PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: GOP SENATE LEADERSHIP, UNION STATION
8 p.m., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1990

((Acknowledgements -- Robin Dole.)) Let me begin by thanking you for returning a true Republican leader to office --
Senator Bob Dole.

((In fact, I understand that a telegram of congratulations
went out this afternoon from Millie to Leader.)) \\\

I wanted to be here tonight because Bob Dole has led our party with style and wit, with precision and integrity. In short, Bob has been a great Republican leader, as great as any Republican leader of the past -- and yes, I'm including Everett Dirksen. Thank you Bob Dole.

And while I'm at it, let me congratulate the new head of the Red Cross, someone I will truly miss at our Cabinet meetings.
Thank you Elizabeth Dole. **

Next, Al Simpson -- congratulations on your return as the Senate Minority Whip. ((One thing, however. I see you won your re-election to the Senate a few days ago by a paltry sixty-four percent of the vote. Al, couldn't you have done better than that?)) Thank you Senator Al Simpson. **

((Insert to be written after elections on Tuesday afternoon.))

And let's also acknowledge four Republican Senators among us who have left their mark on our party, and our nation. Senator Bill Armstrong -- you've been a superb Chairman of the Policy Committee. You've represented Colorado with distinction. And most of all, you've been a tireless advocate of the bedrock values of God and country. On behalf of your President and party -- thank you Senator Armstrong.

Gordon Humphrey -- Senator from the Granite State -- a man of principle and strength. Your leadership in Washington will be missed as much as I am sure it will be welcomed in New Hampshire. Thank you Senator Gordon Humphrey.

When I arrived in Washington as a skinny freshman in the House, one of the first friends I found was a colleague by the name of Jim McClure. Since then, I have seen Jim rise to become a truly great Senator, a great Idaho leader. Over the years, Jim, I have found your friendship to be as solid as a silver dollar. Thank you Senator Jim McClure. **

Then there is that other great Senator who leaves us with a legacy of leadership -- Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Rudy, we know it was your misfortune to run a strong and valiant campaign in a tough off-year environment. You have distinguished yourself as a true leader of this most distinguished body. You have the lasting respect and gratitude of your colleagues and this President. \\\ Thank you Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Our heartiest congratulations go to three Republican Senators-elect among us -- Hank Brown, Larry Craig and Bob Smith.\\\ You've won a great victory for our party; and I am sure that working with you in the Senate as we have in the House, we will win many victories for America. Once again, congratulations.

Finally, I would like to congratulate each and every one of you. As Republicans, you are the true leaders, the conscience, of the United States Senate.

Of course, we gather here tonight one week after the American people turned to the polls -- and returned to Washington a government divided. A government divided by party. A government divided in purpose and vision.

But our purpose as a party -- and my purpose, as President -
 - remains undivided and clear. We are as committed as ever to ^{ECON. PIE} private sector pro-growth solutions, ^{EXPANDING OUR ECONOMY, NOT ARGUING OVER HOW THE SHOULD BE CUT UP,} ~~not government solutions.~~\\\
 We are as committed as ever to opportunity, not the failed policies of tax-and-spend liberalism.\\ And we will -- as a Republican President and Republican Senators -- fight the opposition, and fight the special interests for the sake of the national interest. \\\

The world is changing and those changes will produce exciting new challenges. Working together, we can prepare this great country to meet those challenges and lead the world into the 21st century.

In the year ahead, perhaps we should draw some inspiration from a great American of the last century, someone who wrote these words: "Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men's blood and probably in themselves will not be realized. Make big plans; aim high in hope and work, remembering that a noble idea once recorded will never die, but long after we are gone will be a living thing."

