pre-judgment attachments procedures. Moreover, a permanent Office of Special Counsel for savings and loans prosecutions has also been authorized at the Department of Justice. Wire tap regulations have also been extended to include bank fraud violations.

Anti-trust fines and penalties have also been enhanced. Sherman Act maximum fines for corporations have been increased from $1 million to $10 million. The government will also now be able to collect triple damages for anti-trust violations. Treble damages will serve as an important deterrent to bid-rigging and price-fixing.

Under new federal laws sought for years by United States Attorneys and passed by Congress last weekend, the Department will now have uniform procedures for collecting the estimated $90 billion owed to the taxpayers. Previously, our efforts were hampered by the requirement that we utilize often inconsistent state law to collect federal debts, allowing debtors to seek legal sanctuary in different states.

###

90-457

FC: 10-30-90

(Smith/Garmey)
October 29, 1990
5 P.M.
PARRIS

Dug Garmey
703-461-1290

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: PARRIS FUNDRAISER
ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1990
8:00 A.M.

Congressman Parris, ladies and gentlemen. As always, it is a pleasure to be in the Old Dominion -- and to speak on behalf of one of this Nation's great representatives. He's not simply on our side -- he's on America's side. // My friend -- and your wonderful Congressman. Stan Parris. //

((As Stan tells it, this visit arose from a phone call from that kinder and gentler human being, John Sununu. // John told him, "We've got a surprise for you that will really excite people." // Stan replied, "You mean big-league baseball's finally coming to Northern Virginia?")) //

Northern Virginia may not yet have a major league baseball team, but it has a major league congressman. And I'm here today to say: On Election Day, Stan is going to do to his opponent what the Reds did to the A's. //

I say that for many reasons. First, Stan is a friend -- not merely of Northern Virginia, but also of me. ((Stan and I have a special bond. I'm the one who taught him everything he knows about charisma.)) //

I also like Stan's honesty and perspective. // For example. Stan's a big Virginia Cavaliers football fan. That's the honest part. // Stan's perspective is realizing the impossibility of his transportation dream: Moving the University of Virginia to Alexandria. //

Finally, there is Stan Parris' record. Korean War hero. Returned to attend George Washington University -- then, practice law -- then, enter the Virginia House of Delegates. // He's served as Secretary of the Commonwealth. Been a superb seven-term U.S. Congressmen. // He's on the side of every decent American who values Growth, opportunity, and prosperity. // GOP. // Has a nice ring, don't you think? //

((You know, enduring the drive over here from D.C., I thought of how I'd vote for Stan Parris just on his transportation policies alone.)) // He co-sponsored legislation which will complete this area's Metro system. // He opposes Statehood for the District of Columbia -- and I support his stand. // Stan Parris reflects the values of America's good, quiet, decent people. // He believes in government which serves the people -- not the other way around.

We could use a little more of Stan's common sense about five miles northeast of here. I'm speaking about the ludicrous spectacle known as the United States Congress. // Yes, Virginia, America finally has a Federal budget. But even Ripley would not believe what it had to endure to get that budget passed. //

All of you know the history of these budget negotiations. For most of the past year, our Administration -- aided by Congressmen like Stan -- has worked to produce a serious response to a serious deficit -- grappling not only with the budget, but a self-serving Congress in which both houses are run by Democrats.

For eight months, this Democratic Congress acted like a 78 record played at 33. The only thing it did quickly was "Tax and spend." Otherwise, for eight months, it postured. Bellowed. Debated. Stalled. // If Congress were a play, it would have closed before New Haven. Congress hasn't been doing the people's business. It's been giving the business to the people.

// Now, Stan's opponent proposes to give the business to the Eighth District. //

Part of Congress's problem is institutional. Think of it - - twenty thousand staff members and a Rubik's Cube of committees. Too often, serving liberals like Stan's opponent who pander to pressure groups. // Then, there's a second problem: Congress' left-wing philosophy perpetuated by nearly 40 years of one-party rule. // Because the Democratic Congress has become unaccountable, it has become irresponsible. Yes, the budget process is broke -- and we have to fix it. But we don't just have to change the process. Ask Stan Parris -- he could use some company: We have to elect more Republicans so we can change the Congress, too. //

