PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

Good morning. It's a pleasure to be back with you again, this time in San Francisco.

I'm sure that you'll agree, it's both an exciting and challenging time to be in education. Last fall I called together, the Nation's governors for an Education Summit -- the first of its kind in our history. And, we agreed that, the time had come to establish clear national performance goals, goals that will make us internationally competitive. And we did just that when I announced our six education goals in my State of the Union speech last month. By the turn of the century, all children in America will start school ready to learn. We will increase the percentage of students graduating from high school to at least ninety percent. We will check the progress of American students in grades four, eight, and twelve. By the year 2000, our students will be the first in the world in science and mathematics. Every adult will be literate, and finally every school in America will be free of drugs and violence while offering a disciplined environment conducive to learning.

Ambitious goals, it's true. And they won't be easily achieved. But, if we're going to ensure every child in America the chance to succeed, if America is going to maintain its leadership role in the world, together we must meet these goals.

Your convention theme -- "Leadership with Vision" --

reflects your commitment to this effort and the Nation's young people. As a society, we depend on your leadership and vision, and your inspiration to guide them through the coming decade and into the next century. Simply put, each of you will help determine the future course of this Nation.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
ALABAMA HALL OF FAME AND RAY SCOTT

Greetings to all my friends in Alabama and thanks to you Larry and the Board of Directors of the Alabama Sports Hall of Fame for inviting me to share a few moments with you and your guests.

It's wonderful to join you as you honor my good friend and fishing companion Ray Scott, and induct six outstanding athletes into your Hall of Fame.

I'm sure that each of tonight's inductees is proud to join this Alabama institution -- a society whose membership reads like a roll call of legendary athletes. "Bear" Bryant, Hank Aaron, "Shug" Jordan ((JER-DEN)), Jesse Owens, Willie Mays, and Bart Starr. Hall of Famers all, they prompt memories of great feats and events in almost every sport.

And that's the same for this year's illustrious class. Former "Iron Bowl" coaching rivals Pat Dye of Auburn and Ray Perkins of Alabama. The excitable "Wimp" Sanderson and unforgettable Lindy Hood from Alabama basketball, stock car racer Red Farmer and of course, a great name from baseball's past -- former Detroit Tigers star Jimmy Outlaw. Each a great athlete, they've all earned their place as "legends of the game." And the same is true about Ray Scott. He's a proud Alabamian, a grand sportsman and most of all a good friend. Every time we set out to cut into the bass population in Pintlala, I think we talk about as much as we fish. Especially the last time we were together. As many of you can recall, we had a little trouble catching much of anything. But, I understand that Larry was able to land "the one that got away" and brought it here tonight.

Thanks Ray, for the wonderful hours we've spent together and congratulations on your honor tonight.

And, now, Larry has a presentation to make. Thank you, and have a great evening.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGES FOR
THE 1992 QUINCENTENNIAL EXPOSITION IN SEVILLE AND GENOA

Message # 1 - SEVILLE

In 1492 Christopher Columbus set out on a voyage of discovery that would change the world. In 1992 at the Seville World's Fair, more than 100 nations will celebrate the 500th anniversary of that daring adventure. The U.S. pavilion in Seville, Spain -- the country where Columbus launched his voyage to the new world -- will be a place to show America's spirit of adventure and discovery. The front door of our Pavilion will be the front door to America. Visitors will be treated to a spectacular look at our past, present, and future, with exhibitions that represent the energy and genius of our people.

And because 1992 marks the target date for full economic integration of the European Community, this exposition will open up unparalleled business opportunities. The U.S. welcomes this chance to promote trade, tourism and investment as never before. As we approach the 21st century and move toward a greater economic integration, we must demonstrate our international competitiveness. Events in Europe in 1992 will be instrumental in shaping America's trade policies and will test our ability to compete in world markets into the year 2000 and beyond.

Seville Expo '92 offers exciting prospects for us all. I hope you'll make it to Seville and help the world rediscover the great American competitive spirit. Thank you and God bless you all.

Message #2 - GENOA

In 1492 Christopher Columbus set out on a voyage of discovery that would change the world. In 1992, more than 100 nations will celebrate the 500th anniversary of that daring adventure. In Columbus's hometown of Genoa, Italy, an international exposition will tell the story of Columbus. For our part, at the Genoa Expo '92, the United States will present an exhibition that shows the energy and genius of America.

And because 1992 marks the target date for full economic integration of the European Community, the Genoa Expo will open up unparalleled business opportunities. The U.S. will promote trade, tourism and investment as never before. It is an outstanding opportunity to demonstrate our international competitiveness. Events in Europe in 1992 will be instrumental in shaping America's trade policies and in testing our ability to compete in world markets into the year 2000 and beyond.

