PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: KANNAPOLIS WHISTLE STOP
KANNAPOLIS, NORTH CAROLINA
OCTOBER 21, 1992
12:25 P.M.

Thank you all for this warm welcome. [Acknowledgements.]

If you want to know why I'm here today -- why I'm bringing this campaign to the people -- the name of this train says it all. We call it the Spirit of America -- and it's named for the kind of small-town spirit that makes Kannapolis such a special place to live and raise a family. //

Two weeks from now, you will make a choice that will shape how you live here in Kannapolis -- how America leads in the world. This election -- like every election -- is a referendum on the future. You face a real choice -- between two different candidates, two different directions to take this country.

Gov. Clinton seems to have a pretty strong cheerleading section in the national media. For weeks now, you've been hearing on the news that this election is all over -- that the vote you cast November 3rd is just a formality.

Well, don't let this train fool you. We are on the right track -- and we're going to finish faster than Dale Earnhardt.

I know you get alot of free advice, expert opinion about what matters in this election -- what issues you care about -- what issues are off-limits. I say, let the voters speak for themselves.

Governor Clinton says this this election is about the economy. So here's my challenge: Put our ideas side by side. Look at his economic plan, then look at my Agenda for American Renewal. I believe with all my heart that you'll decide our Agenda is the right way to create jobs and prosperity ^{for} and our kids -- right for economic growth -- right for America.

Yes, we've been through tough times. But you can't solve a problem unless you look at it honestly.

Governor Clinton tells you that the American economy is flat on its back -- that we face what our grandparents faced in the Great Depression. And his cheerleading squad in the national media echoes every word of his gloom-and-doom message.

But here's the fact: they aren't telling you the truth.

They don't tell you that there's been a slowdown world-wide -- and America has come through better than our economic competitors. b/c of strong leadership.

They don't tell you that for the last three months -- the economies in Germany and Japan actually got smaller -- they actually contracted.

While our economy grew.

They don't tell you that American workers are the most productive in the world. They don't tell you that we have the lowest interest rates, the lowest inflation rates in 30 years -- and together those lower rates save the average family more than $2,000 a year in mortgage payments.

Governor Clinton and his friends in the media don't tell you that almost one million more Americans are employed than ten months ago. They don't tell you that our industries are stronger and more competitive than four years ago.

For all the pain in America today, the Europeans would swap places with us in a minute. We have kept our economy afloat while most other economies are drowning. I am proud of that leadership.

Now, there's a reason Governor Clinton won't tell you the truth. If he can convince that you the economy is on its deathbed -- maybe he can convince you to go for his prescription of bigger government and higher taxes.

Look at what Governor Clinton has planned. He says he's a new kind of Democrat -- but his economic ideas are the same old liberal game of bigger government and higher taxes. But the American people will pay more than higher taxes -- they will pay with their jobs.

A new payroll tax, new taxes on business, new taxes on investment, more regulations, gutting the defense budget -- add it up and Governor Clinton's economic plan will cost Americans more than 2 million jobs.

That's the most basic difference between us: Governor Clinton wants higher taxes so much he's willing to destroy jobs in the process. My Agenda for American Renewal wants ^{will} to create jobs -- by cutting your taxes.

With the new Congress in January, we can get to work on a short-term agenda to spur economic growth. We'll pass our new agreement to open Mexican markets to American products -- give first-time homebuyers a $5,000 tax credit to buy that first home -- cut taxes on investment and give more Americans the chance to use their IRA savings accounts to buy a new home, or send their kids to school.

1st
As

Add that up -- and our short-term growth agenda will jumpstart this economy and create more than one million new jobs.

But we won't stop there. My Agenda for American Renewal looks beyond this year, beyond the next four years -- to prepare America for the next century -- to compete in the new economy and win.

That's what my Agenda for American Renewal is all about: Taking the greatest country in the world and making it stronger, more secure than ever.

I want to win this election because I know my Agenda is right for America.

Here's what I'm fighting for.

I want to open markets -- so we can sell American products in every corner of the world. In the next decade, the jobs with the highest wages, the best careers, are going to be tied to the world economy.

[PARA ON KANNAPOLIS AREA COMPANIES' EXPORTS.]

It's fine that the [products] from [North Carolina] are sold in Detroit and Boston and Los Angeles. But that's not good enough. I want to sell those xx in Moscow and Mexico City and Yokohama.

When it comes to opening markets, I won't waffle, I won't fudge. I want the best jobs to be right here in the USA. Because I know something you know: give American workers a fair shake, and they can outwork, outthink, outcompete anywhere in the world.

And we have to make sure we stay that way.

That means we have to give our kids the finest schools in the world. Our kids deserve the best, and I want to make sure they get it.

Competition made America great, and competition can make our schools great. That's why I want to give all parents -- not just the wealthy -- give all parents the right to choose the best schools for their kids -- whether it's the public school down the street or the Baptist school across town.

But the best schools won't help our kids if we they can't find good jobs when they graduate. And the way Americans have always created jobs is through small business. They're the backbone of our economy. But they're being strangled by high taxes, arrogant regulators and ambulance-chasing lawyers.

That's why my Agenda will give small businesses relief from taxation, regulation, and -- yes -- litigation. We'd be a lot better off if we had fewer lawyers in sharkskin suits and a lot more small businessmen and women creating jobs.

As a nation we must sue each other less and care for each other more.

That's the next part of our Agenda for American Renewal -- caring for each other, reaching out to each other -- so that no one is left behind. We need the talents of every American for the global economic competition.

That means letting people walk their neighborhoods without fear -- taking back our streets from the thugs and criminals. And that's why I've appointed strong judges -- who have no respect for the criminal and a lot more concern for the criminal's victims. And that's the kind of judges I'll appoint for the next four years.

Here's the last part of my Agenda: getting government off your back and out of your pocketbooks.

The fact is: government is too big and it spends too much.

That's why I'm fighting for a line-item veto and a balanced budget amendment.

And that's why I want you to have the power to designate 10 percent of your tax dollars to cutting the federal deficit. I say if Congress won't help me cut the deficit -- then give the American people the power, and they'll do it for you.

And that's why I've proposed that we cut taxes across the board.

That's my Agenda for American Renewal. It promises an America where "Made in the USA" is read in every marketplace of the world; where our kids go to the finest schools in the world; where the government knows its place, and you keep more of your paycheck, not less.

When it comes down to it, I put my trust in the people. In the people waiting at the airport in a driving rain early one workday morning not so long ago in Greensboro. In the families -

- the Moms, Dads and kids -- that stood out along the railroad tracks from Gainsville, Georgia to Gastonia and right here in Kannapolis. These are people yearning for change / ready to build on what's good about America -- and make it better.

Whatever my opponent and his friends in the media may say, America is still the envy of the world. But America's not great because its government is great -- America is great because its people are good. //

There is no change I can think of -- no challenge we face -
- that is bigger than America's heart or brighter than our dreams. /

America is ready. So am I. //

Barbara and I thank you for this warm Kannapolis welcome.
And may God bless this great country, the United States of America.

MEMORANDUM FOR STEVE PROVOST

FROM: ED WALTERS

SUBJECT: LOCAL COLOR UPDATE FOR KANNAPOLIS, NC

I'm sure you guys are swamped with last-minute changes for today's speeches, so I'm faxing you Kannapolis stuff for tomorrow all at once.

