PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: BUSH-QUAYLE FUNDRAISER
WHITE PLAINS, NEW YORK
THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1992

Louis Bantle, thank you for that introduction. / Bobby Holt
-- who has done such a great job. Secretary Kissinger.

((Senator Baker -- it's always good to see you. The other night
Barbara and I watched a video of the movie, "The Fabulous Baker Boys" thinking it was about you and Jim.)) // J. Brian Gaffney.
Betsy Hemingway. Fellow Republicans, and friends. //

((First, let me ^{tell you} always enjoy hearing the Oak Ridge Boys.
Country music has done something this year that the Democratic Party won't. It's made a big comeback.)) //

((I also look forward to pitching horseshoes after these remarks. / I've had the chance to play horseshoes with Arnold Schwarzenegger. I don't mind he's more accurate than ^{I am} me -- but I'm jealous ^{that} he can throw shoes with the horses still in them.))

I am delighted to be here, with the men and women who have helped us change the world -- so we can now change America. / I know there's been a lot of talk about change this election year.
Well, let me start with a promise: The time for talk is over.
The time for change is now. /

I saw that first ^{hand} three thousand miles away, in Los Angeles -- and I want to begin tonight by sharing what I saw, what I heard, and what I felt. / Each one of us saw the images of hate and horror -- images we won't soon forget. But what I saw in Los Angeles -- even in the hardest-hit parts of South Central L.A. -- should give us cause for hope. //

Everywhere, the people I met told me about acts of heroism - - about ordinary people doing extra-ordinary things. / Some braved the gangs of looters, to form "bucket brigades" -- putting out fires when firetrucks couldn't get through. / Some stood up to mobs to help a child or save a life. / These stories may not make headlines -- but they make you proud to be an American. They remind us: Ours is the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

The founder of our party knew how change plus courage equals greatness -- knew when the questions of the "stormy present" had outlived the "dogmas of the quiet past." / Some still prefer the dogmas of quieter times. But you and I know: The time has come for change. / I'm not pointing fingers -- I'll just ask the question: is the present system meeting our goals? We all know it's not. The old solutions are producing fresh failures. It is time -- as Lincoln put it -- "to think . . . and act anew." //

As Republicans, we agree: we must rebuild our house on the rock of Republican faith, Republican principles. Principles that tell us we must keep power where it belongs -- ~~that's~~ close to the American people. / That we must strengthen families -- instill character and values in our youth. That we must aid entrepreneurship, increase investment, and create new jobs. X

These principles tell us that the challenges we face go deeper than the crisis in Los Angeles -- that beyond our urgent emergency aid, we've got to bring hope and opportunity -- not only to Los Angeles -- but to all American cities. / That was the message I gave congressional leaders -- both Republican and Democrat -- when I called them to the White House last week. It was then ^{that} I detailed my six-point plan for a new America. //

First, we've got to preserve order, keep the peace: because families can't thrive, children can't learn, ^{and} jobs can't flourish in a combat zone. / We know that people can't tackle tough problems if they're busy dodging bullets. It's just that simple. Violence and brutality destroy order and the rule of law. That kind of violence should not be explained / can not be excused / and must be condemned. / In Mt. Zion Church in South Central L.A. -- right in the heart of the riot zone -- I mentioned support for the police and the whole ^{congregation} ~~church~~ erupted in applause. //

That's the spirit behind an initiative I call "Weed and Seed." First, you "weed out" the gang leaders, drug dealers and career criminals -- and then "seed" the community with expanded employment, educational and social services. This is new and tough -- and it's going to help people take back the streets / take back the neighborhoods / take back control of their lives. /

Next, we've got to rebuild the community -- with investment / with opportunity / with hope. That means Enterprise Zones for our inner cities. / It also means private sector activity. Peter Ueberroth is confident that he can get a lot of businesses to set up suppliers in troubled areas -- not government make-work -- ~~but~~ real jobs in real businesses. /