Genoa Expo '92 offers exciting prospects for all of us. I hope you'll make it to Genoa and help the world rediscover the great American competitive spirit. Thank you and God bless you all.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE FOR
THE EMERGENCY BROADCAST SYSTEM VIDEO TRAINING TAPE

I welcome this opportunity to thank all of you in the communications industry for your continuing voluntary contributions to the Emergency Broadcast System.

In a national emergency, it is essential that the President is able to speak with the American people on very short notice. Working together under EBS, the broadcast networks and stations, cable and telephone industries, and wire services, provide this critical capability.

I am proud of the successful cooperation between government and industry that you have developed within the EBS. It is an outstanding example of just how effective government and industry, working together, can be -- cooperating, in this case, to create and sustain the Emergency Broadcast System. So, let me thank the American communications industry for voluntarily providing this important service. You are truly a vital national asset. You have the thanks of all Americans and this President for your generous public service.

Keep up the good work, thank you and God bless you all.

SUGGESTED PRESIDENTIAL VIDEO FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES BUSINESS
LEADERSHIP FORUM -- FEBRUARY 20, 1990 (CHARLESTON, S.C.)
1990 FEB -8 PM 7:34

I want to welcome business leaders from North America, Europe and the Pacific who have come to Charleston to discuss the increasingly important role that corporations can play in the world in which you do business.

I welcome this initiative by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. For some time, I have known of his deep personal interest in the role of business in the community. I know of the hope and opportunity that many of his initiatives bring to younger people in the United Kingdom and elsewhere in the world.

I believe that business is a powerful force for improvement in our own society and in the developing democracies around the world. In fact, by engaging in community problem-solving business can help face the critical social challenges in our world today.

I firmly believe that being responsive to the needs of communities in areas such as educational excellence, youth development and environmental protection is good for business.

Often, I speak of "points of light" -- individuals, businesses, groups and organizations of all sizes that are making a positive difference in the communities in which they live. I believe in the innate desire of every individual and every group and organization to be involved in helping others in need. As we enter the new century, we must work together to multiply and magnify "points of light" everywhere.

I hope that while you are in Charleston you will get a real sense of what can be achieved by one American community with strong leadership determined to regenerate and conserve its quality of life.

Thank you for your interest and commitment to help build a better America.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

Good morning. It's a pleasure to be back with you again, this time in San Francisco.

I'm sure that you'll agree, it's both an exciting and challenging time to be in education. Last fall I called together, the Nation's governors for an Education Summit -- the first of its kind in our history. And ^o we agreed that ^o the time had come to establish clear national performance goals, goals that ^{would enhance our} ~~will make us~~ internationally ^{ness} competitive. ^{well,} And we did just that when I announced our six education goals in my State of the Union speech last month. By the turn of the century, all children in America will start school ready to learn. We will increase the percentage of students graduating from high school to at least ninety percent. We will check the progress of American students in grades four, eight, and twelve. By the year 2000, our students will be the first in the world in science and mathematics. Every adult will be literate, and, finally, every school in America will be free of drugs and violence while offering a disciplined environment conducive to learning. ✓

Ambitious goals, it's true. And they won't be easily achieved. But, if we're going to ensure every child in America the chance to succeed, if America is going to maintain its leadership role in the world, together we must meet these goals. ✓

reflects your commitment to this effort and the Nation's young people. As a society, we depend on your leadership and vision, and your inspiration to guide them through the coming decade and into the next century. Simply put, each of you will help determine the future course of this Nation.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
ALABAMA HALL OF FAME AND RAY SCOTT

Greetings to all my friends in Alabama and thanks to you Larry and the Board of Directors of the Alabama Sports Hall of Fame for inviting me to share a few moments with you and your guests.

It's wonderful to join you as you honor my good friend and fishing companion Ray Scott, and induct six outstanding athletes into your Hall of Fame.

I'm sure that each of tonight's inductees is proud to join this Alabama institution -- a society whose membership reads like a roll call of legendary athletes. "Bear" Bryant, Hank Aaron, "Shug" Jordan ((JER-DEN)), Jesse Owens, Willie Mays, and Bart Starr. Hall of Famers all, they prompt memories of great feats and events in almost every sport.

And that's the same for this year's illustrious class. Former "Iron Bowl" coaching rivals Pat Dye of Auburn and Ray Perkins of Alabama. The excitable "Wimp" Sanderson and unforgettable Lindy Hood from Alabama basketball, stock car racer Red Farmer and of course, a great name from baseball's past -- former Detroit Tigers star Jimmy Outlaw. Each a great athlete, they've all earned their place as "legends of the game." And the same is true about Ray Scott. He's a proud Alabamian, a grand sportsman and most of all a good friend. Every time we set out to cut into the bass population in Pintlala, I think we talk about as much as we fish. Especially the last time we were together. As many of you can recall, we had a little trouble catching much of anything. But, I understand that Larry was able to land "the one that got away" and brought it here tonight.