Two locals that make good anecdotal examples: First, Larry Mesimer [MEESE-mer] has 4 chicken coops with 10,000 chickens each. He hatches eggs for Perdue [Bill's fecal coliform friend]. He says with interest rates so low, he's saving $600 a month.

Second: Small business owner Dale Arnette is scared of a Clinton Presidency. "It scares me to death to think about another Democrat getting into office. When I first started in the late 70s, I couldn't afford my own home -- with interest rates at 18 percent -- since then, my home improvement business has thrived -- in the last 5 years, I bought my own home because of low interest rates." His business is called Arnette Siding and Home Improvement.

To make the school choice argument, you could cite A.L. Brown High, which is a good Kannapolis public school, and nearby First Assembly Christian. A.L. Brown High is an undefeated football powerhouse (2nd in the state). They clobbered Central High last week 20-0. ("I sympathize - having a great record and still running second. // Don't worry. At the end of the fall, we will both be ranked number one.")

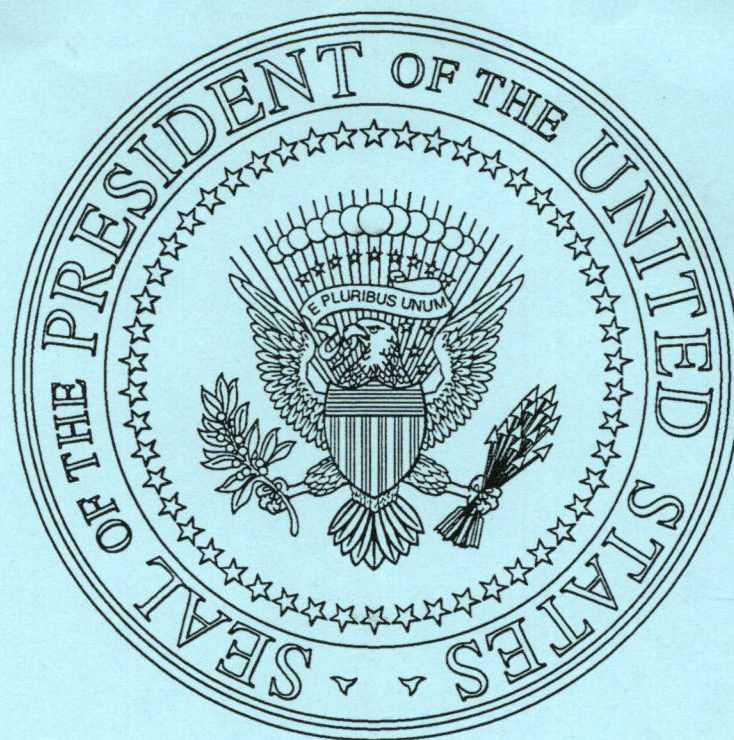

The speech as it stands alludes to the Baptist school across town. There is none.

I don't know if Andy forwarded the information I gave him on Kannapolis area companies, but I suggest we use Fieldcrest Cannon Mills -- a textiles company that employs 7,000 Kannapolians. It makes towels and sheets and exports worldwide. It is currently national textiles week.

Issues at BQ'92 says Clinton's defense cuts will cost over 72,000 North Carolina defense industry jobs.

If you have further questions, please give me a call.

Issues Office

BUSH AND CLINTON ON THE ISSUES THAT MATTER TO NORTH CAROLINIANS

George Bush has the right answers on the issues that matter most to North Carolinians -- building economic security, maintaining our nation's strong defense, providing for older Americans, and preserving traditional family values. The contrast between the President's pro-family, pro-growth agenda for the future and Clinton's plans to hike taxes and slash defense could not be more stark.

- o Bush versus Clinton -- Less Government versus More: Bill Clinton and George Bush have fundamental differences. Bill Clinton believes in higher taxes, higher spending, more government regulation, and more power to government bureaucrats. George Bush is fighting for lower taxes, lower spending, less government regulation, and more power to the American people to make choices in their daily lives.
- o Clinton's Plan to Raise Taxes: Bill Clinton will impose the largest tax increase in American history -- at least $150 billion. Though Clinton says he will only tax the wealthy, the truth is, he will tax everyone with a job. Clinton's "play-or-pay" health plan will require a new 7%-9% payroll tax -- an $80 billion tax that will cut the take-home pay of the average worker by $1,700 a year. In all, Clinton's payroll taxes and new taxes on business, combined with proposals to radically increase auto efficiency standards and slash defense spending will put 2.6 million Americans out of work.
- o Pro-family Economics: President Bush's economic growth plan would create 500,000 jobs this year, including at least 272,500 real estate and construction jobs from his $5,000 tax credit for first-time homebuyers. The President's proposals to create flexible IRAs and increase the personal exemption will help American families raise their children. And, to help small businesses invest in productivity, the President's plan includes a capital gains tax cut and an investment tax allowance.
- o Maintaining a Strong Defense: Clinton would slash America's defense by nearly $60 billion more than the President's careful defense reductions. Clinton's defense cuts will also put as many as one million Americans out of work and will cost over 72,000 North Carolina defense industry jobs.
- o Gulf War Waffle: Though he persists in claiming that he supported the decision to use force in Kuwait, in truth Clinton said absolutely nothing on the issue until two days after Congress voted to authorize the use of force. At the time Clinton's instinct was to continue sanctions instead of taking decisive action, but he could not resist waffling -- trying as usual to have it both ways: "I guess I would have voted with the majority if it was a close vote. But I agree with the argument the minority made" (Arkansas Gazette, 1/15/91).

MEMORANDUM FOR SPEECHWRITERS
RESEARCHERS

FROM: J. BUNTON JB
SUBJECT: SPIRIT OF AMERICA - [GA, SC, NC]

OVERALL:

Cookie cutter events. However, crowd sizes, times and dais locations are subject to change. Talk to your leads about this, re-confirm times and speaking sites [back of train v. dais in front of train.]

Trip is 444 miles long, nearly 200 miles longer than first -- 9 stops:

Day One - Tuesday, October 20, 1992: [4 stops/183 miles]

Atlanta, Ga. -- Norcross, Ga.
Norcross, Ga. -- Gainesville, Ga.
Gainesville, Ga. -- Cornelia, Ga.
Cornelia, Ga. -- Spartanburgh, S.C.

Day Two - Wednesday, October 21, 1992: [5 stops/261 miles]

Spartanburgh, S.C. -- Kings Mountain, N.C.
Kings Mountain, N.C. -- Kannapolis, N.C.
Kannapolis, N.C. -- Thomasville, N.C.
Thomasville, N.C. -- Burlington, N.C.
Burlington, N.C. -- Raleigh, N.C.

Advance expects smaller crowds [3-5,000] at each site, unless otherwise noted, because this trip occurs during the work week - rather than the weekend like last time. Stops last about one hour.

Unlike the last trip -- there are few scenic vistas. The route varies in extremes -- from the beauty of the Smokey Mountains in the distance -- leaves changing colors -- kudzu jungles -- desolate in places -- take your shotgun, deer scent, and hunting dogs -- you're in the deep woods Bubba to scrap iron heaps, to the chicken processing plant -- listen for chickens "screaming" in the background. All in all industrial/rural, U.S.A. -- somewhere between Deliverance and Mayberry.

