PROPOSED :60 SECOND PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT
FOR THE USO

ANNOUNCER: A message from President George Bush.

PRESIDENT: During the past several weeks, I have been deeply moved by the many heartfelt letters and calls from Americans seeking some way to help out our men and women serving in the Persian Gulf. So I've asked the USO to come to our aid, just as they've done for the past fifty years.

At my request, they're putting together a massive effort to show our troops in the Middle East that we care. Through this effort, our service men and women will receive personal gift packages, and enjoy celebrity concerts and tours, as well as off-duty centers that are a vital link to home. The USO receives no government funding. They need you. And so do a lot of brave Americans.

LOGO/SUPER: Thank you, Mr. President. I'm _____, please join me in answering the President's call. Phone 1-900-420-4USO. The President said it best. A lot of brave Americans are counting on us.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
BILL USERY TRIBUTE DINNER

Good evening. It's a special pleasure to join you in paying tribute to an outstanding friend of labor -- Bill Usery. Bill, congratulations!

In your distinguished career -- a career which has spanned both the public and private sectors -- you've inspired us all with your work to improve labor-management relations. All of us remember the painful dispute between Pittston Coal and the United Mine Workers. We also remember that Bill was the one who stepped in and quickly helped end that lengthy and acrimonious strike. Bill, it's no wonder that Secretary Dole has called you a "super mediator."

But, this evening, we're also here to underscore the critical role of collective bargaining in American life. As Bill knows, the collective bargaining process is a framework for workers and employers to reach their goals without management-by-decree. It's a proven avenue by which various interests in a negotiation can travel together to resolve difficult management-labor problems. And as we watch the emerging democracies in eastern Europe, we'll see more attention paid to labor and the concept of collective bargaining.

But, this should come as no surprise. As I've said before, the labor movement is helping freedom find its voice in developing countries around the world. People are discovering that democracy rests not on cold marble and pieces of paper but on institutions freely formed. They also understand that these institutions are strengthened and fortified by the give-and-take of competing interests. And as these young democracies reject management-by decree or intervention from any centralized all-knowing government they strengthen the labor movement in those countries.

This evening, let us also acknowledge the foundation of America's economic success -- the American worker. It is, after all, our working men and women that have provided our country with the energy and drive to compete in the international marketplace. It is the tireless American worker ~~that~~ has helped build, not only the finest products, but also the best country in the world.

Thank you for including me in tonight's special dinner. And Bill, once again, a special thanks for all that you've done to help the labor movement. Thank you, have a great evening, and God bless you all.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
MARINE CORPS BALL

Good evening. It's wonderful to join the Marine Corps as you celebrate your 215th anniversary. I can almost taste that birthday cake and hear the strains of "Happy Birthday" as you mark this special occasion in celebrations in Washington and around the world.

I've often felt that birthdays are not only a time for celebration, but also an opportunity to take stock and review the accomplishments of the previous year. And, as always, the Marine Corps has been in the forefront -- both in battle, and in peace. In Operation Just Cause, it was the Marines who helped dethrone a dictator and return democracy to the people of Panama. And when the Philippines were hit with a devastating earthquake, it was, I'm proud to say, the Marines who quickly responded by lending a hand to assist with emergency relief. When a revolution became dangerous for Americans and other foreign nationals in Liberia, it was the Marine Corps that answered a call for help and brought 2,000 people out to safety. And, of course, this year also brought the United States Marine Corps to the Persian Gulf and Operation Desert Shield. It seems that time and time again, in any part of the world, the Marines are always ready to answer the call to protect the cause of freedom.

But, that's just the history and tradition of the Corps. When the 2nd Continental Congress called for the creation of a Marine Corps on November 10, 1775, to help the American colonies defeat the British; they created an able force which has led our country. The roll call of this Nation's greatest battles ~~speaks~~ to the honor ^{and} distinction and sacrifice the Marines have made for their country.

Speaks

And tonight, as we review the accomplishments of this year, and look forward to the next, I know the brave men and women of the United States Marine Corps will always answer a call to action.

Thank you, have a great birthday, God bless you all, and Semper Fi.

Title: CONVERGENCE
(TENTATIVE)

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
CONVERGENCE '90 CONVENTION

It's a pleasure to join everyone at this year's International Congress on Transportation Electronics -- better known as Convergence '90.

This international forum is a unique opportunity for the automotive industry to share technology and innovation, and to use the tools of international dialogue and cooperation to reshape the future of the automobile.

