PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: SENATORIAL TRUST
STATE FLOOR/WHITE HOUSE
THURSDAY OCTOBER 3, 1991
4:30 P.M.

I want to thank my good Texas friend Phil Gramm for that introduction. As head of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, Phil is going to help us do to our opponents what Nolan Ryan does to his. // A special thanks to RNC Chairman Clayton Yeutter, who could not be with us. / But most of all, my appreciation to you members of the Senatorial Trust who give of your time and money to a cause larger than yourselves. //

It's great to be here near the start of the 1992 Campaign. ((I begin with high hopes. With democracy asserting itself all over the world, it's wonderful to see the emergence of the two-party system. Today Moscow -- tomorrow, the Congress.)) //

I'm sure you remember the last time we controlled at least one house of the Congress. Remember those days -- 1981 through '86? How we had Republican committee chairmen -- won party-line votes -- how committees acted on our agenda? //

Like you, I recall how Senate support freed Americans to launch nearly 22 million new jobs during the largest peacetime expansion in American history. / We know how Republicans supported economic programs and defense initiatives that made American strength unparalleled around the world. / The Senate also set the stage for our current domestic agenda -- making government serve the people --not the other way around. //

((Last week, I was down in New Orleans, where the Saints are off to their fastest-ever start. I recalled how a few years back, things were so lean Saints' fans wore paper bags over their heads. / Well, after next year the only ones doing that will be Democrats.)) / The reason: GOP stands for growth, opportunity, and prosperity. //

Our domestic agenda can achieve those goals -- but only if we change a Congress bent on giving people the business -- not doing the people's business. // As I told the Eagles luncheon three weeks ago, "There's something wrong when it's easier to get Iraqi forces out of Kuwait than it is for the Administration to get domestic programs through Congress." //

If Congress won't clean up its act, we have to clean up the Congress. //

Look at crime and transportation. Last March 6, I said we could pass bills in both fields in 100 days. It's 212 days later, and Congress still hasn't acted. We introduced the most comprehensive crime package in our nation's history -- and Congress hasn't passed it. We introduced a transportation package that would let states decide how to use their own money -- and Congress hasn't passed it.

Look at capital gains -- which would unleash a new wave of opportunity. The Democratic leadership wouldn't even permit a vote -- unless we agreed to raise income taxes.

The list, sadly, goes on and on -- almost a dishonor roll. Education. For two years we have urged Congress to pass our Educational Excellence Act -- asking it to help make America No. 1 by the year 2000. Where's Congress? On recess. / Civil rights. I want a bill that promotes equal opportunity. Democrats want a quota bill. /

The environment. Recently, I signed into law the Clean Air Act. Yet Democrats won't provide the funds for our efforts to plant trees, preserve wetlands, protect our coastlines, and clean up toxic waste sites. //

Energy. Our energy package encourages innovation and conservation. But a Congress that talks about action, won't act.

In short, our Administration has an activist agenda. Unfortunately, Democrats in Congress just want to stand in the way of progress.

Yes, we need to elect a Republican President next year. / I'm not saying who, mind you. ((Incidentally, someone asked Barbara if she minded Tom Harkin constantly referring to me as "George Herbert Walker Bush." She said no, because she was sure no one would ever refer to him as "Mr. President.")) //

Yet the Presidency is not enough. We need a Republican Senate to give the American people laws they want -- laws that advance their lives. / We need a Republican Senate to oppose an agenda of special interests -- and support the interests of the people who have made the United States the greatest Nation in the world. //

We need a Republican Senate to confirm qualified candidates for important positions in the Federal government. //

We must make the most of our strength. In 1986, a total of 35,000 more Republican votes in the six tightest Senate races would have kept the Senate in Republican hands. Next year, by defining the issues -- by running campaigns that are hard fought, well-led, and, yes, amply financed -- we can give the Senate back to the American people. In the end, it's all up to us. /

So let's do what we must do to ensure a Republican majority. / We have superb Senate candidates. We have a magnificent agenda. We have you -- a great team committed to keeping this nation on the move and letting us serve as the beacon of freedom for the whole world.

Thank you for your support. May God bless you and the United States of America.

(WALDEN) in the Federal government.

9/10/87 (WALDEN)

We must make the most of our strength. In 1986, 35,000 more in each race, or total?

No (Spindner)

Republican votes in the six tightest Senate races would have given us a 51-49 majority. Next year, by defining the issues -- by running campaigns that are hard fought, well-led, and, yes, amply financed -- we can give the Senate back to the American people. In the end, it's all up to us. /

So let's do what we must do to ensure a Republican majority.