The route passes over several lakes, many small towns [through which the train will slow and POTUS can hang off the back waving] and at least one prison.

Everywhere we stopped we drew attention. One old-timer in Norcross came over and asked "what all the commotion was about", one couple stopped on the tracks and asked if "Al Gore was comin' to town", one lady shouted from her front porch - "Hey what kind of train is this?" and the ultimate was the lady who - simply pulled her car into the parking lot - came over and said, "I'm just on my way home from the Thomasville Women's Club luncheon and I just wanted to know what was going on...". At least two of the hometown newspapers came out and took pictures of the 30 of us standing in the middle of the train tracks, pointing.

* There are large areas without cell coverage.

Also -- these are live tracks. Passenger trains and perhaps commercial trains will be passed along the way.

At one point our brakes caught on fire. True story.

SCENARIOS:

DAY ONE: TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1992

Post debate in East Lansing, Mi. POTUS travels to Atlanta, Ga.
RON/Atlanta.

Morning of 10/20 POTUS participates in "Ask George Bush" or town meeting [site to be determined]. Then motorcades to train. Lead - Ed Murnane, Site - Kathy McCoy.

1) NORCROSS, GA:

10 am depart Atlanta. 10:40 am arrive Norcross. Norcross suburb of Atlanta. POTUS speaks from dais looking down Jones Street / train [the Baltimore car] as backdrop. POTUS left is large red brick building now an AC repair type place, two doors down or so is Johnson's Pharmacy -- been in the town and one family nearly 100 years, authentic soda fountain too. The owner/pharmacist Carl Johnson said Clinton would put him out of business -- everyone on town was "scared to death of what Clinton's taxes would do." / "I looked at my books and am scared to death of Clinton." He is a great contact for local color and personalization.

POTUS right -- "The Depot BBQ and Grill" and The Depot Antiques" -- both housed in the old train depot. Main Street runs behind depot -- shops include: bank, the Tax specialist [couldn't see owners name], barber shop/ Thelma's beauty shop and insurance company. Behind POTUS is Thrasher Park, named for founder of Norcross -- J.J. "Cousin John" Thrasher -- good friend for Jonathan Norcross - 4th mayor of Atlanta in 1851 -- site of the Richmond and Danville Railroad.

High-tech in area: OKI Telecon, AT&T, HQ of Hayes Microcomputers. HQ of Scientific Atlanta, NCR, Southern Bell, Panasonic, and Technology Park.

This is in Gwinnett County / New Gingrich's district.

Get Mr. Johnson to give you the names of the professional baseball players who were from Norcross -- in the 40's he said, Norcross had 18 professional baseball players on teams ranging from Detroit Red wings to St. Louis Cards to New York Yankees....baseball capital of the world.

2) GAINESVILLE, GA:

Depart Norcross at 11:40 am / arrive Gainesville around 12:40 p.m. From Norcross to Gainesville the route passes through the chicken death camp. This is a heavy industry area - yuk. Train will slow through town of Buford for a wave by.

POTUS remarks from rear of train -- POUTS left will be stationery black engine on tack next to him. Engine #5121 decorated with bunting and people. POTUS right will be depot. This site will take a lot of work -- train car up on blocks, empty buildings [NAFTA takes jobs away] and black smoke churning out of the chimney of at least one industry [so much for clean air act] -- be aware of this. Behind POTUS left shoulder is some grain processing plant -- this week is peak soy bean season. Other than that -- great big nothing.

3) CORNELIA, GA:

Depart Gainesville 1:40 arrive Cornelia 2:30 p.m.

"Home of the Big Red Apple" -- no kidding there is a huge red apple on a pedestal adjacent to the depot. POTUS right is a huge grassy slope -- so high that it makes the track and depot appear to be in a valley and so steep that you can't sit on the side without sliding down. Advance has planned is so the press platform will actually have a low-flight bird's eye view of the train and will actually shoot down on the site. POTUS again delivers remarks from the back of Choo-Choo One. The BIG RED APPLE will be just in front of him to the right.

Cornelia was once upon a time an apple growing town -- now it's chickens about a million a day or something. This is Habersham county -- See Sidney Lanier's poem about the marshes of Glynn. There are several colleges [Piedmont College, Toccoa Falls College, North Ga. Tech] and service clubs [Rotary, Pilot, Optimist, Kawanis] in area. Central High School Raiders several jr. high schools. From this stop you can begin to see the foothills of the Smokey Mountains. Appalachian Trail starts about 20 miles from here and ends in Maine.

This is a poultry center / textiles area but Johnson and Johnson does have at least one medical production facility here they make sutures. Two lakes nearby - Lanier and Hartwell. [recreational fishing - bass and crappie] Large retirement community

4) SPARTANBURG, SC:

Depart Cornelia 2:30 arrive Spartanburg 5-6 p.m. torch light rally. En route cross over Lake Hartwell -- through Clemson [home of Clemson Tigers]. POTUS de-trains. Speaks from dais which is in front of depot -- train and depot as backdrop. POTUS right will be train and across track and water is Spartan Mills - the mill owner's wife is the state chair for Perot. The mills are beautiful red - brick - huge buildings. Soon to be home of BMW plant. The Southern Crescent train runs through daily.

Lot of people will come from Greenville [about 35 mi. away] 3 colleges and 5 high schools in area. 3 open House seat and 2 uncontested senate seats. Co. council has a Rep. majority. The Spartanburg Herald daily newspaper is owned by the New York Times. Roger Miliken's [textiles] HQ is in Spartanburg -- this is where Hardee's started. USA Today on Oct. 13, 92 Super 25 high school rankings [football] listed Spartanburg as number 25 in nation. said: "last week not ranked. Improved winning streak to 13 with a 30-0 victory over Boiling Springs before 7,000. Tim Copeland ran 12 times for 126 yards and 2 tds. Shawn Gilliam had 4 tackles for loss. Depart Spartanburg 9:15 - arrive Kannapolis 11:55 a.m. Crowd estimate 10-15,000. Site is 10-15 minutes from Charlotte, N.C.

POTUS will de-train and speak from dais looking down South Main Street. Train as backdrop. POTUS will walk down between rows of bleachers lining the street [set up in Y configuration]. Image will be of him walking among the people. Church to POTUS right - line of shops to POTUS left and right.

Shaw University / Mills florist, newspaper the Daily Independent, beautiful old railroad houses. I think this is going to be the best stop of the entire trip. [See diagram.]

Home of Fieldcrest Cannon Mills. Export everywhere in the world. A good spot for POTUS to talk about NAFTA - word is the millfolk are concerned about what it will do to jobs. NC has a positive trade balance. A movie studio is coming to the county -- recently announced.

In the town square - across from the baptist church POTUS faces a gazebo built by the American Legion post -- "dedicated to the men and women of the area who served or died in defense of our nation." In front of gazebo is a huge sun dial.

Cabarrus [Cab-BEAR-us] County. Celebrating bicentennial "A golden place to be." There is a dollar theatre [POTUS can see it] "Honey, I blew up the kids" is playing. For a buck you get a movie, cartoons and a preview. Old-fashioned retro theatre. Built back when ushers wore tuxedos. Have to confirm -- think Kennedy-Johnson train went through in 59. in 1791 Pres. Washington came in the area on his tour of the nation after his inauguration. In 1799 the first gold rush in the US happened not 15 miles away -- Young Conrad Reed [then about 12 years old]

The right prescription

Serving up fellowship

By Glenn Matlock
Staff Writer

The old saying: "You can never go home," may not apply to Norcross pharmacist Carl Johnson and family. Johnson is home. In fact, he never left.