Third, we've got to reform the welfare system. We've got to replace the handout with a hand up. / Jefferson said, "The whole art of government lies in being honest." Honesty proclaims that we must replace the perverse disincentives that penalize families for working, for saving, for staying together. / Next, we need a strong jobs program for city youth, the kind that can teach kids how to run a drugstore -- not how to run a drug ring. That means things like our Apprentice Initiative and Job Training 2000. //

This brings me to our plan's fifth point: Revolutionizing American education. Our America 2000 strategy offers choice, competition and community action. Children in our inner cities deserve the same opportunities that kids in our suburbs have. The special interests can just step aside: whether it's public or private or religious, parents -- not the government -- have a right to choose their children's schools. //

Finally, we must promote new hope through home ownership. I've never understood how anyone could be content with the present system -- to take pride in warehousing the poor. / Our HOPE initiative gives poor families a stake in their communities -- something to pass on to their children. Bottom line -- ~~and~~ I ask you to help me fulfill it; ^{because} HOPE can turn housing into homes./

At every turn during my time in L.A., I heard people talking about the principles that guide these initiatives: Personal responsibility. Opportunity. Ownership. Independence. Dignity. // You know what those words mean. They can make a reality of the American Dream. //

Now, we all know what the critics say: "you've proposed all this before." That's true -- but these ideas have not been tried. Now is the time for a bi-partisan approach. Now is the time to act. // ((I only wish I could act unilaterally. That's the reason I enjoy dressing ^{casually} like this. Not only because it's more relaxing ~~and casual~~ -- but because it's one of the few things I can do that doesn't need approval from Congress.)) //

The first order of business -- building bipartisan support for immediate action on this agenda -- has begun. We had a good meeting with the Congressional leaders last week -- and here's what I told them: We must not settle for business-as-usual. //

I also told them ^{that} what's going on in urban America is just one part of a larger issue -- because the need for reform and new ideas doesn't end where the suburbs begin. //

Our revolution in education isn't just about helping inner city students -- it's about helping all students: from kindergarten to college -- even old computer students like me. Reform means action to break down barriers to free trade -- opening new markets to American goods. In each case, we've taken aim at the status quo -- and set our sights on status grow. //

America needs legal reform -- to put an end to these outrageous court awards that strain our civility and sap our economy. / We've gotten to a point where doctors won't deliver babies -- where fathers are afraid to coach future Bobby Bonillas and Don Mattinglys in Little League -- all because of the fear of some frivolous lawsuit. /

We must reform our legal system -- and no lobby of trial lawyers will stand in the way. // Americans need to spend less time suing each other and more time helping each other. //

We need health care reform -- to open up access to affordable health care for all Americans. It used to be that you didn't have to go broke just to get better. Today, more than 30 million Americans have no health care coverage at all. //

We can -- must -- change that. My comprehensive health care reform plan will keep America first in the world in high-quality health care. At the same time, it will open up access to all Americans. We do that through making insurance available to all. And we make that insurance more affordable by what is known as "pools." And contrary to what the big government folks say -- we can do it without nationalizing or socializing our health care system. // Let's face it: National health care would instantly diminish the quality of our health care and would be a national disaster -- and this President won't let that happen. //

So far tonight, I've spoken about change. ((I know the other party does as well. In their case, change means that's about all you'd have left in your pockets -- and they'd try to take that, too.)) // I've also spoken about what government can do -- but government alone cannot solve our problems. X
Government may be able to make good laws, but it's never been able to make men good. That doesn't come from Big Brother -- it comes from mother, and father and family. I'm talking about the moral sense that must guide us all. In the simplest terms -- I'm talking about knowing what's wrong -- and doing what's right. //

Go back to Los Angeles for a minute. Time and again the people I met there fingered a root cause of the riots: the declining influence of the family. / They're right. Ask yourself: What keeps a kid in school, away from drugs, and off the streets? It's not government spending -- or the number of SBA loans or HUD grants. It's whether a child lives in a home where they are loved, and cared for, and kept on the right path.