But, this year, the importance of Convergence '90 has expanded. Your efforts to improve fuel economy, for example, has been given new importance in light of recent events in the Middle East. And the other issues which you'll examine -- reducing emissions, easing congestion on our highways and making our cars safer -- have equal urgency if we're to continue improving the quality of life.

As this session of Convergence '90 begins, you are pushing technology to its limits as you produce cleaner, more efficient cars and develop new technologies. And, more importantly, you have committed resources -- your engineering talents, and research and development dollars -- to protect our vital resources -- the air we breath, the highways we use and the fuel we burn.

And fortunately, you are not acting alone. On the diplomatic front, world governments are now seeking international solutions and cooperation which were unthought of just a year ago. We're also beginning to create solutions to problems -- such as pollution and energy use -- from a global perspective.

With working conferences such as Convergence '90, I'm confident that we'll be able to work together with the international community to solve our common problems. Each of you can take pride in the knowledge that your efforts will have a significant impact far beyond your individual companies and homelands.

Thank you, have a great conference, best of luck in your important work, and God bless you all.

And fortunately, you are not acting alone. On the diplomatic front, world governments are now seeking international solutions and cooperation which were unthought of just a year ago. We're also beginning to create solutions to problems -- such as pollution and energy use -- from a global perspective.

With working conferences such as Convergence '90, I'm confident that we'll be able to work together with the international community to solve our common problems. Each of you can take pride in the knowledge that your efforts will have a significant impact far beyond your individual companies and homelands.

Thank you, have a great conference, best of luck in your important work, and God bless you all.

ANNOUNCER: A message from President George Bush.

PRESIDENT: During the past several weeks, I have been deeply moved by the many heartfelt letters and calls from Americans seeking some way to help out our men and women serving in the Persian Gulf. So I've asked the USO to come to our aid, just as they've done for the past fifty years.

At my request, they're putting together a massive effort to show our troops in the Middle East that we care. Through this effort, our service men and women will receive personal gift packages, and enjoy celebrity concerts and tours, as well as off-duty centers that are a vital link to home. The USO receives no government funding. They need you. And so do a lot of brave Americans.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
BILL USERY TRIBUTE DINNER

Good evening. It's a special pleasure to join you in paying tribute to an outstanding friend of labor -- Bill Usery. Bill, congratulations!

In your distinguished career -- a career which has spanned both the public and private sectors -- you've inspired us all with your work to improve labor-management relations. All of us remember the painful dispute between Pittston Coal and the United Mine Workers. We also remember that Bill was the one who stepped in and quickly helped end that lengthy and acrimonious strike. Bill, it's no wonder that Secretary Dole has called you a "super mediator."

But, this evening, we're also here to underscore the critical role of collective bargaining in American life. As Bill knows, the collective bargaining process is a framework for workers and employers to reach their goals without management-by-decree. It's a proven avenue by which various interests in a negotiation can travel together to resolve difficult management-labor problems. And as we watch the emerging democracies in eastern Europe, we'll see more attention paid to labor and the concept of collective bargaining.

But, this should come as no surprise. As I've said before, the labor movement is helping freedom find its voice in developing countries around the world. People are discovering that democracy rests not on cold marble and pieces of paper but on institutions freely formed. They also understand that these institutions are strengthened and fortified by the give-and-take of competing interests. And as these young democracies reject management-by decree or intervention from any centralized all-knowing government they strengthen the labor movement in those countries.

This evening, let us also acknowledge the foundation of America's economic success -- the American worker. It is, after all, our working men and women that have provided our country with the energy and drive to compete in the international marketplace. It is the tireless American worker that has helped build, not only the finest products, but also the best country in the world.

Thank you for including me in tonight's special dinner. And Bill, once again, a special thanks for all that you've done to help the labor movement. Thank you, have a great evening, and God bless you all.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
MARINE CORPS BALL

Good evening. It's wonderful to join the Marine Corps as you celebrate your 215th anniversary. I can almost taste that birthday cake and hear the strains of "Happy Birthday" as you mark this special occasion in celebrations in Washington and around the world.

I've often felt that birthdays are not only a time for celebration, but also an opportunity to take stock and review the accomplishments of the previous year. And, as always, the Marine Corps has been in the forefront -- both in battle, and in peace. In Operation Just Cause, it was the Marines who helped dethrone a dictator and return democracy to the people of Panama. And when the Philippines were hit with a devastating earthquake, it was, I'm proud to say, the Marines who quickly responded by lending a hand to assist with emergency relief. When a revolution became dangerous for Americans and other foreign nationals in Liberia, it was the Marine Corps that answered a call for help and brought 2,000 people out to safety. And, of course, this year also brought the United States Marine Corps to the Persian Gulf and Operation Desert Shield. It seems that time and time again, in any part of the world, the Marines are always ready to answer the call to protect the cause of freedom.