The man who wrote these words was Daniel Burnham -- the architect who conceived and built this great Union Station.\\ And as we look around, at the vaulted ceilings and gilded geometry that sprang from one man's imagination, let us remember to make big plans. To aim high in hope and work. To build a better America, and thereby leave a living legacy. To do our best, as public servants -- and as Republicans.\\\

Once again, I congratulate you all. May God bless you and the United States of America.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: GOP SENATE LEADERSHIP, UNION STATION
8 p.m., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1990

((Acknowledgements -- Robin Dole.)) Let me begin by
thanking you for returning a true Republican leader to office --
Senator Bob Dole.\\\

((In fact, I understand that a telegram of congratulations
went out this afternoon from Millie to Leader.)) \\\

I wanted to be here tonight because Bob Dole has led our party with style and wit, with precision and integrity. In short, Bob has been a great Republican leader, as great as any Republican leader of the past -- and yes, I'm including Everett
Dirksen. Thank you Bob Dole.\\\

And while I'm at it, let me congratulate the new head of the Red Cross, someone I will truly miss at our Cabinet meetings.
Thank you Elizabeth Dole. \\\

Next, Al Simpson -- congratulations on your return as the Senate Minority Whip. ((One thing, however. I see you won your re-election to the Senate a few days ago by a paltry sixty-four percent of the vote. Al, couldn't you have done better than that?)) Thank you Senator Al Simpson. \\\

((Insert to be written after elections on Tuesday
afternoon.))

And let's also acknowledge four Republican Senators among us who have left their mark on our party, and our nation. Senator Bill Armstrong -- you've done a superb job as the leader of our Senate Republican Policy Committee. You've represented Colorado with distinction. And most of all, you've been a tireless advocate of the bedrock values of God and country. On behalf of your President and party -- thank you Senator Armstrong.\\\

Gordon Humphrey -- Senator from the Granite State -- you were a solid rock of strength for our party. Your leadership in Washington will be missed as much as I am sure it will be welcomed in New Hampshire. Thank you Senator Gordon Humphrey.\\\

When I arrived in Washington as a skinny freshman in the House, one of the first friends I found was a colleague by the name of Jim McClure. Since then, I have seen Jim rise to become a truly great Senator, an Idaho leader in the Borah tradition. Over the years, Jim, I have found your friendship to be as solid as a silver dollar. Thank you Senator Jim McClure. \\\

Then there is that other great Senator who leaves us with a legacy of leadership -- Senator Rudy Boschwitz.\\\ Rudy, we know it was your misfortune to run a strong and valiant campaign in a tough off-year race. You have distinguished yourself as a true leader of this most distinguished body. You have the lasting respect and gratitude of your colleagues. And please know one thing more -- if you so choose, we would all be ecstatic to see you return to the front-rank of American leadership.\\\ Thank you Senator Rudy Boschwitz.\\\

Our heartiest congratulations go to three Republican Senators-elect among us -- Hank Brown, Larry Craig and Bob Smith.\\\ You've won a great victory for our party; and I am sure that working together, we will win many victories for America. Once again, congratulations.

Finally, I would like to congratulate each and every one of you. As Republicans, you are the true leaders, the conscience, of the United States Senate.

Of course, we gather here tonight one week after the American people turned to the polls -- and returned to Washington a government divided. A government divided by party. A government divided in purpose and vision.

But our purpose as a party -- and my purpose, as President - - remains undivided and clear. We are as committed as ever to pro-growth solutions, not government solutions.\\\ We are as committed as ever to opportunity, not the failed policies of tax-and-spend liberalism.\\ And we will -- as a Republican President and Republican Senators -- fight the opposition, and fight the special interests for the sake of the national interest. \\\ ^{Insert A} ✓

In the year ahead, perhaps we should draw some inspiration from a great American of the last century, someone who wrote these words: "Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men's blood and probably in themselves will not be realized. Make big plans; aim high in hope and work, remembering that a noble idea once recorded will never die, but long after we are gone will be a living thing."

afternoon.))