Barbara Bush was right: what happens in the White House doesn't matter half as much as what happens in your house. //

I believe this. So I've made it my mission as President to put the American family first. / That's why I keep coming back to the Good Samaritans I call Points of Light: People who help the poor, elderly, kids in trouble -- and never ask a nickel in return. Government alone can't transform the lives of people in need. Let the cynics scoff: We know these volunteers are the lifeblood of the American spirit. //

I believe in the Republican party -- because I believe in Republican principles. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future. We have the strength and spirit in our government, in our communities, and in ourselves to truly make America "the last best hope of earth." //

Thank you for your kindness. Barbara and I appreciate your strong support. And may God bless the United States of America.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
IN ADDRESS TO THE OHIO FREEDOM DAY CELEBRATION

Auditorium
St. Josephat's Cathedral
Cleveland, Ohio

1:53 P.M. EDT

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you so much. Thank you, Governor Voinovich. I think the people in Parma probably understand this, but let me just say it: You've got a great Governor of this state, and I'm proud to be with him. (Applause.) May I salute two members of my Cabinet -- the President's Cabinet -- with me here today: Secretary Jack Kemp, who runs HUD, doing a great job. (Applause.) He's out there working to help through enterprise zones and homeownership -- doing a great job there. And then another one whom you all know very well -- most of you do -- a man who has introduced me to much of ethnic America: Secretary Ed Derwinski, the Secretary of the Veterans Administration. (Applause.)

I want to thank Mayor Ries, who greeted me earlier, Parma's Mayor, welcoming me to this wonderful community. (Applause.) Another old friend, Ralph Perk -- we go back a long, long time, Ralph -- to when he was Mayor of the City of Cleveland. And, of course, Mike DeWine, who I want to see in the United States Senate; now the Lieutenant Governor of this state. (Applause.)

Let me thank all of you for this Freedom Medal. I was pointing out to Ralph something he had already seen. But I love these signs; all of them hand-done --- but "Freedom Is America's Name" and "Let Freedom Ring." What says it better than that? I don't know. It is fantastic. (Applause.) I think it is very fitting that George Voinovich, your Governor has proclaimed this Freedom Day. And Americans like yourselves, not just here, but all across the country, gave us the strength, the determination, the will to topple the Berlin Wall and to work for the freedom of Eastern Europe and for the rest of what used to be the Soviet Union. (Applause.)

You never gave up. You never, ever gave up. You said your prayers; you said them over and over again, praying for your friends and your families that were left halfway around the world, but you never, ever gave up. And I've been in public life for sometime; half my life in public life, half in private. And one thing I've seen wherever is the faith that the Americans -- different nationalities had in the fact that their countries, their people would be free. You never gave up, and I congratulate you for that. (Applause.)

Today we hear so much gloom and doom about what's wrong with the United States of America. But we can all take pride that we brought about the fall of the Iron Curtain, the death of imperial communism, and we prevented the cataclysm of the third world war because freedom-loving people in America and in Europe persevered and won the Cold War definitively. And we should take great pride in that. (Applause.)

It's risky to go into any particular country in this homogenous group, I'll tell you; but a group joined together because of freedom, but with many ethnic backgrounds. But the great leader of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Cardinal Slipyj endured years of pain in prison, and we'll forget his role. We'll never forget Hungary's noble symbol of courage, the late Cardinal Mindszenty. Both of these men died in lonely exile. But they inspired others, not just in Hungary, but others to persevere. And they inspired others to literally change the world. And now both are hailed openly as heroes in their native land, just as they are honored here in America. The church, faith, had a lot to do about the success of the United States in standing up against communism and working and prevailing for freedom. (Applause.)

This day, Freedom Day, we also honor heroes of the '90s -- statesmen like Havel and Walesa and Landsbergis. And we marvel at how our world has changed. You know, during the '80s Havel and Lech Walesa spent time in prison for the crime of speaking up for freedom. That was the crime -- to speak up for freedom. And it was scarcely more than one year ago that Landsbergis, Lithuania took his stand, armed with only the truth and the spirit of patriotism against the Red Army forces who were gunning down innocent citizens in Lithuania.