But, that's just the history and tradition of the Corps. When the 2nd Continental Congress called for the creation of a Marine Corps on November 10, 1775, to help the American colonies defeat the British, they created an able force which has led our country. The roll call of this Nation's greatest battles speak to the honor and distinction and sacrifice the Marines have made for their country.

And tonight, as we review the accomplishments of this year, and look forward to the next, I know the brave men and women of the United States Marine Corps will always answer a call to action.

Thank you, have a great birthday, God bless you all, and Semper Fi.

(TENTATIVE)

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
CONVERGENCE '90 CONVENTION

It's a pleasure to join everyone at this year's International Congress on Transportation Electronics -- better known as Convergence '90.

This international forum is a unique opportunity for the automotive industry to share technology and innovation, and to use the tools of international dialogue and cooperation to reshape the future of the automobile.

But, this year, the importance of Convergence '90 has expanded. Your efforts to improve fuel economy, for example, has been given new importance in light of recent events in the Middle East. And the other issues which you'll examine -- reducing emissions, easing congestion on our highways and making our cars safer -- have equal urgency if we're to continue improving the quality of life.

As this session of Convergence '90 begins, you are pushing technology to its limits as you produce cleaner, more efficient cars and develop new technologies. And, more importantly, you have committed resources -- your engineering talents, and research and development dollars -- to protect our vital resources -- the air we breath, the highways we use and the fuel we burn.

And fortunately, you are not acting alone. On the diplomatic front, world governments are now seeking international solutions and cooperation which were unthought of just a year ago. We're also beginning to create solutions to problems -- such as pollution and energy use -- from a global perspective.

With working conferences such as Convergence '90, I'm confident that we'll be able to work together with the international community to solve our common problems. But, this year, the importance of Convergence '90 has expanded. Your efforts to improve fuel economy, for example, has been given new importance in light of recent events in the Middle East. And the other issues which you'll examine -- reducing emissions, easing congestion on our highways and making our cars safer -- have equal urgency if we're to continue improving the quality of life.

As this session of Convergence '90 begins, you are pushing technology to its limits as you produce cleaner, more efficient cars and develop new technologies. And, more importantly, you have committed resources -- your engineering talents, and research and development dollars -- to protect our vital resources -- the air we breath, the highways we use and the fuel we burn.

And fortunately, you are not acting alone. On the diplomatic front, world governments are now seeking international solutions and cooperation which were unthought of just a year ago. We're also beginning to create solutions to problems -- such as pollution and energy use -- from a global perspective.

With working conferences such as Convergence '90, I'm confident that we'll be able to work together with the international community to solve our common problems. Each of you can take pride in the knowledge that your efforts will have a significant impact far beyond your individual companies and homelands.

Thank you, have a great conference, best of luck in your important work, and God bless you all.

MEMORANDUM FOR CHRISS WINSTON DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR COMMUNICATIONS

FROM: JAY S. BYBEE jsb
ASSOCIATE COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Six Video Scripts

We have reviewed six video scripts for the USO (three), Bill Usery Tribute Dinner, Marine Corps Ball, and Convergence '90 Convention. We have no legal objections to the latter three.

We have no legal objections to the President's remarks on behalf of the USO. We do, however, have one concern. As we discussed with Barrie Tron yesterday, we are concerned that the President is involved with a fund-raising campaign involving a 900 telephone number where viewers/listeners have not been adequately informed that they will be charged $5.00 for their phone call. This fact should be pointed out by the celebrity or announcer who follows the President. For example, the celebrity could say "your call automatically pledges $5.00, billed on your next month's telephone bill." The three USO spots do not adequately disclose this information and, in our view, that may call into question the tactics used in this fund-raising effort and expose the President to criticism.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this matter. If we can provide any further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE FOR "ONE TO ONE"

90 OCT 17 PM 7:10

Good evening ladies and gentlemen. I wish that I could be with you tonight.

You've all heard me speak about "Points of Light", that is individuals, groups and institutions who take direct and consequential action to solve our serious social problems. One of the most serious is the alienation of so many of our young people. For they are our future.

And no Point of Light is brighter than those of you gathered tonight under the banner of One to One. Most young Americans can count on a vast web of family, friends, teachers, coaches and ministers to guide them through life. But too many of their peers have no one to turn to.

For many youngsters, yours may be the only love and support they've ever been shown. By providing mentors and entrepreneurial opportunities for some of our most disadvantaged young people, you're instilling values, teaching skills, providing hope and showing that someone cares.

