THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

October 16, 1989

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT END HUNGER AWARDS CEREMONY

The Roosevelt Room

10:15 A.M. EDT

THE PRESIDENT: Welcome to everybody, and I do want to salute the members of Congress who are here from the House Select Committee -- the Select Committee on Hunger. Bill Emerson, one of today's award winners; Tony Hall and Benjamin Gilman; and then, of course, our friend, Senator Lugar of Indiana. Clayton, welcome Secretary, and Mark, our Acting Administrator of AID. Let me welcome all of you to the White House.

It's a special -- very special privilege to welcome Dr. Kurien, the 1989 recipient of the World Food Prize. And he's the father of India's "White Revolution" that has brought hygienic milk to the homes of 170 million people. And tomorrow evening, Dr. Kurien will be honored at the Smithsonian for his life-long dedication to the poor and hungry of India. I want to congratulate this great humanitarian whose work has changed the lives and the livelihoods of so many millions of people.

And, of course, let me say again how honored I am to meet with the End Hunger Award winners -- 14, if you will, of the thousand points of light who are bringing hope to the hungry.

And you've all heard me say before that from now on, in America, any definition of a successful life must include service to others. And by that standard, the people I've just met with in the Oval Office are the kind of success stories who inspire us all.

Whether you're a congressman like my friend Bill Emerson -- or a produce merchant like Mickey Weiss, who decides one day it's time to feed the hungry with the perfectly edible food that we waste -- what you've done proves that each of us can make a difference -- right in our own neighborhood, or on the other side of the world, as well.

And I know this is a proud moment for all of you. But I'd like to single out the five award winners who are not here.

Ambassador Alan Woods, Administrator of AID, who cared so deeply, working until the very end of his life to help the world's hungry. Of course, our friend Congressman Mickey Leland -- people here in Washington and people back in Mickey's hometown, and mine, of Houston, and the starving children of Ethiopia will never forget this man and his great love and compassion. And, of course, Tom and Roberta Worrick, and Gladys Gilbert -- the dedicated AID officials who lost their lives on the way to Ethiopia's refugee camps with Mickey Leland. Our hearts go out to the families of these fine men and women.

The End Hunger Awards underscore a simple fact about America. We are a compassionate people, a nation of neighbors and neighborhoods -- and America will never sleep well so long as a single man, woman or child goes to sleep hungry or homeless, haunted or hurting.

Hunger cuts across all nations and peoples. It's black, it's white, it's brown -- and certainly it's cruel. And every time you feed a family -- even a single man, woman or child -- along with nourishment, you give them dignity and hope.

So I salute the winners of the End Hunger Awards. And with that salute goes the gratitude of a nation to each of you for answering the call to provide this most basic of needs. Because of you, we must be -- we are one step closer to a world without hunger.

And we all realize that winning the battle against hunger means improving the production and distribution of food. In recognition of that fact, I will now sign this proclamation declaring today World Food Day.

And before I sign the proclamation, let me again congratulate the winners and thank you for joining me here this morning. Bless you all and keep up the great work.

(The proclamation is signed.)

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: CHRISS WINSTON W

FROM: DAN MCGROARTY M

SUBJECT: REMARKS FOR END HUNGER AWARDS CEREMONY

I. SUMMARY

On Monday, October 16, at 10:30 a.m., you will address the winners of the End Hunger Awards in the Roosevelt Room. Also present will be the 1989 winner of the World Food Prize, Dr. Verghese Kurien.

II. DISCUSSION

The End Hunger Awards are given to people who have worked hard to fight world hunger. This year, Congressman Mickey Leland and three other victims of the Ethiopian air crash are among the awards recipients. Also receiving a posthumous award is Ambassador Alan Woods, former Administrator of AID.

Good morning. Clayton Yeutter, [members of Congress,] Mark Edelman, Administrator of AID: welcome to the White House.