/ We have superb Senate candidates. We have a magnificent agenda. We have you -- a great team committed to keeping this nation on the move and letting us serve as the beacon of freedom for the whole world.

Thank you for your support. May God bless you and the United States of America.

FROM: DALE CURTIS Dale
 RE: SENATORIAL TRUST REMARKS

On page 3, two suggestions:

- 1) In paragraphs four and six where you talk about a domestic agenda, I like Newt Gingrich's use of the word "reform" -- we stand for a reform agenda. Also alludes to Bush's '88 convention speech when he said we're still the party of change.
- 2) On the environment, the example of Congressional intransigence needs to be a little more explicit. Many people won't know what "America the Beautiful" is. How about:

- "... Democrats won't provide the funds for our efforts to plant trees, preserve wetlands, protect our coastlines, and clean up toxic waste sites."
- "... Recently I signed into the Clean Air Act and a number of other important bills. But we had to fight the Democrats every inch of the way for an approach that harnesses market forces and not the heavy hand of regulation."
- "...Congress keeps nickle-and-diming me on my efforts to increase funds for parks, wetlands, tree-planting, and toxic dump cleanups."
- "...Congress wants to tie my hands <sup>to prevent me from giving</sup> ~~as a condition for giving~~ the environment a seat at the Cabinet table."

The best

PROPOSALS BY PRESIDENT BUSH NOT MATCHED BY THE CONGRESSBush Proposal:

Increase Superfund budget by 23 percent over fiscal 1989 level.

Increase funds for expansion of national parks and forests by 69 percent over fiscal 1989 level.

Elevate Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to Cabinet status (proposed in January, 1990).

Devote $140 million in 1992 to tree planting in urban and rural areas, thus helping to address the problem of global climate change.

Target $300 million for sewage treatment in Boston Harbor, New York Harbor, Santa Monica Bay, San Diego, and Seattle.

Allocate $100 million to address U.S.-Mexican border pollution problems by building a sewage treatment facility.

Congressional Action

Cut the President's request by almost 10 percent every year for the last three years; the Congress still has not matched the President's original proposal (FY 1990) of $1.74 billion.

Cut the President's request for 1992 by more than 25 percent--including a 60 percent cut in the request for grants to states for purchasing parks and recreation lands and preserving open space.

Congress has yet to pass the bill.

The full Congress cut the President's request by 60 percent last year. This year, the House cut it by 39 percent and the Senate cut it by 55 percent.

Zero funding in Senate Appropriations bill for FY 1992.

Zero funding in the Senate Appropriations bill for FY 1992. $50 million were cut in the House Appropriations bill for FY 1992.

Allocate $23 million to "Coastal America," a coordinated interagency effort to stem coastal pollution and habitat loss.

Provide full funding (over $124 million) for new 1990 Farm Bill program to preserve wetlands--the "Wetlands Reserve."

Zero funding in both Congressional Appropriations bills for FY 1992.

Zero funding in the House Appropriations bill for FY 1992.

It's great to be here near the start of the 1992 Campaign. ((I begin with high hopes. With democracy asserting itself all over the world, it's wonderful to see the emergence of the two-party system. Today Moscow -- tomorrow, the Congress.)) //

I'm sure you remember the last time we controlled at least one house of the Congress. Remember those days -- 1981 through '86? How we had Republican committee chairmen -- won party-line votes -- how committees acted on our agenda? //

Like you, I recall how Senate support launched nearly 22 million new jobs during the largest peacetime expansion in American history. / We know how Republicans made American strength unparalleled around the world. / The Senate also set the stage for our current domestic agenda -- making government serve the people --not the other way around. //

We introduced a transportation package that would let states decide how to use their own money - - and Congress hasn't passed it.

Look at capital gains -- which would unleash a new wave of opportunity. The Democratic leadership wouldn't even permit a vote -- unless we agreed to raise income taxes.

The list, sadly, goes on and on -- almost a dishonor roll. Education. For two years we have urged Congress to pass our Educational Excellence Act -- asking it to help make America No. 1 by the year 2000. Where's Congress? On recess. / Civil rights. I want a bill that promotes equal opportunity. Democrats want a quota bill. /

The environment. Recently, I signed into law the Clean Air Act. Yet Democrats won't provide the funds for our efforts to plant trees, preserve wetlands, protect our coastlines, and clean up toxic waste sites. //

Energy. Our energy package encourages innovation and conservation. But a Congress that talks about action, won't act.

