Marysville -- "Where the Grass is Greener" is the local motto. Everyone knows it.

The President may want to say: "As the train pulled in here, I certainly noticed that the grass was greener in Marysville."

A) The train will stop directly in front of the of the Champaign Landmark grain silos. Harvest actively begins next week (Sept. 25) and will continue through October. Trucks unload their soybean, corn, wheat, and oats for shipping to market. Champaign Landmark purchased this site early this year.

B) Union County court house will be off to the President's right, about two blocks away -- the courthouse belltower is Marysville largest landmark.

C) VERY IMPORTANT INFO. THAT SHOULD BE INCLUDED IN THE SPEECH:

Mrs. Bush is the granddaughter of the late judge James E. Robinson of Marysville, who served on the Ohio Supreme Court from January 1919 to December 1924 -- Mrs. Bush is VERY, VERY POPULAR in Marysville -- townspeople wear: "Re-elect Barbara's Husband President" buttons. (SEE ACCOMPANYING NEWSPAPER ARTICLE)

D) ANOTHER TIDBIT:

McCarthy's Drug Store (PRONOUNCED Mc-GAR-TEES) still sells coffee for a nickel -- the big thing is for the locals to gather at the counter for a five-cent cup of coffee -- perhaps one of two or three places that sells a five-cent cup of coffee.

E) Honda is the largest employer (10,000 employees) -- the company makes both cars and motorcycles -- employers are non-union -- and the company supports President Bush's free trade policies. Each year, the "Honda Homecoming" draws approx. 5,000 motorcycle enthusiasts from around the nation for a weekend in town. (SEE ACCOMPANYING NEWSPAPER ARTICLE)

If we go with this, it's important that we refer to people who ride Honda motorcycles as "Motorcycle enthusiasts" -- not "bikers"

F) Marysville is host to the state-wide "All Ohio Balloon Rally" that is held in August since 1975. About 25 hot air balloons draw about 4,500 spectators each year.

THIS YEAR THE RALLY WAS HELD THE SAME WEEKEND AS THE "HONDA HOMECOMING"

G) There will be three local high school bands greeting the President:

1) Marysville High School -- "MONARCHS" -- colors: Royal Blue & red -- Monarch means lion, and the school's symbol are lion paws. The Monarchs are ranked 13th in the state for division 2 football -- in '91 they made the semi finals for the state tournament -- currently they are 3 & 0

2) North Union High School -- "WILDCATS" -- colors: black & orange.

3) Fairbanks High School -- "PANTHERS" -- colors: red & white.

NOTE: Fairbanks High School is named after local resident, CHARLES FAIRBANKS, who was Teddy Roosevelt Vice President from 1904-1908

H) NEWSWORTHY ITEMS:

East Pointe Plaza (located at the intersection of U.S. Rts 33 & 36 on the eastern edge of the city) is the home of Wal-mart department store -- expansion of East Pointe Plaza is scheduled to take place this fall -- the expansion will add 142,235 feet -- According to David Glimcher, whose company is doing the expansion:

"our phones have been ringing off the hook with interested local & regional retailers -- the Marysville market is tremendously attractive to those retail and service providers ready to expand."

Commitments are already signed for 84 percent of space. It is expected that 250-300 construction jobs will be created as a result of the expansion & about 400-500 full or part-time jobs.

Some of the new stores: Big Bear grocery store, Fashion Bug, and various specialty shops. -- state, local officials & retailers are committed to the project.

ON BUSINESS:

Perhaps this information could tie-in with the President's agenda for small business -- an example of economic growth about to get underway & geared toward small business -- perhaps the intended expansion of East Pointe Plaza would be the perfect opportunity to point out how Clinton's proposals for small business would hurt these future retailers.

ON EDUCATION:

On the editorial page of the Friday, September 18, edition of the local newspaper, Marysville School District Superintendent Jerry Stackhouse emphasized a key factor for parents improving their child's academic performance is: "GETTING TO KNOW THEIR CHILD'S TEACHER."