And it is a special privilege to welcome Dr. Verghese Kurien of India -- the 1989 recipient of the World Food Prize -- and father of India's "White Revolution" that has brought hygienic milk to the homes of 170 million people. Tomorrow evening, Dr. Kurien will be honored at the Smithsonian Institution for his life-long dedication to the poor and hungry of India. But this morning, I want to congratulate this great humanitarian, whose work has changed the lives -- and the livelihoods -- of so many millions of people.

And, of course, let me say again how honored I am to meet with the End Hunger Award winners -- one dozen of the 1000 points of light who are bringing hope to the hungry.

You've all heard me say before that, from now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include service to others. Well, by that standard, the people I've just met with are the kind of success stories who inspire us all.

Whether you're a Congressman or Ambassador -- or a produce merchant like Mickey Weiss who decides one day it's time to feed the hungry with the perfectly edible food we waste -- what you've done proves that each of us can make a difference -- right in our own neighborhood, or on the other side of the world.

I know this is a proud moment for all of you. But I'd like to single out three award winners who are not here. Ambassador Alan Woods, Administrator of AID, who cared so deeply, working until the very end of his life to help the world's hungry.

Congressman Mickey Leland: People here in Washington, people back in Mickey's home town of Houston, and the starving children of Ethiopia will never forget this man and his great love and compassion. And Tom Worrick -- AID officer in Ethiopia who also lost his life on the way to Ethiopia's refugee camps with Congressman Leland. Tom's wife Roberta shares the award. Roberta, our hearts go out to you. ////

The End Hunger Awards underscore a simple fact about America. We are a compassionate people, a nation of neighbors and neighborhoods -- and America will never sleep well so long as a single man, woman or child goes to sleep hungry or homeless, haunted or hurting.

But hunger cuts across all nations and peoples. Hunger is black. Hunger is white. Hunger is brown. /// And hunger is cruel. /// Every time you feed a family -- even a single man, woman or child -- along with nourishment, you give them dignity and hope.

I salute the winners of the End Hunger Awards. And with that salute goes the gratitude of a nation to you for answering the call to provide this most basic of needs. Because of you, we're one step closer to a world without hunger.

Thank you all for joining me this morning. ~~Now, I will sign a proclamation declaring today World Food Day.~~ God bless you -- and God bless the United States of America.

#

There is an inextricable link between ~~fighting~~ winning the battle of hunger and ~~the more~~ more efficient improved production ~~of~~ and distribution of food. Today is also World Food Day. PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: END HUNGER AWARDS CEREMONY
THE ROOSEVELT ROOM
OCTOBER 16, 1989
10:30 AM

Good morning. Clayton Yeutter, [members of Congress,] Mark Edelman, Administrator of AID: welcome to the White House.

And it is a special privilege to welcome Dr. Verghese Kurien of India -- the 1989 recipient of the World Food Prize -- and father of India's "White Revolution" that has brought hygienic milk to the homes of 170 million people. Tomorrow evening, Dr. Kurien will be honored at the Smithsonian Institution for his life-long dedication to the poor and hungry of India. But this morning, I want to congratulate this great humanitarian, whose work has changed the lives -- and the livelihoods -- of so many millions of people.

And, of course, let me say again how honored I am to meet with the End Hunger Award winners -- ~~one dozen~~ ^{fourteen} of the 1000 points of light who are bringing hope to the hungry.

You've all heard me say before that, from now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include service to others. Well, by that standard, the people I've just met with are the kind of success stories who inspire us all.

Whether you're a Congressman ~~or Ambassador~~ -- ^{like my Bill Emerson} or a produce merchant like Mickey Weiss who decides one day it's time to feed the hungry with the perfectly edible food we waste -- what you've done proves that each of us can make a difference -- right in our own neighborhood, or on the other side of the world.

I know this is a proud moment for all of you. But I'd like to single out ~~three~~ ^{five} award winners who are not here. Ambassador Alan Woods, Administrator of AID, who cared so deeply, working until the very end of his life to help the world's hungry.