In short, our Administration has an activist agenda. Unfortunately, Democrats in Congress just want to stand in the way of progress.

Yes, we need to elect a Republican President next year. / I'm not saying who, mind you. ((Incidentally, someone asked Barbara if she minded Tom Harkin constantly referring to me as "George Herbert Walker Bush." She said no, because she was sure no one would ever refer to him as "Mr. President.")) //

Yet the Presidency is not enough. ~~We cannot enact a domestic agenda through Presidential vetoes alone.~~ We need a Republican Senate to give the American people laws they want -- laws that advance their lives. / We need a Republican Senate to oppose an agenda of special interests -- and support the interests of the people who have made the United States the greatest Nation in the world. //

4:30 P.M.

I want to thank my good Texas friend Phil Gramm for that introduction. As head of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, Phil is going to help us do to opponents what Nolan Ryan does to his. // A special thanks to RNC Chairman Clayton Yeutter, who could not be with us. / But most of all, my appreciation to you members of the Senatorial Trust who give of your time and money to a cause larger than yourselves. //

It's great to be here near the start of the 1992 Campaign. ((I begin with high hopes. With democracy asserting itself all over the world, it's wonderful to see the emergence of the two-party system. Today Moscow -- tomorrow, the Congress.)) //

I'm sure you remember the last time we controlled at least one house of the Congress. Remember those days -- 1981 through '86? How we had Republican committee chairmen -- won party-line votes -- how committees acted on our agenda? //

I may be 67, but like you, I remember it well. We recall how Senate support launched nearly 22 million new jobs -- high (OCA) paying jobs, for the most part -- during the largest peacetime expansion ~~recovery~~ in American history. / We know how Republicans made American strength unparalleled around the world. / The Senate also set the stage for our current domestic agenda -- making government serve the people --not the other way around. //

((Last week, I was down in New Orleans, where the football Saints are off to their fastest-ever start. I recalled how a few years back, things were so lean Saints' fans wore paper bags over their head. / Well, after next year the only ones doing that will be Democrats.)) / The reason: GOP stands for growth, opportunity, and prosperity. //

Our domestic agenda can achieve those goals -- but only if we change a Congress bent on giving people the business -- not doing the people's business. // As I told the Eagles luncheon three weeks ago, "There's something wrong when it's easier to get Iraqi forces out of Kuwait than it is for the Administration to get domestic programs through Congress." //

Look at crime and transportation. Last March 6, I said we could pass bills in both fields in 100 days. It's 212 days later, and Congress still hasn't acted. We introduced the most comprehensive crime package in our nation's history -- and Congress hasn't passed it. We introduced a transportation package that would let states decide how to use their own money - - and Congress hasn't passed it.

Look at capital gains -- which would unleash a new wave of opportunity. The Democratic leadership wouldn't even permit a vote -- unless we agreed to raise income taxes.

The list, sadly, goes on and on -- almost a dishonor roll. Education. For two years we have urged Congress to pass our Educational Excellence Act -- asking it to help make America No. 1 by the year 2000. Where's Congress? On recess. / Civil rights. I want a bill that promotes true equality. Democrats want a quota bill. /

The environment. Recently, I signed into law the Clean Air Act. Yet Congress refuses to go further by funding our America the Beautiful Program. //

Energy. Our energy package encourages innovation and conservation. But a Congress that talks about action, won't act.

In short, our Administration has an activist agenda. Unfortunately, Democrats in Congress just want to stand in the way of progress.

Yes, we need to elect a Republican President next year. / I'm not saying who, mind you. ((Incidentally, someone asked Barbara if she minded Tom Harkin constantly referring to me as "George Herbert Walker Bush." She said no, because she was sure no one would ever refer to him as "Mr. President.")) //

Yet the Presidency is not enough. We cannot enact a domestic agenda through Presidential vetoes alone. We need a Republican Senate to give the American people laws they want -- laws that advance their lives. / We need a Republican Senate to oppose an agenda of special interests -- and support the interests of the people who have made the United States the greatest Nation in the world. //

We need a Republican Senate to confirm qualified candidates for important positions. //

We must make the most of our strength. In 1986, 35,000 more Republican votes in the six tightest Senate races would have given us a 51-49 majority. Next year, by defining the issues -- by running campaigns that are hard fought, well-led, and, yes, amply financed -- we can give the Senate back to the American people. In the end, it's all up to us. /

So let's do what we must do to ensure a Republican majority. / We have superb Senate candidates. We have a magnificent agenda. We have you -- a great team committed to keeping this nation on the move and letting us serve as the beacon of freedom for the whole world.

