PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: MEDAL OF FREEDOM AWARDS CEREMONY
THE EAST ROOM
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1991

Thank you, and welcome to the White House. It is a special honor as President to have the privilege of presenting the Nation's highest civilian award, the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Since the first Presidential Medal recipients were chosen by President John Kennedy in 1963, some of the world's most notable individuals have been honored.

In this Administration alone, the medal has been awarded to war heroes like Generals Jimmy Doolittle and Norman Schwarzkopf; diplomats and public servants like Jim Baker, Margaret Chase Smith and Douglas Dillon; world-famous entertainers such as Lucille Ball, and, just last year, a world leader of enormous consequence -- former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Each of these extraordinary individuals were pioneers in their own right, each a monument to individual achievement. I'll never forget that November night two years ago when Lech Walesa accepted his medal right here in this room -- saying that now, one of the greatest dreams of his life had been fulfilled, because this medal stood for the freedom of a nation and the freedom of mankind.

Today, we recognize ten awardees whose life work has enriched this Nation -- whether as leaders of popular movements, as friends of the common man, or as intellectual giants. Their achievement and dedication are unparalleled in America, and their standards of excellence are just as towering as their commitment to the ideal of freedom. //

Author Bill Buckley is the celebrated founder of the largest journal of opinion in America. A preeminent intellectual in the American conservative movement and a distinguished author, Bill Buckley raised the level of political debate in this country -- and our Nation is better for it. A true "Renaissance Man," we honor him today for a lifetime of achievement in American political and social thought. //

Clergyman and civil rights leader Reverend Leon Sullivan has been a voice of reason throughout the latter half of this century. A vigorous proponent of equal rights for all, Reverend Sullivan founded the Opportunities Industrialization Centers, one of the world's largest self-help and job training facilities. More recently, he has worked hard to develop closer ties between this country and Africa. Reverend, we salute your leadership in one of the great movements of our time, here and throughout the world: equal rights under law. //

Conservationist Russell Train has devoted his life to the protection and conservation of our land and wildlife, serving both in private environmental groups and in the federal government. I've often quoted President Theodore Roosevelt's idea that we don't inherit the environment from our parents so much as borrow it from our children. For the legacy you are helping us leave to the children of America, sir, we thank you.//

Baseball great Ted Williams is an American legend -- a remarkable figure in American sports and a twice-tested war hero. At the height of his athletic career, "Teddy Ballgame," as he was known, answered the call of patriotism -- serving his country in both World War II and Korea. A true champion in the eyes of many Americans, an author wrote of his retirement from baseball: "And now Boston knows how England felt when it lost India." Ted, congratulations. //

Former First Lady Betty Ford first inspired our Nation when, fighting her own battle against breast cancer, she drew national attention to the importance of early detection. Later, as president of the Betty Ford Center, she restored hope and dignity to those lost in the desperation of drug and alcohol dependency. Mrs. Ford, your compassion and caring have shown millions the way to new lives of freedom. //

Former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill is a legendary figure in American politics, blessed with the common touch like few others. Over fifty years ago, Tip entered the rough-and-tumble of Massachusetts politics and soon became the Bay State's first Democratic Speaker. Throughout 34 years as a member of Congress and a decade as Speaker of the House, Tip O'Neill built one of the most remarkable political careers of this century. Tip, you were a tough partisan -- but above all, you are a true patriot. Congratulations.//

of the arts, a savvy businessman and a public servant of the first order. Don Luis is a lifelong advocate of statehood for Puerto Rico. Sir, we honor you today as a extraordinary leader in the life of Puerto Rico. //

Historian and humanist Hanna Holborn Gray is a world-class educator, the first woman to serve as president of a major American university, the University of Chicago. Throughout her career, Mrs. Gray been widely regarded as an outstanding Renaissance scholar. An example for others in her profession, she continues to teach at least one class a semester. Mrs. Gray, for your pursuit of the highest ideals in your profession and your commitment to excellence in American education, we salute you. //