Not many today can claim they are truly home, living in the place where they have lived all their lives.

In a mobile society such as ours, how many can boast that they work, go to church and school all within three-tenths of a mile of where they live? The Johnsons can.

For the past year Johnson, a successful pharmacist with Kroger, has been striking out on his own, operating a pharmacy in the same building that his grandfather built for use as a hardware store in 1885. Following his grandfather's death, his father continued to operate a hardware store in the same location until his death in 1988.

Johnson's brother, Edwin, who had been in partnership with his father, decided there was too much competition from the hardware supersores and went to work with the postal service.

Their mother ran the store six months longer, but finally, keeping most of the antiques, sold the store's hardware inventory to another businessman.

Johnson is facing the same competition from the chain drug stores that his brother faced from the larger hardware superstores.

Johnson realized before ever going into business for himself that the small, downtown, home-owned business is fighting for its life against the larger chain stores.

While the business has almost doubled during its first year of operation, Johnson said he is still struggling with the hold that the larger drugstore chains have on customers.

He said many of his customers have told him they intend to come in to have their prescriptions filled, but sometimes forget and go to the chain stores. Johnson believes that in time, customers will change their habits and will begin to increase his prescription business.

If there ever was a business arrangement, or a marriage, that was made in heaven, perhaps Johnson and wife Sherry's is.

Sherry Johnson, a former home economics teacher at Norcross High, who now runs the Johnson Store's soda fountain, said they felt that starting their own business was divinely inspired and directed.

Devoted Christians, the Johnsons said they based their move on a lot of prayer. After all it wasn't easy to leave a good position with a large corporation making a nice salary and with five-paid weeks of vacation a year.

Coincidentally, before the Johnsons ever considered going into business, the City of Norcross did a study of businesses in the downtown area that revealed that the number one business that was needed in downtown Norcross was a pharmacy.

So, with an empty building on their hands, the writing on the wall could not have been much clearer.

But still, said the Johnsons, more prayer was needed.

Somehow the word got out that the Johnsons were considering reopening the Johnson family store.

"Couples were stopping us, saying how excited they were about us opening the old store," said Mrs. Johnson.

Johnson said that while attending a pharmacist's convention he asked for other pharmacists' opinions on what they should do.

"Half of them said I was crazy to do it. The other half said I was crazy not to," he said. "Everybody said I shouldn't put in a soda fountain. They said I would never be able to keep enough help to run it."

Well that has been the least of his worries. Besides help from Sherry, and the kids, Carly, 11 and Ashley, 9, Johnson has also hired a Sunday School teacher who has known him since he was in diapers, the mother of a former childhood sweetheart, and several clean-cut, high school kids. Getting some help has probably been the least of his worries, Johnson said.

Being in business for himself allows Johnson to use his business more as a personal ministry to perpetuate his Christian beliefs. Many of the cards on the shelf have a Christian message. On every prescription bottle, the computer places a verse of appropriate scripture from the Bible.

These messages have had great meaning for those who have received them and have contributed not only to their health, but to their overall well-being, Johnson believes.

Many people who have problems with their health and family have come in just to talk, said Johnson. This is something that he could not have done working for a large corporation, he said.

Over the awning on the store the sign says: Johnson's Store, Pharmacy, Fountain and Fellowship. Johnson said he wants his business to be more than a business, he wants it to be a place where people come together in a spirit of caring.

Johnson says he believes that even though he's not making as much money now, that money is not the most important aspect of his new business.

Everyday he and his wife spend many long hours working the family business, but the money and the hours don't seem to matter.

Johnson has the unique and enviable opportunity to walk the floors where his grandfather walked, and climb the same concrete stoop that his grandfather laid 115 years ago.