Six days from now, let's remember who gave us the sorry charade we call a budget process. The Democrats. // And who fought so hard for budget reform -- for built-in enforcement rules to break liberals' tax and spend addiction once and for all. Yes, Republicans like Stan Parris. // Republicans helped us achieve the first five-year curb on spending ever. And ensured over $350 billion in spending cuts -- the largest cut in history. // Republicans helped me reduce the deficit by ^{almost} $500 billion. Hold the line against the ultra-liberals who would cripple our national defense. Finally, thank God for Republicans like Stan Parris who helped me keep Congress from raising income tax rates on working America. //

N 6

Here's the good news. Our budget agreement will help bring interest rates down in Northern Virginia -- helping you buy that new home or car. It will help build more new businesses -- and that means more new jobs. // But I won't deceive you -- we've had enough deception from the other party. So here's the bad news. This budget's not nearly as good -- nor ^{as} fair to the Middle Class -- as we would have had under a Republican Congress. // For too long we've endured a Democratic Congress that -- by bowing to special interests -- measures progress made by dollars spent. // Next Tuesday, let's elect Republicans like Stan Parris who measure progress made by people helped -- and who will build a government which stands for America's interests. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs a Republican Congress that will balance the budget by cutting spending -- not a Democratic Congress that tries to raise the income-tax rates of the middle-class. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs ~~a~~ Republican Congress that will pass our tough crime bill -- not a Democratic Congress that tries to weaken the law and gut the death penalty. //

Ask Stan Parris. America needs a Republican Congress that will end the influence of special interests -- not a Democratic Congress that wants taxpayers to join lobbyists in re-electing the Tax and Spenders. // In short, the only way to send a message to Washington is to elect a Republican majority. The only way to send a message to Washington is not to elect Democrats. //

I've known Stan Parris for many years. I like him -- respect him. So let's keep him on the side of those who want a Congress which will work with the President for the good of all.

Let's go to the polls. And roll up our sleeves to re-elect a magnificent U.S. Congressman. Thank you for what you've done, and will do, for Stan. / God bless the United States. And let's re-elect Stan Parris as Congressman from the Eighth District of the great State of Virginia.

#

FACSIMILE TRANSMISSION COVER SHEET

He's On Our Side.

FROM: DUG GARRETT

FRIENDS OF STAN PARRIS
P. O. BOX 7001-0001
ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA 22307

PHONE: 703-461-1990

FAX # (703) 751-5165

TO: TED GARNEY

COMPANY: WHITE HOUSE

DATE: 10-25-90

TIME: 4 PM

PHONE: _____

FAX NO: 456-6218

NUMBER OF PAGES: 6 INCLUDING THIS COVER SHEET.

CONGRESSMAN STAN PARRIS FUNDRAISER: OCTOBER 31, 1990

PRELIMINARY INFORMATION:

- Randy Henniman, campaign director: 703-823-7572
- Rep. Parris is finishing his sixth consecutive term; he also served a term between 1972 and 1974.
- he has been married to his current (4th) wife Martie for 3 years.
- campaign theme: "he's on our side."
- personal information being faxed.
- GB's son Marvin lives in SP's district.
- personal materials being faxed

OCT 25 '90 15:32 FROM REP PARRIS-CAP HILL TO EISENHOWER PAGE.002

Talking Points For the President of the United States for the Campaign Breakfast on Behalf of Congressman Stan Parris