Vernon Walters enlisted in the Army as a private in 1941, before the outbreak of WWII; nearly a half-century later, he was ambassador to Germany during the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the years between, he served six Presidents as a statesman, ambassador and trusted aide. His brilliant mastery of the art of diplomacy is renowned, and his extraordinary linguistic skills have frequently advanced our diplomatic efforts, often in the face of grave danger. It's been said that courage is the price that life exacts for granting peace. For your courageous service to the cause of peace and the American ideal, we thank you. //

Finally, we honor Professor Friedrich von Hayek, for a lifetime of looking beyond the horizon. At a time when many saw socialism as ordained by history, he foresaw freedom's triumph.

Over forty years ago, Professor von Hayek wrote that the "Road to Serfdom" was not the road to the future -- or to the political and economic freedom of man. A Nobel Laureate, he is widely credited as one of the most influential economic writers of our century. Professor von Hayek is revered by the free people of Central and Eastern Europe as a true visionary -- and recognized world-wide as a revolutionary in intellectual and political thought. How magnificent it must be for him to witness his ideas validated before the eyes of the world. We salute him. //

The people of the United States are indebted to each of our honorees. You have touched us, you have enriched us -- you have shaped our Nation's destiny. You have also shown us the strength and joy of a simple but powerful idea: the idea of freedom. God bless each of you, and God bless this great country of ours.

Thank you, and welcome to the White House. It is a special honor as President to have the privilege of presenting the Nation's highest civilian award, the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Since the first Presidential Medal recipients were chosen by President John Kennedy in 1963, some of the world's most notable individuals have been honored.

In this Administration alone, the medal has been awarded to war heroes like Generals Jimmy Doolittle and Norman Schwarzkopf; diplomats and public servants like Jim Baker, Margaret Chase Smith and Douglas Dillon; world-famous entertainers such as Lucille Ball, and, just last year, a world leader of enormous consequence -- former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Each of these extraordinary individuals were pioneers in their own right, each a monument to individual achievement. I'll never forget that November night two years ago when Lech Walesa accepted his medal right here in this room -- saying that now, one of the greatest dreams of his life had been fulfilled, because this medal stood for the freedom of a nation and the freedom of mankind.

Today, we recognize ten awardees whose life work has enriched this Nation -- whether as leaders of popular movements, as friends of the common man, or as intellectual giants. Their achievement and dedication are unparalleled in America, and their standards of excellence are just as towering as their commitment to the ideal of freedom. //

Author Bill Buckley is the celebrated founder of the largest journal of opinion in America. A preeminent intellectual in the American conservative movement and a distinguished author, Bill Buckley raised the level of political debate in this country -- and our Nation is better for it. A true "Renaissance Man," we honor him today for a lifetime of achievement in American political and social thought. //

Clergyman and civil rights leader Reverend Leon Sullivan has been a voice of reason throughout the latter half of this century. A vigorous proponent of equal rights for all, Reverend Sullivan founded the Opportunities Industrialization Centers, one of the world's largest self-help and job training facilities. More recently, he has worked hard to develop closer ties between this country and Africa. Reverend, we salute your leadership in one of the great movements of our time, here and throughout the world: equal rights under law. //

Conservationist Russell Train has devoted his life to the protection and conservation of our land and wildlife, serving both in private environmental groups and in the federal government. I've often quoted President Theodore Roosevelt's idea that we don't inherit the environment from our parents so much as borrow it from our children. For the legacy you are helping us leave to the children of America, sir, we thank you.//

Baseball great Ted Williams is an American legend -- a remarkable figure in American sports and a twice-tested war hero. At the height of his athletic career, "Teddy Ballgame," as he was known, answered the call of patriotism -- serving his country in both World War II and Korea. A true champion in the eyes of many Americans, an author wrote of his retirement from baseball: "And now Boston knows how England felt when it lost India." Ted, congratulations. //

Former First Lady Betty Ford first inspired our Nation when, fighting her own battle against breast cancer, she drew national attention to the importance of early detection. Later, as president of the Betty Ford Center, she restored hope and dignity to those lost in the desperation of drug and alcohol dependency. Mrs. Ford, your compassion and caring have shown millions the way to new lives of freedom. //