Thank you for caring. May every American join you in brightening the lives of those among us in need: one to one.

FOR THE USO

ANNOUNCER: A message from President George Bush.

PRESIDENT: During the past several weeks, I have been deeply moved by the many heartfelt letters and calls from Americans seeking some way to help out our men and women serving in the Persian Gulf. So I've asked the USO to come to our aid, just as they've done for the past fifty years.

At my request, they're putting together a massive effort to show our troops in the Middle East that we care. Through this effort, our service men and women will receive personal gift packages, and enjoy celebrity concerts and tours, as well as off-duty centers that are a vital link to home. The USO receives no government funding. They need you. And so do a lot of brave Americans.

LOGO/SUPER: Thank you, Mr. President. I'm _____, please join me in answering the President's call. Phone 1-900-420-4USO. The President said it best. A lot of brave Americans are counting on us.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
BILL USERY TRIBUTE DINNER

Good evening. It's a special pleasure to join you in paying tribute to an outstanding friend of labor -- Bill Usery. Bill, congratulations!

In your distinguished career -- a career which has spanned both the public and private sectors -- you've inspired us all with your work to improve labor-management relations. All of us remember the painful dispute between Pittston Coal and the United Mine Workers. We also remember that Bill was the one who stepped in and quickly helped end that lengthy and acrimonious strike. Bill, it's no wonder that Secretary Dole has called you a "super mediator."

But, this evening, we're also here to underscore the critical role of collective bargaining in American life. As Bill knows, the collective bargaining process is a framework for workers and employers to reach their goals without management-by-decree. It's a proven avenue by which various interests in a negotiation can travel together to resolve difficult management-labor problems. And as we watch the emerging democracies in eastern Europe, we'll see more attention paid to labor and the concept of collective bargaining.

But, this should come as no surprise. As I've said before, the labor movement is helping freedom find its voice in developing countries around the world. People are discovering that democracy rests not on cold marble and pieces of paper but on institutions freely formed. They also understand that these institutions are strengthened and fortified by the give-and-take of competing interests. And as these young democracies reject management-by decree or intervention from any centralized all-knowing government they strengthen the labor movement in those countries.

This evening, let us also acknowledge the foundation of America's economic success -- the American worker. It is, after all, our working men and women that have provided our country with the energy and drive to compete in the international marketplace. It is the tireless American worker that has helped build, not only the finest products, but also the best country in the world.

Thank you for including me in tonight's special dinner. And Bill, once again, a special thanks for all that you've done to help the labor movement. Thank you, have a great evening, and God bless you all.

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
MARINE CORPS BALL

Good evening. It's wonderful to join the Marine Corps as you celebrate your 215th anniversary. I can almost taste that birthday cake and hear the strains of "Happy Birthday" as you mark this special occasion in celebrations in Washington and around the world.

I've often felt that birthdays are not only a time for celebration, but also an opportunity to take stock and review the accomplishments of the previous year. And, as always, the Marine Corps has been in the forefront -- both in battle, and in peace. In Operation Just Cause, it was the Marines who helped dethrone a dictator and return democracy to the people of Panama. And when the Philippines were hit with a devastating earthquake, it was, I'm proud to say, the Marines who quickly responded by lending a hand to assist with emergency relief. When a revolution became dangerous for Americans and other foreign nationals in Liberia, it was the Marine Corps that answered a call for help and brought 2,000 people out to safety. And, of course, this year also brought the United States Marine Corps to the Persian Gulf and Operation Desert Shield. It seems that time and time again, in any part of the world, the Marines are always ready to answer the call to protect the cause of freedom.

But, that's just the history and tradition of the Corps. When the 2nd Continental Congress called for the creation of a Marine Corps on November 10, 1775, to help the American colonies defeat the British, they created an able force which has led our country. The roll call of this Nation's greatest battles speak to the honor and distinction and sacrifice the Marines have made for their country.

And tonight, as we review the accomplishments of this year, and look forward to the next, I know the brave men and women of the United States Marine Corps will always answer a call to action.

Thank you, have a great birthday, God bless you all, and Semper Fi.

(TENTATIVE)

PROPOSED VIDEO MESSAGE
CONVERGENCE '90 CONVENTION

It's a pleasure to join everyone at this year's International Congress on Transportation Electronics -- better known as Convergence '90.

This international forum is a unique opportunity for the automotive industry to share technology and innovation, and to use the tools of international dialogue and cooperation to reshape the future of the automobile.

But, this year, the importance of Convergence '90 has expanded. Your efforts to improve fuel economy, for example, has been given new importance in light of recent events in the Middle East.