1. The President has on his desk a bill, The Korean War Veteran's Memorial Coin Act, sponsored by Parris, that he has agreed to sign. The legislation will allow for the sale of commemorative coins which will finance the construction of the Korean War Memorial near the Lincoln Memorial. The Memorial will be constructed entirely with private funds, and the coin sale will even allow for the repayment of the initial one million dollars the Federal government appropriated for the commission of the Memorial in 1986.
2. By Monday, the President should have on his desk the Parris-Dellums Metrorail Reauthorization bill, which the Administration agreed to on Thursday, October 25. This legislation will allow the completion of the full 103 mile subway system, including a Metro station in Springfield, Virginia. Metro has been called America's Subway, and represents the Federal commitment to transportation improvements and environmental sound forms of transportation.
3. The President, earlier this year, signed the Amtrak Reauthorization Act which included a provision drafted by Stan Parris that allows the Virginia Commuter Rail system to begin operations next year. The President's signature removed the final hurdle to this vitally needed transportation system in Northern Virginia.
4. Stan Parris has led the fight against D.C. Statehood and is supported by the Administration in his efforts. He opposes it because it is unconstitutional and because it will result in a $1.2 Billion commuter tax being imposed on Virginians and Marylanders who commute to Washington D.C. for employment.
5. Parris is a charter member of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control and has supported all of President Bush's initiatives in the War on Drugs.
6. Stan Parris is the senior Republican on the House District of Columbia Committee and has worked with the Administration for the betterment of Northern Virginia. One of the key strengths of Stan Parris is that as the Vice-Chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee working with the Republican Administration he is infinitely more effective in protecting the interests of Northern Virginia than a liberal freshman Democrat who would be under the heavy handed control of the House Democrat leadership.
7. (Regarding the budget and the current "anti-incumbent mood.") It would be great if the President would point out that the last thing the country needs to get its budget problems under control is the addition of another liberal Democrat to the House of Representatives. It is the Democrat leadership that has missed deadline after deadline and forced the breakdown of the budget process. Not one appropriation bill was sent to the President by the legal deadline. The President needs Stan Parris and additional Republicans elected to the House of Representatives and the Senate to get the budget process under control, reduce the rate of government spending and hold the line on taxes.

Congressman Stan Parris: A Profile

Congressman Stan Parris, of Virginia's Eighth District is the senior member of Virginia's delegation to the Congress of the United States. In over 25 years of government service Stan Parris has served extensively at all levels of government.

Stan Parris was born in Champaign, Illinois on September 9, 1929. He earned his Bachelor of Science degree at the University of Illinois in 1950. After college he enlisted in the Air Force and became a jet fighter pilot in the Korean War where he earned the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with Cluster, Purple Heart and the U.S. and Korean Presidential Unit Citations. The Congressman is a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

After the war, Parris earned his Juris Doctor Degree at George Washington University, where he was voted the "Outstanding Law Student of the Year." He is a former practicing attorney and businessman.

Stan Parris was elected to the Fairfax Board of Supervisors in 1963. Following that, he was elected to the Virginia General Assembly, where he served in the House of Delegates for three terms. As a delegate he was the Chairman of the Joint Senate-House Republican Caucus and served on the Finance Committee, Inter-State Committee, Courts of Justice Committee, and the Counties, Cities and Towns Committee.

Following the election of Republican Governor John Dalton, Stan Parris was appointed the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Virginia, and subsequently served as the Director of Virginia's Federal Liaison Office in Washington, D.C.

First elected to Congress in 1972, Stan Parris has served in the 93rd, 97th, 98th, 99th, 100th and 101st Congresses. He is the vice-chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee and the 4th Ranking Republican on the Banking and Finance Committee. Parris serves on 4 subcommittees of the Banking Committee including the important Housing subcommittee and the subcommittees on General Oversight and Investigation (ranking), Financial Institutions, Supervision, Regulation and Insurance.

Parris also serves on the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee and is a member of the Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment, the Subcommittees on National Parks and Public Lands, and Water and Power Resources. The Eighth District Congressman is also a member of the Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control.

Stan Parris also serves on several Republican Committees including the Vice-Presidency of the National Republican Congressional Committee and as the Chairman of the Republican Research Task Force on Financial Institutions.

Congressman Parris has maintained his interest in aviation since the Korean War. He was the founder and President of the Flying Circus Aerodrome in Warrenton, Virginia. Parris has a commercial pilot license and enjoys flying his open-cockpit bi-plane as a hobby.

About the 8th District

The 8th District of Virginia is located in Northern Virginia and borders on the Nation's Capitol. It includes the entire City of Alexandria, the southern portion of Fairfax County, the eastern portion of Prince William County, and the northeast portion of Stafford County. It is one of the fastest growing districts in the nation, and includes the largest number of federal workers of any congressional district in the United States.

Offices of Congressmen Stan Parris

2434 Rayburn House Office Bldg.
Washington D.C. 20515
(202) 225-4376

6901 Old Keene Mill Road #101
Springfield, Virginia 22150
(703) 644-0004

14546 Jefferson Davis Hwy.
Woodbridge, Virginia, 22191
(703) 494-8199

A Record of Accomplishments

Tougher Penalties for Drug Crimes

As a senior member of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, Congressman Parris has been a leader in the war on drugs and alcohol abuse.