Former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill is a legendary figure in American politics, blessed with the common touch like few others. Over fifty years ago, Tip entered the rough-and-tumble of Massachusetts politics and soon became the Bay State's first Democratic Speaker. Throughout 34 years as a member of Congress and a decade as Speaker of the House, Tip O'Neill built one of the most remarkable political careers of this century. Tip, you were a tough partisan -- but above all, you are a true patriot. Congratulations.//

of the arts, a savvy businessman and a public servant of the first order. Don Luis is a lifelong advocate of statehood for Puerto Rico. Sir, we honor you today as a extraordinary leader in the life of Puerto Rico. //

Historian and humanist Hanna Holborn Gray is a world-class educator, the first woman to serve as president of a major American university, the University of Chicago. Throughout her career, Mrs. Gray been widely regarded as an outstanding Renaissance scholar. An example for others in her profession, she continues to teach at least one class a semester. Mrs. Gray, for your pursuit of the highest ideals in your profession and your commitment to excellence in American education, we salute you. //

Vernon Walters enlisted in the Army as a private in 1941, before the outbreak of WWII; nearly a half-century later, he was ambassador to Germany during the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the years between, he served six Presidents as a statesman, ambassador and trusted aide. His brilliant mastery of the art of diplomacy is renowned, and his extraordinary linguistic skills have frequently advanced our diplomatic efforts, often in the face of grave danger. It's been said that courage is the price that life exacts for granting peace. For your courageous service to the cause of peace and the American ideal, we thank you. //

Finally, we honor Professor Friedrich von Hayek, for a lifetime of looking beyond the horizon. At a time when many saw socialism as ordained by history, he foresaw freedom's triumph.

Over forty years ago, Professor von Hayek wrote that the Road to Serfdom was not the road to the future -- or to the political and economic freedom of man. A Nobel Laureate, he is widely credited as one of the most influential economic writers of our century. He is revered by the free people of Central and Eastern Europe as a true visionary. The people of the United States recognize Professor von Hayek for the revolutions in intellectual and political thought he sparked throughout the world. How magnificent it must be for him to witness his ideas validated before the eyes of the world. We salute him. //

The people of the United States are indebted to each of our honorees. You have touched us, you have enriched us -- you have shaped our Nation's destiny. You have also shown us the strength and joy of a simple but powerful idea: the idea of freedom. God bless each of you, and God bless this great country of ours.

[And now, Barbara and I will present the medals to the recipients while the military aide reads the citations.]

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: MEDAL OF FREEDOM AWARDS CEREMONY
THE EAST ROOM
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1991
TIME?

Thank you, and welcome to the White House. It gives me great pleasure to indulge in one of the most unique honors of being President: the privilege of presenting the Nation's highest civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Since the first Presidential Medal recipients were chosen by John Kennedy in 1963, some of America's greatest heroes have been honored -- the likes of presidents and popes, artists and astronauts, statesmen and scientists.

I myself have had the pleasure of presenting this medal to war heroes like Generals Jimmy Doolittle and Norman Schwarzkopf; diplomats and public servants like Jim Baker, Margaret Chase Smith and Douglas Dillon; world-famous entertainers such as Lucille Ball, and international statesmen such as Prime Minister Thatcher -- each of them pioneers in their own right, each a monument to individual achievement. I'll never forget that November night two years ago when Lech Walesa accepted his medal right here in this room -- saying that now, one of the greatest dreams of his life had been fulfilled, because this medal stood for the freedom of a nation and the freedom of mankind.