Thank you for your support. May God bless you and the United States of America.

I'm not saying who, mind you. ((Incidentally, someone asked Barbara if she minded Tom Harkin constantly referring to me as "George Herbert Walker Bush." She said no, because she was sure no one would ever refer to him as "Mr. President.")) //

Yet the Presidency is not enough. We cannot enact a domestic agenda through Presidential vetoes alone. We need a Republican Senate to give the American people laws they want -- laws that advance their lives. / We need a Republican Senate to oppose an agenda of special interests -- and support the interests of the people who have made the United States the greatest Nation in the world. //

kept on senate

We need a Republican Senate to confirm qualified candidates for important positions. //

We must make the most of our strength. In 1986, 35,000 more Republican votes in the six tightest Senate races would have ~~given us a 51-49~~ majority. Next year, by defining the issues -- by running campaigns that are hard fought, well-led, and, yes, amply financed -- we can give the Senate back to the American people. In the end, it's all up to us. /

So let's do what we must do to ensure a Republican majority. / We have superb Senate candidates. We have a magnificent agenda. We have you -- a great team committed to keeping this nation on the move and letting us serve as the beacon of freedom for the whole world.

Thank you for your support. May God bless you and the United States of America.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: SENATORIAL TRUST
STATE FLOOR/WHITE HOUSE
THURSDAY OCTOBER 3, 1991
4:30 P.M.

I want to thank my good Texas friend Phil Gramm for that introduction. As head of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, Phil is going to help us do to opponents what Nolan Ryan does to his. // A special thanks to RNC Chairman Clayton Yeutter, who could not be with us. / But most of all, my appreciation to you members of the Senatorial Trust who give of your time and money to a cause larger than yourselves. //

It's great to be here near the start of the 1992 Campaign. ((I begin with high hopes. With democracy asserting itself all over the world, it's wonderful to see the emergence of the two-party system. Today Moscow -- tomorrow, the Congress.)) //

I'm sure you remember the last time we controlled at least one house of the Congress. Remember those days -- 1981 through '86? How we had Republican committee chairmen -- won party-line votes -- how committees acted on our agenda? //

I may be 67, but like you, I remember it well. We recall how Senate support launched nearly 22 million new jobs -- high paying jobs, for the most part -- during the largest peacetime recovery in American history. / We know how Republicans made American strength unparalleled around the world. / The Senate also set the stage for our current domestic agenda -- making government serve the people --not the other way around. //

((Last week, I was down in New Orleans, where the football Saints are off to their fastest-ever start. I recalled how a few years back, things were so lean Saints' fans wore paper bags over their head. / Well, after next year the only ones doing that will be Democrats.)) / The reason: GOP stands for growth, opportunity, and prosperity. //

Our domestic agenda can achieve those goals -- but only if we change a Congress bent on giving people the business -- not doing the people's business. // As I told the Eagles luncheon three weeks ago, "There's something wrong when it's easier to get Iraqi forces out of Kuwait than it is for the Administration to get domestic programs through Congress." //

Look at crime and transportation. Last March 6, I said we could pass bills in both fields in 100 days. It's 212 days later, and Congress still hasn't acted. We introduced the most comprehensive crime package in our nation's history -- and Congress hasn't passed it. We introduced a transportation package that would let states decide how to use their own money -- and Congress hasn't passed it.

Look at capital gains -- which would unleash a new wave of opportunity. The Democratic leadership wouldn't even permit a vote -- unless we agreed to raise income taxes.

The list, sadly, goes on and on -- almost a dishonor roll.
Education. For two years we have urged Congress to pass our Educational Excellence Act -- asking it to help make America No. 1 by the year 2000. Where's Congress? On recess. / Civil rights. I want a bill that promotes true equality. Democrats want a quota bill. /

The environment. Recently, I signed into law the Clean Air Act. Yet Congress refuses to go further by funding our America the Beautiful Program. //

Energy. Our energy package encourages innovation and conservation. But a Congress that talks about action, won't act.

In short, our Administration has an activist agenda. Unfortunately, Democrats in Congress just want to stand in the way of progress.

Yes, we need to elect a Republican President next year. / I'm not saying who, mind you. ((Incidentally, someone asked Barbara if she minded Tom Harkin constantly referring to me as "George Herbert Walker Bush." She said no, because she was sure no one would ever refer to him as "Mr. President.")) //