Co-authored the 1986 and 1988 Omnibus Drug Bills and is the principal author of provisions contained within the 1990 Omnibus Crime package, which requires serious mandatory jail time for drug pushers who sell to children or involve them in their drug trade.

Supports the death penalty for drug kingpins.

Required the Secretary of the Interior to set up a special tactical drug enforcement unit within this region's National Park Police, which has made more arrests and confiscated more drugs than all other local law enforcement groups.

D.C. - A City for All Americans

As Vice Chairman and Ranking Republican of the House D.C. Committee, Stan Parris has been the leading opponent of Statehood for the District of Columbia.

The negative impact statehood would have on Virginia residents, specifically those in the 8th district, is enormous:

$600+ million per year commuter tax by D.C. on Virginians working in D.C.;

A net loss of $400 million per year to Virginia's state and local tax base;

D.C. would continue sending its prisoners and dumping its garbage in Lorton, Virginia;

American taxpayers would continue to shoulder the financial burden of this city-state which currently receives more than twelve dollars in direct Federal assistance for every one dollar D.C. residents pay in Federal taxes.

Decrease Spending Instead of Increasing Taxes

Stan Parris consistently opposes all efforts to increase taxes.

Supported the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 for a 25 percent across-the-board tax cut for individuals and savings/productivity incentives for businesses.

Stan Parris... Virginia's Veteran

Stan Parris' life is an affirmation of his readiness to serve his country and its citizens.

Stan was a member of one of our nation's first jet fighter squadrons, flying combat missions in Korea. Decorated five times, he received the Purple Heart, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with Cluster, and the U.S. and Korean Presidential Citations.

Upon returning from service, Stan attended George Washington University Law School and practiced law for 20 years as a partner in a Northern Virginia firm.

In 1963, he held his first public office on the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors. By 1969, he was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates, where he served for 3 terms.

Stan was elected to his first term in Congress in 1972. In 1974, the year of Watergate, he was among 48 Republican members who lost their seats to Democrats.

After several years as Secretary of the Commonwealth under Governor Dalton, Stan was ready to retake his Congressional

Sponsored legislation budget veto amendment man

Fought passage of bill which includ seat in Virginia's 8th incumbent and he

He serves on the H. Committee, the Ho and Control and as Committee. He ser ments on importan the Energy and Wat the National Reput

Veteran... attorney service... Nobody i

Extended Page 2.1
slation which would grant the President line-to authority, and sponsored a Constitutional mandating a balanced budget.

of the 1987 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation ded $14 billion in new taxes.

ith District. In 1980, he defeated a 3-term has won solid reelections every year since.

House Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs
House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse is Vice Chairman on the District of Columbia erves on the Interior Committee with assign-nt National Parks and public lands as well as ater Subcommittees. He is Vice-Chairman of iblican Congressional Committee.

y...elected official...27 years of public is better suited to serve Virginia.

Place 25¢
Stamp Here

Parnis for Congress
P.O. Box 7001-0001
Alexandria, VA. 22307

Roads and Rails for Virginia Residents

Co-authored and was the principal sponsor of legislation to complete the 103-mile Metro system, including the Springfield-Franconia Station. Successfully fought for Metro grants and appropriations totaling more than $4.6 billion.

Obtained a $21 million Federal grant for parking facilities at the future Springfield-Franconia Metro Station, $1.2 million for commuter parking at Rolling Valley, and $7 million for the Prince William County Transportation Center.

Initiated the proposal for Commuter Rail with the establishment of a Congressional Task Force on Commuter Rail; obtained a $1 million federal capital grant; negotiated an agreement with Conrail for access to its tracks into Washington — legislation passed this year.

Fought successfully for the Springfield Bypass route through Fort Belvoir, now under construction.

Won approval of legislation permitting all commuters to use HOV lanes on Shirley Highway and successfully negotiated the reduction of HOV-4 to HOV-3.

Actively supports the Eastern Beltway Bypass through Maryland and believes the Western bypass (W-3) should not be planned or constructed through residential areas in Prince William County.