Today, we have with us ten awardees whose life work has enriched this Nation -- whether as leaders of popular movements, as icons of the common man, or as intellectual giants. Your achievement and dedication are unparalleled in America, and your standards of excellence are just as towering as your commitment to the ideal of freedom. //

Author Bill Buckley is the celebrated founder of the largest journal of opinion in America. A preeminent intellectual in the American conservative movement, Bill Buckley raised the level of political debate in this country -- and our Nation is better for it. A true "Renaissance Man," we honor him today for a lifetime of achievement in American political thought. //

Clergyman and civil rights leader Rev. Leon Sullivan has been a voice of reason throughout the latter half of this century. A vigorous proponent of equal rights for all Americans, Reverend Sullivan founded the Opportunities Industrializations Centers, one of the world's largest self-help and job training facilities. Reverend, we salute your leadership in one of the great movements of our time, here and throughout the world: civil rights under law. //

Conservationist Russell Train is widely recognized as the founder of the environmental movement in this country. He has devoted his life to the protection and conservation of our land and wildlife. I've often quoted President Theodore Roosevelt's idea that we don't inherit our environment from our parents so much as borrow it from our children. For the legacy you are helping us leave to the children of America, sir, we thank you.//

Baseball great Ted Williams is an American legend -- a virtual deity in American sports and a twice-tested war hero. At the height of his athletic career, "Teddy Ballgame," as he was known, answered the call of patriotism -- serving his country for five and a half years, in both World War II and Korea. A true champion in the eyes of many Americans, an author wrote of his retirement from baseball: "And now Boston knows how England felt when it lost India." Ted, congratulations. //

Former First Lady Betty Ford first inspired the world when, despite her own battle against breast cancer, drawing national attention to the importance of early detection. Later, as president of the Betty Ford Center, she restored hope and dignity to those lost in the desperation of drug and alcohol dependency. Mrs. Ford, your compassion and caring have led millions to new lives of freedom. //

Former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill is a legendary figure in American politics, blessed with the common touch like few others. Over fifty years ago, O'Neill entered politics and soon became the first Democratic Speaker of the Massachusetts House. Throughout 34 years as a member of Congress and a decade as Speaker of the House, Tip O'Neill built one of the most remarkable political careers of this century. Tip, you were a tough partisan -- but above all, you are a true patriot. Congratulations.//

Former Puerto Rico Governor Don Luis Ferre is known as the grand old man of Puerto Rico, beloved by his people as a patron of the arts, a major businessman and a public servant of the first order. Don Luis is a lifelong advocate of equal partnership for Puerto Rico in our great union. We honor him today as a extraordinary leader in the life of Puerto Rico. //

Historian and humanist Hanna Holborn Gray is a world-class educator, the first woman to serve as president of a major American university. Throughout her career, Mrs. Gray has achieved a number of "first woman" milestones and is widely regarded as an outstanding Renaissance scholar. An example for others in her profession, she continues to teach at least one class a semester. Mrs. Gray, for your pursuit of highest ideals in your profession and your commitment to American education, we salute you. //

Vernon Walters enlisted in the Army as a private in 1941, before the outbreak of WWII; nearly a half-century later, he was ambassador to Germany during the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the years between, he served six Presidents as a soldier and statesman, ambassador and aide. His brilliant mastery of the art of diplomacy is renowned; in fact, it's been said of him that he is the right man in the right place at the wrong time. For your tireless service to the cause of freedom and the American ideal, we thank you. //

Finally, we honor Professor Friedrich von Hayek, for a lifetime of looking beyond the horizon. At a time when many saw socialism as ordained by history, he foresaw freedom's triumph. Over fifty years ago, Professor von Hayek wrote that the Road to Serfdom was not the road to the future -- or to the political and economic freedom of man. He is widely credited as the most influential economic writer of our century. An idol of the free people of Eastern Europe, Professor von Hayek's writings just recently were translated into Lithuanian. The people of the United States recognize Professor von Hayek for the revolutions in intellectual and political thought he sparked throughout the world. How magnificent it must be to witness your ideas validated before the eyes of the world. We salute you. //

The people of the United States are indebted to each of you. You have touched each of us, in ways both seen and unseen -- and shaped the destiny of this Nation. And you have shown us the strength of a simple idea: the idea of freedom -- in the words of Lech Walesa, freedom of a nation and freedom of mankind. God bless each of you, and God bless this great country of ours.