Some highlighted points the superintendent made in his article:

a) "there is improved academic achievement as well as improved social behavior, and decreased inappropriate and antisocial behavior. Grades are improved and motivation is increased as well. . . For the good of the children, we must help parents establish the priorities needed to become involved in their child's education. As their child's first and most permanent teacher, parents are an important part of school success."

By way of example, perhaps the Supt's. remarks might segue with the President's America 2000 -- also, I think the remarks reinforce/compliment the President's agenda for stronger family values -- i.e. a case could be made that Marysville not only recognizes the importance of education, but that parents who become involved with their children, and show an interest in their academic growth, not only strengthen the family unit, but encourage their children to pursue education -- the single most important tool necessary to become successful in a competitive marketplace.

The land which is now Union County, Ohio originally belonged to the Miami tribe of Indians. As years rolled on, however, Wyandots, Delawares and Shawnees entered the region.

Some of the famous chiefs who roamed the region were Tecumseh, Blackhoff and Blue Jacket.

The last of the tribes, particularly the Shawnees, proved to be a restless and quarrelsome people, warlike and troublesome to their neighbors.

Jonathan Alder, an adopted captive of the Shawnees, was probably the first white man to reside in the region. He lived with the tribe for 15 years until after the Wayne Treaty was signed in 1775.

Alder was taught to speak the English language by another settler, Benjamin Springer. For this, Alder supplied Springer with meat and other foods.

Game was plentiful in the thick forest covering the region. There were bear, deer and so many wild turkeys that they became a problem for the later settlers by invading the fields and eating the seeds and crops.

In the southeastern district the land was not so thick with forest and appeared as a small prairie.

This became the Indian hunting grounds. Indians came to this "prairie region" at various times during the year and set up hunting camps while killing deer.

It was in this region also that the first settlers came. A young surveyor from Kentucky, named Lucas Sullivan, acquired land in what is now Darby township. In 1797, Sullivan came to inspect this land and laid out a "town" which he named North Liberty, near where is now Plain City in southeastern Union County.

Sullivan returned to Kentucky. One of his first customers for land in this newly surveyed area was Josua Ewing.

Josua and James Ewing came to "North Liberty" in 1798 and were the first permanent settlers on land which was later to become Union County.

Other settlers followed, some purchasing land from the owners and others erecting cabins on land they claimed by right of possession. The southern part of the region was settled first, along the banks of the streams which provided the only means of transportation. There were few trails through the thick wilderness of forest.

Meanwhile Nathaniel Massie, a surveyor, was sent into the wilderness to survey for a gentleman named Edward Dowse. This land was farther north from the prairie region - or Darby Plains - around the middle section of what was to later become Union County. (Around present day Marysville)

Around 1791, Stephen T. Mason, of Loudon County, Virginia obtained the Dowse holdings by acquiring a patent from the government giving him full possession. He sold the land a year later to Joseph Scott of Philadelphia for five shillings. The same year, Scott sold the land to Francis Bailey of Lancaster County, Pa. for $187,000.

By this time settlers had begun to build homes near the Ewings. Among the early arrivals were Davis Mitchell, Samuel Mitchell, Jr., Samuel Kirkpatrick and Samuel McCallaugh. In 1800 Robert Snodgrass, George Reed and Paul Houston, with their families had settled within the region.

George Reed built a mill at a small settlement on the banks of Big Darby Creek. Because it was necessary to ford the creek, and because the mill was there, the settlement was known as Mill Ford. A post office was established there in 1809 and the name was shortened to Milford. (In 1829 the name became what is today - Milford Center, Ohio).

The early settlers were people of integrity, industry and of good moral christian character. School houses and churches were built in the vicinity of each settlement.

The first white child reported born in the region was Jesse Mitchell, about 1800. Eliza Ewing was the first white girl.

Samuel W. Culbertson of Zanesville had acquired a third of the original Dowse land from Margaret Bailey for $1.00.

Mr. Culbertson picked a spot on Mill Creek and proposed a town plat of 7 acres which, in 1819, he named after his daughter Mary. This is now Marysville, the county seat and largest town in Union County.