So we won't forget that. And this day honors the work of half a century of our G.I.s and of our allies who kept NATO strong. The radio broadcasters who pierced the Iron Curtain with words of hope and truth.

I remember when Lech Walesa came to the United States. He wanted to go to Radio Free Europe so he could meet and look into the eyes of the voice that he had heard speaking up for freedom when that was the only hope the people of Poland had -- a wonderful story about our nation's perseverance. We think of world leaders whose deeds were as powerful as their words. Margaret Thatcher and Helmut Kohl; my predecessor, Ronald Reagan who had so much to do with keeping our sights set on the fall of communism. (Applause.)

And of the families -- we think of them -- in the East and the West who prayed together, and parents who taught their children right from wrong. The physical and moral strength of these people transcended and destroyed the Iron Curtain. And I believe that moral strength will prevail, even where violence and oppression hold forth, as in the states of the former Yugoslavia. We now recognize the full sovereignty of Slovenia and Croatia and Bosnia, and we stand in solidarity with their people.

Let me make this clear: We will not recognize the annexation of territories by force. Aggression cannot be rewarded. But we must stay involved, trying to find a peaceful answer to the whole question of Yugoslavia -- (applause.)

So, as George said, we do stand on the threshold of a new world, a world of peace and opportunity. And I really see this as the opportunity of a century. And it's amazing to learn about some of the efforts that have already begun. Think tanks and fact machines that are networking to foster democracy and free enterprise in the Baltic Republics, in Ukraine and Russia, throughout Eastern Europe.

Governor Voinovich tells me the growth of telephone traffic between Ohio and Ukraine is absolutely phenomenal. New phone links are helping families restore these old bonds and helping new business ventures get going. People from Kiev and Vilnius now travel here without having to fear that they left home for the last time.

Government is doing its part. Two weeks ago I had a wonderful meeting for those particularly interested in Ukraine, a wonderful meeting with Kravchuk -- President Kravchuk, welcoming him to the White House and then taking him up -- we flew in a helicopter up to Camp David, pointing out the different rural communities in agricultural America and urban America.

I think we made real progress, working with President Kravchuk, on reducing the threat of nuclear war. (Applause.) We announced our pledge to establish the science and technology center in Ukraine. We signed agreements that are going to foster trade and investment with Ukraine. And I've taken action to grant Most Favored Nation status for Ukraine as soon as possible. (Applause.)

And again, for the Ukrainian Americans present, I am very, very proud that one of the men closest to me in the White House, Roman Popadiuk will be sworn-in next week as the first American Ambassador to Ukraine. We've got to keep working on this. Just last week, a couple of days ago, actually -- I had an equally good meeting with the President of Kazakhstan, President Nazarbayev. And, like Kravchuk, Nazarbayev pledged to join the Non-Proliferation Treaty as a nonnuclear weapon state. And he pledged to remove all the nuclear weapons within the seven-year period of the START Agreement.

And in a few more weeks, the President of Russia, a gigantic, new country -- a gigantic new country, President Yeltsin coming to the United States and we are going to meet together in Washington to chart a new partnership with Russia for the future. And it is a wonderful thing to be talking about business and freedom instead of talking about nuclear arms and the worry that our kids used to have in this country about the nuclear threat. (Applause.)

We're eager to develop strengths and strengthen our ties with Belarus and Moldova and Armenia and all the nations that have won independence from Soviet rule. And working with them and our allies, we want to establish a democratic peace -- a lasting peace that is built on trust, a peace that is built on shared values, not simply the absence of war.

And so to finish this job, I need your help. We've done much to support the new nations of the Commonwealth, CIS. And there are other initiatives that will help these nations along the road to democracy and freedom. For Russia -- largely for Russia, but also for the Ukraine and others -- we have the freedom support act which I've sent up to the Congress, which will provide new opportunities for American business. It's going to clear away a lot of that Cold War legislation -- get rid of that -- that now inhibits trade and investment with Ukraine and the other nations of the old Soviet Empire. It provides new authority to continue food assistance totally $110 million in food guarantees for the purchase of American ag products. And Congress should act now.

