TALKING POINTS -- LAST NIGHT'S RECEPTION IN PRAGUE

90 NOV 15 PM 6:22

- o A few thoughts, on my final evening here -- which represents a great beginning. An affirmation of the shared values that unite your great nation with my own.
- o Been an honor to meet with the Czechoslovakian people -- and again with Vaclav Havel, admired in America as a genuine hero.
- o Havel now the leader of a nation proud and free -- just as Czechoslovakia has been a leader in Eastern Europe -- toward the power of free will, free markets, free peoples.
- o Political change -- nothing short of breathtaking. Just as so many admire Dvorak's [Dvor-zhak's] "New World Symphony," last year the world heard admiringly the harmony of your Velvet Revolution -- Havel conducting, parts played by all freedom-loving Czechs and Slovaks.
- o Assure you of my hope and confidence that economic change will be no less striking. The Czechs and Slovaks are capable and ready. Skilled -- 99 percent literacy rate -- poised to succeed. Their energy unleashed will bring a more prosperous future to this great nation.
- o Barbara and I have been delighted to be with you tonight. We'll be bringing back to America a wealth of warm memories of our visit here.
- o So let me express my deep gratitude and admiration to you, as to all the people of Czechoslovakia -- for your hospitality, your rich cultural tradition, and economic potential -- but above all, for your faith in freedom.