Congressman Mickey Leland: People here in Washington, people back in Mickey's home town of Houston, and the starving children of Ethiopia will never forget this man and his great love and compassion. ~~And Tom Worrick -- AID officer in Ethiopia who also~~ ^{And three outstanding, dedicated AID employees --} ~~Tom and Roberta Worrick and Gladys Gilbert - who also~~ ^{Tom and Roberta Worrick and Gladys Gilbert - who also} ~~lost his life on the way to Ethiopia's refugee camps with~~ ^{lost his life on the way to Ethiopia's refugee camps with} ~~Congressman Leland. Tom's wife Roberta shares the award.~~ ^{stet} ~~their lives~~ ^{Our hearts go out to the families of} ~~these are fine men and women.~~ ^{these are fine men and women.}

~~Roberta, our hearts go out to you. ///~~

The End Hunger Awards underscore a simple fact about America. We are a compassionate people, a nation of neighbors and neighborhoods -- and America will never sleep well so long as a single man, woman or child goes to sleep hungry or homeless, haunted or hurting.

But hunger cuts across all nations and peoples. Hunger is black. Hunger is white. Hunger is brown. /// And hunger is cruel. /// Every time you feed a family -- even a single man, woman or child -- along with nourishment, you give them dignity and hope.

I salute the winners of the End Hunger Awards. And with that salute goes the gratitude of a nation to you for answering the call to provide this most basic of needs. Because of you, we're one step closer to a world without hunger.

Thank you all for joining me this morning. Now, I will sign a proclamation declaring today World Food Day. God bless you -- and God bless the United States of America.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: END HUNGER AWARDS CEREMONY
THE ROOSEVELT ROOM
OCTOBER 16, 1989
10:30 AM

Good morning. Clayton Yeutter, [members of Congress,] Mark Edelman, Administrator of AID: welcome to the White House.

And it is a special privilege to welcome Dr. Verghese Kurien of India -- the 1989 recipient of the World Food Prize -- and father of India's "White Revolution" that has brought hygienic milk to the homes of 170 million people. Tomorrow evening, Dr. Kurien will be honored at the Smithsonian Institution for his life-long dedication to the poor and hungry of India. But this morning, I want to congratulate this great humanitarian, whose work has changed the lives -- and the livelihoods -- of so many millions of people.

And, of course, let me say again how honored I am to meet with the End Hunger Award winners -- one dozen of the 1000 points of light who are bringing hope to the hungry.

You've all heard me say before that, from now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include service to others. Well, by that standard, the people I've just met with are the kind of success stories who inspire us all.

Whether you're a Congressman or Ambassador -- or a produce merchant like Mickey Weiss who decides one day it's time to feed the hungry with the perfectly edible food we waste -- what you've done proves that each of us can make a difference -- right in our own neighborhood, or on the other side of the world.

I know this is a proud moment for all of you. But I'd like to single out three award winners who are not here. Ambassador Alan Woods, Administrator of AID, who cared so deeply, working until the very end of his life to help the world's hungry.

Congressman Mickey Leland: People here in Washington, people back in Mickey's home town of Houston, and the starving children of Ethiopia will never forget this man and his great love and compassion. And Tom Worrick -- AID officer in Ethiopia who also lost his life on the way to Ethiopia's refugee camps with Congressman Leland. Tom's wife Roberta shares the award. Roberta, our hearts go out to you. ////

The End Hunger Awards underscore a simple fact about America. We are a compassionate people, a nation of neighbors and neighborhoods -- and America will never sleep well so long as a single man, woman or child goes to sleep hungry or homeless, haunted or hurting.

But hunger cuts across all nations and peoples. Hunger is black. Hunger is white. Hunger is brown. /// And hunger is cruel. /// Every time you feed a family -- even a single man, woman or child -- along with nourishment, you give them dignity and hope.

I salute the winners of the End Hunger Awards. And with that salute goes the gratitude of a nation to you for answering the call to provide this most basic of needs. Because of you, we're one step closer to a world without hunger.

Thank you all for joining me this morning. Now, I will sign a proclamation declaring today World Food Day. God bless you -- and God bless the United States of America.
