PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TOAST AT THE STATE DINNER IN POLAND
RADZIWILL PALACE, WARSAW
MONDAY, JULY 10, 1989, 7:55 P.M.

[Mr. President], Mr. Prime Minister, Members of the Polish delegation -- thank you for your hospitality tonight, and throughout our stay. We are very pleased and honored to be here.

The American people have a special and enduring interest in Poland. And in recent months we have watched remarkable events unfold here.

And so this is not an ordinary visit -- for in Poland these are not ordinary times.

When I was last here, almost two years ago, our relations had just emerged from a long, chilly period. But we have made great progress, and covered many issues -- cultural, commercial, consular, scientific, communications, counterterrorism, human rights and others.

[Mr. President], the rewards for successful effort are, as always, more and greater challenges. Poland is entering a new era. It is beginning once again to command its own destiny. Polish energy and creativity are being tapped. Great steps have been taken already -- the remarkable Roundtable accords, Solidarity's legalization, the holding of fair elections, the restoration of a freely-elected Polish Senate. And more steps await on the road ahead.

Poland has surpassed all expectations. And we respect you for it.

Reform is a difficult process, as you well know. There are neither easy answers, nor cost-free solutions. But there is a sound basis for hope. And today, you have the goodwill of an expectant and hopeful world.

Poland now seeks a democratic future in these exciting times, we see hope, not only for a new beginning in Poland but for the beginning of Europe's reconciliation, for making Europe whole and free and at peace with itself.

We want Poland to succeed in this historic effort. And we have outlined for you ways in which the United States can help Poland help itself. Both our governments have a great deal of work to do.

Our hearts -- as always -- will be filled with the abiding commitment the American people feel for this land and her people.

You know, over the past two years we have celebrated the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. And yet, not every American knows that a short time later -- the world's second written constitution was adopted by the Polish Parliament.

And today, I believe the spirit that produced the 3rd May Constitution lives on in Warsaw, in Krakow (KRAH-Koof), in Gdansk. And my wish for you is that two years from now, on the bicentennial of your constitution, the Polish people will have achieved the kind of democratic transformation -- the democratic alternative -- so long awaited, so long deferred.

[Mr. President], Mr. Prime Minister --

Let us lift our glasses to the progress we have made in relations -- and to our determination to proceed toward the better days and great achievements still to come.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TOAST AT THE STATE DINNER IN POLAND
RADZIWIŁL PALACE, WARSAW
MONDAY, JULY 10, 1989, 7:55 P.M.

Mr. President, Mr. Prime Minister, Members of the Polish delegation -- thank you for your hospitality tonight, and throughout our stay. We are very pleased and honored to be here.

~~Like me,~~ the American people have a special and ~~long-term~~ <sup>enduring</sup> interest in Poland. And in recent months we have watched some remarkable events unfold here.

And so this is not an ordinary visit -- for in Poland these are not ordinary times.

When I was last here, almost two years ago, our relations had just emerged from a long, chilly period. But we have made ~~fast~~ <sup>great</sup> progress, and covered many issues -- cultural, commercial, consular, scientific, communications, counterterrorism, human rights and others.

Mr. President, the rewards for successful effort are, as always, more and greater challenges. Poland is entering a new era. It is beginning once again to command its own ~~history~~ <sup>destiny</sup>. Polish energy and creativity are being tapped. Great steps have been taken already -- the remarkable Roundtable accords, Solidarity's legalization, the holding of fair elections, the restoration of a freely-elected Polish Senate. And more steps await on the road ahead.

Poland has surpassed all expectations. And we respect you for it.

Reform is a difficult process, as you well know. There are neither easy answers, nor cost-free solutions. But there is a sound basis for hope. And today, you have the goodwill of an expectant and hopeful world.