And now, Barbara and I will present the medals to the recipients.

the height of his athletic career, "Teddy Ballgame," as he was known, answered the call of patriotism -- serving his country for five and a half years, in both World War II and Korea. A true champion in the eyes of many Americans, an author wrote of his retirement from baseball: "And now Boston knows how England felt when it lost India." Ted, congratulations. //

Historian and humanist Hanna Holborn Gray is a world-class educator, the first woman to serve as president of a major American university. Vernon Walters enlisted in the Army as a private in 1941, before the outbreak of WWII; nearly a half-century later, he was ambassador to Germany during the fall of the Berlin Wall. In the years between, he served six Presidents as a soldier and statesman, ambassador and aide. His brilliant mastery of the art of diplomacy is renowned; in fact, it's been said of him that he is the right man in the right place at the wrong time. For your tireless service to the cause of freedom and the American ideal, we thank you. //

Finally, we honor Professor Friedrich von Hayek, for a lifetime of looking beyond the horizon. At a time when many saw socialism as ordained by history, he foresaw freedom's triumph. Over fifty years ago, Professor von Hayek wrote that the Road to Serfdom was not the road to the future -- or to the political and economic freedom of man. He is widely credited as ^{one of} the most

The people of the United States recognize Professor von Hayek for the revolutions in intellectual and political thought he sparked throughout the world. How magnificent it must be to witness your ideas validated before the eyes of the world. We salute you. //

The people of the United States are indebted to each of you. You have touched each of us, in ways both seen and unseen -- and shaped the destiny of this Nation. And you have shown us the strength of a simple idea: the idea of freedom -- in the words of Lech Walesa, freedom of a nation and freedom of mankind. God bless each of you, and God bless this great country of ours.

And now, Barbara and I will present the medals to the recipients.

PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: MEDAL OF FREEDOM AWARDS CEREMONY
THE EAST ROOM
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1991
TIME?

Thank you, and welcome to the White House. It gives me great pleasure to indulge in one of the most unique honors of being President: the privilege of presenting the Nation's highest civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Since the first Presidential Medal recipients were chosen by John Kennedy in 1963, some of America's greatest heroes have been honored -- the likes of presidents and popes, artists and astronauts, statesmen and scientists.

I myself have had the pleasure of presenting this medal to war heroes like Generals Jimmy Doolittle and Norman Schwarzkopf; diplomats and public servants like Jim Baker, Margaret Chase Smith and Douglas Dillon; world-famous entertainers such as Lucille Ball, and international statesmen such as Prime Minister Thatcher -- each of them pioneers in their own right, each a monument to individual achievement. I'll never forget that November night two years ago when Lech Walesa accepted his medal right here in this room -- saying that now, one of the greatest dreams of his life had been fulfilled, because this medal stood for the freedom of a nation and the freedom of mankind.

Today, we have with us ten awardees whose life work has enriched this Nation -- whether as leaders of popular movements, as icons of the common man, or as intellectual giants. Your achievement and dedication are unparalleled in America, and your standards of excellence are just as towering as your commitment to the ideal of freedom. //

Author Bill Buckley is the celebrated founder of the largest journal of opinion in America. A preeminent intellectual in the American conservative movement, Bill Buckley raised the level of political debate in this country -- and our Nation is better for it. A true "Renaissance Man," we honor him today for a lifetime of achievement in American political thought. //

Clergyman and civil rights leader Rev. Leon Sullivan has been a voice of reason throughout the latter half of this century. A vigorous proponent of equal rights for all Americans, Reverend Sullivan founded the Opportunities Industrializations Centers, one of the world's largest self-help and job training facilities. Reverend, we salute your leadership in one of the great movements of our time, here and throughout the world: civil rights under law. //

Conservationist Russell Train is widely recognized as the founder of the environmental movement in this country. He has devoted his life to the protection and conservation of our land and wildlife. I've often quoted President Theodore Roosevelt's idea that we don't inherit our environment from our parents so much as borrow it from our children. For the legacy you are helping us leave to the children of America, sir, we thank you.//