An act of the state legislature passed February 25, 1820, created Union County from lands of Delaware, Franklin, Madison and Logan Counties.

Henry Sager, Robert Nelson and Davis Comer were the first county commissioners.

Without doubt the county seat was established at Marysville in 1820, but the first record of Marysville as the county seat was when the court ordered on May 15, 1921 that "David Comer be paid $1.50 per day as director of the town of Marysville, the seat of Justice of this county".

It is known that four years after Marysville became the county seat, only four families lived in the town. By 1827 George Minturn and wife moved to Marysville from Champaign county. Minturn was a wheelwright and made large and small spinning wheels. (People at that time made their own clothing.) This was probably Marysville's first "industry." Another resident, George Snodgrass is believed to be the school teacher who first taught students who lived in Marysville.

The Post Road through the southern part of the county was the first "highway" of any importance. It was laid out in 1812. The highway we know now as "old Route 33" to Columbus was authorized by the state legislature in 1844. By 1877, the county was well off with construction of 269 miles of gravel roads at a cost of $668,328.00

Today there are 828 miles of highway crisscrossing Union County. These are made up of 491 miles of county roads, 143 miles to township roads, and 193 miles of state roads.

In 1968, the new four lane limited access route 33 to Dublin, and the Marysville By-Pass were formally opened. Five interchanges provide easy access and has improved the Marysville downtown area by removing truck traffic as well as reducing the driving time to and from Columbus.

History of churches in Union County began in 1812 when a Methodist Church was established in the cabin of Andrew Noteman, near where Plain City now stands. A Methodist circuit rider from Columbus, Reverend Shaw, is credited as being the pioneer preacher in the area.

Members of the Amrine family started a Methodist Church in 1821, in a settlement on Mill Creek, about a mile and a half from Marysville. This church was served by Reverend Aaron Wood, on a circuit of 200-300 miles. Andrew Amrine was class leader.

The first Presbyterian Church was incorporated in February 1831, by a special act of legislature. Services were first held in the home of Stephen McLain, in the old wooden court house, and later in the brick court house.

In 1864, the Congregational Church was organized. In 1868, the first Catholic Church was dedicated to "Our Lady of Lourdes." In 1879, St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized, also in that year, the African Methodist Episcopal Church came into being. The area is presently served by 31 churches of varied denominations.

During the Civil War, "The Underground Railroad," (an escape route for fugitive negroes) extended from Kentucky and Virginia, across Ohio to Michigan. Federal enforcement of the Fugitive Slave Law made aiding or harboring escaped slaves a serious offense and compelled drastic forms of secrecy in operations. It is believed that at one time Marysville had at least 16 stations in operation.

In February 1891, the Marysville Water Company opened the waste water treatment plant and a generating plant for electricity. On April 28, 1928 this plant was sold to the Ohio Water Service Company which was sold to the city in 1991. In the late 1920's a demonstrative rural power line was installed from Marysville to New California. This line was the basis of rural electric today.

The Dayton Power & Light Company took over operations in Union County in June, 1945. Natural Gas was brought to Marysville in 1930, by the Columbia Gas Company. Union Rural Electric Co-Op added their first lines in 1937. The first regular telephone exchange was established here in 1894. In 1958, the utility completed the installation of a five digit intertoll system. In 1968 the United Telephone Company took over operations and now serves the area with an international direct dial system.

The Union County School System was established in 1914, and now includes the North Union, Fairbanks and Marysville exempted school districts. All three districts have high schools and several elementary schools. Three Lutheran Parochial Schools are located in the area. Ohio Hi-Point Joint Vocational School district was added in 1973, serving a portion of 11 surrounding school districts. In 1990 a new $13 million high school was built.

The Marysville Public Library had its beginning in 1867 when a group of people interested in books formed a Literary Association. In 1909, the Andrew Carnegie Foundation contributed $10,000 for a library building. A new library, located at Plum and Seventh Streets has been completed.

The Library has something for everyone. Aids for the visually handicapped, reference material for Genealogy buffs, summer story hours for children, records and tapes, and of course the latest in fine reading and educational material.