~~Tomorrow marks the birthday of an American patriot, President John Quincy Adams. In 1821, during his service as Secretary of State, he spoke of America's role overseas:~~

Insert A
~~"Wherever the standard of freedom and independence has been, or shall be, unfurled -- there will America's heart, her benedictions, and prayers be. [[PAUSE]] But she goes not abroad in search of monsters to destroy. She is the well-wisher to the freedom and independence of all. She is the champion and the vindicator only of her own."~~

~~Our message here today reflects Adams's sentiments.~~ We want Poland to succeed in this historic effort. And we have outlined for you ways in which the United States can help Poland help itself. Both our governments have a great deal of work to do.

Our hearts -- as always -- will be filled with the abiding commitment the American people feel for this land and her people.

You know, over the past two years we have celebrated the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. And yet, not every American knows that a short time later -- the world's second written constitution was adopted by the Polish Parliament.

And today, I believe the spirit that produced the 3rd May Constitution lives on in Warsaw, in Krakow, in Gdansk. And my wish for you is that ~~in~~ two years from now, on the bicentennial of your constitution ~~at~~ the Polish people will have <sup>(achieved)</sup> the kind of ~~democratic transformation -- the democratic alternative -- so long awaited,~~
~~reforms in place that a people with your proud heritage deserve.~~ so long deferred.

Mr. President, Mr. Prime Minister --

Let us lift our glasses to the progress in relations ~~we~~ have made -- and to our determination to proceed ~~on an ever-ascending~~ ~~path,~~ toward <sup>the</sup> better days and great achievements still to come.

Memorandum to Chriss Winston

From: Jim Pinkerton
Subject: Draft Toast At the State Dinner In Poland

By way of suggestion, we note that none of the President's Polish speeches refer to the Polish winner of the 1980 Nobel Prize for Literature. Although Czeslaw Milosz is now a U.S. citizen, he is universally recognized as the literary and poetic voice of conscience for Poland, and his book, The Captive Mind, is a classic.

Milosz in many ways bears the same relation to Poland as Solzhenitsyn bears to the Soviet Union. While Milosz may be too discordant a note to use at a state dinner, it would be a shame for the President not to make some mention of him while in the country.

pg. 3, para. 3, line 1 "...to the progress in relations we have made...." The "we have made" should refer to "progress" and not, as here, to "relations."

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Prime Minister and members of the Polish delegation, thank you for your hospitality tonight and throughout our stay. We are very pleased and honored to be here.

The American people have a special and enduring interest in Poland. And in recent months we have watched remarkable events unfold here.

And so this is not an ordinary visit -- for in Poland these are not ordinary times.

When I was last here, almost two years ago, our relations had just emerged from a long, chilly period. But we have made great progress and covered many issues -- cultural, commercial, consular, scientific, communications, human rights and others.

Mr. Chairman, the rewards for successful effort are, as always, more and greater challenges. Poland is entering a new era. It is beginning once again to command its own destiny. Polish energy and creativity are being tapped. And great steps have been taken already -- the remarkable Roundtable Accords, Solidarity's legalization, the holding of fair elections, the restoration of a freely-elected Polish Senate. And more steps await on the road ahead.

Poland has surpassed all expectations. And we respect you for that.

Reform is a difficult process, as you well know. And there are neither easy answers, nor cost-free solutions. But there is a sound basis for hope. And today you have the goodwill of an expectant and hopeful world.

We see hope, not only for a new beginning in Poland, but for the beginning of Europe's reconciliation, for making Europe whole and free and at peace with itself.

We want Poland to succeed in this historic effort. And we have outlined ways in which the United States can help Poland help itself. Both our governments have a great deal of work to do.

Our hearts -- as always -- will be filled with the abiding commitment the American people feel for this land and for her people. You know, over the past two years we have celebrated the 200th anniversary of the United States Constitution, and yet, not every American knows that a short time later the world's second written constitution was adopted by the Polish Parliament.

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Prime Minister, let us lift our glasses to the progress we have made in relations -- and to our determination to proceed toward the better days and great achievements still to come.

And may I say in closing to you and Mrs. Jaruzelski, our heartfelt thanks for your superb hospitality and the warmth of your welcome to me, to Barbara and to all that are traveling with me.