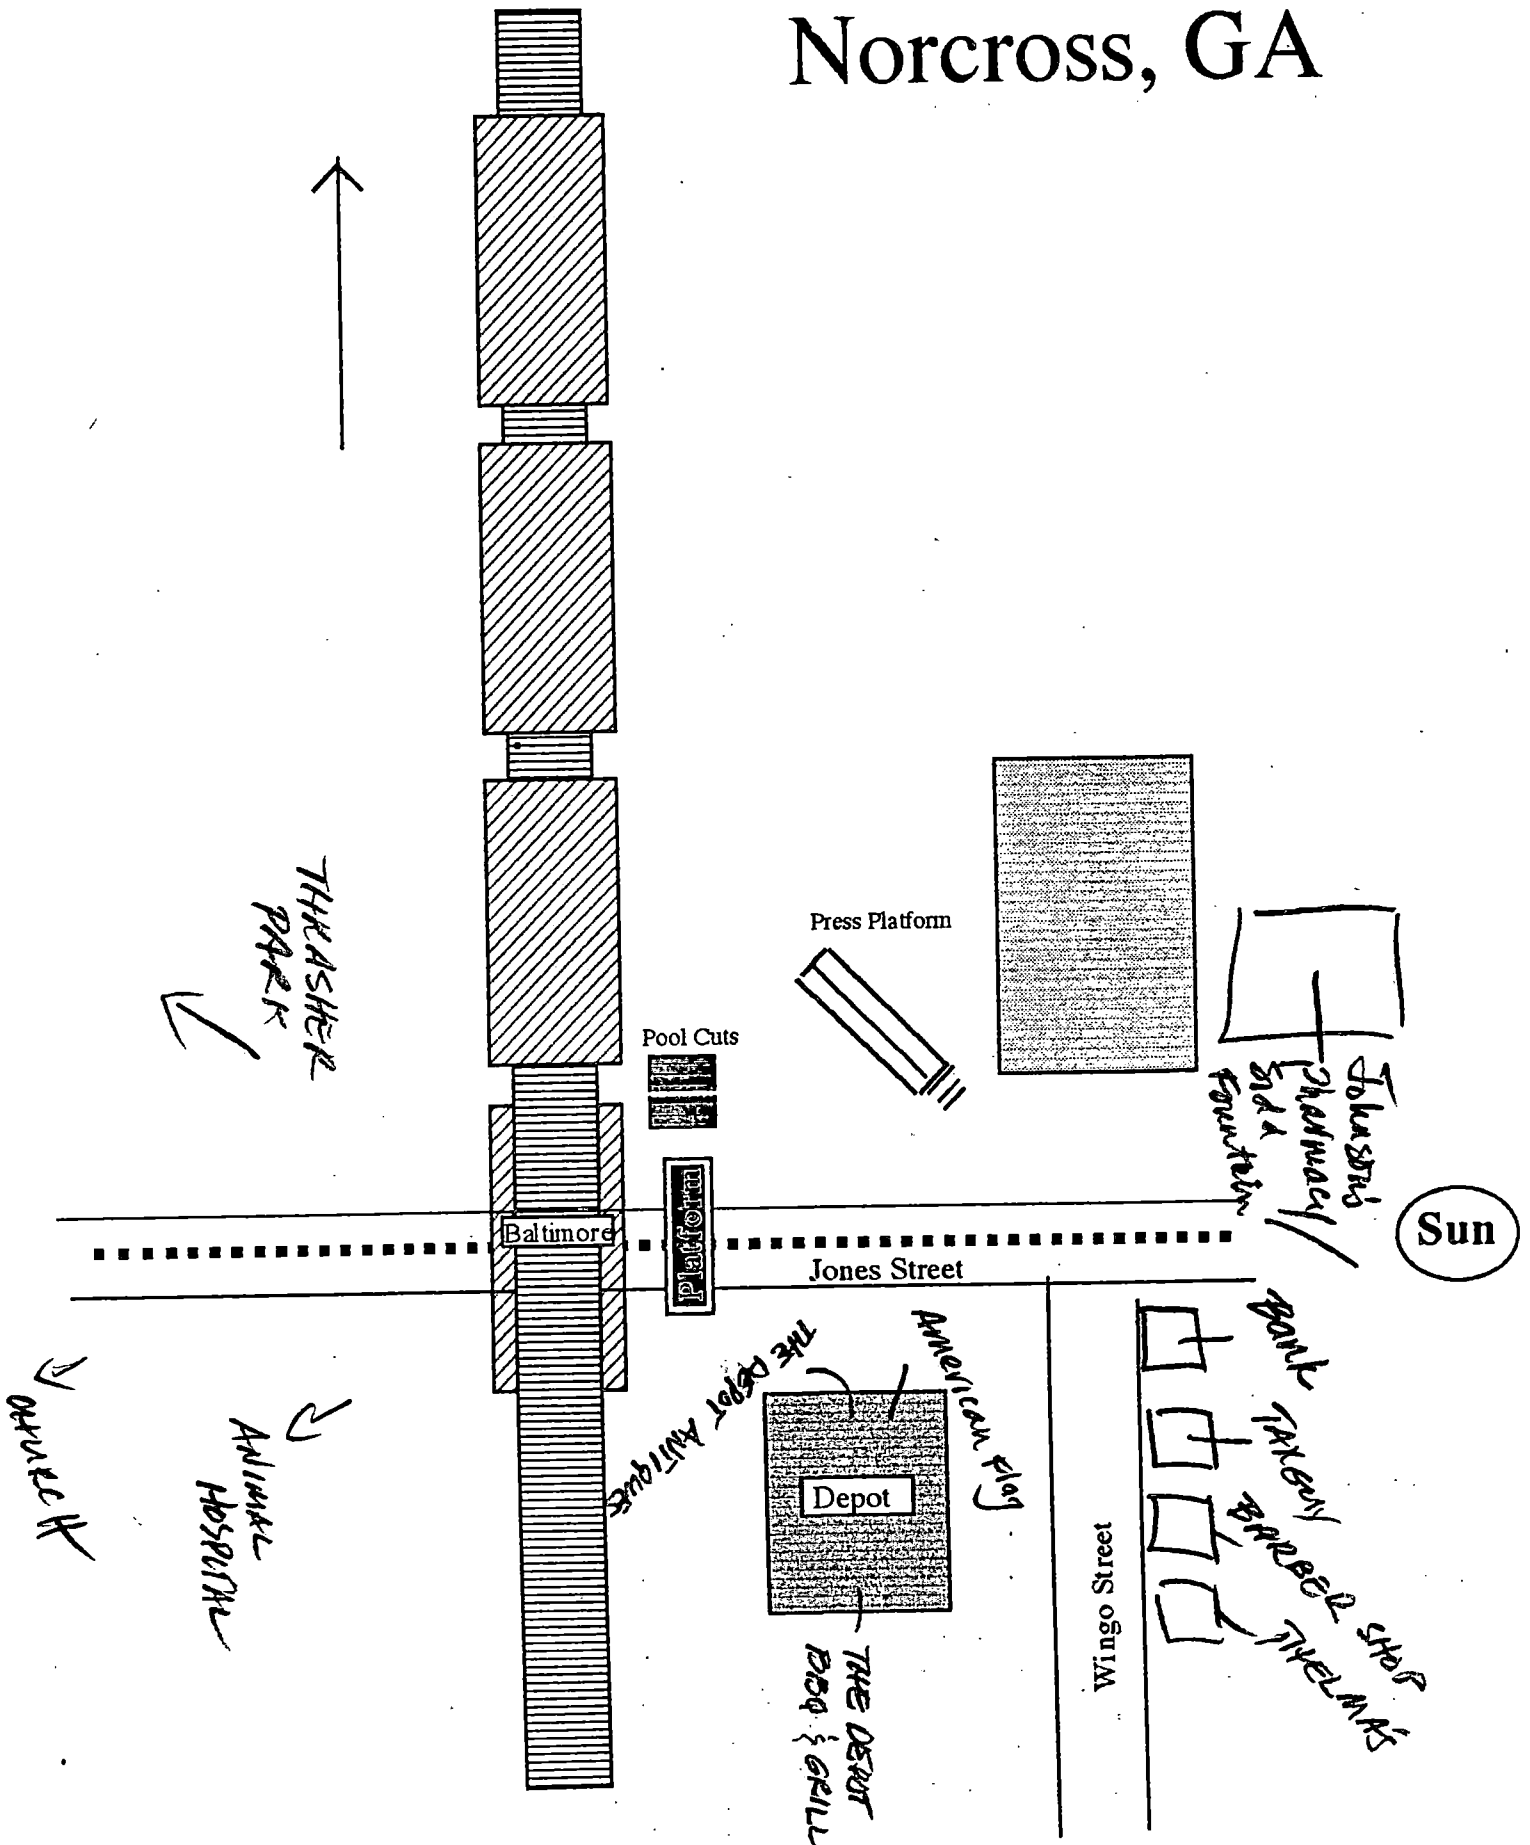

What does it feel like to be so immersed and surrounded with family history and the love of so many relatives and neighbors?

"Sometimes when I stand in here," said Johnson as he looked out the window at the row of old stores lining South Peachtree, "and I see my wife and family, and I see people who have known me since I was a baby, it's not like being at a job 12 hours a day, it's like being at home."

DAY TWO: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1992

1) KING'S MOUNTAIN, NC:

7:30 a.m. depart Spartanburg / arrive King's Mountain 8:30 a.m.

Manufacturing, non-union area - Revolutionary War area, POTUS remarks from dais / Train as backdrop -- train surrounded on both sides of tracks by stores - Main Street USA. See diagram.

Contacts:

Lead - Bob Marlo

John Weatherly 704-487-0039 [he's a candidate for house]

2) KANNAPOLIS, NC:

Depart Spartanburg 9:15 - arrive Kannapolis 11:55 a.m. Crowd estimate 10-15,000. Site is 10-15 minutes from Charlotte, N.C.

POTUS will de-train and speak from dais looking down South Main Street. Train as backdrop. POTUS will walk down between rows of bleachers lining the street [set up in Y configuration]. Image will be of him walking among the people. Church to POTUS right - line of shops to POTUS left and right.

Shaw University / Mills florist, newspaper the Daily Independent, beautiful old railroad houses. I think this is going to be the best stop of the entire trip. [See diagram.]

Home of Fieldcrest Cannon Mills. Export everywhere in the world. A good spot for POTUS to talk about NAFTA - word is the millfolk are concerned about what it will do to jobs. NC has a positive trade balance. A movie studio is coming to the county -- recently announced.

In the town square - across from the baptist church POTUS faces a gazebo built by the American Legion post -- "dedicated to the men and women of the area who served or died in defense of our nation." In front of gazebo is a huge sun dial.