We've got problems at home, but we must not miss this historic opportunity to guarantee the peace for these kids here and to guarantee the freedom for those across the ocean. (Applause.)

So join with me in asking Congress not to disappoint our children and to support us as we try to pass the freedom support act. And if we meet these responsibilities today, a generation from now people might be speaking about a Ukrainian miracle or a Baltic miracle, much as we marvel at the recovery of Western Europe just a few years ago, ravaged by the Second World War. They came back strong. And everyone calls it The Miracle of Western Europe. Now we want the same things for these new republics. And with your support, we can get it. (Applause.)

I know that it is still Easter season in your church. And to close, I want to tell a story about Easter this year -- not in Ukraine, but in Russia. Many of you will recall the big military parades that the Soviets used to have there in Red Square, always with a huge portrait of Lenin as the backdrop on the wall of the State Historical Museum.

Well, this year at Easter, there was no portrait of Lenin. Instead, a massive icon towered over Red Square. An icon of the Resurrection. And atop it, the words, "Khris pos vokres" -- "Christ is risen." (Applause.) And the way I look at it is this: This really is a season of resurrection throughout the once captive nations of Europe. And it is a wonderful time to be alive to see these days, to enjoy the freedom that God has given us in the freest, most wonderful nation on the face of the Earth, the United States of America. May God bless each and every one of you. (Applause.)

And may I say, as the President of the United States, I will keep working for freedom around the world. And with your support, I know we will be successful in seeing these European and former Soviet republics become free and whole with the people enjoying a life they never would have dreamed of.

Thank you, and may God bless the United States of America. Thank you.

Louis Bantle, thank you for that introduction. / Bobby Holt 3000

-- who has done such a great job. ~~Secretary Kissinger.~~

((Senator Baker -- it's always good to see you. The other night

Barbara and I watched a video of the movie, "The Fabulous Baker Boys" thinking it was about you and Jim.)) // Brian Gaffney.

Betsy Hemingway. Fellow Republicans, and friends. //

BQ

CO-CH

((First, let me I always enjoy hearing the Oak Ridge Boys.

Country music has done something this year that the Democratic Party won't. It's made a big comeback.)) //

((I also look forward to pitching horseshoes after these remarks. / I've had the chance to play horseshoes with Arnold Schwarzenegger. I don't mind THAT he's more accurate than I AM -- but I'm ENVIDIOUS jealous he can throw shoes with the horses still in them.))

I am delighted to be here, with the men and women who have helped us change the world -- so we now change America. / I know there's been a lot of talk about change this year. But talk is cheap -- and your tickets were not. So let me start with a promise: The time for talk is over. The time for change is now./

I saw that first hand three thousand miles away, in Los Angeles -- and I want to begin tonight by sharing what I saw,
what I heard, and what I felt. / Each one of us saw the images of hate and horror -- images we won't soon forget. But what I saw in Los Angeles -- even in the hardest-hit parts of South Central L.A. -- should give us cause for hope. //

Everywhere, the people I met told me about acts of heroism -- about ordinary people doing extra-ordinary things. / Some braved the gangs of looters, to form "bucket brigades" -- putting out fires when firetrucks couldn't get through. / Some stood up to mobs to help a child or save a life. / These stories may not make headlines -- but they make you proud to be an American. They remind us: Ours is the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

The founder of our party knew how change plus courage equal greatness -- knew when the questions of the "stormy present" had outlived the "dogmas of the quiet past." / Some still prefer the comfortable dogmas of quieter times. But you and I know: The time has come for change. / I'm not pointing fingers -- I'll just ask the question: is the present system meeting our goals? We all know it's not. The old solutions are producing fresh failures. It is time -- as Lincoln put it -- "to think ^{ANEW} . . . and act anew." //