And let's also acknowledge four Republican Senators among us who have left their mark on our party, and our nation. Senator Bill Armstrong -- you've done a superb job as the leader of our Senate Republican Policy Committee. You've represented Colorado with distinction. And most of all, you've been a tireless advocate of the bedrock values of God and country. On behalf of your President and party -- thank you Senator Armstrong.

Insert B
 Gordon Humphrey -- Senator from the Granite State -- ^{a man of} you ^{principle and strength,} ~~were a solid rock of strength for our party.~~ ^{Your principled} Your leadership in Washington will be missed as much as I am sure it will be welcomed in New Hampshire. Thank you Senator Gordon Humphrey.

When I arrived in Washington as a skinny freshman in the House, one of the first friends I found was a colleague by the name of Jim McClure. Since then, I have seen Jim rise to become a truly great Senator, an Idaho leader in the Borah tradition. Over the years, Jim, I have found your friendship to be as solid as a silver dollar. Thank you Senator Jim McClure. **

Then there is that other great Senator who leaves us with a legacy of leadership -- Senator Rudy Boschwitz.\\\ Rudy, we know it was your misfortune to run a strong and valiant campaign in a tough off-year race. You have distinguished yourself as a true leader of this most distinguished body. You have the lasting respect and gratitude of your colleagues. And please know one thing more -- if you so choose, we would all be ecstatic to see you return to the front-rank of American leadership.\\\ Thank you Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Our heartiest congratulations go to three Republican Senators-elect among us -- Hank Brown, Larry Craig and Bob Smith.\\\ You've won a great victory for our party; and I am sure that working together, we will win many victories for America. Once again, congratulations.

Finally, I would like to congratulate each and every one of you. As Republicans, you are the true leaders, the conscience, of the United States Senate.

Of course, we gather here tonight one week after the American people turned to the polls -- and returned to Washington a government divided. A government divided by party. A government divided in purpose and vision.

But our purpose as a party -- and my purpose, as President - - remains undivided and clear. We are as committed as ever to pro-growth solutions, not government solutions.\\\ We are as committed as ever to opportunity, not the failed policies of tax-and-spend liberalism.\\ And we will -- as a Republican President and Republican Senators -- fight the opposition, and fight the special interests for the sake of the national interest. \\\

In the year ahead, perhaps we should draw some inspiration from a great American of the last century, someone who wrote these words: "Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men's blood and probably in themselves will not be realized. Make big plans; aim high in hope and work, remembering that a noble idea once recorded will never die, but long after we are gone will be a living thing."

The man who wrote these words was Daniel Burnham -- the architect who conceived and built this great Union Station.\\ And as we look around, at the vaulted ceilings and gilded geometry that sprang from one man's imagination, let us remember to make big plans. To aim high in hope and work. To build a better America, and thereby leave a living legacy. To do our best, as public servants -- and as Republicans.\\\

Once again, I congratulate you all. May God bless you and the United States of America.

Let me begin by thanking you for returning a true Republican leader to office -- Senator Bob Dole.\\\

((In fact, I understand that a telegram of congratulations went out this afternoon from Millie to Leader.)) \\\

I wanted to be here tonight because Bob Dole has led our party with style and wit, with precision and integrity. In short, Bob has been a great Republican leader, as great as any Republican leader of the past -- and yes, I'm including Everett Dirksen. Thank you Bob Dole.\\\

And while I'm at it, let me congratulate the new head of the Red Cross, someone I will truly miss at our Cabinet meetings. I'm sorry she couldn't be with us this evening -- Thank you Elizabeth Dole. And congratulations also to Robin Dole.\\\

Next, Al Simpson -- congratulations on your return as the Senate Minority Whip.\\\

Congratulations to the newly elected Conference Chairman, Senator Thad Cochran, and Conference Secretary -- Senator Kasten. Phil Gramm, a fellow Texan, is our Senatorial Committee Chairman. Don Nickles, our new Policy Committee Chairman -- I look forward to working closely with you all.