Thanks Ray, for the wonderful hours we've spent together and congratulations on your honor tonight.

And, now, Larry has a presentation to make. Thank you, and have a great evening.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE FOR
THE EMERGENCY BROADCAST SYSTEM VIDEO TRAINING TAPE

I welcome this opportunity to thank all of you in the communications industry for your continuing voluntary contributions to the Emergency Broadcast System.

In a national emergency, it is essential that the President is able to speak with the American people on very short notice. Working together under EBS, the broadcast networks and stations, cable and telephone industries, and wire services, provide this critical capability.

I am proud of the successful cooperation between government and industry that you have developed within the EBS. It is an outstanding example of just how effective government and industry, working together, can be -- cooperating, in this case, to create and sustain the Emergency Broadcast System. So, let me thank the American communications industry for voluntarily providing this important service. You are truly a vital national asset. You have the thanks of all Americans and this President for your generous public service.

Keep up the good work, thank you and God bless you all.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGES FOR
THE 1992 QUINCENTENNIAL EXPOSITION IN SEVILLE AND GENOA

Message # 1 - SEVILLE

In 1492 Christopher Columbus set out on a voyage of discovery that would change the world. In 1992 at the Seville World's Fair, more than 100 nations will celebrate the 500th anniversary of that daring adventure. The U.S. pavilion in Seville, Spain -- the country where Columbus launched his voyage to the new world -- will be a place to show America's spirit of adventure and discovery. The front door of our Pavilion will be the front door to America. Visitors will be treated to a spectacular look at our past, present, and future, with exhibitions that represent the energy and genius of our people.

And because 1992 marks the target date for full economic integration of the European Community, this exposition will open up unparalleled business opportunities. The U.S. welcomes this chance to promote trade, tourism and investment as never before. As we approach the 21st century and move toward a greater economic integration, we must demonstrate our international competitiveness. Events in Europe in 1992 will be instrumental in shaping America's trade policies and will test our ability to compete in world markets into the year 2000 and beyond.

Seville Expo '92 offers exciting prospects for us all. I hope you'll make it to Seville and help the world rediscover the great American competitive spirit. Thank you and God bless you all.

Message #2 - GENOA

In 1492 Christopher Columbus set out on a voyage of discovery that would change the world. In 1992, more than 100 nations will celebrate the 500th anniversary of that daring adventure. In Columbus's hometown of Genoa, Italy, an international exposition will tell the story of Columbus. For our part, at the Genoa Expo '92, the United States will present an exhibition that shows the energy and genius of America.

And because 1992 marks the target date for full economic integration of the European Community, the Genoa Expo will open up unparalleled business opportunities. The U.S. will promote trade, tourism and investment as never before. It is an outstanding opportunity to demonstrate our international competitiveness. SUGGESTED PRESIDENTIAL VIDEO FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES BUSINESS
1990 FEB -8 PM 7:34

I want to welcome business leaders from North America, Europe and the Pacific who have come to Charleston to discuss the increasingly important role that corporations can play in the world in which you do business.

I welcome this initiative by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. For some time, I have known of his deep personal interest in the role of business in the community. I know of the hope and opportunity that many of his initiatives bring to younger people in the United Kingdom and elsewhere in the world.

I believe that business is a powerful force for improvement in our own society and in the developing democracies around the world. In fact, by engaging in community problem-solving business can help face the critical social challenges in our world today. ✓

I firmly believe that being responsive to the needs of communities in areas such as educational excellence, youth development and environmental protection is good for business.

Often, I speak of "points of light" -- individuals, businesses, groups and organizations of all sizes that are making a positive difference in the communities in which they live. I believe in the innate desire of every individual and every group and organization to be involved in helping others in need. As we enter the new century, we must work together to multiply and magnify "points of light" everywhere.

I hope that while you are in Charleston, you will get a real sense of what can be achieved by one American community with strong leadership determined to regenerate and conserve its quality of life.

Thank you for your interest and commitment to help build a better America.

*Speedwriting*MEMORANDUM

TO: ~~Marnie Haines~~

FROM: Chino Chapa

SUBJECT: Clearance - Natl. Association of School Administrators

On page 2, the first sentence beginning with, "As a society. . ." replace that sentence with "As a society, we depend on your leadership and vision to restructure our schools and reallocate our resources. We will be relying on your inspiration to guide our students through the coming decade and into the next century."