As Republicans, we agree: we must rebuild our house on the rock of Republican faith, Republican principles. Principles that tell us we must keep power where it belongs -- that's close to the American people. / That we must strengthen families -- instill character and values in our youth. That we must aid entrepreneurship, increase investment, and create new jobs. /

These principles tell us that the challenges we face go deeper than the crisis in Los Angeles -- that beyond our urgent emergency aid, we've got to bring hope and opportunity -- not only to Los Angeles -- but to all American cities. / That was the message I gave congressional leaders -- both Republican and Democrat -- when I called them to the White House last week. It was then I detailed my six-point plan for a new America. //

First, we've got to preserve order, keep the peace: because families can't thrive, children can't learn, jobs can't flourish in a combat zone. / We know that people can't tackle tough problems if they're busy dodging bullets. It's just that simple. Violence and brutality destroy order and the rule of law. That kind of violence should not be explained / can not be excused / and must be condemned. / In Mt. Zion Church in South Central L.A. -- right in the heart of the riot zone -- I mentioned support for the police and the whole church erupted in applause. //

That's the spirit behind an initiative I call "Weed and Seed." First, you "weed out" the gang leaders, drug dealers and career criminals -- and then "seed" the community with expanded employment, educational and social services. This is new and tough -- and it's going to help people take back the streets / take back the neighborhoods / take back control of their lives. /

Next, we've got to rebuild the community -- with investment / with opportunity / with hope. That means Enterprise Zones for our inner cities. / It also means private sector activity. Peter Ueberroth is confident that he can get a lot of businesses to set up suppliers in troubled areas -- real jobs in real businesses. / is there one more?

Third, we've got to reform the welfare system. We've got to replace the handout with a hand up. / Jefferson said, "The whole art of government ~~lies in~~ ^{CONSISTS IN THE ART OF} being honest." Honesty proclaims that we have to replace the perverse disincentives that penalize families for working, for saving, for staying together. / Stories like the one about ~~Barbara Pasado~~ ^{SANDRA ROSADO}, the young woman from Connecticut whose family was penalized $9,000 because she had set aside $4,900 to go to college, ~~must stop~~ ^{OVER} ~~THAT'S WORTH~~. People need a ladder out of welfare -- and we've proposed legislation to do just that. / Next, we need a strong jobs program for city youth to teach kids how to run a drugstore -- not how to run a drug ring. That means things like our Youth Apprentice Initiative and Job Training 2000. //

This brings me to our plan's fifth point: Revolutionizing American education. / Our America 2000 strategy offers choice, competition and community action. Low-income parents deserve the same opportunity to choose the best schools for their children that families with more income have. The special interests can just step aside: whether it's public or private or religious, parents -- not the government -- have a right to choose their children's schools. //

Finally, we must promote new hope through home ownership. I've never understood how anyone could be content with the present system -- to take pride in warehousing the poor. // Our HOPE initiative gives poor families a stake in their communities

Start in
Parents' office

-- something they can pass on to their children. Bottom line -- and I ask ^{who?} to help fulfill it: HOPE can turn housing into homes./

At every turn during my time in L.A., I heard people talking about the principles that guide these initiatives: Personal responsibility. Opportunity. Ownership. Independence. Dignity. // You know what those words mean. They're the heart and soul of the American Dream. //

Now, we all know what the critics say: "you've proposed all this before." That's true -- but these ideas have not been tried. Now is the time for a bi-partisan approach. Now is the time to act -- to show that government can feel in its heart what it knows in its head. // ((I only wish I could act unilaterally. That's the reason I enjoy dressing like this. Not only because it's more relaxing and casual -- but because it's one of the few things I can do that doesn't need approval from Congress.)) //

The first order of business -- building bipartisan support for immediate action on this agenda -- has begun. We had a good meeting with the Congressional leaders last week -- and here's what I told them: We must not settle for business-as-usual. //

I also told them what's going on in urban America is just one part of a larger issue -- because the need for reform and new ideas doesn't end where the suburbs begin. //