Cabarrus [Cab-BEAR-us] County. Celebrating bicentennial "A golden place to be." There is a dollar theatre [POTUS can see it] "Honey, I blew up the kids" is playing. For a buck you get a movie, cartoons and a preview. Old-fashioned retro theatre. Built back when ushers wore tuxedos. Have to confirm -- think Kennedy-Johnson train went through in 59. in 1791 Pres. Washington came in the area on his tour of the nation after his inauguration. In 1799 the first gold rush in the US happened not 15 miles away -- Young Conrad Reed [then about 12 years old] found a 17 lb. nugget of gold -- didn't know what it was - used it as a door stop. The Reed mines are still working mines. Charlotte Motor Speedway is nearby - consider Dale Earnhardt a local hero.

3) THOMASVILLE, NC:

Depart Kannapolis 12:40 / arrive Thomasville 1:55 p.m.

Home of the Big chair. Thomasville Furniture company -- this week people from all over the world will be in the area for furniture mart. There really is this huge 16 foot tall dining room chair -- get the chamber of commerce to fax the brochure. Coming into town POTUS will pass Doak Park -- there are 5 horseshoe pits in the park - visible from the train.

You can smell the sawdust riding in. Busy revitalizing the town -- refurbishing old buildings - painting murals on one now. New K-4 primary school. Home of the Thomasville High School Bulldogs. There is a Rotary Club in town. Local festivals include "Everybody's Day" and annual town tree lighting -- which takes place in front of the chair -- the center of town. People actually say "Meet me at the chair".

20 minutes from Wake Forest Univ. // Duke is nearby. Charlotte 1 hr. away. 20 mins. Winston-Salem.

Newspaper is the Thomasville Times.

The town Presbyterian Church sponsored a Cambodian family -- the family now has its citizenship and runs a small business - Lotus Palace Cambodian food. Get Mrs. Hunter to tell you the detes.

KANNAPOLIS CHAMBER OF Commerce

Introduction

From its humble beginning of pastureland only eighty years ago, one of North Carolina's newest cities sprawls across two counties.

A factory whistle still blows, reminiscent of the rich textile heritage of Kannapolis past. The city's very name, loosely translated, is Greek for city of looms. This is music in Kannapolis, a changing city of 32,000 that is located in the state's industrial heartland—the growing Piedmont.

Kannapolis grew up around Cannon Mills Company, an enterprise begun in 1906 by industrialist James William Cannon and under the guidance of his son, Charles, came to be known as the world's largest producer of household textiles. That thread proved to be golden for the area. Cannon became a household name around the world.

As the company prospered, the city grew. Doctors, merchants, teachers, lawyers and businessmen migrated to this thriving community that grew to become the largest unincorporated city in the nation.

The sound of the whistle is still sweet, but richer still is the awakening. It is a new day for Kannapolis whose residents voted to incorporate in 1984 after a citizen-led initiative and became the 16th largest city in North Carolina. In its first year, the new city was named a finalist for the coveted All America Cities Award.

The refurbished downtown of Kannapolis has been recognized nationally for its beauty. Its Williamsburg, Virginia, inspired design, created in 1986 from the redevelopment was one of only 10 projects in cities across the country to be recognized while downtown districts throughout the country are decaying.

California financier David H. Murdock, a developer of national acclaim, who has taken on renovations as varied as Baltimore's harbor and Hawaiian islands, has pledged to turn the district into a showplace of the South. The result has been pretty as a picture. Downtown features new colonial facades, additional buildings, tree lined streets, brick walks and a 650,000 square foot arcade-style mall which snakes around a giant oak tree. Park benches, flowers and trees give the charming colonial village the feel of a southern garden.

As part of the project, a new, five lane state road loops around the district and connects the heart of Kannapolis to U. S. 29 and Interstate 85.

Like ore from a goldmine, those laurels were possible because of the 80 year-old tapestry of riches woven from Kannapolis life. From the initial benevolent paternalism grew the spirit of corporate citizenship. A healthy work ethic and a large labor pool provide the basis for a strong economy. Government, business, and community partnerships are promoting economic development and job training opportunities.

The rebirth brings excitement and the spirit is contagious. Recent residential development has increased the city's ample housing stock, created new executive subdivisions and provided a wealth of condominiums and townhouses throughout the city. The people build a new $4 million YMCA, a new Senior Center and a new public library.

Textures from its textile heritage are woven deep in the tapestry and today are treated with pride and respect. The Kannapolis mill villages are considered the largest and best preserved of such districts in the state and probably the South. New private owners are giving the houses, which line some of the city's main streets, revitalization.

But even a tapestry of riches must be hung in the proper place, or nobody enjoys or benefits from it. Kannapolis' location is prime, within 35 minutes of the Charlotte Douglas International Airport and within an hour's drive from three of North Carolina's largest cities.

Its proximity to Charlotte, a southern banking center, and arts-rich Winston-Salem make it possible for residents to participate in a variety of cultural, business and educational opportunities. The city is only four and a half hours from the beach and two hours from the mountains.

Kannapolis is resourceful, and makes use of the natural bounty—a mild temperate climate, the sturdy Scotch-Irish/German heritage of Cabarrus and Rowan counties, and good fortune. It's a new city where the traditional family values have not been forgotten and a town where neighbors are more than just friends.

This new city doesn't merely hang its tapestry of riches. Kannapolis wears it—and proudly proclaims our city and its people to represent "the best of America."

SCENARIOS:

DAY ONE: TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1992

Post debate in East Lansing, Mi. POTUS travels to Atlanta, Ga.
RON/Atlanta.

Morning of 10/20 POTUS participates in "Ask George Bush" or town meeting [site to be determined]. Then motorcades to train. Lead - Ed Murnane, Site - Kathy McCoy.

1) NORCROSS, GA:

10 am depart Atlanta. 10:40 am arrive Norcross. Norcross suburb of Atlanta. POTUS speaks from dais looking down Jones Street / train [the Baltimore car] as backdrop. POTUS left is large red brick building now an AC repair type place, two doors down or so is Johnson's Pharmacy -- been in the town and one family nearly 100 years, authentic soda fountain too. The owner/pharmacist Carl Johnson said Clinton would put him out of business -- everyone on town was "scared to death of what Clinton's taxes would do." / "I looked at my books and am scared to death of Clinton." He is a great contact for local color and personalization.

POTUS right -- "The Depot BBQ and Grill" and The Depot Antiques" -- both housed in the old train depot. Main Street runs behind depot -- shops include: bank, the Tax specialist [couldn't see owners name], barber shop/ Thelma's beauty shop and insurance company. Behind POTUS is Thrasher Park, named for founder of Norcross -- J.J. "Cousin John" Thrasher -- good friend for Jonathan Norcross - 4th mayor of Atlanta in 1851 -- site of the Richmond and Danville Railroad.

High-tech in area: OKI Telecon, AT&T, HQ of Hayes Microcomputers. HQ of Scientific Atlanta, NCR, Southern Bell, Panasonic, and Technology Park.

This is in Gwinnett County / New Gingrich's district.

Get Mr. Johnson to give you the names of the professional baseball players who were from Norcross -- in the 40's he said, Norcross had 18 professional baseball players on teams ranging from Detroit Red wings to St. Louis Cards to New York Yankees....baseball capital of the world.