Memorial Hospital of Union County was opened in 1952 with 36 beds. Consistent growth has transformed it into a full service medical facility. Memorial prides itself on delivering the highest quality health care by blending modern technology with individualized, compassionate care.

The Charles B. Mills Center opened in January 1984. The program is designed around the ten (10) bed inpatient area of the Center where individuals who are experiencing crisis, psychiatric, drug and alcohol stresses can receive care and rehabilitation.

Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities pupils are served in the Harold Lewis School dedicated in June 1983. The handicapped and learning disabled pupils have 7 classes in East Elementary, Middle School and MHS.

The Union County Infirmary was built in 1871, and was known as the "County Home." In 1960, the original County Home was replaced with a new modern facility called, "Union Manor."

In 1973, "Windsor Manor" a low income and senior citizen housing complex was completed. It is located at the southwest corner of Marysville, and has since been renamed, "Windsor Manor East." Adjacent to this is "Windsor Manor West," completed in 1981, a 60 unit senior citizen complex, with 6 units for the handicapped.

The Ohio State Reformatory for women opened in 1916, this remains the only facility for housing adult female felons. While Mrs. Marguerite Riley was not the first superintendent of this facility, she has had the greatest impact on reforms for Women's Prisons. During her term of office (1935-58) the Marysville Reformatory was used as a model for Women's Prisons throughout the United States.

In 1973, the Joint Juvenile Detention Center was built at the edge of Marysville, and serves 5 counties including Union County.

Complete air facilities were provided with the dedication of the Union County Airport October 8, 1967. This airport has 4220 feet of paved and lighted runway, complete fuel, hangar storage, maintenance, charter and instruction service.

In 1974, dedication was held for the Transportation Research Center, located on Route 33, north of Marysville. This is the largest research center of its kind in the world, containing over 7500 acres for research, development, testing of transportation systems, designs, and materials. This center has the world's only facility for crash testing two vehicles at variable angles and speeds as well as the largest Impact Simulator in the Western Hemisphere. TRC operates under the auspices of the Ohio State University.

The forests which once clothed Union County have diminished to a great extent and in their place have appeared prosperous farms and many new industries.

The Union County Agricultural Society was formed and the first County Fair held in the year 1847. The Union County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association was organized in 1934. According to the 1990 statistics, there are 960 farms in Union County, with an average size farm listed at 253 acres. The average agricultural sales reach $72,644,000 per annum in Union County. in Union County.

There are many major industrial manufacturers in the area, among them are: Honda of America Mfg., Inc., Hagglands Denison Corp., BMY, Div. of Harsco Corp., Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., and O. M. Scott and Sons.

Marysville offers excellent banking services from many financial institutions that have a combined total of assets at approximately $20 billion.

The Marysville Post Office was established on March 28, 1823, began city delivery on November 16, 1909, and was made first class in 1931. The average annual receipts are approximately $2,000,000.

The first newspaper, "Our Freedom & Union County Advertiser," was published in 1839. Today the area is served by the Journal-Tribune which publishes Monday through Friday. The Columbus Dispatch is available daily. AM radio station, WUCO-1270 on the dial, is located in Marysville. Regular TV reception is from Columbus and cable communication is available.

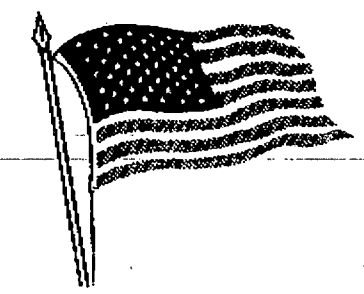

The City of Marysville has eight parks totalling 35 acres, a new olympic size pool that opened in 1982, as well as many other seasonal recreational activities offered in the area.

The local YMCA began in 1975. The new building opened in 1985 with programs for all ages. Gymnasium, jogging track, fitness room, and outdoor fields are some of the facilities available.

Union County now has $527,683,131 of taxable property and $70,786,240 of exempted property, according to the Union County Auditor's Office.

Union County's population is approximately 35,000 est. Marysville, the largest town and county seat has a population of 10,000 est.