Our revolution in education isn't just about helping inner city students -- it's about helping all students: from kindergarten to college to even old computer students like me. Reform means action to break down barriers to free trade -- opening new markets to American goods. In each case, we've taken aim at the status quo -- and set our sights on status grow. //

America needs legal reform -- to put an end to these outrageous court awards that strain our civility and sap our economy. / We've gotten to a point where doctors won't deliver babies -- where fathers are afraid to coach future Bobby Bonillas and Don Mattinglys in Little League -- all because of the fear of some frivolous lawsuit. /

We must reform our legal system -- and no lobby of trial lawyers will stand in the way. // Americans need to spend less time suing each other and more time helping each other. //

We need health care reform -- to open up access to affordable health care for all Americans. It used to be that you didn't have to go broke just to get better. Today, more than 30 million Americans have no health care coverage at all. //

We can -- must -- change that. My comprehensive health care reform plan will keep America first in the world in high-quality health care. At the same time, it will open up access to all Americans. We do that through making insurance available to all. And we make that insurance more affordable by what is known as "pools." And contrary to what the big government folks say -- we can do it without nationalizing or socializing our health care system. // Let's face it: National health care would instantly diminish the quality of our health care and would be a national disaster -- and this President won't let that happen. //

So far tonight, I've spoken about change. ((I know the other party does as well. In their case change means that's about all you'd have left in your pockets -- and they'd try to take that, too.)) // I've also spoken about what government can do -- but government alone can not solve our problems. /

That is why we in Washington need to get our own house in order. To restore fiscal discipline to the federal government, I challenge Congress to get moving on a balanced budget amendment.

/ Government may be able to make good laws, but it's never been able to make men good. That doesn't come from Big Brother -- it comes from mother, and father and family. I'm talking about the moral sense that must guide us all. In the simplest terms -- I'm talking about knowing what's wrong -- and doing what's right. //

Go back to Los Angeles for a minute. Time and again the people I met there put their finger on the riots' root cause: the declining influence of the family. / They're right. Ask yourself: What keeps a kid in school, away from drugs, and off the streets? It's not government spending -- or the number of SBA loans or HUD grants. It's whether a child lives in a home where they are loved, and cared for, and kept on the right path.

Barbara Bush is right: what happens in the White House doesn't matter half as much as what happens in your house. //

I believe this. So I've made it my mission as President to put the American family first. / That's why I keep coming back to the Good Samaritans I call Points of Light: People who help the poor, elderly, kids in trouble -- and never ask a nickel in return. Government alone can't transform the lives of people in need. Let the cynics scoff: We know these volunteers are the lifeblood of the American spirit. //

I believe in the Republican party -- because I believe in Republican principles. We are right about family -- about freedom and free enterprise. We are right about faith. And most of all, we are right about America's future. We have the strength and spirit in our government, in our communities, and in ourselves to truly make America "the last best hope of earth." //

Thank you for your kindness. Barbara and I appreciate your support. And may God bless the United States of America.

family, in whose love alone I live or wish to live, and in that of my neighbors. To T. M. RANDOLPH. FORD ED., v, 417. (Pa., Jan. 1792.)

3771. HOME, Pleasures of.—Having no particular subject for a letter, I find none more soothing to my mind than to indulge itself in expressions of the love I bear you, and the delight with which I recall the various scenes through which we have passed together in our wanderings over the world. These reveries alleviate the toils and inquietudes of my present situation [Secretary of State] and leave me always impressed with the desire of being at home once more, and of exchanging labor, envy, and malice for ease, domestic occupation, and domestic love and society; where I may once more be happy with you, with Mr. Randolph, and dear little Anne, with whom even Socrates might ride on a stick without being ridiculous.—To MARTHA JEFFERSON RANDOLPH. FORD ED., v, 422. (P., 1792.)

3772. HONESTY, Common sense and.—Let common sense and common honesty have fair play and they will soon set things to rights.—To EZRA STILES. ii, 77. (P., 1786.)