2) GAINESVILLE, GA:

Depart Norcross at 11:40 am / arrive Gainesville around 12:40 p.m. From Norcross to Gainesville the route passes through the chicken death camp. This is a heavy industry area - yuk. Train will slow through town of Buford for a wave by.

POTUS remarks from rear of train -- POUTS left will be stationery black engine on tack next to him. Engine #5121 decorated with bunting and people. POTUS right will be depot. This site will take a lot of work -- train car up on blocks, empty buildings [NAFTA takes jobs away] and black smoke churning out of the chimney of at least one industry [so much for clean air act] -- be aware of this. Behind POTUS left shoulder is some grain processing plant -- this week is peak soy bean season. Other than that -- great big nothing.

3) CORNELIA, GA:

Depart Gainesville 1:40 arrive Cornelia 2:30 p.m.

"Home of the Big Red Apple" -- no kidding there is a huge red apple on a pedestal adjacent to the depot. POTUS right is a huge grassy slope -- so high that it makes the track and depot appear to be in a valley and so steep that you can't sit on the side without sliding down. Advance has planned is so the press platform will actually have a low-flight bird's eye view of the train and will actually shoot down on the site. POTUS again delivers remarks from the back of Choo-Choo One. The BIG RED APPLE will be just in front of him to the right.

Cornelia was once upon a time an apple growing town -- now it's chickens about a million a day or something. This is Habersham county -- See Sidney Lanier's poem about the marshes of Glynn. There are several colleges [Piedmont College, Toccoa Falls College, North Ga. Tech] and service clubs [Rotary, Pilot, Optimist, Kawanis] in area. Central High School Raiders several jr. high schools. From this stop you can begin to see the foothills of the Smokey Mountains. Appalachian Trail starts about 20 miles from here and ends in Maine.

Race shenanigans

Pre-race activities don't have a thing to do with racing, but they do help entertain the crowd before the checkered flag drops. At Sunday's race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway Brian Carson carried out a daring leap and upside-down crash into a line of junkers. He emerged unscathed from the grinding landing. Photographer Sam Roberts caught the car as it was launched, while Mark Owensby captured it in air just before it crashed. On the race track, Mark Martin took the victory in the Mello Yello 500.

The debate

No clear winner; Clinton continues as frontrunner

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

PHILADELPHIA — President Bush and Bill Clinton courted Pennsylvania voters today after engaging Ross Perot in a vigorous debate that focused on familiar economic and character issues. Polls showed Clinton held his lead even as Perot picked up some support.

"I thought Mr. Perot and I made a pretty good case for change," Clinton said in a brief radio interview here. He said the debate's multiple panelist format was "made for a guy like Perot who's funny and has one liners."

Clinton said he felt he "held our own" in the meeting and added that by delaying his entry into the race Perot had "the benefit of no scrutiny and a free ride."

With 22 days to Election Day, Sunday night's opening presidential debate gave no evidence that Bush achieved a breakthrough he needs to energize his lagging campaign.

Four independent polls said Perot made strong gains in popularity among people who watched the debate, and backers of Bush and Clinton were quick to claim today that what was good for the Texas businessman was even better for them.

"Perot did particularly well at the expense of Clinton," Bob Teeter, Bush campaign chairman told reporters.

George Stephanopoulos, communications director for the Clinton campaign, said on CBS that Perot made the case for economic change and ending gridlock in Washington. "That's what Bill Clinton wants to do," he said.

Bush and Clinton were both campaigning around Philadelphia today while Perot headed back home to Dallas, sticking to his unorthodox strategy of campaigning only by debating and advertising.

What fireworks there were during Sunday's debate — the first of three — came early, when Clinton said the president's economic approach had failed, and when Bush objected to Clinton's participation in anti-Vietnam War demonstrations while studying in England.

Otherwise, there was little new as the candidates staked out familiar positions on such issues as taxing and spending, AIDS, defense conversion and troop levels in Europe.

Some highlights:

● CHARACTER. Bush renewed his criticism of Clinton's role in anti-war protests. "I think it's wrong to demonstrate against your own country or to organize demonstrations against your own country on foreign soil," Bush said, weaving in a mention of his own World War II service and a rejection of Democratic charges that his attacks rang of McCarthyism.

Clinton swung back by noting that Bush's late father, Connecticut Sen. Prescott Bush, had criticized Wisconsin Sen. Joe McCarthy's hunt for Communists.

"Your father was right to stand up to Joe McCarthy," Clinton said. "You were wrong to attack my patriotism. I was opposed to the war but I love my country."

Perot came to Clinton's defense, saying: "If you make a mistake as a young man, time passes. Perot said the public needed to define whether the mistakes took place in the formative years 'or did they occur when you were a senior official with the federal government.'"

● TAXES. Perot promised to be fair, but said the nation would "share sacrifice" as he erased the deficit in four years. He bluntly defended his proposal to raise the gas tax 50 cents, saying it was "time to pay the fid-

For government mismanagement. Clinton said he would raise taxes on the wealthy and offer the middle-class modest relief, and said it would hurt the economy to cut the deficit as fast as Perot wants. Bush promised to hold the line on taxes and government spending.

● EXPERIENCE. Bush said his experience as president should sway voters his way, but Clinton said it was time for new leadership in a fast-changing world, and said his experience at the state level kept him more in touch with average folks. Perot said his lack of political experience was perhaps his greatest asset — and said the country needed a businessman to balance its books.

Post-debate polls showed Clinton maintaining his lead in the three-man race. He had 47 percent in a CBS poll and 46 percent in an ABC poll, compared with 35 percent and 31 percent, respectively, for Bush. Perot trailed with 12 percent and 14 percent in the CBS and ABC polls.

The ABC News poll showed that 89 percent of those who had supported Clinton earlier still did. Bush kept 83 percent of his support and Perot 80 percent.

Aides had said in advance that Bush might have a dramatic announcement, but the only new nugget from the president was that if re-elected he would ask James A. Baker return their curricula back to the basics and help them with discipline, assisting at-risk students in staying in school.

"I think you've got to give that authority to the local level and the classroom teacher," Ramsey noted.

Legislators will have to determine how to continue to fund the Basic Education Program, which was started in 1985 in an attempt to even up funding and programs for all school systems in the state. If the money's not there in 1993, Ramsey

When the debate marathon is over, the candidates will have only two weeks to finish their campaign, giving the forums an importance not lost on Bush advisers.

"The president was fine, but there was no home run here and we could have used one," a senior Bush aide said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"I don't see what he (Bush) did to help himself tonight," said Duke University political scientist James David Barber.

Perot's Texas talk and one-liners helped him in comparison to the two professional politicians.

Former Democratic Gov. Dick Lamm of Colorado said, "Clinton would have been the star of the game except this irreverent guy comes and hit the home run."

The three candidates meet again Thursday in Richmond, Va., and once more on Monday in East Lansing, Mich. Their running mates, Vice President Dan Quayle, Tennessee Sen. Al Gore and retired Vice Admiral James Stockdale, face off Tuesday night in Atlanta.

said legislators again may under-fund it.

While not favoring tax cuts, Ramsey said without additional revenues in 1993, the legislature have to force state department cut back — anywhere from 1 percent.

"The state is just got teeth," she said.

If any unneeded funding is can be re-appropriated to education or any other area where might be needed.