3773. HONESTY, Consciousness of.—Of you, my neighbors, I may ask, in the face of the world, "whose ox have I taken, or whom have I defrauded? Whom have I oppressed, or of whose hand have I received a bribe to blind mine eyes therewith?" On your verdict I rest with conscious security.—To THE INHABITANTS OF ALBEMARLE COUNTY, VA. v, 439. FORD ED., ix, 251. (M., April 1809.)

3774. HONESTY, Examples of.—It can give no great claims to any one to manage honestly and disinterestedly the concerns of others trusted to him. Abundant examples of this are always under our eye.—To MR. WEAVER. v, 88. (W., 1807.)

3775. HONESTY, Government and.—The whole art of government consists in the art of being honest.—RIGHTS OF BRITISH AMERICA. i, 141. FORD ED., i, 446. (1774.)

3776. HONESTY, Individual.—I know but one code of morality for men, whether acting singly or collectively. He who says I will be a rogue when I act in company with a hundred others, but an honest man when I act alone, will be believed in the former assertion, but not in the latter. I would say with the poet, "hic niger est, hunc tu Romane cavato". If the morality of one man produces a just line of conduct in him, acting individually, why should not the morality of one hundred men produce a just line of conduct in them, acting together?—To JAMES MADISON. iii, 99. FORD ED., v, 111. (P., 1789.)

3777. HONESTY, Interest and.—Honesty and interest are as intimately connected in the public as in the private code of morality.—To MR. MAURY. vi, 468. (M., 1815.)

3778. HONESTY, Opportunity and.—Men are disposed to live honestly, if the means of doing so are open to them.—To M. DE MARBOIS. vii, 77. (M., 1817.)

3779. HONESTY, Riches and.—I have not observed men's honesty to increase with their riches.—To JEREMIAH MOOR. FORD ED., vii, 454. (M., 1800.)

3780. HONESTY, Roguery and.—Every country is divided between the parties of honest men and rogues.—To WILLIAM B. GILES. iv, 126. (1795.)

3781. HONESTY, Statesmen and.—The man who is dishonest as a statesman, would be a dishonest man in any station.—To GEORGE LOGAN. FORD ED., x, 68. (P.F., 1816.)

3782. HONESTY, Wisdom and.—A wise man, even if nature has not formed him honest, will yet act as if he were honest; because he will find it the most advantageous and wise part in the long run.—To JAMES MONROE. FORD ED., iv, 40. (P., 1785.)

3783. ——. An honest heart being the first blessing, a knowing head is the second.—To PETER CARR. i, 397. (P., 1785.)

3784. ——. Honesty is the first chapter in the book of wisdom.—To NATHANIEL MACON. vii, 112. FORD ED., x, 122. (M., 1819.)

3785. HONOR, False.—Peace and happiness are preferable to that false honor which, by eternal wars, keeps the [European] people in eternal labor, want and wretchedness.—To PRESIDENT MADISON. vi, 452. FORD ED., ix, 511. (M., 1815.)

3786. HONOR, Infraction.—As an American, I cannot help feeling a thorough mortification, that our Congress should have permitted an infraction of our public honor; as a citizen of Virginia, I cannot help hoping and confiding, that our Supreme Executive, whose acts will be considered as the acts of the Commonwealth, estimate that honor too highly to make its infraction their own act.*—To GOVERNOR PATRICK HENRY. i, 214. FORD ED., ii, 169. (Alb., 1779.)

3787. HONOR, Integrity and.—When your mind shall be well improved with science, nothing will be necessary to place you in the highest points of view, but to pursue the interests of your country, the interests of your friends, and your own interests also, with the purest integrity, the most chaste honor. The defect of these virtues can never be made up by all the other acquirements of body and mind. Make these, then, your first object.†—To PETER CARR. i, 395. (P., 1785.)

3788. HONOR, Pledge of.—And for the support of this Declaration, we mutually pledge to each other our * * * sacred honor.‡—DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AS DRAWN BY JEFFERSON.

3789. HONOR, Wounded.—It seems much the general opinion here [Virginia] that our honor has been too much wounded not to