In the meantime, the state make a better effort to increase economic development, possible use of tax credits. Ramsey has faith in Jim Hunt, Democratic candidate for governor, to effort.

She also echoes Hunt's sentiment on toughening the state's system, supporting work-campers for convicts.

"It's long overdue we build farms," Ramsey said. "Put oners to work on our roads."

She claimed that this will growing crime rate in the state.

Releasing bond money approved voters to build new prison priority. New prison space offenders behind bars long toughening the system.

"If a prisoner is sentenced years, he should serve until he to come up for parole," she noted.

On other issues, Ramsey these positions:

● Lottery. Ramsey is in favor law giving state voters the determine if the state has a lottery.

"I'm personally against tery," she said. "I think t should come to the people."

● Abortion. She opposes woman's right to abortion. She the issue "should have never exploited in our judicial system adding it is the "ultimate p decision for women."

● Kannapolis ABC matter. would support a request from napolis officials for legislature resolve the city's status under ABC laws.

"I think that law should rected for the city of Kannapolis she noted. "I believe in the m dum system."

Political Parties

A political party is a group of people who try to win elections so they can run the government. Political parties are voluntary. You don't have to join one.

We say that we have a two-party system in the United States.

Most Americans usually support either the Democratic or Republican Party.

If you could vote, would you be:
a Democrat for Clinton? ☐ a Republican for Bush? ☐

People don't feel as loyal to their political parties as they used to.

I AM A DEMOCRAT FOR BUSH.

I AM A REPUBLICAN FOR CLINTON.

Many Democrats and Republicans vote for whichever candidate they wish.

I AM NOT A REPUBLICAN OR A DEMOCRAT.

There are other voters who don't support any party. They are called independents.

Would you be an independent? ☐

Some voters feel so strongly about an issue or candidate that they start or join a party other than the Democrats or Republicans.

The strongest of other minor parties is called the third party.

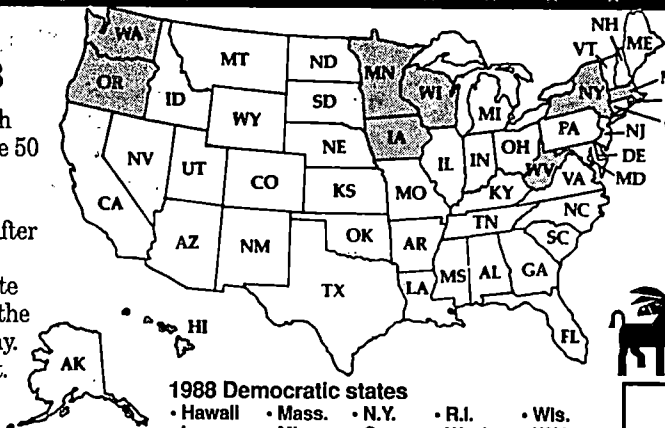

Some people run with no party behind them. They rely on support from both parties and the independents.

Ross Perot is such a candidate. While he backed out of the race in July, he is back in again.

How states voted in 1988

This map shows which party carried each of the 50 states in the last presidential election in 1988. Save this issue. After the elections this year, compare the results state by state. Put a check if the state votes the same way. Make an X if it does not.

In 1988, the Republicans carried 39 states (not shaded).

How many in 1992? ☐

In 1988, the Democrats carried 10 states (shaded) and the District of Columbia.

How many in 1992? ☐

Words to know:

politics: the managing of government.
politician: an officeholder or a person who works for a political party.
run for office: to try to get elected. Also called "campaigning."
ballot: a list of the candidates.
to cast a ballot: to vote.
absentee ballot: one that is mailed in if a voter is going to be away from home on Election Day.
toss your hat into the ring: to decide to run for office.
concession statement: given by a candidate admitting he or she has lost.
ticket: a listing of the candidates from one political party.
Some people vote a straight ticket, or for all the candidates from one party.
Others might vote a split ticket, or vote for people from each party.

Find out how elections work

Vote in your classroom!

1. Form parties

Divide the class into two groups, Republicans and Democrats. If some voters don't want to belong to either party, they can be independents. Some might want to start a third party.

2. Hold conventions

Select people to play the roles of George Bush and Bill Clinton. Each group should hold a meeting (or convention) to nominate (choose) the candidate of its choice. The person chosen for president chooses the vice president to run on his or her ticket. They must be approved by their parties.

3. Campaign

Each candidate has a chance to make a speech as to why he or she should be elected.

Here are some issues you might want to talk about.

- crime
- education
- health care
- jobs
- homelessness
- taxes

4. Register voters

Ask each voter to register, giving name, address and political party choice. However, students can vote for any candidate they wish.

Democrat	Republican	Other
For president: Bill Clinton	For president: George Bush	For president:
☐	☐	☐

5. Set up polls

Make out ballots for the voters to mark. Set up polling places. Hang up a curtain of some kind so students can vote in secret.

6. Vote

Pick polling judges from each party to see that things run smoothly. Have the judges tally (count) the votes and announce the winner.

Meet Bill Smitrovich

Bill Smitrovich plays Drew Thacher on the show "Life Goes On."

In his acting career, Bill has been in other TV shows, movies, plays and made-for-TV movies.

His first professional acting job was in a New York play.

Bill was born in Bridgeport, Conn.

He grew up there and in Albuquerque, N.M., and El Cajon, Calif.

He went to the University of Bridgeport. While in school, he worked as a bartender, waiter, cab driver, restaurant manager and lab technician.

Bill became interested in acting at 24 when a friend told him to audition for a part in a play.

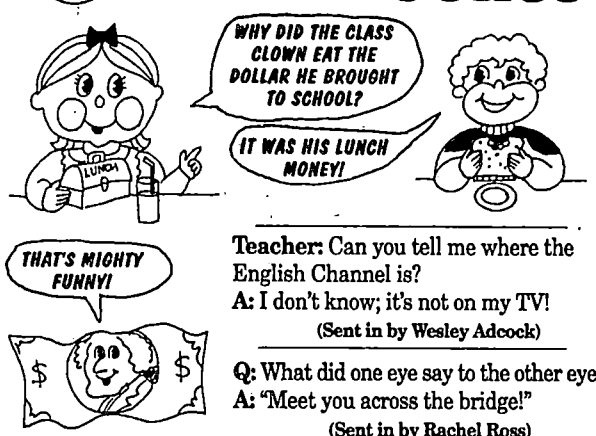

Teacher's Guide

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.
For use with Issue: Political Parties

Main idea: This issue is about political parties. The following is a list of activities to be used with this issue. They are listed in order of difficulty, with the easier pre-reader assignments listed first. Ask the children to do the following:

1. Pretend you are running for president. Draw a picture of yourself on the campaign trail.
2. Discuss the following: Are you following the elections? How would you like to have one of your parents be a politician? If you were to help a candidate in a campaign, what would you like to do? If you were to organize a fund-raiser for your candidate, what would you like it to be?
3. Poll the students in the class about the presidential election. Make a graph of the results.
4. Design a campaign poster for a candidate you like who is running for senator, governor or president.
5. Look at the map of the 1988 election. What candidate carried your state?
6. Find the following words: political, nominate, independent, chairman, voluntary, committee, issue, leaflets. Define and make up a new sentence for each one.
7. Look in your newspaper for articles on the elections.
